The old county jail downtown, now known as the courthouse annex, may be expanded upwards.

County Scrambles For Office Space

The old Seminole County jail, built in the late 1950s immediately behind the courthouse, already slated for renovations, may be expanded upwards to a third and fourth floor.

This is the latest idea of a county commission still scrambling to solve the recurring problem of needing more office space. The old jail expansion would provide space and offices for the juvenile court, at a spot away from regular court activities.

The county is also considering purchases of several buildings in Sanford.

The old jail was converted to office space for the state attorney and the supervisor of elections when the new jail at Five Points was opened in July 1980. The state attorney is still there; the elections office has been moved to the County Services Building. Plans are to renovate the two-story building, now known as the courthouse annex, to house the public defender, part of the staff of the clerk of the circuit court and the law library. The renovations are part of courthouse renovations already underway.

County commissioners earlier this week told County Services Director John Percy to determine whether the foundation of the old jail was built with the capability of supporting two additional floors and what the cost of that construction would be.

Percy said today the plans for the 25-year old building behind the courthouse show a third and fourth floor, but he hasn't been able to verify whether these plans were followed through by requiring a foundation sufficient in strength to handle two more floors.

He expects to have the information in hand to report to the commission at workshops either Monday or Tuesday. Commissioners are also considering purchasing at a cost of $415,000 the old Masonic Temple on Park Avenue and the Kirk Plaza on Commercial Street for $465,000 for additional office space.

But the former plan to renovate and expand the old health department building on French Avenue for juvenile justice facilities may be discarded. The problem is the costs of the renovations for a building that has limited parking space.

Percy has told the board that construction people in his office could do the work for $150,000 including materials, but the staff

Deputies Investigated

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Two Seminole County sheriff's deputies are under investigation today to determine if they were justified in waiting for about 20 minutes before arresting a man who allegedly performed a sex act on a 14-year-old Fern Park boy while the deputies were parked nearby.

The offense, according to investigative reports, occurred in a car. Deputies had under surveillance. And, although the alleged sex act lasted only a few minutes, deputies monitored the car for about 15 minutes before the act occurred. Another aspect of the probe, is whether deputies should have used the youth as bait in the case. It was deputies, investigators said, who themselves allowed the boy to meet the suspect.

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk ordered the internal investigation into the deputies' actions after department supervisors said they found conflicting statements in the deputies' reports of the incident, as well as apparent violations of procedural policies, according to John Spolski, department spokesman.

Sheriff's deputies G. H. Nagata and John Negri watched for 20 minutes while the man and the boy were in a parked car in the parking lot of the Krystal Restaurant on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Fern Park, at about midnight Tuesday, before moving in and charging Charles Roy Stallings, 36, an Orlando real estate broker, with sexual battery on a minor child and committing a lewd and lascivious act, according to a report written by Nagata.

The 14-year-old boy reportedly told the deputies that as they had watched the car, Stallings allegedly performed the sex act on him against his will, Nagata's report said. Nagata also said in the report that he and Negri did see movement in the car, and did see the man lean forward, but apparently neither deputy could see the actual sex act, if one did occur.

French Won't Become 'Substitute Jailers'

By David Cowell

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A Moslem militia official said today France has accepted a proposal to transfer 39 American hostages to the French Embassy, but the French Foreign Ministry said denied the report saying France is "ready to accept free people, but not hostages."

"We will not be substitute jailers," a French foreign ministry spokesman said in Paris. "The freedom must be unconditional. There is no question of participating in an operation that will become a commitment."

And Secretary of State George Shultz demanded that, in addition to the 39 hijack hostages held for 14 days, seven other Americans abducted in Beirut and held for as long as 15 months must also be returned.

Meanwhile, in Washington, in another twist in the 13-day drama, President Reagan has ordered an administration-wide news blackout amid unconfirmed reports that a break in the hostage crisis possibly could come from Syria or the Lebanese leader responsible for the captives.

The new demand from Shultz and the comments from Amal and French officials came amid news reports Israel was ready to release the remaining 735 Lebanese detainees demanded by Shiite gunmen in exchange for the Americans.

In Beirut, an official of the Shiite Amal militia who asked not to be identified said French officials had agreed to take custody of the 39 TWA hijack hostages and two French kidnap victims for two days.

He said French officials had sent a message to Washington asking the Reagan administration's approval.

The French ministry spokesman said Foreign Minister Roland Dumas talked by telephone Wednesday night with Shultz and Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres but gave no details of the talks.

ABC News reported Wednesday that Dumas called Peres to determine the Israeli position regarding the Lebanese prisoners —

New Engine Keeps 'Jenny' In Race

Editor's note: The Herald is monitoring the daily progress of Sanford's road rally team entered in "The Great American Race" which began Monday.

Sanford roadsters Gerald Gross and his father Don raced across New Mexico Wednesday in the third leg of the 3,300-mile cross-country "Great American Race" for antique cars.

The pair covered 360 miles before they stopped for the night in Amarillo, Texas, according to Patty Austin, Jerry Gross' secretary at his Sanford architectural firm.

The duo, tooling down the road in their 1932 Deluxe Model A "Jenny Steamcleaner," is in the top third of the field. Ms. Austin said.

About 88 of the original 92 cars are still in the race. Severe heat and wind knocked out 16 of the cars Tuesday but they were back in the race after making repairs.

Mechanics traveling with the Grosses spent all of Tuesday night overhauling the "Jenny," including replacing the worn out engine. Ms. Austin said the team is carrying extra parts, including two engines, to ensure they finish the race.

Fireworks Sponsors Short $1,000 For Display

Plans for a huge Fourth of July fireworks display on the lakefront in Sanford may fizzle if the project's sponsors don't raise more money.

The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, which is in charge of this year's display, is $1,000 short of the $3,000 needed to pay for the show, according to chamber President Jack Horner.

The chamber is asking businesses, civic clubs and individuals to contribute to its fireworks fund so the event will go off with a bang. Horner said those interested may mail their donation to the chamber at 400 E. First St., Sanford, 32771 or bring it by themselves. They may also call at 322-2212 and a representative from the chamber will come to their home to pick up a donation.

All checks should be made payable to the "Sanford Chamber of Commerce Fireworks Fund." All donations will go toward the purchase of fireworks and the names of contributors will be published in a special July 4th advertisement in the Evening Herald. Horner said. Any money collected over the amount needed will go toward next year's show.

The half-hour display will be put on by a pyrotechnics expert at 9 p.m.

"It will be the best we can afford to get," Horner said.

This is the first year the chamber has sponsored the

Fire On Disney Monorail

LAKE BUENA VISTA (UPI) — A crowded monorail car at Walt Disney World caught fire 20 feet above the ground late Wednesday and rescue workers lowered 200 passengers to safety with lift trucks, a Disney spokesman said.

No injuries were reported although six people were taken to a hospital for examination but did not require treatment, said a Disney spokesman.

The evacuation was described as orderly. Passengers scrambled atop the cars, then climbed into the basket-like lifts of several firetrucks and were lowered to the ground.

The overhead train had just left the theme park's EPCOT Center and was returning to the parking lot.

Kirchhoff Backs Mobile Home Request

'Mothers-In-Law Are An Endangered Species'

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Plas from two sons-in-law that their mother-in-law be allowed to live in a mobile home on property near them so they can take care of her touched the heart of County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff Tuesday night.

"Mothers-in-law are an endangered species," Kirchhoff said in a light vein. When there are two dedicated people who are trying to help their mother-in-law they should be encouraged.

Kirchhoff made the motion, requested by the Roy T. and Carl Roberts to overturn a Board of Adjustment's decision denying a special exception to the men to place a mobile home for a period of five years on a tract on the south side of state Road 419 and 434, west of Tusawilla Road was approved.

The commission voted unanimously to approve and commissioners advised the men that they could again go before that board at the end of five years and ask for a time extension.

The commissioners also approved a 10-year permit requested by Betty L. Eaddy to park her new mobile home on a parcel in Osceola Acres on the east side of Shawnee Trail near Osceola Road in southeast Seminole County.

Early in its evening public hearings Tuesday, the commissioners turned down the request when Mrs. Eaddy failed to appear. The turnout was on a 4-1 vote with Commissioner Barbara Christensen dissenting.

Mrs. Eaddy had requested in writing appealed the decision by the Board of Adjustment for a five year rather than a 10-year permit.

Mrs. Christensen in voting against the turnaround said it is possible that Mrs. Eaddy was having a mobile home financed and needed to have a 10-year permit because the financing was for a period of years.

When Mrs. Eaddy appeared later in the meeting, she asked for reconsideration, citing other mobile homes in her area which have 10-year permits and added that her mobile home is brand new and its financing is over a 10-year period.

The commissioners reconsidered the issue and overturned the Board of Adjustment decision unanimously.

In other zoning matters, the commission:

• Unanimously denied a change in zoning from agriculture to industrial for an eight acre parcel on the south side of county Road 427, west of County Home Road near Sanford requested by Frank G. Schmidt.

John Dwyer, county land development manager, said the majority of the site is wetlands and unsuitable for development. He also said the rezoning conflicts with planned policies to prohibit strip development along the two-lane road.

Schmidt did not appear at the public hearing until after the issue had been discussed and rejected. Schmidt earlier told the Planning and Zoning Commission that plans were to build warehouses and offices on the property.

• Approved a request by Louis Gabos and Lealie King for a change in

Bar Sued For Serving

He says the guy at the table with him was drunk.

He says that even though the guy was drunk, the barkeep kept serving him drinks.

He says he got into a long and hostile argument with the drunk man who subsequently beat him up when he tried to leave.

The bar is at fault, alleges Wayne Layton, of Orlando, in a civil suit filed Wednesday at the Seminole County Courthouse.

The incident occurred Oct. 19, 1983, a little after 1:30 p.m. at Bennigan's Tavern in Casselberry, on state Road 436, the suit states.

He states the bar should not have continued to serve the person drinks and did not call the police when it appeared they should have been called. In the ensuing attack, Layton says he suffered physical and mental pain, injuries, humiliation and medical expenses.

Layton is asking for damages in excess of $5,000. According to circuit court records, the intoxicated man was not prosecuted.

Jim Fisher, Layton's Altamonte Springs attorney, said today the suit is filed, in part, because a Florida Supreme Court ruling just a couple of months before the incident makes bartenders responsible for the safety of their customers.

Russian Duo On Trial For Spying Enter Pleas To Avoid Life Terms

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Russian immigrant couple charged with luring an FBI agent into espionage with promises of sex and gold made a deal two months into their trial and pleaded guilty to conspiracy in an emotional courtroom appearance.

Nikolai Ogorodnikov and his wife, Svetlana, pleaded guilty Wednesday to one count each of conspiracy to commit espionage. Ogorodnikov was immediately sentenced to eight years in prison and his wife will be sentenced July 15 to 18 years under the plea bargain agreement approved by U.S. District Judge David Kenyon.

Without the plea bargain, the couple who immigrated in 1973 could have been sentenced to life. They will be eligible for parole after serving one third of their sentences.

The former FBI agent, Richard Miller, 48, testified against his onetime lover, Svetlana, and her husband. Under a grant of immunity, his testimony cannot be used against him when his trial begins later this summer.

The Ogorodnikovs, working for the KGB, were arrested Oct. 2, 1984, at their Hollywood apartment on charges they offered Miller $65,000 in cash and gold in exchange for classified documents.

Fire's Toxic Fumes Sicken 100

COACHELLA, Calif. (UPI) — A poisonous cloud from a fire in a pesticide warehouse — the second such incident in Southern California this week — forced 2,000 people to flee their homes and farms in two desert towns.

More than 100 people were treated Wednesday for nausea attacks and breathing problems after inhaling fumes spewed from a burning warehouse containing 25 tons of pesticides and chemical fertilizers.

Hazardous materials experts in protective gear crept into the warehouse to gather samples of the fumes to determine how toxic it is. There was no estimate of when the people could return to their homes.

Fire broke out at the Wilbur Ellis Co. about 7:15 a.m. Crews feared putting water on the flames would create a chemical reaction that could touch off an explosion, so they let the fire smolder all day.

It was the second chemical warehouse fire in Southern California this week. A toxic plume from a burning pesticide storage building forced up to 10,000 people from their homes in Orange County Sunday and Monday.

Kennedy's Killer Denied Parole

SOLEADAD, Calif. (UPI) — Parole authorities decided without debate to reject Sirhan Sirhan's seventh request for parole, saying he must wait two more years to make another bid for release from the life sentence he is serving for the 1968 assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Sirhan, 41, reacted by denouncing the officials as "political lackeys following the orders of higher-ups."

Sirhan shot Kennedy in the head at close range at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles June 5, 1968, moments after the New York senator had won the California Democratic presidential primary.

He was convicted in 1969 and sentenced to die, but the penalty was reduced in 1972 to life in prison when the California Supreme Court outlawed the death sentence.

Gorbachev: U.S. Playing Games At Arms Talks

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, in his strongest anti-American speech yet, claims Washington is playing games at the Geneva arms talks and making curtailment of nuclear weapons impossible.

The televised speech to an audience of workers in the Ukrainian town of Dnepropetrovsk Wednesday was also his most ideological to date and called in a confident and stirring manner reminiscent of Nikita Khrushchev for a new banding together of socialist countries to combat capitalism.

In a speech interrupted several times by thunderous applause, Gorbachev described the U.S. attitude at the Geneva arms talks as foot-dragging and lacking in seriousness and called for better relations with China.

Gorbachev called the so-called defensive nature of "Star Wars," President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, "nothing but a fairy tale for the naive."

Behind it lies Washington's real plan "to try to paralyze the strategic weapons of the Soviet Union to guarantee for themselves the possibility of launching a nuclear strike at our country."

But, he warned, "The Soviet Union, if it faces a real threat from space, will find a means effectively to counter it — and, I am saying quite definitely, let no one have any doubts about it."

Solidarity Calls For Strike

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Authorities cracked down on Solidarity activists as the founder of the outlawed union urged Poles to protest a 15 percent increase in the price of meat July 1.

The Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu said Wednesday "meat will cost more starting ... July 1 and nobody should be surprised by the decision."

"The increases can lower the living standards of the people," Solidarity's founder, Lech Walesa, told reporters Wednesday.

"In this situation the people have a right to protest," Walesa said as underground Solidarity organizers repeated calls for a 15-minute strike on July 1.

The Nobel Peace Prize winner did not say what form the protests should take, but expressed his confidence "in the choice of the people" in continuing the struggle.

For the past two months Solidarity supporters have printed clandestine anti-state leaflets calling for a strike July 1 and a number of activists have been arrested, some receiving jail sentences of up to 3½ years.

'Mickey Mouse' Courses Out

NEA Moves To Toughen Teaching Requirements

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of America's biggest teachers' union predicts her group's convention delegates, fed up with "Mickey Mouse education courses," will support tough certification requirements for new teachers.

Mary Futrell, president of the 1.7 million-member National Education Association, said a vigorous entrance exam and internship program would help raise the esteem as well as the salaries of teachers.

"If we make training a lot more rigorous, a lot of people who complain about Mickey Mouse education courses will want to enter the profession," Futrell said Wednesday.

Teachers are now among the nation's lowest-paid professionals with an average salary of $23,000 — a fact cited to explain why most of the country's best and brightest students are seeking other fields of work.

Futrell said she will ask the 7,000 delegates to the NEA's six-day convention, which begins Friday, "to put the NEA squarely on record in support of the toughest possible certification requirements for new teachers."

"I've been working for at least a year indicating it is time to clarify our position," she said. "The response has been extremely positive. I believe it will pass overwhelmingly."

In the 1960s and 1970s, the NEA opposed standardized tests for students as well as teachers, charging that they were racially biased and obstructed equal opportunity.

In recent years, however, the NEA has worked with organizations that develop standardized tests and has backed off its hard line.

The NEA's smaller rival, the 580,000-member American Federation of Teachers, received praise in January when President Albert Shanker called for a national certification test for new teachers.

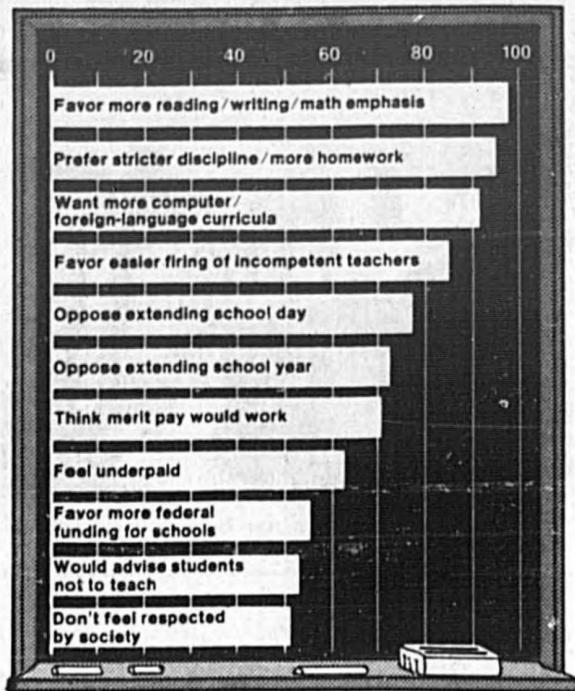

Futrell said she favors state exams but like Shanker wants the test developed with the assistance of teachers. Futrell and Shanker also favor an internship period for new teachers.

Futrell has also said no one should be allowed to teach unless they obtained an average of 2.5 out of a maximum 4.0 college grade point average.

"My goal is simple. A competent and caring teacher in every classroom," she said.

The NEA president said 35 states already have a "hodge-podge" of teacher entrance exams.

"We don't think they are doing an adequate job," she said. "We think we can come up with an instrument that is valid, that will assess whether those coming in can teach."

What Teachers Think

A survey of 2,000 U.S. teachers found that most favor a return to the 3 R's — along with increased discipline. More than half of the teachers feel underpaid and unrespected.

House Bans Space Weapons Testing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Wednesday banned all U.S. testing of anti-satellite weapons on objects in space, resolving one of the few remaining issues in the $292 billion defense authorization bill.

By a vote of 229-193, members passed an amendment offered by Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., that forbids tests of the U.S. system unless the Soviet Union resumes testing its own satellite killer system.

Rep. Jim Courter, R-N.J., prepared an amendment that would allow a minimum of three tests — the same number permitted in this fiscal year — but did not offer it, instead arguing against Brown's proposal. His amendment was the same as the Senate's position on the issue.

The opposing positions in the House and Senate versions will have to be worked out in a conference committee.

Brown argued the U.S. weapon was but another step in an arms race threatening to escalate into space and make the world less secure.

Courter, noting the Soviet Union has a system that can work sometimes, said, "We're dealing with a position of asymmetry," and argued development of the U.S. system would be a move toward deterrence.

Before adopting Brown's amendment, the House decided to add $20 million to the bill for studies of satellite survivability.

As the House moved into work on a long list of other defense amendments, members also agreed on a voice vote to add $1 billion to conventional weaponry readiness accounts from money saved by previous cutbacks in the MX missile program.

Members later passed an amendment 364-51 to give the Pentagon permission to go after drug smugglers.

The measure, which drew criticism on provisions authorizing the Pentagon to comply with requests from civilian agencies in interdicting drug shipments outside the United States, was hailed by most as an entirely proper job for the military.

In response to the spy case involving a Navy family and a close friend, the House also voted 333-71 Wednesday night to let the Pentagon give polygraph tests to applicants for access to data of the highest security classifications and to require random tests of those with access to such information.

Opponents argued the tests are of little value, but test backer Bill Dickinson, R-Ala., argued, "If it's only 50 percent effective, it's worth it."

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, said, "The good criminals will survive. The moles will go deeper."

Today, the House was expected to vote on a proposal to allow military courts-martial to impose the death penalty for convictions of peacetime espionage. Another amendment would call for a Pentagon study of a death penalty for those convicted of espionage.

The U.S. anti-satellite weapon consists of what amounts to a huge bullet atop a missile fired from a high-flying F-15 fighter. It rushes into space to collide with a low-flying satellite.

The Soviet system, tested but said to be effective about half the time, rises to match the orbit of a target satellite and then destroys it with an explosion.

Brown noted that three tests against an object in space can be undertaken this year, and said he wanted to block even those because of what he said was a Pentagon rush to declare the system ready for use.

The competing amendments were offered to the $292 billion fiscal 1986 defense authorization bill the House hopes to complete today before leaving on a Fourth of July holiday recess.

Pair Fined $50,000 Each For Cocaine Dealing

By Deane Jordan
 Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County will eventually be $100,000 richer because of two $50,000 fines handed out Wednesday in separate cases in circuit court for trafficking cocaine.

In the first case Ivan Silvan, also known as Ivan Sylvan, 25, of 302 Coble Drive, Longwood, was sentenced to 4 years in prison by Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. and was given a $50,000 fine. Silvan must serve at least 3 years of the sentence and bankruptcy cannot be declared to avoid the fine.

Silvan was arrested Nov. 5 by Altamonte Springs police in connection with his involvement in an Oct. 20 drug deal. A codefendant in the case, Anthony Bravo, 22, of Key Biscayne, did not show up for sentencing recently and is believed to have left the county for Colombia where he may have relatives, said Steve Laurence, prosecutor on the case. A warrant has been issued for Bravo's arrest. If arrested between now and Oct. 20, 1991, before statute of limitations nullify the charge, he can be sentenced in the case, Laurence said.

According to police reports, Silvan met with a Metropolitan Bureau of Investigation agent in the parking lot of the Handy Way convenience store, 250 Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs, and discussed the sale of a kilo of cocaine for $40,000. Forty minutes later the agent met with Silvan and a second man. The second man left then came back and said there were two people in the parking lot who looked like policemen. Silvan got suspicious and left, but the second man went ahead with the sale, offering the drugs to the agent. The second man was arrested at the scene and was later released on $10,000 bond.

Silvan was arrested Nov. 5. In the second case, Carole Sue Denton, 37, of 229 Hillcrest Drive, was sentenced by Davis to 3 years in prison and a $50,000 fine for her involvement in a cocaine sale.

Her son, James Franklin Denton Jr., 18, who pleaded guilty to possession of cocaine, was sentenced by Davis to 5 years probation.

A 16-year-old girl and a 41-year-old man also arrested in the case await disposition of their charges.

According to police records, an informant working with undercover agents contacted Mrs. Denton and her son on about four occasions between Oct. 1 and 4 to buy cocaine. During one meeting at the Day's Lodge on Douglas Road, Altamonte Springs, the informant paid the suspects $1,200 in marked money for an ounce of cocaine.

At a second meeting, the informant paid the couple $2,600 for two ounces of cocaine.

The informant then went to the woman's house where two other suspects lived and told the 16-year-old girl that police had arrested the Dentons. She allegedly called the 41-year-old man who came to the house. As the girl and the man were walking from the house, agents arrested them. The girl had $10,000 wrapped in a newspaper in her jacket pocket, a sheriff's report said.

Officers reported finding a "cocaine processing room" and five ounces of the drug in the home.

In early May through a civil suit brought by the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, the Dentons forfeited a car and almost $22,000 in drug money taken during the arrests.

Faison Takes Over Police, Fire Administrative Duties

Sanford City Manager Frank Faison is now officially in charge of the administrative affairs of the city's police and fire departments.

The city commission unanimously approved an ordinance Monday expanding the city manager's duties to include the administrative functions of those agencies.

The duties are mostly personnel related, such as approval of payrolls, maintaining files, approval of raises and handling insurance claims. The city manager would have no say about the departments' tactical or operational matters. The police and fire chiefs still will answer directly to the city commission.

The ordinance makes official a practice that has been in place for years. Former City Manager Warren "Pete" Knowles told the commission in March he had been working informally with the police and fire chiefs, helping them with budget and personnel matters. But he said such an ordinance was needed to tighten city organization and make the departments more accountable.

The ordinance was initiated by Mayor Betty Smith earlier this year. She said she wanted to bring all city departments under the supervision of the city manager. Faison said he agreed with the ordinance.

In other action, the commission:

• Asked City Attorney William Colbert to draft an ordinance creating a 15-member Youth Advisory Board. The idea was sparked by Commissioner David Farr who has said he wants to see a teen center established for the young people of Sanford so they don't have to wander "aimlessly" in shopping center parking lots.

As a start, Farr suggested the municipal civic center be opened on Friday and Saturday nights for dances and socials.

The committee is to consist of three commissioners, two teens and citizens.

• Agreed to pay Colbert $12,423.76 for work he did for March, April and May. The fee is for about 185 hours of work at $65 an hour plus other costs such as mailing and photocopies. Most of Colbert's time, about 108 hours, was spent preparing for and attending hearings at the state Department of Environmental Regulation in Tallahassee April 14 and 15, according to a report Colbert filed with the commission. At the hearings, the city was challenging DER's order that Sanford stop dumping treated sewage into Lake Monroe.

The commission also earmarked $10,000 to pay for the expenses of two new department heads. The directors of the Engineering and Planning and Administrative Services departments will each receive $5,000 to move to Sanford.

The two positions were created by the commission, which approved an ordinance consolidating the city staff from nine divisions into the two departments. The ordinance was requested by City Manager Frank Faison who said adding the new department heads would bring added expertise to City Hall.

Court: Choose Between Religious Faith And Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In declaring unconstitutional a state law protecting people from being forced to work on their Sabbath, the Supreme Court has, in effect, said some workers may be forced to choose between their job and their faith.

The justices, voting 8-1 Wednesday, struck down a Connecticut Sabbath observance statute, saying its "unyielding weighing in favor of Sabbath observers over all other interests" results in an unconstitutional mingling of church and state.

The ruling was a defeat for the Reagan administration, Connecticut and several state and city organizations that argued no employee should have to choose between practicing his faith and working at a particular job.

Writing for the majority, Chief Justice Warren Burger said, "The Connecticut statute imposes on employers and employees an absolute duty to conform their business practices to the particular religious practices of the employee."

The state thus commands that Sabbath religious concerns automatically control over all secular interests at the work place," Burger wrote. "As such, the statute goes beyond having an incidental or remote effect of advancing religion."

Justice William Rehnquist dissented. The case was brought by the estate of a man demoted for refusing to work on Sunday. Donald Thornton had challenged his demotion because Connecticut law requires employers to give workers one day a week off to practice their religion.

The law since has been amended to allow all workers at least one day of rest.

At first, Caldor successfully challenged his demotion, winning reimbursement for lost pay and fringe benefits.

But the state Supreme Court said the Sabbath law had religious overtones and advanced religion because it allowed religious people to designate their day off while denying that same right to those who do not observe a day of worship.

Thornton, a Presbyterian, worked from 1975 until March 8, 1980, as a department manager for Caldor Inc., a large New England department store chain.

Tombstone Planted In Woman's Front Yard

A South Seminole County woman glanced out her window Wednesday night and saw a the unusual sight of a tombstone planted in her front yard.

Maxine Efstathion, 44, of 2303 Fieldingwood St., made a hasty call to the sheriff's department.

Seminole County sheriff's deputy Joe Bennett reported the marker is a cross and the legible portion of the inscription says W. Robert, March 20, 1970.

Bennett checked the county cemetery on South Street and didn't find a place for the stolen stone there. The stone was turned over to the technical services division of the Sheriff's Department, a sheriff's report said.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—William Julian Herndon, 31, of Holly Hill, was arrested at 11:30 p.m. Wednesday after he was found sleeping in the driver's seat of his vehicle parked in the eastbound emergency lane of Interstate 4. The vehicle's motor was running and lights on. He was also charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and drug paraphernalia after a small quantity of pot, cigarette rolling papers and a cigarette were reportedly found in the vehicle, a Florida Highway Patrol report said.

—Jeff Michael Ventre, 22, of P.O. Box 1346 Lake Mills Road, Oviedo, at 3:30 a.m. Thursday after reportedly rolling his vehicle while being pursued by a Seminole County sheriff's deputy on Lake Mills Road at Fort Christmas Road, Oviedo. The deputy reported signaling for the man to dim the light of his vehicle. He did, but returned them to high beam, a sheriff's report said. The deputy began his pursuit of the man's vehicle and arrested him after the crash, the report said.

MACHINE MOLESTED

A 22-year-old Sanford man has been charged with "molesting" a vending machine and possession of burglary tools.

Sanford police reported the suspect allegedly tried to break into a pay telephone at 1612 W. 13th St., Sanford, at about 5 a.m. Police said he tried to pry open the phone using a screwdriver and a piece of cement block.

The screwdriver was reportedly found in a box just outside the door of the phone booth and the cement on a ledge inside, a police report said.

Michael Lee King, of 1515 W. 16th St., was arrested at the phone booth. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

COUPLE CHARGED

An Iowa man and an Orlando woman were arrested in Casselberry Wednesday and charged with possession of a vehicle reported stolen in North Carolina.

The pair were arrested after they were spotted in the 1984 Jeep Renegade at 1029 7th St., Casselberry, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

Todd Dean Van Fossen, 21, and Grace Marie Pickels, 23, were charged at about 10 p.m. Wednesday. They were being held in lieu of $5,000 bond each, after he fell from a forklift which crushed by a forklift remained in serious condition today in the critical care unit of Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford.

Melvin Angle, of 1912 1/2 Sanford Ave., suffered a broken leg and hip, as well as groin injuries and puncture wounds to his legs then ran over him, a rescue report said.

Angle was riding on the front of the forklift, steadying a barrel of chemicals, at S and H Fabricating, 2650 Jewett Lane, Sanford, at about 4:45 p.m. Sunday, when he slipped and fell in front of the vehicle, according to his grandfather, Britley Angle. The 1 1/2-ton forklift, being driven by another man, ran over the 115-pound Angle before it could be stopped, Angle said.

The driver then backed the forklift over him again to get him out from under the vehicle, according to Sanford rescue workers.

Britley Angle said he got his version of the story from company officials, they would not comment on the incident to the Herald.

Angle was heavily sedated and in severe pain Wednesday, his grandfather said. He underwent surgery Sunday night and is expected to be operated on many more times before his scheduled release in about eight weeks. He will also have to undergo extensive physical therapy, Angle said.

The doctor said if it would have run over his chest it would have killed him, Angle said.

CORRECTION

Marylen Jennings, 28, of 1203 W. Eighth St., Sanford, was taken to the hospital by her husband, George, after having a seizure at about 3 a.m. Saturday. The Evening Herald incorrectly reported that she was taken by a friend.

SLIP OF THE KNIFE

A 19-year-old Sanford man accidentally stabbed himself Tuesday morning but was not hospitalized, according to a rescue report.

Dennis Gales, of 415 S. Orange Ave., received a cut about one-half inch deep on his leg, the report said. Rescue workers bandaged the wound but Gales refused to be taken to the hospital.

JEEP FRAUD UPDATE

Seminole County sheriff's investigators said a man arrested Friday for allegedly bilking would-be buyers of U.S. government surplus Jeeps out of about $20,000 did business as National Wholesale Distribution, Fern Park. He reportedly even gave receipts to buyers of the non-existent vehicles.

Investigator Kevin Croater said some victims, who each gave the suspect a $200 deposit, may recognize the bogus company name instead of the suspect's. Those defrauded should report their case to him at the sheriff's department.

Since the arrest of Wayne Dale

Dreyer, 41, of 103 Borado Road, Sanford, on charges of grand theft and fraud, over 100 victims in Seminole and Orange counties have reported being defrauded, Croater said.

Some of the money, about $2,000, has been returned to the buyers of the vehicles which government officials have said do not exist and would never be sold in that way. The cases date back to November and, Croater said, the suspect had reportedly promised delivery of the un-assembled vehicles on April 26.

Dreyer has been released from the Seminole County jail on $5,000 bond.

DEALING BARTENDER

A 21-year-old Winter Park bartender has been charged with sale of cocaine after allegedly making a deal with a man working with Seminole County drug task force agents.

Agents reported their informant met the female suspect and allegedly bought 1/2 ounce of cocaine from her for $80 on April 27. The deal was reportedly made at the Hideaway Lounge, state Road 436, Casselberry, where the suspect works as manager and bartender, a sheriff's report said.

On Tuesday the woman was followed by a sheriff's deputy as she left her job. She was signaled to stop her vehicle at Gooding's Plaza, state Road 436, Casselberry, at about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, and was arrested.

Eddie Michelle Parnell, of 1487 Eastbrook Blvd., was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

THEFT ARRESTS

Two Daytona Beach men who attracted the attention of police while acting suspiciously in the parking lot of the Altamonte Mall, Altamonte Springs, have been charged in connection with the theft of items found in the car in which they were riding. One was also charged with theft of that car.

A woman with the men was not charged. Police reported becoming suspicious when they spotted the driver hanging around the car in 90-degree plus heat. After the other man and the woman joined him in the vehicle police pursued the car on state Road 436 to Interstate 4, where the vehicle was stopped.

Police reported finding savings bonds worth about $1,700 and belonging to a Holly Hill woman in the trunk of the car. Other items including clothing and a video recorder believed stolen in Volusia County were also found in the vehicle. Officers determined the car had also been stolen in South Daytona Beach in October 1984.

The driver, Audran Murray Butler, 29, has been charged with grand theft auto, resisting arrest, prowling and grand theft. Michael Johnson, 30, has been charged with second-degree grand theft. The arrests were made at about 6 p.m. Tuesday and both men were being held in lieu of $5,000 bond each.

DIDN'T MEAN TO SHOOT

Jane O. Franks, 37, of 151 Raintree Drive, Casselberry, accidentally shot herself in the right leg with her husband's .38-caliber revolver, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

Mrs. Franks was wounded at her home at about 7:30 a.m. Tuesday when the gun went off as she picked it up. She had entrance and exit wounds through her leg and deputies reported she was in fair condition after treatment at Winter Park Memorial Hospital, Winter Park.

Her husband, Ralph, 43, reported the incident to deputies, the report said.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

Leonard H. Hooks, 19, of Winter Springs, reported to sheriff's deputies that his wallet containing $342 was stolen after he placed it on a counter at the 7-Eleven, 111 Wekiva Springs Blvd., Longwood, at about 2 a.m. Wednesday.

A boat and motor worth about $2,000 were taken by a thief who also stole about $90 worth of food and other items from the home of William R. Hopkins, 38, of Route 1, Box 177K, Maureen Drive, Sanford, on Monday or Tuesday. The boat and motor were taken from a dock behind the house, a sheriff's report said.

A 1974 Harley Davidson motorcycle worth $4,500 was stolen from the home of Robert Henry Garling, 34, of Second and Church streets, Geneva, on Tuesday, a sheriff's report said.

About $560 worth of tools were stolen from Thomas L. Marcy of 4648 Tiffany Woods Circle, Oviedo, between June 5 and 21. Deputies said workmen were at the home when the tools disappeared.

Fishing gear and other items worth about $200 were stolen from a boat at the home of Halton Motter, 49, of 1020 Bear Lake Circle, Forest City, on Monday or Tuesday.

An oak shelf was stolen from a modular home at Gregory Mobile Homes, 3803 U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford, on June 21 or 22, according to a sheriff's report filed by salesman Budd Goldberg. The shelf is valued at $130.

About a dozen boxes of potato chips worth about $140 were stolen from a Frito Lay truck while it was parked at the home of driver David Allan Shirer, 26, of 303 Squire One Apartments, Howell Branch Road, Casselberry, on Monday or Tuesday, deputies reported.

Three bicycles valued together at about $300 were stolen from 610 Magnolia Ave., Sunday or Monday, police reported.

Someone broke into a car parked at 1901 W. 16th St., Sanford, on Sunday and stole a camera and some jewelry valued together at about $330, police reported. The thief broke into the car and ransacked a suitcase on the back seat, the police report said. The car and goods belong to Marcheta Jackson, 21, of the same address.

FIRE CALLS

The Sanford Fire Department responded to the following calls.

Tuesday

—2:37 p.m., Eighth Street and Avocado Avenue, rescue. A 61-year-old man complaining of stomach pains was taken to the hospital.

—3:06 p.m., 1401 W. Seminole Blvd., emergency-related. Firefighters were on standby while a helicopter landed at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

County Begins Search For Expressway Board Director

The county soon will begin the search for an engineer or planner to become the full-time executive director of the Seminole County Expressway Authority.

The authority, comprised of all five county commissioners and Sanford Commissioner David Farr and Altamonte Springs Commissioner Lee Constantine, asked the county commission earlier this month to hire a full-time director to demonstrate the authority's seriousness about building an expressway in Seminole.

During budget sessions last week, the commission tentatively approved a budget of $113,000 to set up an authority office.

Of that sum, $46,000 is expected to be the salary of the executive director, County Administrator Ken Hooper said.

The commission sent a prospective job description for the executive director's post to the authority for concurrence before the position is advertised.

The proposed budget for the department includes $74,000 for the salaries of a director and a secretary including fringe benefits, $24,000 for operations and $14,900 for office equipment.

The director is expected to be on the job by early October. Training required is a bachelor's or master's degree in engineering or planning with emphasis on transportation and a minimum of four years experience in engineering or planning in the area of transportation or an equivalent combination of related training and experience.

Hooper said the director will work with the county's deputy administrator for development, Woody Price, and have an office in the county services building.

Public Works Director Larry Sellers has been functioning as acting expressway authority director. The first project of the director will be spearheading the effort to get an expressway built in Seminole County. Such a toll road is slated to connect to the Orange County expressway near Dean Road in southeast Seminole County.

Arms Control Tranquilizer

Arms control has been described as the Valium of the nuclear age. Taking it relieves anxiety even if the illness remains untreated. This apt analogy helps explain the political and diplomatic pressures that shaped President Reagan's recent decision to continue abiding by the 1979 SALT II treaty.

On its face, the decision might reasonably be regarded as extraordinary. Mr. Reagan's administration — indeed the White House's own National Security Council — proclaims that the Soviets are violating important provisions of the SALT II treaty. Nevertheless, Mr. Reagan pledged to continue adhering to SALT II's limitations even to the point of dismantling a Poseidon-class missile submarine later this year when a successor Trident-class missile submarine goes to sea.

Breaking up a Poseidon submarine with its 16 nuclear missiles will leave the United States with about 1,880 long-range missiles and bombers. If the Soviets were adhering to SALT II's overall limit on what the treaty calls "strategic nuclear delivery vehicles," they could possess no more than 2,250 long-range missiles and bombers. But because the Kremlin ignores SALT II's aggregate limit, the Soviets deploy about 2,540 long-range nuclear missiles and bombers — 25 percent more than the United States.

For the Reagan administration in these circumstances to continue adhering scrupulously to every SALT II limitation is truly going the "extra mile" for arms control. Clearly, Mr. Reagan wants to encourage mutual restraint and foster an atmosphere conducive to progress at the next round of arms negotiations in Geneva. And just as clearly, he is under tremendous political pressure from Congress, from nervous American and European publics, and from allied governments in Western Europe to keep hopes for arms control alive however badly the Soviets behave.

But President Reagan must also know that unlimited forbearance in the face of continued Soviet cheating must sooner or later bankrupt the arms-control process and threaten American security. Mr. Reagan said as much in his formal statement reaffirming U.S. compliance with SALT II. Indeed, the failed record of arms control dating back a decade and a half is clear enough to conclude that America's security has already suffered as the balance of strategic power has shifted toward the Soviet Union.

The Soviets will now be waiting to see whether Mr. Reagan meant what he said about "proportionate responses" if Soviet violations of SALT II and other arms-control agreements continue, as presumably they will. For the record, Mr. Reagan ordered a formal Defense Department review of steps that might be taken this year or next to offset the military consequences of continued Soviet violations. In fact, of course, many of these steps are already obvious enough.

If the Soviets continue developing two new intercontinental ballistic missiles rather than the one permitted by SALT II, the Reagan administration could accelerate development of the proposed single-warhead mobile missile known as Midgetman. If the Soviets refuse to dismantle their prohibited SS-16 mobile missiles, the 100 U.S. Minuteman IIIs now in storage could be deployed on mobile launchers, and at very modest cost.

Mr. Reagan has offered Moscow what should be one last chance to demonstrate a good-faith commitment to arms control. The minimum requirement for doing so should be adherence to existing treaties and agreements. Absent Soviet adherence, the arms-control tranquilizer that now seems so soothing could well prove fatal.

Press Corps Deja Vu In Hostage Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is a sense of deja vu in the White House press center these days with the taking of some 40 American hostages in Lebanon.

Reporters who had covered the Iranian hostage crisis day by day in the Carter administration were back at the old stand again, morning, noon and night. The television networks resumed their ritual of sending in breakfast and dinner for their correspondents and crews.

It seemed that they were settling in for the long haul, but no one believes it will go the 444 days that President Jimmy Carter had to endure.

President Reagan and his top staff made a command decision to play down the crisis as an all-consuming event that would take his full-time attention. Aides indicate they do not want to follow in Carter's footsteps, as he became totally preoccupied in dealing with the fate of 52 hostages in Teheran.

But Carter did not shove all other business aside until after the siege had been on a long time. He also continued with his official duties and never expected that the ordeal would become a marathon.

If a crisis goes on a long time, the pressure builds up for a president to become totally immersed in a situation. Reagan has not been subjected to this kind of ordeal before, except for the aftermath of the tragic bombing of the Marine barracks in Beirut in which 241 men were killed.

The president has plunged into campaign-style traveling to promote his tax reform plan, calling himself the "lobbyist" for the American people.

He is treading softly on the plan's detractors but his communications director, Patrick Buchanan, is pulling no punches.

In a letter to The New York Times, Buchanan called New York Gov. Mario Cuomo "the glib-last-talking lobbyist for a reactionary liberalism that would kill the plan in its crib."

Cuomo has riled the White House with his opposition to the elimination of the state and local tax deductions from the new tax plan, calling it "double taxation."

It doesn't take long to lose your identity once you leave the White House.

Helene Von Damm, who joined Ronald Reagan when he was governor of California and later served as his secretary and personal assistant in the White House, found that times change when you give up your White House pass.

For the past two years she has been serving as ambassador to Austria. When she returned to Washington and wanted to call on the president to submit her resignation, she had to cool her heels at the gate while the guards put her name through the computer. But she took it very well, realizing that times change.

Curing Panic Attacks

By Lidia Wasowicz
UPI Science Writer

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — If you are among the one in 50 Americans who suffers panic attacks severe enough to limit your lifestyle, don't panic — you can be cured, an expert says.

"No matter how severe or what your panic attacks are all about, they can be overcome," Dr. Stewart Agras, director of the behavioral medicine program at Stanford University Medical School, writes in his book, Panic.

"The panic attack itself is only part of what for simplicity's sake I refer to in the book as the panic syndrome," Agras said in an interview. "The syndrome includes anxiety, phobia — particularly the limitation of mobility known as agoraphobia — isolation and depression."

Although the extent and severity of the panic syndrome vary from one person to the next, the first panic attack generally occurs in public, said Agras, professor of psychiatry.

"The victim of the attack suddenly feels ill, notices a fast and erratic heartbeat, experiences a tight feeling in the chest, breathes rapidly and may feel faint. The rapid breathing leads to chemical changes that cause tingling in the hands and feet, numbness around the mouth and dizziness.

"Often the physical symptoms are accompanied by a fear of death or impending doom, of becoming insane or of losing control."

Agras stressed he is not referring to ordinary fear, which everyone experiences at some point in life, but to panic that prevents the victim from functioning normally. The seven most common fears are of snakes, heights, storms, doctors, sickness, injury and death, Agras said.

"Although a fear of a harmless snake may be intense or may extend to a fear of crawling insects and mice, such a fear is not likely to interfere much with everyday living," he said.

On the other hand, agoraphobia — fear of open spaces, which affects 0.6 percent of the population — can keep its victims housebound and severely limit their lives.

During the past decade, doctors have made tremendous advances in treating phobias, Agras said.

A combination of antidepressant medications, such as Imipramine, and the therapy of gradual exposure to the feared situation have met with great success, he said.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Countering Terrorists

In considering ways of deterring terrorism, let us be careful to distinguish the technical difficulties from the moral ones. The former are severe, but not necessarily insuperable.

The terrorists in Lebanon are waging a small but highly effective war against this country, with a view to proving that it is a paper tiger and forcing it to withdraw from the Middle East altogether. The identity of the individual terrorists is unknown, but the communities from which they come, and whose local populations tacitly support them, are certainly capable of being ascertained.

The problem is to deter the terrorists. Threatening them with the loss of their own lives is ineffective, for they are clearly ready to die. But what if their relatives, friends, supporters and neighbors were threatened with the loss of their lives? It is reasonable to suppose that the terrorists (not to mention their relatives, etc.) would regret this result profoundly.

How, then, can the United States cause the relatives, etc. of the terrorists to fear the loss of their lives? First we should order all U.S. nationals, and all others who do not choose to support the terrorists, to withdraw from those specified geographic areas from which the terrorists are believed to have come and where they are known to be supported by substantial elements of the local population. Then the terrorists should be told that henceforth, for every hostage killed, 50 people in one of those areas — adult males if possible, but 50 in any case — will be killed at a time of our choosing.

That should set up some interesting stresses among the people in these areas. If one or more hostages are in fact subsequently killed by the terrorists, the threatened retaliation must be carried out inexorably. It should be possible for well-trained U.S. commando forces to conduct short, swift surprise attacks against small areas, with a very fair level of success and relatively low casualties on our side. But it must be recognized and stressed in advance that some women and children, and some innocent people who did not heed our warning, will inevitably be among the casualties. So will some of our own soldiers.

All of this is well within the legitimate limits of war as it was waged as recently as World War II. The bombing of enemy cities ordered by Churchill and FDR displayed less mercy for women and children than we may be able to offer in Lebanon. And certainly the civilians who died in those raids were individually no more culpable, and probably less so, than many or most of those who would die in these retaliatory attacks.

The opening stages of the process would almost certainly be bloody, for the terrorists would surely try to test our resolve. But war is inescapably bloody, and this is most certainly war. Gradually, as the grim new price of terrorism began to be paid by the communities that sustain the terrorists, including relatives whom the terrorists may love more than they love themselves, the pressures to desist from terrorism would rise and prevail.

Most of the Arab nations, long familiar with the concept of retaliation, would privately cheer us. The rest would hardly declare war on us (or win if they did), and our attacks would be too swift to enable them to come to the aid of the attacked communities in time.

WASHINGTON WORLD

Glenn's Touch Of Elitism

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Glenn, who suffered last year's campaign, has emerged from that unhappy experience with some strongly held views on how the national parties should proceed with the selection of presidential candidates.

The ideas, of course, are not new. There possibly no longer exists any form of reform that has not already been discussed.

Glenn has proposed a national primary day, larger tax credits for individual contributions to campaigns and keeping the polls open 24 hours on election day.

All the changes suggested by the Ohio Democrat have appeal but, for one reason or another, none are going to be put into effect — certainly not by 1988 and possibly never.

Yet, Glenn's testimony to the National Commission on Elections last week has a disturbing element — a touch of elitism that sounds strange coming from him.

Glenn rejected the view of those who argue that a National Primary Day "would clearly favor well-known and well-financed candidates, while reducing the prospects for so-called dark horses."

"But in my view, nobody ever promised the dark horses that they would be running for the roses anyway," Glenn said. "After all, the purpose of our nominating procedure is to choose a president and in the modern age, I believe that any candidate who has failed to build a national record and reputation — whether in politics, labor, the sciences or any other field of endeavor — probably has no business on the ballot in the first place."

The current system is probably a disaster, giving the small states of Iowa and New Hampshire an almost-or-break power over the nominations with their early caucuses and primaries. But it does not discriminate in favor of the well-known and the well-financed.

Would John Kennedy in 1960, George McGovern in 1972 and Jimmy Carter in 1976 won the Democratic nominations — given their lack of "national record and reputation" at that time? Probably not.

But Richard Nixon would have won the GOP nomination in 1968 and 1972. And look at what happened.

The present system is not the answer. But any system that closes the door to any candidate for the presidency is certainly not the answer.

After all, isn't this the country that has so long prided itself in the knowledge that any kid can grow up to be president.

JACK ANDERSON

Posse Closing In On T. Boone Pickens

By Jack Anderson
and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — T. Boone Pickens has already become a legend in the nation's financial community. The "takeover tycoon" has somewhat the image of the mysterious stranger in an old Western, who rides into town and challenges the entrenched interests by threatening to buy them out.

Often the mere hint of a Pickens takeover attempt is enough to send corporate executives running for cover like so many craven saloon loungers. But a close review of Pickens' record suggests that he may not be quite the hero his fans think he is — more a Bret Maverick than a Shane, you might say.

In fact, market analysts consider Mesa Petroleum, the Texas-based company he runs for $22-plus million a year (and worth it, he says), to be a fairly risky investment.

Our associate Donald Goldberg looked into one recent takeover by Mesa that made millions for Pickens — but appears to have been of doubtful value to the rest of Mesa's stockholders. What Mesa did — presumably at Pickens' direction — was to pay a generous price for stock in a company in which Pickens owned more than half-a-million shares. It was all perfectly legal.

The target of Mesa's takeover was actually a spinoff company, Mesa Royalty Trust, or MRT, a Houston-based firm that owns oil and gas reserves in Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming. Texas Commerce Bank, of which Pickens is a director and which has been involved in several of Mesa's takeover deals, was MRT's trustee.

During the 18 months prior to Mesa's announced takeover bid, MRT units, or shares, were selling at prices ranging from $22 to $29.63. Mesa offered $35. Although a Mesa spokesman insists the MRT purchase was designed to "acquire long-life, high-quality reserves" of gas and oil, analysts question the value of the deal to Mesa stockholders, given MRT's financial performance.

But Pickens made out like the proverbial bandit. He owned more than 3 percent of MRT, or upwards of 500,000 units. His take from the generous offer by his own company was more than $17.5 million.

Of course, as a Mesa stockholder, Pickens shared in the $507 million cost of the takeover. But his percentage of Mesa stock was only about 1.4 percent, so his share of the takeover cost was far less than the amount he made selling his MRT stock to Mesa.

Mesa officials deny any conflict of interest on Pickens' part. But some critics are not sure it was all so innocent. They wonder whether Pickens shouldn't have disclosed to Mesa's stockholders the fact that he would be enjoying a huge personal windfall in the deal.

Meanwhile, some Mesa stockholders reportedly are considering a lawsuit over Pickens' salary and other compensation for last year. In 1979, a stockholder suit led to an agreement that Pickens would be given an option for only 4.8 million shares of Mesa stock at a bargain price, instead of the 6 million originally given him. The deal was still worth about $30 million.

Footnote: The Securities and Exchange Commission is reportedly investigating possible insider-trading violations involving almost all of Pickens' takeover targets. There have been allegations that some investors were illegally tipped off in advance to Pickens takeover plans.

Shownda: You Can't Keep A Good Runner Down...For Long

Shownda Martin reflects on her tumble.

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

The group of runners was approaching the finish line and the gun that would signal the last lap of the 800 meter run. The pack, about five runners in all, was jockeying for position. The runners were plotting their moves.

Sanford's Shownda Martin was one of the runners in the pack. She was in second position in the race. Swiftly, she went to the outside and started to move to the front.

As she began to move to the outside, though, Martin's heel was stepped on from behind by the runner in third place. She fell to the track, much in the same way Mary Decker had in the 1984 Olympics in her infamous tangle with Zola Budd.

The other runners either went around or hopped over Martin who was shocked by what had happened. Instinctively, she got back to her feet in a futile attempt to try and get back in the race.

Martin finished the race in fifth place but it was a sad ending to what was developing into another outstanding race for Martin. During her phenomenal freshman year, she had never lost a race.

Track/Field

The race was the 800 meter finals at the Junior National Meet this past Saturday in Elmhurst, Ill., a suburb of Chicago. Martin, who had just completed her freshman year at Seminole High, was trying for a position on the Junior National team which would compete against teams from other countries over the summer.

Only the top two finishers qualified for the Junior National team.

"It was like Mary Decker all over again," Seminole High coach Emory Blake said. "I think she was a little indecisive on how she wanted to run the race."

The indecision arose on Friday after Martin had run her preliminary heat and qualified for Saturday's finals with a time of 2:13.5. In Friday's 800 meter heat, Martin, as is her style, went out fast but was nipped from behind at the finish line.

"Friday, she ran her race her way and said she got a little tired out and got nipped at the finish," Blake said. "Friday, she carried her group and someone came up on her. That night at dinner she said she'd let them pace her in the final and then come on at the end. She wanted someone else to take the pace."

Martin, 15, the youngest runner in the finals by far and perhaps the youngest at the entire meet, did what she said she'd do but, after one lap, the pace was too slow and she couldn't hold back.

"I wanted to go out and be second or third going into the second lap and then come out," Shownda said. "When I tried to move up, the girl's spikes caught my leg, then her spikes ran down my leg and caught the back of my spikes and I fell."

Blake blamed a slow pace for the mishap. "The pace they ran was relatively slow for Shownda," said Blake. "At the gun lap she decided to go ahead and run. When she decided to go out the third place girl tripped her up. She paused for four or five seconds. She was amazed at what happened. But she got up and passed three girls to finish fifth. Her time was 2:18, the winning time was 2:10. She was upset, she knew she could have won."

The fact that Martin got back up and finished strong impressed Blake.

Alomars Follow Father's Cleatsteps

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — Sandy Alomar is a great one for respect. He gives it, so he always gets it back.

Maybe he was only trying to teach some of that. Or, considering whom he was facing, maybe he was simply leaning over a little backwards.

Whatever the reason was, Alomar, pitching batting practice for the Charleston Rainbows, purposely put something extra on the ball.

It got away from him, his throw taking off and sailing dangerously close to the batter's head. Seeing how frantically the batter hit the dirt and how gratefully he lay there for an extra moment or so, Alomar swallowed hard and immediately looked into that area of the stands behind home plate.

He saw his wife staring at him in cold stark disbelief. She wasn't saying a word. There was no need. Her eyes said it all.

What in the world was wrong with him? Didn't he realize who that was up there at the plate? Couldn't he see how close he had come to hitting HER son, 17-year-old Roberto?

Marta Alomar's anger subsided quickly. She has been around baseball for many years. Long enough to realize a pitch can get away from anyone now and then. Even in batting practice.

Besides, Roberto Alomar, playing shortstop for Charleston in his first season in pro ball, is just as much Sandy Alomar's son as hers. So is Roberto's older brother, 18-year-old Sandy Jr., who catches for Charleston, the Class A team for whom their father is the first base coach.

The people who pay the salaries of all three members of the family, the San Diego Padres, consider both young Alomars definite big league prospects.

Sandy, a switch-hitting six-foot 180-pounder, is the "veteran" of the two. The way he handles himself behind the plate, he doesn't figure to remain at his present level too long even though he failed to hit .200 for the first half of the season.

Last summer, he played in 59 games with Spokane of the Northwest League and hit only .215. But he showed tremendous improvement with much faster Santurce in the Puerto Rican League last winter catching 15 games and hitting .270.

Roberto, who looks more like his father, is as tall as his brother but 20 pounds lighter. Also faster. He began the season at second base with Charleston and recently was switched to short. He hit .286 and stole 21 bases for the Rainbows in the first half.

"I know I am their father, so naturally I am not going to say anything to hurt either of them, but to be honest, I consider both boys big league prospects. You have to realize Roberto just turned 17 last February," his father says while his youngest son sits listening to what he has to say about him in the dugout.

"I'm sure there are times when the others on the team think I'm favoring my sons, but truthfully, I don't. They have to make it on their own. I think they can with the ability they have. To me, the two of them are the same. Only I know Sandy has more knowledge, so I talk more to Roberto. He's younger."

Milton Richman

At 41, Papa Alomar is pudgier than the 140-pound infielder you probably remember playing 15 years for the Braves, Mets, White Sox, Angels, Yankees and Rangers.

His other son, Sandy Jr., walks in from the field to join his father and brother in the dugout and the older Alomar talks about how he always tried to encourage them playing ball but never forced them to do it.

Sandy Jr., hears that and confirms it. "He told me be whatever you want. You want to be a ballplayer, go ahead. You don't want to be one, that's all right, too. But whatever you do, don't ever fall into drugs."

His father nods and addresses both his sons.

"I never set a bad example for you," he says to them. "You know I was in the big leagues for 15 years and I had to do something to stay there. I wasn't a great hitter. You know that, too. I played with some great ballplayers. Guys like Mickey Mantle, Willie Mays, Hank Aaron, Frank Robinson, Pete Rose. We all took a drink once in awhile, but never drugs."

Alomar had his best year in the majors in 1971 with the Angels when he batted .260 and finished second in the American League to the Twins' Cesar Tovar with 179 hits. He had four homers that season, his most ever.

Low point for him was his stay with the Mets in 1967 when he didn't get a hit in all the time he was with them, going 0-for-22 in 15 games.

"That could happen," he said shrugging it off. "I've seen people who went 0-for-30 and longer without a hit. It's just a slump. The Mets traded me to the White Sox and I hit .253 for them."

Alomar would like to get back to the big leagues as a coach, but his sons' progress is a greater priority with him.

"It much more important to me for them to get there," he says. "I was already there."

There is no conflict between Skaalen and Alomar about giving instructions to Sandy Jr., and Roberto. The brothers take them from both.

Off the field, their mother has the last word. The last two words, in fact.

"Play hard," she always tells both boys before they leave for the ballpark with their father.

Then she goes out and watches them do it.

Pitching Depth, Coaching Strengthens Junior Chances

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

While the Sanford Junior League All-Star team has always had plenty of talent, this year's group may have two things those in recent years didn't.

One is a pitching staff that is more than two deep. With four excellent starters, this year's team doubles what recent teams had.

Two is a manager, Jim Lucas, who is taking charge of the team and getting them to concentrate on one thing and one thing only — baseball.

Everything else, as usual, is there. The team, which consists of 13 and 14 year olds, is blessed with strong hitting and blazing speed on the bases. Defense, which has also been a problem area in the past, should be improved with a number of players who excel at more than one position.

The Sanford All-Stars open play in the Florida Junior Major League District 4 Tournament Monday at Port Orange. Sanford has an 8 p.m. battle with defending district champ and host Port Orange.

"We've got a lot of talented players and, if we can get them all playing together, we have a good shot," Lucas said. "We don't have very long to prepare but I think we can do well."

The two workhorses of the pitching staff figure to be Willie "Sugar Tex" McCloud and Ronald Cox. Both are overpowering pitchers who have also learned the curve pretty well in two years in the league. Cox pitched for league champion Ball Motor Line while McCloud hurled for Elks. Either McCloud or Cox will be on the mound when the Juniors open Monday night.

Although McCloud and Cox figure to be the top two starters, the pitching staff does not end there. Sammy Edwards and Mike Merthie were both outstanding starters and could be called on at any time in the tournament. When he's on Edwards, who pitched Kiwanis to the first half title, has as good control as anyone on the team. Merthie, a 13-year-old, came on strong in the second half for Moose.

Another powerful pitcher, Dwight Brinson of Knights of Columbus, could also see some action on the mound along with Jimbo Lucas (Ball Motor Line) and Von Eric Small (Knights).

The second difference in this year's team is Lucas who brings order to what in the past has been chaos. For example, in last year's district tournament, Sanford starters often left the dugout while the team was batting in the middle of an inning to visit the concession stand. At times, the players were more interested in what was going on off the field than on it.

Lucas wants his team to concentrate on baseball and nothing else. His Ball Motor Line team may not have had the best overall talent in the league, only two of his players made the All-Stars (along with two alternates), but his players were interested in playing the game instead of roaming around the concession stand.

"A lot of the players were kind of on their own during the season," Lucas said. "They pretty much did what they wanted. But I hope they can respond and come together as a team."

If the players respond to Lucas and play up to their potential, this Sanford Junior League All-Star team could go a long way.

Yugoslav Blasts Wilander

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Slobodan Zivjovic, a Yugoslav with the physique of a heavyweight boxer and a name that can knock you out, blasted fourth-seeded Swede Mats Wilander into first round oblivion Wednesday on a day when play finally interrupted rain at the Wimbledon tennis championships.

In a match that was postponed for two days because of bad weather, Zivjovic treated the Centre Court crowd to a devastating display of raw power as he cannonballed his way to a 6-2, 5-7, 7-5, 6-0 victory.

He serves unbelievably hard and I was never in the match," Wilander said after his Grand Slam bid was derailed. Previously, he won the Australian and French Opens.

Wilander's three-seeded compatriots cleared their first-round hurdles.

Fifth-seeded Anders Jarryd, who pulled back from two sets down before being halted by rain Tuesday, completed a 4-6, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-3 victory over Italian Claudio Panatta. Joakim Nystrom (7) defeated Britain's Leon Goodall 6-3, 6-3, 3-6, 6-0 and Stefan Edberg (14) crushed Australian Peter Doohan 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

But Sweden's Stefan Simonsson was never in contention against third-seeded American Jimmy Connors, Wimbledon champion in 1974 and 1982. The battle-hardened 32-year-old, a three-time losing finalist here, pounded out a comfortable 6-1, 6-3, 6-4 victory to join defending champion John McEnroe and second-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, who qualified for the second round during the first two days.

The men lost another seed Wednesday when No. 10 Aaron Krickstein bowed out 6-4, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4 against fellow-American Bud Schultz, 97th in the world rankings.

Elsewhere, 11th-seeded Frenchman Yannick Noah struggled against American Brad Gilbert before winning 6-4, 3-6, 7-6, 6-7, 6-3. The Italian Open champion gained the vital edge with a break in the fourth game of the deciding set, ending a run of 33 games which went with service.

But it was the giant VIVOJovic who was the focus of the third day of Wimbledon.

The 21-year-old Yugoslav, standing 6-foot-6 and weighing 198 pounds, said he was not awed at the prospect of facing Wilander on his Wimbledon debut. Zivjovic, 75th in the world rankings, had beaten the Swede in the first of three previous meetings as a junior, but they had never met on grass before.

"Wilander is a really, really good player, one of the best, but I thought I had a chance," said Zivjovic. "I like to play on grass. I have a good service, a solid return and a good volley. I have a good game for grass."

Cubs End Skid One Short Of Record

CHICAGO (UPI) — It figured that the Chicago Cubs' failure to execute a simple fundamental play would save them from the ignominy of a club record-setting defeat.

After all, not very much went right for the Cubs during their club record-tying losing streak.

The Cubs snapped a 13-game losing streak Wednesday by defeating the New York Mets, 7-3, — all because Keith Moreland couldn't lay down a bunt.

Moreland missed two attempts at bunting in the sixth inning then belted a three-run homer that carried the Cubs to their first victory since June 11.

"I was angry at myself for not getting the bunt down," said Moreland, whose three-run blast greeted reliever Roger McDowell, 5-3. "I hit a sinker that didn't sink."

It was Moreland's misplay of a fly ball in the first inning Tuesday that helped the Mets hand the Cubs their 13th straight victory.

"We're going to enjoy it now but like we forget about yesterday, we are going to forget about today tomorrow," said Moreland, whose homer was his fifth of the season.

Ryne Sandberg added a two-run homer in the seventh to help Ray Fontenot, 2-3, the last Cub starter to win a game, earn the victory. Lee Smith hurled the final two innings to combine with Fontenot on the six-hitter and earn his 16th save.

"I just hope now we can start on another streak," said Sandberg, who had three runs scored and went 3-for-3.

"We've been in labor for more than two weeks and we gave birth today," smiled Cub manager Jim Frey. "I just hope we have the brother tomorrow."

New York manager Davey Johnson defended his decision to replace starter Sid Fernandez in the sixth with McDowell after Fernandez had yielded back-to-back singles to Sandberg and Gary Matthews.

"McDowell has been my best relief pitcher all year and he has a good sinker," Johnson said. "I kinda wish Moreland had been able to lay that bunt down."

McDowell yielded both homers as the Mets lost for the first time in six outings against the Cubs.

Gary Carter had four hits, including a solo homer in the fourth, that put New York ahead 1-0. He missed a chance of hitting for the cycle when he was thrown out in the ninth attempting to stretch a single into a double.

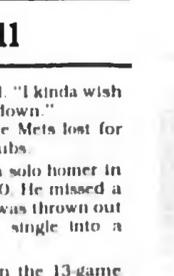

The Cubs had scored only 31 runs in the 13-game losing streak, which equaled the record set in 1944 and 1982.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati topped San Francisco 6-4, Pittsburgh ripped Montreal 11-2, Philadelphia downed St. Louis 6-4 and Atlanta defeated Houston 3-1.

In American League games, Detroit blanked Boston 3-0, Milwaukee edged Toronto 5-4, New York defeated Baltimore 4-3, Minnesota nipped Kansas City 2-1, Seattle topped Texas 5-4 in 10 innings, Oakland crushed Chicago 10-0 and California downed Cleveland 10-6.

Phillies 6, Cardinals 4
 At Philadelphia, Ozzie Virgil slammed a two-run homer in the sixth inning to help the Phillies extend their winning streak to five games. John Denny improved to 5-5. Kent Tekulve notched his sixth save. Mike Schmidt also homered for the Phillies.

Reds 6, Giants 4
 At Cincinnati, Tom Browning, 8-5, gave up eight hits over 7 1-3 innings to pace the defeat of San Francisco. Cincinnati player-manager Pete Rose went 2-for-4, singling twice off starter Mike Krukow, 5-5. Rose needs 11 hits to break Ty Cobb's career hit record of 4,191.

Ryne Sandberg ...2-run shot

Ozzie Virgil ...Slams Cards

Pirates 11, Expos 2
 At Pittsburgh, Marvell Wynne drove in three runs and Bill Almon and Jason Thompson drove in two runs each to help the Pirates snap a four-game losing streak and beat Montreal. Rick Reuschel, 4-1, pitched his first complete game since May 13, 1984. The loss went to Jack O'Connor, 0-1.

Braves 3, Astros 1
 At Houston, pinch-hitter Albert Hall tripled to score Glenn Hubbard from first base in the 11th inning to give Sutter pitched an inning for his 13th save. Dave Smith, 4-3, was the loser.

Padres 10, Dodgers 4
 At San Diego, LaMarr Hoyt posted his eighth straight victory and Tim Flannery and Steve Garvey each hit a three-run homer to send Los Angeles to defeat. Hoyt, 10-4, held the Dodgers to seven hits, including solo home runs by Pedro Guerrero and Greg Brock. Hoyt struck out three and walked two in notching his seventh complete game in 16 starts.

Ueberroth: Avoid Long-Term Leases

SEATTLE (UPI) — Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth has some advice for cities trying to save their major league teams: don't try to tie them down with a long-term lease.

Although Ueberroth lately has become more outspoken in his desire to prevent financially ailing major league baseball franchises from seeking greener pastures in new cities, Ueberroth Wednesday gave his blessing to a renegotiated stadium lease that would allow the Mariners to leave town after 1987 if their attendance doesn't improve.

While on a visit to Seattle, Ueberroth claimed there is no contradiction in his endorsement of the Mariners' new escape clause.

"An escape clause helps a team stay," he maintained. "You've got to understand that."

"If somebody wants to have a lease on a ballpark that says 'We've got you now, you can't move,' that's a bulldozer pushing you out of town."

"It's dumb. It's not well

"She showed the other part of her," he said. "She showed she had the guts to come back after she was down. She could have easily just laid there."

"There's no doubt if she had another 20 yards after she got up she could have caught the first girl. She was only eight seconds behind. I think she was shocked and stunned that it happened to her so she hesitated a bit before she got back up."

Martin said it was only natural to get up. "I just thought to get right back up," Martin said. "I thought I could have gotten second or third if I had 20 or 30 more yards."

Martin had not experienced anything like she did Saturday during the 1985 prep track season. Every time she ran the 880 yard run, Martin immediately went to the lead and never looked back. She won every time she ran the 880 including the 4A State title in record time.

"She learned a valuable lesson," Blake said. "If she's going to lose, it's going to be her way. Shownda said after it was over she was going to run her race from now on."

The memories, nevertheless, are painful. "When it was over, I was thinking, 'Why did I have to fall?'" Martin said. "If I had it to do over again, I'd go out fast like I usually do and try to stay out of the pack. I found out the best thing for me to do is just go right out and take it."

Martin later went on to run the mile relay and said her knee was a bit swollen when she was running. She also found out later that she had a sprained ankle.

Although she won't be competing on the Junior National team, Martin still has a chance to qualify for a national meet in Seattle. She will run in a qualifying meet this weekend at Showalter Field in Winter Park. Blake said the qualifying time is basically the same, around 2:11. Martin ran a 2:09.9 the last time she ran at Showalter Field.

Martin said she hopes to be completely recovered for this weekend's meet. "It was real sore yesterday (Monday)," she said. "I walked on it today and ran some and it was feeling much better."

Even though she still has three years of high school left, college coaches are already beginning to keep track of Martin. Blake said the coaches from LSU and UCLA want to keep up with her progress in the upcoming years.

Martin's dream of making the Junior National team may have been shattered but it is not the last you will hear from this talented athlete. Martin will be a sophomore at Seminole High in 1985-86 and, while she may have to wait another year before she is pushed her specialty, the 880 run (800 meters), Martin will remember what happened Saturday, June 22. She will learn from it and she will know what to do the next time she's in a crowd. If there is a next time.

The Seminole High mile relay team, unbeaten during the prep track season, took second place in the 4x400 meter relay Saturday at the Junior National Meet. First place went to a combined team of some of the top open quarter runners in the northeast.

The Seminole High foursome of Martin and fellow freshman Dorchelle Webster along with seniors Glenda Bass and Katrina Walker finished with a time of 3:51.

"The mile relay team felt they were a little rusty," Blake said. "They felt they could have won if they had another week of practice."

Walker and Bass recently decided to accept a grant-in-aid to attend Florida A&M University in 1985-86.

Blake said the trip to Illinois was an adventure for the girls since it was their first plane ride. "Except for taking off and landing, they really enjoyed it," Blake said.

"I enjoyed the trip," Shownda said. "I was scared to go on the plane at first. The landing and taking off was scary. But we had a lot of fun."

Smalley Sinks Royals

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Faced with a difficult situation, Roy Smalley employed the power of negative thinking.

Walking to the plate to face Dan Quisenberry in the bottom of the ninth with the bases loaded and the Minnesota Twins trailing 1-0, Smalley was "thinking about how tough he is, and how I'm probably not going to get a hit off him."

Back in the Twins dugout, Ken Schrom was pondering how it would feel to pitch a one-hitter and lose.

Smalley surprised himself, however, with a two-run single, lifting Minnesota to a 2-1 victory over Kansas City.

"That's what relief pitching is all about," Quisenberry said. "You're put in there to be the hero — I am, anyway — and I like to pitch in those situations. Tonight, I just didn't get the man out."

Although Schrom struck out four and yielded only Wilson's third-inning single to center, he had control problems with his fastball — both to the plate and to second base. He walked five, and his erratic pick-off throw and wild pitch in the first gave the Royals their only run.

After striking out Wilson to start the game, Schrom walked Lonnie Smith and moved him to third with a throw into the Kansas City bullpen. Smith scored on a pitch that bounced to the backstop.

The pick-off attempt, Schrom said, "slid like a cut fastball. It was probably the best-moving ball I threw all night."

"If we would have lost the game," he said, "it wouldn't have been anybody's fault but my own."

Kansas City's only other scoring threat came in the sixth when George Brett belted a long fly to center, but Puckett pulled it in at the 408-foot sign.

Schrom's performance, Smalley said, "is the closest you'll ever see to a no-hitter in this ball park against this good a hitting team."

A's 10, White Sox 0

At Oakland, Calif., Don Sutton pitched a four-hitter and Rob Piccolo had four RBI in the rout of Chicago. Sutton, 7-5, recorded his first shutout of the season, and 57th of his career, placing him ninth on the all-time list. Floyd Bannister, 5-6, took the loss.

Mariners 5, Rangers 4

At Seattle, pinch-hitter Barry Bonnell drew a bases-loaded walk from reliever Dave Stewart to force home the winning run in the 10th inning and stop Texas. Stewart, 0-4, pitched 2 1-3 inning. Roy Thomas, 2-0, pitched two-thirds of an inning for the victory.

Tigers 3, Red Sox 0

At Boston, Randy O'Neal and Willie Hernandez combined on a seven-hitter and Kirk Gibson drove in two runs with a homer and a single to lead Detroit. O'Neal, 3-1, allowed five hits and struck out five in seven innings. Hernandez posted his 16th save.

Yankees 4, Orioles 3

At New York, Bobby Meacham's two-run single with one out in the ninth inning helped the Yankees beat Baltimore for the sixth straight time this season. Two errors by Oriole second baseman Lenn Sakata paved the way for the victory. Yankee Rickey Henderson stole four bases.

Angels 10, Indians 6

At Anaheim, Calif., Reggie Jackson belted his 11th career grand slam and reliever Luis Sanchez picked up the victory in his first appearance in more than two months to defeat Cleveland. Sanchez, 1-0, who had been sidelined since April 23 with a neck injury, struck out four and gave up three hits in 3 1-3 innings.

USL Suspends Season, Leaves U.S. Without Outdoor League

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Financial troubles with two of its four teams have forced the United Soccer League to suspend its season, leaving the country without a professional outdoor soccer league, officials say.

A spokesman for the South Florida Sun in Fort Lauderdale said Wednesday the USL franchise in El Paso, Texas, has disbanded and the Tulsa, Okla., franchise is in dire financial straits. The other USL team is the Dallas Americans.

The Sun was scheduled to play El Paso at Lockhart Stadium Wednesday night.

Following the collapse of the North American Soccer League last winter, the USL was the only professional outdoor soccer league in the country, said Sun spokesman Musa Njai.

The Sun will try to fulfill its 15 home dates with exhibitions and perhaps tournaments involving Dallas and other teams. The Sun will play an exhibition match with the Minnesota Strikers, formerly of the NASL, on July 4.

The league is in its second season. It began last year with nine teams and started this season with only four teams.

Stories of financial woes surfaced often during the young season, including a boycott of a game by Tulsa players angry over not receiving paychecks. There was only one regular season game played this year, with the Sun defeating Dallas 3-1.

Harding-Reese Make Duet Final

The Lake Mary High team of Tia Harding and Alice Reese took third place in the duet competition in the semifinals of the South Zone Synchronized Swimming Championships at the Justus Aquatic Center in Orlando.

Harding and Reese, members of the Justus Loreleis team, turned in a score of 74.8 in Wednesday's competition. The finals in duet and trio will be tonight beginning at 7 at the Justus center.

Along with competing in the duet finals, Harding and Reese will join with fellow Lake Mary student Patty Ames in the trio competition finals. The duet and trio is looking to qualify for the nationals next week in Fort Lauderdale.

Greene Leads Mice Victory

Lorie Greene, a junior at Oviedo High, turned in a stellar mound performance for the Oviedo Mice in a 10-7 victory over Dynamic Control in Longwood Women's Softball League action last week.

Greene scattered nine hits, walked just two and fielded her position to perfection. She also rapped out two hits to help the 16-hit offensive attack.

Also contributing a pair of hits for the Mice were Stephanie Nelson, Ava Gardner, Renee Kelley, Bobbie Kelley and Riane Richardson. Terri Mann drove in three runs and Renee Kelley two. Gardner scored three times and Nelson twice in the 1-2 slots in the batting order.

Defensively, Gardner sparkled at first base with lots of help from Nelson at short, Tina Benington at third and outfielders Shelley Vaughn, Richardson and Renee Kelley.

Organist Booted At FSL Game

CLEARWATER (UPI) — An organist who launched into a round of "Three Blind Mice" at the Florida State League baseball game between the Osceola Astros and host Clearwater Phillies following a controversial call by an umpire was ejected from the stadium Wednesday night.

Wilbur Snapp was escorted by officials from Jack Russell Stadium after home-plate umpire Kevin O'Connor said he would not allow the minor league game to resume until the organist was out of the park.

In the bottom of the third inning, the Clearwater Phillies' Rick Jordan lifted a fly to right field with one out and a man on first base. The Osceola Astros' right fielder caught the ball and threw to first base to cut off Clearwater's Howard Nichols, who had tried to advance to second.

First-base umpire John Golden called Nichols out — and Snapp began to play.

O'Connor said he kicked out Snapp for being a detriment to the game, according to Phillies general manager Dave Rowan.

Astros Bow To Clearwater, 9-2

CLEARWATER — The ejection of the their organist didn't seem to bother the Clearwater Phillies Wednesday night as they rapped out 13 hits en route to a 9-2 victory over the Osceola Astros in Florida State League Central Division action.

The Astros still hold a four-game lead in the division. Bob Parker was 1 for 4 with an RBI and an error for the Astros.

In Southern League play, the Knoxville Blue Jays took an early 4-1 lead and never looked back en route to a 9-3 victory over the Orlando Twins at Tinker Field in Orlando.

See Violator? Make Easy Cash

You may collect up to $1000 in cash and no one will ever know your identity.

It's easy. All you have to do is provide the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission with information about a wildlife law violation which leads to an arrest. The commission, through its Wildlife Alert Program, will pay you from $25 to $1000 cash for this information. Your identity will be unknown to everyone, even commission employees and you will never be asked to make a court appearance.

Wildlife law violators are thieves who are stealing from your wildlife heritage. You may help catch some of those who operate outside wildlife rules and regulations with a phone call and a few minutes of your time.

It's simple. If you witness a fish or wildlife law violation call the nearest office of the Commission. The Commission needs as much information as you can supply. Such things as make the description of vehicle or who is doing what, when, where, and how are very important.

It's uncomplicated. If you call and request a reward, you will be assigned a code number. Subsequently, if your information leads to an arrest, you will be asked to meet a Commission officer at some reasonable place and time of your choosing. You need only to identify yourself by your code number and the officer will hand over the cash.

It's working. Wildlife Alert works and it works well. Since its inauguration in November of 1979, over 3000 arrests have been made and over $70,000 have been paid to concerned citizens who took time to call. These people are responsible for the program's success.

Telephone lines at the Commission's five regional offices are open 24 hours a day 7 days a week. The phone numbers are as close as the inside cover of your phone book. They're listed along with the local police, fire, and sheriff's numbers. The phone numbers for the Commission's regional office in Ocala are 1-800-342-9620 or 904-629-8165.

It's up to you. Del Abernethy, owner of the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp, reminds everyone that the next Buddy Bass Tournament will by Sunday, July 7 at safelight. Del says register by Saturday, 6:30 p.m. It costs 25 bucks and an extra 10 spot option for the big bass pot. The tournament pays big bass, first, second, third and fourth places. There are trophies for big bass first through third. A case of beer goes to the angler with the largest dead mudfish. Del emphasizes the dead part.

Del throws in the plastic bags and Mike Sanford, who owns Varmint Bait Company in Sanford, throws in sample worms, hats and spinner baits for the fourth and fifth place finishers.

Sanford's Bruce Robinson landed a 14-pound 4-ounce bass last week. Bruce caught it in the river.

"Otherwise the fishing has been kind of slow," says Del. "The water will cool off with the afternoon rains but the river is down."

Del says the catfish are biting real well on worms and crickets. The bream, and shellcrackers are also biting. "They are catching some big cats," says Del. "One guy had almost 23 pounds with eight cats. You have to fish on the bottom in the deeper water for the cats."

"Fish the shallow water for bream. Bass can be caught early morning in the shallow water. After the sun comes up and gets hot, go to deep holes with deep-running crank bait. Use a Model-A Bomber or a Shad-Rap," advises Del.

Tot Back In The Swim After Near Drowning

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A 2-year-old Ohio girl rescued by cardio pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) by a Seminole County sheriff's deputy was swimming the next day in the New Smyrna Beach pool where she almost drowned.

Capt. Beau Taylor was vacationing with his family at the Colony Beach Condos in New Smyrna Beach on June 18, when his sons Chris, 10, and Cliff, 13, ran to their apartment and told Taylor he was needed at the pool, because a little girl had just drowned, he said.

"They (another girl who had found the tot lying on the bottom of the pool) had gotten her out. She was blue, she had no pulse. A boy was pressing on her chest. I gave her CPR for about three minutes and got the water out and got her breathing," Taylor said.

'It's the greatest feeling in the world.'

Capt. Beau Taylor, after saving the baby

Bridget Franklin of Youngstown, who hasn't learned to swim yet, was vacationing with her parents and other family members. She was checked over by beach lifeguards, Taylor said, and then transported to a hospital.

She suffered no brain damage and the next day was back in the pool wearing the inflatable life ring her parents had just removed from her when she wandered back to the pool and fell in, he said.

Bridget, whose parents and siblings had returned to their apartment, apparently fell at about 2 p.m. as she walked on the edge of the pool. She hit her head on the poolside, landed in the water and sank to the bottom before another girl realized she was in trouble and pulled her out of the crowded pool, Taylor said.

"It's the greatest feeling in the world," having saved the child, Taylor said. He feels a strong emotional bond with her and plans to keep in touch with Bridget. Taylor said he strongly recommends to everyone that they learn life saving CPR.

Colleges Stem Flow Of Booze

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — The head of the largest student alcohol awareness organization in the nation says colleges across the country are changing their on-campus drinking policies to avoid lawsuits.

"There's a real sense of urgency on campuses to look at alcohol policies, tighten them up, make them more comprehensive and consistent with the shift in public opinion," said Gerardo Gonzalez, a University of Florida dean and the president of a group called Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students.

Preliminary results from a national survey by BACCHUS of administrators at 200 four-year schools shows 94 percent polled were concerned about being sued for an alcohol-related incident.

About a third of those polled were developing or revising alcohol policies. About 26 percent said they recently had revised their policies.

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

House Committee Kills Florida Barge Canal

United Press International

The federal House of Representatives Public Works Committee Wednesday voted to deauthorize the uncompleted portion of the Cross-Florida Barge Canal, a move that had both sides in the controversial issue claiming satisfaction.

The project was designed to create a 110-mile canal running from south of Jacksonville on the east coast to Yankeetown on the west coast. The panel's action deauthorizes the uncompleted 60- to 70-mile stretch of the planned canal from Eureka Dam to Inglis Dam, cutting the middle out of the canal.

The remaining, completed portion of the canal — west of Inglis Dam and east of Eureka Dam — would remain authorized Army Corps of Engineers projects for navigation and other uses.

Gov. Bob Graham — a long-time opponent of finishing the canal, which he considers environmentally and economically unsound — said the committee vote to essentially terminate the project "is good news for Florida and for America."

FBI Tried To Win Kingpin's Parole

MIAMI (UPI) — An imprisoned cocaine kingpin replied "no" to two questions in an FBI investigation of corruption, and the bureau recommended he be paroled early on the basis of his cooperation, a published report says.

Four months ago, an FBI agent asked Mario Escandar, "Do you know any Hialeah councilmen?" and "Do you know anything about corruption in Hialeah?"

Escandar said no to both questions. The FBI admits that because of those two answers, it wrote a letter to the Florida Parole and Probation Commission that said Escandar is cooperating "in a new and on-going investigative matter." The Miami Herald reported Wednesday.

The letter, which supported an early parole date for Escandar, helped the inmate obtain a hearing held in Tallahassee June 19. Escandar, who has been in prison four years, had sought a reduced sentence twice before and was turned down. The four-paragraph letter on FBI stationery was necessary to reopen his appeal.

Despite the letter, the commission rejected Escandar's plea for reduction in his 15-year sentence on kidnapping and theft charges.

Officer Decks, Disarms Would-Be Robber

MIAMI (UPI) — A policeman disarmed a would-be bank robber by punching him in the face, then grabbed his own weapon and the suspect's Uzi submachinegun and handcuffed him.

Police and witnesses said the robber, a slightly built man wearing a gray suit, entered the Intercontinental Bank about 11:20 a.m. Wednesday and took the submachinegun from a briefcase.

He walked up behind the police officer, Rodolfo Arias, 29, who was working part-time as a bank guard, prodded him in the back and ordered him to remove his revolver from its holster.

"Arias reaches with his right hand to take out his gun, which is on his right hip," said police spokesman Mike Stewart. "As soon as he touches it, the guy franks off a round into the floor and says, 'Use your other hand or the next one goes through your head,' so Arias takes out the gun with his left hand."

Civilian security guard Sergio Torrente, 48, was in a back room and went to investigate when he heard the shot.

Witnesses said Torrente peeked around the corner of a hallway at the opposite end of the bank and saw Arias being disarmed by the holdup man.

Torrente pulled out his own revolver and yelled at the robber to drop his weapon, distracting him.

Arias swung a right uppercut to the face of the robber, knocking him and the submachinegun to the floor. Arias fell on the gunman and handcuffed him after a desperate struggle.

Arias suffered a sprained neck and right wrist in the struggle.

He was strapped to a backboard and wheeled out on a stretcher with a bandage wrapped around his head to keep his neck from moving. The officer was treated and released at Cedars Medical Center Wednesday afternoon.

The gunman was identified by police as Santiago Rodriguez, 20, of Miami.

Rodriguez was bleeding from the face and was taken to police headquarters, where he was charged with attempted armed robbery.

fireworks show, he said. For the last 12 July Fourth, clubs operating concession stands at the park on the holiday donated part of their profits to pay for the display.

Horner said he thought it would be better to raise money for the show beforehand and give residents a chance to exhibit their community pride.

The fireworks display is somewhat of a tradition in Sanford but some people don't realize it takes money to make the sparks fly, Horner said.

"Everybody takes these fireworks for granted. They think they automatically appear but they don't," he said.

Other than the fireworks, the city is planning a host of activities for the entire family that day at Fort Mellon Park.

The activities are scheduled to kick off at 11 a.m. with a moonwalk, canoe rides, canoe jousting and a merry-go-round for the kids, according to Jim Jernigan, director of the Parks and Recreation Department, which is sponsoring the activities.

At noon, the contests are scheduled to begin — the three-legged race, balloon race and ball relay. At 2 p.m. the frog jumping contest is expected to be held. The person whose frog jumps the farthest wins. Of course, contestants will have to bring their own frogs.

A log rolling competition is also in the works.

A celebrity softball game is on tap for 5 p.m. So far, no local big-name "celebrities" have agreed to take to the field, but the parks department hopes to have a full roster by game day.

Prizes will be awarded in all the contests and there is no entry fee.

In addition to the games, clubs and organizations are scheduled to have contest, food and concession booths at the park. A wide variety of food will be offered — from hot dogs to soul food.

Music will be provided by a disc jockey from WUEZ who will play records during the day's events.

mostly Shittas — if the French did take control of the hostages at the French Embassy in Beirut.

French Charge d'Affaires Marcel Laugel visited Amal leader Nabih Berri today — reportedly to discuss details of handing the hostages over to the French embassy.

But the Foreign Ministry spokesman, asked about the Laugel-Berri meeting, said only that French diplomats were keeping in touch "with all concerned parties."

Laugel said any move of the captives would take time to arrange but their accommodation would be "no problem."

"In principle the French government is always ready to help," Laugel told reporters after meeting with Berri at Berri's home in west Beirut.

Berri Wednesday offered to transfer the hostages to a Western embassy, Syria or Iran to end the 14-day hostage crisis.

Shultz, speaking at a United Nations Charter banquet Wednesday in San Francisco, linked the TWA hostages with seven Americans who are being held by kidnapers in Beirut, demanding the unconditional return of all of them.

"We are working intensely on this matter and we insist on the return of our hostages, all 46 of them, immediately, unharmed and unconditionally," Shultz said.

Wednesday's leg took the team through the arid New Mexico and Texas hill country. Top speed was 45 mph, Ms. Austin said. They went through Santa Fe and stopped in Gallup long enough to be honored at a barbecue the town threw for all the drivers.

Both Jerry and his father, Don, were reportedly exhausted from the road trip but were exhilarated by the cheering of the crowds who daily line the highway.

"It's the ultimate high," Gross said.

The route was to veer northeast toward Wichita, Kan., where the Grosses are to bed down tonight. The race ends July 4 in New York City, with the winners getting $100,000.

The boy and his father had arranged for the youth to meet with the man after the suspect allegedly called the boy's home and, in conversations the father overheard, apparently tried to make a "date" with him, Spolski said.

Spolski said the meeting was set before deputies were called by the father and asked to participate in the case. They only had about 30 minutes to get to the scene and tell the boy what to do, he said.

The conduct of the deputies is in question, Spolski said, because patrol officers normally would not conduct such a surveillance. Such cases are normally assigned to detectives. But because of the time factor, Negri and Nagata apparently decided to handle the case themselves, he said.

The boy had been told not to get into the car, and to signal the deputies when they should move in, Spolski said. The boy should not have been involved in the investigation, Spolski said. And, the deputies should not have allowed the boy to keep the appointment, he added.

The youth got in the car and apparently failed to signal the deputies. What's in question, according to Spolski, is why the boy was permitted to stay in the car for 20 minutes.

Negri has given investigators an account of the event which differs in some respects to Nagata's, Spolski said. Lt. George Hagood has been assigned to sort out the stories and to interview other witnesses at the scene.

Polk, Spolski said, will evaluate the information after Hagood completes his investigation and will decide what, if any, action should be taken in regards to the deputies' conduct.

Stallings has been released on $8,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in court July 15.

Both deputies will remain on duty pending the probe's results, Spolski said.

already has more jobs than it can accomplish at county facilities. At budget time he said he needed more craftsmen and the commission opted to considering renovations at buildings by private contractors when the county employees were busy with other projects and not to beef up the Percy's department with more workers at least in this budget year.

Instructed to find out how much it would cost to renovate the building by outside contractors, Percy came back with a cost estimate of $450,000.

And commissioners came up with the idea of expanding the old jail upward, if feasible. Percy was also asked to find out whether the Kirk Plaza, if purchased, could be expanded upward.

The proposed use of the property, Commissioner Fred Streetman said, is for a corporate office of a pest control business.

The rezoning at Streetman's insistence was conditioned upon no chemicals being stored at the site, and no trucks being parked at the office for extended periods or overnight.

Francis Named Lion Of Year

Double Ring Rites Unite Bonnie Austin, P.C. Balliet

Bonnie Lynn Austin and Philip Claude Balliet were married June 1, at 6 p.m., at First Baptist Church Markham Woods, Lake Mary. The Rev. Dr. Jay T. Cosmato performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benny Steele Austin, 718 Bevier Road, Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Balliet, Dover, Fla.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal white organza gown, fashioned along the Victorian silhouette, with an off-the-shoulder neckline, natural waistline and full sleeves applied with chantilly and alencon lace. The semi-cathedral train was accented with lace and crystal pleated ruffles forming a back panel and border. Her elbow-length veil of illusion was held by a Juliet cap embellished with pearls and Chantilly lace. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom, and carried a cascade bouquet of white and pink roses interspersed with greenery and baby's breath.

Miss Glynn Alderman, cousin of the bridegroom, served the bride as maid of honor. She wore a rose-colored sleeveless chiffon gown with a natural waistline and low neckline in back. Her headpiece was a halo of pink flowers and she carried a white basket arranged with pink azaleas, pink baby's breath and greenery showered with pink streamers.

Bridesmaids were Glenda Alderman, cousin of the bridegroom, Robin Croley, Janice Dobson, Patti Edgemon, Lisa Hughes and Amber Sawyers, cousin of the bride. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Claude Balliet

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Groomsmen were Jason Blanton, nephew of the bridegroom; Johnny Pearce, cousin of the bridegroom; and Rodney English. Reese McClelland, Danny Pickern and Art Wilson, brothers-in-law of the bridegroom.

Dale Price Austin Jr., nephew of the bride, was the ring bearer. Flower girls were Natasha McClelland, niece of the bridegroom, and Amy Paul.

The reception was held following the ceremony at the Garden Club of Sanford. Entertainment was provided by Rick and Kim Steele, vocalists, and Joan Wilke, organist. Janie Morton, president at the bride's book. The bridegroom's mother and sisters catered the reception with various friends and relatives assisting in serving.

Following a honeymoon cruise to Mexico, the newlyweds are making their home in Plant City.

Bride Can't Live Like This

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married less than a year and we really do love each other, but whenever we are out in public he "eyes" every attractive woman he sees. He's very handsome, and of course these women look back at him, which irritates me. I feel unattractive and inferior, although I know I'm not. We have talked endlessly about this. He says it's "normal" and I am nuts.

Abby, I don't check out other men in restaurants, his eyes are everywhere but on me. When we're shopping his head is always turning to get a better look at some pretty woman. He blames my attitude on the fact that my mother divorced my father because he was a girl-watcher and philanderer.

Dear Abby

Do other women feel this way? What do they do? Can my husband change? Should he? Should I try to change? If so, how? I hate myself for hating my husband for making me so miserable.

If you advise counseling, where can I go if I can't afford a psychologist once a week at $50 an hour? Please help me. Except for this one fault, he's a wonderful man, but I can't live like this.

derful man, but I can't live like this.

WATCHING HIM WATCHING HER

DEAR WATCHING: A man who eyes strange women in a way that causes them to look back is either consciously or unconsciously sending her a message.

I agree, you can't live like that, nor should you.

Do other women feel this way? Yes. What do they do? Some of them go on making themselves (and their husbands) miserable, but the smart ones realize that they can't change anyone except themselves, so they contact a local mental health facility and arrange for low-cost counseling at a price they can afford to pay.

Free Microwave Cooking Classes Set

Free microwave convection classes are being held at the Rich Plan Frozen Food Center in the Altamonte Mall, upper level, next to Sears.

The Rich Plan, a division of Rich-United Corporation, is holding microwave and microwave convection classes every Tuesday in July at 7 p.m.

Class combines demonstration on microwave and microwave convection cooking. Focus is on different food preparations, cooking techniques and how to turn conventional recipes into a microwave meal. Foods are sampled in class. For further details, call the Rich Plan at 322-3663 and ask for marketing.

Yogurt, Vinegar Douche Can End Yeast Infection

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I take the pill and sometimes I take antibiotic pills for my skin, so I occasionally get a yeast infection. I hate going to the gynecologist each time, so I usually self-treat with a weak vinegar douche. I've also heard that drinking cranberry juice will help. Is this just a myth? What else would you suggest?

DEAR READER — The use of oral contraceptives can, in some women, cause a mild, non-fungal vaginal discharge. I suspect that the major cause of your yeast infection is your use of antibiotics. These drugs can deplete the population of normal bacteria in your vagina, thereby allowing yeasts to thrive.

Two or three days of dilute vinegar douching is a perfectly satisfactory solution. Although cranberry juice is a beneficial drink, it has — as far as I know — little effect on antibiotic-induced vaginitis. You also might try eating three to four containers of yogurt every day. I've been assured that the harmless bacteria in yogurt can put your yeast-bacteria equilibrium back in balance.

I have recently learned about a simple, inexpensive and foolproof trick to clear yeast vaginitis — without the necessity of seeing a gynecologist each time the problem recurs. Go to your pharmacist and ask him or her to make up a supply of gelatin capsules, each containing 600 mg. of plain boric acid. Each day for two weeks, insert a capsule high in your vaginal canal. As the gelatin dissolves and releases the boric acid, your vaginitis should disappear. You may be happier exercising some control over your body, and your gynecologist will be thrilled to devote more of his time performing unnecessary hysterectomies on less fortunate women.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Do you think there's a personality type that is more likely to develop cancer than another? I've heard a theory about this.

DEAR READER — In my opinion, cancer is unquestionably a defect that develops from deficiencies in our immune systems. I think more and more doctors, having taken a cue from Norman Cousins, regard a positive attitude — which mixes laughter, hope and enjoyment — as a vital part of cancer therapy. This belief is by no means universal, however. There are studies now underway to determine if certain personality traits may influence the development of malignancy. But, as yet, there are no conclusive findings pertaining to prevention.

You may remember the splash made some years ago by the proposed relation of heart attacks to so-called Type-A personalities. Although this relation was intriguing, it has not panned out.

Nevertheless, there are those of us who believe that emotions and outlook on life do relate to health and disease.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Some 53 years ago, when this hand was played, East opened the bidding with one diamond. South overcalled two spades, vulnerable, which showed a fair hand with a six-card spade suit.

West doubled, announcing that South had made a mistake, and that West intended to punish South for such recklessness.

The ace of diamonds was led. Looking at all the hands, can you see the best defense? Our West defender of 1932 could see only his own hand and the dummy, but still he switched to the queen of spades. This kind of play is commonplace for expert players now, but then it was akin to the discovery of electricity.

With a diamond continuation, declarer could get out for down one. With the lead of the spade queen at trick two, a two-trick set was inevitable and a three-trick set quite likely.

The West defender was Oswald Jacoby. I cite this hand because today marks the first anniversary of my father's death. As much as I loved my father, I doubt that he was the greatest bridge player who ever lived. On the other hand, I don't know of anyone greater. Rest in peace, father.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

JUNE 28, 1985
Much more than simply personal reward will come to you this year through your own creative effort. When you are inspired by a bright idea, act upon it immediately.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't make financial impositions today on someone you once helped in a small way. He will resent your using this type of unfair leverage. Major changes are ahead for Cancers in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail #1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you might take the course of least resistance and allow a relative or in-law to pressure you into doing something you'd rather not.

VIRO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will be judged more severely than usual today for your mistakes. To avoid embarrassing developments, think your actions through carefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It will prove wisest at this time to clear up old obligations before assuming any new ones. You might not have enough financial spread for both.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Avoid teaming up today with an individual who always opposes your way of doing things. He may try to put a damper on your efforts once again.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Strive to be realistic about issues that confront you today. Don't pretend serious matters will rectify themselves without your taking appropriate action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will later have feelings of remorse if you are overly generous with a friend today who doesn't truly deserve it. Be kind, but not ridiculous.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

In competitive situations today, bank more heavily on your common sense than chance. The best that Lady Luck may offer you is a second place.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rather than going along with the suggestions of someone you're peevish with, you might reject this person's ideas and act against your best interests.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Unless you are extremely prudent and cautious in joint ventures today, the larger slice of out-of-pocket costs may fall to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may have difficulty making major decisions today because of a tendency to overemphasize both the pros and the cons. You could remain on dead center, doing nothing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It is likely that you'll be saddled with more responsibilities than you can handle today if you mingle with people who can't fend for themselves.

She's Coming Back To Kill Off Character

The World Turns Full Circle For The Tough Eileen Fulton

Eileen Fulton

Joan Hanauer UPI TV Reporter
NEW YORK (UPI) — The world has turned full circle for Eileen Fulton.

Fulton, who became a soap opera star more than 20 years ago when she created the bitchy character of Lisa on the CBS soap "As The World Turns," is going to get bitchy again.

She's even out to get her first husband back — Bob Hughes, who now is married to her best friend.

But Fulton had to walk away from her role to get it back on the track, and she created some real-life drama in soapville when she announced she was quitting as Lisa Coleman-McColl.

"My character had become just too sweet and silly for words," she said. "At the time I left the show I was very upset about what had happened to many of the contract players. A lot of them had been let go. Others left out of frustration. The people in charge wanted to go with the youth storyline."

"We were window dressing. I despised getting letters that said, 'What in the world has happened to you?' 'Where is your mind?' The writers were new and they weren't familiar with the relationships that Lisa had built up over the years. The strength of a soap opera is what makes the people do things good and bad — mostly bad."

She was not about to let Lisa, who over the years has had 33 lovers, five marriages and half a dozen kids, along with two bouts of insanity, blend into the scenery.

Fulton not only quit in 1983 — the third time she had done so to protest what the writers were doing to her character — but she the wheels started to turn and they realized this little girl could play a downright bitch. We got letters saying, 'If that nice Bob Hughes marries that terrible girl I'll never watch he show again.' We got married on the show the very next week."

Fulton, 51, a Methodist minister's daughter from Asheville, N.C., says Lisa's redeeming feature — even in her worst days — has been her love for her children.

"I had to find something good in her," she said. "Just like when you play a good person, you have to find a quirk in her character, even if it's just that she doesn't put the lid on the toothpaste or she picks her teeth."

She feels Joan Collins and the rest of the nighttime soap opera witches owe a debt to her and her pioneering daytime wickedness. They have discovered and cashed in on what she always knew:

"There's an excitement an outrageous person brings to a show. On 'Dallas' J.R. is such a bum — and people love him because he has such fun doing it."

"If she dies, I'm going to come back and die," Fulton said to herself. "If I created Lisa, I'm going to kill her. I'm not going to let somebody else do my death scene."

She called the show's producers, only to learn that they would rather have her back than liquidate Lisa.

She learned the value of being a bad girl, theatrically speaking, 25 years ago when she joined "As The World Turns."

"I was good for one week," she said. "and then I thought, I've got to have something to play. I made up my background and

Madonna To Marry Actor Sean Penn

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rock star Madonna is planning to marry movie actor Sean Penn in August, the New York Daily News has reported.

The report, signed by entertainment columnist "Suzy," said Madonna "almost popped her cornet then, without thinking twice, said yes."

No comment from Penn or Madonna was immediately available.

The newspaper said the couple has been "an item for months," but that the wedding is planned for August, as soon as Penn finishes shooting his new picture, "At Close Range," in Atlanta.

The report said Madonna, 24, born Madonna Louise Ciccone, met Penn at a beach party in Malibu, Calif., given by record tycoon and film producer David Geffen.

Madonna and Penn also plan to star together in a movie, "Pipeline," set in the Alaskan oil fields.

Madonna, whose album "Like a Virgin" rocketed her to fame, recently branched into movies, starring in "Desperately Seeking Susan."

Penn, one of Hollywood's "Brat Pack," most recently played Andrew Daulton Lee, the "snowman" in the movie "The Falcon and the Snowman" about two young men who become spies for Russia.

Moro Educated Smoke Less

Suits Against Cigarette Makers Could Kill Industry, Experts Say

ATLANTA (UPI) — Health experts report there is a strong relationship between smoking and education and say damage suits against cigarette companies may wound a death knell for the industry.

A smoking study released Wednesday by the national Centers for Disease Control found people with a high school education were more likely to smoke than those with a college education.

But the CDC study but noted young women are an exception to the strong relationship between education and smoking.

Other health experts assembled by former President Jimmy Carter to study premature death issued a report Wednesday noting a federal judge in New Jersey had ruled people have the right to sue over tobacco-related injuries.

The judge ruled people injured from tobacco and who claim the warnings on cigarette packs are not adequate are entitled to the right to present their claims for adjudication," the report said.

"If a number of lawsuits are successful, the cigarette industry could follow the asbestos industry and find they cannot afford to manufacture cigarettes because the price is too high," the Carter Center report said.

The CDC study found 49 percent of men and 42 percent of women with some high school education smoked, but only 17 percent of men and 13 percent of women with college graduate degrees smoked.

"If you look at the highest education and the highest professional levels, you tend to see substantially diminished rates of smoking," said Dr. Kenneth Warner of the University of Michigan, who participated in the study.

Basically, the individuals with higher education are responding in larger numbers to the evidence that smoking is a health hazard," he said.

Dr. Dennis Tolsma of the CDC's education branch said 70 percent of men ages 30 to 40 smoked before the surgeon general's first cigarette warning in 1964 — twice today's number.

"There has been a significant amount of smoking cessation during that period," he said. "More of it obviously has occurred among those with higher education."

But the CDC said an estimated 29 percent of American women still smoke — a decrease of just 5 percent — and some studies show increasing numbers of women in their 20s are taking up the habit.

"This is a cause for great concern and we don't have any reason for it," Tolsma said.

The Carter Center reported 1,000 people a day die from diseases related to cigarette smoking and said, "We must make non-smoking the social norm."

The Carter Center report recommended the licensing of cigarette sales, encouraged the elimination of cigarette vending machines and urged hospitals to abolish the sale of tobacco product.

Court Says Couple Who Sued Southern Bell Should Get New Trial

Son Died After Company's 2-Hour Effort To Trace Call

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — An appeals court says a couple who sued Southern Bell because it took two hours to trace a 911 emergency call from their wounded son should get another chance to collect damages.

The Fourth District Court of Appeal ruled Wednesday a new trial was warranted because Broward Circuit Judge George Richardson Jr. allowed Southern Bell lawyers to offer prejudicial testimony during the first trial.

The suit arose out of a 1979 incident when Joseph Vendola Jr., 19, called the Broward County sheriff's office emergency 911 number and said, "Ambulance, quick."

He could say no more and police heard him moaning into the phone receiver.

The sheriff's office called Southern Bell and asked to have the phone number traced so police could find Vendola.

In Wednesday's ruling, Associate Judge Theron A. Yawn Jr. said, "The request was followed by an incredible succession of blunders by Southern Bell spanning almost two hours before the call was correctly traced and the proper address provided."

By the time paramedics arrived at Vendola's home, he had died of a shotgun wound in the stomach.

In the original trial, records show the Vendola family lawyers provided expert testimony that the man's life could have been saved if he had received medical treatment within an hour of his call.

The court records show it took nearly 45 minutes for a Southern Bell employee to begin tracing the call, and once he began, he got the wrong number three times.

During the trial Southern Bell lawyers claimed that under tariff laws the telephone company was not obligated to anyone other than the 911 customer. In this case Broward County.

But the appeals court ruled that "when it undertook the service of tracing these calls Southern Bell exposed itself to that venerable principle of law that an action undertaken for the benefit of another, even gratuitously, must be performed in accordance with an obligation to exercise reasonable care."

Southern Bell lawyers also argued that Vendola's death was a suicide, but the appeals court said that it was not known, nor was it important if Vendola shot himself.

"The suicide defense was combined with the tariff defense and shrouded in a facade of rhetoric concealing their lack of substance and presented to the court and jury, doing nothing more than befog the issues, confuse and sow the seeds of prejudice in the minds of the jury," he said.

Lawyers for Southern Bell declined to comment on the ruling.

Lots 30, 33, 34, 35, 36, 41, 42, 49, 50, 51, and the North 1/2 of Lot 45, of M.M. Smith's third subdivision, according to the plat thereof as recorded in Plat Book 1, Page 55 of the Public Records of Seminole County, Florida. That part of the NE 1/4 of Section 33, Township 19 South, Range 30 East, Beginning Public Records of Seminole County, Florida.

SECTION 2: That upon this Ordinance becoming effective, the property owners and any resident on the property described herein shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges and immunities as are from time to time granted to residents and property owners of the City of Sanford, Florida, and as further provided in Chapter 171, Florida Statutes, and shall further be subject to the responsibilities of residence or ownership as may from time to time be determined by the governing authority of the City of Sanford, Florida, and the provisions of said Chapter 171, Florida Statutes.

SECTION 3: If any section or portion of a section of this ordinance proves to be invalid, unlawful, or unconstitutional, it shall not be held to invalidate or impair the validity, force or effect of any other section or part of this ordinance.

SECTION 4: That all ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed.

SECTION 5: That this ordinance shall become effective immediately upon its passage and adoption.

A copy shall be available at the Office of the City Clerk for all persons desiring to examine the same.

All parties in interest and citizens shall have an opportunity to be heard at said hearing.

By order of the City Commission of the City of Sanford, Florida.

ADVICE TO THE PUBLIC: If a person decides to exercise a decision made with respect to any matter considered at the above meeting or hearing, he may need a verbatim record of the proceedings, including the testimony and evidence, which records is not provided by the City of Sanford. (FS 286.0165).

PRINTING SALES If you want growth, recognition of your skill and reward beyond your paycheck, here's your chance.

If you're a good salesperson, there are any number of places where you can work, get paid and get some basic benefits.

If you're concerned with the quality of what you sell and the environment in which you work, then your choices get a little slimmer. So, the question is: what do you really want besides competitive pay?

Celery Printing Company has been around a long time. But Celery Printing is not what it was before. The company is under new management. The attitude is different. The goals are quality, growth, profit and sharing with people who contribute to the goals.

You're invited to make an assessment of three brand new presses and how they can contribute to your sales effort. We'll discuss plans and resources and commitment.

If you're assertive and looking to the future, then come talk with us. You've nothing to lose and possibly, just possibly, a lot to gain. After all, there's more than spending most of your life working for just a paycheck, some medical insurance and nothing else.

Call or write Jeff Heslep or Byron Lawrence. The line is open.
