BALL SEASON ENDED

Last Games of the Series Were Played on Last Friday

The ball season of 1912 ended last Friday when the Orlando and Sanford teams crossed bats for the last time in a double header. A large sized crowd of faithful fans witnessed the game more to bid the boys farewell than from any desire to see the games. The season's series had been decided long ago and the last few games were only played in a desultory fashion and with only a determination to play out the schedule.

Sanford profiting by costly experience of former years put a good strong team in the field at the very start—a team that had been playing together and knew all the fine points of inside base ball. There were few changes made during the season and the men played with the precision of veterans.

Orlando, on the other hand, hardly played the same team for two successive days and the constant changing showed up in their individual playing. There was a sad lack of team work and while they had several good men as regular the many managers turned away or turned down good men from time to time that with the proper team management would have developed into good players.

The series was a very successful one and speaking from the Sanford point of view was successful financially, the attendance being very good at all the games and the donations being all that could be asked under existing conditions.

Keeping a good ball team through the dull summer months is more of a life sized job than the ordinary layman would figure out, and the very able manner in which Manager Stevens and his able corps of assistants kept the force going, in the face of difficulties and in the midst of a rainy season, calls for meritorious mention. They are to be congratulated for giving Sanford such a good team. Not only was it necessary to dig up the necessary finances for salaries and expenses but a new grand stand had to be erected and there were other expenses to meet.

There is no doubt but that a good series of games in the summer months is good advertising for any city and furnishes amusement and diversion at a time when but for the games there would be absolutely nothing doing in the amusement line. The people who are unable to leave the city in the summer months appreciate the good work of the management in furnishing the series. The cost of maintaining a good team is considerable, but a part of the money is always left here and the games may not be trade getters but they are worth something in advertising. Both cities were kept in the public eye during the series and instead of estranging the citizens of the two cities, as some of the pessimists were afraid they would do, the games this year really promoted a better and more friendly feeling and many inhabitants of Sanford and Orlando visited and became acquainted during the summer months who would probably never have met under other circumstances.

There was no ill feeling engendered and both players and spectators took their defeats with good grace.

In all, the games were of benefit to Sanford and Orlando and occupied a prominent position in the press of the state and among the people, the fans of this state and other states watching the progress of the games with as much interest as the home people. The players were gentlemen, those of the Sanford team being almost all college boys who did not desire salaries, but played the game for the mere love of the national sport.

Several scouts of the major leagues were here from time to time watching the boys in action and several of them have received flattering offers to play in the big leagues and also to stay in Florida and grace some of the college teams, but the old North state will probably prove a strong incentive to take them back home when the bell of Chapel Hill rings them up.

In New York

A well known resident of Sanford was in New York last week when the investigation into the police graft cases was at its height. Accosting a policeman at one of the prominent corners the following dialogue took place:

"Could you tell us how far it is to the postoffice?"
 "I have no idea," he replied.
 "Well, in which direction is it?"
 "I have not formed an opinion."
 "Can we walk there or should we take a car?"
 "I could not say."
 "There is a postoffice here, is there not?"
 "I would not decide that with my present information."
 "But every town has a postoffice, hasn't it?"

 "I have not talked with anybody on the subject."

"Is there any one around us who can tell us?"

"I have not read any of the newspapers."

"But, man, surely you know whether or not there is a postoffice?"

"I could not give a decisive answer to that."

"But don't you live here?"

"I have never given the matter a thought."

"Where do you live?"

"I have no mental bias in the matter."

"Great gun, man! You know your're alive, don't you?"

"I should be guided entirely by the evidence."

Married in Michigan

The following article from the South Haven, Michigan, Daily Tribune will be interesting to Sanford people:

"Miss Elma Blackman and C. Addison Randall were quietly married last evening at eight o'clock at the home of her brother, W. J. Viall and wife on Michigan avenue, in the presence of about thirty-five relatives and intimate friends of the young couple.

The parlors where the guests gathered to witness the ceremony were decorated in pink and white cosmos, combined with smilax festooning the archways between the rooms and showing effectively on the white draperies.

At precisely eight o'clock Miss Bernice Hewitt, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Lillian M. Eaton, sang "O Promise Me by Reginald deKoven, and as the tones of the singer died away the pianist took up the theme of Barcarolle, from "Tales of Hoffman." Presently the bridal party appeared in the open stairway, Rev. A. F. Nagler, pastor of the bride, leading, preceded by the little flower girl and ring bearer and lastly the bride and groom. The party crossed the hall and halted just within the archway between the parlor and reception hall. Rev. Nagler used the impressive ring ceremony of the Methodist church, the ring having been carried in the petals of a white rose by little Frank Ethan Viall, nephew of the bride.

The marriage of last evening is the culmination of a romance of school days, they having been childhood sweethearts as far back as in their fourth grade days.

Both left high school at the end of the third year, Miss Blackman to take a three years' course in the musical conservatory at Albion and Mr. Randall to enter the business world. After completing her course Miss Blackman became an instructor of the piano in the same conservatory, where she met with pronounced success, but was obliged last year to give up teaching on account of her health. Last winter in company with her mother, Mrs. Blackman, she spent in Florida and it was no wonder that Mr. Randall soon listened to the call of the south land and followed. He secured a good clerical position in one of the banks of Sanford, Fla., where they will immediately go to housekeeping.

Mrs. Randall will be greatly missed here in social and church circles where she was popular not alone for her musical ability, which is far above the average, but also for her sweet personality which won her many friends. They take with them to their new home the best wishes of all for their prosperity and are commended to the good people of Sanford."

Hot Weather Everywhere

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 2.—With apparently no relief in sight for two or three days to come and with a possible increase in temperature tomorrow, the heat today averaged 88 1/2 degrees, being the hottest September day in this section. The thermometer reached a maximum of 99 3-8 degrees this afternoon. In 1896 the temperature went up to 96 with an average of 87 only.

Charleston, S. C., Sept. 2.—As the climax to a spell of unusually hot weather the mercury today reached 100 degrees, the highest temperature reached this year. No relief is promised for tomorrow.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 2.—The hottest weather which has prevailed over the South Atlantic States for several days today succeeded in breaking several records. In this city the temperature reached 93, the highest of the year.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—Chicago's hot wave continued unabated today. The maximum temperature registered was 93 degrees at 4 p. m. Three deaths and nine prostrations from heat were reported today.

Finishing the Ginn House

Carpenters have resumed work on the Ginn house on Sanford Heights, and when finished this will be one of the finest homes in the suburbs. The first floor of this house and the basement is made entirely of vitrified brick, which is an innovation for this part of Florida and if the project proves to justify the expectations of the builder this material may be used extensively. Mr. Ginn has been employed on a large surveying expedition at Ft. Pierce and Cocon and could not give the building his personal attention, but now that he is home again the work will be rushed to completion.

A Surprise Party

Mrs. W. S. Thornton was surprised on Wednesday night, the 29th, her birthday, when after tea her neighbors came pouring in with presents and good wishes for many happy returns of the day.

Mother and Father Reid carried out their bus full, and the Thornton home, which dispenses such delightful hospitality was full and running over. The charming hostess never appeared sweeter or lovelier than when surrounded by such loyal friends. The surprise was complete and every one had a delightful time and departed wishing such delightful occasions might occur oftener.

Among the many Sanford people at Coronado Beach are Mr. and Mrs. Lew Fisher and daughter, who have rented a cottage for the season. They have as their guests this week Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Ginn of this city, who expect to stay several days.

To Operate Parcel Post

Washington, Aug. 30.—Announcement was made by Postmaster General Hitchcock tonight that the postoffice department would be in readiness Jan. 1, 1913, to put in general operation the recently authorized parcel post system. The postal express system which must be organized within the next four months, will extend over more than a million miles of rural delivery and will cover in its various ramifications, all systems of transportation of parcels now utilized by private express companies.

Mr. Hitchcock has cancelled engagements he had made for his vacation and will remain in Washington to personally direct the organization work. The details of the parcel post system will be worked out by a series of committees composed of officers and experts of the department.

W. H. Williams has returned from Coronado Beach where he spent several days and had fine luck fishing.

ALL AROUND THE STATE

Nosegay of Blossoms Cut in The Garden Spot of Florida, the Beautiful Land of Flowers

STATE HAPPENINGS BOILED DOWN FOR THE BUSY

A Brief Resume of Florida Happenings That Will Interest The Hurried Reader

Mr. Benton, who is interested in seventy-four banks in Florida and adjoining states and Mr. Menter, cashier of the state bank of Carrabelle, are in Tallahassee arranging for the organization of a third bank. The bank will be organized with not less than $25,000 capital stock.

P. T. Perkins of Punta Gorda, has demonstrated that the avocado may be grown in this section. From the seed he has grown a tree which is now six years old and this season he picked 100 avocados.

J. R. Davis of Bartow has placed thirty-five acres of truck land under irrigation. This makes about 100 acres that is now irrigated.

A pineapple weighing twelve pounds, five ounces was on exhibition at the Waters & Carson store last week at Ashton. It was grown on the Shaker farm.

Volusia county will have a fine crop of oranges and grapefruit, the largest crop since the big freeze. There is very little white fly.

Growers are shipping sweet potatoes in car lots at Hastings. The stock is excellent.

Will Practice Law in Sanford

Major A. K. Powers of Wallace, N. C., has rented the rooms over the First National Bank, formerly occupied by Col. A. M. Thrasher and will practice law here. Major Powers has been practicing law in his native state for the past seven years and while on a visit to his brothers-in-law, the Zacharys at Markham was attracted to Sanford as a place of residence and in a few days will bring Mrs. Powers and his young son here to reside.

Major Powers is well known in his native state and at present is Major of the National Guards and has always taken an active part in military affairs. He is a descendant of W. D. Marsh, the War Governor of Florida and has many friends and relatives in this state who will be glad to have him in the Land of Flowers. He and his family are welcomed in to our midst.

Bull Moose Again

Ocala, Fla., Sept. 5. Special—The state committee of the Progressive party of Florida assembled here today and behind closed doors is making plans for a campaign in this state. Chairman H. L. Anderson of the committee, from Jacksonville, and M. G. Gibbons of Tampa are among those in attendance. The meeting is fairly well attended.

It is presumed the committee will stop resolutions endorsing the actions of the national convention as well as plan a campaign in Florida.

Men and Religion

A union mass meeting under the auspices of the Men and Religion Forward Movement was held in the Star Theater Sunday evening. O. T. Usleman, field secretary of the Florida Anti-Saloon league, was the principal speaker of the evening and preached an interesting sermon to a fair sized audience. A special musical program was rendered that was greatly enjoyed.

Will reside in Sanford

J. D. Petris of New York is back in Sanford and states that he will stay here. Several years ago Mr. Petris purchased a celery farm near Cameron City, but on account of business in New York could not come here then, but as soon as he could close up his business he fled himself hither and states that Sanford and Sanford yard is good enough for him for the rest of his life. Mr. Petrie does not tackle the farming game to make a fortune, but is anxious to get back to nature, having been cooped up in the city all his life.

Services at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. next Sunday in the Baptist church, conducted by Rev. Harry C. Garwood. A cordial welcome to all.

FLORIDA'S FINE PROSPECTS

Fruit and Vegetable Crop Will be Very Profitable One

Jacksonville, Fla. Sept. 6.—There is every indication for a good fruit and vegetable crop for the season of 1912-13.

Citrus fruit trees are in splendid condition and a large crop is assured. Growers and shippers are actively engaged in their groves, or sitting up packing houses getting ready for the large and early crop of fruit. The white fly is not very bad in most sections which are subject to this pest, and it is only a few counties which report them as causing damage to fruit and trees. A few years ago most every county was troubled with them. The general statement is that there never was a better prospect for a big yield of fine fruit and the impression prevails that prices are going to be good. In some counties the fruit yield is only estimated at 10 per cent over last year, but the reports from most sections are that the crop should be 25 to 50 per cent larger than last year.

DeSoto, Orange, Lake, Volusia and Polk counties will have large crops and the fruit is further advanced than last year. Shipments of well advanced fruit will no doubt start to move by Oct. 1. From reliable reports the vegetable acreage will be larger than last year. Sanford truckers will put in a substantial increase in lettuce and Irish potatoes, while the celery acreage will be less. They will have a large acreage of fall beans, while the cabbage and cucumber acreage will be larger than last season.

Lakeland and Plant City truckers will have a large acreage of strawberries and a much larger acreage of Irish potatoes than last season. There will be fall beans and a large acreage of cabbage, cucumbers and tomatoes. The vegetable crop in this section is widely diversified and this important truck section generally has a shipping season from October 1 to July 1.

Williston growers will put in about the same acreage of cucumbers as last season, about 600 acres. Some of the truckers will branch out and plant other vegetables. There will be more lettuce planted this season.

In the Center Hill and Webster section truckers are busy preparing the land for fall planting. Their seed beds are in good shape and the vegetable acreage will be larger than last year. This is a large bean section and the total acreage in this entire section will reach 1,000 acres. Heavy shipments of cucumbers, lettuce, tomatoes move from these points and many buyers make this part of the state their home for some months during the shipping season. Fall beans start in November and the season closes with watermelons the following June.

Return of the Regan-Lewis Co.

This popular company will be seen on Monday night at the Imperial Theatre.

The play "Ishmael" is one of the most popular shows on the road, and all who have not read the book should certainly see the play.

It is a romantic, heart interesting story of the south, portraying the rise of a young southerner from the depths and is exciting and pathetic, with a touch of comedy here and there to round it out.

Don't fail to see Ishmael. It is the treat of the season.

Regular Car Service Again

The Sanford Traction Co. have resumed the regular schedule to Cameron City and the patrons of the road are happy. The fall planting in the celery delta and the attendant work thereon could hardly be accomplished without the traction cars running on time and the Sanford people have had this accommodation so long that they could not do without the traction cars.

GOOD RIVER SERVICE

City of Jacksonville Has Been Overhauled

SANFORD TO HAVE DAILY BOATS

The Clyde's New Steamer Will Be in Commission Next January On Daily Run

The Clyde Steamship Co. thinks the river trade on the St. Johns is worthy of some consideration. With the constantly increasing traffic and building up of new cities and old ones the trade on the St. Johns is rapidly approaching the figures of the old days when the river was the only means of transportation from Jacksonville to South Florida.

With the assurance that trade and tourist travel would start with a rush and much earlier this year the Clyde officials have just finished having the old City of Jacksonville made new and with that pride that a fond father takes in his children, B. J. Ford called up The Herald office this morning and wanted the paper represented upon the arrival of the Jacksonville.

Getting down to the dock as the boat blew a welcome to the city the inspectors were agreeably surprised to see what looked like a new steamship coming up the river and as the vessel with all flags flying gracefully swept up to the wharf the old girl must have experienced something of her first feelings when as a bride she kissed the waters of the St. Johns on her maiden trip. Going aboard one is met by the air of newness and cleanliness on every side and the genial captain, Crozier, was on deck to extend greeting.

The steamer has been thoroughly overhauled and made new as far as appearances are concerned and presents a fine appearance. The state rooms are all bridal chambers in appearance and are most cool and inviting.

The Jacksonville has 34 state rooms and will accommodate 87 people in the busy season. With the Jacksonville and the new river steamer being built in Jacksonville the Clyde Line will have a most excellent river service and the tourists that take this trip in the spring will have the satisfaction that two most elegant steamers can afford.

The St. Johns river trip is said to be the finest river trip in the world and none of the famous trips of foreign lands can compare with the historic and scenic St. Johns. With an elegant steamer service there will be more travel via the St. Johns river the coming season than ever before and of this travel Sanford will receive a large share.

All the more reason for that contemplated tourist hotel near the Clyde Line docks and fronting the river.

Had to Wade Out

Last Sunday our genial Postal telegrapher, Mr. Moore, accompanied by Mrs. H. E. Hester and Miss Nellie Evans in Mrs. Hester's pretty Overland roadster, with Moore at the wheel, motored out to her orange grove in Mecca Hammock. When they left there was not a cloud to mar the Heavens, the weather fine, they anticipated a pleasant trip, but we have no control over the elements and when they were in the midst of admiring the scenery and inspecting the grove a light shower began to fall, so they decided to take shelter under the trees.

The shower turned into a regular downpour and in the middle of a twenty acre grove, the grass waist high, Mr. Moore tried to solve a problem how to get those ladies out of that place and back to the auto, as it was impossible to drive a car in the grove; but Miss Nellie, who always looks on the bright side of things, said, "Let's just wade out." Well, they did, through the wet grass, the roads running with water, and a walk of about two miles. They finally arrived at the car drenched, but still in a good humor, telling Mrs. Hester they enjoyed the novelty of the adventure and were just as willing to accompany her again.

The regular services will be held in this church: Sunday school 9:30 a. m. Preaching at 11 a. m. by pastor. Subject, "Going Fishing." Preaching 7:30 p. m. by pastor. Subject, "Jonah at the seashore."

BOYS WERE SUNBURNED

From White to Red Their Complexions Were Turned

Frank Milteer and Henry Purdon were at the beach, yes!

In fact they were at the beach by a large majority, and if you don't believe it look at them. That is look at Henry. You can't see Frank, for he is at home swathed in numerous bandages and poultices. It all came from a desire of the boys to emulate the example of Jim Overman and catch a big fish at Coronado. They were attired only in their bathing suits, cut décolleté and do riguer and sailed down the beach in the racing car that Frank recently constructed by taking off everything removable from his Buick. Intent upon their fishing they did not notice that the tide was coming in and when it was in they were marooned on the beach about five miles from any shade and no clothes.

When they finally returned to the hotel they were a sight to behold, being actually burned nearly as badly as if they had gone through a fire. They reached Sanford on Tuesday and since that time have not been much in society. Henry walks like well, you ought to see him and Frank is the exact imitation of a lobster salad. We feel sorry for them, for sunburn is a reproduction of Dante's Inferno, but they should not be so eager to show their manly forms to the summer girls as long as old Sol has an eye on them.

A Look Around Sanford

A visit to the celery city the other day brought us up to the proposition being entertained by some of her progressives of building a hundred and fifty thousand dollar tourist hotel on the improved property on the lake front. Said one enthusiast to us: "We are tired of sending tourists to Orlando and propose to build a hotel for them ourselves."

Of course we agreed to that proposition, for if Sanford has been sending her tourists to Orlando, the very fact that she builds a big hotel will so advertise this section that more of them will come. We had a short talk with State Representative Forrest Lake and drank sulphur water cooled with the ice of his manufacture. The water tasted somewhat of the lower regions, but the ice was O. K. It certainly beats Orlando ice, for 'tis as clear as crystal. We called his attention to the fact that we had been reading some criticisms of his ice, but the only fault that we could find with it was that it melted.

A few moments' conversation with Banker Forster convinced us that financial affairs in the northern section of the county are in good shape, notwithstanding the numerous banklets starting up over the county. The new institutions are indications of prosperity and the older ones are a proof of solidity.

A visit with Arthur Yowell, of Yowell's four-in-hand dry goods stores, brought us in touch with a Sanford optimist who has been successful and who believes in her future. In fact, the sentiment seemed to prevail among several of the business men that the new system of brick county roads in the district will mean a double dose of prosperity.

We touched very lightly on base ball because we were in the country of the victors and they had compassion upon us.

We paid a brief visit to the office of the Sanford Herald. Trolley Holly was off seasoning his think tank with the salt water of Daytona Beach, but Mr. Haynes did the proper thing and we find him a first rate chap. Holly has a nice office and his new monotype looks like a mon o-maker. We looked carefully along the city gutters for our friend, "Curbstone Gleaner," but the folks told us he was away sunning himself.—Orlando Citizen.

The initiative and referendum carried in Ohio's election to decide the adoption of the amendments to the state constitution, but ballots for women was voted down by a decisive majority. The initiative and referendum wins out by about three votes to one. The initiative and referendum amendment provides that 10 per cent of the voters can initiate a constitutional amendment and 3 per cent a bill before the legislature.

The fact that the Democrats more than held their own in Vermont, a Republican state, and also made substantial gains, means business throughout the country, said Woodrow Wilson today. The Governor said the big Democratic vote was "very gratifying." It was difficult, however, he said, to analyze the results in Vermont on any comparative basis because the total vote was so much larger this year than two years ago, and it was hard to trace the sources of the gains. At any rate he said the Vermont election indicated a heavy vote throughout the coming election, and he said he regarded it as significant that the Democrats had carried the cities throughout Vermont.

Oscar Sims has arrived at Naco, Ariz.; to report that he and Roy A. Adams were taken prisoners by American rebels and taken prisoners by Mexican rebels and seventy-three horses in their possession stolen. Sims escaped, but his companion has not been found. In a raid on the San Pedro ranch, 18 miles south of Herford, Ariz., $5,000 worth of property was stolen. Fifty head of cattle were taken from the Williams ranch near San Pedro.

Tuesday's primary election, which gave the California Progressives the first opportunity to test their strength, assured them the control of the state convention that is to be composed of the legislative nominees. This means that Republican electors pledged to Roosevelt will go on the official ballot as Republican candidates. Taft leaders, to get their electors on the ballot will be forced to resort to petitions.

The fraud charges in connection with the South Carolina Democratic primary election of Aug. 27, will be rigidly probed by a special committee of seven appointed today by John Gary Evans, chairman of the state executive committee under authority of a resolution adopted at today's session of the committee providing for a thorough investigation. Cole L. Blease, on the face of the returns, was nominated for Governor by about 3,000 majority over his two opponents, the total vote being about 140,000.

A lone train bandit held up the northern bound express of the Louisville & Nashville railroad on Wednesday near Michaud, twelve miles from New Orleans, looted the mail car, robbed the passengers in five Pullmans and a club car and then just as he was about to leave the tender, was struck over the head by a brass torch by Engineer Baer and captured. He was taken to Bay St. Louis and may die. The booty, except for one mail bag thrown from the car, was recovered and returned. The officials would give no names.

Cornelius G. Hayes, demoted police inspector, who is to go on trial today for making an alleged false statement concerning his police duties in connection with the raiding of disorderly houses, will be a witness, it was learned, at the John Doe hearings to investigate police corruption.

The trial of Victor Allen for alleged participation in the shooting up of the Carroll county court at Hillsville, Va., on March 14th last, was begun at Wythville, Va., today. The morning session of the court was taken up with the examination of jurors and in the afternoon the opening statements of the prosecution and defense were made. The prisoner will deny that he took any part in the shooting.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Henry McLaulin Monday afternoon.

WE WIN WITH WILSON

COUNTING THE EGGS

We have heard of counting the chickens before they were hatched, but we must rise to say that the all too previous aspirants for the Orlando postoffice job beat the proverbial pre-hatching egg counters clean out of sight.

Any one running after signers to a petition for the postoffice under a Democratic administration two months before the election, seven months before the inauguration and three years and a half before the postoffice can possibly change hands under any administration, old or new, is mighty hard up for a job.

The postoffice job is one any how that isn't worth a scramble. If a chap really wants to work and would put into any job the same amount of energy he would be a sight better off. But then, a government job or a public office tickles many a man far more than a job requiring personal initiative.

It seems altogether unseemly and ridiculous to canvas for the Orlando postoffice at this time and get up a rivalry when all our strength should be conserved and united to advance Democracy, rather than seek personal place, and although Wilson's election does seem assured, what guys we should be for pulling out the eggs from a setting hen is case there is no hatch after all.—Orlando Citizen.

Quite right, Bro. Howard, and the people pulling for the postoffice now are usually the ones who have done but little for the party. After Wilson is elected the present incumbent will hold office until his time is out unless good and sufficient charges of incompetency can be brought forward and such charges can never be brought against W. R. O'Neal, for the Orlando postoffice is certainly conducted along systematic lines. O'Neal works by system, eats by system and sleeps by system when he does sleep, which is not often. The only charges brought against O'Neal or J. M. Cheney (now Judge Cheney) is that they are Republicans, for which crime they have been convicted and sentenced to hold office for sixteen years. Cheney's time was almost out and he pleaded guilty again in the endeavor to get a life sentence.

But seriously, no man can say aught against them.

WHO PAYS THE PIPER

The population of the United States increased by sixteen millions in the last decade, while the number of beef cattle decreased slightly; and beef on the hoof recently sold at Chicago for ten cents a pound, and nearly half the time within the census decade the price was about six cents. The present high price is due, not only to the fact that corn is high but that feeding a steer seventy-five cent corn involves risk—and consumers must be the ones to pay for the risk.

The other day a food investigation commission appointed by the state of New York made a report. Among other things it found that hucksters might be seen selling rotten apples in the east side of the city, though fine apples lay spoiling on the ground less than eighty miles away. Again and again growers of those apples had gone to the trouble of picking, sorting, barreling and shipping them, only to find by their commission merchants' returns that the market was congested or depressed that day, and that the net yield was hardly sufficient to pay expenses. They had become discouraged and let their apples rot. Eating decayed apples was the price the people of the East Side paid for that marketing risk.

Consumers always want beef; the East Side always wants apples. These two instances suggest the complexity and misalignment of present day marketing. Assurance of a steady demand at a fair price would foster the production of any staple dietary article up to the point of meeting the demand. The demand is there—consumers always want the articles; but nobody is in a position to give the assurance. The grower must take the risk of a bad connection at every one of the joints and angles between himself and the consumer. He must take the risk that some other grower will arrive at the same point with the same goods at the same moment he does. For all this risk the consumer pays—or it falls on both consumer and producer. For this misalignment between producer and consumer cooperation is the only cure.—Saturday Evening Post.

Some of the sleepy towns of Florida think it's all right not to get mail on Sunday, but we differ with them most decidedly. Of course those people who think it a sin to read letters on Sunday are welcome to their opinion, but so far as we are concerned we don't see why they don't stop the trains, the telephone service, the telegraph, and other conveniences of modern times (either of which are no more important than the transmission of mail matter) in order that the poor overworked employes may get some rest. We suppose if Claude L'Engle had been up at Washington he would have gotten his megaphone to working and would have shouted all over the country about the measure being put through up there, so that a protest could have been entered, however, Claude wasn't there, and as a consequence "slant" at our mail boxes on Sunday morning and deplore their abject, lonely, empty look, and go home and imagine we're living in the Fiji Islands or some other deserted habitat where mail only comes once in ever so often.—Lakeland Telegram.

A fellow named Fitch wrote an article on Florida and said that St. Augustine was the oldest city in the United States. Well, Fitch is a humorist and meant that for a joke. He knows, all jokes aside, that Pensacola has that title nailed down for keeps.—Pensacola News.

Both of you are wrong. New Smyrna is the oldest town in the United States and we can prove it by Bro. Burch of the New Smyrna Breeze.

Editor Holly of the Sanford Herald has been plugging along getting out one of the best papers in the state for the past four years without taking a vacation. But now after warning the sheriff not to close the office while he's gone he has hied away to Coronado Beach for a real rest. Sanford has a booster in Holly good as a whole board of trade.—St. Augustine Record.

That was a fine editorial the linotype operator of the Kissimmee Gazette wrote last week and was evidently a solution of the tariff problems, although like all other editorials on this subject it needed the services of an interpreter.

BRAVE GIRL TO GET REWARD

Prompt Action That Averted Most Serious Railroad Wreck is to Have Recognition.

Miss Hester Ross, daughter of W. O. Ross of Ross Spur, a Mississippi flag station, will receive a Carnegie medal and a purse of money for her bravery in saving the lives of a dozen or more men on a freight train some few days ago. A telegraph operator and a young woman telephone operator each played an important part in the story.

No. 73, fast freight, pulled out of Noxapater, the depot operator at Louisville flashed to Dispatcher Stepp at New Albany the following: "Long out cars broke loose here. Took main line."

Dispatcher Stepp, realizing that a crash between No. 73 and the runaway cars going in an opposite direction on the main line was almost inevitable, called Miss Mary Monday, long-distance operator of the Cumberland Telephone company, saying, "Get whoever you can on the wire at once and tell them to flag No. 73. There's a chance in a hundred. Hurry."

Not losing a moment, she called the Ross home at Ross Spur. It was then about 1 a. m. At 1:10 the freight was due to pass the little town. No answer to her frantic rings was obtained for nearly five minutes. Finally a drowsy voice answered at the Ross home. Learning of the terrible situation, and without waiting to arouse any others of the family, and having but five minutes to reach the station, Miss Ross, in her night clothes and bare feet, armed herself with a lantern and dashed down to the depot.

No. 73 whistled and was about half a mile down the track. The cut of runaway cars could be discerned coming in an opposite direction to the fast freight. Standing in the middle of the tracks, Miss Ross swung the lantern desperately and jumped aside as the freight rolled by, coming to a halt a few feet further on. The cut of runaway cars bumped into the engine, but did no damage. The cars had run away for about five miles.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Moved and seconded that the bills as approved by the finance committee and signed by the president be paid. Carried.

Moved and seconded that council adjourn. Carried.

We're Opposed to Mail Order Concerns Because—

They have never contributed a cent to furthering the interests of our town—

Every cent received by them from this community is a direct loss to our merchants—

In almost every case their prices can be met right here, without delay in receiving goods and the possibility of mistakes in filling orders.

But—

The natural human habit is to buy where goods are cheapest. Local pride is usually secondary in the game of life as played today.

Therefore

Mr. Merchant and Business Man, meet your competitors with their own weapons—advertising.

Advertise!

The local field is yours. All you need do is to avail yourself of the opportunities offered. An advertisement in this paper will carry your message into hundreds of homes in this community. It is the surest medium of killing your greatest competitor. A space this size won't cost much. Come in and see us about it.

BECAUSE YOU KNEW THAT THE 1913 OVERLAND WOULD BE AHEAD OF THE TIMES, AS USUAL

This car, at this price, smashes all previous records. It even totally eclipses our 1912 values, which a year ago baffled the world. 40,000 Overlands will be made in 1913. This enormous jump in production makes possible this new car at this new price. As our production goes up, prices come down, as has been shown in each preceding year.

In this rapid age of progress it is sometimes difficult to grasp the full significance of an important, progressive manufacturing step, such as this car exemplifies. But when you sum up the extraordinary, cold dollar for dollar value which this car offers, as compared to any and all competing motor car values, the giant economical manufacturing strength of the huge Overland plants is realized and recognized. It only proves the ability of this most powerful and efficient automobile factory.

Here we can but call your attention to the bare facts. This is the car—a powerful, big, beautiful, spacious, comfortable, self-starting, thirty horse power, five passenger touring car fully equipped—all ready for night or day, rain or shine, service. Made of the best materials on the market, by the most skilled men known to the trade, and in the most efficient automobile shops in America.

SOME IMPRESSIONS AND EXPERIENCES OF A TRIP TO OLD ENGLAND

Have you ever thought, when planning your vacation trip, that instead of taking a long, dusty, tiresome journey by rail you could "sail" from the Clyde Line dock, at the foot of Palmetto avenue just a few blocks from your home, and without having to place foot upon a railway train, land in any of the world's seaports, such as New York, or Liverpool and Southampton in England, or Hamburg, or Calcutta, or Manila, or Buenos Ayres? Very probably you had not thought of it, and if you had you at once dismissed the thought from your mind by saying that such a journey was too expensive or too long or that you feared seasickness, which by the way, is more dreaded by those that have not made a voyage than by those who have. At any rate such a thought did get hold of the writer and it held on so firmly that he was not satisfied until he was on his way to spend a short while in "Old England," and incidentally some time upon the bosom of the Atlantic. And when he had executed his plans, had returned safely to Sanford, and was settled down to a quiet contemplation of his trip, he was set upon by the forces that guide The Herald's onward course and made to deliver up the little store of information and experiences he had gathered on the way. Thus is explained this appearance in The Herald's columns.

Nowadays when one lets it be known that he contemplates a trip abroad he is immediately asked, "Have you seen your own country first?" And the illustrated railway guide and summer resort advertisement have drummed that question into our ears so long and with such good effect that we are constantly on the lookout for some malicious person trying to slip unseen out of his own United States without having "Seen his own country first," just as though he should be unable to see it second or third or last and was therefore lacking in the amount of patriotism he should possess, or had less than another who had "Seen his own country first," or perhaps had not seen it at all. So it was in spite of the protests of the railroads and their desire for the few paltry dollars he possessed, and in spite of the advice of some of his friends that the writer decided upon a voyage to "Old England."

There were of course other reasons besides the comfort of a sea voyage over a railway journey in summer, that played a part in this case. So many people see this country that a trip to California or to Niagara Falls or the Yellowstone is quite commonplace, whereas a vacation spent in England is, to say the least, not at all commonplace.

Then, too, although this country possesses many sights unrivalled throughout the world, they are so far apart that it is beyond the means of most of us to see more than two or three of them because of the hundreds or thousands of miles that separate them, while in England there are within the radius of what we would call a very short distance enough of interest to keep one busy for several months. But more important than all else was the desire to actually see the country where Robin Hood lived, the London of "David Copperfield" and the land of Shakespeare, and the many other attractions that every English speaking person can readily think of. That famous traveller and lecturer Stoddard expressed this well in the following way, "It is not difficult to discover the charm that lures us to "Old England." There is no portion of our globe whose literary and historic souvenirs touch us so profoundly; and we need have no fear that reverence for the Mother Country, will be interpreted as Anglomaniya. . . . Whether we like the English Government or not, nothing can change the fact that England is our old home. The child cannot renounce its mother. It is "Old England" there; it is "New England" here. Up to comparatively recent times her history is also ours. The same words that express their joys and sorrows also express ours. However far we may drift apart a common literature grapples us together as with hooks of steel. Shakespeare, Grey, Byron, Dickens, Thackeray, Carlyle, Tennyson and George Elliot—of these immortal names we are as proud as Englishmen can ever be." Thus there were many things to decide the writer upon this course, and he hopes that the ninety some millions of citizens of the United States will not feel hurt or slighted thereby.

The Trip Down the St. Johns

Having accomplished the task of making up his mind and the still more arduous task of selecting from the multitude of steamship lines and steamers the one most suitable and having made reservations, the writer made his departure from Sanford on Tuesday, July 9th.

From the very moment of departure the trip was one of constant delight. And although the first part of it was right here at home, it does not seem proper to omit it in describing the whole. It is doubtless a familiar fact to every one that we always fail to appreciate the beauties right around us. That seems to be the case with the St. Johns river and the beautiful series of lakes through which it passes. There are scores of people right here in Sanford who confess to never having taken the trip by boat to Jacksonville, and there are even many who have not even been on Lake Monroe. Since this is the case it does not seem out of place to say something about this part of the journey. Those readers who have made this interesting boat trip will, I think, agree with me that it is well worth describing, and that the slight extra money and time spent thereupon are well repaid.

July the 9th was a very hot day in Sanford, a day in fact on which one could appreciate best the pleasure of getting off the hot breezeless streets, finding a deck chair in the shade of an awning on the upper deck of the "City of Jacksonville," where the motion of the boat made a very grateful breeze.

Right then also begins that peculiar feeling that comes to one when starting off on a long voyage, away from home and friends and country to a land of strangers, where all will be new and unusual. At such a time it is, of course, much better to have a friend and traveling companion along, but such things can be gotten along without, and had better be gotten along without if the two are not entirely agreeable to each other. In the present case the writer was without any companion. But sometimes that proved an advantage rather than not. There cannot possibly be any disagreements as to what is to be done or where one is to go when there is only one person concerned.

The first part of this voyage was that of Enterprise, with which most of you are acquainted in such a way that you are expecting me to say nothing about it. But let me remind you that this was a vacation trip on which the writer intended to take plenty of time to miss nothing of interest possible and from which he expected to extract the maximum amount of enjoyment. So even at Enterprise there was something of interest for him.

It would be difficult to find a more pleasing view than that from the upper deck of the boat nears Enterprise. On a bright sunny day, such as this one was, one can look up to the sky to the east across the prairie toward the town as fine a view of Florida landscape as could be wished for. Looking back along the way we have come, Sanford could be seen in the distance, with its church steeples and the red tile roof of the High School building showing above the green of the trees. You may be sure that the writer had a good look at it this time because there were many long and watery miles ahead, and then too there was the Titanic to look at.

But there was something else interesting at Enterprise besides the view from the upper deck. Some passengers got aboard at Enterprise. They were actual, live human beings, such as you may find in various other parts of Florida or elsewhere, exactly like the people we know right here in Sanford, although on looking closely at the town it seemed rather remarkable to all the passengers that they should be found there. But once having become convinced that there really were people living there, the dullest of the passengers could understand easily why they were leaving. It is quite certain that no one blamed them in the least. It must be admitted that they are worthy of the highest praise for so doing.

One of these new arrivals particularly interested us. Yes, she was a girl. But that had absolutely nothing to do with this instance. For reasons of personal safety the writer will not attempt to describe her appearance. This old world is too small a place for that. You sometimes meet people again. But evidently she was quite proud of the fact that she was about to leave for New York, and she was equally well aware of her conversational ability. Even before the boat was well up to the dock she had informed us of these facts by her leave taking and by a flow of words that soon earned the name of "Polly" among some of the passengers. It must be admitted also in her favor that she kept things from growing dull. A boat is always a mighty good place to study human nature, and not a few of the most enjoyable features of the trip were the opportunities offered to study and to get acquainted with all kinds of people.

If one does not already possess that very valuable faculty of making friends easily he should immediately embark upon an ocean voyage, where he will have the opportunity of observing and getting acquainted with people.

Having taken on board four or five passengers at Enterprise and thereby deprived that thriving city of a large portion of its population, we again set sail. Of course even the stay-at-homes that never get further than the post-office, and don't get even that far since we have the free delivery, know that we didn't actually "set sail", nor for that matter did "we" have any thing to do with the "setting sail." But when you are aboard you must use nautical language as everybody else does. It does not make the least difference if you don't know what you are talking about, its more than probable that the people you are talking to don't know as much as you do, so no harm's done. And for the further enlightenment of those that refuse to go anywhere near our beautiful lake it should be said that the boats, or rather the boat that makes its entry into Sanford's crowded harbor every other day, carries no sails whatever. Although this boat is not new, it is carrying things entirely too far to say that the term "set sail" has followed the old boat down the centuries from the days when the steamers were so rare as to have no terms of their own. But it would not be too much to say that the City of Jacksonville and the Frederick de Bary were very probably contemporaries of that first paddle wheel affair that "sailed" up the Hudson with "Bob" Fulton at the helm. Evidently the Clyde Line thinks that a new boat would be unappreciated by the people that patronize the line but I am sure such would not be the case. However that may be, the Clyde Line must be given credit for most excellent fare on both the river line and on the coastwise line, and for generally good service, when the rates are considered.

REMAINS TRUE TO INSTINCT

True It Is That a Sheep May Become a Wolf, but Never a Wolf Becomes Sheep.

One Sunday at the house of Anatole France they were talking of the admirable romance he had just published "The Gods are Thirsty." M. Paul Boudry expressed in the warmest terms the enthusiasm with which this work had inspired him. Above all he vaunted the character of "Evariste Gamelin," whom a false revolutionary philanthropy had transformed from a bleating sheep to a devouring wolf.

A Russian lady, who was present, said she knew of wolves that had become sheep. "The Prince Troubetzkoi," she said, "brought two of them. He brought them from Russia. They had been tamed and he fed them in a leash like greyhounds. You know that he is a vegetarian. He has imposed this diet upon his beasts. He feeds them vegetables and salads."

"In fact," then said Anatole France, "I met him the other day with his wolves of which you speak. In the street. He had stopped before a fruit stand and he was plundering a basket of carrots to regale his beasts."

"That is an excellent example for vegetarians," said the lady. "Seduced by such an example I acquired a wolf and fed him myself. But I feared that he would fade away. But as I did not intend to renounce my vegetarian ideas I continued to make him nibble fruits and roots in public while at home, secretly I gave him fresh meat. In this way I was able to keep him for some time. He died a while ago. I do not understand how Prince Troubetzkoi succeeds in keeping his wolves. I suspect he employed the same method as myself."

In short," said Anatole France, "one often finds sheep that become wolves, but never wolves that become sheep." —Le Cri de Paris.

In Dreams.

"I know Charley enjoyed being a delegate at the convention," said young Mrs. Torkins.

"How?"

"I heard him talking in his sleep and some of the language he used was exactly the same as that which he employs at a baseball game."

School Grounds.

It is strange that towns and communities will decorate their cemeteries and allow the school yards to remain bare. Would it now be better to reverse the rule and care for the living rather than the dead? It is certainly too late to benefit those who rest in the cemetery and not too early to instill a love of plant-life into those who attend school.

Fitting a Cork.

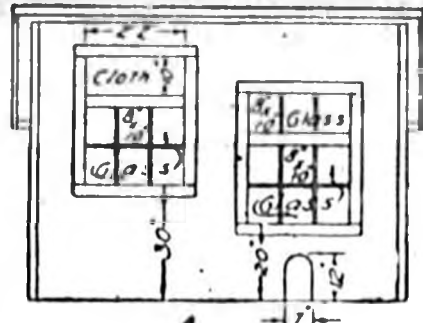

If a cork is too large for the bottle in which you wish to use it, lay it on its side, and with a little board or ruler roll it under all the pressure you can put on it. It will be elongated to fit in a very few minutes.

"Watch" Marquard.

The Giants say that Marquard has obtained possession of George Wiltse's famous watch, which always brings good-luck to its wearer. The story goes that many years ago Wiltse fell into a swamp and came up with a gold watch. He lent it to his friends, and for a long time Christy Mathewson was alleged to carry it. Anyhow, the Giants used to get runs whenever Matty pitched. Leon Ames never was allowed to pack the charm, and consequently he lost many well-pitched games because the team failed to score behind him. And now the champions allude to Rube as "Watch" Marquard.

GIVE BEAUTY TO THE PORCH

Boxes With Flowers or Vines Are an Ornament No House Should Be Without.

Veranda or porch boxes should be at least a foot wide and a foot deep and the timber of which they are made should be of fairly good quality, for it will have to resist considerable pressure when the box is filled with soil.

These boxes will be found most satisfactory if allowed to project outside the veranda rail. They should be well supported by braces running from the bottom of the box on the outside to the veranda floor.

Paint them some neutral color before filling them with soil.

If ordinary soil is used you will have only an ordinary development of the plants you set out to grow in it, while what you want is vigorous growth.

Procure soil containing as much decayed vegetable matter as you can. No matter how full of roots it is, the nutriment you are in search of is there and a few roots more or less will not interfere with the plants you propose to grow in it.

On the contrary, they will prove of positive benefit, as they will help to keep the soil light and porous.

Before filling the boxes with soil, bore a few holes in the bottom of them to allow for the escape of surplus water. In all probability there will be no surplus water to escape, but it is well to be on the safe side.

When you put the soil in the boxes press it down firmly. If dumped in lightly evaporation will be rapid and the roots of your plants may suffer in consequence.

At the outside of the box set vines of quick development, like German Ivy, Tradescantia, Moneywort, or the Madrola vine.

These will soon hide the box completely and after a little they will form a screen for all that portion of the veranda below the rail.

Morning glories can be planted here and then along the box and trained up on strings and made to furnish shade for the veranda as well as a screen.

Other flowering plants can be selected to suit individual taste. Almost any plant can be used with reasonable chance of success if care is taken to see that the soil in the box is kept always moist.

Strange Garden Creations.

I often ask myself where in the world the strange erections that stalk through an increasing number of American gardens that even cover not a few American verandas, staring white, bare of foliage, and solid enough to support a sky-scraper, are supposed to have derived their origin, writes H. G. Dwight, in the Atlantic Monthly Magazine. In some of the greatest Italian gardens the pergolas are made of slender unplanned poles fastened together by wires, which are invisible under the vines that cover them.

The nakedness of American pergolas has sometimes been explained to me by the fact that grapevines must be cut down every year in order to bear well. What of it? The vine exalts for the pergola, not the pergola for the vine.

Even in countries so poor as Greece and Turkey thousands of vines are grown simply for their shade and beauty. If we called a pergola a trellis, and were done with it, we might be less in danger of disfiguring our gardens by a species of snow-bald.

SANFORD PUTS ONE OVER

Indians were Not in Class of Collegians at Miami Ball Game

Winning the first game of the series, Sanford was victorious over the Miami team yesterday afternoon, defeating the locals by the score of 11 to 1.

Tillman started the pitching for Miami and walked two men. With two errors and a pair of hits, the celery bunch put four runs across the plate. Sanford also scored four more runs in the second inning by getting the bases full on two errors and a walk, when Lowe drove the ball over the left field fence and cleared the bases.

In the first inning a Sanford man reached first on an error and Farmer picked out one to his liking and cleared the right field fence, cleaning the bases. Up to this point Sanford scored ten runs, out of which only three were earned. Sanford had made five hits from Tillman, and had the home boys played errorless, the tale might have been different.

Ray, the Sanford twirler, had the Indians at his mercy throughout the game, giving only two hits in nine innings. Tenney in the first inning beat out a bunt and in the ninth Snedigar hit to the deep center field and reached third where he was left at the close of the game.

Walker pitches for Miami this afternoon and Manager Reed is confident that the visitors are not such a hard bunch after all.

Lost the Second Game

If there was any luck in the game yesterday, it was in the ninth inning when Miami scored six men, winning the second game of the series from Sanford on the score of seven to five.

Some of the Indians r WWWWWW
Some of the Indians had scarcely recuperated from the effects of the scare which the celery bunch had handed them on the previous day, but the Braves went into the game feeling that the visitors were not such a tough bunch after all and won the game by a desperate effort in the closing hours.

Walker, the reputed big leaguer, entered the box for Miami and remained during the entire game, striking out eight of the visitors but giving eleven hits. Wallace and Lee pitched for Sanford and Wallace only struck out two men while Lee held his own easily in the ninth.

No home runs were made, although Taylor made a three base hit. At the close of the eighth the score stood five to one, but five men were scored and the day was won.

The game was thoroughly enjoyed by all present and it is certain that the base ball enthusiasts of Miami will attend the games during the remainder of the week, as good patronage is necessary for the financial success of the week.

Sanford has a good team and every man came here with the intention of doing his best to win the series from Miami, in order that the team may claim the amateur championship of the state. Manager Reed is working hard and so is each of his players and with two evenly matched teams, good base ball and plenty of it is assured for the fans during the remainder of the week. Games will be played every afternoon beginning at 3:15 o'clock.

New Overlands Are In

The new model, 1913 Overlands arrived yesterday and all day long Bob Holland was busy getting them housed and showing them off to the many prospective buyers. Many Sanford people have been anxiously awaiting the arrival of the new Overlands. They expected to see one of the finest cars on the market and they have not been disappointed, for the new models are beautiful and seem to be the last word in automobile construction. Mr. Holland stated that he could not get the required number of cars that he wanted in this shipment, but could supply them in a few days. There are so many people wanted to see the new cars that he had these rushed to Sanford for demonstrations and has already taken several orders and the cars have only been here one day. Read the page advertisement in this issue and get the specifications and then let Bob Holland take you out and demonstrate the famous car and show you all the good points. The price will be $1085 in Sanford with the big tires and all the other accessories and you will buy an Overland after you ride in one.

Killed Big Rattler

While W. A. Parr and George Teratus were skimming down the Orlando road last Wednesday thinking only about wire troubles on the telephone line they came upon what at first glance seemed to be a log lying in the road. Upon getting closer it was found to be a large rattlesnake, and quickly turning his car toward it Parr managed to strike his snakeship full in the middle breaking his backbone and putting him hors du combat. Getting out of the car and measuring the snake they found that he was over eight feet long and had thirteen rattlers and a button. The boys brought him home and will preserve the skin as a memento of their narrow escape. One of the peculiar circumstances connected with the adventure was the fact that as the car struck the snake something went wrong with the machine and it stopped dead on the snake's body. As to whether the shock of striking the snake stopped the car or not is left to conjecture.

Randall-Amick

At 11:30 this morning, Miss Nellie Amick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Amick, of this city, and Mr. E. B. Randall, of Sanford, were united in marriage at the home of the bride, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Chapman of the Methodist church.

The bride was becomingly attired in a beautiful frock of white embroidery with dainty lace trimmings.

The couple were attended by Miss Myrtle Amick, sister of the bride, with Mr. Beecher Kent of Sanford.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding dinner was served, after which, amid the best wishes of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Randall left for an extended wedding tour, their itinerary taking in Washington, Niagara Falls, Pittsburg and other points, returning via Parkersburg, W. Va., the old home of the bride.

After October 4th they will be at home to their friends in a pretty furnished cottage which is ready for their reception at 804 Magnolia avenue, Sanford.—Reporter-Star.

Mrs. E. G. Tyner left yesterday for Tampa, after spending the summer with her daughter, Mrs. R. J. Holly on Sanford Heights.

A Brief Resume of Florida Happenings That Will Interest The Hurried Reader

Bertie and Lawrence Smith, deputy sheriffs, who formed part of a posse sent to raid negro crap shooters at Dutton's still near Terrell, in the eastern part of Hernando county, returned to Brooksville with charges of buckshot in their feet, the result of armed resistance on the part of negroes friendly to the blacks who were arrested. Eleven handcuffed prisoners were abandoned by the deputies.

Plans have been ordered prepared at once for the construction of the cold storage plant and reconstruction of the ice factory itself in St. Petersburg. The new work to be done will comprise a two story heavily reinforced concrete structure 60x70 feet in dimension. As planned the lower floor will be the ice factory while the second story will be divided into five large cold storage rooms.

A form of gambling called bolito has become so prevalent in Key West that the Journal compares it to an epidemic of the bubonic plague. All classes of society patronize the bolito shops and public morals are being contaminated. The officers of the law, under oath to maintain public order and decency, apparently are doing nothing to stop this plague.

Clearwater is to have a handsome new $200,000 hotel. A stock company capitalized at $500,000 is promoting the proposition. An planned the structure will be a four story building, either stucco or concrete construction being used. The Spanish style with mission features will be followed, the building being roofed with red tile. The structure will contain 250 rooms with 100 baths, and the construction will be done with a view of making a further addition at some future date.

The resignation of Drainage Engineer Wright of Everglades fame, was a surprise to many. Other surprises are no doubt in store, however, in connection with the drainage of the Glades. People who should be posted in regard to the matter say the state of Florida will have parted with title to every acre of land in that section long before the work is completed. It has been a great scheme for land sharks, at the expense of the people. —Gainesville Sun.

If the plans of the board of bond trustees in Jacksonville are carried out are lights will eventually disappear from the streets of that city and in their place will be a splendid system of post lighting along the avenues and thoroughfares, such as has been adopted and installed by the larger and more progressive cities of the United States.

The new sanitarium in Arcadia is nearing completion and will be a splendid thing for that town. The building is three stories high, containing twenty-four rooms in all, and a front and south side veranda on both the first and second floors. The structure is equipped with all modern improvements.

Chief Thomas W. Haney of the Jacksonville Fire Department has celebrated the twentieth anniversary of his official capacity as head of that city's fire fighters.

New Real Estate Firm

The Florida Realty Co., is among the new institutions in Sanford's business circles. Messrs. K. R. Murrell and J. B. Willis are the guiding spirits in the new concern and the offices will be in the Garner-Woodruff building. The new firm will handle all kinds of Florida lands but will make a specialty of turpentine and timber lands. They will also be agents for life insurance and later on for fire insurance companies and expect to do business in everything of the nature of real estate and insurance. Both gentlemen are citizens of Sanford and have been in business here for several years and need no introduction to the public. Being thoroughly conversant with every branch of the business and holders of the first degree the new firm ought to get a large slice of the business of Sanford and Florida.

In Honor of Mrs. Phillips

Mrs. S. O. Shinholser was hostess at a very delightful little informal reception given at her home Thursday afternoon in honor of her cousin, Mrs. Albert Phillips, a charming bride, who, with her husband, spent a short time here that day as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Shinholser.

The house was prettily decorated, a color scheme of pink being carried out. The hostess was assisted in receiving by Miss Peachea Lefler. Mrs. W. E. Housholder presided in the dining room and was assisted in serving the dainty refreshments by Misses Marion Wight and Marion Phillips.

Among those present were Mrs. A. E. Phillips, Mrs. Geo. DeCottes, Mrs. W. E. Housholder, Miss Sandie Williams, Miss Mabel Hand, Miss Mabel Bowler, Miss Alice Whitmer, Miss Irene Brady, Miss Madge Ward, Miss Bessie Long, Miss Peachea Lefler, Miss Landa Lefler, Miss Belle Smith.

Change in Imperial Theatre

George A. DeCottes has disposed of his interest in the Imperial Theatre to F. J. Miller & Son, the owners of the building and they in turn have leased the lower floor and the fixtures to J. F. Karnatz, who will conduct the moving pictures and the theatre in the future.

Mr. DeCottes was forced to give up his interests in the theatre business on account of his constantly increasing legal business and also because he was offered a good price for the same. He has conducted the moving picture business in Sanford for the past three years most successfully and from a small beginning brought it up to the present high standard of excellence.

Mr. Karnatz is an experienced theatrical manager and for the past two years thought he had quit the road for good and engaged in other pursuits, building himself a home here and settling down to a prosaic life. But the call of the footlights was too strong for him and when offered the Imperial gave up his position with the Geo. H. Fernald Co. and will assume the active management of the Theatre.

Sanford has always been a good show town and that Mr. Karnatz will make good goes without the saying. He proposes to give the people one of the most up-to-date amusement places in the state and having one of the finest small theatres and ample equipment for the moving picture business starts in with good prospects.

PROSPECTS ARE GOOD

Growers Anticipate Good Crop, Good Prices

SEED BEDS IN FINE CONDITION

The Celery Crop Will Be Curtailed to a Certain Extent Among the Sanford Growers

A swing around the Celery Delta will convince the most skeptical that the growers still have faith in the celery and while the consensus of opinion seems to be that the crop will be curtailed this season the seed beds would indicate that most of the old growers will plant a fair acreage of the crop that may mean so much or so little to them in the way of good money.

So far the seed beds are in fine shape and the growers are confident that the plants, both celery and lettuce, will be in excellent condition when planting time is here. The only disaster to be dreaded now is the storms that are liable to sweep this state at this season of the year and while the Sanford section is well protected the storm of two years ago played havoc among the seed beds and the stuff that had been set in the fields.

The statement that very little growing of lettuce and celery would take place this season was exploded last week when one fertilizer firm sold 70 tons of fertilizer to a combination of growers.

For this 70 tons the cash was paid, demonstrating that not only have the growers faith in the proposition but they have the cash to back up their belief and the Sanford section will soon assume the shape of former fall seasons with the farms all tilled and the green of the vegetable gardens making a pretty background for the dwellings.

A general spirit of get together is in the atmosphere this season and the growers are realizing more than ever that they ought to discuss matters of general interest among themselves and form some plan of cooperation that would redound to their benefit and give them a better chance to market the money crops that are raised here in greater quantities than in any other part of the world.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT

Orlando Citizens are in Favor of New Form for City

Orlando, Sept. 10. Orlando citizens are becoming interested in the question of the commission form of city government and it is not at all unlikely that they will join other progressive Florida towns the coming winter in asking the Legislature for a new city charter to that end. Mayor Reynolds and several members of the city council have already expressed themselves as favoring the change. Arrangements are about completed to call an election to vote on $200,000 or more city bonds to be issued for civic improvements, especially sewerage and paved streets. The expenditure of that amount of money, if carefully and honestly done, means a great deal of time spent by those having the city matters in charge.

Under the present aldermanic form of government it would mean that the larger part of the planning and figuring would need to be done at the council at their regular evening meetings held twice a week after they have each done a hard day's work in their private stores and offices. At the council meeting held on Thursday evening of this week, Hon. B. Beacham, ex-mayor and capitalist, went boldly before the council and told them in so many words that he did not believe they were competent under existing conditions to spend so large an amount of money in the wisest and most satisfactory manner and urged upon them the necessity of taking immediate action in the matter of commission government.

Mr. Beacham then explained that he did not mean to reflect on the business ability of the members of the council, each of whom is his personal friend, but that the present form of city government made the best and most judicious use of public funds almost an impossibility.

A majority of the council fully agreed with Mr. Beacham's proposition and it is probable that they will at once begin an investigation of the question.

Farewell for Miss Wight

One of the prettiest and most enjoyable parties of the summer season was given Thursday evening by Miss Margaret Wight and Ralph Wight at their home on Park avenue, for a few of their young friends.

Mrs. Wight, assisted by Mrs. Samuel Puleston, received the young people in the reception hall, which was beautifully decorated with pink vines. The same dainty flowers were used in all the other rooms for decorations. The back yard was particularly pretty, illuminated as it was with pink Japanese lanterns and the pink vine running in profusion all over the fences, making a beautiful background. Part of the evening was spent in the yard and the remainder in the house, dancing and playing games. Excellent dance music was furnished by Mrs. Turner Houser. This party was given as a farewell for Miss Wight, who leaves in a few days to resume her studies at the Woman's College at Tallahassee, and the young folks were unusually sorry to see a most delightful evening come to a close. Those present were Miss Essie Purdom, Miss Helen Rowland, Miss Margaret Davis, Miss Lillian Davis, Miss Mary Chappell, Miss Lucien Chappell, Miss Nellie Elder, Miss Elizabeth McLaughlin, Miss Hazel Hand, Miss Renee Murrell, Miss Charlotte Hand, Kenneth Murrell, James Downall, Osborne Herndon, Abie Kanner, Clarence Mahoney, Hal Wight, Ralph Wight, Seth Woodruff, George McLaughlin, Ernest Betts, Harold Long, McDowell Butt, Karl Roumullat.

The Potato Outlook

The present outlook for potatoes, taking all the districts collectively that produce stock for fall and winter use, is very promising. There are some spots here and there that have reported a poor outlook, as the reader will find by going over the advices in this issue of the Packer, but the districts that seem not to have fared well are not of material importance in the sum total of the year's crop.

As the Packer's readers know, the government reports say that the total acreage in potatoes this year, including the crops already marketed as well as those being grown for winter use, is 3,689,000 acres, or 102 per cent compared with the acreage last year. The same report says that crop reports from the whole country indicate an average yield for the entire acreage of 100.7 bushels per acre against the final estimate of 80.9 bushels per acre in 1911. These figures mean a total production of potatoes in 1912 of 371,000,000 against last year's final estimate of 293,000,000 bushels and for 1910, 349,000,000 bushels. These are the figures the agricultural department at Washington gave when issuing their last report.

The eastern states, including New England, Pennsylvania and New York state have about an average outlook, speaking of the entire district and this of course means a much larger crop than last year. Going farther west, we find an unusually fine outlook in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, Montana, Utah, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.—New York Packer.

Governor Woodrow Wilson, Democratic Presidential nominee, today declared war on James Smith, Jr., one of the Democratic candidates for United States Senator from New Jersey, an office which he held during President Cleveland's second administration. Gov. Wilson said that he did not doubt that the return of Mr. Smith to power would mean a restoration of "machine rule."

The new battleship Pennsylvania, the only one authorized by Congress at the last session, will be fully as large as the great battleship which the British government has just ordered, according to plans of the general board. The displacement will exceed 30,000 tons, which is about equal to the addition of a good sized cruiser's displacement to the biggest ship the United States now has afloat.

Eddy Hasha of Waco, Texas, holder of several world's records for motorcycle racing, plunged over the rail of the course at the Newark motordrome into a crowd late Sunday afternoon, causing the death of six persons, including himself, while six are dying and thirteen are badly injured. The only two of the six dead positively identified were Hasha and Johnny Albright, a Denver moto cyclist, who was riding third in the race. The other four dead were boys and young men among the spectators.

Intervention in Mexico and the possibilities of President Taft calling a special session of Congress to determine whether United States troops should be sent across the boundary line, were widely discussed in Washington by public men and in diplomatic circles. It is known that the government has been pressed on many sides to take such a step and various accounts of what influences were being brought to bear and the objects sought to be accomplished are related among those on both sides of the question.

President Taft and the state department, however, are holding to the principle that no such action should be taken without authorization of Congress. A great strike that will tie up industries all over the United States is threatened by the committee which is working for the release from jail at Lawrence, Mass., of J. J. Ettor and Arthur Giovatti, who are charged with murder in connection with the shooting of Anna Lopizza, during the recent textile strike disturbances at Lawrence. William D. Haywood, a member of the national committee of the Socialist party and organizer for the Industrial Workers of the World, was the chief speaker today at a meeting held at Hodcarriers' Hall, under the auspices of the Chicago Ettor and Giovanitti defense league, composed of six trade unions.

Criminal Court

Criminal court convened this morning, with Judge T. P. Warlow on the bench. There is quite a large docket, being somewhere about twenty-five cases only two of which had been disposed of at noon.

The following gentlemen compose the jury: E. T. Carson, E. A. Eaton, P. C. Hart, A. Hunter, C. W. Rose, J. I. Anderson, Geo. McClure, A. Arnold, R. Jernigan, S. Jernigan, H. Carroll, and T. H. Barlow.

Following are the two cases disposed of:

May Smith, an old negro, charged with selling liquor, plead guilty and was sentenced to four months at the county home.

Robert Jackson, charged with stealing a bicycle, was found guilty and was given five months on the county road.

The court this afternoon is considering the case of John V. Denton, charged with issuing worthless drafts. The prosecution is being assisted by Cary D. Landis, while the defendant's interests are being cared for by Carl Robinson.—Reporter-Star.

The Woodman Circle will hold their regular meeting Wednesday, Sept. 11th, 3:30 p. m. at Eagles' Hall.
