Carriers sue

Seven men and women who deliver the Orlando Sentinel newspaper to residences in Seminole and Orange County filed suit Monday against Sentinel Communications in Orange County.

According to Jack B. Nichols, attorney for the plaintiffs, the dispute arose when the Sentinel played musical chairs with the carriers by rearranging virtually every carrier to a new area than the ones they had been delivering in for years.

Nichols says the Sentinel responded that it had done so to realign the boundaries for each area with zip codes, so advertisers could better target specific markets.

How schools pay for progress

Spending fueled by credit program that doesn't need voters' OK

By DORIS BLOODSWORTH
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — With an aggressive building program and high-tech communications and computer system in progress, Seminole County Public Schools may have the best school system credit can buy.

SCPS school board members and staff say the current school finance program arose from a failed bond issue for $500 million in 1990. Prior to that time, voters had approved a $105 million bond in the fall of 1985.

Since 1990, school districts around the country have been scrambling to find resources for education. School boards are often caught between growing needs and legislated mandates on one hand and voters who consistently turn down taxes and bond issues on the other.

In the case of SCPS, the school board turned to certificates of participation, also known as COPs, as a way of helping fund big dollar expenses like new school construction. (See "Certificates of Participation" for detailed explanation of COPs.)

COPs are similar to bond issues, but do not require voter approval. Many school districts and local governments across the United States use them. According to SCPS Superintendent Dr. Paul J. Hagerty, about 50 school districts in Florida use COPs funding.

Beginning in 1994, SCPS borrowed money three times through this program:

- April, 1994: $80,230,000
- Nov., 1994: $33,165,000

● Nov., 1995: $30,395,000 (Most of this money was used to refinance the previous issue.)

The result was a 25-year com-

What is a Certificate of Participation?

A simplistic explanation of COPs, according to a financial adviser and school board administrators, is as follows:

● It is a Florida statute-approved vehicle for borrowing money utilized by school boards and other governing bodies, such as county governments.

● The school board sets up a not-for-profit public leasing corporation, such as the Seminole School Board Leasing Corp. The membership is made up of the five school board members, with Superintendent Paul J. Hagerty serving as secretary, and John G. Pavlechuk, Seminole County Public Schools executive director of finance and budget, serving as treasurer.

● The school board leases facilities.

In an effort to meet the many needs of a school system, especially in the area of building and technology, school districts find themselves looking at new ways to raise funds.

According to the June issue of Electronic School magazine, some school districts rely upon education foundations.

But in Seminole County, many of the building projects have relied heavily upon a funding program called certificates of participation.

The following list demonstrates the use of COPs funding for some building projects (including architect fees, testing fees, furniture and equipment). The total project costs allocated is as follows:

Robbery adds to business owner's woes

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Alex Yi and his family are trying to establish a business in a community south of Goldsboro where strong family values have often clashed with the drug trade.

The Southwest Food Mart, 1920 Southwest Rd. in Sanford, was robbed at gunpoint Wednesday evening. Yi's 14-year-old daughter Rosa, who had returned from a piano lesson and was waiting to go home, and a customer were held at bay with a gun while Yi was ordered to empty the cash drawer. No one was hurt, but all the money in the store was taken.

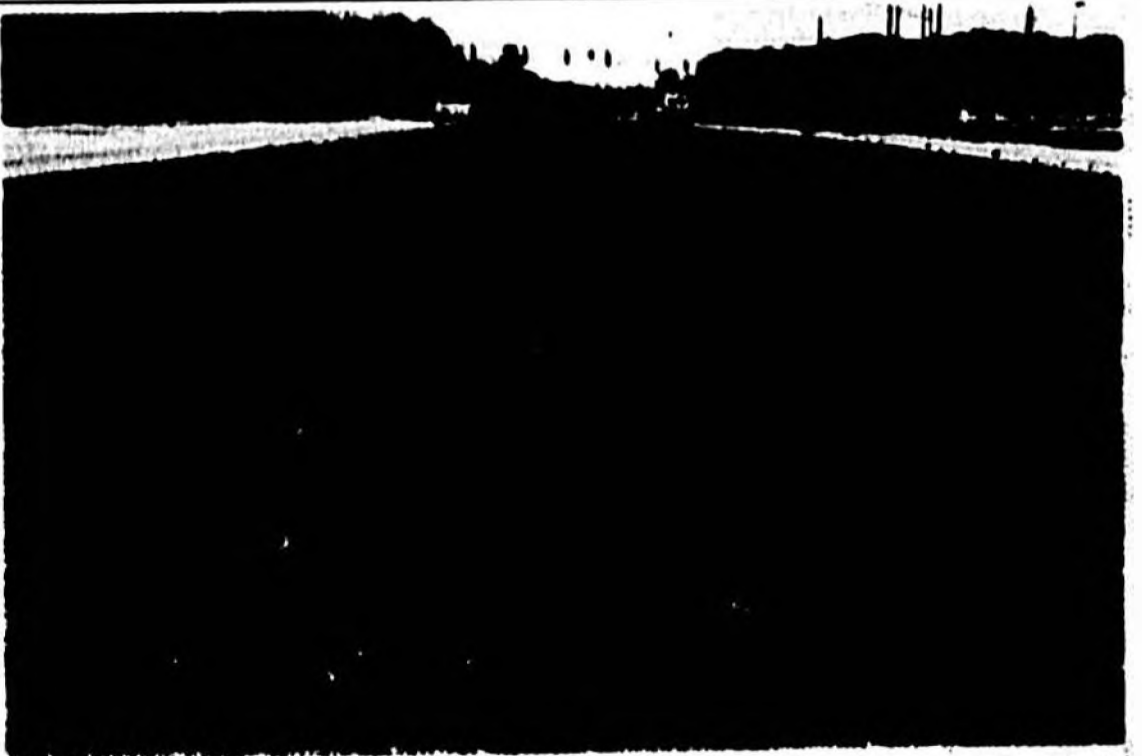

Though this is the first time the store has been robbed, Yi complained he has been threatened repeatedly by the drug dealers who ply their trade in the parking lot and areas surrounding his store.

Electricity and phone service to the store were cut off earlier this month by vandals just prior to a community meeting organized by County Commissioner Daryl McLain and area ministers who said they are fed up with the drug activity in the neighborhood.

"I have both sides threatening me," Yi said.

Sanford to discuss courthouse expansion

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford City Commission Monday plans to discuss the expansion of Seminole County courthouse facilities in downtown Sanford.

The first item on the workshop agenda is the overall expansion study regarding additional buildings and land which will be required. Also in the plans is the need for adequate parking, which may be a combination of a closed parking structure in addition to off-street parking.

The second item is discussion of a draft for an interlocal agreement between the City of Sanford and Seminole County regarding the courthouse expansion.

The city is pursuing plans for a downtown area expansion, despite continuing comments by some individuals at the county level, to re-examine the location.

Making history alive at home

The physical appearance of downtown Sanford is improving. The old fire station on Palmetta Avenue has been refurbished. Efforts are underway toward re-establishing the old Ritz Theatre on Magnolia.

Elsewhere, in both the commercial and residential historic districts, other old buildings are taking on a new-old look. For all of this, people who have brought these improvements about deserve a large round of applause (and continued support) from everyone who lives, works, or visits in Sanford.

Now, just across the street from the Ritz, plans have been proposed toward re-doing the 51 year-old Imperial Opera House on Magnolia Avenue. John Davis is asking the Sanford City Commission for authority to open a dance hall, serving non-alcoholic beverages. The matter is scheduled for Monday's commission meeting.

While he wants to test the establishment for a while before operating it more than one or two nights a week, we believe the key good news of this whole proposal is his announced plans to take a portion of profits and dedicate them "to restoration of the building to its original appearance."

Whether it's Mr. Davis or someone else, we believe restoring the old opera house and giving it an appearance of the past with modern safety features and solid construction, will be a great improvement in downtown Sanford.

Meanwhile, the owner of the Welaka Building on First Street, Pieter Van Beek, will be in town Wednesday and Thursday of this week. He will be preparing plans for the renovation of that building, along with First Capital Group, Inc.

There are some people who simply don't believe in renovating old structures. Modernists with modern designs. They believe guests and visitors want to see a progressive and modern city rather than glimpse back in history.

People are noticing these buildings. As more and more are refurbished, we'll have more and more people looking at them in awe.

Regardless of whether or not the old Imperial Opera House will make a good dance hall again (it was such in past years), it is up to the city, potential customers, and the house's manager.

But we commend the proposal to return it to its original appearance. This, along with other similar projects, is going to make Sanford improve way beyond what many long-time residents could ever believe.

LETTER

We miss you Sheriff Polk

On this, the 8th year anniversary of my father's passing, I want to thank the many friends and Seminole County Sheriff's Office employees that supported my father, during his twenty-two year tenure as Sheriff of Seminole County.

There has been as much comfort in knowing that so many people loved my father. He dearly loved being Sheriff of Seminole County, serving and protecting the families that lived within her boundaries.

This is a bitter-sweet day. It brings back the memory that even though my father passed away peacefully, he did so with a broken heart. The time has come for those of you who loved my father to know why.

My father recommended to the Governor's Office that Don Eslinger be appointed to his seat due to his failing health. My father shared with me shortly before his death that Don Eslinger promised not to get rid of certain employees. But Don chose to do so anyway. These employees asked my dad to try and help them.

My father summoned Don to the house and asked him why he had made the choice he had. My father was sitting in the recliner that he died in as Don pulled up a chair, looked into my father's eyes and told the man that he supposedly loved as a father, that he got rid of the employees because they were Polk supporters and he could not have Polk supporters in the Sheriff's Office. My father cried over the betrayal of Don Eslinger. This is the reason the Polk family has turned against Don Eslinger.

I loved my father more than life itself; he was my idol and I miss him very much. I hope this letter opens the eyes and hearts of the many that loved him, of the pain and disappointment that he felt. Always remember him with good thoughts and prayers.

Medicare graver than we thought

A full week before Medicare trustees announced that the program's fiscal plight is worsening, a health care executive was sounding an even graver alarm.

The things are so clearly on the horizon that they are virtually unavoidable. Leonard D. Schaeffer, chairman and CEO of Wellpoint Health Networks, told me on a recent visit from California.

"First, Medicare will go broke between 2001 and 2004—and possibly sooner—under the weight of today's obligations. Second, the number of Medicare-eligible will double between 2010 and 2030. How we deal with these facts may well determine the survival of our democracy."

Schaeffer, who was president of Group Health, Inc., before going to Wellpoint (he is also chairman and CEO of Blue Cross of California, Wellpoint's parent company), said the point of his projection was not to promote any particular governmental approach—indeed he proposed none—but merely to get people thinking about the impact of a growing health care burden.

One manifestation of that impact came with last week's report by Medicare's trustees that the fund that pays hospital bills is already in the red and will go broke in early 2001—a full year earlier than last year's forecast.

Nobody disputes or doubts the seriousness of the latest projection. And yet the government seems almost in capable of responding rationally to it. This week, instead of talking seriously about the health care, Democrats and Republicans were sniping at each other and maneuvering to see which party could use the crisis for political advantage.

Nobody disputes or doubts the seriousness of the latest projection. And yet the government seems almost in capable of responding rationally to it. This week, instead of talking seriously about the health care, Democrats and Republicans were sniping at each other and maneuvering to see which party could use the crisis for political advantage.

Maybe we've come to the point where most political leaders are as much the prisoners of their party interests (and of their financial contributors) that they cannot deal with problems in nonpartisan terms. Or maybe the administration's disastrous experience with comprehensive health care reform has left a lot of people scared to try anything serious.

Schaeffer, who tends to the latter idea, thinks the Clinton administration blew an historic opportunity to change things because it violated some basic principles. First, the proposals that came out of the Hillary Clinton task force were so technical and so complex that, though no one understood them, they gave everybody a surfeit of targets to shoot at. Second, the process by which the proposal were put together seemed secret and exclusionary. When they emerged as a take-it-or-leave-it package, the people didn't take it.

"Clinton misjudged the mood of the American people," Schaeffer believes. "What people were really saying is 'The health-care system has to be reformed, but I like my doctor.'"

What is lacking the medical care crisis, of course, is the increasing cost of medical care, particularly for the aged. As the "baby boom" cohort reaches retirement age, these costs are likely to rise sharply upward, and for a number of reasons. First is the sheer size of the cohort. But the boomers are also better educated and more demanding of excellent health care. They will live longer, and they will demand more of the expensive treatment technology will make available.

MORTON KONDRACKE

GOP, Dems vie for control

It's pretty clear that control of the House is up for grabs in November. To improve their chances of staying in power, Republicans ought to be cutting deals with President Clinton. To win back control, Democrats have got to show they've changed.

Two key tests of their resolve are coming soon — with upcoming Republican decisions about whether to compromise with the White House on health care and welfare and the scheduled release of the Democrats' long-awaited election-year policy manifesto.

If the GOP fails on health care, it will fuel the impetuous of the 104th as a "do-nothing Congress." If the Democrats deliver a tired or timid agenda, it will indicate that they aren't ready to resume control of Congress.

An Washington Post poll showed recently, voters have turned away from the Republicans since 1984, but they are not determined to hand back power to the Democrats.

Asked the generic question — which party's candidates will you vote for in November — 50 percent answered Democrat and 38 percent Republican. But just before the GOP landslide of 1984, the Post/ABC poll gave the Democrats a 48 to 45 percent lead.

The new survey suggests that Perot voters, white males, and Roman Catholics — key swing voters — are dissatisfied with the GOP's performance, which they find either extreme or ineffective, or both.

The perilousness of the GOP predicament was underscored by the finding that 57 percent of voters said that the more they hear about what Republicans are doing in Congress, the less they like it, while only 28 percent are growing more favorable to the GOP.

The results suggest that Republicans need to get out the word about what they've accomplished — including significant cuts in discretionary spending — but also that they need to accomplish more.

Both President Clinton and congressional Republicans would benefit politically if they could reach an agreement on the Kennedy-Kassebaum plan to guarantee workers' insurance regardless of pre-existing medical conditions.

A deal on Kennedy-Kassebaum seemed out of reach because of Republican insistence on wide latitude for creation of MBAs, but prospects brightened when Republicans earlier this month agreed to a three-year test of savings accounts among self-employed individuals and firms with 50 or fewer workers.

The White House seemed ready to accept that deal, but objections were raised by Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., a foe of MBAs, who insisted that Congress be required to vote again in three years to determine whether MBAs could continue.

Now, Republicans have come back with a proposal to allow the vote Kennedy wants, but they want to expand MBAs to cover firms with up to 100 workers. Negotiations continue, but both sides say that if no agreement is reached by Congress's Fourth of July recess, the chances of success are dim.

Deals in welfare reform and Medicare spending are even more elusive, but good-faith efforts to achieve them surely would improve the public's impression of Republicans.

Meantime, Democratic leaders are having trouble exciting even their own members about the "Families First Agenda" scheduled to be unveiled at five sites around the country.

After what House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., described as "insurmountable meetings," the congressional Democratic campaign agenda will consist of merely "modest" proposals on health, education, retirement security, and "responsibility."

In a recent interview, Gephardt said he was including proposals between 1994 and 1996 to "do the death of the money front."

NAT HENTOFF

The return of Harry and Louise

While much of the credit for the demolition of the Clintons' health-care reform in 1994 was due to the first lady — and her spectacularly over-organized aide-de-camp, Ira Magaziner — much of the discontent among the citizenry at large was intensified by Harry & Louise.

This fictitious but mordantly persuasive husband-and-wife team broadcast commercials sponsored by the Health Insurance Association of America. In discussing the devastations to be visited on the populace by the Clinton's plan, Harry & Louise scared Democrats as well as Republicans.

Harry & Louise were the creations of Goddard-Clausen/First Tuesday, a public relations and consulting firm. Now Harry & Louise have been hired out by their creators to do battle against a California ballot initiative — the Patient Protection Act — which intends to set a standard for the nation by making HMOs and other managed-care operations fully accountable to their patients.

HMO abuses have been reported in newspaper series throughout the country. The core indictment is that the priority of many managed-care organizations is to cut costs — with medical care being secondary. For example, patients have not been referred to specialists — because of the added cost to the HMO — until it was too late. Doctors requiring permission from above for necessary but costly procedures on a patient are sometimes turned down on the phone by non-medical personnel going by the HMO's rigid rules.

Spearheading the drive in California to put patients at the center of managed care is a union, the California Nurses Association. The CNA — and its allies among consumer organizations — have gathered over 800,000 signatures to qualify its Patient Protection Act for the November ballot. (Four hundred thousand valid signatures were needed.) More than 40 percent of the total was collected by nurse volunteers. Nurses, on the front line of health care, spend much more actual time with patients than doctors do. Among the elements of the Patient Protection Act, which Harry & Louise will wittily try to undermine, are:

An end to gag orders that prevent physicians from telling patients all the preferable treatment options that are open to them — including expensive ones.

Referrals would no longer be given to doctors for withholding care by limiting referrals to specialists or limiting hospitalization or prescriptions — thereby saving money for the HMO.

The creation of a non-profit consumer organization "with the power to advocate on behalf of patients and publish reports on the quality of services provided by HMOs, hospitals and nursing homes."

The most prominent campaigner for the Patient Protection Act is Ralph Nader, a formidable debater whose passion for consumer safety has not diminished since the publication in 1985 of his "Unsafe at Any Speed: The Designed-in Dangers of the American Automobile."

In addition to his campaigning for the Patient Protection Act, Nader himself will be on the California ballot as the presidential candidate of the Green Party.

In a recent interview, Nader said he was including proposals between 1994 and 1996 to "do the death of the money front."

Harry & Louise have been hired out by their creators to do battle against a California ballot initiative.

The results suggest that Republicans need to get out the word about what they've accomplished.

BACKGROUND

When Dr. Barbara Kuhn was elected to the school board, the bond issue had just failed, worldwide, 2,000 new students each year were coming into the Seminole County school system.
"We went to year-round schools, but people complained," Kuhn said. "If you still have a bond issue, what are you going to do?"
Harry Strickler, school board chairman, said a business advisory board was formed. In addition to generating ideas for them, the SAB gave school board members community feedback.
Kuhn said the idea for the current bond projects came from the Seminole County PTA. Melissa Smith, the immediate PTA past president, said she had not heard of COPs. Another former member, Judy Wiant, said the idea came from Dianne Kramer, executive director of facilities building.

Whether the idea originated, it is the difference between COPs and a regular bond issue?

The Florida Constitution says a school district from using tax dollars for more than one year to pay back without a voter referendum. Some say the COPs provided similar lease-purchase arrangements circumvent that statute.

In fact, the state of Florida has been involved in two lawsuits trying to prevent the use of lease agreements as a way of avoiding voter approval. In 1989, the state sued Brevard County; and in 1990, the state appealed a suit brought by the school boards of Sarasota and Collier counties as well as the Florida School Boards Association, Inc.

Both times, the lease-purchase arrangements were upheld by the Florida Supreme Court, but not without dissent. In the case of the State of Florida v. School Board of Sarasota, two justices dissented.

"Today the Court approves forms over substance," wrote Justice Parker L. McDonald. However, the court approved the financing arrangements in a vote of 5-3.

Hagerty said using COPs is a smart plan. "Business manages its own debt," he said. "It's a good, prudent tool."

Sandy Robinson, school board chair, said: "The down side to taxpayers don't have a say. But as elected officials, we have to make certain decisions."

And, school board member Nancy Warren said: "We have a lot to be proud of in Seminole County. There's not a school building below standards."

The superintendent, who came to SCPS July 1, 1992, said the school board should use all available funding before asking for a tax increase.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE

According to Kramer, two more COPs are planned. She said this should generate about $25 million, and "max out" the limit that can be borrowed through this program.

Currently, the one mill cap generates about $11 million a year which can be used to repay the COPs investors. The annual repayment, or debt service, stands at about $5.5 million according to SCPS administrators.

Kramer, Hagerty and Favelchak said they are not worried about borrowing to the limit. They gave the following reasons:

• As the county population increases, more than likely the tax revenue will increase. So, the one mill that generates about $11 million today will generate more in the future.

• Borrowing to build during a growth period makes sense. Construction costs will probably only grow more expensive.

• Student population is expected to level off within the next 10 years, based on projected birth rates. This will allow the school district a chance to catch up financially.

Other school administrators outside of Seminole County said borrowing now and paying later is only fair. They said it puts the burden of payment onto future families — the ones who will enjoy the benefits of the new schools.

Hagerty and Kramer said when the current building projects are completed, the school district should be set for the future — except for a high school which will be needed in about eight years. How the district's eighth high school will be funded has yet to be determined.

Meanwhile, other financing options have been explored. In Feb., 1995, $6.5 million was borrowed on a one-year note "to pay or reimburse (SCPS) for paying a portion of the costs of acquiring and installing a computer system and software." The note is renewable four times.

Attempts to reach school board member Jeanne Morris were unsuccessful.

ies from the corporation. For instance, in the case of the COP issued for the construction of Winter Springs High School, the school board leases that property from the corporation.

• The state allows up to one mill (one-half of the two mill capital outlay funds) to pay lease payments.

• Mills are a determinant in the money homeowners pay in property taxes.

"The drug guys, they threaten me. And the ministers, they threaten me, too."

Yi said the ministers and the community (all him) not enough has been done to squash the drug activity that surrounds his store. Every day sheriff's deputies patrol the area and make numerous arrests. The same people are back in the parking lot a day or two later hawking illegal substances, Yi said.

"I got a big problem here," he said. "I need help from the community."

During the community meeting, residents and community leaders pledged their support to Yi. They said they would help clean up the area surrounding the store and they would organize protests to show a community galvanized against the drug trade.

"I haven't seen any of them."

Courthouse

The city has previously approved a resolution indicating that the commission was interested in a cooperative arrangement with the county regarding the downtown location, including a proposed parking structure.

On Nov. 14 of this past year, the county commission voted to support the downtown Sanford location rather than at a previously proposed site at Five Points.

In the joint agreement, (yet to be approved), the city agrees to make available, at no charge, 4.75 acres of land presently used as parking lots east and west of the existing courthouse, for construction of the expansion on the building including parking structures.

In addition, the city is promising to supply the necessary water, reclaimed water and sewer infrastructure improvements, and connections which may be necessary to meet the needs of the courthouse. The county however, will not be exempt from paying impact fees.

The courthouse discussions are listed at the top of the work session agenda. The work session is set to begin starting at 4 p.m., Monday, June 24, in the city manager's conference room at City Hall.

The regular commission meeting will begin at 7 p.m., in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Yi said, "I need the community to help me."

Yi said he will contact Commissioner McLain and Under-sheriff Steve Harriet again and ask the ministers to join him once again at the next community meeting on July 1.

He said he is unsure of his feelings about meeting with community leaders and members because news coverage of his participation at the last meeting brought "thousands of phone calls and threats." He said he wants to participate in the community and become a vital part of the economic life of the area, but he feels threatened from both sides in the fight for the community.

He said he is committed to the community where he has had his business for a year and a half and hopes he can have the support of the community as well.

"But I am scared," he noted. "I am stuck in the middle of both sides. My business is going down and down and both sides are threatening me."

According to Ed McDonough, public information officer of the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, the investigation into the robbery is continuing, but no arrests have been made.

Yi said he does not believe the robbers were locals, but said he can not be sure since both wore black ski masks.

McDonough said the first suspect is described as a 30-year-old black male who is 5'8" and 150 pounds. The second suspect, he said, is described as a 20-year-old black male who is 5'10" and 200 pounds. Both men were wearing black clothing and black ski masks.

The next community meeting will be at the Second Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church on Airport Boulevard at 7 p.m. on July 1.

Yi wants to remain in the community, he just wants those who live there to help him make his living.

"I am not going away. Where am I going to go?" he said. "I just want them to be with me."

Story connected?

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.— The president of a small-town bank concocted a story that alleges presidential aide Bruce Lindsey and two bankers schemed to evade federal law, defense lawyers told jurors in a second Whitewater trial.

Neal Ainley, former president of Perry County Bank, walked away from his charges after implicating his boss and President Clinton's closest adviser in the bank's failure to report cash withdrawals by Clinton's 1990 gubernatorial campaign.

In their opening statements Thursday, lawyers for bankers Herby Branscum Jr. and Robert M. Hill denied that their clients were involved in any conspiracy. They blamed any wrongdoing on Ainley, who is expected to be the government's chief witness.

Branscum and Hill, owners of the bank, are accused of hiding from the Internal Revenue Service $63,500 in withdrawals by the Clinton campaign — $30,000 just before the May primary, the rest just before the November general election.

Tempers Party

SALLAS — First the Republicans and Democrats scrunched their political conventions into the same month and now News Week is issuing a two-part Reform Party convention into the August political limbo.

Take on a Temperers Party convention for good measure and it's enough to make one wonder if Americans really are ready for such a jam-packed political calendar.

"It's going to be hard enough to get news organizations interested in these conventions to begin with, so if we could kind of stagger the air traffic pattern a little bit, that would be a welcome development," White House press secretary Mike McCurry joked Thursday after Perot announced his convention plans.

Perot, constructing a very unconventional convention, is putting his party gathering on the installment plan: two segments separated by a week and a continent.

Crib deaths and homicide

ATLANTA — New guidelines to help investigators distinguish between crib death and homicide in infants who die suddenly may reduce the number of deaths incorrectly classified as Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, the government says.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention on Thursday released a standardized, six-page form for police and coroners to note such things as the position of the infant's body, any suspected injuries and any evidence of drug use in the home.

Over the years, some murders have been mistakenly classified as SIDS, the leading cause of death among infants ages 1 month to 1 year and accounting for about 35 percent of all deaths in that age group. About 6,000 deaths a year are attributed to SIDS, also known as crib death.

Dr. Solomon Lysau, a CDC epidemiologist, said the death scene investigation, plus the child's medical history and an autopsy, are necessary for a thorough investigation.

Date rape drug DEA suggests putting Rohypnol In same category as heroin, LSD

By Associated Press
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Drug Enforcement Administration says the illegal sedative Rohypnol, nicknamed the "date rape" drug, should be put in the same category as heroin, cocaine and LSD in the next three months.

The agency recommended that the drug, connected to more than 2,400 criminal investigations nationwide, be declared a Schedule 1 drug to increase penalties for Rohypnol trafficking, smuggling and misuse, DEA spokesman Jim McGivney said.

The Health and Human Services Department will study the medical effects of the drug, and within the next few months could decide with the DEA to reclassify it.

"We have seen an increase in abuse potential and actual abuse," McGivney said. "Even if you don't discuss the sexual allegations, the drug can be very problematic." Ten times more powerful than Valium, Rohypnol has been used to incapacitate unsuspecting people, leaving them with no memory of an assault or robbery. It also is used to extend or ease the effects of other drugs.

The drug — a small, white tablet known as "roofie" that has no taste or odor when dissolved in a drink — sells legally for $1 to $5 per pill on the street.

In "roofie rape," victims who are drugged the drug become dizzy and disoriented and have trouble moving their arms and legs. Ultimately, they pass out and have little or no memory of what happens next.

Officials from Hoffman-Lafrobe Inc., whose parent company manufactures and markets Rohypnol, said Thursday they were "absolutely appalled" by the use of the sedative in sexual attacks.

"We are strongly in favor of very strict penalties for any person who traffics, misuses and abuses Rohypnol," Vice President Carolyn Glynn said. "We do not think reclassifying is an appropriate action."

The New Jersey-based company, which is a U.S. affiliate of Roche Holding Limited of Basel, Switzerland, announced last week it is converting to a smaller dose pill that will not dissolve as easily in a drink to help prevent abuse.

Until March, individuals were allowed to bring a three-month "personal use" supply of Rohypnol into the United States. But after increasing reports of rape, the DEA, Customs Service and Food and Drug Administration banned the drug from the United States.

Before recommending reclassifying Rohypnol, the DEA documented more than 2,400 federal, state and local criminal investigations involving Rohypnol between 1983 and March 1989, McGivney said.

Already Rohypnol is classified as a Schedule 1 drug in Minnesota and Oklahoma, McGivney said. Florida and Texas are in the process of reclassifying the drug, he said.

Inspector general Investigating FAA

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Federal Aviation Administration may be the subject of a criminal investigation by the Transportation Department's inspector general, according to Business Week.

The investigation would focus on whether FAA inspectors intentionally exercised lax oversight of ValuJet prior to the low-price airline's fatal May 11 crash in the Everglades, the magazine says in its July 1 edition.

The airline, which crashed flying last Monday at the request of the FAA, has been the subject of sharp criticism for sloppy maintenance practices. Maintenance problems are not suspected in the accident, however.

Business Week's story quoted an unidentified government source, outside transportation, and noted that the probe "could be downgraded to an administrative inquiry or axed for lack of evidence."

Meanwhile, ValuJet flight attendant Susan Clayton characterized the airline as a "one-shop" during an appearance on CBS' Late Late Show with Tom Snyder.

She said employees on the airline worked past exhaustion and that equipment was frequently broken.

"You would hear (the pilots) say, 'Well, the radar's not working on this leg, but we can fly without it,' or you would hear the mechanics say something about their work order being processed over by a supervisor," she said.

"You have to just carry them, and ValuJet did not," she said.

Grants to fight domestic violence

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government will award $45 million in grants to help police forces in hundreds of communities combat domestic violence.

"This will work," President Clinton said Thursday, citing the work of the police department in San Diego, where he said community policing cut the domestic homicide rate by 50 percent.

"We're coupling the power of police forces rooted in the community with the experience of people who have been fighting domestic violence for a long time," Clinton said.

The president's action, announced at a luncheon observing the 25th anniversary of the Women's Legal Defense Fund, was the latest in a series of moves designed to bolster his standing with women voters.

The grants will pay for local domestic violence-prevention strategies by police agencies cooperating with local victims' services programs.

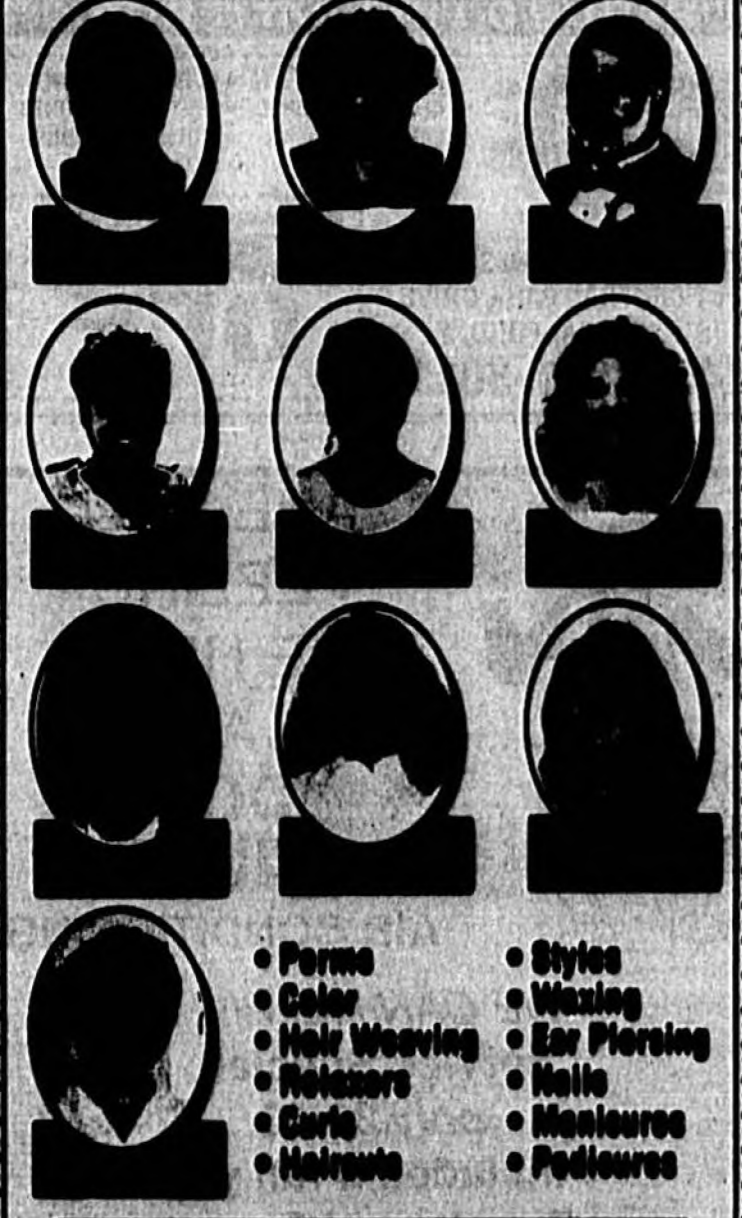

Under the project, police in selected communities will be required to monitor abusers, set up procedures to respond to domestic violence incidents and develop a strategy for early intervention.

The Violence Against Women Act, passed as part of Clinton's 1994 crime bill, enables victims to sue in federal court, allows police to pursue offenders across state lines and provides for shelters and counseling for victims of domestic violence.

Bob Dale's presidential campaign attacked Clinton for his administration's "appalling record on domestic violence," saying the Justice Department had brought only 14 prosecutions under the Violence Against Women act since it was enacted 20 months ago.

"Bob Dale's leadership helped pass the Violence Against Women Act, and as president, he will do more than just talk about it. Bob Dale will appoint tough prosecutors and judges who will enforce the Violence Against Women Act," Dale's campaign spokeswoman Melissa Weisbach said in a statement.

Hurricane receiver arrested

CORAL GABLES — Miami Hurricanes receiver Jammi German was arrested Thursday for attacking the captain of the track team.

Maxwell Voce, 23, told police that four or five football players cornered him about 9 p.m. Wednesday while others viciously punched him.

He said the group burst into his apartment while he was eating dinner, began yelling, then struck him in the face, kned him in the stomach and shoved him into the corner.

Voce said German asked if he was spreading rumors that German was a homosexual.

Voce eventually broke free and ran to a nearby dormitory where he called police.

German is charged with assault and battery and burglary. He was being held at the Dade County Jail after being denied bond.

Under investigation are linebackers James Burgess, 22, a senior, and Jeffrey Taylor, 22, a junior. More arrests were possible.

Sitting Bull: Jackson Stays

DEERFIELD, Ill. — Phil Jackson has signed on for one more year — and one year only.

Jackson on Thursday signed a contract to coach the 1996-97 season for the Chicago Bulls.

"It's exactly what I wanted," he said. "I've always said there's a certain amount of time a coach has. Long term is something that right now I don't want to discuss because one year is about what I have to give."

Jackson, in fact, thought the season just ended would be his last. But that was before the league-record 72 regular-season victories. That was before a fourth championship in six years, capped by a six-game triumph over Seattle in the NBA Finals. That was before he was named the league's coach of the year.

"I thought it was going to be the farewell tour this year because it was my seventh year," said Jackson, a proponent of Zen philosophy who thinks life cycles last seven years. "But this team came together in such a way that it was impossible to walk away."

Terms were not disclosed, but Jackson reportedly will be paid at least $2.5 million.

Post 53 edges Post 112 in two hour contest

By TONY DeGONNER
 Herald Correspondent

OVIEDO — When former Chicago Cub great Ernie Banks used to say, "Let's play two," this may not be what he had in mind.

Given a quickly moving game on a reasonably comfortable, clear, and dry evening, the coaches of the Goldenrod Post 112 and Sanford Post 53 American Legion baseball teams decided to play two Thursday night... two hours.

"We just wanted to get some more innings in and give the guys a chance to play," said Goldenrod coach Kenne Brown. "In effect, we played two five-inning games."

Yes, that's right. The two teams — the summer squads from Oviedo (Goldenrod) and Seminole (Sanford) high schools — played 10 innings in two hours Thursday night at Oviedo High

SANFORD, GOLDENROD:

 Goldenrod Post 112 000 200 000 0 — 1 8 7

Raines, and Acosta; Goldenrod, Newfield and Erwin, 3B — Goldenrod, Knapp, HR — none. Records — Goldenrod Post 112 0-1.

School's Mikler Field, a quick rate of play by any standard.

And it's not that the teams had to play extra innings, either. Originally scheduled as a nine-inning contest, Sanford led 3-2 after nine innings. There was no scoring in the 10th inning.

Considering the trouble every youth baseball team is having getting in games this summer, it made sense for the two teams to seize the opportunity presented them by a beautiful summer night and a pitchers' duel that included seven different pitchers.

Whether it was the quality of the pitching or some impatient hitting, few at bats went more than four pitches. As a result, there were only two half-innings where six batters came to the plate, the bottom of the fourth (when Goldenrod scored twice) and the top of the ninth (when Sanford plated two runs).

Sanford struck first, converting an error and an RBI double by Phillip Eubanks into an unearned run in the top of the third inning. Meanwhile, Sanford pitcher Ryan Mau allowed only an infield hit to Jorge Hernandez through his first three innings.

Goldenrod's only offensive outburst came in the fourth against Sanford reliever Jim Rabun. With two out, Knapp tripled, Troy Boutwell singled, and Guy Erwin doubled to give Gold-

Carrao sharp in Mudcats win over Bullets

LONGWOOD — Tony Carrao allowed just six hits while recording six strikeouts in a complete game performance Thursday night to lead the Lake Mary Mudcats over the Longwood T.G. Lee Bullets 8-2 in National Amateur Baseball Federation action at Lake Mary High School.

"Tony did a great job," said Lake Mary coach Kevin Waincott. "He got hit hard his last two times out, but he throws strikes. We were able to hit the ball hard, and I'm very happy with our effort."

Shaun St. Dennis reached first base on an error to lead off the Lake Mary fourth inning, took second when Brad Klinger followed with a single, and stole third. St. Dennis and Klinger then scored to put the Mudcats ahead 2-0 when Jeff Ebbert doubled to the left field wall one out later.

Matt Moss led off the sixth inning with a home run to left field to put Lake Mary ahead 3-0. Ebbert then reached first base on an error, stole second, and took third when Scott Hillnaki reached first on the Bullets second error of the inning. After Jed Main followed with a walk to load the bases, Ebbert scored on fielder's choice by Scott DeGraff to make the score 4-0.

Hillnaki scored on a passed ball that allowed Main to take third, and Main extended the lead to 6-0 on a single by Jimmy Smith that pushed DeGraff to third. DeGraff scored on a ground out by Ryan Abelton, and Smith scored Lake Mary's final run on a single by St. Dennis.

run in the bottom of the sixth inning to regain the lead 7-5.

Now it was Schwan's turn to rally, tallying two runs on two out RBI singles by Layton Wellborn and Bob Webb to tie the game at 7-7 and force extra innings.

Neither team scored in the eighth inning, but Schwan's took the lead in the top of the ninth inning on a double by Layton Wellborn and an RBI single by Bob Webb.

McConnell Towing wasted no time in coming back as Jay Shell led off with a triple and scored when Wayne Fabess reached on an error. Tom Maines followed with a double and Clyde Wood walked intentionally to load the bases. Lee McAfferty then ended the game with a single.

In the opening game of the evening, M.T. Muggs broke a 0-0 tie by scoring five runs in the top of the seventh inning and broke a two-game losing skid with an 11-6 victory over Haley Construction.

In the late game of the evening, Schwan's scored a 3-1 double by scoring seven runs in the bottom of the fourth inning and held on to upset InvoCare 5-0.

McConnell Towing is now 9-1, while InvoCare is 5-6 and M.T. Muggs is 4-5. McConnell Towing would have to lose its final two games, while either InvoCare and M.T. Muggs would have to win its remaining games to force a tie and a playoff for the league championship. Trading the top three teams are Schwan's (4-6) and Haley Construction (0-6).

Next week, Schwan's battles Haley Construction at 6:30 p.m., while InvoCare plays the doubleheader against M.T. Muggs at 7:30 p.m. and McConnell Towing at 8:30 p.m. scored a 3-1 lead.

For the next 6-1 innings, Nelson, Ben Duenemann, and Fred Jenkins limited Goldenrod to just one hit, a one-out double by Andy Neuhid in the eighth inning.

Sanford wasn't faring any better with Knapp and Mike Halaychick. After Eubanks hit his RBI double and was thrown out trying to stretch it into a triple, Tim Raines Jr. followed with a double. Then Sanford endured a 6-1-inning stretch where its only hit was a double by Alex Acosta in the sixth.

But Halaychick lost his control in the ninth inning when he walked Jason Yero and wild pitched pinch-runner Josh Frost to second base. After a sacrifice bunt by Acosta, Clyde Williams singled home Frost with the tying run.

As an out later, Chris Leuwama singled Williams to third. When Halaychick threw wild to first base on a pickoff attempt, Williams trotted home with the go-ahead run.

Jenkins retired the last six Goldenrod hitters of the game to save the win for Duenemann.

substantia was the only player on either team with more than one hit, collecting a double, single, and an RBI to lead Sanford. Also chipping in were Williams (single, run, RBI); Raines and Acosta (each with a double); Mike Buky and Leuwama (single, run, RBI) and Rob Duenemann and Josh Frost (one run each).

Providing the offense for Goldenrod were Knapp (triple run); Boutwell (single, run, RBI); Erwin (double, RBI); Neufeld (double); and Hernandez (single).

Smith was 2-for-3 to lead the Lake Mary offense, while St. Dennis and Klinger were each 2-for-4. DeGriff, Aberton, Mann, Ebert and Mann each had one hit. Hees was 2-for-3 to lead Longwood, while Radcliff, Bobby Blary and Dustin Owen each had one hit. Tyler Carr gave up just eight hits and three walks over five innings, while striking out six.

Longwood hosts Dr. Phillips on Saturday at 7 p.m. and University on Monday for a doubleheader at 8 p.m. at Lyman High School, while Lake Mary is scheduled to play a make-up game at Dr. Phillips at 8:30 p.m. on Monday.

The late game was a tremendous pitchers duel between Tom Gray from Franklin Hill Bonds and Mike Murray from Beer:30 for the first five innings as the score was tied at 3-3 and the two teams had combined for only 15 hits.

But both teams' offenses awoke in the sixth inning with first Beer:30 and then Franklin Hill Bonds scoring five runs each to have the score leveled at 5-5. Franklin Hill Bonds' Robert Stevens had come off the bench to blast a pinch hit two out, two run home run over the center field fence to tie the game.

Beer:30 then took an 11-6 lead in the top of the seventh inning on an RBI single by Spencer Baggett and a two-run single by Earl Allen.

But with one out in the bottom of the seventh inning Franklin Hill Bonds started its final comeback.

Steve Dennis doubled and scored on a single by Craig Markerson. Markerson then scored on a double by Dale Peters and Calvin Davis reached on a throwing error. With runners on first and third Tom Gray's shot up the middle was snagged by Mike Murray for an out.

Murray tried to turn a double play but the throw to first was high and Davis got back safely on a close play and Peters scored while the Beer:30 players discussed the call. Ray Hartsfield then hit a long drive to right center field that tipped off the Beer:30 catcher's glove and Steve scored home with the winning run, giving Franklin Hill Bonds a 12-11 triumph.

In the opening game of the evening, Rib Ranch scored five runs in the top of the first inning, with three runs coming home on a bases loaded double by Bobby McRee, and took a 7-0 lead in the fourth inning. Cactus Bob's made a comeback try, springing five runs over the fourth, fifth and sixth innings to get within 7-5, but Rib Ranch got a pair of insurance runs in the top of the seventh inning to post a 9-5 victory and break a three-game losing streak.

Franklin Hill Bonds is now 10-0 on the season. Trailing the champs are Ken Summel Chevrolet (8-4), Rib Ranch (4-3), Beer:30 (3-6) and Cactus Bob's (0-6).

Next week, Franklin Hill Bonds takes on Cactus Bob's at 6:30 p.m. and Beer:30 plays the doubleheader against Rib Ranch at 7:30 p.m. and Ken Summel Chevrolet at 8:30 p.m.

Also contributing were Robert Stevens (home run, run, two RBI), Kathleen Roberts (triple), Tony Smith (double, run), Tom Gray (single, run, two RBI) and Curtis Taber, Altona Brumby and Greg Hardy (one single each).

Janis Knight joins Beth Am

By GAILLY BAKER
Herald Staff Writer

MAITLAND — According to a recent press release, Sanford family educator Janis Knight, program director of Temple Beth Shalom in Springfield, Massachusetts will assume the position of Director of Education at Congregation Beth Am, bringing her considerable expertise to build on the firm foundations created by Judy Cahal who is leaving to take up residence in Israel.

Knight, who was instrumental in the work of the Boston, Massachusetts Bureau of Jewish Education, especially in creating teacher resource materials, co-edited the Bureau's annual Jewish Education's Job Fair and leading the Beth Shalom Library Advisory Group, was awarded a Master of Arts Degree in Jewish Communal Service with a concentration in Jewish Education from Hebrew College in Brookline, Massachusetts under whose auspices Knight attended Ulpian Ahiva in Netanya, Israel and the Foster

Janis Knight, Congregation Beth Am's new Education Director

Seminar in Jerusalem where she led other participants in an exploration of the issues of Diaspora Jewish Community Identity.

"Our bringing Janis Knight to Beth Am is a powerful statement about the centrality of Jewish education here at our congregation," said Jean Mayor, who headed a search committee that examined more than 50 candidates from as far away as Israel, California and Nevada through the innovative use of videotape responses to carefully crafted interview questions.

Knight's work in the private, for-profit sector, particularly her work as a supervisor for University Loan Services in Cambridge, Massachusetts impressed interviewers with her ability to manage a large staff.

Also instrumental in the search that brings Knight to Central Florida was Rabbi David L. Blumenfeld, Ph.D. of the United Synagogue of Conservative Judaism's Department of Services to Affiliated Congregations and the United Synagogue's Office of Professional Placement.

Others noted that Knight speaks the language of "Educational Risk-Taking," looking for ways to break out of the mold of the usual, the accepted, the so-called "normal" modes of traditional Jewish education.

Here is where Beth Am's new Education Director brings her greatest talents given her experience as a synagogue Youth Director, a mentor and a creator of several innovative post-Confirmation programs at Temple Shil Tivva of Wayland, Massachusetts.

All this experience is blended with her graduate and undergraduate studies at Syracuse University, expressed best in her ground-breaking Master's thesis entitled "Professional Use of Power in and Educational Agency: A Political Analysis."

Just recently Janis Knight was quoted in the commencement booklet of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America as yet another area of her expertise, inter-faith marriage.

Her stance on the significant role family educational programs play in making non-faith families feel comfortable in culturally and religiously Jewish settings has gained her national attention.

"We of Beth Am are truly blessed to have Janis Knight choose us," according to Rabbi Marvin Shapiro, who is quick to note the myriad of congregational activities for countless talents and abilities.

She is well respected not just as a teacher of children but a teacher of families," the Rabbi continued.

Knight and her husband, Tom Spink, a widely published freelance journalist and author will be taking up residence in Altamonte Springs during the month of July.

Facing fear by God's side

SANFORD — Fear is a strange thing. There are times when we can handle this problem in such a graceful fashion. Other times our emotions go plummeting into the depths of despair.

I had shared in a previous article about keeping my eyes on the Lord when the storms of life surround us and a peace will fill our spirits. A scripture comes to mind in Phil 4:19 says, "I can do all things through Christ which strengthens me."

Facing emotional heartaches and trials try our patience and faith. Facing medical problems really works on negative thoughts and feelings.

Although I am presently going through numerous tests and procedures for a problem with one of my kidneys I have found, that knowing there are those in prayer for you is a great comfort.

I have swung from being eternally grateful that a sonogram for gall bladder problems discovered this left renal cyst yet filled with mixed emotion about the prospect of further evaluation into the unknown.

It's suddenly a bit frightening when faced with your own mortality or what you perceive to be a chilling experience. Small irritations are heaped on a daily basis but our health is something we frequently take for granted.

Jesus healed many people during his ministry on earth. One woman even simply touched the hem of his garment and was restored to health.

May we continually pray for His loving hand to guide us into all truth and direct our paths in following Him we will touch others for His glory and honor.

WORRY is like a rocking chair; it will give you something to do but it won't get you anywhere.

Who was Jesus? Was he merely a good man? An impostor? Or was he the Savior of all mankind?

For answers to these and other thought-provoking questions, send for your free copy of the booklet "Jesus, the World's Savior". Mail your request to:

Drug tests: for the record

DEAR DR. GOTT: In your column, you mentioned that drug testing for drugs in the workplace is now being done by many companies. I am sure that this will lead to a lot of people who are not drug users being tested and found positive. I am sure that this is not the way to go. I am sure that this is not the way to go. I am sure that this is not the way to go.

PETER GOTT, M.D.

Therefore, a person undergoing drug tests should consistently obtain from testing with a negative result — or risk being tested a drug-user. As a medical review officer for several large companies, I can assure you that I have found every source for a positive drug test, pondered every question and closed down every source.

DEAR DOCTOR: You are, of course, correct and I appreciate your calling attention to the issue. The statement I made was misleading. I pointed out, I meant the word "likely" to apply to the applicant's drug use, not in the test itself.

I am also grateful for the information you sent, indicating that the "gold-standard" test for marijuana (the tetrahydrocannabinol assay) is not influenced by over-the-counter medications, such as aspirin.

This urine test is very specific and will detect the presence of THC (the active metabolite in marijuana) for up to three days after a person smokes a single marijuana cigarette and (up to a month in a chronic user). Positive inhalation of marijuana smoke or ingestion of the leaves will not cause a positive test.

Thank you for writing. DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 37-year-old female who has just ended my menopause cycle. I'm still worried to death about becoming pregnant. Can you put me at ease on this subject?

DEAR READER: Most women do not enter menopause suddenly. They may not menstruate for several months — and then have a period, indicating that ovulation took place.

Therefore, it's impossible to predict whether a menopausal woman may experience infrequent and unexpected ovulation that could lead to a pregnancy. For this reason, it's important for such women to use birth control.

The rule of thumb is: Once a woman has failed to menstruate for a year, she is considered infertile. But she or her partner should use birth control until she has not had a natural period for 12 consecutive months.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is a good sleeping pill to take for insomnia?

DEAR READER: As a general rule, it's better not to rely on sleeping pills. They can affect judgment and mental function. Many are addictive.

Insomnia often has success in ing pills. Here are some suggestions: Go to bed at the same time each night in a room that is quiet and dark. Listen to your biological clock. If you're a night owl, stay up longer and sleep later. Avoid stimulating activity, such as certain TV programs, at bedtime.

Steinain caffeine and other stimulant drugs in the evening. Drink a glass of warm milk before retiring.

Try over-the-counter Benadryl (100 milligrams at bedtime) to make you sleepy.

For the short-term management of insomnia, the prescription drug Ambien is appropriate. It has minimal side effects and is not habit-forming.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Sleep/Wake Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

Organizer and translator

By Phillip Alder

The organizer of the bridge side of my trip to Cairns was Helen Thompson. You might have seen her name without having it register. One of the best bridge books ever, full of wonderful but difficult deals, is "Bridge with the Blue Team" by Pietro Forquet. It was translated from the Italian by Helen.

She is also a good player, arguably the best in northern Queensland. She spotted the right line in this deal almost immediately. How would you plan the play in four hearts after West has led the spade king?

Helen, sitting South, actually rebid three no-trump, not four hearts. Well done! That contract has nine top tricks. And if the heart suit were a minor, we would all rebid three no-trump. But with a major we get nervous, especially holding only two spades. However, I forced her back to the four-heart ranch.

At first glance, it looks obvious to use your one dummy entry to take the club finesse. Here, though, that finesse fails and you lose four tricks: one spade, two diamonds and one club.

Helen realized that she had nine top tricks, and the hunt was on for number 10. At trick one, she saw that she had options. She could withhold dummy's ace and play either her three or her jack. What did West's lead indicate? Right! The spade king and queen. Harnessing the power of dummy's 10, Helen ducked the first trick in the dummy and unblocked the jack from her hand. Either now or later, depending on West's lead at trick two, she planned to finesse dummy's spade 10 for her 10th trick. She won two spades, seven hearts and one club.

Several secret ambitions may be realized in the year ahead, but not necessarily in the way in which you perceived these goals initially. These modifications will offer greater benefits.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Your initial assessment of a situation today might focus on the darker side. However, if you take a hard, second look, you'll see several new opportunities. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what is to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1786, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) Financial trends will work in your favor, but you should try to use this good fortune to safely entree-vent your whims.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A situation might arise today that could enable you to take advantage of someone, but to your credit, you will discard this idea.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Do not let a domineering individual force his or her ideas on you today. The plan of action you designed for yourself will be better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Enjoy yourself in social situations today, but don't try to mix business with pleasure. Make it all of one thing or all of the other.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will continue to have good luck in your financial affairs. However, you must make sure to do all you can to ensure monetary success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Early in the day you may discover that being too friendly with others is not productive. Fortunately, your good judgment will get you back on track.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You might not get everything you want in a commercial arrangement today, but don't lose in the long run. Everything will work out in the end.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Some extra domestic pressures are probable in the early part of the day, but if you maintain your sense of humor, you will brighten everyone's spirits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you help someone today, throw in something extra. Good intentions count for a lot and will yield larger-than-usual rewards.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In most important areas of your life, you could have good luck today. You will not be as lucky with lighthearted things, so use caution.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Good fortune will not desert you today if you let events run their course. Involvement changes impulsively could be unproductive.
