Seminole Schools Side-Step Moment Of Silence Issue

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Silence is golden, according to the old adage, but some Seminole County school officials believe a moment of silence during the school day could be a problem.

The Supreme Court took the moment of silence issue off the back burner last week, hearing arguments about an Alabama law requiring it in the classroom. Attorneys for the state called the moment for meditation and prayer a "modest gesture" to religious students that does not promote religion.

But lawyers for the man who brought the suit against the state told the court the law was an attempt to get around its 1962 ruling that forbids teacher-led prayer in schools.

A ruling in the case is expected by July 1985 but some court analysts believe the justices may throw out the case. There are 23 other states with laws similar to Alabama's.

Florida has no moment of silence or prayer-related law, according to Seminole County School Board Attorney Ned Julian, Jr.

"The reason we don't have it is because it's not worth fighting," Julian said. "What they (the Supreme Court justices) are saying is that it creates so much of a problem we won't have any. It's not worth policing the exceptions."

Whenever prayer or meditation is introduced, some parent or group always complains, Julian said, so Florida school boards have pigeon-holed the issue to avoid problems.

Also, the courts keep ruling against silent prayer and meditation, according to Julian, because children are "impressionable and tend to follow authority," Julian said. And parents who are not religious don't want their children following a practice of which they don't approve.

If a teacher in Seminole County was having a time of prayer, meditation or silence without the board's knowledge, Julian said Dr. Hortense Evans, administrative assistant to the superintendent, would be sent to the school to stop it.

But some teachers and administrators in the school system see a moment of silence as harmless and

Port Authority Land

Hazardous Waste Site Proposed

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Port Authority property at Sanford is favored by staff of the county's Environmental Services Department as the location of a hazardous waste transfer station.

Under mandate of state law to choose a site in the county where hazardous waste — oils, greases and lubricants, lead acid batteries and spent industrial solvents — would be stored pending transport out of state for disposal, the staff recommended 10 sites for consideration.

But Timothy Clabaugh, environmental control manager, told the county commission Monday a tract of about five acres at the Port of Sanford would have the least impact on public safety, surface and groundwater quality, soils and land use in the area.

An "informal public hearing," conducted by representatives of the county Department of Environmental Services, the Planning Department, the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council and the Florida Department of Environmental Regulations is scheduled for Dec. 20 at the county services building.

Clabaugh said the hearing will be a technical session to inform the public of the requirements of the state's 1983 Water Quality Assurance Act (to have county hazardous waste transfer sites in each county) and the steps that have been taken by the county.

A second public hearing is scheduled by the county commission for 7 p.m., Jan. 8 to make a selection of at least one potential storage facility location.

Clabaugh also said the DER doesn't have to approve the site ultimately selected by the county and can choose another instead.

He added that the business community in the county, considered small quantity generators, produces more than 3 million pounds of hazardous waste yearly. And, he said, it is unknown exactly how these generators of hazardous waste dispose of the waste now.

Commissioner Sandra Glenn, who represents Seminole County on the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council and is a past president of the organization, said generators of these wastes now may be dumping them at the county's sanitary landfill near Geneva or at other sites.

This is the second time environmental services has come up with a list of preferred sites. Now there are two sites being considered in each county commission district. The recommended sites were spread out county wide after Commissioner Bill Kirechhoff noted in the first list that the majority were within his district in the north end of the county.

The 10 sites are:

• The area between Jamestown and Gabriella in the Oviedo-Geneva area, off state Road 426 near the Florida Power complex. Listed as advantages of this site are that it is a sparsely populated area, zoning compatibility, and two soil borings indicate favorable conditions. Disadvantages — 3,000 feet to Bear Gulley Creek, 1.2 miles to the Econ River, 3,500 feet to Deep Lake, inadequate water for fire protection, poor road system, not county property and moderate groundwater discharge.

• The Oviedo transfer station, now closed, on Evans Street, off SR 419. Advantages — sparsely populated area and the site is county owned. Disadvantages — 2,500 feet to the Econ River, 3,000 feet to Long Lake, transport routes through Chulueta to U.S. Highway 50 and moderate groundwater recharge area.

• On the northeast corner of General Hutchison Parkway and county Road 427. Advantages — zoning compatibility, property for sale, proximity to railroad and central location. Disadvantages — populated area, 4,500 feet to Soldiers Creek, 300 feet to Spring Hammock and moderate groundwater recharge area.

• Big Tree Crossing Industrial and Commercial Park on Howard Boulevard off CR 427. Advantages — zoning compatibility, proximity to railroad, central location of the county and property now being developed. Disadvantages — populated area, 2,500 feet to Soldiers Creek, 1,000 feet to Spring Hammock

All I Want For Christmas...

Her missing front teeth make 5-year-old Liza Jones a natural for singing "All I want for Christmas is my Two Front Teeth" in the Midway Elementary School Christmas play. Liza, a kindergartener, practiced Monday for her Dec. 18 performance and she wasn't singing solo. Fourteen other youngsters with the same gapping qualifications joined Liza for rehearsal and will sputter along in song during the 9:30 a.m. play.

Zoo Move At Least 3 Years Away

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The Orlando City Council is offering the Central Florida Zoo some 92 acres on the north side of Turkey Lake Park for a zoo site if approval can be obtained from the state Department of Natural Resources.

But, Shyla Reich, president of the zoological society, says even if the agency gives its approval, it will be a minimum of three years before the society could raise the $10 million necessary to move the zoo from Sanford.

And in the meantime, she said, the zoo board is firm in its commitment to maintain the zoo as it now exists. The zoo sits on county-owned land, just off U.S. Highway 17-92 west of Sanford.

Mrs. Reich said while the zoo site committee favors relocation to Turkey Lake Park, the full zoo board of directors has not approved the move.

The DNR must give approval before planning the relocation can continue because of money the federal government has invested in the property, Mrs. Reich said.

She called the Orlando Council approval "an additional step forward on the path we are on."

The special committee also has looked at the state-owned wildlife reserve on the east side of the Wekiva River, north of state Road 46, west of Sanford.

"The state is very definite about keeping that property a reserve for animals in their natural habitat," Mrs. Reich said. While the state owns 4,000 acres there, "there is no way we could get a portion for the zoo," she said.

She estimated it will take Orlando 4-6 months to get an answer from the DNR on whether the north end of Turkey Lake Park can be used for a zoo. But, assuming that approval is gained, and the zoological society board of directors also approves, there is still the task of garnering the public and private support needed to finance the move, she said.

"It would be premature to do the financial part of the search and then find DNR has disapproved," she said.

Orlando earlier turned down a request from the society for a parcel on the south end of Turkey Lake Park for a zoo site, she said, because that area of the property is already being developed into picnic and camping facilities and a pool is being built.

While efforts at relocation continue, Mrs. Reich emphasized that "we are going to maintain the park we have now as it should be maintained as long as we are there. We are keeping up the zoo. We are not slacking off on our collection of animals or on maintenance."

In her presentation to the Orlando City Council Monday, Mrs. Reich said she envisions a zoo at Turkey Lake where Florida's plant and wildlife, especially the Florida panther, will be protected from extinction.

The zoo board has been very critical of the present Sanford site, saying the 21-acre tract is low-lying and so wet that it poses a health danger to hoofed animals and other creatures at the facility. The surrounding swampy terrain also prevents the zoo from expanding.

Hijack Survivors Describe Constant Torture, Threats

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Americans rescued from a hijacked Kuwaiti airliner said their captors, accusing them of spying for the CIA, constantly tortured and threatened to kill them during the six-day nightmare.

U.S. officials were preparing to bring the two survivors home today and were negotiating for the return of the bodies of two Americans slain by the four hijackers, captured Sunday by Iranian security guards.

In Kuwait, official sources said a jet would retrieve the other survivors.

The former hostages, recovering from their ordeal in a Tehran hospital, Monday said the sky pirates held them "always under threat of death," terrorizing them with beatings and torture.

"They beat me of course, opened my eye and my head with a gun butt. They kept hitting me in the head and on this (left) side of the face, on my ribs, then on my jaw and also toward my ear," said Charles Kapar, 57, an auditor for the State Department's Agency for International Development.

Kapar, a former Navy jet pilot from Arlington, Va., and John

Costa, a 50-year-old businessman from New York, were among seven hostages rescued by Iranian security guards.

Costa and Kapar said they were repeatedly kicked, clubbed with guns and tortured with burning cigarettes by the hijackers who kept accusing them of being CIA spies.

"I kept telling them this and they kept telling me, 'No you're not, you're this,' and they kept insisting," Kapar said. "So they would hit me harder and harder and then I told them point blank, 'If you don't believe me, shoot me.'"

First Planet Detected Beyond Solar System

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Astronomers using a new observation technique have discovered what appears to be the first planet detected outside our solar system.

A team led by Dr. Donald McCarthy Jr. of the University of Arizona reported Monday that the object appears to be a massive ball of hot gas orbiting the star Van Biesbroeck 8, 21 light years from Earth.

Scientists long have assumed planet-sized objects circle other stars, but they never had before been able to actually observe one, although two astronomers recently photographed a vast swarm of particles around a star 50 light years away.

The existence of planets beyond the nine that orbit the sun is a basic assumption of researchers who speculate on the existence of extraterrestrial life. They theorize that some planets around far-off stars must have conditions similar to those under which life evolved on Earth.

"A necessary first step is that you show there are planets around other stars," McCarthy said.

"This one is certainly not a habitable planet and the star it is going around is not very hot like our sun so there probably isn't any life there. But it is a step in the direction that should lead to the discovery of systems of planets around other stars."

McCarthy said the apparent planet, designated VB 8B, shows up in powerful telescopes as a point of infrared light next to the star. Infrared radiation is emitted by heat and is not visible to the human eye.

He said he has ruled out the possibility that the object is a more distant background object, but said other researchers will want to verify the finding before it can be accepted as fact.

McCarthy and associates calculated the object to be 30 to 80 times more massive than Jupiter, the largest of the planets circling the sun. They estimated the outermost temperature of the apparent planet's gases is about 2,000 degrees F — hotter than any of the sun's planets, but too cool to be a star.

Van Biesbroeck 8, located in the Milky Way constellation Ophiuchus, is only about 10 percent as massive as the sun, with a temperature of about 3,000 degrees F, McCarthy said. Van Biesbroeck 8's companion object is not much smaller, but is below the size necessary to sustain the thermonuclear reaction of a star, he added.

The National Science Foundation, the government agency that supported the research and announced the finding, said the existence of planets as large as this has been theorized by astronomers. Although they never have before been seen, they are called "brown dwarfs."

The object was detected with the use of a technique called infrared speckle interferometry using the 158-inch Mayall Telescope at the Kitt Peak National Observatory and the 90-inch telescope at the University of Arizona's Steward Observatory.

IN BRIEF

6 S. African Dissidents Freed And Arrested Again

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa lifted detention orders against 14 black and Asian opposition leaders, but six political dissidents were immediately arrested again and charged with treason.

Treason carries a sentence of death. About 175 people are still being held in South Africa under the Internal Security Act, which allows authorities to hold people under indefinite detention without trial or access to lawyers or family.

Asian community leader Farouk Meer described Monday's releases as "an American ploy" to shore up U.S. policy. The move came after two weeks of highly publicized anti-apartheid protests in the United States.

On Friday, authorities freed 11 labor leaders detained for three weeks following a strike by some 700,000 black workers.

Tutu: Prize Gives New Hope

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — Anti-apartheid crusader Desmond Tutu, who delivers the traditional Nobel lecture today in a hall cleared 24 hours earlier by a bomb threat, says his prize has given new hope to fellow blacks in South Africa.

"I come with a humble pride on behalf of millions to say thank you," said the 53-year-old black Anglican bishop Monday evening after receiving the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize diploma and gold medal along with a check for $190,000.

The Oslo presentation was interrupted briefly by a bomb threat. Tutu and the audience, including Norway's King Olav V and members of the Norwegian cabinet, evacuated the premises but no device was found. The ceremony resumed one hour later.

Tutu, a vocal critic of the South African government's policies of racial discrimination against the 22 million black majority, was later honored by a supporters who formed a torchlight parade.

Union Carbide Chief Denies Criminal Responsibility

Deadly Gas Leak Was Forseen

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — A safety report made two years ago on Union Carbide's Bhopal, India plant found so many lapses that inspectors predicted a massive leak, such as the one that killed 2,250 people last week, could happen.

The leaky valves named in the report, however, were on a different tank than the one that spewed a deadly cloud of methyl isocyanate last week.

The safety report was distributed by the company at a news conference Monday. Union Carbide Chairman Warren Anderson conducted the media briefing — his first remarks on the accident since he returned Sunday from India, where he had been arrested and charged with corporate negligence.

Maintenance specialist Charles Stephen Tyson said that there were several problems with the Sevin manufacturing process at Bhopal.

He said his team was especially upset with a leaky relief valve on a small tank containing methyl isocyanate about to be fed into the manufacturing process.

Tyson said it was not the same tank involved in last Monday's disaster but added that such a valve leak could lead to an uncontrollable "runaway reaction" that could trigger something like last week's accident.

Also among the leaky valves the inspectors found in Bhopal was one in the storage system that failed eight days ago. Tyson thought the valve had been fixed.

At the news conference earlier in the day, Anderson insisted the victims of the disaster would be fairly compensated, but he also insisted the firm was not criminally responsible for the catastrophe.

"Union Carbide has a moral responsibility in this whole issue and we are not ducking it," said Anderson, whose company's stock has dived on the New York Stock Exchange since the accident.

"I am confident that the victims can be fairly and equitably compensated without a material adverse effect on the financial condition" of the company, Anderson said.

Last week Anderson and two other company officials were charged under seven sections of the Indian penal code for "criminal liability," a crime carrying a maximum punishment of life imprisonment. Anderson posted bail of $2,000.

Anderson defended the top-line quality of the India plant.

"You can't put a second hand facility some place outside the United States and expect to operate," Anderson said. "We put a facility in India that we put in Institute, West Virginia. I don't feel there was anything left to be desired" regarding safety.

When pressed on whether he would return to India to face the charges, he responded, "I'd consider it, certainly."

Madhyas Pradesh officials said the bail meant that Anderson would be required to return to India any time the state government ordered his presence. Anderson would not comment on a $15 billion class-action suit filed on behalf of two victims whose Indian families reside in the United States.

The class action suit could be joined by relatives of all of the more than 2,250 people who were killed and the thousands more incapacitated by the leak.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Rain, mixed with snow at higher elevations, was scattered from California to the southern Rockies today. Fog shrouded the Ohio Valley and southeast while unseasonably warm temperatures were recorded in much of the nation. A travelers advisory was posted early today for the southern Sierra Nevada Mountains after 6 inches of new snow fell at Donner Summit Monday night. Travelers advisories were also in effect for the mountains and passes of Montana and central Wyoming. Cold air began pushing across Montana early today and temperatures dropped into the teens. Gusty winds were expected to produce blowing and drifting snow later in the day. A winter storm watch was issued for the southern Colorado mountains, where up to a foot of snow was expected by tonight. Dense fog blanketed the Upper Mississippi Valley and stretched across the lower Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley and into the Carolinas. Fog also extended into New York state as well as from southeast Texas to the Florida Panhandle.

After 50 Years, The Idea Of Saving Comes Of Age.

Banks introduce insured savings accounts, but the government restricts rates.

Small investors gain access to money market rates, but sacrifice FDIC insurance.

Now, NCNB's Money Market Account offers higher yields, plus FDIC security.

From the time people earned more money than they needed day to day, the question has always been: where to put it?

For years, banks have been a safe, secure place to "keep your money" until you need it. The only problem was, regulations kept the interest rates low.

So, to obtain higher yields, people had to give up bank security and go elsewhere, often to the money market.

Now, with the NCNB Money Market Account, that's all over.

Like other money market accounts, it offers higher yields on balances of $2500 or more. And, like other money market accounts, your money's available any time you need it.

Yet, unlike money market accounts at brokers, it offers you the security of FDIC insurance.

So come see us for a whole new way to invest that puts more muscle in your money.

And you don't have to leave your neighborhood to get it.

The 'Educational Garage Sale' Crisis

There's a famous old Hindu tale, familiar to college teachers everywhere, about seven blind Indians who were led to an elephant and then asked to describe it. The first one, feeling the elephant's tail, thought it very like a rope. The second, touching only its trunk, thought the elephant resembled a tree. Each man made a similar narrow assessment, based on his own perspective. None seemed to have the remotest idea of what the elephant was like in its entirety.

What brings the tale back to mind is the latest report on academe, issued by a panel of scholars for the National Endowment for the Humanities.

In essence, the report titled "To Reclaim a Legacy: A Report on the Humanities in Higher Education" asserts that U.S. colleges and universities for the last two decades have been falling down on the job of giving their students an adequately rounded view of the world, specifically by neglecting in-depth study of the humanities. In a phrase, it is the dilemma of the blind Indians all over again.

There is a temptation in our day to gloss over a report like this on grounds that commissioned studies on the state of American education tend to follow the same grim pattern. Most recently, an Institute of Higher Education report cited "warning signals" about the quality of higher education. On the other hand, many educators themselves have debated the issue in recent years on campuses from Harvard to UCLA to St. Louis U. Ever since the boisterous free speech movement at Berkeley in the mid-'60s was followed by an insipid demand for more "relevance" in the classroom, colleges everywhere have faced enormous external pressures for change.

Nevertheless, it is a serious mistake to dismiss "To Reclaim a Legacy" too lightly, because its panel of scholars produce strong evidence that much of the change that came about may have been for the worse. Perhaps its leading symptom was the dramatic upsurge in college remedial work in the '60s and '70s. The problem revolves heavily around dilution of the "core curriculum" of course work required by undergrads at so many campuses, according to the panel. For instance:

— A student now can obtain a bachelor's degree from 75 percent of all American colleges and universities without having studied European history.

— The student also can get a degree from 72 percent of all campuses without having studied American literature or history, and from 86 percent without having studied the civilizations of classical Greece or Rome.

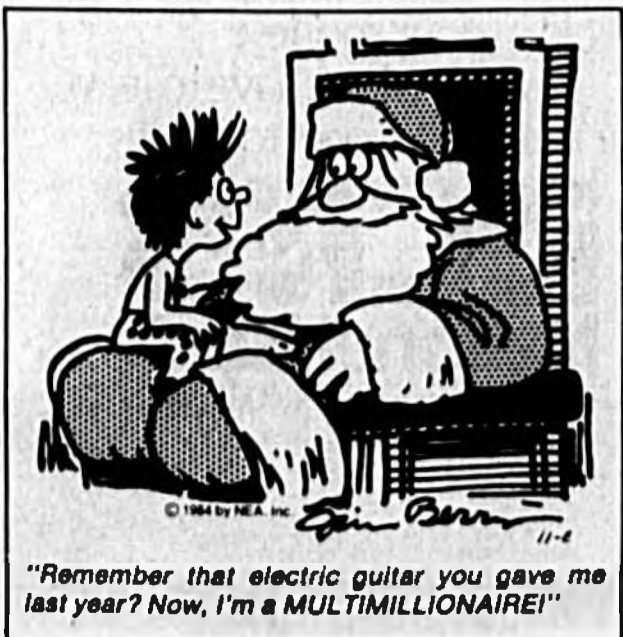

— The attraction of English as a major field of study has fallen off drastically, and fewer than half of all campuses now require foreign language study for a bachelor's degree, down from nearly 90 percent in 1966.

The net result is that too much course work has become merely technical or career-oriented, pointing the way to graduate schools that "produce too many narrow specialists whose teaching is often lifeless, stilted and pedestrian," the document asserts.

It should go without saying that the school values that come from study of the humanities — the ability to grasp great ideas, the power to make wise decisions, the gift of effective communication — are absolutely essential for the preservation of civilized society. Professor Sidney Hook's observation earlier this year — that the inflammatory ideological ramblings of Marxist Professor Angela Davis find a greater welcome at too many American colleges today than the civilized and far more scholarly discourse of U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick — is a sad sign of the current state of affairs on campus.

Or as endowment fund Chairman William Bennett put it so well, some U.S. campuses are running the risk today of turning into "little more than an educational garage sale," in which no one is quite sure what the term "educated" means anymore.

Reagan Press Aide Faces Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deputy press secretary Michael Deaver says he plans to sit down after President Reagan's second inaugural to decide his own future and whether he will remain at the White House.

"I haven't decided," Deaver told United Press International in an interview. "I haven't made a decision on what I want to do. I've been here four years ... this is the most challenging thing I've ever done."

Deaver said he and his family would like for him to be able to spend more time at home.

Deaver is more than a top White House aide; he is a friend and close confidant to both the president and Mrs. Reagan, who count on him and on his advice.

He has held the role of body mover, chief scheduler of Reagan's appointments, keeper of the gate, and more recently in the campaign, masterminding many of the president's trips and spotlighted appearances to give Reagan the maximum exposure and to put him in the best light.

Public relations is his forte, and that is where he expects to wind up if he leaves the White House. Deaver has a standing offer with a six-figure salary from Burson-Marsteller, a public relations firm.

Like other White House staffers, he has found it tough going in terms of living up to Washington social standards on his salary. His wife, Carolyn, works.

The Reagans undoubtedly will try to persuade Deaver to stay on the job. But if he doesn't, he probably will remain in close proximity and be available for White House chores.

"I'm a good friend," he said. Right now, he is preoccupied with his position as general chairman of the Reagan inaugural.

The president has moved to put a damper on the family squabble and aides say he and Mrs. Reagan will probably see son, Michael, 38, and his family when they are in the Los Angeles area.

Reagan has telephoned Michael to try to smooth over the rift that broke out when the first lady acknowledged that he was estranged from the family. There were hurt feelings all around, aides say, and Mrs. Reagan did not mean to offend him in any way.

The president has asked members of the family to cool it as they try to heal the wounds.

The Reagans are expected to try to get together with Michael in the post-Christmas period on the West Coast. Michael and his wife also are expected to attend the inauguration.

ROBERT WALTERS

Bright GOP Outlook

DES MOINES, Iowa (NEA) — The annual meetings of the Republican Governors Association have not been notably joyous events in recent years, principally because the RGA's membership has been severely depleted by election losses.

Although Republicans controlled two-thirds of the nation's governorships in the late 1960s, the party has held fewer than one-third of those posts throughout the past decade. This year's electorate produced only a modest increase in GOP strength, from 15 to 16 gubernatorial seats.

But there was an unmistakable aura of optimism when the RGA met here recently, because election results and surveys indicate that the country's electorate has been turning increasingly Republican in recent years.

"There is absolutely no question that the face of American politics, at least in its partisan dimension, has been ... altered dramatically," Republican pollster Richard Wirthlin noted during the RGA meeting.

"We ran extremely well — far beyond our expectations — among key groups of voters," Wirthlin added. "The move toward the Republican Party started in the West in 1970s and now it has expanded to the South."

Noting that the baby boom generation — Americans in their 20s and 30s — has been especially supportive of GOP candidates in recent elections, Republican pollster Robert Teeter suggested that "age is the key dimension" because of the overwhelming size of that generation.

"Undoubtedly there will be a proportion (of younger voters) who will not stay in the party," Wirthlin acknowledged. But the fact that so many cast their first votes for Republican candidates gives the GOP an edge, he insisted.

The Republicans' 59 percent share of the vote in this year's presidential election has been widely publicized, but Teeter noted that the GOP also received 52 percent of all ballots cast in 1984 gubernatorial races and almost 50 percent of all votes in contested elections for House seats.

Wirthlin and Teeter have a vested interest in promoting the party because both have done polling for scores of GOP candidates throughout the country, for national-level Republican committees and for President Reagan's campaign organization.

But their conclusions are supported by the results of surveys conducted by numerous non-partisan, independent researchers, including the prestigious Gallup Organization.

Kissinger 'Star Wars' Salesman?

WASHINGTON — Along with defense of the flag, one of the goals of the Heritage Foundation, the conservative Washington think tank, has been to keep Henry Kissinger out of public office.

Yet a mysterious document on Heritage Foundation stationery urges that the former secretary of state be recruited to sell the American public on President Reagan's "Star Wars" program.

James Hackett, editor of the foundation's newsletter on national security, told my associate Donald Goldberg that the document did not originate within the organization — stationery or no stationery. Kissinger's office said he had not been approached by anyone to champion such a program.

Yet there it is: a 10-page report titled, "A Proposed Plan for Project on BMD (Ballistic Missile Defense) and Arms Control," with the stated aim of "keeping the BMD program alive in 1984 and ... impossible to

Dentistry Advances

By Patricia McCormack
UPI Health Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first dental drill Dr. John L. Bomba held in his hand rotated 1,500 times a minute. The one he uses today makes 500,000 revolutions in the same time.

That increased speed is the biggest advance in dentistry, Bomba said, since he first hung out a shingle in Philadelphia in 1946.

Bomba, president of the American Dental Association and associate dean of the Temple University School of Dentistry, said the next most important advance was the development in recent years of materials that make it possible to fix up teeth without maiming them such as grinding down a tooth in preparation for a cap.

Such materials make it possible to put a new face on a tooth by bonding or even etching and then applying a covering that starts out as chemicals and then hardens right before the dentist's eyes to make like a perfect surface.

"These materials have put us in an era where a dentist for the first time can improve a tooth without surgery or destruction of a surface," he said in an interview at 60th annual Greater New York Dental Meeting.

"We have just scratched the surface in such developments. In my estimation."

The third thing that tickles Bomba's professional fancy is "our increased knowledge" of soft tissue and bone, "and how that has widened the scope of what dentists can do to restore dental health or rehabilitate oral cavities."

Where does Bomba rank fluoridation and its part in the big gain over cavities in children?

"A shining hour — that's what fluoridation is," Bomba said. "You know dentistry is the only profession that strives to put itself out of business."

The reference was to the fact since fluoridation has decreased tooth decay, dentists don't reap as much income from filling teeth. Fillings account for about 23 percent of dental services but Bomba said that is a steep decline from what it used to be.

A 1979-80 National Institute of Dental Research study showed that 37 percent of children 5 to 17 had no decayed or filled permanent teeth. Ten years earlier, only 28 percent of this age group was caries free.

Dentistry now is aiming harder at periodontal disease — the major reason for loss of teeth among adults, Bomba said, noting that the campaign will have all the intensity of the one in which fluoride was put into the front lines of strategies to prevent decay.

In periodontal disease, a subtle infection attacks tissue and bone where the tooth is anchored.

The tragedy, according to Bomba and his fellow practitioners, is that many lost teeth are perfect. Dental authorities estimate three out of four adults will have some form of periodontal disease in their lifetime.

Among other advances reported at the meeting:

—Ceramic material that can be cast from a wax pattern to make precise reproductions of teeth for crowns. Dr. Kenneth A. Malament of Brookline, Mass., said the material is a non-porous and highly glazed substance which is highly compatible to gingival tissues.

—A new procedure developed at the New York University College of Dentistry that allows dentists to mask tooth stains quickly and painlessly, often without cutting the tooth. The method bonds a hard, enamel-like porcelain to the surface of stained teeth.

Alarm A U.S. Ploy?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In recent weeks, alarm over the "unprecedented" arms buildup in Nicaragua has been a major feature of press briefings by the White House, Pentagon and State Department.

Administration spokesmen claim that the Sandinistas are fine-tuning a mighty war machine that's aimed at their peaceful neighbors, El Salvador and Honduras. It's implied that a Latin American "blitzkrieg" is only hours away.

For example, in a recent press briefing, Michael I. Burch, the Pentagon's chief spokesman, outlined "the overall arms buildup" in Nicaragua. "The quantity and quality of weapons (entering Nicaragua)," he said, "is exceeding what is necessary for defensive purposes," and "U.S. officials believe they (Nicaraguan officials) have designs on their neighbors."

"We do believe," Burch said, "that Nicaragua poses a threat to the sovereignty of El Salvador and Honduras."

If its assistance were requested, said Burch, the United States would provide "whatever is appropriate" — specifically, military aid — if El Salvador and Honduras faced an invasion by Nicaragua. When asked if this might include the deployment of U.S. troops, Burch refused to elaborate, but didn't rule it out.

"We just don't think Nicaragua wants to be a peaceful neighbor," said Burch.

The Sandinistas reportedly are confused by this increasingly shrill propaganda. In their view, the support they're getting from the Soviets has increased only marginally in the last six months — a fact that has been confirmed by neutral observers. Why, they ask, this sudden barrage from Washington?

The answer may be found in the complex negotiations now underway in Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras.

For the last three years, Honduras has been central to the U.S. military buildup in Central America. There are 1,300 U.S. fighting men in Honduras.

Last year, the United States gave Honduras $168 million in economic aid and $77 million in military assistance.

Pressured by the new military leadership, Honduran President Roberto Suazo Cordova is demanding that the United States more than double its financial aid to Honduras and sign a major new mutual security pact. In exchange, the United States could continue to use Honduras as a regional staging area for the U.S. military and as a training ground for soldiers from other friendly Latin American countries, especially El Salvador.

Hope At Elks Hoop Shoot

Tommy West, an 8-year-old Pine Crest Elementary School student, had high hopes at the Elks Hoop Shoot Saturday at Seminole High School. Above, Tommy uses the old underhand free throw technique and follows through as he keeps his eye on the basketball. At right, Tommy uses a little body english and then celebrates his basket with a pinkie in the air. Despite this basket, Tommy didn't win the 8- and 9-year-old division in which Sanford's Charles Appling took top honors. Ryan Reynolds was second and Travis Perkins was third.

No. 4 Seabreeze Offers Seminole 1st Test Tonight

By Sam Cook

Basketball

Basketballs are bouncing in the right places in Volusia County. Never before has Seminole County's neighboring rival boasted so many good basketball teams for both boys and girls.

For the ladies, DeLand and Bridgette Gordon are ranked first in the State 4A Girls Basketball Poll. They are 3-0 after getting past a tough Seabreeze club Saturday night.

Coach Ron Merthie's Lady Seminoles will get a chance to see how tough Seabreeze is tonight at 6:15 at Seminole High School's Bill Fleming Gymnasium. The Lady Seminoles, who are 5-0, moved up to sixth in the 4A poll after two more victories over Winter Park and Evans last week. Two of the girls' victims — Evans and Edgewater — are ranked sixth and 10th, respectively.

For the gentlemen, coach Chris Marlette's Seminoles will get a taste of that Volusia talent tonight at 8 when they take on Seabreeze. The Seminoles are 3-0 and unranked while Seabreeze is 2-1 and ranked fourth in the state 3A poll. The Sand Crabs lone loss was to Mainland in the Big Four Tournament at Daytona Beach last weekend.

Mainland is the best of the Volusia teams. The Bucs have a 5-0 record and a third-place ranking in the 4A poll. George McCloud, Mainland's do-everything forward, will have his arm loosed up for coach Greg Robinson's Lake Howell Silver Hawks, who take their 4-0 record to Daytona Beach tonight.

Lake Howell has its own shooter, Efram Brooks, who has been averaging 25 ppg the last few outings. Lake Howell has also gotten strong play from guard Scott Anderson, forward Hayward Beasley and center Crockett Boffannon.

Marlette, meanwhile, scouted Seabreeze's 44-41 victory over a tall and talented Spruce Creek team and came away very impressed. "They (Seabreeze) have a great team," said Marlette.

Marlette also pointed out that the Sand Crabs of Joe Piggotte, Jr. played without two starters, Pat Johnson and 6-4 John Parks, who were suspended for missing a practice. Marlette said both would probably play tonight as the Tribe faces its biggest test to date after victories over Titusville, Apopka and Titusville Astronaut.

Marlette said coping with Seabreeze's quickness and rebounding would be the key tonight. "If we can stop the Johnsons from scoring outside and from getting second and third shots, we'll be okay," said Marlette.

Seminole will start James Rouse and Rod Alexander at the guards, 6-3 Rod Henderson in the middle along with Ken Gordon and Alvin Jones at the forwards. Daryl Williams, Robert Hill, Michael Wright and Leroy Richardson will supply the bench strength.

Henderson, a sophomore, is leading the Tribe in scoring with 15 points per game. He is also averaging seven rebounds per game and three assists and two steals. Rouse, a senior, is averaging 12.6 points and three assists. Gordon, also a senior, is next with 12 ppg and nine boards per outing.

While the Seminoles have reeled off three straight wins, coach Willie Richardson and his Lake Mary Rams have been biding their time since Nov. 24 when they played in the Ocala Breeders Tournament and finished with a 1-2 mark.

Richardson said he sees the layoff as beneficial since the Rams played the tournament without four starters who have now worked their way into the lineup. Forwards Donald Grayson and Byron Washington along with 6-3 center Jeff Reynolds and 5-7 guard Ray Hartfield have joined 6-1 Darryl Merthie as the starters.

"It's hard to tell where we're at," said Richardson on the eye of tonight's home encounter with the Lyman Greyhounds. "I feel good about this team, though. We are definitely better than we were before the tournament and our experience should make us the best team I've had here."

13 Returnees Relegate Glass Twins To Bench

With 13 returning players who earned letters a year ago, Laura and Peggy Glass' Introduction to Division 1 college basketball will be spent mostly on the bench this season for the University of South Carolina's Lady Gamecocks.

But the 6-2 Glass Towers will be important keys to the future for the Lady Gamecocks. The Lake Mary High graduates are two of only four freshmen on the team.

Laura averaged 14 points and 11 rebounds per game a year ago for the Lady Rams and she was named to the Evening Herald's All-County First Team. Laura holds 21 of 31 Lake Mary school records. Peggy averaged 11 points and nine rebounds as a senior last season.

Laura is majoring in Journalism (excellent choice) at South Carolina while Peggy is undecided on her major.

South Carolina coach Nancy Wilson describes the Glass twins as "hard workers who have the potential to develop into outstanding players."

Wilson is in her first year with the Gamecocks and her first season in Division I. She compiled an impressive record of 193-64 in eight seasons at the College of Charleston. That's an average of 24 wins per season.

The only appearance South Carolina will be making in Florida in the 1984-85 season will come on Saturday, January 15 when the Lady Gamecocks take on Metro Conference foe Florida State at Tallahassee....

Anyone who follows women's college basketball may not have noticed a change in the game for the 1984-85 season. But there is one. The women are using a smaller basketball which coaches believe will increase shooting percentages and lessen turnovers and jump balls....

Five Star Conference teams are opening their conference slates this week and, from the coaches point of view, DeLand's girls are the team to beat. The Lady Bulldogs are the defending 4A state champions and are currently ranked first in the 4A State Poll. And they have the state's best player in 6-1 senior Bridgette Gordon.

Of the five county coaches, four ranked DeLand first in the conference while four ranked Seminole second. One ranked Seminole first and DeLand second. Seminole was followed in the preseason rankings by Seabreeze, Lake Mary, Lake Brantley, Mainland, Lyman, Lake Howell, Apopka and Spruce Creek....

Turner Outmuscles Mathis

Perkins' 41-Second Pin Squashes Seminole Comeback

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Roger Beathard, Marcus Kendrick and John Brady put their heads together before Troy Turner wrestled Lyman's Randall Mathis. The Seminole coaches consensus of opinion was that Turner shouldn't try to outmuscle Lyman's well built 157-pounder.

So much for strategy. Turner, one of the top 157-pounders in the state, threw the inexperienced Mathis everywhere but out of the gym Monday night before pinning him at 1:16.

Turner's attack, and another by Walt Lowry at 188, pulled Seminole with nine points of the Greyhounds but Lyman 220-pounder Pat Perkins quickly doused any Tribe comeback notions with a 41-second pin to cement a 45-24 Lyman victory before 200 fans at Lyman High School.

Lyman, which mauled Winter Park earlier this year, is 2-0. Seminole, which did the same to Spruce Creek, is 1-1. Both teams will work out the next three days in preparation for Lyman's Emerson Electric Christmas Tournament on Friday and Saturday.

"We gave up 24 points and still had a shot at them," said Beathard, alluding to four forfeits (100, 107, 134 and 167) which put Seminole in an immediate hole.

Prep Wrestling

Two of the forfeits, 107 (Chad Dubin) and 167 (Derek Smith), probably would have been pins since Dubin and Smith are top-notch performers. Beathard, though, was still talking about Troy Turner after the match. "When we saw how strong that kid (Mathis) looked, we thought it would be better if Troy didn't try to outmuscle him," said Beathard.

Turner, however, said he knew something else. "I knew he'd probably go up top, so I just went down to the bottom," said the sophomore grappler. "He was pretty strong but I got him."

After getting the first takedown for a 2-0 lead, Mathis evens the match with a reversal. Turner, though, came on strong with a takedown and a near fall before pinning him with 44 seconds to go in the first period.

Referee Dana Whittaker cautions Seminole's Walt Lowry, top, to stay away from the Adam's apple as Lyman's Benny Glenn struggles to get loose. Lowry and

Lady Patriots' Balance Offsets Spruce Creek's Bombshells

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Those weren't UFOs reported seen over Altamonte Springs Monday night, they were basketballs being launched into orbit by Spruce Creek's Lady Hawks. The Hawks were putting up shots from distant galaxies.

Although the long range shots went in for a while, Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots used their balance and boardwork to offset Spruce Creek's bombshells as the Patriots cruised to a 67-48 victory over the Hawks in Five Star Conference action at Lake Brantley High.

Lake Brantley, 4-1 overall and 1-0 in the conference, goes up against top-ranked (4A) and defending state champion DeLand Thursday night at DeLand. Spruce Creek fell to 0-3 overall and 0-1 in the Five Star.

Spruce Creek managed to stay within six points in the first half before Lake Brantley pulled away with 12 straight points to open the second half.

"That's what did it," Lake Brantley coach Renny Betris said of the early second half surge. "It really demoralized them (Spruce Creek)."

Behind the hot baseline shooting of Michelle Brown, the Lady Patriots jumped out to a 14-6 lead with 3:18 left in the first quarter. Spruce Creek came back to within two, 16-14, when Kim Hill hit a jumper from the top of the key. Brown popped in another jumper to give Brantley a 18-14 lead at the end of the quarter. The senior forward had 10 points for the Lady Patriots in the opening quarter.

Lake Brantley opened the second quarter with six straight points and Ashley Thomas' jumper with 4:50 left gave the Lady Patriots a 10-point lead, 24-14.

The Patriots later went up by 12, 30-18, on Kim Lubenow's jumper but Spruce Creek reeled off six points to pull within six, 30-24, at halftime.

Sherry "Ice" Asplen got the Patriots rolling in the early going of the second half as she grabbed a rebound and made the followup for a 32-24 lead. Kirsten Dellinger, the Patriots 6-1 center, scored four consecutive points as Brantley took a 36-24 lead with 6:00 left in the third quarter.

Consecutive layups by Lubenow, Cammie Twaddell and Asplen gave the Lady Patriots a commanding lead.

42-24, with 4:54 left in the quarter. Lake Brantley took a 21-point lead, 55-34, into the fourth quarter.

Betris cleared his bench for most of the fourth quarter and Asplen scored seven of her 15 points in the fourth period. Asplen made 7 of 11 shots from the floor Monday night and also handed out a game-high six assists.

Dellinger also added 15 points for the Patriots and grabbed a game-high 14 rebounds while Brown added 14 points, nine boards and five assists. Lubenow tossed in nine points and dished out four assists and Twaddell contributed eight points and eight rebounds.

Lake Brantley dominated the boards Monday, outrebounding the Hawks, 69-39. The Patriots also shot better from the floor with 44 percent (30 of 68) compared to 29 percent for the Creek (22 of 74).

Hill led Spruce Creek with a game-high 18 points but she hit just 8 of 29 shots from the floor. Anita Heath added 16 points on 8 of 19 shooting and Michelle Frost added 10 points.

"Spruce Creek has some good shooters and they're going to beat some teams," Betris said. "All they need is a couple strong rebounders."

"But we really didn't play that well," he added. "We started out well and really came on at the beginning of the second half. We can play better than we did tonight."

SPRUCE CREEK (48) — Burch 0, Frost 10, Heath 16, Hill 18, Mossey 2, Polk 0, Williams 2. Totals: 22 of 88.

LAKE BRANTLEY (67) — Asplen 15, Brown 14, Dellinger 15, Gordon 8, Hagan 0, Lubenow 9, May 4, Stagg 0, Thomas 2, Twaddell 8. Totals: 30 of 67.

Historic Church Rites Unite Lynette Marcel, M.W. Ross

Lynette Marcel and Michael Wayne Ross, both of Bradenton, were married Nov. 10 at 11 a.m. at the Historic Church in the Manatee Village Historical Park, Bradenton. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene William Marcel, and maternal granddaughter of Mrs. S. Brock Hill, Jr., all of Park Avenue, Sanford. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foard Ross of Siesta Key and formerly of Concord, N.C.

Mrs. Michael Wayne Ross

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows an Ivory tea-length gown. Her hair was adorned with a circlet of flowers and she carried a bouquet of rubrum lilies, sweetheart roses and heather.

Tara Marcel attended her sister as maid of honor gown in burgundy silk with a bouquet similar to that of the bride. The bridegroom's father served as best man.

After a champagne luncheon reception, held at the Buccaneer Inn on Longboat Key, the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon in the Hawaiian Islands. They are now making their home on Siesta Key.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Seminole High School. She received an associate arts degree from Brevard Community College in Cocoa in 1976 and is a freelance legal secretary.

The bridegroom graduated from Concord Senior High School in Concord in 1970 and from the University of South Carolina with a bachelor of science degree in government and international studies in 1974 and with a juris doctor in 1977. He is a partner in the Bradenton law firm of Goodheart and Ross and is a member of The Florida Bar, Academy of Florida Trial Lawyers, Association of Trial Lawyers of America and on the Board of Directors of the Manatee County Bar Association.

Lions Go For Band Uniforms

Bob Maguire, center, director of the Seminole High School band, receives a check from the Sanford Lions Club presented by Sully Fleming, president, while Marjorie Wilke, SHS Uniform chairman, looks on. The contribution for $211.00 will go toward the purchase of new uniforms for the "Marching Seminoles."

Hygienist Explains Woes Of Gum Disease

Dear Abby

bleeding stops because the gums have formed a type of scar tissue around the tooth. (If you've had bleeding for years, and then it stops, it doesn't necessarily mean the problem has gone away.)

DENTAL HYGIENIST

DEAR READERS: If you have dentures, skip this column. But if you still have your own teeth and want to keep them, you may be glad you read it.

DEAR ABBY: I am sitting here after work, emotionally drained and physically exhausted, but I must write this letter because so many people need to be educated. I am a dental hygienist who is currently seeing a flock of new patients because two elderly dentists in this community are no longer practicing. (One retired and the other one died.)

These patients had complete faith in their dentists only to come to us and find that it was in vain. They are victims of dentists who did not keep up with current dentistry.

Most of these patients saw their dentist regularly — twice a year for checkups and cleaning — some for 20 to 30 years! They loved their dentists and they can't believe it when they learn that they now have advanced periodontal (gum) disease! They can't understand why they were never told this before. I could tell them, but I don't want to be blackballed in this community should they decide to take legal action. So I will tell Dear Abby, and hope that you tell them:

These dentists were trained in an era of dentistry that did not understand periodontal disease, and they haven't learned anything since.

Dentures were something that were expected by most older people in the 1920s through the 1950s.

Today we know that gum disease is a bacterial infection caused by plaque — the same bacteria that cause decay. The plaque hardens into calculus (tartar) if it is not removed. The usual place of calculus formation is at the gum line, and it eventually extends beneath the gum, if not removed. It is beneath the gum that calculus does the most damage, for here it attacks the bone that supports the teeth. The bone slowly "dissolves" itself to get away from the irritating calculus. It takes years before the teeth will loosen — and eventually be lost.

More often than not, the patients I see have no calculus visible when looking in their mouths. Their former dentist removed what he could see, but left the calculus under the gums, allowing the disease to continue. He either was unaware that it was there because he failed to keep up with modern dental education, or he was unwilling to change and felt that curing periodontal disease is "modern hogwash." Consequently, the majority of his patients are suffering from advanced gum disease.

Only a competent dentist is able to tell you what stage you are in and what treatment is needed. Usually all that is needed in the beginning stages is a thorough cleaning and a good home-care program.

The symptoms to look for are: red and swollen gums; bleeding when one brushes (healthy gums never bleed); a bad taste or odor from the mouth. In the advanced stages, the

Rectal Bleeding Demands Examination By Physician

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 73-year-old female. I'm 5 feet 5 and weigh about 190. I have high blood pressure and a little heart condition.

My problem is hemorrhoids. I have had them for a long time, and when I strain, I bleed. I stay constipated, so I take a laxative every other night. If I didn't, I wouldn't be able to move my bowels at all.

DEAR READER — Anyone with rectal bleeding must have an examination. Your bleeding probably does come from internal hemorrhoids, but rectal bleeding also can occur because of cancer, and that is why it simply cannot be neglected. Let your doctor determine where the blood is coming from and what needs to be done.

Internal hemorrhoids bleed, while external hemorrhoids itch and cause symptoms. Internal hemorrhoids may not cause any symptoms at all, other than bleeding. I have discussed the difference between internal and external hemorrhoids in The Health Letter 13-12, Hemorrhoids: New Treatments for an Old Affliction.

The proctosigmoidoscopic examination you are concerned about is not that bad. If the patient relaxes and follows directions, it is not a difficult procedure.

Yes, your medicines may contribute to your difficult bowel movements. The HydroDiuril will cause a loss of moisture from the stools and may contribute to the problem. You might do well with a stool softener. That is not a laxative. Colase is such a softener. Be careful not to choose a product that also contains a chemical laxative. A stool softener, plus a tap-water enema, if needed, may help you to improve your bowel habits. Poor bowel habits or constipation definitely do make hemorrhoids worse. Good habits are part of the program to help control hemorrhoid symptoms.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a problem that is driving me up the wall. When I was in the service and was stationed in the Far East, I developed fungus in my toenails. This is very irritating, since it causes my toenails to grow out thick and misshapen. I was told the only way to remedy the situation is to have all of the toenails removed surgically.

DEAR READER — Of course there is. Medicines commonly used for this include griseofulvin, haloprogin, miconazole and clotrimazole. It usually requires using the medicine for many months.

Not all fungus infections of the nails are caused by the same fungus. Some fungi are more difficult to treat than others, and in those cases, removal of the toenail or fingernail may be advisable.

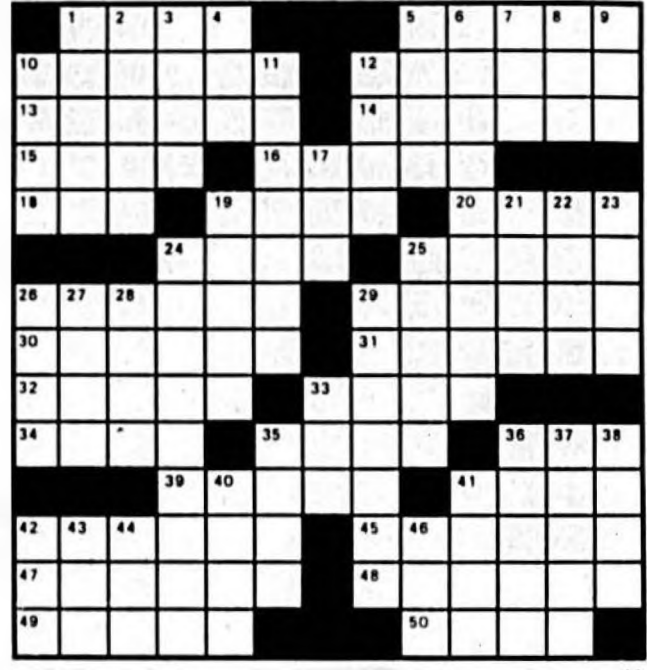

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

The gospel that bridge experts are spreading these days is that you should bid loose as a goose when you're not vulnerable and the opponents are. That maxim can be carried to absurd extremes as attested by this deal from the 1979 World Championship in Rio de Janeiro. West (shall we call him the goose?) made a weak jump overall of two hearts. The four-heart cue-bid by North announced first-round heart control and excellent diamond support. At his next opportunity, he bid five clubs, another cue-bid. When South bid only five diamonds, North contented himself with six.

spade. Declarer trumped, played a diamond to his king, trumped another spade, and cashed the diamond queen. West showing out. Next a club was played to the queen and the last spade was trumped in dummy. Now came the ace of clubs, the king of clubs (South throwing a heart), and the last club (South trumping in his hand). The diamond ace pulled East's tooth (his last trump), and then a low heart was played. When West put in the 10, he was allowed to hold the trick. West now had to play away from the king and South made his slam.

A little postscript to this tragic jump overall: At the other table West kept quiet and was rewarded when his friendly opponents reached six hearts.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

DECEMBER 12, 1984

In the year following your birthday, many new opportunities, adventures and unusual possibilities to further your aims will be presented to you. Be selective and discriminating, instead of scattering your forces.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you may be quick to perceive solutions to other people's problems, don't offer any unless asked. It could be interpreted as "butting in." Your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead can help guide you to happier tomorrows. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll have a better time shopping today with a good pal but take care not to be influenced by his or her inclination to spend. It could do you in.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to arrange things today so that you call your own shots. If you get involved with a demanding type, your whole day will be spent on this person's interests.

FISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Unless you get organized early today, you could end up frittering your hours away on projects of little importance. Allocate your time wisely.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't hesitate to break plans if you get a better offer, especially if the people you originally were to spend time with are not your favorites.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) As a Taurus, it could be upsetting for you if someone interferes with your routine but today, unless you are flexible, you might produce friction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If at all possible, avoid in-depth conversations today. You could accidentally rattle the wrong cage if you stray into forbidden areas.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Some great bargains could be in the offing for you today. Unfortunately, however, this could cause you to go on a spending spree and put you in debt.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Being self-sufficient is an admirable quality but take care not to carry it to extremes and fail to act in harmony when situations call for it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Just because you're in the mood to do things today as your whims dictate doesn't mean you can ignore your duties. Frustrations will ensue if you do.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) One of those impromptu gatherings with friends could take place today. Everything should turn out to be fun unless someone opens the door to an agitator.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're an especially kind and giving person but remember to let this generosity extend to your verbal treatment of others. Be forgiving.

Don's Glass & Mirror Continues Paint Sale

The staff at Don Myers' Glass & Mirror, 318 S. French Ave., Sanford, want to wish all of their customers a merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous new year.

In the spirit of the holiday season, Don has extended his fall sale on Richard's interior and exterior paint through December.

"These paints cover well and are washable," said Don. "Homeowners can put them on easily themselves."

The line of Richard's Paints includes varnish, stains, enamels and accessories.

While you are reflecting on your Christmas list think of what nice gifts those beautiful mirrors at Don's would make. They come in various style and size frames and you can have door mirrors cut to your own specifications.

Then there are those etched mirror plaques which come finished with a variety of designs or in do-it-yourself kits. You can have a name or other word engraved along with the design.

For other gift ideas— Don's also has round or octagon shaped table glass for macrame in gray, bronze, and clear glass, and sturdy wrought patio furniture made by an area craftsman.

Don has 35 years experience in glass work and is able to provide expert service and workmanship in residential and commercial glass and mirrors. His son, Steve, has had three years experience in the field.

They do all types of glass and mirror work, including both custom and standard shower doors and tub enclosures, auto glass, table tops, storefronts and customized wall mirrors.

Don will be glad to give you decorating ideas.

California Style Divorce Costly Option For Exec

By Frank Thorberg
UPI Business Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Top business executives, especially those receiving lucrative incentives like stock options and so-called golden parachutes that include big dismissal payments, could find themselves taking less money to the bank if they encounter marital difficulties in California.

Robert Nachshin, a family law specialist in Los Angeles, became interested in the legal possibilities after learning of a decision by an appeals court in San Francisco in a divorce case involving a computer company executive.

The California Court of Appeal ruled April 20 that Maria Hug was entitled to an interest in the stock options of her husband, Amdahl executive Paul Hug, even though he did not purchase the stock until the couple became separated.

In the court's opinion the options were earned by the husband during the marriage and were part of the couple's community property.

Stock options and deferred payment packages are incentives some companies, especially start-up firms in places like the high-tech Silicon Valley, use to lure top-level professionals to their ranks.

Entertainment companies also have been known to spice up contract offers with similar inducements.

"The stock options affect companies that have key employees in California, regardless of where the corporation offices are," Nachshin said.

"For example, it would affect the entire movie industry. Even though Gulf and Western is in New York, the president of Paramount is here. Even though Coke is in Georgia, the president of Columbia Pictures is here."

The lawyer used the Hug ruling to his advantage when he represented Leigh Taylor Young in her divorce from husband Guy McElwaine, president of Columbia Pictures. The McElwaine case was settled out of court in October.

"The reason we were able to settle was the Hug opinion," Nachshin said. "The husband feared that this wife may end up getting a windfall."

Nachshin said the only way to determine whether stock options or other types of financial incentives are community property is to find out the employer's intention in including them in the employment contract.

"The opinion means that corporations, as well as executives, must be very careful when negotiating contracts in terms of stock options that can include things like golden parachutes and phantom stock," he said.

"Any benefit, deferred compensation or not, that relates back to services performed by that employee after he was married and after separation could have community property or marital interest in that benefit," the lawyer said.

Nachshin said the San Francisco ruling could rival the importance of the celebrated Marvin vs. Marvin case which resulted in a landmark decision establishing the right of unmarried partners to sue for property rights.

"I'm confident that most lawyers don't know anything about it," he said. "It's not something they think about, but it's something they had better start thinking about."

Nachshin believes that companies putting big-money employment contracts together will have to take the ruling into account and adjust their tactics in making future deals.

"Employment compensation specialists will have to design all of their benefit packages with divorce in mind," he said.

"If someone is bargaining to get $10 million over the next five years and if the ex-wife gets a third of it, that's not really what the executive bargained for. If that happens, you not only get an unhappy employee, but an unhappy employer."

Nachshin is involved in a few other cases in which he represents husbands trying to protect stock options and other deferred payments from departing wives.

"The way you attack it from the other side, representing the husband, is you try to convince the other side that the stock options are valueless until such time as the options are exercised. No. 2, you speak with the key executives and client beforehand to determine what the intention of the employment contract was at the time the contract was negotiated.

"If you argue that the purpose of the stock options is to stimulate increased efforts in the future, you would be successful in saying that the stock option or other benefits belong all to the husband.

"Other arguments that an employee could argue is if they leave the company, they lose the option. If he doesn't develop and perform in the future, he could be fired. He could also say he doesn't have the money to exercise the options without getting a loan."

Eastern Contracts To Fly U.S. Mail

MIAMI (UPI) — Eastern Airlines was awarded a two-year contract to carry U.S. mail. The airline said the contract is worth at least $80 million a year and Eastern expects the new contracts from the U.S. Postal Service to increase its mail revenues by more than 30 percent in 1985.

Ancient Cargo Ship Is Bound For Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — A restored Italian cargo sailing ship that set sail from the Canary Islands Monday is headed for the Miami International Boat show, scheduled for February.

The wooden ship is 104 years old and is retracing Christopher Columbus' route to the New World. After visiting Miami the ship will sail to Jacksonville and up the East Coast to New York.

Owner Russ Frazier, repairs watch at his workbench.

Fine Watches And Jewelry Gifts, See Russ Frazier

Looking for a watch or piece of jewelry to give that special person for Christmas? Russ' Watch & Jewelry Repair and Pawn Shop, 2109 S. French Ave., Sanford, has fine watches, 14k gold chains, jewelry, glass and crystal and china.

They do both hand and machine engraving and ring and watch band sizing. There is 30-day layaway plan.

You can trust your watch or clock to Russ Frazier, owner, who has had more than 20 years experience in the jewelry and watch repair business.

He has the special equipment needed for repairing Rolex and Accutron watches.

Formerly at Lochmann's Plaza, Altamonte Springs, he moved his business to Sanford seven months ago. Before that he did contract work for many of Orlando's leading jewelry stores. Russ and his wife, Sylvia, have lived in Sanford for 15 years.

Frazier buys, sells, and trades most anything of value including guns, jewelry, antique clocks, and watches. He buys gold, silver and diamonds.

He does jewelry appraisals for insurance purposes and estates. References are available.

He sells both new and pre-owned jewelry including rings, gold chains and earrings. He restores antique jewelry and does stone setting and special design and custom work. Russ also repairs metal frames for glasses.

If you are looking for a different gift for a man, the shop has wooden jewelry chests and large chests hand painted with various game birds or animals.

The store is open Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Call 323-1327.

Dien Chu, right, and his wife, Mei Chin Liu, are new owners of H&M Restaurant, Sanford.

H&M Restaurant Offers Breakfast, Lunch Specials

Dien Chu and Mei Chin Liu, new owners of H&M Restaurant, 2019 French Ave., Sanford, serve up an American menu with an oriental accent.

Both have had experience working in Chinese restaurants in Orlando before coming to Sanford a month ago to open their own restaurant. Dien is Vietnamese and his wife Mei is from Taiwan, but they did not meet and marry until they came to Orlando.

They invite you to come in and get acquainted and enjoy the good food at reasonable prices. They have a breakfast special at the unbelievably low price of 89 cents. You can order three pancakes and two eggs or two eggs with grits or hashbrowns. There are many other breakfast choices on the menu.

For lunch try the Chinese Combo Platter including egg drop soup, fried rice, egg roll and chicken wings for only $2.29. Or, if you prefer there are the good old American favorites such as steaks, roast beef, hamburgers, sandwiches, soups, and salads.

They are now open from 5:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 8 a.m. to noon on Sunday, but in one or two weeks Dien plans to serve a Chinese buffet from 5-9 p.m. as well.

Tricia will video-tape anything worth remembering

Let Tricia Video-Tape Your Valuables & Memories

Whether the value is real or sentimental, Tricia's Video-taping can help protect the things that are precious to you the modern way. Tricia Griffith learned the hard way of the need to have proof of the value of possessions for insurance purposes when the family home was destroyed by fire.

She didn't have a video record of the contents and now she is helping others avoid the 3 1/2-month hassle constructing a list from memory and trying to get needed proof after that crisis. "I don't think people realize the need for a detailed record until something happens," she said. Tricia video-tapes the entire house room by room zooming in on appliances for serial numbers and jewelry, silver, art works and collectibles for signatures and markings and will give you a list of the important items. She charges $75 for the first hour and $20 for each additional hour to do this important service.

The video tape (your choice of either Beta or VHS) can then be stored in a safe place such as a bank safety deposit bank where it will be available in case of theft or fire.

Tricia will video-tape important events such as weddings, anniversaries, receptions, reunions, parties, bar mitzvahs, and even births to provide you with a visual and audible record in living color. Additional copies can be purchased at a cheaper rate.

She also makes tapes for other purposes such as auditions for bands and models, sports events, legal documents and spoken wills. Two of her most unusual jobs were for a magician, who was auditioning for a job on a cruise ship, and taping races at the New Smyrna Raceway for drivers.

Tricia will also make real estate tapes for realty firms to show to prospective buyers.

Outside of the DeLand, Sanford, Lake Mary area, there is a 20 cents a mile trip charge.

Licensed in Volusia County, Tricia is a member of the Deltona Chamber of Commerce. She was born and raised in Central Florida and she and her husband Cletus have four children.

Formerly employed at West Volusia Hospital, after her youngest child was born in February, she decided to go into business on her own and decided on video-taping. "I'm an outgoing person and like to meet people and talk, so it's a lot of fun for me," said Tricia.

Call Tricia at (305) 574-7441 for further information or an appointment.

M&Ms, Mirrors Used To Examine Generosity In Kids

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — A psychologist using M&Ms and mirrors to test the generosity of second-graders says innate selflessness apparently hasn't developed in children of that age group.

William Froming of the University of Florida, whose study will be published next year in Child Development magazine, said he is trying to find out when and how children develop altruism, the "conscious decision to sacrifice something of your own to aid somebody else."

Froming examined altruism in a Gainesville second-grade classroom by giving some of the children envelopes of M&Ms, supposedly as a reward for taking part in an interview. The interviewers told the children they could donate candy to classmates who got none and then treated the subjects in one of three ways, according to Froming's view that altruism develops in three stages.

Children in one group were left alone with a cup designated for candy donations, others were left alone in front of a mirror, and the interviewers stared expectantly at those in the third group.

The group of children who got stared at showed the greatest generosity, fitting Froming's theory that the second stage of altruism occurs as children learn generosity to satisfy the expectations of parents or other people.

"Kids at some point become capable of understanding other people's perspectives on what they should or shouldn't do," he said. "Once they have that awareness, they will act so as to be consistent with other people's norms when they are in the presence of those people."

Froming said in adults who reach the third phase of altruism, an inner compulsion to do good, the mirror would have resulted in altruistic behavior in a majority of subjects.

"The mirror focuses your attention on yourself, and you compare what you would like to do with what you are currently doing," Froming said. "I could do the same thing by simply tapping you on the shoulder and saying, 'Hey, think about what you're doing.'"

But the mirror didn't have any effect on the second graders, which suggests generosity at that age is induced by others, he said.

Children in the first phase of altruism, under 5- or 6-years-old, are completely selfish, Froming said.

"A child of that age believes there is only one way to do things, and it is his way," he said.

Although some parents may think their younger children perform acts from altruism, like sharing toys or helping playmates who hurt themselves, such acts frequently reflect how the child is feeling about himself more than concern for others, Froming said.

In current studies, Froming is looking at children between third and fifth grades, the age when he thinks the final phase of altruism develops.

The final two phases carry over into adult behavior, Froming said. Adults look for both external and internal rewards for their altruism.

"The more public the donation is, the more likely people are to do it, so they can feel good about themselves and also get rewards," he said.

Study Links Cancer To DES, Sexual Habits

NEWARK N.J. (UPI) — Doctors say DES, a drug used by millions of women in the 1940s and 1950s to prevent miscarriages but now linked to health problems, may also cause tissue abnormalities that can lead to cancer.

Already linked to a rare vaginal cancer and difficulties in pregnancy in daughters of women who took the drug, diethylstilbestrol (DES) can also lead to abnormal tissue in the cervix of those daughters, results from a seven-year study show.

The abnormalities can develop into cancer, but the multimillion dollar study also said DES exposure was not the sole villain.

Dr. Stanley Robboy, head of a 10-year study commissioned by the government's National Cancer Institute, said a woman's sexual habits can affect the development of malignancies.

Robboy, chairman of pathology at the New Jersey Medical School, said women who were exposed to diethylstilbestrol in their mother's womb are twice as likely as those not exposed to it to develop the tissue abnormalities, called dysplasia.

Virgins who had been exposed to DES before birth did not develop abnormal cervical tissue.

Also, he added, whether the women were exposed to DES or not, the more sexual partners they had, the greater the likelihood that these abnormalities developed. He suggested that some partners might carry a potential cancer-causing factor that can lead to dysplasia.

Robboy and colleagues at five medical clinics annually checked more than 4,000 women — about 3,000 of whom had been exposed to DES before birth — for irregularities and abnormal growth in the cervix or uterine lining.

Robboy's results were reported in the Dec. 7 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Robboy emphasized that with thorough annual examinations that include a Pap smear, dysplasia can be detected early and, if necessary, treated to prevent the development of cancer.

The use of a condom or diaphragm would prevent the transmission of any agent that might lead to dysplasia, he said.

In the study, about 700 of the women whose mothers had taken DES to prevent miscarriage were compared to women who had similar characteristics but had not been exposed to DES.

Robboy's study showed that each year about 16 of every 1,000 women exposed to DES develop dysplasia, compared to only 8 of 1,000 women not exposed to DES. The study also found that exposed women tended to contract more genital herpes.

In light of Robboy's findings and a report last month linking breast cancer to women who took DES, a Washington-based consumer group founded by Ralph Nader has urged the Department of Health and Human Services to convene a task force to update advice given to doctors and to DES mothers and their daughters.

Pine Hills Man Files Shocking Lawsuit

A Pine Hills man is suing an Orlando contracting company for electrical work he claims caused him to receive a severe shock.

Tjinder Dhillon filed suit Friday against Giles Contracting Co., 5501 Old Winter Garden Road. The case has been assigned to Seminole Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. No trial date has been set. Dhillon is suing for an unspecified amount of damages in excess of $5,000.

In his suit, Dhillon states Giles Contracting negligently performed electrical work on the Dade Building, 151 Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs. He said the company was aware that a dangerous situation existed but did not remedy the situation.

As a result of the electrical work, Dhillon states he received an electrical shock of 20,000 volts. The suit does not say exactly how or when Dhillon received the shock.

As the result of the incident, Dhillon states he suffered bodily injury, and resulting pain and suffering from disability, disfigurement, mental anguish, loss of the capacity for the enjoyment of life, expenses, hospitalization, medical and nursing care, loss of the ability to earn money and aggravation of a pre-existing condition.

Fla. Abortion Workers Complain Of Harassment

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Workers at several Florida abortion clinics say they are subjected to a nearly constant flow of harassment punctuated by increasingly common violent incidents.

Since 1982, four Florida clinics have been destroyed by explosives or fire, the latest in Pensacola this June. Three state clinics have been hit by gunfire this year.

"It's crazy. It's really crazy," said Nelle Stephan, administrator of a Gainesville clinic. "The violence has been escalating so rapidly, we are afraid somebody is going to get killed."

Stephan said she has installed number-coded locks on the clinic's doors and adopted other security measures to protect her staff.

Along with explosions and gunfire, clinics have been the targets of vandalism, picketing and other protests that have workers and patients on edge, said Sally Johnson, of the Gainesville women's health center. Abortion workers report receiving threatening mail and phone calls regularly.

"I think the worst part of it is that they're trying to reach the women to make them feel guilty," Johnson said. "I think they're doing psychological violence."

Advocates of abortion disagree whether the violent and non-violent protests have deterred women from having fetuses aborted.

"In most cases their minds are already made up," Stephan said. "It's such a controversial issue, most people already fall on one side of the line or the other."

But another operator, who asked not to be named, said demonstrators had a definite effect on her clinic.

"They tried to put us out of business. They came close to doing so," she said.

Number Of Teens Having Sex Leveling Off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The rapid increase in unmarried teenage sex is leveling off, according to a new survey that also offers a detailed picture of American birth control practices.

The survey by the National Center for Health Statistics said sterilization, male and female, is the leading method of contraception in the United States, and birth control pill use is declining.

The survey, released by the private Population Reference Bureau, said that among unmarried 15- to 19-year-old females, 40 percent of whites and 58 percent of blacks had had sex.

That was more than the 23 percent of whites and 52 percent of blacks in 1971, when teenage sexual activity was growing rapidly, but it was slightly less than the 42 percent of whites and 65 percent of blacks found in a 1979 survey by other researchers.

"This represents a leveling off of premarital sexual activity among white teenagers and a modest reversal of the trend among blacks," the new survey's researchers concluded.

The survey also found that four out of five women married for the first time between 1975 and 1982 had intercourse before marriage. Assessing contraceptive practices, the survey found 55 percent of the nation's 54 million women aged 15-44 used some form of birth control in 1982, but only 45 used it the first time they had sex.

"Contraceptive practice has changed dramatically in the United States since 1965, with the rise and subsequent decline of the pill and the rise of male and especially female sterilization," the survey said.

In 1965, the most popular types of contraception were the pill, condom, rhythm and diaphragm. By 1982, the leading methods were female sterilization, the pill, male sterilization and the condom.

Surgical sterilization is now the leading contraceptive method, employed by 33 percent of couples using birth control in 1982. Twenty-two percent used female sterilization and 11 percent used male sterilization. Older couples are more likely to be sterilized.

Twenty-nine percent of couples employing contraception use the pill, which is still the most popular method of birth control among women under 30 and women who have never married.

As other studies have reported, the percentage of women who are unable to conceive is increasing. In 1982, 11 percent of married women age 20-24 were infertile, compared with 4 percent in 1965.

The survey is the seventh in a series called the National Survey of Family Growth. It included 7,969 women interviewed between August 1982 and February 1983.

Other findings:

—Women are having fewer children — 1.9 per woman in 1982, compared with 2.2 in 1973. More than 40 percent of the drop came from the continuing decline in unwanted births, now at a record low. But births sooner than planned increased among younger married women, probably due to switching from the pill to the less effective diaphragm and condom.

—The popularity of breastfeeding is increasing, with the proportion of breastfed babies doubling between 1970-71 and 1980-81, from 24 percent to 53 percent. Better-educated women and whites are more likely to breastfeed.

Fourteen Accused Of Drunk Driving In Seminole

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Jackie Ellis Gross Jr., of 3291 S. Sanford Ave., Sanford, was arrested at 2:45 a.m. Monday after his car was seen weaving on Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary.

—Frank Lindell Brooks, 22, of 1201 W. 11th St., Sanford, at 1:32 a.m. Monday after he drove into the parking lot of the Club Two Spot, state Road 46, Sanford, and slammed on the brakes of his vehicle.
