Power outage snaris traffic

LAKE MARY - A power outage caused a traffic snarl on Lake Mary Boulevard during this morning's rush hours. Most of the problem centered on inoperative traffic lights at various intersections.

According to Bill Warren of Florida Power Corporation, "The outage was caused by a cut line near the intersection of Lake Mary Boulevard and Rinehart Road. It effected about 2,000 of our customers.

A spokesperson at the Lake Mary Public Service complex near the intersection said power appeared to be out sporodically from Interstate 4 eastward to the Lake Mary City Hall. Warren said he had not determined if the line cut could have been caused by the widening project underway in that area of Lake Mary

Most of the power was restored by 9 a.m. this morning. It was a busy morning for Lake Mary Police however, as they kept busy at stop light intersections maintaining a safe flow of traffic.

Bubble act proposed

Bill would restrict development in 22-mile area

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Staff Writer

GENEVA - Rep. Marvin Couch, R-Oviedo, said he may deetde to back away from proposing specific "Geneva Bubble" protection regulations such as prohibiting borrow pits in favor of having a task force study the needs of the area first.

"I think that's a reasonable approach," said Couch. "The main thing is, we want to protect the water supply.

Couch and his aide Brian Beal met with representitives of Seminole County, including commissioners and staff, St. Johns River Water Management District and Sanford Wednesday to discusss his proposed Geneva Bubble Acquifer

The proposed bill, which Beal said is being drafted and has not been submitted, establishes protection areas surrounding the 22-square-mile bubble area and restricts development and discharge within those areas. Such uses as borrow pits, dairy and swine operations, outside storage of hazardous materials and wastewater treatment plants would be prohibited.

Commissioner Daryl McLain said he would seek to assure no borrow pits or other controversial development occur in the Geneva area until the task force completes its duties.

Commissioner Bob Sturm said he didn't think the area needed additional protection.

'What's the urgency to get to it?," asked Sturm. "If you thought it was that serious or that urgent, you should have come to us first. We have a wealth of information at your disposal. I would urge you to move slowly. I would tell you the people of Geneva came to me 15 years ago and said the bubble was about to burst and it

Commissioner Pat Warren added she appreciated Couch's concern, but not to let a "small group jump start" the effort.

County planning director Tony VanDerworp noted provisions in the proposal would prevent many of the farming activities now being conducted in the rural Geneva areas. Sanford 🗌 See Bubble, Page 5A

SANFORD - The whereabouts of three New Tribes Mission missionaries remained unknown this morning. Mission official Guy Sier has left Sanford en route to Panama City, Panama to meet with the men's wives and U.S. embassy and military officials.

Officials at the New Tribes headquarters, 1000 E. First Street in Sanford, would not comment on the situation early today. A spokesperson reported that no one would be available to discuss any developments until late this morn-sheriff's investigators believe nearly a dozen people were victimized by a fake-cop hoax Tuesday.

Sheriff's spokesman George Proechel said 11 people either visited or called the Sheriff's Office at Central Florida Regional Airport, saying they were instructed to do so by a "Deputy Bernaurd" or in some cases, a man who said he was "Officer Bernaurd" of the Samord Police Department.

Some people who reported also said they were contacted by an "Officer Bernie," said Sheriff's Office security officer Stanley Felds-

Procchel said in each case, the victim was telephoned by a "very official-sounding" adult man who told them their tag number had been obtained by witnesses to a hit and run accident. They were instructed to report to the sheriff's office at 4 p.m. to make a report, he Feldstein said three elderly people and one man in his 30s reported yesterday afternoon. Each of them were upset about the affair, he said. The badge number of the purported law enforcement officer varied, as did the alleged accident location, said Feldstein.

Procchel said the calls were clearly a hoax because sheriff's deputies do not investigate accidents. Such incidents are investigated by police or state troopers. Sanford Police spokesman Lt. Mike Rotundo sald if a tag number is obtained in a hit and run accident investigation, an officer would contact the individual in person, not over the telephone.

No names of people were taken at the Sheriff's Office, but one woman filed a report with the Sanford Police Department.

Lawmakers want to limit utility contacts

TALLAHASSEE - If state utility regulators won't limit off-the-record contacts with the companies they oversee, lawmakers will, members of a legislative panel say.

A House Business and Professional Regulation subcommittee is expected to vote next week on a bill that would restrict such communications by state Public Service Commission assembers and staff members, Chairman John Rayson, D-Pompano Beach, said Tuesday.

The commission that regulates electric, telephone; gis., within and sewer companies adopted its own proposed rules Julii 20, and will set a public hearing to seek comment.

But the commission has refused in the past to adopt rules limiting outside, or ex parte, contacts despite recommenda-tions by lawmakers and two statewide grand juries.

"The second indicated concern that nothing had been done."

Richard Doran, assistant deputy attorney general, told the Municipal officials don't want to be barred from getting explanations from the Public Service Commission staff on the complexities of electric or water utility regulation, said a municipal lobbyist. "When you're just asking a question and you need an answer and you need some help, how do you differentiate that?" Katherine Betancourt, a lobbyist for the city of Tampa, asked. "You don't want to shut the door in the face of people who are trying to get access to the commission."

"You cannot completely shut down ... communications," said panel member R.Z. Safley, R-Clearwater.

Public Counsel Jack Shreve, who represents consumers before the PSC, agreed a blanket ban could cause problems in cases such as enforcement actions, audits and staff-assisted rate cases in which utilities work with commission experts.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Governor asks everyone to join in making state better

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE - Gov. Lawton Chiles asked the Legislature to continue the cooperation that followed Hurricane Andrew in tackling an ambitious agenda that ranges from higher taxes to health care

In a State of the State address that opened the annual 60-day session Tuesday, Chiles sounded a conciliatory note to a Legislature that includes 66 new members and last year was awash in partisan bickering.

"Today, I ask you to join me, to make all of Florida better." Chiles said. "Together, we can do it."

Republican leaders welcomed the olive branch but said their first priority would be to hold the line on government spending.

"We must demonstrate that we know what every family, every business and every taxpayer knows: we have to live within our means," said Senate President Ander Crenshaw, R-

Jacksonville.

The governor asked lawmakers to recall the unity demonstrated during a three-day December special session called to pass hurricane relief bills for South Florida, which was ravaged by the Aug. 24 storm.

"We were here to get results, because we put the needs of the people first," Chiles said. "We really decided to trust each other and to share credit rather than to level blame. We took decisive action together."

Chiles has proposed a $35 billion budget that includes $631 million in new taxes through elimination of 14 sales tax exemptions. Chiles is also seeking elimination of more loopholes over five years and expansion of the corporate income tax.

The governor listed several other priorities: more prison beds and tougher sentencing laws, ensuring lottery funds are used to strengthen education, reforms in workers compensation, redistricting, welfare and major state agency mergers.

Crenshaw said he agreed with Chiles' message of togetherness but said it wouldn't hold for every issue, particularly the budget. Crenshaw presides over a Senate divided evenly between 20 Democrats and 20 Republicans.

"We will agree on some of the issues, and we'll disagree on some of them," he said.

Chiles asked lawmakers to pass his program to provide health care to 2.5 million uninsured Floridians and bring down costs for everyone by the end of next year.

"We can't wait for a national plan that will delay our ability to provide access to people who need it," said Chiles, who urged passage of his program in the first 30 days of the session. "We can show the way. It's kind of like that old saying: we can make dust or we can eat dust."

While most legislators support health care reform, the governor's proposal to eliminate tax increase involves elimination campaign financing and two over the next five years has met and professional services.

Chiles said many exemptions "exist solely for the benefit of special interests and must be eliminated."

'Our country couldn't put men on the moon with the conventional engine. We had to design a rocket," Chiles said. "And we must redesign our tax engine if we're going to move Florida forward.

Chiles will have a difficult time persuading lawmakers the state needs new taxes, said House Minority Leader Sandra Mortham, R-Largo.

"The governor has recently given huge pay raises to his image handlers to improve his delivery," Mortham said. "Unfortunately, it's not the governor's delivery that's a problem. It's his message.'

More job cuts at Martin

ORLANDO - More jobs cuts are in store for Martin-Marietta Corp.'s Orlando-based electronics and missile unit unless new contracts are forthcoming, officials say.

The work force at Electronics, Information & Missiles Group may be reduced by 1,000 to 1,500 jobs this year in the unit. which has facilities in Orlando, Ocala, Virginia. Maryland, Colorado and New Mexico.

Martin-Marietta, based in chtode, Md., eliminated more than 2,400 jobs in Orlando last year through inyoffs, retirements and attrition. The company now employs fewer than 7,000 in Orlando and 1,000 in Ocala.

Winning new contracts will provide more work for employees involved in programs that are now winding down, including Lantirn night-vision equipment and a Canadian air defense contract, said Peter A. Bracken, group president.

The biggest program coming up this year for the Orlando unit is the Ground-Based Interceptor, a long-range anti-ballistic missile system that is part of the Strategic Defense Initiative. It could be worth billions of dollars and hundreds of jobs, company officials said.

County not represented at State Fair again

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Staff Writer

TAMPA — For the fourth year in a row no one from Seminoie County has taken on the task of creating an exhibit to represent the county at the Florida State Fair which opens tomorrow in Tampa.

According to Fran Heath, manager of programs for the Florida State Fair Authority, the county is one of about four counties in the state that has been "sporadic" with their participation in making the county exhibits.

"For many years Seminole Community College had people who would put very lovely exhibits together, but then then man who did it for so long wasn't able to do it and no one has been willing to pick up the ball," Heath said.

She said that, for a while, responsibility for the exhibit shifted among several entities, including the county extention

"But lately, no one has been interested in taking up the task," Heath noted.

She said that over the years she has contacted the various chambers of commerce and service organizations and has failed to find anyone who was interested in making a committment to the project.

"It has to be someone who is really gung-ho about the project." she said. "It is a lot of

The State Fair Authority provides each county with $1,200 to create its exhibition.

Travel expenses are determined based on distance from the fair. Seminole County exhibitors would receive $300.

"The exhibitors can use the money in any way they want in creating the exhibit," Heath said. "Some counties use the same exhibit year after year and other ones update their exhibit every year."

commission to air site

plan for Home Depot

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Builders Square is ready to open its doors tomorrow, on the southwest corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and Lake Emma Road. Meanwhile, a Home Depot is being considered for the northeast area near the same intersection.

The Lake Mary City Commission is scheduled to act Thursday night on a request for a site plan review of the new Home Depot retail facility. Access into the location will be between the entrances of Primera and Amoco properties.

"If the city accepts it Thursday night," said City Planner Matt West, "that's all they will have to do with us, and they can go ahead and start pulling their permits."

West cautioned, "The only problem is gopher tortoises which abound in Lake Mary. A few of them have been found on the property, and they couldn't be moved until the beginning of the season on March 15th, so probably nothing could be done

ntil that time.'

West said the present plans for the Home Depot building to be constructed on 22 acres of land. It would include internal retail space of 107,000 square feet, an open garden, and a small retail area outdoors, which comes to a total of $165,000 square feet of space.

The proposed site plan has already had input from Seminole County, which was required to control the right-of-way for the access area. The Lake Mary city staff has also made several recommendations for landscaping, and the construction of the business sign.

The matter still requires a permit from the St. Johns River Water Management, prior to the issuance of development per-

Assailants kill two daughters

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

ORLAND — A woman abducted, assaulted and shot twice in the head didn't know until a day after she was hospitalized that her assailants had killed her two young daughters, relatives

Dorothy Reid Lewis, 35, recovering in an hospital here, "is coping quite well," said her mother, Elsie Thomas, on Tuesday. "She asked about her daughters. She knows."

Mrs. Lewis was told Monday by her sister, Margaret Reid-Lewis, that Jamilya, 7, and Jasmine, 3, were fatally shot in a wooded area in the Central Florida community of Eustis.

"She was calm. She handled it well," said the sister.

The mother and daughters were abducted in their car from a shopping center by two teenagers Saturday night, police said. They were taken to a wooded area, where the mother was assaulted and then shot. The sisters were killed while the mother stumbled to a house a mile away and pleaded for help early Sunday, detectives said.

Richard "Rick-Rick" Henyard, 18, and Alphonso "Junior" Small, 14, each were charged with two counts of first-degree murder, two counts of child kidnapping, false imprisonment sexual battery and auto theft.

Henyard, was released from the Lake County jail less than three weeks ago after serving 2½ months for stealing his godmother's car, according to court documents.

He stole the .22-caliber gun from under a pillow in his grandfather's house two days before the weapon was used in the slayings, authorities in Eustis said.

A third youth, Manuel Yon, 16, has been charged as an accessory, and prosecutors were considering whether to try Small and Yon as adults.

Dr. Lou Harold, Mrs. Lewis'

physician at Orlando Regional Medical Center, said Mrs. Lewis was expected to make a complete recovery. "Fortunately, she was not struck in any critical areas," he said. "I think she's handling this extremely well, both physically and psychologically."

Mrs. Lewis mother, sister and the dector hald a news confermation.

Mrs. Lewis' mother, sister and the doctor held a news conference at the hospital Tuesday. Mrs. Lewis was widowed three years ago.

"We hope they get punished to the full extent of the law," said Ms. Reid-Lewis about her sister's attackers. Her sister and her family did not know the assailants, Ms. Reid-Lewis said, emphasizing that "this was a total random act."

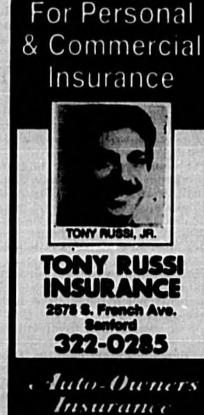

Henyard's grandfather. Luther Reed, 73, said his grandson stole the gun on Thursday from his Eustis home.

"I feel for them," Reed said of the victims. "I don't feel for him."

A motorist driving past Small's house Monday gestured at his mother as if he were gunning her down.

"I don't see why they should blame me and my kids for something we didn't have anything to do with," Annette Small Henyard's godmother. Jacquelyn Turner, had him arrested last October for stealing her car.

Proposal to regulate bingo has merit

A proposal by Rep. Ed Healey of West Palm Beach to require state regulation of bingo has merit. It also has the support of local organizations who conduct bingo games to raise money for various causes.

Currently, the state bingo law is enforced by local police and deputies, but Healey says they're often too busy chasing rapists and murderers to close down Illegal bingo operations. Even when they investigate, Healey says the current law has many loopholes where the dishonest can hide. That may or may not be so, but bingo is considered to generate more money than the state's billion dollar a year parimutuel wagering industry and should have statewide regulation.

Healey's bill calls for all bingo in the state to be regulated by the Department of Professional Regulation, which currently regulates jai-alai and dog track betting. Annual fees are based on the annual receipts from the bingo operation and can range from no fee at all for operations producing less than $26,000 per year up to $500 for operations that collect more than $500,000.

The fees should ease the fears of the bingo gamers in mobile home parks and condos that they will have to pay exorbitant fees. The bill requires fingerprinting and background checks for all organizations that take in more than $104,000 per year and requires specific record-keeping by operators of bingo facilities that lease their space to organizations.

The bill also prohibits commercial bingo operators and their employees or agents from having any involvement in conducting an organization's games, even if they join that organization or if they're off-duty.

These regulations will serve to allow the mobile home park games to continue, and larger organizations to conduct their games without an inordinate amount of recordkeeping. The bill would also allow commercial operators to lease their facilities to legitimate organizations.

It is a proposal that deserves the Legislature's support.

It appears we have a self-appointed teacher in our midst by the name of Mark Barfield. Don't look to him for any objective words of wisdom, since the only type of teaching he is doing right now borders on sleaze. Is this where our local paper is heading? Are there any other parents who were upset by the front page descriptions of "lap dancing" in the Jan. 24 and Jan. 27 papers? Mark feels it is his duty to teach the ignorant public what he has decided we [children as well as adults] "need" to know about the issues confronting our community.

I applaud the Sanford Herald for raising public awareness of important issues. Some reports of national and world current events are exceptionally well written. Perhaps a tabloid would love the recent assault on our decency by Mr. Barfield - we do not! Such explicit language serves no purpose on the front page of the Sanford Herald. We invite you into our homes on a daily basis please do not abuse the privilege.

Bush's mistake was not to challenge Clinton manding that public after Clinton brought it up in the campaign. It is schools teach the job of the conservative party to raise serious social issues, seriously.

money: we're in trouble. American-style, because of values, not money.

To do the Job right, Nunn's hearings should deal with both homosexuality and civil liberties in a broad context, not just about gays in the military. There are difficult questions:

We ought to learn about the nature-nurture argument. Activist gays maintain that homosexuality is inherited, period. But many scholars believe otherwise. Some gay behavior is heritable, they say, but some of it is influenced by the social environment. If so, and sanctions are lifted, will some impressionable young people in the military, so-called "waverers," be drawn toward a gay life? And by offering symbolic national affirmation, or value-neutrality toward homosexuality, might that happen in the society as a whole?

What about numbers? Gay activists claim 10 percent of Americans are gay. But what proportion of the military is gay? It must be low: it means lying and not getting caught. Is it 1 percent? Or 2 percent? What happens if the rules change? Would it go to 10 percent? Might it go

Tough decision in the end

WASHINGTON — It is late at night, and we are talking about health care the way Americans do, in personal stories that begin with words like, "my mother" or "my friend" or I." This time we are talking about the end of life. How it often ends. How we would choose it

In the last months we have borne witness to two deaths, two technological grand finales to good humane lives. Two men we know went out of life in full medical regalia - tubes and respirators galore - like some horrifying firework display of What Medicine Can Do.

One of our friends has, in her hands, a hospital bill some 70 pages long and $200,000 insurance dollars deep for her brother's last month of what barely qualified as life. Another colleague is trying to tally up, just for the macabre curiosity, what Medicare paid for her husband's last days: the cost of coma. Their mourning and our evening is made uneasy by the feeling that maybe too much had been done to these men in the guise of doing everything for them. There was a point. somewhere in the dying process, when medicine took over, when one decision led to another inexorably.

We share other such stories of times when all thought-out plans, all the family discussions, had simply been finessed, short-circuited by the hospital imperative to do one thing and then another. The medical people had gone step by step down the road to the respirators.

Our conversation this night is not just personal though. It's colored, I am sure, by the recognition that a new man has moved into the White House not far from where we sit. He has promised a new health care policy as part of his hundred-day hit parade.

Two sets of words came together, one after the other, as if they were inseparable: Health care and hard choices. But the truth is that we faven't even been able to make the casy

One thing we know is that the costs of health care went up some 14 percent last year. We know that over a third of all Medicare expenses go to the treatment of people in the last months of their life. Whether they want it or

There are studies that echo our personal conversations. They show that Americans worry that at the end of life they will receive too much medical treatment and too little pain relief. Now there is, as well, a survey that says doctors and nurses who treat dying patients worry that they give too much treatment and too little pain relief.

Health care providers who answered the survey by the Education Development Corporation were four times as likely to be concerned about overtreatment as about undertreatment. Half of them said they had acted against their conscience in providing health care: They had offered treatment that was "overly burdensome" to patients. Two out of three believed that patients didn't get enough help or information to make decisions.

So we have some rare agreement between patients, families, doctors, nurses, even ethicists that the terminally ill should be treated with fewer tubes and more tenderness than is often the case. But still the stories accumulate. And so do the costs. To mention money is to be immediately suspect. As Susan Wolf, an ethicist who helped with the survey says, "the cost-containment argument makes people suspicious that there's a hidden motive behind stopping life-sustaining treatment. That it's not just about effecting the patients'

A third of all Medicare expenses go to the treatple in the last months of their life.

wishes." It raises the specter of an accountant behind the physician deciding who lives and

Nevertheless, when we talk of health care and hard choices in the same breath, we mean medicine and money. We mean the allocation of dollars to transplants and prenatal care, to the elderly and the young, breast cancer and AIDS. We envision groups competing with each other for attention and dollars.

The stories of medical overkill of the dying are about times when the ethical and financial bottom lines might converge. They represent moments when doing what is humane also

If we cannot stop treatment for those who don't want it, if we can't respect the wishes of the dying and their families, if we can't make the easy choices, what hope do we have to make the rest? These are decisions that will take place not just in one, white, house but in a hundred hospital rooms a day.

People are forever asking, where do we start the debate abut health care? One place to begin is at the end.

Manhandling of disabled advocate raises ire

WASHINGTON - Price Baum is a 34-year-old quadriplegic whose manhandling and mistreatment by the Secret Service and police last December would make you believe his name was really Lee Harvey Oswald.

Baum began one Tuesday morning jesting and joking with local government officials from suburban Virginia, just outside of Washington, where he was explaining the Americans with Disabilities Act. He was unregistered ammunition. Baum traveled to Washington's Union Station, where he planned to meet some friends for dinner. He arrived at 5 p.m., unaware that the Democrats were having a leadership dinner for Bill Clinton and Al Gore in another part of the station, which was crawling with Secret Service agents. After dinner, as Baum headed for an elevator, an agent asked to inspect a small bag he was carrying on his lap.

Inside were four unused, 12-gauge shotgun shells in a toiletries kit. Baum explained they were left there inadvertently after a goosehunting trip on the Eastern Shore of Maryland near his home. Baum "hunts" by having a friend place a gun in his arms, then waiting until geese fly by to squeeze off a round of fire by inducing movement in his

Once the officer saw the shells, he told Baum he would have to report it to his commanding officer. It's illegal to possess unregistered ammunition in Washington. Soon, three more agents descended on the scene, whisking him off to a holding area in the station where he was interrogated by the Secret Service.

Ironically, Baum recognized one of the agents during the interrogation as someone he had met while working with one of President Bush's daughters at the Rehabilitation institute. During the Gulf War in 1990, security for the Bush children was stepped up. Baum says that at some point this female agent recognized him, but did nothing to intervene on his behalf.

"I said to her: 'Do you really think I'm here to assassinate President Clinton?"

Baum's odyssey got ugly when agents decided to transfer him to the first of two police stations he would see that night. There was some question about transporting him. and one of the officers asked him if he had a van in which he could be transported. "I got taken to the police station in my own van. ... By 9 p.m., Baum was at the police station requesting water. He explains that for people with spinal cord injuries, liquids to flush the kidneys can be a matter of life and death. "I needed it." he said. "It reduces the chance of kidney and bladder infection."

Republicans plot to retain gay ban

By DONNA CASSATA Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Senate Republicans are struggling over how to challenge President Clinton's proposal to relax of the ban on homosexuals in the military. A leading Democrat said today both sides should "hold off" for now because Clinton already Republicans worked all day Tuesday on a proposal that would ensure preservation of the existing ban for six months, pending the outcome of congressional hearings and Clinton's mid-July timetable for a new executive order.

Sen. Sam Nunn, the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee said today, "I will be opposing that amend-ment." despite his own views against homosexuals in the military.

"I spent last week trying to get President Clinton - and I finally did - to move toward not issuing any kind of final directive or even any kind of interim directive that would fundamentally change the policy," said Nunn, D-Ga.

"I hope both sides will hold off until we can examine this on a rational basis and make sure we make a decision that's in the best interest of our national security and the men and women in the military," Nunn

The Republican proposal was expected to include language saying the president could not act by executive order alone and that Congress would have a say in any changes. "The final policy will be put in place by said Tuesday he believed the Democrats. who control the Senate 57-43, had the votes to defeat a GOP effort.

The Army, Navy and Air Force ordered recruiters to stop asking applicants their sexual orientation and the commandant of the Marine Corps, Gen. Carl E. Mundy, urged his troops to "remain on watch" and not quit over the issue.

The Marines said they would wait for official instructions before issuing orders to their recruiters. None of the changes were publicly announced.

Senate Republicans, save for Alfonse D'Amato of New York, had appeared united last week on writing the military gay ban into permanent law, but divisions have surfaced since then.

"There were members who felt it was a good idea and members who didn't,' Simpson said.

Iraqi radars no longer threatening patrols

By ROBERT BURNS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The Pentagon says Iraq has stopped using radars that threaten U.S. and allied planes patrolling the northern and southern "no fly" zones.

Defense Department spokesman Bob Hall said Tuesday the allies are continuing to monitor the zones where tragt aircraft are not permitted but have not been threatened recently by surface-to-air missiles or radars linked to the missiles.

Hall said this was a wel-

CIA nominee pledges disclosure

By RUTH SINAL

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The director-designate of the CIA is putting his best foot forward. promising Congress to report without delay on any covert operations undertaken by U.S. intelligence.

R. James Woolsey made his pledge to the Senate Intelligence Committee on Tuesday, and was expected to win the panel's approval today to become the 16th director of central intelligence. The full Senate was expected to confirm him later this week.

The House and Senate intelligence committees are particularly sensitive on the question of covert action reporting. ever since they found out that the late CIA Director William Casey misled them or withheld notice about several operations during the Reagan administration, mostly in Iran or Central America.

Woolsey promised that "circumstances would be very rare ... in which there would be anything but prior notice" of such activity by the CIA or the other dozen intelligence agencies he would oversee.

in those rare cases when Congress wasn't informed in advance, whether because time was short or for some other reason. Woolsey promised notification within a few days.

He promised to consult with Clinton and get back to the committee regarding a question by chairman Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., about whether the adininistration would be willing to have the terms of notification codified in the law.

Woolsey, a corporate lawyer who served as an arms control negotiator for the Reagan and Bush administrations and as Undersceretary of the Navy in the Carter administration, also pledged to refrain from public statements about U.S. policy.

His role as he sees it. Woolsey said, would be to sift through Intelligence information and bring analyses to the administration and the president so they could make informed decisions.

Clinton names lesbian to HUD post

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Clinton, making good on his promise to avoid bias against homosexuals in choosing key aides, is naming an outspoken lesbian as his fair housing chief.

If confirmed, Roberta Achtenberg would be the highest ranking openly gay official ever to serve in the executive branch.

The 42-year-old member of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors was among four people picked by Clinton on Tuesday for high-level posts in the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Among them was Andrew Cuomo, son of New York Gov. Mario Cuomo.

Clinton said the four, whose nominations require Senate confirmation, "have a big task ahead of them - rebuilding housing opportunity for all Americans and repairing the torn fabric of our nation's urban communities."

'These four outstanding individuals have the experience, the knowledge and the ability to make that happen," Clinton said in a statement. "They will be an essential part of my team."

Ex-Ram James leads Indian River by SCC

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD - A face familiar to local baseball fans starred at Seminole Community College Tuesday afternoon.

Unfortunately, he was not playing for the Raiders.

Former Lake Mary High School star Nell James droye in a pair of runs with a home run, a double and as Indian River Community College ruined the season opener for SCC, 11-5, at Raider Field.

The Pioneers used solo home runs by James and Mitch Markham and two uncarned runs to build a 4-0 lead after three innings.

The Raiders' offense, which had only a bunt single and two walks in the first four innings, finally came to life in the fifth inning. Freshman Ray Hagar singled and scored on a triple by fellow freshman Isaac Cruz to cut the lead to 4-1.

SCC then fied the game in the sixth inning.

Ovicdo's B.J. Calapa was hit by a pitch, went to second on a wild pitch and moved to third on a bunt single by Sanford's Rick Eckstein. Deltona's Peter Bezeredt then singled in Calapa and Eckstein and Bezeredt advanced a base on a ground out. Hagar then lofted a deep sacrifice fly to center field to score Eckstein and Bezeredi scored when Oviedo's Erik Jordan reached on an error.

But Raider starting pitcher David Blanton from Oviedo tired in the seventh Inning and Indian River took advantage. A bit batter, a single and back-to-back two-out doubles plated three runs as the will start at 2 p.m.

Pioneers chased Blanton.

"David pitched well," said Seminole head coach Jack Pantelius. "But when we made a couple of errors early in the game, he started thinking he had to strike everyone out and threw so many pitches that he wore himself out."

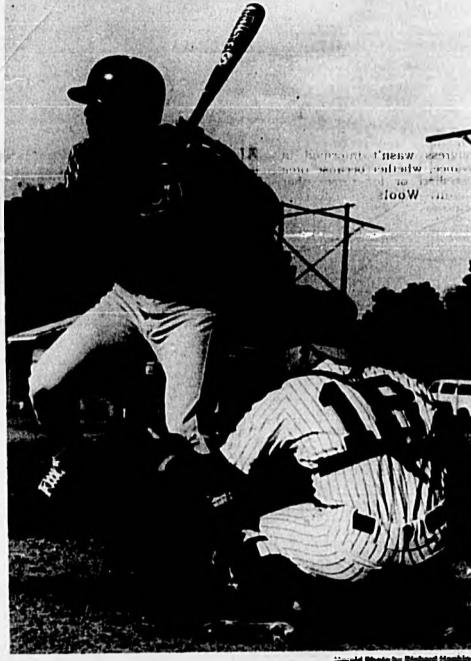

Indian River added a pair of runs in each of the eight and ninth innings.

Hagar drilled a home run in the eighth inning for the other SCC run. Four of the Pioneer runs were unearned as the Raiders committed an uncharacteristic five errors. Offensively for SCC, Hagar was

2-for-2 and Eckstein was 2-for-3. Despite the loss. Pantelias was not

"We didn't play anywhere near as well as we can today," said Pantelias. "With eight freshmen in the lineup, I guess some nervousness was expected. I think we're going to be all right."

The Raiders will play their first road game today when they face Edison Community College from Ft. Meyers at Okeechobee High School starting at 3 p.m. before returning home for a single game with Miami-Dade Community College at Kendall Acres, formerly Dade South, Friday and a doubleheader Saturday. ### Orr collects third Orange Blossom title

By DAVE WESTERMAN Special to the Herald

SAMSULA — Montverde's Pete Of is how a three-time winner of the prestigious Orange Blossom 100-lap Super Late Model event. The 21st annual edition of the race was run last Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway as Orr literally blew the doors off of the competition.

Orr posted the fast time of the night during qualifying but started in sixth position after an inversion of the quickest qualifiers.

On lap 40. Orr moved into second place to challenge early race leader Randy Weaver for the No. 1 spot. Orr was successful with a high groove pass nine laps later and moved to the head of the 19-car field.

Lap after lap. Orr increased his lead, taking the checkers a half a straightaway in front of Weaver.

"I used a different strategy tonight," said Orr, the 1992 World Series of Asphalt Late Model champion. "I kind of sat back until almost mid-race before I made a serious move to the front. That saved the car and the

"When I got the lead, my tires were still fresh and I had awesome power to pull away from the field.

Orr's Horsen' Around Farms Camaro was powered by a new Boyd engine recently ordered by car owner David Russell.

"I ordered two new motors from Dennis (Boyd)," said Russell, a three-time FASCAR Late Model champion. "I gave Pete the first one. Maybe I should have kept it for my car." Rounding out the top five, in order of finish, behind Orr and Weaver were Russell, David Rogers, and Bruce Lawrence.

Lawrence took the early lead. only to relinquish it to Weaver on lap 17. Some 31 laps later. Orr took the point and began his charge to the checkers. Meanwhile, Weaver and Russell dueled for the next 40 laps for the No. 2 spot. Despite several hard charges by Orr's teammate (Russell). Weaver was able to hang on. "That race completely wore me out," sald Weaver, the recent winner of the Red Eye 100 Late Model championship. "At one time, we had a two-second advantage over the rest of the field. "When Pete (Orr) got around me, the car started to get a little bit loose. The longer we raced, the looser the car got. I really had my hands full trying to keep David (Russell) behind me."

Russell finished a car length behind Weaver with Rogers close in tow.

'We were very lucky to finish this well," said Rogers, who is also a three-time New Smyrna Sperdway Late Model champion. "Before we even took the green flag, we broke a rear trailing arm bracket. The erew patched that up real quick and we started the "Next, we break a seal on the rear end. The race the whole night as a real wrestling match between me and the car.' For his winning effort. Orr pocketed $2,000.

Winning this race has always been a drean of mine," said Orr. "As a kid, I raced at the old Fairgrounds Speedway and always dreamed about winning this race. Well, if you work hard enough, dreams come true Never in my wildest dreams did imagine that some day, I would win this race three times.

Rounding out the field were. In order of finish, Ronnie Roach, Joe Middleton, Wayne Anderson, Joe Yarbrough, Granny Tatroe, Curtis Miller, Hal Perry, Butch Carr. Duke Southard. Jack Cook, Jeff Burkett, Glen Hume, Gene Fox, and Darrell Cole.

Editor's note: Friday night's results from Orlando Speedworld will appear in Thursday's Sanford Herald.

Lyman Jumped out to a 6-0 lead and, after a 10-3 run by Lake Howell, railled to lead 12-10 on a free throw by Smith with 7:06 remaining in the second quarter. The Silver Hawks then went on a 11-0 run to close out the period and opened the third frame with a 5-2 spurt, building a 26-14 advantage.

Lyman would get close again, only to see Kohn convert 5 of 7 free throws in the final minute of play. Of Kohn's 14 points, 11 came in the final 5:06 of the contest.

Lake Howell coach Dennis Codrey expected nothing less than the down-to-the-wire battle that the Silver Hawks received from the Greyhounds.

Cook of the Week

She's into aviation, singing, dancing, gourmet cooking

by ED KORGAN Herald Correspondent

SANFORD - Diane Marshall. who is employed as admissions officer by Comair Aviation Academy at the Sanford Airport. loves to cook and has many years behind her in gourmet cooking. However, in past years, her family has dwindled and so has her time in the kitchen. She still looks forward to the many times each year she can practice what she considers her most favorite hobby.

Diane is a member of the "Women in Aviation Association." This summer she will represent her company at the national convention in St. Louis. The association members include women from all the many different types of aviation. She is looking forward to meeting new friends in the aviation world and the many different sights she will be able to take in while

Her work not only keeps her busy. She is also a member of the championship "Sweet Adelines Chorus' called the "Sounds of Sunshine." Her chorus placed high in the international competition held in Baltimore, Md. last fall. Over the past 15 years she has served in many different capacities with the chorus including board director and section leader.

Country western line dancing has become the craze of the 90s. Diane is right in there when it comes to the dancing. She takes free lessons one night a week and spends another night practicing what she learned. Her class on Tuesday nights contains over 100 adults whose ages range from 20 to 70 years old.

Although everyone has left home she still has to provide for her birds and cats. Her prized possessions are two pairs of birds. She has a pair of over 15 years and two lovebirds or green onions

Use caution when exercising back

DEAR DR. GOTT: It seems family doctor, he quite properly that I often strain my back when attempting any exercises for the purpose of strengthening my back muscles. Is there a safe, moderate method I should try?

DEAR READER: This is pretty much a common-sense issue because Nature will definitely tell you which exercises are good for your back and which ones to avoid.

In general, stretching motions, such as touching your toes. extend the back muscles and relax them; lifting exercises strengthen them. Therefore, if you have chronic back strain, gentle range-of-motion exercises should assist you.

On the other hand, if your back is normal, pure strengthening, such as lifting weights, is the ticket. Should such exercises cause undue pain, back off on the amount of weight.

Physical therapists - and, by extension, weight-training specialists -- will be able to suggest a program for you, if you need specific advice.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have bullous emphysema. A visit to my immediate care facility resulted in me being placed on 30 mg. prednisone. Later my private medical doctor replaced this with a daily inhaler to prevent addiction to steroids. Can asthma and emphysema be treated with these medications?

DEAR READER: Emphysema. a chronic lung disease marked by trapping of stale air, is not treated with prednisone, a form of cortisone used to treat in-flammation. However, emphysema is often a consequence of asthma, for which prednisone is excellent therapy. Therefore, I assume that you have symptoms of asthma (wheezing, breathlessness) along with your diagnosis of emphysema - all of which prompted the emergency doctor to prescribe steroid medicine to assist your breathing.

Yesterday we looked at the Grosvenor Gambit, whereby a defender obtains the normal result by abnormal means. But sometimes a defender can gain a trick with an abnormal play. The defender knows that the declarer cannot see through the backs of the cards. He knows the con-clusion that the declarer will draw - and realizes it will be the wrong conclusion.

This deal occurred during the 1977 Bermuda Bowl in Manila. Sitting West was Mike Passell.

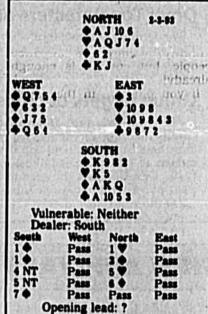

You can see that South has to find the spade queen to make the grand slam. The "textbook" lead against a grand slam is a trump. The opponents presumably won't have bid seven with a hole in the trump suit, so it is a safe lead, giving nothing away.

Suppose you are in seven and don't receive a trump lead. What conclusion do you draw? If the lead is, say, a safe king from K-Q. perhaps there is no mference available. But if it is a potentially dangerous lead, probably it means that the opponent has no trump to lead or he has a trump holding from which he doesn't want to lead.

In this deal, if West leads, say, a diamond, it would be normal for declarer to play West for the spade queen.

However, Passell could see that coming. To deflect declarer from the winning line, he led a trump at trick one.

South was convinced East had the spade queen. After the spade 10 won the first trick, the declarer called for dummy's spade ace. Imagine his shock when East discarded.

delica expension of the contract of

The First United Methodist Church recently held a gala birthday party for all church members. A table was decorated for each month of the year in a motif synonomous with the festivity of the month. Celebrants sat et the birthday table of their month. Members brought their specialty dishes to the delight of all, and birthday cake was served. In the left photo, Margarite Reynolds holds a parasol over the Rev. Cliff Melvin, church pastor. In right photo, Dan Sellers, church organist, plays the plano while Pat Spivey leads the group in an oldfashioned sing-a-long.

Soup can be work of art

By MARIALISA CALTA NEA Food Editor

The florists of America may advise us to "say it with flowers," but my motto these days is "say it with soup."

I love almost any kind of soup, and I love almost everything about soup, including making it and eating it. Unlike some endeavors in the kitchen, like, say, baking — which is scientific — soup is sheer art: some vegetables, some seasonings, some stock or water and, voilal, dinner. Soup is generally inexpensive to make, and — if you consent to such modern conveniences as canned chicken broth or bouillon cubes — only marginally difficult.

The kind of soup my kids like best is what we call "Nana soup." after my mother (their Nana) who usually serves a first course of simple chicken broth and pasta (my kids like pastina or orzo) at every meal. Cook the pasta separately, according to package directions, heat up a can of chicken broth, spoon some of each into a bowl, and it's done. I like it with a sprinkling of parmesan on top; my kids do not.

The recipes here are my favorites. I feel about lamb and barley soup the way other people feel about chicken soup: It's like penicillin. (And it tastes great too.) The black bean soup is a great "company soup;" tasty, easy and cheap. Both soups make a meal when served with bread and salad, and both freeze well. I developed a taste for hot and sour soup in my city days; when I moved to rural Vermont, far from Chinese take-out, I had to learn to make it myself.

The recipe here, from Molly O'Neill's new cookbook, is about as good as I've found.

JOHN'S HOT AND SOUR

80UP 2-3 dried Chinese mushrooms

1 1/2 cups cold water 1/4 cup cider vinegar

l tablespoon plus l teaspoon light soy sauce

2 tablespoons cornstarch 6cups homemade chicken stock or canned chicken broth

1/4 cup shredded turnip 1/2 cup shredded Chinese roast pork

1/2 cup drained, canned shredded bamboo shoots

2 tofu cakes, thinly sliced 1 teaspoon dried red pepper

flakes
In a small bowl, cover mushrooms with 1/2 cup cold water and soak for 30 minutes. Drain, cut off stems and discard, and slice mushrooms. Reserve. In a small bowl, stir together vinegar, soy sauce and cornstarch until smooth. Set aside.

In a large nonreactive pot, combine broth, turnip and remaining I cup water. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer combine broth, turnip and remaining I cup water. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 5 minutes. Add pork, bamboo shoots and reserved mushrooms and cook for 5 minutes. Add tofu and pepper flakes and bring to a boil. Add the reserved cornstarch mixture and stir until soup thickens slightly, about 2 minutes. Cook until vegetables are tender, 15 to 20 minutes.

Yield: 4 servings.

Pleid: 4 servings.
Recipe from "New York Cook Book," by Molly C'Neill [Workman Publishing, 1993]. Chinese dried mushrooms and barbecued pork can be found in Asian specialty markets. The mushrooms can be stored in a plastic bag indefinitely; store the pork in the freezer.
