Candidate

State Senator Frank D. Upchurch of St. Augustine today became a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Florida.

Our navigator is shooting stars now with his sextant. His voice comes in over the intercommunicating phone. He finds we are 15 miles north of the course briefed for us before the start of the flight.

It is full daylight as we approach our target.

bombardier takes control, switches to the automatic pilot and releases the bomb load.

This Is No Dream
Back over our home field our mission accomplished, the pilot halts the machine. Our altimeter says 10,000 feet!

No, it hasn't been a dream. It has been a "flight" in a Link Celestial Navigation Trainer.

You've heard of the Link Trainer, but this one has been "hush hush" until now. It teaches all the techniques required of a bomber crew.

Let's take a look at it from the cockpit. The dome is built of wire mesh and steel with small light bulbs representing the stars (split nearly used by navigators).

The fuselage is perched atop a movable framework. The front cockpit is equipped for both the bombardier and navigator, with all necessary instruments.

Behind is a compartment for three men. The pilot, with his full panel of instruments and controls activated by vacuum and electricity can make the machine turn, bank, climb or descend.

The instructor has controls which can toss the trained around as in rough weather. The radio operator sits behind the instructor. He also has all the regular instruments of a combat plane.

Below is a screen on which is projected the terrain over which the trainer "flies."

Here it is possible to train for any one of those specific missions which have made his headlines this year without danger to the crew, without the risk of losing a bomber and with no waste of fuel.

The machine may be set with the stars in the actual position they will occupy in the sky at the time the real flight is made.

Below in the operator's booth, the master of our "universe" controls the movements of stars and earth, makes the weather and the wind velocity and forms the clouds.

The instructor can call to him to stop this "universe" at any time so that a problem may be discussed and some error of the crew corrected.

The machine moves with the clock so that the stars remain in their proper position for the assumed hour, night, month and year.

Navy Expert Planned Idea
Where did the idea for this complicated mechanism originate? I asked Edwin A. Link. The idea was planned in his mind by Capt. George W. Wood, when he was dropped in to visit the retired naval officer and air navigation expert at Annapolis in 1938.

"If you could only do for navigation what you have done for instrument flying it would be a great aid," the commander told him.

They discussed the project, and Link hurried back to his plant at Bloomington, N.Y., to begin putting ideas on paper.

In England, Link found the British interested because the war clouds were hanging low and "they foresaw the importance of night bombing and the necessity of training crews."

Link took a short course in bombing and celestial navigation, came home, assembled engineers and went to work. The first machine was built under a British contract and took two years to complete.

The United States saw the value of such a trainer before Pearl Harbor and before long orders were pouring in.

Iowa Farmers Turn To Hemp Raising As Side-Line To Corn

By WALDO WIESE

AP Features
DES MOINES—The land of corn is growing hemp.

Iowa farmers, who for years have led the nation in the production of corn, have turned 45,000 acres of their fertile, black soil over to the production of hemp and now are harvesting their first crop.

Ironically, they long considered the hemp plant a weed and destroyed it as an enemy.

But the war brought a different viewpoint, and now hundreds of Hawkeye state farmers are thinking of raising hemp for a season that they did in this experimental year.

Profitable Yield
Officials in charge of the program have estimated the hemp crop will yield $126 to $150 an acre. The average yield from an acre of Iowa corn is between $50 and $75.

A majority of agricultural leaders and hemp growers think the experiment will be a success. The question of whether hemp will be added to the list of regular Iowa crops will be answered in late fall when the crop is processed and growers get paid.

Before the war, American cordage manufacturers got their hemp from the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies. Japan cut off those sources, and the government turned to the midwest. It is financing construction of 11 processing plants costing more than $300,000 each.

In 13 north central Iowa counties—an area where the soil is exceptionally rich—big, green cutting machines are rolling through the fields leveling the weeds which will be processed into rope for the fighting forces. The cutting machines sever the hemp stalks several inches from the ground and swing them around in the direction of the cutter.

The cut hemp is allowed to "rot" or cure for two to six weeks, depending on the weather and condition of the crop. Then special binders follow the rows, tying the cured hemp in bundles to be shocked or taken directly to the processing plant.

There are three component parts to hemp—a pulpy center covered by a fibrous layer of "rind" which in turn is covered by an outer "skin." The fiber is the part used for cordage.

First Step
The first processing plant step is drying. The stalks are run through tunnel-like driers at temperatures of 140 to 170 degrees for 100 minutes.

Then they are sent through a "breaking" apparatus which separates the fiber from the rest

Income Tax Deadline Dec. 15 Is Emphasized

Jacksonville, Dec. 8 (Special)

John L. Faha, Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Florida, has called attention to the income tax payment that will be due on or before Dec. 15.

It is necessary for all farmers who file income tax returns on a calendar year basis to file their declarations showing their estimated tax for the year 1943 and to make payment of same on or before Dec. 15.

Farmers are advised to file their returns showing their estimated gross income from farming, stock, dairy, poultry, or truck farm, or plantation, ranch, nursery, range, or orchard, and would not mean or include an assistant or manager, or other person, employed on a straight salary basis.

All taxpayers other than farmers who file on a calendar-year basis and who were required to file an estimated return on Form 10-40-23 on or before Sept. 15, and who paid one-half of the tax shown to be due at that time, are required to pay the balance of the tax on or before Dec. 15.

Notices will be mailed to these taxpayers showing the amount due as of Dec. 15. There will no doubt be a number of taxpayers who were unable to correctly estimate the amount of tax due for the year 1943 when they filed their Sept. 15 returns, and they are allowed to file amended returns on or before Dec. 15.

Collector Faha advises that his branch offices will be open, and deputies will be available to render assistance and advice to all persons desiring same during the period from Dec. 1 through Dec. 15. He further advises that his field deputies have made arrangements to visit the various towns and communities throughout the State during the period between Dec. 1 and Dec. 15.

Allied Armies In Italy Hit Germans Hard

U. S. Carrier-Based Bombers Raid Marshall Islands; Snow Slows Up Red Army

(By Associated Press)
The British Eighth Army drove to the banks of the Moro River, less than 14 miles from the Adriatic port of Pescara while the American Fifth Army captured more Italian heights west of Mignano, commanding the road to Rome, Allied headquarters announced today.

Russian armies pounded ahead in the worst snowstorms this year in White Russia threatened M. G. Zhlobin and Bogachev. The Germans were reported showing signs of lacking reserves. Several strongpoints in the Dolomites had been taken.

American bombers struck at Japan's defense perimeter along an ever-widening line of aerial attack which the Tokyo radio reported included the raid yesterday by 100 carrier-based Allied planes on the Marshall Islands.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Dec. 6. (AP)—The Allied Fifth Army has cracked the strongest German positions guarding Rome, the American commander said last night as American troops drove down mountain slopes toward the broad valley leading to the eternal city.

Forward with grenades and knives against savage German defenses.

The "over the top" in the attack on the German line, the American commander said, was the most successful of the latter part of the campaign for a total of 100 miles in 48 hours.

The German line was broken at the strategic point of the town of Cassino, where the American Fifth Army was hammering.

The Fifth Army's advances were along a 10-mile front in western Italy where at any point Clark's troops were expected to break through the German line.

From the plain around Cassino, only 70 miles down the Sauro valley from Rome lies.

Next Fight Back
The Germans mounted a strong counter-attack at the town of Cassino on page four.

New Store Opened In Sanford Saturday

The Firestone Store, managed by U. S. Wright, is the new store in the former location of the Speer Dry Goods Store on East First Street. Mr. Wright is former manager of the Speer store, which was sold to the company.

The store interior has been completely remodeled and equipped with new lighting fixtures. Originally, the Firestone store sold only auto supplies and equipment but they have now added toys, sporting goods, paints, dishware, and some clothing. There is also a retail department with phonograph records.

Many children thronged about the store entrance Saturday evening to view the attractive window display of bicycles, dolls and toys.

Outside Help For St. Johns Seems Nearer

New Jersey Representative And Army Engineers Visit Sanford To See River

Improvement of the St. Johns River and the Fort Myers Stuart Canal waterway as a means of shortening the route to the east and west of the United States is being studied as a new possibility following a visit to Sanford of Representative Fred Hartley of New Jersey and a group of Army engineers.

With Mayor Edward Higgins, who is chairman of the St. Johns River Authority, Incorporated, a group devoted to development of inland waterways in the State, Lt. James G. Lee, commissioner, Lee R. Leber, vice president of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, and Al Lee, Representative Hartley and the engineering group yesterday on an inspection trip of the St. Johns River which took them to Monroe, Enterprise and to the east end of Lake Monroe.

Accompanying Representative Hartley were Col. A. Griffith, district engineer for the U. S. Army in Florida, J. R. Peyton, chief civilian assistant to Col. Griffith, Warren Roberts, editor of the Orlando Sentinel and E. R. Lester, secretary of the Atlantic Gulf Canal Association.

According to Mr. Lee, Representative Hartley and the engineers were much impressed with the St. Johns River and its deepening and improvement as a means of aiding the flow of goods.

Final Blows To Crack Germany Charted As Well As Peace To Come After The War

CAIRO, Dec. 6. (AP)—President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin have agreed completely on "the scope and timing of operations" to smash the German army from three sides, an announcement signed by the three statesmen in an epic four-day meeting in Teheran, Iran, and released here today in closed.

The Allied leaders also charted the peace era in which all nations would be invited to join "a world family of Democratic nations" based on the reaffirmed principles of the Atlantic Charter.

Following the Teheran conference from Nov. 28 to Dec. 1, attended by scores of top-flight military chiefs and diplomats, the combined British and American general staffs returned here for planning the operations from last Friday through today. Churchill joined in these sessions, leading to the probability of other disclosures of paramount importance may come.

Some observers considered the most significant thing about the Teheran declarations from the German morale viewpoint was the fact that it omitted the words "unconditional surrender."

(Observers said the "big three" agreement fixing the time for the Anglo-American invasion of western Europe and apparently calling for a secondary assault from the south, may make it possible to try for knockout blows against Germany this winter.)

WOMAN-POWER
(From the New Statesman and Nation)

A woman in the days of peace,
is mere toy of masculine caprice,
A drag upon the labor mart,
Not called upon to play her part,
In war, so far as men allow
A positive sheet anchor thou
Tostle in Britain's finest hour,
Thou art described as woman power.

Thou hast acquired mechanic skill
The ranks of absent men to fill;
But in the day of victory when?
Thou art superfluous again,
Thy war-time place thou must vacate
In the best interests of the state,
Admitting with submissive grace
That home is woman's chosen place.

Quinine Comes Home

The tree is cinchona, pronounced "sinkyona" with the accent on the "ko". From its bark quinine is made. "Peruvian bark" was the name once given. South American Indians found that it drove malarial fever and other ailments and fever. Physicians learned to use it and...

The trees were native not only to Peru, but to other parts of South and Central America. Until late in the nineteenth century, they were grown in this hemisphere almost exclusively. Then they were planted in the Far East, where by 1920 nearly 97 per cent of the world's quinine supply was being produced.

The United States had a stockpile before Pearl Harbor, and substitutes, atalapha for example, have been developed to take its place. These have values but do not do quite the same things as quinine. So it is good to know that quinine production in this hemisphere is growing fast. In two years cinchona bark imports from the south have risen from a trifling amount to hundreds of thousands of pounds. Quinine has come home again.

End Of A Dream

There are various indications lately that the German superman are "fed up" with war. Conquest fades from their view like a rainbow in the sky. It is sober reality now, and the "morning after."

They may still fight on for weeks or months, but their hearts are not in it any more, and their efforts are compulsory. How could even the most hardened fighting man view those long lines of dispossessed Germans evacuating their blasted cities looking for safety and comfort and finding none without cursing the day when they were led to believe in world conquest?

"Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall." The mighty conquerors, the glittering supermen, the criminals and lunatics who dreamed of seizing the world and all its wealth slaughtering the breeds they disliked and making all others their slaves, must wish now to the bottom of their wicked souls that they had never embarked upon such an enterprise.

Some of them still cherish their crazy dreams, but the end is near.

Blood Sacrifice

The "blood banks" now operated in this country, to provide blood plasma for fighting men, have their fine merit in addition to the service rendered: they enable thousands of patriotic civilians to give blood to their nation's armies. Here is a bond which unites both men and women in a form of sacrifice never practiced at least on any such generous scale, in former wars.

Such a blood bond, however lightly it may be viewed, is more than a casual contribution to the common cause of national defense. Without growing unduly sentimental about it, there can be, nevertheless, a dignity in such sacrifices, and a sort of impersonal blood bond with the fighting men who receive that blood, which is a fine thing for national unity. The contributors can all say, with proud satisfaction, that they have shed blood for their country.

Car Thefts

A new way to stop automobile theft is to be tried in Massachusetts. There were 320 stolen cars reported there in the first two weeks of November. Though nearly all were recovered promptly, it meant much unnecessary work for the already overburdened police. Unnecessary, because often the theft was invited by the driver leaving his keys in the ignition lock.

Determined to stop such foolishness, Frank A. Goodwin, state registrar of motor vehicles, plans to suspend the license of any such careless motorist.

This sounds a good deal like the Dutch mother who stopped her children from falling into the canal by spanking them when they did. But it worked in their case, and it may work also with the naughty children of Massachusetts.

Traveling

It takes 75 trains to move an armored division. So says the Pennsylvania Railroad, which ought to know.

Every carload of wives going to visit their husbands in the service, or of people bored with home life who are running over to New York, Chicago or San Francisco to shop and see the shows, makes travel hard for that many soldiers being moved from one post to another or trying to get home once more before going overseas.

It is too high a price to pay for the satisfaction of the individual traveler. Good mottoes to remember are: "Travel unnecessarily and Help Hitler; stay at home, and the boys will come back quicker."

Soldiers Abroad Are Big Problem To Food Suppliers

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON—When a chap in the Army quartermaster corps told me the other day that the Army had to have nine months' supply of food on hand for every soldier overseas and three months' supply for every one in the country, I got to worrying about the problems that Army buyers are up against.

What I found out is that they are up against something that makes the housewife's struggle with ration points seem like kindergarten stuff. I don't ask me why they have to have all those supplies on hand but they do and can prove it and there-in lies the first of the problems—overbuying or underbuying. The Army has recently released large stocks of butter and grapefruit juice, to mention only two items (they've also released a lot of wool). Those are cases of overbuying. For cases of underbuying (they're darn few as yours would be too if you had billions to spend) you'll have to ask the boys in service what they don't get.

But these are errors in judgment. It's the day-to-day buying that fills the supply boys' heads. To them a pair of shoes isn't just a pair of shoes; it's 13 different articles that go into them; it's grain hides for uppers, another hide for soles, sheepskins for heel pads; reclaimed rubber for heels; crude rubber for sole laying compound; strip steel for eyelets, and so on and so on.

Having broken the shoes down into their component parts is just the beginning. The next problem is to find the raw supplies. In a recent six-month period the Army shoe buyers bought up nearly 4,000,000 hides. Do you wonder that shoes are rationed for civilians?

The next problem, of course, is to get the article manufactured and see that the manufacturer gets his supplies when they are needed. The shoe has to be broken down into about 100 different items. Having too few of one item may send men into battle shivering. Having too many is waste.

Then the problem comes up as to how long they will last. For every war and every different theater of this global war, that varies. The Army has it figured out that a pair of shoes will last six to eight months in this country; three to four months in the fields of operation.

A caution will last about three years in training in this country, but only half that long overseas in combat. A wool shirt is good for nine months here, but only four or five months in combat areas.

There are more than 75,000 such items which are required to keep our Army fed and clothed (which has nothing to do with arming them) and every one has to be broken down to that granular and adequate stocks built up to allow for any emergency.

A soldier in the South Pacific may struggle along a few days without a shirt, but one in the Aleutians without an overcoat is a miserable hound.

One important phase of the supply problem is rather the solution of it is now rehabilitation. It's too much of a subject to go into.

Outside Help For St. Johns Seems Nearer

Representative Hartley has made the statement that he would seek a federal appropriation to be included next month in the River and Harbor Appropriation Bill, to deepen and improve the St. Johns River and the Ft. Myers-Stuart waterway, the use of oil barges and other ship piers.

Representative Hartley, who heads a non-partisan group of senators from the southern states, arrived at Tallahassee Tuesday at the invitation of Gov. Holland to make an inspection of state waterways that took him to Ft. Myers, Lake Okechobee, Miami, Palm Beach, Orlando and Jacksonville.

It is more important to us in Florida to interest out-of-state Representatives of Congress in state waterway projects and have them view the waterway than our own congressmen and Representatives," commented Mr. Gut. "The report of out-of-state representatives to Congress will have much more weight as local representatives naturally are expected to favor their own state's projects."

ways, especially since the gas shortage, brought along plenty of maps, charts and detailed information for the group to survey.
"During low water, oil barges bringing gasoline from Jacksonville to Tallahassee are only about two-thirds filled, and depending on the river channel would require them at all times to carry a full load to supply the man, Army and Navy camps in the vicinity," Mr. Gut said.

Wilson Reports State About Due For Good Weather

Confusion due to price cutting, labor and other shortages in Florida farmers are going ahead with heavy plantings of crops in an effort to help supply the need for food, and I believe that sooner or later the confusion will be overcome governmental agencies and the farmers and that some new and desirable change will gradually take place for the benefit of Florida growers.

Conditions at specific markets, he described as follows:
"At Sanford Market oranges of good quality are becoming more plentiful with increasing demand. Only small quantities of grapefruit are passing the test due to slow maturing. The market is also handling large quantities of large sizes in bushel baskets daily. Beans are coming in locally in small quantities with the outlook good for a plentiful supply of cabbage, eggplant, English peas, peppers, radishes, yellow squash, and tomatoes.

"Peppers and eggplants of good quality are at their peak at the Wauchoa market while the cucumber deal is practically over. White and yellow squash are holding up though the average is small. Prevailing good weather conditions will improve the quality of all commodities.
"Volume is increasing at the Palmetto Market but due to a late start the peak is not expected until the middle of December. Quality of all commodities is excellent with extra tomatoes holding up well, early pickings being of very large size. Other commodities in addition to tomatoes are peppers, egg plant, squash, cucumbers and beans.
"Plant City reports fair quantities of squash, English peas, beans, and potatoes continue to move last week with the first plant bringing the producer a $25.00 per bushel. Small shipments of lemons are expected to begin within two weeks. Cold weather severely damaged the cucumbers but much needed rains last week have greatly benefited strawberry growers.
"Tomatoes are plentiful at Fort Pierce Market. A good supply of cucumbers is coming in and

The Allies near the summit of Mt. Magliore but were thrown back decisively, official dispatches said, and enemy losses in men and material during the last 24 hours were described as "extremely heavy."
British troops on Lieutenant General Clark's left flank enlarged the Allied salient into the rocky core of the German winter line by storming across the sprawling wastes of Mt. Magliore where they drove close to the Liri river at the head of the Rome plain.

On the Adriatic coast General Montgomery's Eighth Army captured the communications town of San Vito only 10 miles below the new German anchor position at Pescara but suffered a setback Tuesday when German tanks and German recaptured Orsogna. A fierce battle was reported now raging for the latter town, which would give Montgomery's tanks access to a considerable expanse of coastal plain.

Rains Drenched Front
Torrential rains drenched the Fifth Army front, robbing the attacking troops of much of the air support which had proved so effective in the opening hours of the onslaught and putting a terrific strain on communications.

In some advance sectors not even mules could wade the bulk through the rocky defiles and supply troops set up a human base of bridges to carry 150-pound food packs to the fighting front.

The American vanguard was now believed with its seven miles of Cassino at the head of the valley and was northwest of the German stronghold of Mignano, which it appeared the enemy must soon abandon to avoid encirclement.

German Report Turk President Meets In Cairo

Imir Fahad, nephew of the king, said the reason for their presence was not stated but that it was generally expected they will take part in some Cairo conference.
Anxious Eyes at Turkey
After the conference at Cairo and Teheran which Roosevelt and Churchill had with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and Stalin's multi-front assault seems assured. All reports on these conferences indicated that the Allies would not wait the best of a new world without war and were casting anxious eyes at Turkey.

A promise of freedom for Europe more precise than the Atlantic charter was expected soon in the official declaration on the outcome of the American-British-Soviet conference. British newspapers said the communists would disclose an agreement for attacks on Hitler's "fortress Europe" from the east west and south.
Source: Far from Cairo
The news stories of the conference were the source of premature releases were far from Cairo, where Roosevelt, Churchill and Chiang Kai-Shek had met and already announced the conclusions of their meeting but without permitting until now announcement of the location of the meeting after Cairo and the news because.

The Egyptian Gazette carried the headline "Big Three Settle Germany's Fate" over a three-column story stating:
The newspaper added that the decisions arrived at by the big three would halve the war's end.
Two Facts Obvious
The Gazette said two facts

peppers are beginning to move. Cool and cloudy weather conditions prevail.
"The Pensacola market has a fair supply of potatoes, cabbage, collards, turnips and some broccoli. Pecan sales are expected to be over with the sale this week.
"Market continues in full swing over 11,000 pounds being sold last week. Prospects are for a larger tonnage next week. Growers are reported pleased with prices and market handling of the pecan crop.
"Good weather conditions prevail at Florida City with farmers planting heavily and crops generally looking good.
"Extremely dry weather hurt the yield of sweet potatoes and the volume handled at the Lake City market did not come up to expectations. Farmers are being pulled to learn extent of planting in beets, cabbage, carrots and onions for later handling.
"Pahokee Market expects to ship the first car of celery this season the latter part of this week. Weather conditions are reported favorable for growing crops and movements of beans continue good with heavier movement anticipated during the coming week, daily shipments from Pahokee averaging 35 to 40 cars per day. Green corn, peppers, and yellow crook neck squash are moving in fair quantities.
"The season's largest sale of beans at the Pahokee Market handled over 11,000 pounds with prices fair-satisfactory to growers. A fair tonnage is expected at final sale to be held this week.

Results Of The "Big Three" Meet Revealed At Last

The three highest military chiefs, the three leaders agreed on a full scale war "From the east, the west and the south."
An unusual final session was held at the picturesque soviet embassy, starting with a luncheon.

Surrounded by the most extraordinary security measures in history, highlighted by grim soviet soldiers patrolling the streets with unimpeachable tommy guns, the three-matched calm, impassive Stalin was flanked at Teheran by his foreign minister, Vyacheslav Molotov, and Marshal Kliment Voroshilov.

Stalin's closest and trusted President Roosevelt and Premier Churchill were surrounded by their staffs of approximately 60 each, headed by Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff of the United States Army; Gen. Henry H. Arnold, U.S. Army Air Chief; Gen. George H. Somervell, Chief of U.S. Army Service Forces; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the U.S. Fleet and chief of naval operations; Admiral William D. Leahy, President Roosevelt's chief of staff; Harry I. Hopkins, the President's official advisor; W. Averell Harriman, U.S. Ambassador in Russia; John G. Winant, U.S. Ambassador to England; Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the British Imperial General Staff; Field Marshal Sir John Dill, chief of the British Middle East Command; Sir Charles Portal, British chief of Air Staff; Admiral Sir Andrew B. Cunningham, chief of the British Naval Staff; Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary; and Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, British Ambassador to Russia.

The first momentous meeting occurred at 3 P.M. Nov. 28, in the tree-trimmed Soviet Embassy, the main building of which had been given to the President as his conference home. An hour later, Churchill arrived to complete the dynamic trinitiate.

Agreed then on the conference assumed an intimate, almost fraternal, air, the three sitting together nightly.

These talks were punctuated by full dress discussions with the military chiefs, the first of which lasted from 4 P.M. to 7 P.M. on Nov. 28, with plans for separate Anglo-American staff sessions on Monday and Tuesday mornings, the military meetings resumed at Churchill's 40th birthday dinner at the British Legation. More than 50 toasts were drunk with Stalin smiling amiably around the table clinking glasses with each man toasted and himself raising his glass to:
"My fighting friend Churchill."
"My fighting friend Roosevelt."
Significantly, not a single mention of a "second front" was made then or at any other time during the conference, so far as could be determined from outside the guarded walls. It was assumed the question had been settled, even to the details.

about the conference at Teheran were obvious.
"One of the first meetings of the three statesmen in London with far-reaching consequences for the whole world was the main object was to settle Germany's fate."
Editorial in the Gazette said:
"One effect of the meeting at Teheran is that it throws a spotlight on the 'second front' which the propaganda machinery operated by Dr. Goebbels. The Nazis had been trying to sell the world the United States was not doing its share in the war."

Results Of The "Big Three" Meet Revealed At Last

The three highest military chiefs, the three leaders agreed on a full scale war "From the east, the west and the south."
An unusual final session was held at the picturesque soviet embassy, starting with a luncheon.

Surrounded by the most extraordinary security measures in history, highlighted by grim soviet soldiers patrolling the streets with unimpeachable tommy guns, the three-matched calm, impassive Stalin was flanked at Teheran by his foreign minister, Vyacheslav Molotov, and Marshal Kliment Voroshilov.

Stalin's closest and trusted President Roosevelt and Premier Churchill were surrounded by their staffs of approximately 60 each, headed by Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff of the United States Army; Gen. Henry H. Arnold, U.S. Army Air Chief; Gen. George H. Somervell, Chief of U.S. Army Service Forces; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the U.S. Fleet and chief of naval operations; Admiral William D. Leahy, President Roosevelt's chief of staff; Harry I. Hopkins, the President's official advisor; W. Averell Harriman, U.S. Ambassador in Russia; John G. Winant, U.S. Ambassador to England; Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the British Imperial General Staff; Field Marshal Sir John Dill, chief of the British Middle East Command; Sir Charles Portal, British chief of Air Staff; Admiral Sir Andrew B. Cunningham, chief of the British Naval Staff; Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary; and Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, British Ambassador to Russia.

The first momentous meeting occurred at 3 P.M. Nov. 28, in the tree-trimmed Soviet Embassy, the main building of which had been given to the President as his conference home. An hour later, Churchill arrived to complete the dynamic trinitiate.

Agreed then on the conference assumed an intimate, almost fraternal, air, the three sitting together nightly.

These talks were punctuated by full dress discussions with the military chiefs, the first of which lasted from 4 P.M. to 7 P.M. on Nov. 28, with plans for separate Anglo-American staff sessions on Monday and Tuesday mornings, the military meetings resumed at Churchill's 40th birthday dinner at the British Legation. More than 50 toasts were drunk with Stalin smiling amiably around the table clinking glasses with each man toasted and himself raising his glass to:
"My fighting friend Churchill."
"My fighting friend Roosevelt."
Significantly, not a single mention of a "second front" was made then or at any other time during the conference, so far as could be determined from outside the guarded walls. It was assumed the question had been settled, even to the details.

to the session than others—most newsmen were held at Cairo during the conference—had reason to believe that the Teheran meetings had filled the gaps in the Moscow conference of foreign diplomats and in fact gone well beyond it.

Only two newsmen—one of them Lloyd Stratton, President of Associated Press, limited, British subsidiary of the Associated Press—were able to win their way to completely isolated Teheran. The other was Edward Angly, former A.P. man now representing the Chicago Sun who happened to be in Teheran on his way to his new post in Moscow. They alone were eye witnesses of the historic events while newsmen from all over the world sat in the same smoky press room in Cairo which they occupied during the earlier Roosevelt-Chiang Kai-Shek conference.

The same non-journalistic observers described to them the physical facts of the Teheran gatherings. As before, the reporters were unable to talk to a single conference headline.

Coaches Stand In Line Waiting To Bid For Halfback

By FRED W. STABLEY AP Wire Service BAINBRIDGE, MA.—The line of college football coaches seeking the post-war services of 18-year-old Charles Justice, currently running from left halfback for the undefeated Bainbridge Naval Training Station Commodore, will stand in line to the right. And you had better hurry, gentlemen, if you intend to get a look-see. When Justice, coach of these five 1943 stars, has returned a year or two ago, already has put in his bid, the Naval academy coaches have gotten an equal in a position game and even the professional Washington Redskins put out feelers.

If you have never heard of the 180-pound ex-high school player, take the word of Joe Maniaci, Commodore coach, when he calls Justice "the best kick I've ever seen at his weight." Maniaci himself did quite a bit of fullbacking for the Fordham Rams and Chicago Bears and has been the best in action. "He's got everything," Joe beams. "He can run, tackle block and boot that football a country mile."

Justice's record with the Commodores more than bears out Maniaci's claim. Fresh from Asheville, N.C. high school, where he led his team through two undefeated seasons, young Justice made the first string Bainbridge backfield against such competition as Bill Corcorant, Northwestern; Harry Johnson, William and Mary; Hilliard Cheatham, Auburn; Jim Gatewood, Georgia; Don Dard, Oregon State, and a long list of other top-flight ex-professional and college players.

Experts Say What Makes Plane Loss In War Economical

By HERMAN R. ALLEN
 WASHINGTON — Reports of bombing raids over Europe frequently say that so-and-so many of our planes were lost but that this was within the five percent generally considered economical. Just how this is calculated is a mystery to aviation experts here. In the first place, it is never disclosed—at least not for some time—how many of our bombers take part in a raid. Any figure in any report coming from the other side is just somebody's guess. In the second place, why is five percent economical in any given case?

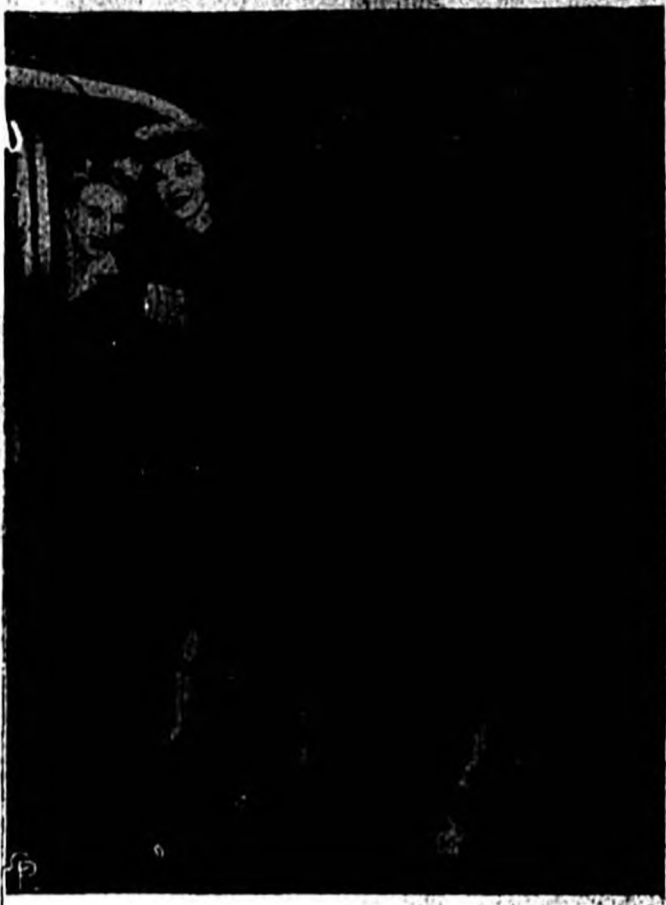

Back in the days of the Blitzkrieg over London it was estimated that the Germans could afford to lose 10 percent of their planes every night. Intelligence reports indicated that German factories could replace losses at that rate at that time. So for lack of a better figure, 10 percent was commonly used as the rate at which any air force could afford to lose bombers on any raid.

Later it was disclosed that during the first few months that the British got under way in raiding Germany the RAF lost about five percent and that this was economical at that time. How much higher a percentage might have been economical was not stated, but the five percent figure seems to have been generally adopted as a standard.

The experts here don't hold with that. The only standard you can apply, they say, is whether the mission is accomplished. If the objective is super-important, it might be worthwhile (from the cold military point of view) to sacrifice every plane.

Arnold Assesses Losses
 General Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, explained something about it in a recent press conference. Referring to the raid last June on the Huls synthetic rubber plant, he said: "Rubber made in that plant was just about 17 percent of their rubber output. We figured that they lost about three months' production as a result of the damage. We lost 16 heavy bombers, but what are 16 heavy bombers when you deny them the production of that much rubber?"

General Arnold continued with an assessment of the raid on Haguenburg, in which 23 bombers were lost: "We were prepared to take our losses, but it was worth it because that plant produced 200 ME-109s (a type of German fighter) a month, 40 percent of the to-

Football Seen As About The Same All Over Nation

By L. E. SKELLEY
 AP Features
 DES MOINES—You can argue all you want about the geographical difference in the caliber of football but Lt. Jimmy Kitts, the little fellow who has been around plenty, settles the question with a terse "they're all the same."

Jimmy, now in charge of athletics at Uncle Sam's huge Naval Air Station at Ottumwa, Iowa, believes that football is on the same level in all parts of the country.

"I've seen football all over the South and West. The football here says, 'when the East dominates the game. But with the spread of the game throughout the country the game has been equalized.' To Kitts, it's all practice fundamentals.

"An indication of a successful football team is blocking and tackling," Jimmy points out. "You'll find those ingredients in all good teams no matter from what section of the country they come. Since Jimmy was a star in deep southwest where there is a special emphasis on passing, he wanted to know the why of the type of game down there in that great open space of Texas.

Kitts, with vigor says there is no shirking of fundamentals in the Southwest. They pass more often there, he claims, because the weather is more conducive to that type of play.

We put the little guy on the spot by asking him to name the greatest passer ever developed in that land of fast-moving football. "Sammy Davis and Dreyfus O'Brien," says Kitts. "Man, how they could throw 'em."

And, incidentally, Kitts tossed a little sideline on O'Brien. Jimmy was head coach at Rice Institute when little Davey was an all-sports hero in high school. Naturally, the various Texas institutions of higher learning were anxious to entice O'Brien to their school.

Did Rice officials want Davey as a football prospect? They did not, he stated, but as a star baseball prospect because Rice figured O'Brien was too small for the rigors of football.

Jimmy laughs now when he recalls Davey's gridiron exploit for Texas Christian University where he eventually enrolled.

Ever wonder what those forgotten football linemen—forgotten until the Associated Press started tal production of Messerschmitt 109s and 10 percent of all the single engine fighters. Now that is out. They are trying to rebuild it, but before they can rebuild it—they can't do it in two or three months, they will have lost some 500 Messerschmitts.

"This plant, in our dollars, cost $10,000,000. And if you want to put dollars on it, I tell you that those 23 bombers we lost cost $11,000,000. So we destroyed four times as much as the bombers lost."

"Economic" Loss
 The point is that 23 bombers may seem like a terrific loss, but the mission was accomplished, therefore the loss was "economic."

On the other hand, General Arnold pointed out: "War is always the most uneconomical thing in the world. If you are going to start playing with dollars, you better not go to war." Regardless of all this, it is obvious that there must be at rate of loss above which air operations cannot be considered economical. It's not based on dollar

Any time you are not on the lines, there's a better chance for a soldier's call to get through.

Can You Picture FLORIDA without Newspapers?

Every hour of the day headline news of overwhelming interest to every person in Florida is being made all over the world. But without our modern communication systems and particularly our newspapers it would be next to impossible to find out what's going on.

Getting even closer to home, we wouldn't know what local boys are back on furlough—what the ball games are—what's getting married and when—what's happening in the comic-strip world—what events are taking place all over town.

All of us should feel proud of the fact that newspapers are going to keep Florida in touch with the times. It's a strong and free press serving free people—one of the first things the dictators would suppress if they had the chance! And it would be hard to over-estimate the part played by Florida's great dailies and weekly newspapers in furthering the war effort. Nearly a million people buy these papers—far greater numbers read them—the whole State relies upon them for information and inspiration.

For this reason Florida Motor Lines depends upon such newspapers as this one to carry its information on bus service to those Floridians who travel Florida Motor Lines. In turn, carry many newspapers in rural areas, as served by any other transportation system.

As fellow citizens of this State, Florida Motor Lines takes much pleasure in helping to make our neighbors and good neighbors of all the communities we serve in Florida—linking them to each other and to the rest of the country, as newspapers do.

Rail Strike In Atlanta Is Postponed

Byrnes Supports Subsidies In Appeal To Hold The Line Against Inflation

ATLANTA, Dec. 8. (AP) — E. E. Foster, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, announced today that his request for the National Railway Mediation Board a strike of Atlanta, Birmingham and Coast Railway trainmen, set for 11:00 P. M. tonight had been postponed indefinitely.

The call for the walkout of 360 trainmen in protest against the Mediation Board's granting of only a 4-cent an hour increase in their demands for a standard wage was announced earlier today.

General Freight Agent H. R. Young of Atlanta said the call was authorized by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, adding that it was like a bombshell out of a clear sky.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP) — Byrnes demanded last night that the foe of President Roosevelt's subsidy program lay aside their "political platitudes" and help the Government hold the anti-inflation line "so we will not lose the peace while our boys win the war."

"If we do not hold the line now, we are going to hold back the floodgates of inflation," he said in a nationally broadcast appeal in behalf of subsidies.

"There are no prepared positions in which we can retreat," he said. "Such talk is as criminally reckless as a proposal for a coalition with the enemy."

His speech constituted an abeyant with mobilization legislation aimed to salvage a subsidy program not under heavy congressional fire.

The Senate is considering a House-approved bill that would outlaw all such payments after Jan. 1.

Movie Projector Is Expected Soon At Sanford USO

The USO Council, an organization designed for co-operation between citizens of this section and the USO, met last night at the City Hall with W. P. Buchanan, associate regional supervisor of the Seventh USO District of the State, Herman E. Morris, chairman of the Council, presided.

An outline of the recreation work at the Sanford USO given by Director David Carmody, who stated that new equipment was expected to arrive soon that would add to the entertainment of the service men, among these items, he said, would be a motion picture projector. The record recording unit was proving very popular among the men, who are making records and sending them home, he added.

Mr. Morris commended Mr. Carmody on his excellent handling of the USO program, and for his practical counsel to service men. Progress was reported in the negro USO program. It was decided that the next meeting of the Council will be at 8:45 P. M. on the second Tuesday of the month.

Attending the meeting were: Mr. E. Schmittler, Mr. Morris, Mr. Carmody, Frank Shames, Defense Council Recreation Director, Ed Lane, Curtis Williams, Capt. W. W. Lawton, Miss Barbara Stevens, Miss Maude Ramsey, J. Dingfelder, Tom Runyon, Mrs. Williams and the service men, Washburn and Willard Connelly.

Local Civilians Are Honored At Blanding

Three men from Sanford, will be among the 100 civilians who will be honored at the Blanding ceremony which will be held at the War Department's new Sanatorium of Civilians Served at a formal ceremony at the Blanding Hotel in Washington, D. C., on Dec. 15.

These three men will be honored at the Blanding ceremony, 115 West Broadway, at 8:30 P. M. on Dec. 15. The Blanding ceremony is a national event which honors civilians who have served the war effort in a special way.

Carmody Tells Kiwanians About Youth Problems

Absence Of Fathers In Army, Mothers At Work, Hits Youth

Problems of modern youth, particularly those of the boys, were explained to Kiwanians today at their Hotel Mayfair luncheon by David Carmody, USO director, and a member of the board of trustees of the Hudson Guild Street Settlement, where he serves as director.

Further experience with youth was also given to Mr. Carmody through his two years of work in the Henry Street Settlement. He was introduced by J. W. Hall.

"The war picture intensifies the youth problem all over the country," Mr. Carmody stated. "All that is good or bad in children comes out due to the inner urge and external pressures of war time. There is added to the conditions that used to be confined to the slums, now are prevalent everywhere. Many fathers are away from home a great deal, occupying warping positions, and thus there may be little parental supervision of children."

In many communities Boards of Education are recognizing the need of supervised recreation for youth. New York City has already taken action on the matter and under Mark McClosky has started a division of recreation.

Mrs. F. M. Scott Reports On Seal Sale

More than $612.00 has been received at the end of the second week of the 1943 Christmas Seal Sale to fight tuberculosis, it was announced today by Mrs. F. M. Scott, treasurer of the Seminole County Tuberculosis Association.

The response to date has been slightly more than that for a similar period last year. Mrs. Scott stated, "and the Seal Sale Committee and directors of the association are very grateful for the many expressions of interest and the amount of service that has been volunteered to make the campaign successful."

The ideal of the Christmas Seal is typical of the season at which it is used to decorate letters and gift packages. We are all thinking more of other people and less about ourselves than at other times. The Christmas Seal comes along in gay holiday garb to ask us to give a little money for the health of others.

"We in Seminole County are invited once a year to share in this work of bringing health and love to the lips of those who have been touched by the dreaded disease—tuberculosis, let us not forget to buy seals as generously as possible this year," Mrs. Scott stated.

COTTON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP) — A U. S. cotton crop of 11,700,000 bales of 480 pound gross weight was reported today by the Agriculture Department as a final estimate of the crop. About 10,000,000 bales were not attended

Senator Lucas Says Few Men In Army Vote

Secretary Gray Says Every Florida Man In Armed Services May Vote In May

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP) — Senator Lucas (D-Fla.) said today that more than 15 percent of the armed forces would be able to vote in the 1944 elections. Senate plans would be law. Mechanical difficulties in distributing and gathering the ballots would be overcome to permit a large vote, Lucas said, although a full servicemen's tally might be the deciding factor in the presidential race.

MIAMI, Dec. 8. (AP) — Secretary of State Gray said yesterday that practically every Florida man and woman in the armed forces who is of age will have a chance to vote in the state primaries next May.

The army recently printed 12,000,000 cards for soldiers' use in requesting ballots, and more than 100,000 of these requests have been received at his office, Gray reported. They came from soldiers, sailors, WAVES, WAVES and SP4s throughout the United States and abroad.

Ballots will be sent to all those requesting them within a day or two of the March 17 qualifying deadline. The cards will go to county judges, supervisors of registration or commission chairman to be prepared in advance.

Gray estimated there are 3,000,000 Floridians in the armed services, but many are not of voting age. He expressed opposition to the 1944 election, which would be held by mail voting by absentee ballot, declaring it would violate the secrecy of the ballot.

"I believe that existing state and federal legislation providing for voting by men and women in uniform is adequate," said Gray. "New legislation might upset the whole thing."

CITY BRIEFS

Miss Frances Worley of Augusta, Ga., and Andrew M. Lee of Sanford were married Tuesday afternoon at the office of County Judge R. W. Lee.

Appeal Made For Contributions To Whistling Willie Fund For Repairs

An appeal to the citizens of Sanford and Seminole County for more contributions to the Whistling Willie fund to provide for much needed repairs to the home on East Fifth Street of the negro entertainer, Willie Williams, was today made by Mrs. F. M. Mitchell and Mrs. Volie Williams who sent the following message to The Herald:

"There is one among us who needs and deserves our attention; one who has done as much or more for Seminole County in the way of advertising than all the dollars we have spent for that purpose. Whistling Willie, never failed to mention his home town and county in all of his advertisements while in New York City. He was a true patriot and his home town should be proud of him."

Germans Nervous As Turkish Parliament Called Together

Light Moment At Teheran Conference

Obviously enjoying a joke told by one of the group, Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov poses on the porch of the Soviet Embassy in Teheran, Iran, with British Ambassador Sir Stafford Cripps, the Prime Minister Churchill, the Turkish Foreign Minister, and the Soviet Minister of Education, during the Teheran Conference. Standing behind Stalin is the Soviet Minister of Education, who is also in the group. During the conference, the Soviet Union offered to help Turkey in its fight against the Axis powers.

Americans In Italy Take Mount Camino While Japs Find Rabaul Too Hot

CAMPBELL, Dec. 8. (AP) — Field Marshal Ian Christian Smith, premier of South Africa, told his press conference today that "things are shaping up for victory but a great war is still in front of us" and added the opinion that after the war newspapers would have to play an important role in seeing that there is no repetition of this disaster that we forge something more firm than the old order.

The American Fifth Army has captured the summit of Mount Camino eight miles south of the key town of Cassino on the road to Rome, and was deployed today on a block of high ground in full sight of the valley beyond.

Italy's British Eighth Army made limited progress along the Muro River line on the approaches to the Adriatic coast.

The Russians were forced into a narrow retreat at the Ukrainian bridge, but in the Donets bend the red nation of Znamenski was enveloped from three sides by advancing Red columns.

The nervous German radio said an extraordinary session of the Turkish parliament would meet today, indicating possible developments from the recent Cairo conference.

In the Pacific, the Japanese navy activity last night was to the belief the enemy is finding the once powerful base at Rabaul New Britain, too hot to inhabit. The Japs' 22,000 heavy bombers, all assembly, and the threat of an invasion.
