"Thou shalt be missed, because thy seat will be empty.

I believe Jonathan was right when he said to David, 'Thou shalt be missed, because thy seat will be empty.' These words touch our lives in various ways. For example, when death takes a loved one from us that person is missed. When a friend moves from us that person also is missed. Let me share with you three areas of Christian activity where I believe God misses us.

The first place is at Church. To many people their church attendance is like a thermometer. Either up or down, but very seldom stable. Going to church is one of the best ways to let other people see and know that the church has a message for the world. Be faithful in attending the church where God The second place is in the area of Discipleship. How disappointed Christ must be with so many of us in this area.

A disciple is a learner. There will never be a time in our lives when we will "know it all." God had much for us to learn; let us be busy learning it. Be faithful in reading the Bible daily The third place is in the area of Christian Service, God has a job for each person to do and no one else can do it. Our Christian Service is similar to our bodies. When one organ of the body fails to function it produces a burden for the other organs. In our Christian Service let us each do our part. Be faithful in serving Christ in all that you do.

God's challenge for us is to fill our place of responsibility in our Lord's work. Let it never be said that "thy seat was

Adversity Hasn't Cowed Their Spirits

An "Avis" complex has gripped this buffeted capital of the Republic of China.

"We try harder" seems stamped on every official, shopkeeper, businessman, soldier and schoolboy as Taipei makes a determined effort to prove to a skeptical world that it remains the true exponent of Chinese ideals and aspirations.

Though the shock and hurt persists over the United States' dialogue with Communist China, Taipei has refused to panic. Even the cruel expediency of scores of nations in breaking diplomatic relations in favor of ties with Peking has not soured Taiwan's smiles and good humor. Instead of anger, frustration or despair, a visitor encounters a curious optimism.

Investments are soaring. Trade missions recently negotiated the purchase of more than $900 million in American commodities. Other buyers are in the United States dickering for textile mills, cement plants, nuclear energy stations and other equipment. Finance Minister K.T. Li says a $650 million Nationalist Chinese bulge in 1972 commerce with the United States will be "corrected" this year - no small plus for a Washington worried about trade and balance of payments deficits.

Li said 42 American firms indicated to the recent trade mission that they are interested in investing in the island.

"We see no reason why Taiwan cannot become the major assembly and distribution center for the United States and other countries in the fastdeveloping Asian market," said Li.

Maybe we had a false sense of security back in the days before guards began frisking passengers at the boarding gate. Keep Pollution From Clean Air on air pollution that two federal one state might keep its own

Curiously, it is the federal Environmental Protection Agency that is opposed to maintaining these standards. The EPA was sued by four environmental groups who contended the Clean Air Act required that no significant deterioration of presently clean air be permitted.

The EPA wants to interpret the act in such manner that one minimum standard of clean air be in effect for the whole country. In areas which do not meet that minimum standard, a cleanup would be required and addition of industries or activities which increase air pollution would be prohibited. However, in areas where air cleanness was well above minimum standards, the EPA would permit addition of some industries or activities which resulted in a reduction in air quality, so long as the quality was not reduced below the minimum standards.

Environmentalists went into federal court to compel the EPA not to permit reductions in air quality anywhere. The District Court and the Court of Appeals have held for the environmentalists, and now the case is up to the Supreme Court. Attorneys for 18 states have oined with the environmentalists by filing briefs in their support. Their basic argument - and it's a sound argument - is that if industries are allowed to pollute in clean air areas, they will merely move to those areas rather than clean up the

Allende Hurts Private Enterprise

Oscar Rodriguez grew up with the metal works next to his hillside "poblacion" in Santiago. He remembers when he and the "patron" started the plant in a cardboard shack and the pride he felt when the company eventually began producing 400 tons a month. But that was back before President Salvador Allende

Production has declined to 150 tons since Chile's Marxist government nationalized the plant two years ago and Rodriguez has left the company to work for one of the privately owned industries that somehow have survived in

Though a political independent Rodriguez was much respected as a skilled forman by the paint's workers and its inexperienced Communist administration.

He was offered a 200 per cent increase in pay, a company truck and a scholarship to stay, yet the soft-spoken, 34-yearold Chilean chose to lerve Rodriguez' reasons for quitting tell a great deal about the economic mess in Chile. They also help explain why many Chilean workers continue to vote for the political oppostion, as attested by the fact that the right-wing Nationalists and the center-left Christian Democrats won 54.7 per cent of the vote in Chile's recent congressional elections. After 29 months of Marxist rule, the treasury is $300 million in the hole, inflation is the worst in the hemisphere

Rodriguez' $47 monthly paycheck feeds and clothes the family and even provides such occasional luxuries as an excursion to downtown Santiago to see a film. But nothing

Actually A Dream

Peking Isn't A 'Tourist Trap'

By EDWARD NEILAN Copley News Service

PEKING - There is no immediate danger of Peking becoming a "tourist trap."

The capital city of the People's Republic of China has no wax museums, no nightclub tours, no 24hour tailors, no all-you-can-eat pizza smorgasbords for $1.99 and no "lowest ever" rent-a-car deals. There are no mini-skirted girls handing out brochures that advertise discounts on white elephant condominiums or land deals in the desert. There are no vending machines on the floor lobby of your hotel dispensing ice cream and potato chips, and there are no discarded beer cans at the Great Because of the absence of these negative touristic hallmarks and because of the presence of positive attractions in both the cultural and sight-seeing realm, Peking is a tourist's dream. But there are virtually no fulltime tourists here.

Package tour operators back in

New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco see dollar signs in their mind's eye whenever Peking is But so far, and for the foreseeable future, Peking and other great Chinese cities will not be open for the casual picture-snapping tourist.

In some ways that's a good thing. The Boxer Rebellion would be seen as a picnic in comparison to the spectacle created by two 747-loads of "Orient Adventure Tour" participants descending on Peking and demanding to know where the fortune cookie stores are located. Visits to Peking are reserved mostly for official guests, members of various cultural and scientific and other specialist delegations and journalists. The Chinese are coming back into the world slowly and they feel that specialized visitors will do them more good than tourism revenue at this stage. Even if the Chinese wanted to open the gates to the "Whizzerama Eight-Day Tour of Exotic Cathay" type of thing, they do not have the facilities in terms of guides, interpreters and hotel rooms to accomodate large numbers of unofficial visitors. But there is a little bit of tourists in all of us. Even the official visitor or working traveler takes a day off.

That is why the visitor to the Canton Trade Fair and members of special delegations on their days off will comprise the bulk of towists in China in the months ahead.

The architecture (I call the style "People's Revolutionary Drab") of the Great Hall of the People and the other newer buildings can be dismissed. Inside the Forbidden City, there is the Palace Museum, Peihal Park and other buildings from the Ming and Ching dynasties that will delight photographers, sightseers and students of Chinese A short drive to the outskirts of

Watergate View Nixon Lacks Touch On Detail Politics

One of the great myths about President Nixon which complicates understanding of the Watergate affair is the deepset notion that he is a political master with his hand on every lever. This naturally conjures up the image of a man poring over every crucial detail of his campaigns, conversant with the full story, making all the key decisions. It simply isn't true today, and very likely it never was. But the President himself has had much to do with fostering the legend. For years Mr. Nixon had a habit of regaling newsmen with talk of "political timing" and other strategic elements, always in a sort of "instructional" vein which suggested the great teacher relishing his subject. I had one such talk with him in 1959, when he spoke with what sounded like sage detachment about the political problems facing him in his 1960 White House id. Many reporters have had these experiences again al and again, and often have rushed to offer them in print as proof of the President's mastery. Well, whatever may have been the case in 1960, i is a fact that by 1968 - and this is attested to by men who know well what was going on in politics -Mr. Nixon was not the political commander with great detail at his fingertips

In late March of 1968, I had a chance to put a few key political questions to him privately. He did not know the answers, though they were fairly fundamental to his then advancing prospects for the nomination. He had to summon a veteran aide to supply me with the

That experience, I am told, could have been repeated endlessly. Mr. Nixon indeed wanted to be kept abreast of the general picture and where he stood in it, but he was not following the details of delegate-rustling in March or any other month. He knew little if anything about what was being done to build his strength, block by block, out in the hard-scrabble political arena. When he won the election that November, he had an immediate in-house political problem. He wanted a new national party chairman to replace the then incumbent Ray Bliss, with whom he had had differences dating back to 1966. But he let the matter slide until it became a dismal mess. Months later the change, to Rogers Morton, now secretary of Interior, was accomplished - but only after have avoided. It was a story of his sheer neglect and indifference to the question. He was preoccupied build ing his image as President. Filling that role has dominated his thinking all the way. It has helped to nurture his natural preference for isolation, thoroughly exhibited in 1972 and much

some pain and folly which the President could easily reinforced since. None of this means that he did not at some point in the 1972 campaign planning say something which got the whole "surveillance" operation going. Or that reports are incorrect which now state he was informed months ago that top aides were involved. It simply means it is quite wrong to see him as a man who politically, is in the thick of things. He isn't.

Half the Blindness Is Unnecessary

By DON OAKLEY

At least 442,000 Americans are blind and an additional 35,000 will lose their eyesight by the end of 1973-half of them unnecessarily Statistics compiled by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness indicate that half the nation's sightless could have prevented their blindness if proper medical care had been instituted by periodic examinations or when symptoms of trouble appeared. According to Virginia Boyce, the society's executive director, 50 per cent of all blindness is due to disease, accident, neglect or ignorance. Cataract is the leading cause. Its only known cure is surgery, but more than 95 per cent of operations are safe

No. 2 is glaucoma, which at this moment threatens nearly 1,800,000 Americans 35 years of age or older but which for the most part can be controlled if discovered and treated in its early stages.

The greatest danger with glaucoma is that most victims don't know they have it. They can very gradually lose their sight without pain or other symptoms. Currently, the standard examination for glaucoma uses a tonometer, a small instrument which the ophthalmologist, a physician specializing in the eyes, places briefly on each eyeball to measure pressure inside the eye. The eyes first need to be numbed with a drop or two of

A major improvement on unis technique is a noncontact tonometer invented by Dr. Bernard Grolman, a scientist with the American Optical Corp. of Framingham, Mass. This extremely delicate electronic instrument measures eye pressure by directing a quick, slight pulse of air and does not touch the eye. It is reportedly as accurate as the contact tonometer, works much faster, causes no discomfort to the patient and can be operated by a technician rather than a physician, thus making it easier and less expensive to give large groups of people glaucoma ex-

A number of state and local Societies for the Prevention of Blindness will conduct mass screenings in the coming year using the noncontact tonometer. Potential glaucoma victims will be advised to consult an ophthal-

Leave children with trustworthy people

By Abigail Van Buren

E 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. Hew: Synd., Inc. DEAR ABBY: I am divorced with an 8-month-old son, Timmy. Last weekend my boy friend invited me to go to Las Vegas with him, so I left Timmy with a friend I'll call thought my baby would be in good hands. When I came home and went to pick up Timmy, I was shocked and heartsick. He was all bruised and black and blue. I asked Carol what happened to him, and she said he fell off a chair. Abby, he can hardly sit up, and what would an 8-month-old child be doing on a chair? He looked Carol. Carol has no children of her own, but she has practically raised her younger brothers and sisters so I as if he had been beaten. I took Timmy home, and now he cries all the time and seems so weak and unhappy. What should I do? Caro! won't admit to having beaten him, if that's what she did. I'm so nervous and upset and have no one to talk to. Help

DEAR MOTHER: Take the baby to a pediatrician for a thore examination to determine whether he has suffered internal injuries. You could file charges against Carol for abusing your child, but you would have to prove it, which would be virtually impossible. Next time, leave your baby only with one you are sure you can trust.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FED UP IN ASHLAND": If you are "fed up" with people who always drag their kids along to adult parties, don't invite people who always drag their kids along to adult parties.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69766, L. A., Calif. 20003. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope,

DEAR POLLY-Bella easily can prepare her tube pan for baking by using a piece of paper toweling for the greasing and then sprinkling flour from a flour shaker. Or she can use a large salt shaker with big holes and find this is an ideal way.-MRS. C. L. W. DEAR POLLY-Bella will have no more trouble or mess when greasing and flouring a tube cake pan if she creams one cup of shortening with one-half cup flour and ases a brush to paint this mixture all over the inside of the pan. The balance of the mixture can be kept in the ice box until needed again but always let it warm to room temperature before using .- L. J. C.

Polly's Problem

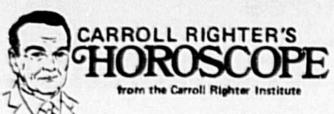

DEAR POLLY-I do hope some reader will help me as so many others have been helped. I would like to mark the bottoms of my many pieces of hand-painted china for my children but do not know what to use that will not wash off. Those who painted the china signed their names and the dates on the backs. These do not wash off. I do hope someone who does hand painting can tell me what to use that will be permanent.-JESSIE

DEAR POLLY-My Pet Peeve is with grocery store cashiers who ring up the deposits on bottles along with the other groceries so that we pay tax on this deposit. Deposit money is not a purchase and should not be taxed. It should be rung up after the tax is added -

DEAR POLLY-I have six sons and the shower seems to be in use constantly. During the holidays some of the shower curtain rings broke and this left the curtain sagging. I did not have time to shop for rings so used those wire twisters that come in a box of plastic bags. I put them through the shower curtain holes and twisted them after they were put around the rod.-DELORES

DEAR POLLY-This may be an old trick to you but I just discovered it today. Plastic sandwich bags are too expensive for my budget. When I use a loaf of bread or anything that comes in a plastic bag I cut the bag to the desired size, lay the bottom edges together and place barely between the side folds of a grocery bag (so iron does not touch the plastic) and press with a hot iron for a few seconds. If the side is cut, the same thing is done. These are great for packing cookies, candy and chips to go in the kids' lunch boxes.-GAIL to be accepted by horse racing fans in Pittsburgh (Pa.) but has really caught on. The same is expected here.

Drivers More Important? From our "brief" flings at harness race tracks (The Meadows and Wheeling Downs) we came to learn that the drivers seem to be more important in harness racing than jockey's in flat racing. Before getting all upset let us explain our view.

The additional width caused by the sulky behind the horse upon which the driver sits makes manuvering or if you will "jockeying" for position a little more tenacious. It takes a great deal of skill to push horse, driver and sulky through a tight spot. Thus, having the fastest horse on the track does not automatically mean you'll have a winner. Certainly jockey's get into tight squeezes where their ability as a rider is tested. But in harness racing there are so many more squeezes during the course of a race. Getting Back In Step

Another phase of harness racing that makes it a little tougher on the driver is the fact that should his horse break stride, either a pace or trot, the driver only has a limited time (and distance) to get his horse returned to that stride, if he desires to keep his horse eligible and in contention. The flat horse jockey is not confronted with this type of

We've seen several heavy favorities as well as big shots lose a race not because they were passed but rather they broke their stride near the finish.

Jockey Loss Hurts

We are a firm believer that a good jockey often means the difference between victory and defeat. And because of this we were saddened to learn that the popular and talented Jorge Velasquez will not ride in the Kentucky Derby because of a suspension placed by the Aqueduct (N.Y.) stewards. Velasquez was scheduled to ride Impecunious in the May 5 Derby but the suspension will not be lifted until May 7.

I'm glad that God and His Church have been an important part of my life and of Bob's. Our life together will be enriched by this shared reverence.

I should have known everything would be all right when I took Bob home to the ranch during spring break. One of the nicest things about our falling in love with you?

TAYLOR'S LOSS IS SALVATION ARMY'S GAIN

AFTER HEARING that Herald staffer Gary Taylor had gone on a diet, a local businessman, who wished to remain anonymous, offered 25 cents a pound to the locar Salvation Army for every pound Taylor loses. He's been on the diet less than 12 weeks, and has already lost 75 pounds. He's shown with Salvation Army Capt. Rosella Lyons, and is wearing pants that were tight when he started the diet. Mrs. Lyons holds the belt Taylor used when he weighed 424 pounds. (Mike McDonel Photo)
