I-4 overpass closed

SANFORD — The westbound lanes of Interstate 4 at the Orange Boulevard overpass will be closed early Sunday morning while state road crews tack down a steel plate that threatens to pop up in front of traffic.

Beginning at 2 a.m., traffic will be restricted to one lane on the overpass. At 3 a.m., both westbound lanes will be closed to traffic, which will be routed off I-4 at U.S. Highway 17-92 and returned at Orange Boulevard. The overpass will be reopened by 6 a.m.

Mike Snyder, district structures and facilities engineer for the Florida Department of Transportation, said the half-inch-thick expansion plates separate the concrete roadway slabs in the 33-year-old bridge. The concrete expands and contracts with temperature change and can crumble if they expand into each other, Snyder said.

Snyder said he has known of the problem for about a month, but the condition has worsened during the past two weeks. The plate has been inspected twice daily since then. The work Sunday will reattach the plate to bridge supports until they can be replaced in about three months, Snyder said.

No reprieve for schools

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The school board of Seminole County has delayed acting on budget cuts for the fiscal year beginning next month until the new superintendent takes over.

Acting Supt. Richard Wells had asked the board to reconsider several budget cuts that were recommended earlier.

"We just didn't feel it was prudent to make that kind of decision without giving the new superintendent a chance to look at this," said board member Joe Williams.

Williams said a lot of decisions just can not wait because they are mandated by state statutes.

"But these are things we can wait a few weeks to look at," he said. "It is just a prudent decision to wait."

Paul Hagerty, superintendent of schools in Springfield, Mo., was offered the position on Tuesday and said he intends to accept, pending negotiation of a contract. He is expected to begin work in Seminole County by mid-June.

Wells had asked the board to consider reinstating the second media specialist at the high school level because the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools requires two media specialist in high schools with enrollments of more than 1,249. That addition would cost $200,000.

He asked also that $170,000 be spent to keep the Student Museum and the Environmental Center open on a limited basis for the next year.

Wells wanted to maintain the position of coordinator of Community Relations for another three months at a cost of $15,000.

Finally, he asked that the board be willing to spend $20,000 to allow the district staff to follow through with the first year of the strategic planning program by maintaining the position of coordinator of Planning and Evaluation.

Hospital aids school teachers

Sanford facility gives $5,000 in scholarships

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD— HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford is, once again, lending a helping hand to the teachers of Seminole County who want to continue their education.

This morning Roy Vinson, the hospital's administrator, presented a check for $5,000 to FACTS (the Foundation for the Advancement of our Community Through Schools).

FACTS is a group made up of community leaders and others in the community who are interested in assisting the school district, financially or through volunteer activities, with offering incentive programs for high-achieving teachers and students.

Vinson, who is also a member of FACTS, said that the hospital has been very pleased to be able to sponsor the program for several years.

The money, which will be administered by FACTS, will be divided into twenty $250 scholarships. The scholarships will be presented to teachers who are pursuing higher educational degrees or to staff members who want to pursue a degree to become a teacher.

"This is a unique opportunity to support and ensure quality education, a key element in the

Lake Mary high honors top students

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — About 150 students at Lake Mary High School were honored last night in a ceremony at the school.

"We are very, very proud of our students and what they have accomplished," said principal Don Smith.

Students were presented with certificates for scholarships or with checks. Others were honored for accomplishments they achieved during the year.

Smith said that the youngsters who were honored are the best and the brightest of the school's academic and athletic students.

Included on the agenda for last night's ceremony was the presentation by Mickey Mouse of the Walt Disney World Scholarship to Pamela Davis.

The scholarship, presented annually to one student from each high school, will pay for four years at the institution of higher learning of her choice.

That, like many of the other awards presented during the course of the evening, was a surprise to the recipient. Smith said that students were invited to attend the ceremony, but they were not aware of which award they would be getting.

"We wanted to have a some fun too while we were honoring these students who are very special to the school," Smith said.

Weekend activities

Plenty to do, from helping others to having fun

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

The weekend is once again bustling with activities for people in Seminole County.

From helping others to just sitting back and enjoying the show, there's a little something for everyone.

At Flea World, U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford:

The self-described 'nation's largest flea market' is celebrating its tenth anniversary this month. This weekend, they are giving a present to the Central Florida chapter of the Leukemia Society of America. Two events, Saturday's Miss Chili Bikini contest and Sunday's Chili Cookoff are designed to make money for the society.

Flea World spokesmen promise the most attractive women in Central Florida will be competing in a beauty and poise competition on Saturday afternoon.

At 1 p.m., nationally syndicated talk show host Ron Seggi will emcee the contest to crown Miss Chili Bikini.

All entry fees from the competition will be donated to the Leukemia Society.

The winner will receive $200, a modeling seminar, a TV audition and a complete makeover and photography session.

Presently there are 14 entrants in the Bikini Contest.

On Sunday, the market's eighth annual Chili cookoff will take place beginning at noon.

Seventeen entrants are already lined up to pay a $25 entry fee for the chance at having their hot concoction judged to be the best in Central Florida. The money raised will be donated to the Leukemia Society.

A panel of iron-stomached judges, including cartoonist Jake Vest and Rep. Art Grindle will be tasting the chili offerings in order to award the coveted trophy, cash and prizes.

At Park-on-Park, Park Avenue, Sanford:

From 4 to 8 p.m. on Saturday, the Sanford Historic Trust will be sponsoring a picnic in the park to celebrate National Preservation Week.

The city of Sanford, earlier this month, proclaimed this week as National Preservation Week in honor of the local chapter of the National Trust for Historic Preservation's participation in the nation-wide celebration of the past.

The Sanford Historic Trust which, among other things, sponsors the annual Tour of Historic Homes, is hosting the picnic, which is open to the public in order to raise awareness of the group's continued "celebration of heritage."

At the Flying Seminole Ranch, State Road 419, Oviedo:

On Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. helicopter enthusiasts will be See Weekend, Page 5A

Home repair grant sought by Seminole

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County has applied for a $100,000 federally-financed grant to bolster housing repairs for low-income homeowners.

If the county receives the "FloridaFix" grant, housing repairs on nearly 100 homes throughout the county can be completed, said Buddy Balagia, county community development planner. Up to $5,000 per home will be spent for emergency repairs to assure the health and safety of the residents. The repairs include rook patches, window repairs and the like, said Balagia.

"It's really a band-aid approach but it allows us to maintain the housing stock a

Knowledge

One of the most fascinating questions that human beings have ever asked may have been answered. The Cosmic Background Explorer, a small NASA satellite launched in 1989, appears to have found wispy clouds that show how the Big Bang, the explosion that created the universe, built stars and galaxies.

These faint ripples of matter could be the very earliest stages of the formation of more solid structures. They formed about 300,000 years after the Big Bang itself, hardly a wink of time in cosmic terms. When the clouds coalesced and matter began clumping together, gravity accelerated their action.

That started the process that has resulted in billions of stars, planets, asteroids, moons, blackholes and the many other bodies, particles and stray pieces of matter that roam the universe.

The satellite made the discovery by measuring infinitesimal differences in the temperature of the "after-glow," the background microwave radiation that fills the universe as a result of the Big Bang. The temperature variations appear to show the filmy sheets or ripples that so excited the scientists.

The discovery could be among the most important of the century. It would help confirm the Big Bang theory itself, which contends that the universe came into being with an enormous explosion.

Scientific observation, analysis and deduction have looked at the Earth and shown how much of it works. The same process is beginning to reveal the secrets of genes, which are the building blocks of life, and atoms, the basis for all substances.

Now space probes are allowing the human race to see the most distant objects in the known universe, the largest and the oldest structures there are. They provide a window to the past — the ancient past, dating to the time the universe itself was new.

But in looking through that window, even more intriguing questions are raised. The Big Bang itself is still a mystery, its origins unknown and its cause unproven. What, if anything, existed before the explosion? What, if anything, caused the "bang" to occur? Well....

Those questions have been left to philosophers and theologians. But consider the sophistication of the probes now sending back information from space. Compare them with the simplicity of the telescopes that astronomers used just a few generations ago.

Perhaps the questions raised by the discovery of the universe's wispy clouds of matter may yet yield to the investigators of science. Perhaps.

28 years of riots, disappointments

In the past 28 years years, I've covered and lived through more race riots, urban disorders or rebellions than almost any reporter still working. I covered Harlem, 1964; Newark, 1967, and the Washington, D.C., riots following Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassination in 1968. I've also lived through Watts, 1965; Detroit, 1967; and, now, South Central Los Angeles, 1992.

What have I learned in those 28 Thucydidean years? With a recollective nod to my musical hero, Count Basie, let me try — "one more time."

Point 1: If President Bush, Gov. Wilson, Mayor Bradley and Police Chief Gates could get at least 10-year jail sentences for every person involved in the beatings, lootings and killings during the Los Angeles carnage, would Los Angeles automatically be rebuilt? Of course not.

Point 2: During World War II, 407,316 American soldiers and sailors died between Dec. 7, 1941, and Dec. 31, 1946. Yet, Congress didn't hesitate to appropriate a $12 billion Marshall Plan to rebuild Europe and billions more to help rebuild Japan.

Aren't American cities — including Los Angeles — as sacred to our peacetime national interests as our former wartime allies and enemies?

Point 3: Our prudent president, George Bush, says he does not want to "dump largesse on the poor." What he would rather do is dump largesse on the rich — $78 billion in savings-and-loan bailouts that ripped off the American people and benefited many of his wealthy contributors — including his son, Neil. "Hell," said one of my pedagogical colleagues, John Sweeney. "If George Bush gave $78 billion to Los Angeles, the whole city would look like Rodeo Drive."

Before the riots Bush never even pushed for that cardinal Republican program of self-help, enterprise zones, which Democratic Mayor Tom Bradley has said he would welcome.

Point 4: George Bush blamed the Los Angeles disorders on the Democrats' "failed" Great Society programs. How wrong. A fellow Republican is responsible for the South Central Los Angeles riots. Abraham Lincoln should never have freed those slaves.

Point 5: Newspaper reporting and editorializing are as myopic about race in 1992 as they were in 1967. True, more minorities have been hired. But the editorial pages are still Emersonian extensions of the middle-aged, middle-minded, white-male syndrome.

Point 6: Los Angeles — the third most racially diverse city in America — has 592,000 blacks. Had the 16,000 arrested protesters, attempted murderers, assaulters, arsonists and looters all been black (and they weren't), they still would have represented less than 3 percent of Los Angeles' black population. But it is more conveniently economical and stereotypically therapeutic for most white Americans to indict the whole black community, which is mostly job-holding, church-going and self-helping.

Point 7: Compared to the simplistic black-white schisms of Watts, 1965, and Newark and Detroit, 1967, the sociological cleavages of 1992 are far more complicated — blacks vs. a "separate but equal" criminal justice system; blacks vs. a new nationwide white racism symbolized by Simi Valley (home of the Rodney King jury); blacks vs. Korean merchants; and, just as debilitating, low-income, alienated, lawless blacks vs. middle-income, mainstream, law-abiding blacks.

The black community: mostly job-holding, church-going, self-helping.

JACK ANDERSON

Perot readies his entry for the race

WASHINGTON — While Los Angeles was in flames, President Bush found himself feting with major fund raisers and fending off attacks on his leadership that haven't been leveled against a sitting president since Jimmy Carter's days of "malaise."

Not coincidentally, Carter was the last president to face a serious third-party challenger, John Anderson. Now Bush has to deal with an incipient independent challenge from Ross Perot, who has literally swept the electorate off its feet. His speeches radiate the energy of tent revivals.

Perot parries unfriendly questions with a blend of wit and temper, while Bush still stumbles over his own syntax. Perot is the pint-sized Texan with the 10-gallon charisma who parlayed a $1,000 loan into a billion-dollar computer empire. Bush is the man who a Texas pol once described as having been born on third base and believing he hit a triple.

Presidential campaigns drag on for months, but ultimately boil down to a few defining moments, a few images seared in the memory that have make-or-break consequences for candidates. No doubt one was the Los Angeles riot, a domestic Desert Storm that was missing a Stormin' Norman.

We interviewed Perot the day Los Angeles went off like a Roman candle, and he didn't shy away from second-guessing Bush, a man for whom he has a demonstrably low regard.

"It goes down to what leadership is all about. What kind of general would not go out on the front lines of the battlefield in a situation like this," Perot said. It was later that night that Bush was socializing with key Republican money-men at a Columbus, Ohio, fund-raiser.

The Bush/Quayle ticket must be running scared. They have already raised well over $23 million this year in the race, and yet felt that another evening of political panhandling was required during the worst domestic siege of the century.

Again, the contrast is calamitous for Bush. Perot is eschewing all campaign contributions at the very time that Bush is vetoing campaign reform legislation, albeit an imperfect piece of legislation.

"If I run, I will run as the people's servant," Perot self-righteously proclaims. "And I won't belong to anybody else but them."

Even though politicians have vowed not to politicize the Rodney King verdict, those promises were broken before the ink had dried. Bush and Democrat Bill Clinton sparred over law and order, and then Perot — posing as the most presidential of the trio — weighed in with some original, if not very specific sheet music.

As he explained to us, "Step one is to get there as fast as you can and hit the streets. The main thing I'd try to do would be to get all the folks to settle down to give us time to let justice run its course, because destroying your own neighborhood is the saddest thing in the world."

"We have split the melting pot again. We've broken it into a thousand little pieces. It's tragic. We're supposed to be a beacon to the world and that doesn't mean cities on fire."

Air Force One finally delivered Bush to Los Angeles after the fires had been extinguished. He received an icy reception from a smoldering city. The stage presence on display during the Peralta Quil War seemed elusive and an eternity ago. In one short year an incumbent president's political stock has taken a 1929-style nosedive.

Perot effortlessly upstaged Bush at every turn. "I pledge that I won't talk," he said. "I won't hold press conferences about it."

Perot parries unfriendly questions with a blend of wit and temper.

Public prayer is beneficial

A special gathering at the city hall to commemorate the National Day of Prayer! A chance for citizens to gather together and pray twenty minutes for our city, county, state, and country.

What an opportunity to say to our city and those in leadership of it that we believe in a living God who answers prayer, and that we as a nation are depending on Him.

I was glad to be one of 29 adults and 15 children who showed up on May 7th at 12:20 to 12:40 p.m. to pray at the Sanford City Hall. Yet I couldn't help feeling that there should have been more of us out there. Perhaps I shouldn't be surprised...after all, you can pray in the privacy of your own homes. Why go to the bother of going to a public place to pray with a bunch of other people you don't even know. God will hear you at home just as well.

But there is something special that happens in our own hearts when we meet publicly to pray like we did. As we stood in a circle praying we were all united as we acknowledged our dependence on a Heavenly Father to lead and guide our city, county, state, and country. It encouraged our own hearts to see the others gathered there to pray.

What a statement it would have been to our leaders and those in authority to see ALL those in Sanford who believe in the power of prayer gathered outside the city hall on the National Day of Prayer — May 7, 1992.

Community concerts exist

I am a member of the Indian River Community Concert Association. Hearing outstanding artists has been a great experience. I was sorry to hear that the Seminole (Community Concert Association) CCA is no longer in existence.

We are celebrating our fifth year in 1993 and are having three excellent programs. On Sunday, Jan. 10 at 3 p.m., we are having the Branko Kramanovich Chorus of Yugoslavia. On Saturday, Feb. 13 at 8 p.m., the sensational Dallas Brass will be heard and on Sunday, March 29 at 3 p.m., the Pasadena Roof Orchestra and Dancers of London will appear. After the first concert in January, Indian River Community Concerts Association holds a reception for the cast members. In this way, we can meet and thank the artists in person.

May I suggest that former members of the Seminole Community Concert Association might like to join the Indian River CCA for 1993? Concerts are held in the New Smyrna Beach High School's auditorium with ample parking. To join send a check for $25 to IRCCA, P.O. Box 2060, New Smyrna Beach, FL 32170. #### Larry Conniff for sheriff

We have all seen via our TV screens the breakdown of law and order in Los Angeles. Apparently, a small group of law enforcement officers went out of control and cast suspicion and disdain on the whole force.

The morale of a police force is of utmost importance and is largely dependent on the leadership of the top man. It is he who sets the tone and demeanor of the force that permeates down to every man on patrol. If the top man is under suspicion or investigation, the whole force is at risk.

It is reassuring to me that the Police Benevolent Association representing four Central Florida counties, after interviewing eight candidates, has given its endorsement to Larry Conniff for Sheriff of Seminole County. It is the opinion of this knowledgeable group that Conniff is the best man for the job.

Reclaimed water OK

I want to express my satisfaction with the reclaimed water as provided by the City of Sanford. I feel a sense of pride in knowing that I am returning a recycled product that benefits the aquifer while enhancing the appearance of my home. The use of reclaimed water returns a product that we have borrowed from nature. It is important that programs that include recycling are adopted by all of us so that the future is insured for our children.

Oh, you cad!

Tales of awful ex-husbands to be published

By RICK HANPSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — It promises to be an anxious weekend for the nation's cads, one of whom will learn early next week that an ex-wife's essay on his foibles has won "The First Wives Club Consumer Contest."

The stories range from the merely annoying — the rascal who bought his wife the Sunday paper for her 21st birthday — to the truly terrifying: A doctor accused of caressing his wife's face and telling her, "I know just where to press to break every bone in your face."

All are subjects of essays submitted to Simon & Schuster, publisher of "The First Wives Club" by Olivia Goldsmith, a novel about three women who are discarded by their powerful husbands for slim young "trophy wives."

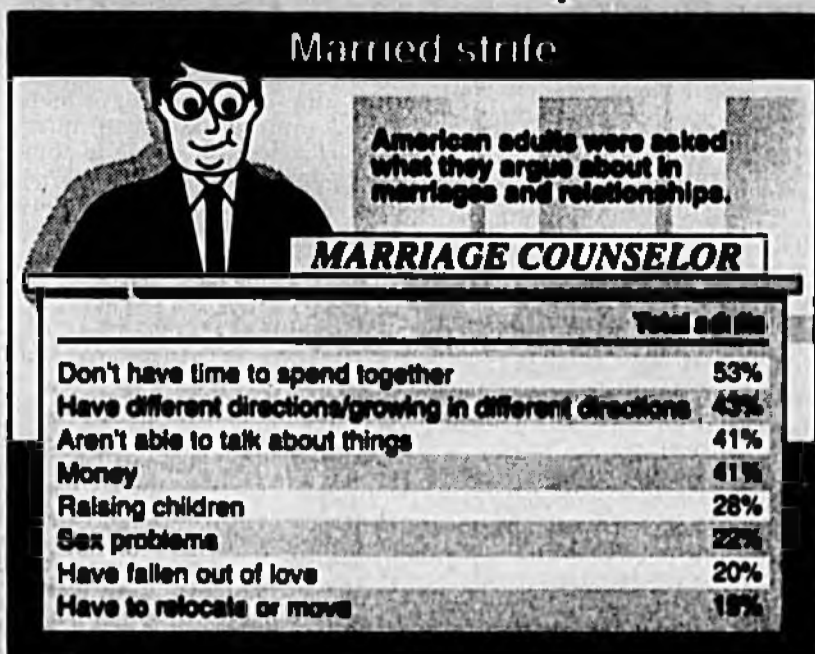

The novel's jacket flap announced an essay contest on "just what a cad your ex-husband is." First prize is a $1,500 gift certificate to Cartier, the jeweler.

The publisher says it heard from almost 200 women, including one behind bars in Wisconsin for trying to hire someone to murder her ex-husband.

Winners will be determined not by how bad their husbands were, but how literate their essays are. The prisoner, for example, wrote that she was enjoying her 14-month sentence "considerably more than my 18-year marriage."

There's apparently a lot of aspirational material out there, including a scoundrel who rented the basement apartment to his girlfriend and a boor who took back the ring he gave his first wife and presented it to his second one.

Darlene of Tucker, Ga., who raised the children and handled the details of innumerable moves as her husband completed his medical training, wrote that he would slap her on the chest at night and say, "If I'm not asleep, you're not Over half of the American couples surveyed said not having enough time together was the main subject of arguments. Growing apart or being unable to talk about things were also cited as frequent subjects of personal disputes.

When she gained weight, her husband would "use his hands in a sawing motion against my thighs" and warn, "You could get diabetes and they'll cut your legs off right here."

Caroline of Raleigh, N.C., said she used cardiopulmonary resuscitation to save her husband's life one morning when he collapsed after jogging. Six weeks later, while still recovering, he announced their marriage was over. The next thing she knew, he had moved a young blonde from his office into their condo.

During the divorce, he reneged on promises of financial support.

"Had I not been able to do CPR, I would have been alone, but financially comfortable," she wrote.

Carolyn of Redwood City, Calif., related how she was sitting on the couch after an exhausting trip to Disneyland with the kids when her architect husband informed her they had "irreconcilable architectural differences."

As Carolyn told it, he left in the midst of a home renovation:

"There was sheet rock stacked everywhere, dust filled every crevice. The roof was off, for God's sake!"

Carolyn, however, got her revenge, gloating about selling the now-renovated house to her husband at the peak of the market. "Oh, and one more thing," she wrote, "My ex-husband is now being laid off from his $85,000 job."

Sounds like material for the First Husbands Club Contest.

Why A Business This Big Runs A Yellow Page Ad This Small.

Actual Size

When people start reading the Yellow Pages every evening, we'll start running big ads in it. Until then the Yellow Pages is no more than a directory . . . that the average person seldom reads. Which is why we run our ads in the newspaper, and we suggest you do the same.

Your Yellow Pages salesperson can't tell you how many people see your ad every day in his directory. But we can tell you that over 7,000 households receive the Sanford Herald daily and 20,000 households receive the Herald Advertiser every week. That kind of coverage can lead to sales. Especially when you use the Herald to tell people about competitive pricing, a new location or service, or illustrate a clear advantage over the competition. You're not allowed to do any of these things in the Yellow Pages.

And another thing . . . you can't be flexible in the Yellow Pages. You're stuck with the same ad for a whole year. So what do you do when you need to respond to the market? Or promote a sale? Or build your image? You advertise in the newspaper.

So let us talk to you about opportunities in newspaper advertising. Our number is in the Yellow Pages, but remember, what just sold you on us was the newspaper.

Developer files for bankruptcy protection

Olympia & York, the world's largest development company, said today it has filed for bankruptcy protection in Canada and the United States while the Toronto-based firm struggles with more than $18 billion in debt.

A Canadian judge late Thursday granted the company's request for protection from its creditors to give it time to reorganize.

It wasn't immediately clear how the move would affect the developer's massive global holdings — including Manhattan's World Financial Center, Toronto's First Canadian Place, and other skyscrapers from London to Dallas.

Nevertheless, stocks tumbled on the London and Tokyo markets on the news of O&Y.

Grand jury demands expense records

WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury investigating the House Post Office is demanding office expense records of the Ways and Means Committee chairman, two other lawmakers and the former sergeant-at-arms.

Subpoenas made public Thursday provided the first indication that the grand jury wants to scrutinize records of House members. Until now, indictments and convictions focused on embezzlement and drug sales involving House Post Office employees.

The grand jury sought six years of vouchers for goods and services submitted by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.; Reps. Austin J. Murphy and Joseph Kolter, both D-Pa., and former Sergeant-at-Arms Jack Russ.

Perot critiqued as boss

DALLAS — Ross Perot was a tough boss at Electronic Data Systems Corp., instilling military-style order and dress codes. But he also inspired loyalty with extraordinary personal assistance and with benefits packages that made some rich.

"He was very, very demanding," said Jerry Dalton, a retired Air Force general who led EDS' public relations department from 1980-84. "There are a lot of people who for one reason or another couldn't cut it in his organization. For those who did and produced, he took good care of them."

"We used to say the kind of guy we wouldn't want around EDS was a lazy genius," said Tom Marques, Perot's first hire at EDS and later a vice president and director. "Ross is very, very interested in people living up to their potential."

Tougher laws sought

WASHINGTON — State and federal officials are calling for tougher laws against advertisers and fund-raisers who falsely imply some connection with Social Security to gain the confidence of older Americans.

"When disreputable people use Social Security as a come-on, the victims are among the most vulnerable of our citizens — elderly, poor and disabled Americans who can least afford the loss of money," said Social Security Commissioner Gwendolyn S. King.

"When elderly men and women are told that their Social Security benefits are not safe, they pay a terrible emotional price as well," she said.

Timber sales allowed

WASHINGTON — The Endangered Species Committee, chaired by Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan Jr., voted Thursday to allow timber sales on 13 tracts of land comprising 1,700 acres in two Oregon counties. The move should save 1,000 jobs.

The Bush administration had sought exemptions for 44 tracts; government biologists said that would threaten the owls' survival.

What is cause of hemorrhagic rash?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm presently in an institution and without funds to see a physician. Therefore, I must rely on your kindness to receive information regarding my condition. I was in good health prior to receiving Bactrim in 1987. One month later I was very ill, had internal bleeding and lost 85 pounds in approximately 90 days. I did recover from the bleeding but have suffered from lung damage and high anxiety with spells of dimming vision, weakness and insomnia. Do I have Stevens-Johnson syndrome, as I've been led to believe?

DEAR READER: Stevens-Johnson syndrome is a rare form of erythema multiforme, an acute unpredictable hemorrhagic rash. In the standard form, the rash appears on the extremities and face; in Stevens-Johnson syndrome, the lesions appear in the mouth, throat, eyes and between the buttocks. Although no cause can be found in more than 50 percent of patients with erythema multiforme, various vaccines, drugs and infections have been implicated in many cases. The affliction is believed to be a hypersensitivity reaction, a monsteralgia. Mild/moderate degrees of Stevens-Johnson syndrome are treated with supportive care: removal of suspected offending agents, use of compresses and pain medication. Severe degrees require intravenous therapy, antibiotics and/or cortisone. You could have had Stevens-Johnson syndrome, as a reaction to the antibiotic Bactrim. However, internal bleeding would be unusual in the syndrome, and your continuing symptoms ("dimming vision, weakness and insomnia") would be most unlikely. Stevens-Johnson syndrome is acute; once it has healed, symptoms disappear. I wonder if you could be experiencing problems from a persisting infection (for which you were prescribed Bactrim) or from some other ailment that should be identified. I suggest you ask the authorities in your

BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
Players come up with a myriad of excuses for errors. "I didn't see your discard, partner. The light is so bad." Today's hand occurred in a Welsh tournament. Met pairs went down in a major-suit small slam. But one player, who failed in six no-trump, had only himself to blame. Cover the East-West cards. Against six no-trump, West leads the diamond jack. You win and cash the A-Q of hearts, but East discards a low diamond. How do you continue? South's first two bids described a balanced 23-24 points. He converted to six no-trump just in case the trumps were breaking badly and they had 12 tricks elsewhere - what should have been a prudent decision. After the bad heart break came to light, the declarer saw that he needed three spade tricks to get home. "It was late in the evening - one gets lazy and relies on the spade finesse." But when the finesse lost and the suit broke 4-1, he went down. However, the contract is guaranteed. At trick four, lead a spade to the ace and a low spade back toward the queen. If the spades are 3-2, you have 12 tricks. And if West has king-fourth of spades, he can be squeezed in the majors. With the actual distribution, how does East defend? If he rises with the spade king, you have three spade tricks. If he ducks his king, you win with the queen and revert to hearts, giving West his trick in the suit. Your 12 tricks are two spades, four hearts, three diamonds and three clubs. ## By Bernice Bode Cool YOUR BIRTHDAY

You'll have the edge over your opposition in competitive arrangements in the year ahead. However, you'll still have to earn your victories; they won't be awarded without a contest. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not likely to be comfortable today operating in close proximity with forceful individuals. A clash of wills could result. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. GENI (May 21-June 20) Guard against the inclination today to make things more difficult than they are. This tendency could be rather strong, and it will impede your progress. CANCER (June 21-July 23) Be very selective today regarding social invitations you might receive. There's a possibility you may get involved with a crowd who could make you feel very uneasy. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Both you and your mate should be of the same mind today where important domestic decisions are concerned. If one decides something without the consent of the other, a rumble could result. VIRO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually, endeavors of a mental nature are your cup of tea. However, your powers of concentration might not be up to par today, and small mistakes are likely. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't open your wallet today to a friend who traditionally never repays. You don't want to help reinforce this individual's bad habits. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't put yourself in a position today where an associate whose abilities are not up to your standards is empowered to dictate your course of action. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you feel compelled to work on tasks you find distasteful today, your performance is not apt to be impressive. Better set them aside until you're in a better frame of mind. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Abide by the will of the majority today. If you don't, those you're involved with might gang up on you, and you could end up defending an untenable position. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be on guard in career situations today; there's a possibility you might experience opposition from several unexpected sources. Be prepared to adjust. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's best not to discuss your ideas prematurely with others today, especially an individual who has previously plagiarized your concepts. Let this individual do some independent thinking. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful at this time you don't become involved in a tricky financial arrangement that could demand a larger cash outlay from you than you had anticipated. ## IN BRIEF

Women to meet

Bring your utility bills and be prepared to find the answers to any questions you may have at the May 18, 10:30 a.m. meeting of the Seminole County Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at the Sanford Woman's Club, 309 S. Oak Ave. Commissioner Jack Taylor from the Public Service of Public Utilities in Tallahassee will be the guest speaker. Members of the Altamonte Springs Woman's Club, Casselberry Woman's Club, Seminole County Extension Homemakers, Garden Club of Sanford, SISTERS, Inc., Woman's Club of Sanford and the Junior Woman's Club of Sanford are invited to attend the meeting and covered dish luncheon. SISTERS, Inc., will hostess the meeting.

Seniors gather for lunch

The Sanford Senior Citizens will meet at noon Tuesday, May 19, at the senior center. Bring a bag lunch. After the business meeting, Tricia Thomas, Seminole County Urban Horticulturist, will speak on planting flowers in May. There will be a question and answer period. Everyone is welcome.

Toastmasters meet

Omni Toastmasters Club will hold its first meeting in new quarters, the Old Lake Mary City Hall, Country Club Road, at 5:15 p.m., Thursday, May 21. Anyone interested in public speaking and communications skills is welcome to attend. Call Rosella Bonham at 323-8284.

Trouble at home often leads to trouble at school

DEAR MARY: My dad lost his job last year and things are real bad for us financially, even though my mom is working two jobs now to try to keep things going. My dad used to go out looking for work every day, but for the past few months he seems to be spending more and more time just sitting in front of the TV, drinking beer, and yelling at everyone in the family. I can't ask for any money for the stuff I need for school, but then I get in trouble when I don't have it. Nothing I do at home is right according to my dad and now my grades are falling at school, because I can't concentrate. It seems like I can't win either place and I hate my life. I don't know what to do to make things better but I'd sure like some ideas.

DRUG COUNSELOR

find another person. A trusted relative, teacher, counselor, close friend, or church or youth worker are all good possibilities. Just talking about your situation and expressing your feelings in a safe place and way can make you feel less trapped and helpless.

Your letter sounds like you are mature enough to look for ways to earn money for some of your personal needs. Check around your neighborhood for people who might need a babysitter, some yard work done or errands run. These kinds of activities will help you structure your time so you won't be within "earshot" of your dad's yelling, as well as make you feel more in control of your own life. Remember, you can't change your family situation, but you can cope with it. Get going and good luck!

Mary Balk is a certified counselor with the Drug Prevention Office of the Seminole County School District. Write to her in care of the Herald at 800 N. French Ave., Sanford, 32771.

DEAR KEVIN: Trouble at home very often leads to trouble at school for kids. You are helpless in changing your dad's situation, but you're surely not helpless in making your own life work. It sounds like your dad is feeling depressed and angry and he's taking his feelings out on the rest of the family. You need to find a safe place to identify and express your feelings of fear and anger about what is happening without dumping on other people or sabotaging yourself. If you mom has the energy and time, you might try talking to her about your concerns. If she's too uptight, busy or tired to listen, then you will need to

Loved ones of prisoners need moral support, too

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter written by "Old Neighbor," whose neighbor's son was executed by the state. I surely feel for her. No, my son was not executed, but he's in a federal prison serving a life sentence.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

I suppose I should thank God he didn't get the death penalty, but it's been six years since he was convicted, and the pain never goes away. I've avoided old friends from my home state who may not know, so that I won't have to tell them. And I hate to meet new people, because eventually they get to talking about their families, and I just couldn't bring myself to tell anyone about my son's situation. It's strange, because he was just like their son - churchgoing, Little League baseball, Cub Scouts, well-liked and friendly.

I know it's not true, but at times I have felt that having a child in prison for life is worse than mourning a child's death. After burying a child, you know that he will never suffer pain again; but having a child locked away from the world forever is a nightmare that never ends.

I know you can't give me any answers because there are none, but just writing this has made me feel a little better. Thanks for being there, Abby.

NO NAMES OR LOCATION
DEAR NO NAME: My heart goes out to you, but please do not resign yourself to a nightmare that never ends.

The chaplain of the prison in which your son is incarcerated can tell you whether there is a support group for parents of prisoners. If there is none, perhaps you could start one. Loved ones of prisoners need all the support they can get. God bless you, Mother.

DEAR ABBY: On St. Valentine's Day of this year, I came home early from work to discover my husband of eight years in the arms of another woman. (The woman was my "friend.") It was the most devastating experience of my life.

As I sat and wept, many questions arose: "Was it my fault? Is this the end of my marriage? What about the children? Can I ever forgive him?"

I still don't have all the answers, but your recent column on forgiveness is posted on my fridge. I found comfort in those words and will read them every day. Thank you for being there.

LEARNING TO FORGIVE

Did you really win a vacation?

Every year it happens. People get scammed by over the phone free vacation promises. It usually starts in May. You get a telephone call saying you have won a vacation!

Become suspicious when the caller congratulates you for winning the trip, then says you must pay some kind of service charge. Be very skeptical when you are asked to get your credit card, if only to check its expiration date. (If you give the date, the next thing you will be asked is something like, "By the way, would you verify the number for certification or identification?") This is a good time to end the conversation and protect yourself.

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

Even if you should receive a trip, you will have to pay additional charges that make it at least as expensive as any other vacation. Hidden charges include things such as meals, transportation, and deposits. You may have to buy something from the company or pay a membership fee.

Often the accommodations are so poor that you will have to try to upgrade them - if you can.

Usually you have to give three dates when you want to take the vacation. Just before you think you are going, you may be told your date is not available and you must pick a new one. After two or three months you may find the phone is disconnected, and the company has moved on.

How did these people get your name? Remember that slip you filled out at a restaurant or at an auto repair shop - to win a trip? Everybody completing a slip was a winner. If thousands of people are contacted and only five percent respond, that is still a lot of money for the con artists.

How can you tell if an offer is legitimate or if you are about to be ripped off? A legitimate company will give you time to make a decision. Dishonest operators want you to make an instant decision. Ask the caller to send you all of the information in writing so that you can check it out and to be sure to list all costs that you are responsible for. If the company is unwilling to provide to do this, don't do business with it. Ask if the company offering the trip has professional affiliations, if so, list them. (They should include organizations such as the National Tour Association, American Society of Travel Agents or the U.S. Tour Operators Association. Call and check on their membership.)

Most companies offering vacation certificates are located in Florida because the state and the Caribbean are popular vacation destinations. Consumer protection agencies report vacation scams are "doing well." Many people lose from $300 to $400, however, some lose as much as $1,000. Remember the age old advice - as always, if it sounds too good to be true...it probably is!

Barbara Hughes/Gregg is Seminole County Extension Home Economist III. Replies can be written to her at Agriculture Extension Service, 250 W. County Home Road, Sanford, FL 32778.

Help find 'Best Dad' in county

The Sanford Herald is searching for an area dad deserving of our annual 'Dad of the Year' title.

We need our readers to help by writing letters of nomination, to be reviewed by our panel of judges.

Judging will be based on sincerity and clarity, with specific examples or anecdotes about why your nominee is a special dad a plus. Your nominee need not be your own dad.

Only residents of Seminole County are eligible to be nominated but their nominators need not live in Seminole County.

Here's how to enter: Write us a letter about a special dad, telling us why he's so special.

Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Include the nominee's name, street address, city, and daytime phone number at the top of your letter.

At the end of your letter include your name address, daytime phone number and age, if under 18.

Deliver or mail to "Dad of the Year," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, Fla., 32771.

There is no maximum length limit on letters. Entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m., Friday, June 12.

The top winners will be featured in the Father's Day edition of the Herald, Sunday, June 21.
