TODAY

Something in common

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's new national security team has much in common with his old one: Three of the four appointees served in his first term. For their familiarity, or otherwise, the choices were greeted warmly on Capitol Hill.

"With this group, he's clearly hit the mark" in aiming for a group that can speak with one voice on national security and foreign policy, Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., the Senate minority leader, said after Clinton's announcement Thursday.

By naming U.N. ambassador Madeleine Albright as secretary of state and GOP Sen. William Cohen as defense secretary, Clinton is breaking new ground with the first woman to hold the nation's top diplomatic post and with a Republican at the Pentagon in a Democratic administration.

Clinton also announced that his national security adviser, Anthony Lake, was his choice as CIA director and that Sandy Berger, Lake's deputy, would move up to his boss's former spot. John Deutch, the current CIA director, apparently will leave the administration.

Gross obesity

WASHINGTON — Researchers seeking answers to gross obesity say extreme weight gain may be controlled, in part, by the action of a brain chemical that helps drive a voracious appetite.

The lab researchers with mice sheds new light on leptin, a fat-control protein already being tested in humans.

In a study published today in the journal Science, Jay C. Erickson, a Howard Hughes Institute researcher at the University of Washington, said that eliminating a brain chemical called neuropeptide Y, or NPY, causes extremely obese mice to slim down to merely chubby.

Erickson said that mice with a flawed gene called OB fail to produce leptin, an appetite-control protein. Without leptin, mice go on an unending food binge, eating without restraint. They become severely fat, sterile, diabetic and lethargic.

Lead poisoning

WASHINGTON — When Jon and Margaret Sauser bought an old house in Kalamazoo, Mich., they worked day and night to renovate, knocking down walls, scraping paint and plaster.

Often their 3-year old son, Jonathan, watched. Never did they imagine he was being poisoned.

No one told the young Michigan couple when they bought the 67-year old house in 1980 that there was lead in the paint they were scraping and sanding, in the plaster they were ripping apart, and in the dust that engulfed the house for months even after the work was done, and after their second child, Cameron, was born.

Not until two years later did they become aware of the toxic substance they unleashed — after both youngsters were found to have abnormally high levels lead in their blood. Mrs. Sauser is convinced that Cameron's slow growth and Jonathan's attention disorder is linked to it all.

"If only we had known, we could have done the work lead-safe. But we didn't know," she said in a telephone interview.

Under a new regulation from the Environmental Protection Agency, for the first time beginning today all prospective renters and home buyers across the country must be told if the residences they are purchasing or leasing contains lead-based paint.

Wow! What a weekend!

Christmas in our town: On both land and sea

By RUSSELL WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - It's a jolly, busy weekend in our town both on land and sea.

Mayor Bettye Smith lights the Christmas Tree at Magnolia Square tonight, Sanford's Christmas parade begins at 10 a.m. Saturday, and the festivities of the Seafest Regatta that began today continue Saturday and Sunday with races on Lake Monroe.

As many as 8,000 are expected to share in the weekend of fun, which includes festive carolers and an illuminated walking tour tonight and the 8th annual Holiday Tour of Homes, from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The tour is enhanced by carriage rides, antique cars and Christmas light judging in the historic district.

"The most satisfying thing to all that's happening is the way the community has come together to make it sing," said Jennifer Singelsen, Program Manager of Sanford Main Street.

Singelsen is particularly thrilled at the lineup for Saturday morning's parade that originates at Ft. Mellon Park and works its way down First St.

There will be jugglers and clowns, gymnasts and bikers, Arabian horses, the Seminole and Lyman High School marching bands, Disney characters and the Celery City Cruisers. Look for Santa and Mayoral candidate Larry Dale, too. Grand Marshall for the parade is Dr.

E. Ann McGee, President of Seminole Community College.

And when the parade has passed by, what better way to cap the day than take the tour of historic homes.

Julia P. Goeb, president of Sanford Historic Trust, gives this advice to residents and visitors: "Enjoy a stroll under the majestic oaks, have lunch at one of our quaint restaurants, reflect on the peaceful holiday atmosphere and come back again."

An important aspect of the Holiday Tour of Homes is to have people discover the charm and rich heritage of Sanford, and to be aware there are still many properties that are part of the past and can bring

Somber anniversary: Pearl Harbor bombing

SANFORD - Fifty-five years after "a date that will live in infamy," survivors of the Japanese aircraft attack on Pearl Harbor recall the horror of the day.

Jennings L. Hurt, from Sanford, an Army Air-Corps PVC at Hickam Field in Hawaii, was doing K-P (kitchen patrol) duty when the assault began shortly before 8 a.m.

"I had been up since 2 a.m. setting up tables," said Hurt who at 80 lives in a neat home in Winter Park. "The Japanese were deadly accurate...they blew our mess hall to bits. Being a Sunday there were not as many inside as there usually would have been."

"It was sickening...horrible. I remember seeing one of the planes with the red circle on it. We did what we could do and what we were told to do. I went to the message center at the admin building where I was an office orderly for General Hale."

Hurt had entered the service in March of 1941, and by the time World War II ended, five others in his family - three brothers and two sisters - would serve also. One brother, Brian J. Hurt was

Lake Mary back to business as usual

LAKE MARY - Moments before newly elected city commissioner Thom Greene was sworn in at Thursday evening's city hall meeting, he said the first item on his agenda was "to get issues resolved right away that were held up by the election...particularly the speed bumps."

Last month Lake Mary residents complained about speeding problems on Main Road, an issue that was originally brought to city commissioners almost two and a half years ago. Commissioners planned to address the speed bumps at a preplanned Dec. 19 date, which has been rescheduled to Jan. 2 of next year.

An "excited and very happy" Greene placed his left hand on his Masonic Bible and was sworn in at approximately 7:05 p.m. by Judge Alan Dickey. His wife and two children were by his side.

Greene's wife, Linda, said her husband deserved his new position "after all the time and devotion he put into his campaign. "He's lived and breathed this."

Mayor David Meador said he was impressed with Greene's performance. "With only two days to prepare for the meeting, I was impressed with the depth Thom was able to SANFORD - Lightning has struck twice. Supt. Dr. Paul Nagerty of the Seminole County school district was named the Florida 1997 Superintendent of the Year by the American Association of School Administrators (AASA) at their annual meeting in Tampa on Thursday.

In 1990, Nagerty was named Superintendent of the Year in Missouri where he was was superintendent of schools in Springfield, Missouri from 1981 until 1992.

The AASA will honor the 50 top superintendents in the country at their National Conference on Education in Orlando in February. They will announce their number one choice at that time as well.

Nagerty said he is pleased to be named as Florida's number one superintendent and isn't really holding his breath to win the national award as well.

"I don't hold much hope for the national honor," he said. "I'm just so excited about getting the Florida award."

There have been "one or two" superintendents who have won the state honor in more than one state in the decade the award has been presented by the AASA.

Bell ringer saves kettle

JACKSONVILLE — A Salvation Army bell ringer lost $900 of her own cash and $145 in food stamps in a robbery, but she saved the donation kettle by kicking the attacker in the groin. Penny Rackley, 34, was ringing a bell outside a Publix supermarket Tuesday afternoon when a man tried to take the kettle. He let the kettle go when Ms. Rackley kicked him. As they fought, a woman ran behind Ms. Rackley and took everything else she had with her, including the bell. No arrests have been made. "I'm mad. I'm angry, and they don't have any heart. There's kids and homeless people who really need that money," she said. She lost her jacket and a wallet holding cash, food stamps, an uncashed check and credit cards. "That someone would steal ... from the Salvation Army, I can't fathom that," said Allan Phillips, who runs the city's bell ringer program. Rackley is a paid bell ringer, though many ringers are volunteers. The agency will give her food and clothing to help her recover from the robbery, Phillips said.

Teens detained in derailment

JACKSONVILLE — An angry judge has temporarily locked up two teen-agers accused of causing an $800,000 train derailment. Circuit Judge A.C. Soud Jr. said he was outraged that state juvenile justice staffers rated a Nov. 30 sabotage as an inconsequential act that the 15- and 16-year-old suspects did not need to be held in a detention center. The teen-agers were under house arrest until the hearing Wednesday when Soud ordered them detained until their arraignment Dec. 12. Soud said the sabotage showed "total disregard for human life" as he rejected the assessment that the teens were "low risk." Two 400,000-pound CSX Transportation engines pulling a 90-car coal train and seven cars derailed when someone tampered with a locked switching box and diverted a southbound train onto a side track leading to a vacant dairy. A CSX engineer and conductor received minor injuries when a locomotive toppled on its side. An Amtrak passenger train was scheduled to pass through the area 20 minutes later. Maurice Kirk, 16, and William Redding, 15, were arrested after a witness saw the boys running from the tracks. Officers testified they taped an incriminating conversation the boys had after they were placed in a police car.

Owner takes loan to pay Lottery

GAINESVILLE — A convenience store owner took out a loan to pay the state Lottery Department $118,500 for tickets stolen by an employee. "It crippled my business for someone to do that," said store owner Archie Barron. "It's going to be a rough Christmas." Jacqueline Willene Smart, 43, pleaded guilty Wednesday to grand theft and fraud. Circuit Judge Elsie Sanders sentenced her to two years in prison and 20 years probation, during which she must pay back Barron. "She's not paying interest on it — I am," said Barron, whose contract with the state requires him to pay for any tickets stolen from Cotton's Min-A-Mart, which he operates independently. Smart was arrested in May and admitted stealing $1.3 million from the lottery. The $1.3 million in tickets she stole during the week of Oct. 20, 1995, generated about $20,000 in winnings, prosecutors said. "A rather telling account of lottery percentages of chance," said Will Irby, executive director of the state attorney's office. Barron said his store probably will survive the financial crisis if no other calamity strikes. "We're hurt puppies, but we're still afloat."

Opal-damaged road reopens

PENSACOLA BEACH — A road connecting two barrier island communities has reopened, 14 months and $18 million after Hurricane Opal washed it away. Its completion Thursday also reopened a seven-mile section of the Gulf Islands National Seashore in the middle of Santa Rosa Island, which stretches for about 50 miles between Pensacola and Destin in the Florida Panhandle. The stretch of State Road 399 linking Pensacola Beach and Navarre Beach was the final section of pavement destroyed by Opal's 15-foot storm surge to be reopened. It carried an average of 1,780 vehicles a day in 1994. Neither community was isolated during the long rebuilding period because each has a bridge connecting it to the mainland.

Vampire teens return to Florida

By The Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, La. — Four teen-agers described as either frightened kids or murderous members of a vampire cult will return to Florida where they are accused of killing the parents of one of the youths. Extradition proceedings were completed for the teens on Thursday. A fifth defendant, 19-year-old Dana Cooper, was returned earlier in the week on charges surrounding the Nov. 25 bludgeoning deaths of Richard and Ruth Wendorf of Eustis, Fla. All defendants were picked up in Baton Rouge on Thanksgiving when police received a tip from the mother of one of the youths. Normally, the extradition proceedings are routine. That was the case Monday in state district court when Cooper waived her right to a hearing, agreeing to return. The others, however, were put in the custody of the juvenile court. They included Roderick Ferrell, Charity Keesee and Scott Anderson, all 16 and from Kentucky, and Heather Wendorf, the 15-year-old daughter of the victims. Judge Pamela Johnson was not satisfied with the paperwork supplied by Lake County, Fla., sheriff's deputies, the same documents that had satisfied the district judge in Cooper's case. In Louisiana, most juvenile matters are closed to the public. For three days, Johnson met with the juveniles, their attorneys and police. Ferrell agreed to be returned on Wednesday. Keesee agreed on Thursday. The other two fought extradition but the judge released them to the custody of Florida officials. They were to be returned to Lake County today, said Sgt. Wayne Longo of the county's sheriff's department. "It's been a frustrating process," Longo told reporters. "We were not familiar with Louisiana's laws on extradition." Sgt. Ben Odom of the Baton Rouge Police Department said the process also was new to him. Generally, when another state asks that juveniles be detained, they are kept in custody and then released to the other state. In this case, however, the district attorney's office in Baton Rouge sent the defendants to juvenile court and Johnson's jurisdiction. "Charity is an innocent, naive and frightened 16-year-old," said her attorney, Leon Harrell. He said he saw no documentation of any vampire cult during the closed proceedings. "I don't think that cult stuff has any merit." Martha Anderson, the mother of Scott, told reporters earlier in the week she saw no evidence that her son was involved in any vampire cult. Florida police have a different story. At a hearing in Lake County earlier this week, a friend of Miss Wendorf testified that hours before the murder she saw Ferrell cut his arm and watched as Cooper sucked his blood. Ferrell had various cuts on his body, said the witness. Police say the youths drank their own blood and that of mutilated animals. Investigators believe the teens became attracted to vampires because of a best-selling role-playing game.

Expert predicts an above average hurricane season

DENVER — The 1997 hurricane season for the Atlantic Ocean, Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico will be slightly above average, with three major hurricanes, a storm forecaster predicted today. If the prediction holds, the season will be the most active in a three-year span of above-average hurricane formations, which could signal a return to a sustained cycle of hurricane activity, said Colorado State University atmospheric scientist William Gray. "It appears we have left the period of lessened hurricane activity and it is possible we could be seeing a basic change in the long-term global circulation patterns," said Gray. "This change could result in increased hurricane activity, perhaps somewhat similar to the very active period of the mid-1940s to late 1960s." Gray and his research team are predicting 11 named storms, of which seven will intensify into hurricanes and three will become major, or Category 3, hurricanes, with sustained winds of at least 111 mph. Although Gray's method of studying global weather patterns to predict hurricanes is unusual, it is widely considered reliable and scientifically sound by other storm experts. In an average season, there are 9.3 tropical storms, 5.8 hurricanes and 2.1 intense hurricanes, Gray said. Gray will update his forecast in April, June and August. The season runs from June 1 to Nov. 30. His forecast does not predict landfall and applies only to the waters where Atlantic storms circulate. A total of 32 storms formed in 1995 and 1996. The season that ended last week was not as active as the previous year, but "it was pretty darn active," he said. "1995 and 1996 were two of the most active consecutive hurricane seasons that have ever been, at least in records going back to 1870," said Gray, who works in a landlocked Fort Collins lab at the foot of the Rockies. Gray said 1997 will be the third consecutive year of increased activity, a phenomenon he attributes to several factors, including lower sea-surface temperatures off the coast of Peru, or El Nino activity, and stratospheric winds blowing in a westward direction over the equator. The most inactive four-year period in hurricane history was 1991 to 1994. Gray said sea-surface temperatures patterns in the Atlantic are undergoing "a major rearrangement" due to changes in underwater circulation.

Body confirmed as that of long-missing Fl. man

PANAMA CITY — Remains recovered from a shallow grave were identified as those of a man missing since August. Robert Fraser, 32, a self-employed construction worker, who was last seen leaving a restaurant in nearby Panama City Beach, was identified in an autopsy Thursday. The cause of death has not been determined and there were no obvious signs of wounds or gunshots on the body, said Bay County Sheriff Guy Tunnell. Investigators recovered a wallet with Fraser's identification from the back pocket of shorts found on the body, Tunnell said. He said the contents indicated that robbery probably wasn't a motive in the death.

attack the issues." The mayor said Greene's insight allowed the commission to review several areas that, had his input not been available, they may have decided differently.

Greene led the commission on the move to postpone a decision on the proposed Communications Tower Ordinance. He also moved to approve the request for site plan approval with variance to reduce parking spaces for Homewood Suites Hotel—with the condition that the hotel's conference rooms be used by hotel guests only.

In other action, the commission heard testimony on the restriction of left turn movements on Fourth Street near Lake Mary Elementary School at the urging of Lake Mary Executive Director of Facilities Director Dianne L. Kramer, members of the Lake Mary School Safety Advisory Committee, and concerned parents.

Tom Mahoney, who said he drives his children to the school every morning urged commissioners to eliminate left-turn movements on Fourth Street at Lake Mary Boulevard so people traveling south on Fourth Street will not go across the median and directly into the school. He said parents dropping their children off take this route to avoid traffic, but it makes leaving the school difficult. "If you eliminate this troublesome movement, it will make the intersection safer," he said.

Police Chief Richard Beary said he was familiar with the traffic problem and supported the idea. "This will spread out the congestion so traffic won't be going in four different directions." He called on the school to educate the parents on the new restriction. "Those (parents) who don't want to get educated will get tickets."

Commissioner Sheila Sawyer suggested parents consider carpooling to cut down on the amount of cars until the commission could take care of the issue.

The proposed restriction would be in effect 24 hours a day.

Commissioner George Duryea was elected deputy mayor in a 3-2 vote.

Mother Nature protectors

By SCOTT GUNN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Most Americans are concerned about the environment and would pay more to conserve it, but women stand out as the biggest advocates of protecting Mother Nature, a study found.

The "environmental gender gap" was highlighted in a Roper March poll released today that shows 55 percent of the men surveyed believe government regulation of the environment has gone too far while only 14 percent of the women answered that way.

Conversely, 51 percent of the women and 38 percent of the men said government regulation of the environment has not gone far enough, according to the poll commissioned by the National Environmental Education and Training Foundation, a non-profit group based in Washington D.C.

Specifically in regard to air quality, 13 percent of the men said regulation has gone too far compared to 4 percent of the women. In each case, the remainder said the balance was about right or they didn't know, according to the poll, which had a margin of error of 3 percentage points.

"We tend to think of the gender gap as having to do mostly with women's rights kinds of concerns, with abortion or whatever. But here it is showing up as an environmental concern," Kevin Coyle, president of the foundation, said in an interview.

"Men also are pro-environment, but there are some pretty definite differences. Women are more pro-environment and policy makers ought to understand that if they want to close any gender gap," said Coyle, former president of the river conservation group, American Rivers.

General attitudes about the environment have remained fairly steady over the past five years, the survey said.

Among this year's findings:
— 75 percent said they would pay for more expensive, pollution-reducing gasoline
— 58 percent agreed federal government spending should be shifted to environmental programs from other areas

— 63 percent said when compromise is impossible, the environment should be favored over development

The National Environmental Education and Training Foundation was established under an act of Congress in 1990.

Hagerty said; but none has been given the national award as well.

He said he believes his commitment to providing the best for the children of Seminole County was the key to his success in getting the award.

"I have been an advocate for the children of Seminole County here in our own district and at the state level in the legislature," Hagerty noted. "I think our children are our most important resource and I have been an advocate for them at every opportunity."

Hagerty has been honored with other educational kudos as well during his career.

He is the only school administrator in the country to be selected by Executive Educator magazine as one of the "Top 100 School Administrators" in the nation every time (1984, 1987, 1990 and 1993) the award was given. According to Hagerty the award is no longer being presented.

He has also been honored each year since coming to Florida by the Florida Department of Education as one of the superintendents in the state who support and implement an outstanding volunteer program.

Thanking volunteers

Sanford's Christmas season is upon us, with a special weekend beginning tonight. Many volunteers for the Sanford Historic Trust have given hundreds of hours to make this weekend a success. We thank them for their spirit and dedication, which has served to brighten the holidays for all of us.

A chorus of singers from all over the city and from many area churches will serenade tonight, from 6:45, at Magnolia Square, just prior to the lighting of the Christmas tree. The choir is under the direction of Dan and Libby Sellars. Dan is the music director for the First United Methodist Church of Sanford.

You can join the chorus after the concert, on a leisurely stroll to the Cultural Arts Building on the corner of 5th Street and Oak Avenue. Refreshments will be served. Everyone can continue on the stroll from the 500 to 800 block of Oak Avenue, where 1,000 luminaries will light the way, in anticipation of the eighth annual Holiday Tour of Historic Homes. Select residences and historic buildings will be on display Saturday and Sunday, from noon until 5 p.m. The tour costs $12, and includes a carriage ride. The tour coincides with "Structural Drama," a collection of architectural pieces salvaged from old homes, which will be on display at the First Street Gallery downtown.

For the many people and the many hours: Thank you. All of you have made Sanford a very special holiday place to be this weekend.

Sanford Downtown Stinks

Is there any idea on the putrid odor that is followed by gun fire-like sounds every Saturday? The odor lasts about two hours, and is followed with gun shot sounds from 1/2 hour to as long as two hours. If the sewage processor is broken, it should be repaired. If it is something else, do something about it. It's enough to make you sick.

Tipper Gore's belated triumph

In 1985, Tipper Gore was a founder of the Parents Music Resource Center. Its aim was to police that product of the record industry which advocated premarital sex; gloried in sexually explicit lyrics; and graphically approved of violence toward women.

Tipper Gore and her colleagues gained concessions from some of the labels. Record companies agreed to place parental-warning labels on albums and tapes. And Gore had some success in getting companies to print the lyrics of offensive songs on the package. That way, parents could decide whether to place their seal of approval on the performances without having to actually listen to the alleged music.

Predictably, large distributors refused to carry albums and tapes with the accusatory labels, preferring to play it safe. Other more uncompromising groups might attack them even if there were labels. As for the X-rated lyrics, Joan Baus told me it wasn't a bad idea to print them because that way, "kids will learn to read."

Tipper Gore made it clear during her crusade that she opposed any form of state censorship of rock lyrics. She tried to secure voluntary agreements. (Tipper Gore left the combat soon when her husband became vice president.)

Currently, the goals of the Parents Music Resource Center have been greatly amplified by Wal-Mart, the huge chain with 2,300 branches around the country. Wal-Mart has taken it upon itself to police the record industry and, with 10 percent of the national market for compact discs, it has much more clout than Tipper Gore ever had.

A New York Times reporter, Neil Strauss, notes that the Wal-Mart rock compasse "a world of shrink-wrapped packages marked 'Edited,' 'Clean' and 'Sanitized for Your Protection.' Other compact discs are not marked this way, but they have been altered from the original version available at most record stores." The alterations, including covers, are made by the fearful record labels or by the artists with the stern advice of Wal-Mart.

It's as if an increasingly expanding bookstore chain were to tell publishers to omit certain language from new books. This would not be censorship -- in the legal ones -- by book chains or by Wal-Mart. The First Amendment protects freedom of expression only against attacks by the government. In the popular sense, however, Wal-Mart's way of protecting its customers is censorship.

Interestingly, Tipper Gore's notion -- when she was in the purifying business -- of placing "parental advisory" labels doesn't work now any more than it did then.

In part of an official "Statement From Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. on Altered Music," the corporation notes that "Wal-Mart, like most large retailers, does not accept any music that is labeled with the industry's own standard 'parental advisory' label which denotes explicit lyrics."

A former Wal-Mart executive, Bill Fields, is now in charge of Blockbuster, which, according to Neil Strauss, accounts for "35 to 50 percent of video rentals nationwide (a number expected to double in the next four years)." If they do not meet Blockbuster's standards, films are re-edited by the studios, and are then often put out for sale without the director's approval.

While the First Amendment cannot be used as a sword of free expression against Blockbuster, a private enterprise, the Screen Directors Guild is trying to get a consumer-protection bill through Congress that would enable customers to be informed as to whether the product they are buying at Blockbuster is different from the film as shown at movie theaters.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Newt Gingrich wants to cuddle

Newt's got a plan: Give him a few weeks, and you're going to stop thinking of him as a cocky, loud-mouthed, petulant pol and start thinking of him as a fuzzy wuzzy widdle Newt Gingrich.

The speaker of the House is retooling his image, you see. When he is finished, you will be gazing upon Newt Number 19. Or is it 20? Whatever. Suffice it to say that among modern politicians, only Richard Nixon had more incarnations.

Gingrich feels compelled to retool because so many of you view him as really repulsive. You think he ought to shut his yap and get on with governing. More than a few of his own flock feel the same way. He was re-elected as speaker a few weeks ago only after fighting off a move by some of his more obstreperous colleagues to depose him.

A chastened Gingrich subsequently declared that he and his fellow Republicans would try to cooperate "with this president to find a new framework for American leadership on the planet." If the preceding assembly "was the 'Confrontation Congress,'" he said, "this Congress will be the 'Implementation Congress.'"

Aside from the public's distaste for him, there is at least one other major reason he will attempt another personality transplant and pray that it takes: The Old Newt is a loser.

When the Republicans took over Capitol Hill in 1994 and Newt's delirious disciples anointed him speaker, he had the whole world in his hands. But then he committed the egregious sin of believing his own bull, of seeing himself as an epic figure and the stuff of legend. He rallied his troops to slash social spending, to advance the agendas of supportive special interests and to nullify government regulation.

They talked ominously of Medicare cut-backs. They wrote bills favoring oil companies, cement makers, timber magnates, mining, meatpackers, chemical plants. They attempted to delay or revise food-inspection regulations, workplace rules, the Superfund toxic waste cleanup program, the Clean Air Act. They tried to reduce the budget of the Environmental Protection Agency, Newt's designated hit man on the environment. Majority Whip Tom DeLay, R-Texas, compared the EPA to Hitler's Gestapo.

Even the normally partisan New York senator Al D'Amato objected. "People did not vote to cut education and cut funding for the environment and cut funding for programs they care about," he told the New York Daily News. "People did vote for change but not for this revolution. They want lower taxes and less spending but not dirty drinking water."

Had Newt exhibited the qualities of a deliberate leader instead of a blustery enforcer, had he opted to educate us about the need to moderate public programs and had he brought us along by degrees, he would be presiding over a massive political majority and perhaps even working with a Republican in the White House.

But Newt blew it. He knows it, too. "I made a few errors," he told his Republican charges as they were preparing to vote on his reelection. "I was both the speaker of the House and our leading advocate and some days I didn't do it very well."

And so, according to published reports, Newt decided last summer to remodel his image.

The speaker of the House is retooling his image, you see.

MORTON KONDRACK

Cabinet posts: Heavy price tags

It cost Donna Shalala $90,000 in accounting fees to become a Clinton Cabinet secretary in 1995 -- an example of a federal appointments system that discourages public service.

Shalala shelled out the money -- a sixth of her annual salary as president of the University of Wisconsin and a seventh of that for the HRSA secretary -- to have an accounting firm fill out the hundreds of pages of financial disclosure forms required of federal appointees.

The multiplicity of forms and clearances required by various executive agencies and Congress comes under criticism in a new study by the Twentieth Century Fund titled "Obstacle Course."

According to this study, "The clearance process for those asked to serve at upper levels of government has grown to unimaginable levels of complexity and redundancy, often complicated by fierce political partisanship."

"Senate consideration of nominees becomes at times a chamber of horrors where respectable Americans suddenly find their integrity called into question, their credentials disparaged, and their reputation permanently threatened. Individuals who agree to serve in a presidential administration face an appointment process that is increasingly dominated by 'win-at-any-costs' politics, media feeding frenzies, and a sharp decline in public civility."

In 1981, the report notes, President John F. Kennedy's Cabinet appointees were named and confirmed in an average of two-and-a-half months. Bill Clinton's in 1993 took an average of eight months, one-sixth of a presidential term.

"The process is now so routinely slow ... that long vacancies in senior administrative positions have become a normal condition in Washington life," the study said.

Now, Clinton is taking nearly as long putting a new management team in place for his second term as he did for his first.

In 1993 he made his first Cabinet appointments -- including the secretary of the Treasury and the rest of his economic team -- on Dec. 10. The entire Cabinet was picked by Dec. 24.

Clinton is expected to name his top foreign policy team soon, several days ahead of the "62 deadline," although he originally hoped to do so during the weeks of his reelection.

The Twentieth Century Fund urges that presidential candidates assign a team to work on appointments prior to the election. Clinton did so this year, but aides say that its two members, outgoing Chief of Staff Leon Panetta and Washington lawyer Vernon Jordan, merely supervised current Cabinet officers on their second-term plans. "Hard vetting needs to be done," said a White House aide. "You don't want to name somebody and then find out they have a huge conflict with a foreign contractor or something. This has happened before."

Indeed, it has. But the Twentieth Century Fund contends that the multiplicity of vetting procedures now in place amounts to a "meat grinder" for nominees.

It recommends that the number of federal jobs filled by presidential appointments -- now about 3,000 -- be reduced by two-thirds and that routine military, public health, diplomatic, and advisory commission appointments no longer be subject to Senate confirmation.

This would still leave Shalala with her $90,000 burden, but the Twentieth Century panel also recommends the consolidation of multiple disclosure forms down to one.

Right now, the White House asks for a Personal Data Statement, the Justice Department's Office of Government Ethics requires an even longer SP278, appointees sign waivers allowing the Internal Revenue Service to release their tax returns and the FBI to conduct a full field investigation, and each Senate committee has a separate set of forms for nominees coming under its jurisdiction.

Together, the forms require chronological listing of every income source since age 21 and a list of all assets worth more than $1,000 held by the nominee or his or her family, and the FBI may turn up data on whether an applicant has had an abortion, used drugs, or seen a psychiatrist -- some of which gets leaked to the press.

Confirmation can be "brutalizing," the fund reported, if senators or an interest group decides to pounce on a nominee. A historic study for the fund conducted by Los Angeles Times reporter Robert Schragan indicated that the group with the most vetoes on its list over the last 50 years in the civil rights movement

Shalala shelled out the money to have an accounting firm fill out the hundreds of pages of financial disclosure forms.

A B-34 gunner killed by the Germans in 1944. Urban Nye, 76, of Winter Springs was an Army Air Corpsman at Hutan Field on the day of the attack on Pearl.

He had just come off watch and was headed to breakfast at the mess, where Jennings Hurt was on K-P duty.

"I was headed across the grinder when the stuff in the fans," Nye said. "Of course, we know we were under attack. Some of it is vivid to this day, some of it a big blur. It isn't something you necessarily care to remember."

Soon after the Japanese ambush, Nye and his buddies went into combat in the South Pacific.

A gunner on a B-17, he experienced a different kind of hell. "This time we were doing the shooting," Nye said. Nye belongs to the Pearl Harbor Survival Association, based in Ruak, Texas. He also has a special Pearl Harbor Survivor license plate for his car Pearl Harbor Survivor Plate No. 1215.

"There was a time I used to notice other plates like mine," Nye said. "But nowadays there aren't many left."

The attack itself on Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941 claimed 3,000 lives. Most of the U.S. Pacific Fleet was at anchor at Pearl, and only a few ships escaped damage. Battleship row was ravaged, the proud U.S.S. Arizona sunk. More than 300 aircraft were destroyed. Through the years, hundreds of stories and dark theories have unfolded about how such an attack came about. Some Pearl Harbor survivors go back to Hawaii each year on Dec. 7 to participate in reunions and memorial functions.

"I watched a thing on TV the other night, and they interviewed a fellow going back to Pearl," Jennings Hurt said. "The rest of us are there, too in a way. Pearl Harbor stays with you no matter how far away you may be."

Pope

Douglas is the featured "house" artist in the eighth annual Sanford Holiday Tour of Homes guide.

His sketches provide a nice finishing touch to the guide, which will be provided to hundreds of visitors Saturday and Sunday.

"I'm very pleased I was asked," says Pope, a junior at Seminole High School. "As I did the sketches, I wanted to learn more about the buildings. It was a great experience."

Of the eight sketches he did, the most intriguing to Pope was the All Souls Catholic Rectory at 902 Oak Ave. It is nearing its 100th birthday (1900) and has a rich history, dating to the time it was used as a convent for the nuns who taught at the school.

It is used today as a home for the priests and a place for special functions by parishioners. "It was my favorite and best sketch," Pope said.

Eager to pursue his craft at a college with a good arts program, Pope spends countless hours sketching. This past week he attended a Disney Art Institute course on animation.

Pope is proud of five recent tiger sketches he did - Beauty, Curiosity, Vigilance, Power and Wisdom. He calls it his "big cat" collection. He began this work as part of a request from the Sanford-Seminole Art Association Show. In addition to his sketching, Pope is an English Literature addict. He enjoys Edgar Allan Poe, which became an obsession in his past week since he was on the Home Tour guide last weekend as Douglas Pop instead of Pope.

A local restaurant once gave Douglas and his family priority seating when someone said the pope is with us.

Pope's mom said that she was concerned that Douglas didn't get outdoors as much as he should because of his art work. "Getting to do the historic homes sketches took care of this," she said. "He was outdoors and sketching at the same time."

ancient oak trees dripping with Spanish moss. It is decorated with candles in the window and garland on the columns, ready, as the tour homes are, to open its doors to all of the visitors who will take a step back into a more genteel time.

Amlund said his intent with the poster art was to present an illustration as one might have seen in a newspaper in the Victorian era. He said, "I was thinking of tin-types and sepia prints."

If the poster art seems to come to life as one imagines themselves rocking on the porch, sipping a lemonade, there is good reason. The credentials of the artist are as varied as the gingerbread treatments found on Victorian-era homes.

A professor emeritus, Amlund taught technical theater classes at Rollins College for 29 years. His classes covered the subjects of scene design and costume design, the same subjects taught by home tour chairman and colleague at the University of Central Florida, Frederick Rogers. Amlund said he had done some posters years ago for some production at the Annie Russell Theater and welcomed the opportunity to illustrate the poster for the home tour.

A recent example of Amlund's set design work is the Civic Theater's production of "A Christmas Carol." He did both scene and costume design for the production last year.

Amlund said he does renderings of his scenes, using drafting techniques, before he begins his work. This style is evident in the poster art as well.

Some other local productions he has been involved with include "Imaginary Invalid," "The Hostage" and "Working" at the Annie Russell Theater, and "What Every Woman Knows," for Rollins Summer Theater. He has also done scene and costume design for the Orlando Opera Company, Iowa Opera Theater, Monomy Theater, Eydyth Bush Theater and the Kenley Players and has done consulting for Walt Disney Productions and art direction for film and television.

"To see your work blossom on the stage, three-dimensional, from drawings, that's exciting," said Amlund.

Probably one of his biggest undertakings has shades of the popular home-improvement show on public television. Amlund oversaw the restoration of the Grand Opera House, in Wilmington, Del., for its re-opening in 1976. Amlund did historic research into the state of the theater when it first opened in 1876 and was involved in many phases of the restoration, right down to analyzing paint chips to determine which layer was the true, authentic color.

A limited number of Amlund's posters, suitable for framing, will be on sale during the tour. Signed by the artist, the poster will sell for $20, unsigned, $10.

Sanford's vintage homes, as depicted in the poster art, will be opened to the public on Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 7 and 8, with the eighth annual Holiday Tour of Homes, sponsored by the Sanford Historic Trust.

Menopause and depression do not necessarily go together, say scientists at the University of Pittsburgh. Only 10 to 15 percent of women get depressed, and they tend to be those who give up easily, feel overwhelmed, are self-absorbed or suppress anger.

One-hour treatment for enlarged prostates may take the place of drugs or surgery. The FDA has approved the Prostatron, a device that heats the prostate (painlessly) with microwaves.

Overweight women had four times the risk of renal (kidney) cancer as those of normal weight, a National Cancer Institute study found. Doctors question whether weight gain causes hormonal imbalance triggering tumor growth, or damages kidney blood vessels.

The terrible pain of migraine and tension headaches may respond to a noninvasive alternative to narcotics and other drugs. Dentist in Mount Vernon, New York, convinced that inflammation of the maxillary nerve causes the pain, has devised an ice-based cure.

Players ratify deal

NEW YORK — Baseball players ratified the labor deal, ending a four-year fight with owners and ensuring no more strikes through 2000. After several days of work by lawyers for both sides, players unanimously approved the deal during their executive board meeting in Puerto Rico. Owners approved the proposal Nov. 28, three weeks after they initially rejected it. Twelve players, including Alex Fernandez, Moises Alou and Jimmy Key, gained free agent rights, and they probably will be allowed to start negotiating at 3 p.m. EST Saturday. The union agreed to interleague play on an experimental basis in 1997 and 1998. Originally, the deal allowed for interleague play in 1997 only. The deal brings in a 35 percent luxury tax on the portions of payroll above $61 million next season for the five highest-spending teams, a provision designed to decrease payroll disparity.

Seminole girls double score on Lake Howell

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Seminole High School girls basketball team continued to flex its muscles Thursday night as the undefeated Fighting Seminoles doubled the score on Lake Howell, 80-30, in Seminole Athletic Conference action at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

The Tribe led 13-6 after one period and 28-14 at halftime, but first-year head coach Sylvester Wynn was not impressed.

"We started out tight and only scored 26 points in the first half," said Wynn. "They (Lake Howell) slowed it down in the first half, but the girls came out and played much better in the second half."

The "better" that Wynn referred to was a 19-2 scoring advantage in the third quarter that gave Seminole a 45-16 bulge.

"We got a chance to play everyone quite a bit and everyone scored but Amanda Cook and she got a couple of shots," said Wynn.

The quartet of Shemelka Stokes (12 points), Tamara Gilchrist (12 points), Dana Merrick (11 points) and Felicia Henderson (10 points) were all in double figures for the Tribe.

Vale Mears was the lone Silver Hawks player to net more than four points, scoring a game-high 15 points.

The preliminary games were split between the two schools, with the Fighting Seminoles taking the freshman contest 28-24 and Lake Howell

Seminole is now 8-0 overall on the season and 2-0 in the SAC. The Tribe will be idle until next Tuesday, when they open a three-game in as many days stretch against Class 5A-District 6 nemesis St. Cloud at home.

Seminole will also be at home for another district game on Wednesday with Kissimmee-Ocoola and then travel to Longwood for an SAC battle with Lyman on Thursday. Tuesday's and Wednesday's schedule has the junior varsity starting at 6 p.m. and the varsity tipping off at 7:30 p.m. There will be a tripleheader on Thursday, with the freshman starting at 4 p.m.

LIONS FRESHMAN HOLD OFF HAWKS

OVIDEO — Larry Wharton scored a game-high 20 points and pulled down 11 rebounds and Kenny Stirling accounted for all 10 of his points in the second half and overtime as the Oviedo boys' freshman basketball team edged Lake Howell 51-50 in overtime for its first victory of the season Thursday night.

The Silver Hawks led 12-3 after one period and 25-12 at halftime, but the Lions battled back, outscoring Lake Howell 19-9 in the third period and 12-10 in the final quarter to force overtime.

"I don't know what happened in the first period," said Oviedo head coach Ed Norton. "We were getting good shots, they just wouldn't go in."

The Lions took the lead on a three-pointer by Stirling with 27-seconds left, but Jason Pirnat hit one of two free throw tries for the Silver Hawks with 19-seconds left to tie the game.

Stirling and Wharton then hit four straight free throws to give the hosts a four-point lead before Pirnat nailed a three-pointer with three-seconds left.

Pirnat led Lake Howell (2-3) with 18 points, while Preybi added 15 and Chip Kirby netted 10.

Sellick, Patriots slip past Rams

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Ginger Sellick scored two goals within a 10-minute span of the second half as Lake Brantley overcame a 1-0 deficit to edge Lake Mary 2-1 in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls' soccer battle of unbeatens at Don T. Reynolds Stadium Thursday night.

The varsity victory capped a tripleheader sweep for the Patriots as the visitors also won the freshman and junior varsity contests by identical 3-2 scores.

"It was a little wet out there, but it was good match, the type you expect between two undefeated teams," said Lake Mary head coach Bill Elisele. "Both teams played well, but they (Lake Brantley) finished there opportunities when

Thursday softball finishes quietly

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — A potentially exciting final night of the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Fall Thursday Night Slowpitch Softball League came to naught at Chase Park as all three games were forfeits.

Everything was set-up for a possible playoff as league-leading Franklin Ball Bonds had to play third place Ken Rummel Chevrolet, while second-running Frat House was to finish with McConnell Towing.

But all bets were off as Frat House failed to show for the first game of the evening, making all other game results moot.

In the other games, Ken Rummel Chevrolet got a forfeit from Franklin Ball Bonds and Cactus Bob's got a 'freebie' from the Hit Men.

The final standings were: Franklin Ball Bonds (8-2), Frat House (7-3), Ken Rummel Chevrolet (6-4), McConnell Towing (5-5), Cactus Bob's (4-6) and the Hit Men (0-10).

Playing for the champion Franklin Ball Bonds team were: manager Arthur Burge, Bobby Taber, Alonso Brunnings, Dale Peters, Willie McCloud, Raymond Hartfield, Steve Dennis, Curtis Taber, Calvin Davis, Myriel Reid, Tom Gracey, Keithian Roberts, Robert Stevens, Tony Smith, Greg Hardy, Leroy Young, Dean Debose, Craig Merkeron, Wayne Walker and Frank Turner.

Sharks bring home state crown

By JEFF BERLINER

LAKE MARY — They go by names such as "The Weapon," "The Gang," "Big Daddy."

There's also an Elvie. They are the Florida Sharks AAU 11-and-under baseball team made up of Lake Mary area kids and they are state champions after fighting back from an opening loss in the state tournament.

Now the Sharks are looking at bigger and better things such as the national championship which will be held next month at Walt Disney World.

That could be a piece of cake compared to the challenge they faced in the state tournament. The comeback kids quickly fell behind in their first game to the Winter Haven 'Noles on a first inning home run. Twice the Sharks fought back to tie the game but finally lost in the bottom of the eighth.

The loss meant that, not only did the Sharks need to win out for the rest of the tournament, under a tiebreaker format, they had to basically fire shutouts the whole way.

"We knew we were going to come back no matter what," slugging pitcher-first baseman John "Big Daddy" Alonso said.

"We were ready to kick some butt," added "Wild" Bill Staley.

The Tampa Mavericks were up next and Tye "Bucky" Buckner went deep early and James "The Gang" Dalton added an inside the park homer to give the Sharks all the runs they needed. Tyler "The Weapon" Powell fired a six-strikeout shutout and the Sharks were back in the thick of the tournament.

Buckner even picked up his second set of 10 CDs, his reward for hitting a homerun. Staley and J.T. Wise combined for a two-hitter in the

Magic's offense vanishes

ORLANDO — An injury list that seemed to grow daily finally caught up to the Orlando Magic.

They equaled the NBA record for fewest points in a game during an 84-57 loss to the Cleveland Cavaliers on Wednesday night.

The result wasn't shocking, considering the Cavs have the league's stingiest defense and the Magic played without leading scorers Penny Hardaway, Nick Anderson and Dennis Scott.

However, coach Brian Hill spotted a change he hopes won't become commonplace as the two-time defending Atlantic Division champions continue to work through their problems.

"The thing that bothers me the most was I'm not sure we came out really believing we could win," Hill said.

"If we make mistakes or get beaten by a better team, then we can accept that. But we've got to believe that if we play hard and play smart that we can always win, no matter who's out there."

Scoring has never been a problem for the Magic, who averaged a league-leading 110.9 points a game two years ago and were second at 104.5 last season.

But when Shaquille O'Neal decided his future was in Los Angeles, not Orlando; Hill was the first to recognize the team was going to have to take on a new identity — one based on defense rather offense.

Then came injuries to Hardaway, who was activated Thursday following arthroscopic knee surgery;

Take care of Christmas tree

Now that you have selected your special tree, please care for it as you would a fresh bouquet of flowers. As soon as you get it home, make a fresh, straight cut across the base of the trunk to remove at least one inch of the trunk. Immediately place your tree in a water-holding stand. If you are not ready to decorate it, place it in a bucket of water. Do not ever let the base of the tree dry out as a seal will form, and a new cut will be necessary so that the tree can take up moisture.

A Christmas tree, like a bouquet of flowers, likes it cool and safe, so please do not let your tree near your fireplace, heat source or television set.

Let the tree remain outdoors or on a cool porch or patio until you are ready to decorate it.

CONSUMER FOCUS
BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

A freshly cut tree is a safe tree and is no more flammable than a wet leaf. Keep plenty of water in the tray, using a sturdy stand that is large enough for the tree. Check the water several times each day.

Be sure that the light cords and connections you use on your tree are in good working order to insure a safe Christmas for your family. Remember to unplug the tree lights when you go to bed or when you leave home. You should use only cool burning lights.

Trees are recyclable

After the holidays, do not throw your natural tree away! Here are some tips on what to do with your tree after the holidays:

Place the Christmas tree in the garden or backyard and use it as a bird feeder and sanctuary. Fresh orange slices or string popcorn will attract the birds, and they can sit in the branches for shelter.

Large quantities of used trees make effective sand and soil erosion barriers.

Sunk into fish ponds, trees make excellent refuge and feeding areas.

Woodworking hobbyists can make a multitude of items including buttons, gavels and candlestick holders from the trunks of recycled Christmas trees.

Remember that trees are a renewable resource.

For more information about Christmas trees, or the tree farm nearest you, contact: Florida Christmas Tree Association at 1-800-554-TREE, or 1-800-554-8733.

Holidays can be depressing times

Dear Mary,

I can't tell you how much I dread this month. I wish I could go to sleep and wake up in the middle of January.

My marriage has been on rocks for quite a while, but my wife decided she was going to move out (and live with her boyfriend) the first week of November. We have been married 23 years, and when things were good between us, they were very good. During the holidays last year, we were having some problems, but we did all the usual holiday events and put on a good front.

Now this year she's gone. Our friends do not seem to know how to react, so they are mostly ignoring me. I don't feel like celebrating anyhow.

FAMILY COUNSELOR
MARY BALK

but the thought of sitting here, staring at these walls while everyone else is doing their usual holiday routine, is almost more than I can bear. How can I get through this time without being either drunk or depressed all the time?

Depressed

Dear Depressed,
This is certainly going to be a difficult time for you, but being drunk won't make it better. It will just make you act stupid.

I hope you will make your goal for this holiday simply to get through it, one day at a time. Personally, I think it is a mistake to try to maintain all the holiday traditions you and your wife created and enjoyed over nearly a quarter of a century. In all likelihood, that period of your life is over, and now it's time to create new experiences which work for the new lifestyle you will be establishing.

If you have always been home for the holidays, get out of town. While it may be too late to make great plans, you may find some package deals or some cancellations at good hotels.

If you think the whole world will be doing Norman Rockwell imitations with family and friends, and you are the only one who will be alone, think again. Better yet, look for someone else who may be in a situation like yours and make some plans together. We both know you will not have a happy holiday season this year, but you can start now laying the foundation for future happy holidays.

Aging relatives easy prey

DEAR ABBY: I am a geriatric psychiatrist, a physician who specializes in mental problems of the elderly as they relate to legal matters. In your column, I saw a woman concerned about her 64-year-old mother-in-law's relationship with a 58-year-old man caught my eye. In addition to your excellent comments, two more points need to be made:

The main concerns that arise with aging parents are: 1. Does the parent have the capacity to understand and appreciate the consequences of the situation? 2. Is the parent being unduly influenced by another person?

Memory is only one part of the ability to handle personal and financial affairs. Other, equally important mental functions include the abilities to understand complex situations, to reason, plan and carry out behaviors, and to anticipate likely consequences. Problems in any of these or related areas make a person easy prey for con artists and gold-diggers.

Many people have sound minds, but are inappropriately influenced to do things that are not in their best interests. Someone who is lonely or going through a major change in his or her life is especially vulnerable. The unscrupulous thief initially promises friendship and support, then later convinces his victim to turn over money or property.

Many physicians do not know how to adequately assess the relevant mental functions. Of those who do, few have the skills or experience to apply their findings when legal proceedings are necessary. The consequences of inadequate assessment can be tragic.

For guidance and advice regarding problems of this nature, your readers should consider calling the adult protective services in their state for referral to a geriatrician or geriatric psychiatrist. Where legal issues are concerned, such as the capacity to change wills, make med-

Fox Family to sing at Wesleyan

SANFORD — The Fox Family will perform locally at Paola Wesleyan Church, 5650 Wayside Dr., Wed., Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

In 1984 Dr. Fox gave up his practice and set up their home base in Nashville, Tenn. They now appear in Civic Centers, auditoriums and resorts and churches all across this nation.

This is the beginning of a heritage that started in 1983 in Florida. Dr. Paul Fox is the husband and father of the family, a chiropractic physician who had practiced successfully in the state for 17 years. He greatly enjoyed quality times with his family when he was able to spend it them, however, his practice was extremely busy and those times with family were limited.

There is not Gospel group performing today that has a schedule any busier than The Fox Family. In fact, in 1988 they gave up their Tennessee home to live full time on their two customized buses since they are on the road all year long. Last year alone they traveled over 100,000 miles across the United States, performing over 300 concerts.

Without great fanfare and in a very humble way, The Fox Family began sharing the music God gave to them in churches, schools and county fairs all over

There are three generations are represented in the group. They have recorded 10 albums and recently released their "Live in Concert" album under the "Family Record" label.

Is rectal bleeding serious?

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are some of the causes of occasional rectal bleeding?

DEAR READER: Whenever bleeding occurs in the intestinal tract, blood is either vomited or expelled from the rectum. Therefore, rectal bleeding can actually originate from any location between the esophagus and the anus.

As a general rule, the higher up in the intestine the bleeding occurs, the less obvious it is. For example, a bleeding ulcer will often cause a sticky bowel movement the color and texture of tar, because the blood was digested before it was passed.

Bright red rectal bleeding ordinarily comes from the colon, the rectum or the anus. Common causes include fissures (cracks in the intestinal tissue), hemorrhoids, benign tumors or polyps, cancer, and weak veins in the intestinal lining.

Regardless of cause, the source of such bleeding must be identified and treated. Sigmoidoscopy and colonoscopy (during which a specialist examines the interior of the lower bowel) are two common procedures used for this purpose. In addition, doctors usually obtain blood tests to check for clotting abnormalities, which may worsen the bleeding. Finally, physicians may order special X-ray examinations, too.

Some forms of rectal bleeding, such as from hemorrhoids, are inconsequential and easy to fix. Other types can present enormous diagnostic challenges - especially if the bleeding is intermittent and the source is not readily apparent.

In my opinion, recurrent rectal bleeding should promptly be addressed by an appropriate specialist, such as a gastroenterologist or a surgeon. In any case, the symptom should not be disregarded.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've read that folic acid can unplug blocked arteries. Is this true? Is 400 milligrams a day enough?

DEAR READER: Folic acid is a vitamin necessary for proper nerve function and blood formation. It is also vital for women during the child-bearing years, because a deficiency often leads to spinal abnormalities in newborns. The Recommended Daily Allowance is 0.4 milligrams (about double that for pregnant women). Liver, bran, spinach, and beans are rich sources of the vitamin.

Folic acid deficiency causes anemia, fatigue, disordered thinking, sore tongue, poor coordination, and other symptoms.

The vitamin is safe. There are no reports of toxicity from doses up to 400 mg a day. However, it will not affect arterial blockages, an age-related problem that is more properly treated with a low-fat diet.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please give me information about melatonin.

DEAR READER: This is a compound, manufactured in the brain, that is vital for normal sleep. Unfortunately, as we age, we produce less and less melatonin; this is why the elderly often suffer from insomnia.

Melatonin pills, which are available in most health-food stores, have achieved wide popularity for their supposed benefits: primarily, sounder sleep and an increased feeling of well-being. However, no one knows the long-term effects of supplemental melatonin.

Moreover, the pills are not always manufactured using strict quality control. Consequently, many experts discourage their use. If you want to use the substance on occasion for temporary relief of insomnia - particularly that caused by jet lag - I see no reason why not to do so. But I advise you to avoid chronic use of melatonin.

son why not to do so. But I advise you to avoid chronic use of melatonin.

Because this is such an interesting topic, I plan to write a lengthier analysis in the next week or two. Keep your eyes peeled for further information in this newspaper.

To give you still more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Sleep/Wake Disorders."

The family day

By Phillip Alder
Hanukkah was Rabbi Sam Shapiro's favorite holiday. He enjoyed celebrating the festival of lights, commemorating the victory over the Syrians in the second century B.C. and the rededication of the temple in 158 B.C.

king, and called for the club two. Understandably, Lucyle played low - understandably, but fatally. The Rabbi won with the ace and continued with the diamond 10. Judy won in hand with the king, cashed the spade ace and tested hearts. When they failed to split, Judy ruffed dummy's last heart in hand and exited with a trump. Lucyle cashed the club king, but then had to play another club. Judy ruffed in hand and discarded dummy's diamond loser.
