Port/Airport merger on hold

SANFORD — The Seminole County Port Authority (SCOPA) met Wednesday afternoon. The proposed merger of SCOPA with the newly named Orlando Sanford Airport Authority, was listed on the agenda.

"That part of the meeting lasted probably 15 to 20 seconds," said port director Dennis Dolgner. "No one else appears to be bringing the proposal any further, so the authority members decided it wasn't necessary to discuss it further at this time, and that was all that happened."

At their March 15 meeting, SCOPA held an extensive discussion, with both pro and con comments voiced by individual members. Two members, Clair Paul and Larry Dale, were subsequently designated as the Port Authority's representatives to a proposed joint committee consisting of all parties involved.

First Friday reservations

SANFORD — The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce is now accepting reservations for the new regularly scheduled chamber event, "First Friday."

The meeting will be held Friday, May 5, at the chamber facilities, with a luncheon cost of $5 per person. The subject for the May meeting will be improving business style, with a presentation and demonstration which chamber officials say are guaranteed to help you.

For reservations or additional information, phone the chamber at 322-2212.

5 charged with prostitution

SANFORD — Members of the City/County Investigative Bureau, (CCIB) arrested five women last night after running a prostitution sting operation at an apartment complex and motel in south Seminole County.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, the women advertised themselves as free-lance escorts. CCIB agents reportedly called the women and arranged to meet with them.

McDonough said when the women offered to perform sex for money, they were arrested on charges of assignment to commit prostitution.

The five were identified as Diana Coward, 32, of Oviedo, Kathy Esguinaz, 30, of Casselberry, Eveite Darby, 22, and Valerie Porch, 29, both of Orlando, and Kiercety Brinn, 24, of Narcoossee.

All five have been released from the John E. Polk Correctional Facility after posting $115 bonds.

Training session is public

LONGWOOD — A parliamentary procedure training session for Longwood City Commissioners April 26 will be open and free to the public. However, individuals wishing to participate in the training including receiving educational materials must pay a $25 registration fee.

The work session, which originally was to be open only to the commissioners, city attorney, city administrator and city clerk, is open to the public to comply with Sunshine Law requirements. The commissioners are paying a parliamentary trainer to try to streamline their meetings. The session will begin at 6 p.m. in the Longwood Police Department training room, 235 W. Church Ave.

SANFORD — Saturday, April 22, 1995 is Earth Day, proclaimed by everyone from Seminole County commissioners to a cartoon possum named Pogo.

This will be the 25th observance of Earth Day, dedicated to calling attention to all aspects of the natural environment. Several activities have been planned.

The Sanford Scenic Improvement Board will be hosting one of the Earth Day '95 events. Several hours of activities are being planned beginning with a March for Parks Funwalk at 8 a.m., at Fort Mellon Park.

Activities will continue through 1 p.m. Other activities at the park will include an Earth Day tree planting, and presentations and displays on such subjects as plant waste

Lake Mary survey: Recreation facilities

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary Parks and Recreation Advisory Board for some time has been working on possible additions and improvements to the city's recreational facilities.

The question initially arose in March of 1990, when a survey went out to area residents seeking input on possible parks and/or recreation matters. Many new functions have been created since that time, including the major sports complex off Rantoul Lane which was officially dedicated Dec. 5, 1992, and the outstanding Liberty Park off N. Country Club Road.

In addition, the city, with citizen assistance, has developed a number of neighborhood parks in the past few years.

Since October of last year, the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board has been developing, editing and updating a survey completed last year regarding what citizens see as being needed to continue to enhance the city's fun-time facilities.

With all of the changes in the city however, the board reportedly feels it may be appropriate to launch into another study.

During a March 7th city commission meeting, the matter was discussed, with some of the commissioners expressing their opinions that it would be good to reveal what citizens wanted in recreation as indicated in the previous survey.

Others however, said to announce the results of an old outdated survey would only lead some people to expect that the city would fulfill more of the suggestions which might indicate the city would commit to another recreation expansion.

Tonight, the commissioners will discuss the matter once again.

Parks and Recreation Director John Holland says the advisory board is recommending that a new survey be sent to residents in the next city newsletter mailout.

In the original survey sent out in June of 1990, 2,281 surveys were sent out to residents, with only 698 returned. That survey indicated a majority of responses favored new athletic fields (which have now been built). A large majority of those responding objected to the possibility of having a city swimming pool facility.

At that time, 78.8 percent of the people reportedly believed the city had an insufficient amount of neighborhood parks. (Many have been created or cleaned up since the survey).

In specific items, the majority of adults responding in 1990 indicated concerts as their number one need, followed by fitness, crafts, and historic museum.

Regarding facilities, people wanted tennis, followed by nature trails, bicycling, tennis, and basketball.

Children who responded listed baseball recreation as their first need in facilities, followed by basketball, tennis, and picnicking.

For activities, children agreed with adults listing concerts first, followed by fitness, crafts and historic museum.

Tonight, a new survey is scheduled to be presented for city approval. If accepted, it would be sent to all city residents, with a request that a response be made by no later than June 1, 1995.

Holland says he expects the needs and suggestions which would be made by Lake Mary residents this time, compared with 1990, would be markedly different due to the new sports and park facilities now available.

The Lake Mary City Commission will begin discussions today with a workshop meeting at 5:30 p.m. on the preliminary downtown development plan.

The regular commission meeting will begin at 7 p.m., or as soon as possible after the first meeting.

The Lake Mary City Hall is located at 100 N. Country Club Road.

Resident nixes power poles in his yard

LAKE MARY — Bob Chamberlin sat fiercely in his back yard on Wednesday.

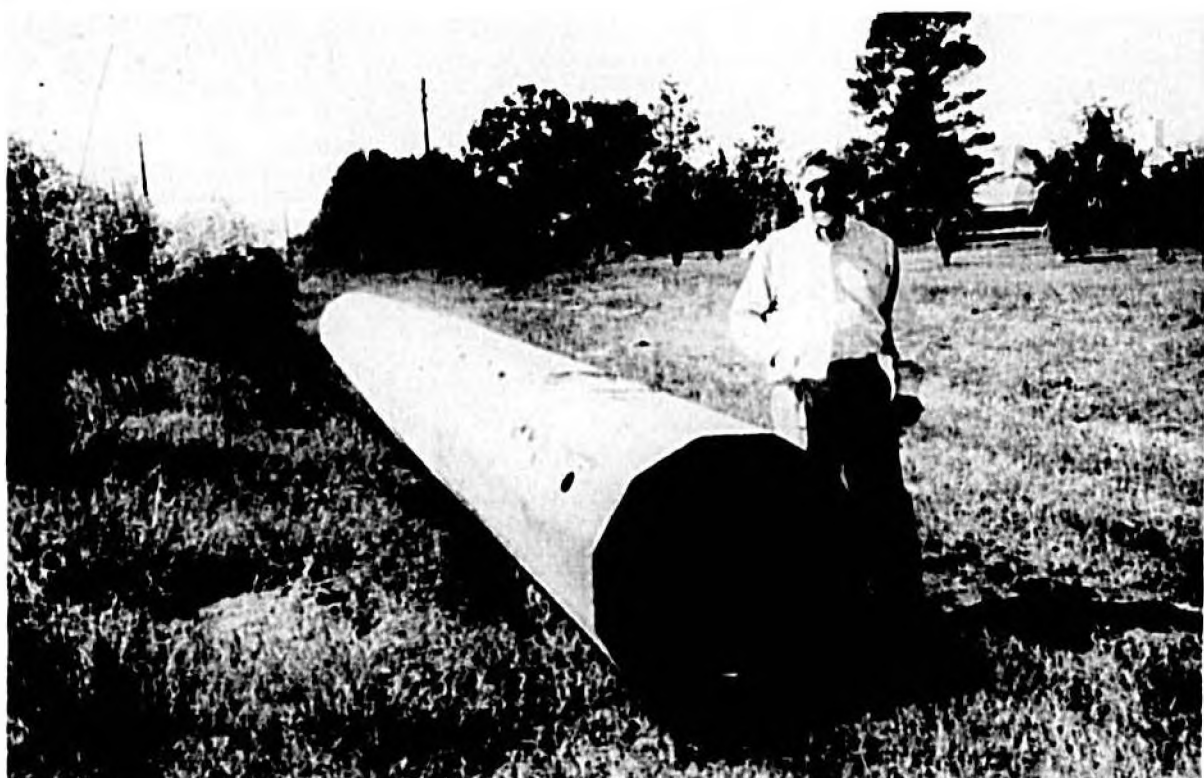

Armed with a telephone and a gritty determination not to be exploited by a utility company, he stood his ground and protected his property.

Chamberlin and about three dozen of his neighbors in the Silver Lakes subdivision have been fighting Florida Power Corporation for nearly a year over FPC's proposed installation of massive poles strung with high tension wires through the easement at the back of their property.

He says the matter has yet to be resolved. The power company's response was to begin drilling the massive holes to hold the pole in place.

According to Chamberlin, he and the other homeowners purchased the right of way at the back of their properties from the developers in order to prevent the power company from SANFORD — It's first and goal with seconds left on the clock in the championship game...score tied 14-14. The ball is snapped. The quarterback fumbles and an opposing team player scoops up the ball, sprinting down the field pursued closely by opponents who've just seen certain victory turn into potential crushing defeat.

The runner crosses the 50, 40, 30, 20 yard lines. Dashing over the 10-yard line, a defender makes a last ditch leap toward the ball carrier trying to stop the final score, then, then...the television picture dissolves in a sea of gray and white electronic "snow."

The scenario is fictitious but cable subscribers are sometimes irritated when they experience service interruption during a passionate, soap opera love scene, a critical moment in a trial or key point in a movie.

County residents now have the opportunity to speak their minds about cable service provided by one cable company seeking renewal of it

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Tobacco suit Court rejects cigarette makers' request

By ADAM YEBOMANS Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - The Florida Supreme Court has rejected a tobacco industry request to bar the state from suing for $1.4 billion to cover the public cost of treating sick smokers.

The court issued a one-sentence ruling Tuesday denying a petition by Philip Morris Inc. and R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. They argued that neither the Agency for Health Care Administration nor the Department of Business and Professional Regulation had the authority to sue the industry.

The state filed suit against cigarette makers in February.

A law passed last year by the Legislature makes it easier for the state to win a court victory over tobacco companies, Florida is the first state to have such a law to help prove its case.

Dexter Douglass, general counsel for Gov. Lawton Chiles, said Wednesday that he considered the industry's appeal to the Supreme Court "useless and superfluous litigation."

"We were never worried about it," said Tim Howard, one of the private attorneys representing the state in its suit. "We thought it was a ruse."

John French, lead lobbyist for Philip Morris, the nation's largest tobacco manufacturer, said the industry had hoped to cut short the state's suit and didn't view it as a setback.

"We knew it was a shot in the dark," French said.

One of the big legal actions in the fight between tobacco and the state takes place in June in Leon County Circuit Court when industry lawyers argue the law is unconstitutional, French said.

He said the issue before the Supreme Court was "one constitutional issue out of a kitchen sink full."

The law allows courts to impose judgments against tobacco companies based on their market share and not their percentage of fault. It also allows the use of statistical evidence to prove the state's claims.

The law eliminates one of the major defenses of companies - that some of the blame for health problems falls on the smoker.

Business groups said the law affects more than just cigarette makers and could expose virtually any industry to a lawsuit. They also say private lawyers stand to gain the most because they can receive up to 30 percent of any award if they succeed in court.

The governor has disagreed about the scope of the law but is prepared to narrow it during the current legislative session to apply only to tobacco.

Tampa hospital cleared

By JAMES MARTINEZ Associated Press Writer

TAMPA - Federal regulators have given a breath of life to a troubled hospital, finding it has corrected serious deficiencies that led to a wrong-leg amputation for one patient and the death of another.

The decision Wednesday lifts the threat that University Community Hospital would lose its funding from government health-care programs, which account for a third of its revenue.

Last year, Medicare and Medicaid payments totaled $52 million. And without that money, many worried the 424-bed private hospital would have to close.

"This is very positive news," said hospital president Norm Stein. It "lifts a major burden and alleviates the concern of our patients and community as to their future health care at University Community Hospital."

Federal regulators last month made an unannounced inspection of the hospital following the Feb. 20 botched amputation on diabetic Willie King, 51, and the March 3 death of 77-year-old Leo Alfonso after he was mistakenly removed from a ventilator.

The intense scrutiny revealed other mistakes, including an arthroscopic surgery performed on the wrong knee and a tubal ligation performed last month without prior consent.

Inspectors initially found numerous procedural problems that created an "immediate and serious" threat to patient safety. They threatened to yank the hospital's federal funding if they were not corrected.

A return visit this week found the situation had turned around. "All deficiencies have been corrected - the jeopardy was released," said Irene Gibson, a deputy director of certification for the federal Health Care Financing Administration.

Program disqualifies welfare cheaters from future benefits

By Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE - A new statewide program aims to disqualify those who lie on welfare applications from receiving future benefits.

People are disqualified for six months after a first fraudulent application, 12 months after a second and permanently after a third. The program was started last month by the Auditor General's Office Division of Public Assistance Fraud.

"If we find an application is false and we get them disqualified, we prevent that person from committing further welfare fraud," said Bill Martin, Northeast Florida supervisor of the fraud division.

Most of the lies deal with income and the number of dependent children, officials said. To speed up the disqualification process, investigators present the applicant with a waiver that relinquishes their rights to a hearing but could also prevent them from being reported to the State Attorney's Office. "We don't approach these people and say they are going to be criminally prosecuted if they don't sign a waiver," Martin said. "Most of the people are relieved to know we're handling it administratively and not through criminal prosecution."

People convicted of lying on an AFDC form can be fined up to $10,000 and imprisoned up to five years.

Since March 7, 21 people in Northeast Florida have been found to have submitted fraudulent applications, and all 21 signed waivers, Martin said.

Officials said they do not have any figures on the number of welfare cheaters presented with waivers statewide.

While the program to have welfare cheaters disqualified from future benefits is new, the pre-benefits investigations have been done since last year.

Correction

Two warrant arrest reports in the Police Briefs published Monday, April 17, 1995 in the Sanford Herald were inadvertently combined due to a momentary electronic problem. This resulted in an error in one of the reports.

Paula Louise Winstead, 28, of Geneva, was not "serving time" at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility as was reported. Winstead reportedly turned herself in as being wanted on an outstanding warrant for violation of probation.

The Herald regrets this error.

Cops make several burglary arrests

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford police and sheriff's deputies made a number of arrests Tuesday, in connection with several burglaries during the past month.

Scott Eugene Dunn, 31, 2406 Jefferson Court, was located by Sanford police at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. On April 6, he was believed to have been involved in a burglary at a residence in the 100 block of E. Coleman Circle. Police said he reportedly attempted to sell some of the items.

The arrest reports say he is also suspected of having been involved in a residential burglary on Feb. 5 in the 300 block of Hidden Lakes.

The arrests came following an intensive investigation and reported identifications having been made.

In connection with the Coleman Circle burglary, he was arrested for possession of stolen property and dealing in stolen property.

In connection with the Hidden Lakes burglary, he was arrested for burglary and grand theft.

Police also arrested Robert Martin Nemeroff, 56, of 115 Dresden Court, Sanford. Police said he is believed to have been driving the vehicle from which Dunn committed one, possibly more of the robberies. Nemeroff was arrested for burglary and grand theft.

Ronald Keith Mallett, 22, of Altamonte Springs was arrested by sheriff's deputies Tuesday. He was believed to have been connected with a residential burglary on March 31 in the 1000 block of Sandy Lane in Longwood. Deputies said he was identified by fingerprints found at the scene. He was located Tuesday at the Seminole Towne Center Mall area, and charged with burglary to a residence, grand theft, and criminal mischief.

Steven William Lunn, 39, with no local address, was apprehended a short time after a reported business burglary Tuesday, in the 1400 block of W. First Street in Sanford. Police reportedly located him based on a description of his clothing, on Seminole Blvd. near Mangouste. He has been accused of burglary.

Deputies said they also found he was wanted on a warrant issued in Brevard County for violation of probation on a previous conviction of petit theft.

In a separate case, Sanford police said a burglar alarm summoned them to a business in the 1000 block of French Avenue Tuesday. When they entered the building, they reportedly found Harold Collins, 33, with no local address, laying on the floor with what appeared to be a handgun. After police apprehended him, they learned the gun was a BB pistol taken from within the store. He was subsequently taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he has been charged with burglary.

HIV calls: Girl sentenced to treatment, probation

By The Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — A teen-age girl who telephoned former hospital emergency room patients and told them they had tested positive for the AIDS virus was ordered into therapy and sentenced to five years' probation.

Tammy Lynn Eckelsten, 13, pleaded guilty Wednesday to one count of taking confidential information from a computer and four misdemeanor counts of making harassing telephone calls.

As a result of the plea, prosecutors dropped five felony counts and four misdemeanor counts. The judge withheld adjudication, meaning all the charges will be dropped if Eckelsten successfully completes probation.

The girl's mother, Darlene Eckelsten, told Circuit Judge A.C. Soud Jr. she took her daughter to work at University Medical Center on Sunday, Feb. 26, because she couldn't find anyone to watch her.

She said she didn't want to leave the girl alone because of her history of drug use, truancy, shoplifting and fights with her parents.

"I couldn't leave her out to be on the street," her mother said.

The teen-ager was arrested after a call she placed to one of the patients was traced back to her mother's telephone using Caller ID.

She was immediately placed in a residential treatment program at Daniel Memorial Hospital. A therapist told Soud the teen will receive more intensive therapy than she had received under the early delinquency intervention program.

"We think it's a very good disposition," Assistant State Attorney Mallory Cooper said.

When the case began, Soud noted the girl's lack of remorse.

Therapist Selena Warner told the judge the girl's attitude has improved.

"When she was first admitted, she was extremely defiant, extremely manipulative. She responded very well ... to therapy," Ms. Warner said.

But the woman told the judge she was not comfortable in sending her home.

Soud's order requires Eckelsten to go to school, not leave Daniel Memorial without permission and abide by a 6 p.m. curfew after she leaves the treatment program. If she violates her curfew, he said her parents can be held in contempt of court if they fail to notify authorities.

SEMINOLE COUNTY CONSOLIDATED PLAN SUMMARY

SEMINOLE COUNTY, FLORIDA VOLUSIA/SEMINOLE HOME CONSORTIUM (SOUTHERN SECTOR)

Notice To Citizens: Seminole County is the recipient of federal grant funds through a number of programs administered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). These include the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program, the HOME Investment Partnership Program (Volusia and Seminole Counties formed a consortium in 1991 to qualify for the HOME Program), and the Emergency Shelter Grants (ESG) Program. These programs are designed primarily to assist the County's low and moderate income residents. In order to streamline the administration of these programs, HUD has consolidated all of the local planning and citizen participation requirements for these various federal programs into a single administrative process: "The Consolidated Plan."

Consolidated Plan Summary: The Consolidated Plan represents the best thinking of the County, its residents, local organizations, and social service providers. As part of the Plan development process, the County held workshops with the residents of its low income neighborhoods, solicited ideas from its social service agencies, nonprofit housing providers, County and City departments, and held a public hearing to seek input on problems and needs, as well as on how the County should best use these funds.

The Consolidated Plan has several main sections. First, is a Housing and Homeless Needs Assessment section that analyzed the specific types of affordable housing problems the County's residents are having as well as assessing the County's homeless population's needs for facilities and services. Second, is a Housing Market Analysis section that looked at the County's housing market and its impact on local conditions; as well as examining areas of racial or low income concentrations, existing assisted projects, supportive housing needs, and barriers to affordable housing.

Based on this information and analysis, the County developed a Five-Year Strategic Plan. This Plan sets priorities for County activities in the coming years. In the area of Affordable Housing, the County, working with its non-profit housing partners, will continue to give priority to assisting its low income residents through down-payment, rehabilitation, and rental assistance priorities on helping homeless families with children, especially those that have been the victims of domestic violence. The County will also continue to target its community development activities within its low income target neighborhoods. This Plan also sets forth the County's organizational coordination strategy for implementing the Plan.

The County has also prepared a One Year Action Plan. The proposed use of funds for the Fiscal Year beginning on October 1, 1995 are:

Teen curfew

Regardless of what some entities may put on their letterhead, Sanford is not Orlando. There are many differences, one of which is the lack of an active downtown business community in the evening hours in Sanford.

Orlando has one however, and over the years, more and more criminal activity began to take place. Finally, Orlando enacted an ordinance preventing teens, 17 and under, from being downtown from midnight until 6 a.m.

There were certainly many objections. It even went to court, but the 5th District Court of Appeals in Daytona Beach has now upheld Orlando's teen curfew ordinance.

We would suggest that if there were downtown business activities late at night in Sanford, the city would have, by now, enacted a similar ordinance.

There is a growing number of problems however, and solutions must be found. More and more teenagers are being arrested for committing some of the most serious crimes. There are reports of some children, even the very young riding their bikes, who have mugged someone, robbed them of wallets, jewelry, purses, and other items.

It used to be the exception to report on a youngster being tried as an adult because of the severity of a crime. Nowadays however, it is becoming all too common.

It wouldn't do any good to have a teen curfew in downtown Sanford like Orlando has. We suggest however, that this serious problem involving teenage crime is growing so rapidly, there may be a need for such laws city-wide in the near future.

It is unfortunate we couldn't have an ordinance which barred criminals from our streets between dusk and dawn. It would be wonderful if we could however.

Everyone wants to blame everyone else for our 1990's teen crime spree. The truth of the matter is that everyone must accept the blame themselves.

Look at the people involved. Law enforcement, parents, teachers, the peer groups, and yes, the teens themselves.

Perhaps there is one other type of human being who must accept blame. The person who constantly fights any efforts to enact laws to help the non-criminal society we would like to live in. Come up with a law to help combat crime, and there are always those who will jump up and shout that we are taking away their freedoms.

If we allow our freedoms to be paid for by expanding criminal activity, something is wrong with all of us.

So it may cost someone some freedom. If it helps make this a better society in which to live, which approach should we seek?

McNamara doesn't absolve Clinton

President Clinton has declared himself "vindicated" by the just-published memoirs of former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara. In them, McNamara - who was a famous "hawk" on Vietnam in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations - asserts, after the passage of 30 years, that the government's Vietnam policy was "wrong, terribly wrong."

Mr. Clinton, who was a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford in the late 1950s, organized demonstrations against the war in front of the American embassy in London. He has now leaped on Mr. McNamara's belated turnaround as proof that he was right to do so.

But Mr. Clinton misses the point. The case against him, as far as his record on Vietnam is concerned, is not that he opposed the war. Millions of Americans did that. The point is that he contrived to avoid being drafted for military service in Vietnam by promising to enter the ROTC program at the University of Arkansas (a promise that won him a deferment), and then broke that promise when draft calls fell.

As a result of his deferment, somebody else (who, unlike Bill Clinton, was unable to avoid being drafted) was sent to Vietnam in his place. And although we can never be sure what happened to that unlucky young man, since we don't know who he was, it is entirely possible that he rests today in some American military cemetery, or (worse) that his body has rotted anonymously into the soil of some Vietnamese field, as a direct result of Bill Clinton's successful effort to save his own precious hide for better things.

"Vindication" my eye!

As for Mr. McNamara, my guess is that he thought he was in for buckets of praise from the "doves" for declaring, three decades after the event, that they were right. If so, it was just one more miscalculation in a life that increasingly seems to resemble a long line of Edsels.

On McNamara's own testimony, he appears to have come, very early in the game, to the private conclusion that the war, at least as it was being fought, was unwinnable. If so, resignation as Secretary of Defense was the only honorable course open to him. Instead he sat there, month after month and year after year, allowing American boys to be fed into the jaws of a war effort that he privately considered doomed. No wonder the doves are unimpressed!

The case against him, as far as his record on Vietnam is concerned, is not that he opposed the war.

Just for the record, I do not for a moment share the opinion of McNamara and the doves that the Vietnam War was either "wrong" in some moral sense or unwinnable as a military proposition. It was simply bungled by its civilian managers in Washington, including Lyndon Johnson and Robert McNamara.

Strategically, the Vietnam War was just one of a series of regional military conflicts in the larger struggle called the Cold War. It was bitterly opposed by many liberals and leftists, including young Bill Clinton, either because they rejected the whole thesis that America was in a global struggle with the forces of Communism or because they actually relished the prospect of an American defeat.

Crime sampler: Any suggestions?

It's enough to make a grown man cry. You've been told time and time again. Were you listening? If not - why not? If you did listen, why are you still sitting on your butt doing nothing? The time for action is long gone but if you get a wiggle on, you can if you try, catch up.

The Sanford Herald, among other news media, has been advising you, telling you, waving the red flag, if you will, trying to get your attention to our (that's yours, mine, here and there) crime problem(s).

And what was your response? Ho-hum! Oh me! And back to the O.J. fiasco or worse yet (if that's possible) on to another highly morally questionable TV "Talk Show" which bares all - right down to their very soles ... among other things.

Doesn't it bother you - just a little bit - to learn that our state, Florida, is listed fourth as the most dangerous state to live in? Yup! Only Louisiana, Maryland and Nevada are worse off than we are. Listen up good folks out there in what I hope is Readerland. That means that there are 48 other states that are a damn sight better off - crimewise - than we are.

Why do you suppose that circumstance exists, at least according to a survey conducted by the Morgan Quinto Press?

Crime is not unique to Sanford. Crime is not unique to Central Florida or even the whole of Florida. Crime is absolutely rampant nationwide. Did you ever ask yourself why? Why are the bad guys/gals getting so far ahead of the ... how shall I identify us ... the good guys/gals who sit on their hands to keep them warm ... and do ZIP.

Let's take a sojourn back in time, approximately 90 days, and see what's been going on ... here, there, and elsewhere according to local news media.

"Second jury also recommends death penalty for Raprat." Convicted of raping and killing two senior citizens, one an 87-year-old and the other, a 79-year-old. How much do you want to bet on what he gets ... and in which decade?

"Three Filipinos who murdered billionaire's child beheaded." Swift and sure punishment! That's what it takes.

"Couples slaying is linked to drugs." And some people in and out of the legal profession (allegedly) have supported the legalization of (some) drugs. Wunnerful, wunnerful. Is that what it takes?

"Man who shot at teens' van gets 141 years in prison." Wanna bet? What's the odds? Out in 15?

"Woman sues Atlanta hotel where '83 rape occurred." The perpetrator, who already has pled guilty to rape and robbery, is already in prison for 20 years. Isn't it just an absolute miracle how "money" soothes almost all alleged wrongs?

SEMINOLE OPINION

"Man put to death for '84 rape, strangling of niece." From '84 to '95. Finally - an end to the appeals. Alleged justice - at last.

"Supreme Court refuses to halt execution in Texas." If you are sane enough, intelligent enough, healthy enough, etc., etc. to do the crime then damn it, you are also "enough" to take the punishment.

"California golden state all right - for the lawyers." Who really wins when it comes to crime and criminal matters? According to the U.S. Census Bureau survey, the legal profession came out #1 in 1992. Heavens to Betsy - wonder how that ever happened!

"Man charged with killing pen-pal after leaving prison." And on the day of his release, no less. I guess there's no pleasing some people. Graveyard, yes. Prison, no.

"Another 12-year-old found guilty in migrant's death." Shot 'em 18 times. "Maybe" detention center until 21. Ain't it just wunnerful? Detention center?

"Panel to lawmakers: Tough sentencing crowds prisons." Aw - gee whiz, ain't that just horrible? Make more room in the prisons. Put violent major felons in the ground. There's lots of room there. No crowding - whatsoever. No waiting line either!

"Ex-con wanted in four attacks." Extremely violent! Yes sir - correctional institution sure corrected this one - almost.

"Oklahoma executes killer also convicted in New York." The North-East tug-of-war is finally over. New York and the now deposed Mario Cuomo lost. Finally. And maybe justice finally came out on top - for a change.

What you have just (hopefully) read is but a small random sampling of crime over the last 90 days or so - here, there, and elsewhere. What do you think is the answer to it all? Any suggestions? Let's have 'em.

Work day yearlong for some girls

On Take Our Daughters to Work Day, American girls will be visiting the nation's law firms, insurance companies, newspapers, retail outlets and factories as their parents introduce them to the world of work. Some will participate in planned activities, such as the girls who create their own newspaper at The New York Times. Others will be showered with an array of TODTWD paraphernalia - hats, buttons, T-shirts, mugs.

But for most of these girls, April 27 will simply be a fun day off from school, where they get to dress up, meet their parents' co-workers, and possibly learn something about what they want (or don't want) to do with their lives.

The Ms. Foundation, creator of the event, says that TODTWD is going global, with countries such as Singapore and South Africa participating in the three-year-old holiday. That's nice, but the concept must seem strange in a lot of developing nations, where many girls spend their days weaving textiles, selling cashews, picking rags, binding books and caring for children. For these girls, every day is Take Our Daughters to Work Day.

The atrocities committed against children in the commercial sector have been widely documented. In China, the Associated Press found factories where 10-year-old girls worked 18 hours a day, slept three to a bed in company dormitories, and were paid $10 a month. In Malaysia, American companies paid girls 45 cents an hour for unskilled labor in the semiconductor industry, reports the Los Angeles Times. And in India, girls in Sivakasi matchbox factories developed bladder infections, most likely due to the fact that their supervisors forced them to sit on the floor for long periods of time without bathroom breaks, say researchers Gary Barker and Felicia Knaul.

In total, the International Labour Organization estimates that between 100 million and 200 million children - boys as well as girls - under the age of 15 are working worldwide.

I'm screaming girls here because their work does not end when (and if) they come home. Girls also bear the responsibility of housekeeping, making for a much longer day. In Africa and Asia, for example, girls work seven more hours per day than their brothers, according to UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund.

They are also much less likely to go to school. Worldwide, two-thirds of the children who are not in school are girls. Parents keep their daughters out of school either because they need them to work, or because it simply does not seem worthwhile to educate girls, who have little chance of career advancement anyway.

"Why should I send my girl to school?" a Kenyan mother asked researcher Sheila Parvyn Wamahu. "Who will then look after my babies, fetch water, clean, cook for us when I go to sell my vegetables? Who is going to help me dig, weed the farm, harvest the fields?"

There's nothing wrong with kids helping out at home and even earning extra income that would help the family survive. But there is a line at which a child's tasks become exploitive labor.

A young Kenyan, on the other hand, knows she is missing a lot by being a girl: "Among my people it is boys who are supposed to take care of goats, but my brothers are in school. The goats can't be left to just run around, can they? So I have to stay home and look after them, and take care of the home, do the housework, fetch the water and firewood, and mind my young brothers and sisters. How I wish I could go to school."

For these girls, every day is Take Our Daughters to Work Day.

Clinton launches manhunt

WASHINGTON — President Clinton is ordering an exhaustive federal manhunt for those responsible for the bombing carnage in Oklahoma City and declares, "Justice will be swift, certain and severe."
Clinton and Attorney General Janet Reno vowed a massive federal probe of Wednesday's car-bomb explosion that devastated a nine-story federal building where 550 worked and a child-care center operated.
"The bombing in Oklahoma City was an attack on innocent children and defenseless citizens," a grim-faced Clinton said in the White House briefing room. "It was an act of cowardice, and it was evil."
"The United States will not tolerate it. And I will not allow the people of this country to be intimidated by evil cowards," the president said.

Pig tissue transplanted in brain

BOSTON — For the first time, doctors have transplanted tissue from a pig into the brain of a man with Parkinson's disease in an attempt to reverse this debilitating illness.
If successful, the treatment will give doctors a limitless alternative to human fetal tissue, which is used now.
Previous attempts at cross-species transplants to cure human ills have failed. However, doctors say they believe there is a good chance this one will succeed, in part because the body's immune system defenses are weaker in the brain and thus less likely to reject foreign matter.
"We have great hope this will work," said Dr. James M. Schumacher, who performed the operation at Lahey Hitchcock Clinic in suburban Burlington.

What's bothering sequestered jury?

LOS ANGELES — In the inner sanctum of his chambers, O.J. Simpson's trial judge tried to find out what was bothering the sequestered jury. But he isn't telling anyone yet.
Superior Court Judge Lance Ito sent word he wants to interview six "non-jurors" before he closes an unusual inquiry into reported troubles — racial and personal — among jurors and alternates. Only then will he release transcripts of the interviews, which were prompted by a dismissed juror's reports of tensions on the panel.
Meanwhile, the action was returning to the courtroom today with testimony from police evidence technician Andrea Mazzola.
Mazzola's status as a rookie with the Los Angeles Police Department's crime lab was a point of contention during defense cross-examination of her supervisor, Dennis Fung.

Prosecutors search for papers

WASHINGTON — Whitewater prosecutors are searching for a mysterious box of papers that a White House aide was seen carrying the morning after Vincent Foster's suicide, according to people close to the investigation.
Prosecutors cannot locate the box, don't know what was in it, where it came from or whether it even relates to Foster's death, the sources said, speaking only on condition of anonymity.
Prosecutors subpoenaed 10 witnesses before a federal grand jury in the past month to probe the White House's handling of Foster's papers. The witnesses include lawyers who worked with the late deputy White House counsel.
One area of questioning: What happened to the box of material that a Secret Service officer saw Craig Livingstone carrying in the West Wing of the White House on July 21, 1993, said the sources, who are not inside the prosecutor's office.

Nabbed in Sanford

Killer escaped from psychiatric hospital

By NICK PFENPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford police have arrested an escapee from Marlboro Psychiatric Hospital in Trenton, N.J., who reportedly killed his parents 15 years ago. He was nabbed after nearly four days on the run.
William Jennings, 39, was arrested at the Subway Shop, 2927 S. Orlando Drive, in Sanford at about 9:50 p.m. Wednesday after employees reported a man who acted strangely and walked in and out of the shop.
Sanford police Commander Dennis Whitmire said officer Ernie Ellenburg responded to a call from the restaurant regarding a man seen going into and out of the building a number of times, acting suspiciously.

"When officer Ellenburg talked to the man," Whitmire said, "he reportedly identified himself as William Vincent Jennings and kept repeating that he was going back to prison."
Whitmire said police ran a computer check with national records disclosed that Jennings was wanted on an escape charge from the New Jersey facility. Jennings reportedly made no attempt to resist the officer. He was arrested and transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.
New Jersey Human Services Commissioner William Waldman said Tuesday that Jennings should be considered dangerous because he was probably not taking medication prescribed for him.

Jennings apparently walked away from the facility Saturday afternoon. He has been confined to state psychiatric facilities since being found innocent by reason of insanity for killing his parents with a deer rifle in their West Orange home on Easter Sunday 1980.
Jennings was reported missing during a routine check at the hospital and authorities issued a nationwide bulletin with his description.
Waldman said Jennings' privileges had recently been upgraded to allow him to walk around the hospital grounds unescorted. A state Superior Court judge reviewed his privileges periodically and set the guidelines.

Jennings was housed at the Forensic Psychiatric Hospital in Trenton, the state's most secure hospital, for at least 10 years, but was recently transferred, Waldman said.
Authorities said he had a history of emotional problems leading up to the killings. After shooting his parents, he reportedly told his sister, "I've just shot and killed Mom and Dad. Call the relatives and tell them I've done it."
He was subsequently arrested by New Jersey law enforcement officers, after a three-hour standoff.
Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

Balanced budgets sprout everywhere

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Top House and Senate budget writers are deep into a grueling, daunting and — if successful — historic effort to erase the federal deficit. And they're not alone.
As House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio, and his Senate counterpart, Pete Domenici, R-N.M., prepare separate blueprints for balancing the budget by 2002, more than a half-dozen other lawmakers and outside groups also are churning out proposals.
Two Republicans have plans featuring deep cuts in anti-poverty and health programs that strive to halt decades of federal red ink even faster than Domenici and Kasich would. One — freshman Rep. Mark Neumann, R-Wis. — has a plan that he says would eliminate the budget shortfall in just three or four years, and he hopes to pressure GOP leaders to shorten their timetable.
Hoping to pull their party into the debate, at least two groups of Democrats are writing competing balanced budget plans. Liberal Rep. Joseph Kennedy II and moderate Rep. Martin Meehan, both Massachusetts Democrats, would cut defense spending and raise taxes on the rich and business. Party conservatives are contemplating cuts in a broad swath of programs.

And several interest groups have crafted road maps for slashing spending enough to stem the red ink.
As the growing number of plans demonstrates, anyone with a particular political viewpoint and the proper computer software can quickly solve the deficit problem. The true challenge is to fashion a plan that can pass Congress and win the president's signature.
"When you represent 260 million people like the president does, or several million as senators do, or half a million as a congressman does, it becomes excruciatingly difficult" to agree to a balanced-budget plan, said Robert Reischauer, former director of the Congressional Budget Office, now studying the budget for the Brookings Institution. "Inevitably, some of your own oxen will be gored."
The Senate Budget Committee begins debating Domenici's plan next week, while the House Budget Committee could start on Kasich's two weeks later. Both GOP-controlled panels seem likely to approve packages claiming more than $1 trillion worth of savings over seven years, including big cuts in Medicare, Medicaid and welfare.
Others are producing balanced budget plans, anyway, because they let the author make a political statement of priorities — which programs should be cut, which should be protected. Sooner or later, some of the suggestions might be incorporated into a budget Congress passes.

Some tax cuts are included. Neumann's plan would cut deeper and faster than many lawmakers feel is politically and economically viable. Nonetheless, he hopes to build enough support to force House Republicans during a private retreat in early May to accelerate their budget-balancing timetable.
"Why wait until 2002?" he asked in an interview.
Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., soon will unveil his own plan for eliminating the budget gap by 2000, shrinking many benefit programs and disbanding some agencies. Chairman of the House Rules Committee and a loyal member of the GOP leadership, Solomon — and even Neumann — may help Kasich by making the budget chairman's seven-year package of cuts seem more tolerable.

Until now, Democrats have played a nay-saying role in this year's debate over balancing the budget. President Clinton has offered to join deficit-reduction efforts as part of health-care reform, but his budget proposed leaving annual shortfalls at about $200 billion indefinitely.

At least 33 killed in deadliest U.S. bombing

By JUDY GIBBS
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY — A car bomb ripped deep into America's heartland Wednesday, killing at least 33 people and leaving 200 missing in a blast that gouged a nine-story hole in a federal office building.

The dead included at least 12 youngsters, some of whom had just been dropped off by their parents at a day-care center.

The government had received calls from six people saying they were from different Muslim groups, asserting they were responsible for the deadliest U.S. bombing in 75 years.

"But there is no way to know if the calls are genuine," said a Justice Department official, who declined to be identified by name. "They could be hoaxes."

At least 200 people were injured — 58 critically, according to Fire Chief Gary Marra. Scores were feared trapped in the rubble of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building.

"I was in Japan for the Kobe earthquake and saw the devastation," said James Lee Witt, director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. "The area impacted here is just as bad, if not worse."

Three people were pulled from the rubble Wednesday night but two died a short time later, said Assistant Fire Chief Jon Hansen. He said a 15-year-old girl was taken from the building in critical condition. He also said a woman trapped in the basement said there were two others with her. She didn't know if they were dead or alive.

The death toll was certain to rise.

"Our firefighters are having to crawl over corpses in areas to get to people that are still alive," said Hansen, who updated the death toll to 31 late Wednesday.

The first of four urban search and rescue units activated by the federal government was headed into the building early Thursday, using dogs, acoustic listening equipment and tiny cameras to look for victims.

Attorney General Janet Reno refused to comment on who might have been behind the attack. President Clinton called the bombers "evil cowards," and Reno said the government would seek the death penalty against them.

A Department of Public Safety dispatcher in El Paso, Texas, told the El Paso Times that an alert had been issued from the DPS for two people who may be bloodied and may be trying to cross into Mexico at Laredo, Texas. The bulletin said the information was on the authority of the FBI.

The bomb was believed to be in a minivan with Texas plates, owned by National Car Rental, said Oklahoma City Police Sgt. Kim Hughes. An axle of the vehicle was found about two blocks from the scene, said a police source who requested anonymity.

Their clothes torn off, victims covered in glass and plaster emerged bloodied and crying from the building, which looked as if a giant bite had been taken

Victims left dazed, rescuers frustrated

By LIBBY QUAIN
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY — Bloodied and dazed, they waited.

The victims of the explosion that ripped a nine-story chunk from the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building Wednesday morning waited to hear what happened to their co-workers.

Mothers waited to hear what happened to their babies. Doctors waited to treat the wounded. Counselors comforted agitated family members, friends and some blood-spattered victims.

Injuries were severe: One man's back had glass protruding from at least 100 cuts. Flying glass slashed one person's throat and punctured another's lungs.

"There were partitions, a wall and door that buffered me. I just got buried under all that," said Larry Cook, 51, a supervisor at the downtown office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Cook was on the building's seventh floor when the explosion happened. He had stitches across his forehead and on his hand after treatment at St. Anthony's Hospital in downtown Oklahoma City, and his wrist was bandaged thickly where it was cut near an artery.

He wore blue hospital scrubs. His clothes were ruined. "What didn't get blown off had

At a glance

Developments in the Oklahoma City federal office building explosion:
THE BUILDING: Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, nine-story federal office building where more than 300 people work. Houses day-care center and offices of Social Security Administration, Housing and Urban Development, General Accounting Office, General Services Administration, Drug Enforcement Administration, Small Business Administration, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and Secret Service among others.
THE BOMB: Believed to be 1,000- to 1,200-pound car bomb, carried in a National Car Rental minivan with Texas license plates. Exploded outside building 9:04 a.m. local time.

CASUALTIES: 33 dead, including at least a dozen children, and more than 200 injured. Another 200 unaccounted for, and authorities said the death toll will rise — bodies seen in the wreckage haven't been tallied yet.

THE SEARCH: Hundreds of rescue workers, including a 36-member urban search and rescue unit from Phoenix, searched through the night with fiber-optic cameras and acoustic listening devices that could detect someone breathing in the rubble.

SUSPECTS: Early today, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said it found a Chevrolet Cavalier that may have been involved in the bombing in Oklahoma City, and that "follow-up interviews" were being conducted. The Highway Patrol said it therefore was canceling a search for "two men of Middle Eastern appearance," possibly wearing bloodied clothing, driving a Cavalier or Blazer toward the Mexico border.

CLAIMS OF RESPONSIBILITY: The government received calls from six people claiming responsibility, saying they were from different Muslim groups. But the FBI said it was not ready to blame any one group.

IN WASHINGTON: President Clinton called bombers "evil cowards" and Attorney General Janet Reno said they would seek the death penalty against those responsible. Clinton administration ordered tightened security at federal buildings throughout the country and dispatched law enforcement investigators to scene.

out of it, exposing its floors like a dollhouse.

Cables and other debris dangled from the floors like tangled streamers in a scene that brought to mind the car bombings at the U.S. Embassy and Marine barracks in Beirut in 1983.

"I dove under that table," said Brian Espe, a state veterinarian who was giving a slide presentation on the fifth floor. "When I came out, I could see daylight if I looked north and daylight if I looked west."

Mayor Ron Norick said the blast, which left a crater 30 feet long and 8 feet deep, was caused by a car bomb. He said the vehicle had been outside, in front of the building.

"Obviously, no amateur did this," Gov. Frank Keating said. "Whoever did this was an animal."

Police Sgt. Bill Martin said that 12 of those killed were children.

Earlier in the day, paramedic Heather Taylor said 17 children were dead at the scene, a figure later disputed by police. Dr. Carl Spengler, one of the first doctors at the scene, said the children, all at the day-care center, ranged in age from 1 to 7, and some were burned beyond recognition.

About 20 of 40 children in the day-care center were missing late in the day.

The search continued after nightfall, with about 100 Oklahoma Army National Guard soldiers activated to help with rescue and security operations in the downtown area.

The explosion, similar to the terrorist car bombing that killed six people and injured 1,000 at New York's World Trade Center in 1993, happened just after 9 a.m., when most of the more than 800 federal employees were in their offices.

The blast could be felt 30 miles away. Black smoke streamed across the skyline, and glass, bricks and other debris were spread over a wide area. The north side of the building was gone. Cars were incinerated on the street.

People frantically searched for loved ones, including parents whose children were in the building's day-care center.

Christopher Wright of the Coast Guard, one of those helping inside the building, said rescuers periodically turned off their chainsaws and prying tools to listen for pleas for help. "But we didn't hear anything — just death."

"You're helpless really, when you see people two feet away, you can't do anything, they're just smashed," he said.

Doctors had to amputate one woman's leg to free her.

"She was lying underneath a beam. It was obvious that she could not be extracted alive," said Dr. Andy Sullivan. "The attempt to remove the concrete beams would have caused the rest of the building to collapse. So at that point there was no decision made other than to crawl into the space and perform the amputation to get the patient out."

The building, which opened in 1977, has offices of such federal agencies as the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Social Security, Veterans Affairs, the Drug Enforcement Administration and Housing and Urban Development, and a federal employee credit union and military recruiting offices.

The bomb was perhaps 1,000 to 1,200 pounds, said John Magaw, ATF director. As for whether his agency suspected terrorists, he told CNN: "I think any time you have this kind of damage, this kind of explosion, you have to look there first."

Bob Ricks, agent in charge of the FBI in Oklahoma, said that there were hundreds of leads and that the bureau was treating them all seriously. "At this point we do not speculate as to who is responsible," he said.

Keating said he was told by the FBI that authorities were initially looking for three people of Middle Eastern descent in a brown pickup truck.

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol put out an all-points bulletin for the three, but Keating later downplayed the report, saying it was one of many leads being checked.

Keating also said they were checking whether the rental of a vehicle in the Dallas-Fort Worth area was tied to the explosion. Dallas is about 200 miles south of Oklahoma City.

The explosion heightened U.S. fears of terrorism. Federal buildings in several cities were evacuated because of bomb threats, and the government ordered tightened security at federal buildings throughout the country.

In 1920, a bomb blast in New York's Wall Street area killed 40 people and injured hundreds. Authorities concluded it was the work of "anarchists" and came up with a list of suspects, but all had fled to Russia.

After Wednesday's blast, emergency crews set up a first aid center near the federal building, and some of the injured sat on the sidewalk, blood on their heads or arms, awaiting aid.

Carole Lawton, 62, a HUD secretary, said she was sitting at her desk on the seventh floor when "all of a sudden the windows blew in. It got real dark and the ceiling just started coming down." She then heard "the roar of the whole building crumbling." She managed to crawl down some stairs and was not injured.

The explosion occurred on the second anniversary of the fiery, fatal ending to the federal siege of the Branch Davidian compound in Waco, Texas. That siege began with a raid by ATF agents a month and a half earlier.

Oklahoma City FBI spokesman Dan Vogel wouldn't speculate if there was a connection. The FBI's offices are about five miles away.

In the World Trade Center bombing in February 1993, a rented van blew up in a parking garage beneath the twin towers. Four Muslims were convicted.

Children's Wish Foundation nets $30,000

By JOANNE LUCAS BOURG
Herald Correspondent

Saturday, March 25, the Country Club of Heathrow, with Meg Kuchar as chairman, presented the 6th annual "Dancing with the Stars" to benefit the Children's Wish Foundation.

The Children's Wish Foundation is a not-for-profit organization founded in 1985. The work of the foundation consists of granting wishes to children who have not yet attained their 18th birthday and are suffering from life-threatening illnesses which will, in all likelihood, shorten their life expectancy.

Since its beginning, the foundation has granted over 1,000 wishes. Wish applications are primarily received from throughout the state of Florida. The foundation has a goal of granting every wish which meets the criteria.

The wish requests vary widely. One may simply be a color television, a toy, a shopping spree or a trip to Disney World. This year's wishes included visiting grandparents for the first time in a foreign country, a piano, a computer, and a specially equipped wheelchair.

Peter Kuchar, Meg Kuchar, chairman, and Joel Jones, executive director of the Children's Wish Foundation, are shown at the sixth annual Heathrow benefit.

Festivities included live entertainment for dancing until 12:30 ... rollicking, frolicsome

Three drawings included: A round of golf for four at Las Colinas or El Campeon, Mission Inn Golf & Tennis Resort, a three-night stay for two at the Heathrow Airport, Marriott, England, and two round-trip tickets on TWA.

Live auction items included a three-night weekend stay at the Hyatt Regency, Paris-Charles de Gaulle, including airfare, four days and nights at The Broadmoor, Colorado Springs, Colo., plus two round-trip tickets compliments of United Airlines, a BMW 325i convertible from Fields BMW Longwood.

The silent auction was comprised of trips to New York, Broadmoor, Colo., a 1994 325i BMW Convertible, ski jet, jewelry, pinball machines, golf and tennis memberships to the Country Club at Heathrow, rounds of golf, golf clubs, and a golf cart drew heavily contested bids. The auctioneer was Jim Boebinger.

Meg Kuchar happily reported "Heathrow's 6th annual fundraiser was a wonderful success. We shall be donating in the neighborhood $30,000 to grant children's wishes in 1995 (thanks to the generosity of many."

Woman seeks help in losing weight

ESpecially
JERRY STEWART

DEAR MR. STEWART: I remember reading a story about you in the Herald about, partly, how you had lost a lot of weight, some 600 pounds. The picture of you then and now was remarkable and inspiring, however, I just can't seem to get the job done.

I'm tired of being "fat" and get discouraged every time I go on a diet and then gain weight instead of losing. I have very little support from my family and feel like I am an outcast. I'm uncomfortable, can't wear decent clothes, and avoid people and have become somewhat reclusive. My husband has threatened to leave me if I don't lose weight and I'm afraid he'll do just this. I know that my children love me, but if I have to support them and myself without him, I just don't know if I'll be able to do it.

Besides, who will want a fat, middle-aged, divorced single parent? Please help me with a suggestion or two and do you see me being able to lose weight and maybe save my marriage?

DEAR JOANNE: Let me first start off by telling you that "I love you" and yes, I can help you to help yourself. You have only begun on your road to success and happiness by being able to write me and to face reality, i.e., the fact that you want to do something about your weight.

As for your husband, I feel sorry for him in that he stands to lose in the long run. If he doesn't come around and be more understanding, compassionate, and love you without reservation as he must have once, then he doesn't deserve you! Where does he get off thinking that threatening you is the answer? I am sure you have tried diets, programs and whatever, but you see, that is not the problem. Diet and exercise alone is not the answer. The key to motivation is you! You need to uncover those things in your life that led to obesity and understanding why you used food as your "drug of choice." I still think of myself as a foodaholic and pay special attention to my needs and emotions first. You have to be a little selfish in order to devote the time necessary to accomplish your goals. What hidden talents lie dormant within you? What love have you not truly experienced yet, including love of self?

When Richard Simmons was at the Florida Mall a couple of years ago, I finally had a chance to meet him and say "thank you." Although I had lost weight, it wasn't solely with his programs, but it did include a lot of love and motivation from him that I was smart enough to redirect for my own use.

I have spent the better part of the last 20 years trying to help others achieve goals for themselves in various ways, one of which is with weight loss.

Early birds offend hostess

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about guests who always arrive 30 to 60 minutes early — regardless of what time they're invited? I like to be showered and dressed, and have everything ready before my guests appear. When "Mr. and Mrs. Offender" arrive, they follow me into my kitchen, talk constantly, and try to help me, which I find distracting and irritating. I always ask them to please go into the den and wait. They refuse, and remain in the kitchen.

I asked a relative recently (another guest) to "remind the Offenders that they weren't expected until 7:30 p.m., because we had plans before." They replied they'd come when it suited them, as they didn't have anything else to do.

Everyone I've talked to would prefer that guests arrive 30 minutes late rather than 30 minutes early. The wife of a college president was trapped in the kitchen in her slip when her husband answered the door and felt obligated to invite the early arrivals in. Although they could see that preparations were still under way, they sat down and the host had to entertain them.

Perhaps we need a nationwide plea for good manners: arrive when expected, neither early nor late.

FED UP IN TIDEWATER
DEAR FED UP: Some people can't take a hint, in which case you must be more direct. Tell the early birds it rattles you when guests arrive early, and if they truly are good friends, they will accept your explanation and act accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer I was diagnosed with breast cancer. By August I had had surgery and started chemotherapy. It was recommended that since I was having a treatment which would leave me temporarily bald, I should buy a wig ahead of time.

I followed that advice and bought myself a very natural-looking wig made of human hair. Abby, I hated it! I felt like I had a dead squirrel on top of my head. I then reasoned that a hairless head was nothing to be ashamed of, so why should I hide mine?

Now, when someone asks me about the chemo treatments and says, "Is there anything I can do to help?" I answer, "Yes, you could lend me a hat!"

Abby, it has been wonderful. I have a Sherlock Holmes hat, some gorgeous flowered chapeaux, fun baseball caps, and some wacky homemade creations.

When people see me, they smile, and it makes me feel stronger. I recommend this for your readers in similar situations. You may use my name.

JANET BODE, NEW YORK
DEAR JANET: Thank you for a helpful letter. You have a lot in that head of yours — and I wish you well.

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to table manners? Recently a contemporary of mine, a well-educated, good family gentleman, actually flossed his teeth at the table while we were having our coffee and dessert. This happened in a high-class restaurant! Unbelievably gross behavior, which is becoming more common.

Also, I'll take this opportunity to ask your opinion of a waitress who cleared the dishes from in front of the few in the party who had finished eating — while several of us were still eating. This is a major annoyance to me, and usually affects the amount of tip I leave.

APPALLED IN MOBILE, ALA.
DEAR APPALLED: Flossing

— or picking one's teeth — at the table is highly improper.

As for the waitress who started clearing the table while several guests were still eating, she was sending a message: "You folks have been here long enough ... please hurry up."

Competent servers never start to clear a table until everyone in the party has finished eating.

DEAR ABBY: "Veni, Vidi, Vici!" What a delightful parody of a familiar old Latin expression! Please don't disillusion me by saying it was a mistake. That clever quip made my day.

Your high-flown critica may have a smattering of knowledge, but they certainly have no sense of humor.

AN OLD PEDANT
(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69406, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

What are the signs of bulimia disorder?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I think I'm suffering from bulimia. Exactly what are the symptoms and where can I get help?

DEAR READER: Bulimia, an eating disorder, is marked by binge eating followed by self-induced vomiting, the use of laxatives or diuretics, and rigorous fasting or dieting. The condition primarily affects young females of middle- and upper-economic status, especially college women.

DEAR READER: The hormone imbalances during adolescence and after pregnancy are often associated with skin inflammation, such as acne. Teen-agers usually outgrow this and, fortunately, so do women who have given birth.

Your blemishes should clear up within a month or two of delivery. If your acne persists, I suggest that you see a dermatologist for prescription therapy, such as tetracycline, to treat this common skin disorder.

The cause is unknown, but -- aside from malnutrition -- the disorder may cause several serious complications, including loss of dental enamel (from the caustic effects of stomach acid), swelling of the stomach (gastric dilatation), an inflamed esophagus, intestinal bleeding and life-threatening mineral imbalances.

Women with bulimia tend to feel guilty and remorseful about themselves as well as their eating disorder. They often are overly concerned about their weight and body image. They readily admit a loss of control over their eating behavior, and are more likely to suffer from depression and drug/alcohol abuse.

Treatment consists of intense counseling that may have to be initiated in a structured medical environment, such as a hospital, in conjunction with close supervision of nutritional needs and the complications I mentioned. In my opinion, bulimics should be under the care of professionals who are well-versed in the therapy of eating disorders.

If you suspect that you have bulimia, don't delay in getting help, either from your family physician or from mental health resources in your community. Your doctor can coordinate your treatment, with help from appropriate specialists.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I gave birth to my first child several weeks ago and have had a severe case of acne since. I know this is hormone-related, but I'd like to know if it will eventually clear up.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Today's deal occurred during the final of the 1983 Bermuda Bowl, held in St. Vincent, Italy. The home country won by a small margin over the United States. The winning edge would have been greater but for this deal.

Both Souths played in five diamonds. At the other table, Jim Jacoby opened one heart in the third position with those East cards. Now the Italians, who might have made three no-trump, were doomed. The defense took the first three tricks -- two top hearts and a heart ruff.

Here, East, Camillo Pabisti, couldn't open two hearts, because it would have shown hearts and clubs. And the Italians didn't like to open light in any position.

True, West, Giorgio Belladonna, might have led his singleton heart anyway, especially given North's five-club cue-bid and South's refusal to bid a slam. But he hoped to score a trump trick with his queen.

The declarer, Bobby Jordan, ruffed the opening lead (which promised a higher honor), cashed his diamond ace and played a diamond to dummy's king. The Americans in the audience groaned: the Italians cheered. But both were too hasty in their judgment. Jordan threw a heart on the club ace, ruffed a club in hand, played a spade to dummy's queen, ruffed another club, cashed the ace-king of spades, ruffed the spade 10 in the dummy and ruffed the final club in his hand.

That was trick 11 and declarer had won them all. At trick 13, there was a resounding crash as East's heart ace and West's diamond queen fell together.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 21, 1995

Your innate integrity and lofty ideals should be the yardsticks used in measuring all of your endeavors in the year ahead. If you live by these rules, success is indicated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Trying to achieve your objectives today aided by shortcuts could be a lesson in futility. You are apt to do better using traditional methods at this time. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you have to make a choice today between playing your hunches or following your logic, it's best to do the latter. Your intuition might mislead you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Resist poking your nose into situations where you're not invited today. Keep others out of your personal affairs as well. Either scene could spell trouble.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may not be as independent and willful as you'd like to think you are today. Your peers might pressure you into doing something against your better judgment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Assignments requiring your full concentration might not be your cup of tea today. If you must engage in this sort of work, try to keep your thoughts focused.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be on your best behavior socially today. Try not to do or say anything that could make the host or hostess wish you had been left off the guest list.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to work in harmony with your mate today instead of arguing about who has the upper hand. Concentrate on keeping the peace, not rocking the boat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This won't be a good day to take on projects you dislike. There is a strong probability you'll not finish what you start today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you're a pretty good steward of your resources and money, but today this might not be so. You could make some unwise moves.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Because of the demands made on you by others today, you might not be able to operate independently. Straining at the leash will only frustrate you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Beware of inclinations to negatively anticipate what might occur today. Pessimism could bring about the very things you hope to avoid.

ARIES (March 21-June 20) Today you're likely to mirror the behavior of persons with whom you associate. If they are extravagant and careless with their resources, you're apt follow their example.
