Work in Progress

WOMEN, Dec. 19.—Work is well under way on the new library building and the addition to the auditorium and Jennie Hoppers hall, contracts for which were let by the state board of control at its meeting on November 12.

The library building is being erected opposite Bryan Hall. The completed plans call for a two-story structure 230 feet long and 40 feet wide, with a 130-foot extension on the back. Only one unit, the west wing, will be built at the present time. This will be ample, it is said, to accommodate the present enrollment of upwards of a thousand students. Other units will be added as the demands justify them. When completed the building will be one of the most beautiful on the campus.

A steady increase in enrollment each year has necessitated plans for enlargement of the auditorium to double its present capacity. When the administration building was first planned the auditorium was constructed to accommodate about 900 persons. At that time the enrollment was about 200, and there was ample room for the student body. Under the leadership of Dr. Edward Cappel, however, there has been a steady growth, until this year the enrollment has gone well beyond the 900 mark.

The institution has grown so rapidly that it has been suggested that the college may find it necessary to limit its enrollment when it reaches a certain number because of advantages found in a smaller institution. Just what the limit will be has not been mentioned.

The additional auditorium space has been a handicap during the last few years, making it necessary to send the freshmen home prior to the graduation exercises of the senior class. After the enlargement has been completed this may not be necessary unless an unusually large number of the upperclassmen are so fortunate as to have their friends and classmates with them.

Work on enlarging the auditorium is creating much interest and enthusiastic approval among the students and friends of the college throughout the state.

General approval also is expressed over the decision to build the new dormitory—the addition to Jennie Hoppers hall—which will accommodate 140 more students.

Contracts call for completion of all the buildings on or before September 1, 1924.

Black Rot Prevalent On Florida Oranges

UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA, Dec. 20.—Black rot of oranges is alarmingly prevalent this year throughout Florida, according to a bulletin issued by O. F. Burger and William Gamble through the Agricultural Experiment Station, which declares that lettuce and specimens have been received from all sections of the state where complaint is made of the disease. This disease did considerable damage in 1911, but since then has not caused any alarm until this year, the report states.

"Black rot of oranges begins at the blossom end of the fruit," says the bulletin. "The first sign of the disease is the highly colored fruit, which ripens considerably before the main crop. At this time there will also be noticed a small brown spot at the blossom end of the fruit. If the rind is removed, underneath the brown spot the tissue is brown, or, in some cases there is no visible sign on the outside that black rot is present. In such a case a picker or grader is going to let the fruit go through to market and the disease will develop in transit and storage."

"When the disease has reached the advanced stage of decay a large dark necrotic black spot makes its appearance at the blossom end. At this time the core and rag are black and the fruit cells are beginning to break down. This condition exists in the grove and also develops on the way to market."

KEY WEST LEADS.
KEY WEST, Dec. 21.—This city leads all Florida in the exportation of merchandise during last August, according to figures made public by Matthew B. McFarlane, collector of customs for the Florida district. During that period Key West exported merchandise amounting to $3,334,635 as compared with the next highest of $942,862, shipped from Pensacola, giving the island city a three-to-one lead over any other port in the state.

ODD FELLOWS ENDORSE SITE.
ORLANDO, Dec. 21.—Odd Fellows of the state have endorsed an Orange county site for the proposed new home for aged members and orphans of members of the order. The site approved consists of 200 acres facing on a lake near Winter Park. Local members of the order will raise $20,000 required by the grand lodge to secure the home for this county.

MY LIFE WITH MAGGIE

CHAPTER X. MR AND MRS MUSIC.

"It makes me sick to think you haven't any talent for music, said Maggie to me.

"I was not the first time she'd said it. She'd said it so much she made me mad."

"I said I to Maggie. 'I could play a fiddle with one hand tied behind me. I'll show you tomorrow.'"

"For I had a scheme, do you see? Of I went to a fiddler and this is what I said to him: 'Is there any way of playing that thing so it doesn't make a sound?'"

"Sure," said he, "you put 'er soap on 'er strings."

"Do you want to make $50?" I asked him. "Then be at my house tomorrow night. Bring two violins and come in the back way. Put soap on one of them. I'll tell you what to do after you get there."

A gang of Maggie's silk stockin' friends was on hand next night. They were all doin' their parlor tricks, and one of them said to Maggie, "Oh, won't your husband do something? I think Mr. Jiggs is so interesting!"

"Sure!" said I, before Maggie could chide. "I'll play for you!"

Maggie glared. But she couldn't do nothin'. I went out of the room, I put me fiddle behind the curtain with one violin, and I took me stand in front of it with the fiddle with soap strings.

"Play two tunes and then beat it quick," I whispered to the fiddler.

He did, me scrapin' me own soap strings in tune with him. Did I make a hit? Holy Smoke! I should say so. The ladies was wild, and Maggie was so pleased she was bein' in 'all over."

"Oh, won't you play another tune?" they asked me.

"Sorry!" I said. "Two is all I've learned so far."

And then Maggie spilled the beans. "Just play that last tune over again, Jiggs dear," she said.

I looked behind the curtain. The fiddler, like I told him to, had beat it. I ask you—what was I to do?

I went after him, and as I went I said to myself, "Jiggs, you've got to find that ukulele feller and take lessons until you can play before you can ever go home again!"

Electricity Supplied Free

IDAHDAR, Alaska, Dec. 20.—This town, in the heart of a gold placer district, finds it unnecessary this year to make a tax levy.

The municipality has a reserve of $5,500 in the treasury. Revenues from federal license will amount to more than the expenses of the town government.

It is planned to build a municipal electric plant out of the surplus and to furnish the current free to residents.

Idahdar has a winter population of about 22. In summer, during the raining season, several hundred are here.

Foreign Population Increases In Southwest

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The center of foreign-born population of the country is located in Allen county, Indiana, 10.8 miles east of New Haven, having taken a southwestward trend after two decades of southeastward movement. In determining the foreign-born center, the Census Bureau found it had moved 18.9 miles in the ten years from 1910 to 1920, its movement was 11.5 miles eastward and 15 miles southward.

"The change in direction of the movement of this center from east to west is due principally to the increase in foreign-born white population in the state of California," says the bureau. "The total increase in the foreign-born white population of the United States was 387,209 and the increase in the states of Texas, California and Arizona was 216,222, or 55 percent of the total increase."

Tokio's Latest Building To Be Earthquake Proof

TOKIO, Dec. 20.—Tokio's greatest skyscraper, the Marunouchi building, is to be made earthquake proof. The building was erected by a firm of American contractors for the Mitsubishi company. It was seriously shaken by the earthquake.

The structure, which covers an entire city block, is to be divided into thirteen sections, thus localizing shocks as is the case with the Imperial hotel building, which withstood the shock well.

Quakeproof walls will be built between each section and its neighbors, piercing the building from roof to foundation. The work will extend over two years.

New School Building.

DELAND, Dec. 21.—An election to provide $120,000 for a new school building is called for in petitions now in circulation here. They will be presented to the school board after they have been circulated throughout the city by students and members of the Parent-Teachers Association. It is declared as reasons for the necessity of erecting a new building that the present facilities are both inadequate and unsafe.

NEW COUNTRY CLUB.
DELAND, Dec. 21.—A country club is assured for DeLand. Sufficient stock already has been subscribed for to assure commodious grounds, and a handsome club house, golf course and other conveniences, it is stated. A committee, consisting of W. W. Gould and A. T. Dundas, has been appointed to investigate the merits of several sites available for the club's need, while J. Scarlett and D. C. Hull are drawing up the proposed charter.

SURVEY TO BEGIN SOON.
HOMESTEAD, Dec. 21.—County Commissioner Reid states that a survey will start about January 2 of Key Largo in connection with the new program. The commissioners will ask for bids and begin work as soon as possible after the survey has been completed, it is stated.

Municipal Golf Course

CLEARWATER, Dec. 21.—This city will have an 18-hole municipal golf course open for the public Saturday, December 22, when the new nine holes will be thrown open for use. The new nine progressed so satisfactorily, with both greens and fairway in such excellent condition, that it was decided to set up the date from January 1.

The course will have a total length of 5,163 yards, with outward nine 3,260 yards and the homeward side 2,903 yards.

The Difference in Advertising

is the Difference in Men

Of itself, advertising is little. And the difference in it are the differences which exist in men.

It pays the men whose product deserves the payment, whose brains are keen enough to organize for success and judge enough of the human mind to know how to tell their story with sincerity and interest.

Just as some men are strong and virile and interesting, so is some advertising. And just as some men are ineffectual and weak and boring, so is some other advertising.

"Does it pay to advertise?" It pays those men who are keen enough students of the public to make it pay them. It pays those men who are truthful, sincere, interesting and believable.

So when you judge advertising, judge it by how it is used and by whom—not of itself and of itself alone.

Remember, an ugly man looks just as ugly in a mirror.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM AT EAST SIDE PRIMARY.

One of the most original and beautifully carried out programs ever given in the Sanford schools, was that given Friday afternoon by the pupils of the East Side Primary under the supervision of the principal, Miss Emma Owens, ably assisted by Miss Katherine Brady, Miss Lollie B. Robertson and Miss Marian Appleby, teachers of the first, second and third grades, respectively.

The large assembly room was filled with bright faced children and a large number of mothers, and interested friends. The decorations were most artistic. On the walls were bright red and green festoons and on the piano and cabinets were bowls of narcissus and red lighted tapers in crystal holders. In one corner was a large Christmas tree laden with tinsel, decorations, in all colors of the rainbow and myriads of small lights, which added the true Christmas spirit.

The costumes worn by the children were indeed clever and showed much taste and thought. Bible verses from Matthew 2:8-14, by the school opened the program; this was followed by a song by the school, "Shine Out Oh, Blessed Star." Recitation, "First Christmas," by D. H. Williams; Song "First Christmas," by Nona Riems; Recitation, "The Christ Child," by Laura Mae Brown, Elsie Tolar, Grace Huggins and Vastine Moon; "Luther's Cradle Song," by school. Pantomime "Holy Night," by Margaret Torrence, Anna Marie Couch, Estelle Higgins, Martha Comey, Ann Rolson, Kathryn Morrison, Jewell Turner, Lucy Dobbins, Eugenia Keene, Nova Rivers and Marjorie Dubose. This was in costume and was most impressive.

"Why do Bells, for Christmas Ring," by Sara Moye, Edith Steakley, Helen Sanders, Ada Singletary, Lucile Sellers, Verdine Miller, Charles Betts, Billie Tryer, William Keppler, Billie Thigpen, George Smith and Lamar Moon. Song, "Joyfully, Joyfully," by school. Playlet, "The Christmas Rabbit." Characters, Little Boy—Stewart Gatchell, Little Girl—Mary Torrence, Christmas Rabbit, Lester Phillips; Christmas Fairy Mary Elizabeth Neely. Song, "Merrily, Merrily," sung by first grade girls, Ila Allen, Jannette Hall, Adelaide Higgins, Lavonda Hlickson, Karla Wheeler and Faith Martin.

Recitation, "How Old is Santa Claus," by Hubert Lawson. The program closed with the playlet, "Three Fir Trees," in which was a real Santa Claus, his sleigh and reindeer. The characters were: Big Fir Tree—John Powell; Smaller Fir Tree—Harry Bauer; Tiny Fir Tree, Frederick Daiger; Bird, Mary Virginia Nutt; Snow, Doris Batten; Jack Frost, Charles Britt; North Wind, Charles Thompson; Santa Claus, Malcolm Higgins; Reindeer, Ansley Robson, John Courier, Wilson Smith, Ralph Monger, and Franklin Bennett.

WEST SIDE CHRISTMAS PROGRAM.

The West Side Primary School was gay with holly and Christmas green, and a lovely big Christmas tree in the children's sand pile telling the little folks that Christmas was here. The teachers in charge of the program were Miss Lovie Turner, principal, Miss Helen Terwilliger her assistant, Mrs. Ramona Raynor and Miss Mary Robinson. The children, bright and happy and bubbling over with the joy of the occasion were a happier sight than one would or could imagine unless there.

An especially beautiful feature of the program was the reciting in unison of the story of the Birth of Jesus by the first, second and third grades. The following charming program was given by the children. Song, "Holy Night," school. Story of the Birth of Jesus, in concert. Reading, "The Baby Jesus," by Newby Etheridge. Song, "Away in the Manger," school. Reading, "Why Do Bells at Christmas Ring," by Billie Faville. Song, "Shine Out Oh Blessed Star," school. Reading, "Santa Claus," Vera Stafford. Song, "Who is Comin' O'er the Hills," school. Reading, "Kris Kringle," Evelyn Robinson. Reading, "The Runaway Turkey," Maurice Benton. Song, "Upon the House Top," school.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

The Elson Art Publication Company put on an exhibit of art suitable for schools and school children for three days this week under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers Association and the Grammar School faculty. Professor D. C. Cripe said that his object in bringing this wonderful display to Sanford was to increase the children's general knowledge concerning the best art and to inspire them with a love for the truly beautiful.

The children were admitted free but to others the small admission of 10 cents was charged, the proceeds being used to purchase pictures for the school rooms and hall. Enough was made to buy several really good pictures. Each teacher made for her grade a group of paintings that would be applicable to their subjects then being studied.

And in the library was a general art display. Especially good was the exhibit arranged by Mrs. Dwyght Babbitt, Mrs. Wainwright, and Mrs. Pitchford for the eighth grade. This exhibit consisted of pictures representing the virtues and symbolic pictures, Truth, Love, Law, Justice, all done by world famous masters.

Misses Edna Chittenden and Ida Hall gave the seventh grade a group to go with their American history, such as George Washington, Washington Crossing the Delaware, Mount Vernon, the State House at Washington, The Capture of Cornwallis by Stuart, etc. In the sixth grade Miss Johnson and Mrs. Lashbrook and Mrs. Hintermeister had arranged a group for the study of English and gave Longfellow and Whitier. In the fifth grade Mrs. Gripe, Miss Iris Kinney and Misses Lucile Joiner and Lucile Sewant had a children's group, Baby Stewart, Children of Charles I., and Little Rose, by Whistler. In the library were such famous paintings as Juan of Arc, by Bastien; The Sewing School, by Kover; The Angelus and the Gleaners, by Millet; Sir Gallahad, by Watts; The Flight of Night, by Hunt, Mona Lisa, by De Vinci.

The Parent-Teachers and Grammar School faculty can congratulate themselves on giving the children the benefit of this excellent exhibit. PROGRAM AT THE SANFORD GRAMMAR SCHOOL. The Sanford Grammar School Friday afternoon gave for the parents and friends of the children a most enjoyable Christmas program. The program was opened by a song, "Silent Night," by the entire fifth grade. Scripture reading, "The Birth of Christ," Miss Joiner. Lord's Prayer. Recitation, "Peace on Earth," by Mary Edward Crosby. Recitation, "While Shepherd's Watched Their Flocks by Night," by Margaret Renaud. Piano Solo, by William Morrison. Christmas Acrostic, Nine boys and girls for entire school. Piano Solo, Virginia Douglass. Christmas Night, Recitation, by Maxine Brockhahn. Song, by the sight singers in the fifth grade. That's Christmas, recitation by Edwin Shinholser. Just 'Fore Christmas, recitation by Frederick Bender. Piano Solo, Betty Hintermeister. Song, Upon the House Top, by fifth grade. All of the recitations were given with spirit and showed care and good training on the part of the teachers. After the program the work of the children in the different grades was placed on display and the parents invited to inspect it. In the sixth grade room of Miss Johnson was a fine display of history, geography, arithmetic, paper, etc. In the fifth grade Miss Iris Kinney showing a map, products, history, and had very attractive Florida booklets, etc. of Florida on display. Each pupil made his own booklet. That Bob Newman, the famous

WOMAN'S CLUB COLUMN

Mrs. Henry Wight Press Chairman. The Press Chairman regrets exceedingly her mistake in calling attention in last week's column, to the important general club meeting of January 2, which is to be devoted to a study of Our City Government. Mrs. John Leonard is to have charge of the program which is not entirely formulated, but it is understood that various phases of our municipal government and certain details of its working out are to be presented by certain of our prominent men, and to those who know the efficiency of the program chairman, there is no doubt of the interest and benefit of the afternoon. Our women are becoming more and more intelligently anxious to know of their duties and privileges as citizens, and there should not be a vacant chair at this meeting.

It should be a matter of personal pride with every member of the Woman's Club, that she should register and pay her poll tax promptly. We are all looking to a bigger Sanford, and we do not need an object lesson, nor should we require argument to convince us that the approaching bond issue for the purchase of a municipal ownership of public works is one that will have its immediate result in every individual home.

- Program—January. 1. Music—"America, the Beautiful." 2. Illustrated talk—"The Official Family in our Local Government," Mrs. John Leonard. 3. The Equipment of Public Offices for their Work." Open Forum for all Club Members. 4. Our City Planning Commission. Mrs. Harry Heeren. Praise, Blame or Silence on the part of the Citizens," the Hon. Forrest Allen.

A year ago, our club was still housed in its shabby little made-over home, with its ecclesiastical suggestions in windows and arches remind us that it had once been a place of reverence, of conscious reaching out for things unseen and invisible—the Presbyterian Church of hallowed memories. In our new home we are very up to date. We have one of the most attractive club houses in the state, with every convenience for study, for recreation, and for the makings of plans. We have more than two hundred members, representative women of our city, working in the departments that make the most immediate personal appeal: studying music and literature, or playing together as the case may be. "It takes a mighty heap of living to make a house a home," says Edgar Guest, and it takes more than a new home and a big membership to make a woman's club, just what it should be. We have a right to expect there a conscious striving together for those graces of mind and spirit which will welcome the newcomer in our midst, and not be unkindly of those who have lived long in our city, whether working with us or not. We have a right to expect there the spirit which seeketh not its own, but findeth its best reward in the general good, placing the privilege of Service, always above the petty reward of credit for one's deeds. We have more than all, a right to expect there a spirit of forgiveness for each other when we fall short, as we so often do, of attaining the high ideals we have set for our standard, and of still loving and looking forward to better things.

MY WISHES FOR SANFORD

By REV. W. J. CARPENTER. The holidays are upon us. Everybody should be in a good humor. I hereby express my Christmas wish and New Year desire as follows: That Bob Holly, our "Bob" would tell the world the secret he has of making a living without the use of a quill, pencil or typewriter. That Ed Higgins may get the cash for all the Fords he has peddled off on the citizens of Seminole county during the last year. That the City Commission for work well done may have their names carved high on the next monument erected in any of our parks. That each one of the "boys" of the famous Scrap Iron Bible Class may get a peanut, a red apple, and a stick of red and white candy in their stockings on Christmas morning. That Forrest Lake, the growing Forrest may soon develop into a first class primadonna, and lead the music at the Scrap Iron Bible Class. That Sheriff Hand, our big sheriff, may be so fortunate as not to be arrested by bootleggers during the holidays. That Bob Newman, the famous Nimrod of Sanford, may not get too much puffed up over the fact that the other fellow killed the deer. That all the reactionary Republicans and Democrats, and also those progressive fellows of the same parties, may make at least one visit to Sanford and buy a home for the future.

That all the bumpy places in our streets will get worn smooth before the next circus parade. That Sky Pilots, Mrs. Burhans, King and Brownlee, may have their salaries paid promptly with a healthy increase added. That Arthur Yowell's next fishing or hunting story shall be authenticated by at least one or more witnesses.

That no member of our efficient police force shall be compelled to arrest any minister, physician, club woman, or candidate for office, during the Christmas season.

That Sanford farmers may get into the plethoric pockets of their northern kinsman and add the proceeds of what they take out to the value of lettuce, celery and peppers. That every "boy" and "girl" on the Herald staff, including the "devils" also, may be so delighted with output that the clerk who handles the subscription list, will be swamped with the work of counting the cash. That all of our tonsorial artists may have close and not forget to do well on the pocket books of the rich, so as to add to the value of our circulation medium. That my appetite for orthodox turkey, baked or boiled, young or old, fat or lean, may never grow less. —W. J. CARPENTER.

AMERICAN LEAGUE BASEBALL TEAMS STILL RETAIN OLD POPULAR NAMES

(By The Associated Press) CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—Although the American League did not come into being until 1900 its clubs have some of the oldest and best known nicknames in major league baseball. The New York club is the only one that has definitely changed from its original nickname.

When an American League franchise was granted to New York the club built a baseball plant on Washington Heights, one of the high sections of the city. From the location of the grounds the club became known as the Highlanders. When the arrangement was made to play at the Polo Grounds, performing under Coogan's Bluff, Highlanders became a misnomer. It occurred to a New York sporting editor that since the club was in the American League Yankees would be appropriate and they became.

Big Population Is Becoming Serious In German Empire

(By The Associated Press) BERLIN, Dec. 21.—What is to become of Germany's surplus population of 20,000,000? The question is looming up as a serious one in view of the fact that the birth rate is rapidly approximating the pre-war figures and the annual emigration is relatively small.

Russia is held up to the German public as a land that may eventually absorb 15,000,000 Germans, but there is slight movement toward that country because of present conditions under Soviet rule. South American countries also are mentioned by the German press as suitable for future homes for Germans; but the United States is the only country to which the Germans appear to be anxious to emigrate.

The indications are that the United States will greatly exceed the quota of 50,000 this year. The overpopulation is mostly in the industrial centers.

There is an endless chain of young mechanics who manage to get enough funds together to make their way to the United States and send money back to their brothers and friends who join them on the other side. These are mostly men without families.

So Germany is losing many of the men who might be most helpful in building her industries back into ordered state. The younger men tire of the hopeless snarl of domestic politics, the clash of party interests and the endless wranglings of labor and political organizations. But it is the rare workman who manages to collect enough funds to emigrate.

Germany's labor population, employed in industries of all sorts, including shipping, is estimated at about 25,000,000. The actual number of organized laborers is 15,000,000 and it is largely from laborers of this class that the emigration comes.

(By The Associated Press) KAVAILA, Greek Macedonia, Dec. 21.—Notwithstanding a bumper crop, the tobacco business as a whole was much poorer in November than during October because of the imposition of an export tax of 20 percent in foreign currency. The depression is felt more acutely because of the absence of American buyers.

Of the large tobacco crop in Macedonia and Thrace not an oke was sold to America in October. In October, 1922, American buyers bought 829,287 okes. The total sales last month were 500,000 okes. (An oke is nearly three pounds.)

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN'S WEEKLY BIBLE TALK

GOD, CHRIST AND THE BIBLE

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

When we analyze the wide range of subjects we have studied in the Bible Talks in the year soon to end, we find three subjects running through them all—expressed or implied—God, Christ, and the Bible. I do not know that we can better close the year than by devoting today's talk to these three subjects.

First as to God; there are four attitudes which men assume in regard to the Supreme Being. The atheist denies that there is a God and seeks to explain the universe, including animate as well as inanimate things, by materialistic arguments.

I have not thought it worth while to spend any time in refuting the reasoning of the atheist. The evidences of a God, all-wise, all-powerful and all-loving, are so overwhelming that comparatively few human beings have ever been reckless enough to declare themselves atheists. While a talented atheist may gather about him an occasional follower, he is a negligible quantity and, by his very unreasonableness drives more people to open defense of God than he draws away.

A Dangerous Group. In the second group are found the agnostics, who are much more numerous and much more dangerous.

By saying, "I do not know," the agnostic takes refuge in ignorance, and by asserting a desire for knowledge he conceals where the atheist antagonizes. Agnosticism is the state in which one is most apt to find himself when he departs from orthodox beliefs concerning God.

Darwin illustrates the logical path followed by dissenters and the final attitude of mind of a skeptic. He said, just before his death: "The mystery of the beginning of all things is insoluble by us and I, for one, must be content to remain an agnostic."

The third group contains the pantheists—those who build their belief upon the assumption that God is in everything—not a separate and distinct entity, but an inseparable part of all things animate and inanimate.

Professor Leuba of Bryn Mawr College is one of the best known representatives of this school. He denies the existence of a personal God or a personal immortality and declares, upon letters received by him from the leading scientists of the United States, that a majority of them share his beliefs.

Fundalism is an expression of this idea. Nirvana is the Buddhist's heaven—the individual spirit dissolving into the spirit of the universe as "the dew drop, dissolves into the sea."

The Christian Group. Christians belong to the fourth group.

The Christian believes in a personal God—not a being of flesh and blood, visible to the eye, discernable to the senses or inhabiting a locality which can be defined and described, but a spiritual Being as real as if He were evident to our bodily senses. The existence of this Supreme Being is proven as conclusively as other things of which we have no doubt.

Belief in the Bible's God is reasonable because the existence of such a God furnishes the only explanation of the phenomena about us. We believe Him infinite in power because the things that He does require the exercise of a power beyond the ability of the imagination to conceive. We believe Him infinite in wisdom because only an immeasurable intelligence could direct the measureless power which He manifests. We believe Him all-loving because His goodness is infinite in its depth and breadth.

If there is a Creator, with infinite attributes, who built the world upon a plan and directs it in accord with His purpose, then man, the climax of creation, is a part of God's plan and here with a work to do. A natural process of reasoning brings us to the conclusion that man's first desire should be to know God's will and his chief pleasure should be found in obeying those laws which the Heavenly Father has made for man's highest good and greatest happiness.

A Reasonable Belief. We have also assumed that Christ actually lived—a Saviour sent down from heaven to redeem man by His blood and to reveal the Heavenly Father to His children. This, too, is a reasonable belief.

We have a record of what He said and did and was—an undisputed record. There is no known fact that has been discovered during the 19 centuries that have since elapsed that casts a shadow of doubt upon any material phase of His life or teachings.

He was conceived of the Holy Ghost and born of the virgin Mary. This is the record of Matthew and Luke and there is nothing to contradict the record. We have His teachings that could not have come from any other source because there was no other source from which such teachings could be drawn.

There was no store house in the past which could supply them; there were no people living in His time from whom He could learn the truths which He proclaimed, and no one has lived since who could have supplied them.

When we see a mountain range which no human power could build, we are not foolish enough to deny that it is the handiwork of God—even the atheist will attribute it to natural forces that are more than human. When we see a moral code that rises as high above human wisdom as the mountains do above the sea—a moral code which all the wise men of the world have been unable to add to or take from—why should we hesitate to admit that the Author was divine? Why not employ in religious matters the common sense that we use for the problems of daily life?

Sin Cannot Be Ignored. Sin is in the world—its presence can neither be denied nor ignored. Man is the only created thing that does not live up to its possibilities. How can we doubt that sin is inherent when we see it flourishing in spite of all the intelligence and moral efforts of today?

A few days ago a distinguished citizen of Great Britain came to this country and in a two-hour address gave a catalog of our national sins—sins conspicuous enough to be seen three thousand miles away. This morning's paper gives a dispatch from London quoting from a report given by a Middlesex committee on education from which I take this extract:

"All the boys seem to think about is 'trawdism and smoking cheap cigarettes, while the girls' chief interest seems to be walking about the streets until they find a youth willing to buy them a seat at the movies.'

Their minds are blankly incapable of continued intelligent application, and consequently ready to respond to any evil impressions."

Here we have an indictment of one country and a confession from another, and we can not believe these countries worse than others. Many adults in all countries violate both the moral and state laws. The fact is that sin is universal among men. Is it unreasonable to believe that God would provide a means of escape from sin?

If Christ Were But a Man. The coming of Christ as a Saviour would seem to be the most natural thing conceivable and the reasonableness of His coming is confirmed by the fact that the story of Jesus, translated into every tongue, has touched the heart of the world.

If Christ were but a man, it would be natural to think of Him as one born of a human father as well as of a human mother and it would be natural to measure Him by the rules applied to man, even to the extent of expecting Him to remain in the tomb when finally dead and buried.

But we have only to take Him out of the man class and put Him into the God class to be able to understand His supernatural birth, His unique ministry and His bodily resurrection.

If He were but a man, we would expect wiser men to arise and make improvements in His code of morals and His philosophy of life. But, being the only begotten Son of God and co-equal with God, we are not surprised to find in Him the greatest fact that in history and the growing figure of all time.

When once we behold Him as He is, all that the Bible says of Him becomes reasonable—it would be unreasonable if it were different. Atheist and Bible.

And so with the infallibility of the Bible: it is natural that an atheist should deny the inspiration of the Bible because there can be no Word of God unless there is a God to speak the word; there can be no revealed will of God unless there is a God with a will to reveal. It would be unreasonable in an atheist to deny the existence of a God and then accept the Bible as a divine authority or Christ as the Son of God.

Likewise, the agnostic as naturally rejects the Bible. He cannot be convinced of the Bible's veracity until he is first convinced that there is a God—implication is impossible without a Supreme Power to inspire.

Father than the agnostic be expected to credit what the Bible says about Christ, since Christ's divinity presupposes the existence of the Bible's God.

Pantheists cannot consistently accept the Bible as a truthful book because from beginning to end the Bible represents God as a spiritual Being,

MY LIFE WITH MAGGIE

By Jiggs

CHAPTER XI. ME AND MEGRAMMAR TEACHER. "I don't know what I'm going to do with you, you over-grown camel!" said Maggie to me. "Last night you simply disgraced me at the DeGoof's dance with your awful grammar. Will you never learn not to say 'Them people'?"

I gave her time to get down, and then I acted. I knew what was coming, I knew she'd be outside the door again in less than two minutes. "Professor," I said, "I want to get it down pat—the way you talk. I wonder if you'd mind reading this letter to me that I got today. Then I'll know exactly how you pronounce the words."

A large crowd of enthusiastic golf fans watched the match with a great deal of interest.

LISSBON, Dec. 19.—Senhor Teixeira Gomes, the seventh president of the Portuguese Republic, is attracting much attention from the people because of the democratic way in which he goes about his business. He is reported to have said that he does not wish to see his electors from behind the closed windows of his automobile; that he wants to be a president who thinks, talks and walks abroad like anyone else.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE MILANE.

What happens when the savages and cultivated man lie down together? This question finds expression and answer in "The Exiles." John Gilbert's latest starring vehicle for William Fox, which is scheduled to appear at the Milane Theatre Saturday.

John Gilbert interprets the role created by Richard Harding Davis. Holcombe is the super-cultured man who is a lawyer in New York. Finding himself overworked, he is ordered to Tangiers, Africa, by his physician. On Tangiers the staid business man finds his entire conception of life changed.
Where people were formerly regarded as subjects to be inoculated by the law's force, they are now held in the light of human understanding. He meets a woman whom he had condemned before a court in New York. She saves his life in a thrilling rescue and he discovers love, an emotion he never took cognizance of before, insinuating itself into his entire being.
The transformation of this man in the exotic East provides one of the most generously unusual stories that the screen has adapted. When it appeared in book form Richard Harding Davis was immediately proclaimed the master American fictionist.

Rumania-Russia Trade Negotiations Begun

(By The Associated Press)
BUCHAREST, Dec. 22.—Much interest is being manifested here in the negotiations at Tripoli between Rumanian and Russian commissions, which are endeavoring to reach an agreement on a commercial treaty between the two countries. It is semi-officially declared here that the negotiations will be confined strictly to trade matters and will not extend to any political arrangements which the Russian negotiators may propose.
The work of the commissions is somewhat simplified because of the recent minimization of the Red Russian campaign for the maintenance of the Bessarabian issue as an open question. From the highest quarters it is intimated that Rumanian regards the province ceded to it under the terms of the armistice with Soviet Russia as definitely Rumanian, never to be ceded back to Soviet Russia.

These making the trip to West Palm Beach Wednesday to the teaching convention, will be Miss Iris Kinsey, Mr. D. C. O'Neil, Mrs. Dwight Habilit, Mrs. Pitchford, Miss Lucile Sweet, Miss Laura Chittenden and Miss Joiner. Seminole county now holds the silver cup for attendance and is making an effort to hold it another year.

Tales Related About German Exchange

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The sharp depreciation in Berlin exchange to the point where one cent in American money will buy several billion German marks has given rise to several fanciful stories in Wall Street, and to many interesting mathematical calculations.
One of the latest stories, credited to an American consular officer in Belgium, relates how shortly after the armistice the Belgian government, in an apparent effort to acquire sufficient marks to influence, if necessary, the German exchange situation, decided to redeem all the German currency then circulating in Belgium. It is said to have expected to acquire six billion marks in this manner, but the favorable rate of exchange offered induced considerable speculation by Belgians who purchased marks in Germany and sold them at a profit in their own country, so that several more billions were actually acquired.
These marks are said to have been stored in a large warehouse and a guard placed over them, necessitating an annual outlay of 60,000 to 80,000 Belgian francs, besides the loss of interest. So great has been the depreciation in marks that the Belgian "treasure," which is said still to be under guard, is valued at less than $1 in American money at the present rate of exchange.
Another story, which illustrates the extent of depreciation, says that 40 box cars would be needed to haul $1 worth of one mark notes at the present rate of exchange.

Germans Show Interest In Possible Dictators

(By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, Dec. 22.—The question of dictatorship, and the possibility of some dark horse bursting upon the horizon and leading the country out of its sore troubles, seems uppermost today in the mind of the average German.
Affairs have gone so badly since the Ruhr occupation that Germans are universally seeking some means of force which can make the life of the average man more endurable. There is a yearning for a Julius Caesar or a Cromwell, or even a Mussolini. And there is a general distrust of politics nor are present-day German politicians in much favor. It is not unusual to hear Germans express the wish that they had an iron-fisted man after the style of Poincare. Much as he is hated for his unswerving course against Germany, there is great admiration among Germans for his firmness. He typifies the old iron Chancellor.
Leter writers and essayists are hard at work but they do not seem to develop a leader whom they can sell to the German public, anxious as it is to find a superman to cure all of Germany's ills.

Stone Fish Wrought By Prehistoric Sculptor

(By The Associated Press)
OREGON CITY, Ore., Dec. 22.—Deep in the original channel of the Willamette river here was found recently a "stone fish," which has been added to a collection of relics of prehistoric life in the possession of O. A. Hollingsworth. The shape was uncovered when excavation was being made for an addition to a local paper mill.
The stone, about 16 inches long and seven inches high, is roughly carved in the shape of a fish, with mouth, eyes, gills and fins. Hollingsworth believes the stone, which shows signs of being worn by water, was carried along the river in floods of bygone years from the region of the mound builders near the present site of Albany, Ore. In his opinion, some early day savage with an artistic bent saw the stone by chance and, noting its general shape was that of a fish, took his rough instruments and carved in the eyes, gills and fins.

BEN A. RUDOLPH TO BE CONNECTED WITH BIG CONCERN

(By The Associated Press)
ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 22.—The Adair Realty & Trust Company of Atlanta announces the appointment of Ben A. Rudolph as general sales manager of the company's mortgage bond department.
Mr. Rudolph, who for the last five years has been associated with the G. L. Miller Company, is well known throughout this section; having been connected with several prominent southern banks prior to his work with the G. L. Miller Company.
Through the widespread distribution of Adair first mortgage bonds, this company has brought a vast stream of wealth from other sections of the country into the south, and has aided in giving greater impetus to its building program.
No other area of equal size on earth possesses the natural resources that are to be found in the south. But the rapid development of these resources requires capital which must be supplied from other sections until the south can accumulate an adequate surplus of her own.
The Adair Realty & Trust Company is helping in no small degree the rapid expansion now going on in the south. Almost over night unbelievable changes are being wrought upon the sky-line of southern cities, new office buildings, hotels and apartments are rushed to completion to meet the ever increasing demand for business and living quarters.
This concern, the oldest real estate and mortgage investment house in the south has, within the last few years, assumed an even greater identification with the growth and prosperity of the south than it has heretofore shared, through its vast real estate and development activities. The national advertising of this company, plus its continued participation in the fostering of southern building, is destined to place it in the forefront of American institutions engaged in this modern and economic field of constructive financial activity.
Mr. Rudolph has been selected for the position of general sales manager because of his demonstrated fitness for the work and his many personal and professional qualifications.
Mrs. R. L. Griffin and two daughters, Emily and E. E., will leave Saturday for Ellendale, S. C. to spend the holidays.
The Tavares school has become a state accredited school.

New England Shakers Give Up Community Life
(By The Associated Press)
ENFIELD, N. H., Dec. 21.—The five last members of the local Community of Shakers, established here originally in 1782, will abandon the settlement this winter and move over to Canterbury, where there is a similar colony. Death has reduced the group from about 150 to these last remaining five, who today are about to close the barns and lock the doors for the last time. In 1886 the membership of the Enfield colony was about the same as at the beginning, but for 37 years it has steadily dwindled. Cellulose has been obligatory. The colonists raised garden produce, made and wore and manufactured underwear, brooms, pails and wooden articles of various kinds. In keeping with the laws of the sect, all property was held on a communistic basis, and the men and women members lived separate lives of stern discipline awaiting the "Second Coming of Christ."
The colony had frictions in the early days with other residents of the town. The colonists showed that in 1788 the legislature was appealed to for some remedy against certain alleged actions of the "Shaking Quakers," but the objectors were overruled and the colonists have pursued their peaceful lives of piety with uninterrupted industry until now.

DEEP CONFLICT DIVIDES PROTESTANTISM

Churchmen Demand Literal Acceptance of the Bible and Organize Strongly Against the Modernists

THE writer of this article made a 5,000-mile trip investigating the Fundamentalist Movement. He is the author of "The Man Himself," a book which has drawn attacks from the Fundamentalists, but his purpose here is to present a dispassionate view covering the latest developments in what may turn out to be the greatest internal struggle Protestantism has faced.

All over America a great quarrel about beliefs is tearing Protestantism in two. Among the Baptists, Dr. Straton attacks President Faunce. Among the Presbyterians, Dr. Macartney attacks Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick. Among the Episcopalians, Bishop Manning attacks Dr. Grant. Among the Methodists, Bishop Stutz recently denied Dr. Buckner a pulpit. In all the denominations there is an uprising of old-fashioned orthodox against modernists, and already three organizations—the Interdenominational Fundamentalist Association, the Baptist Bible Union of North America and the followers of Dr. Curtis Lee Laws—are up in arms. Together they represent the widespread, belated, passionately determined religion known as the Fundamentalist Movement. It emphasizes five beliefs:

1. Belief in a miraculously inspired Bible, absolutely without error, and authoritative throughout.
2. Belief in a miraculously inspired Virgin Birth of Jesus of Nazareth.
3. Belief in a substitutionary atonement—the belief Robert G. Ingersoll denied in his famous epigram, "If God killed Jesus Christ for my sins, He got the wrong man."
4. Belief in the bodily resurrection of Jesus.
5. Belief in His second coming. Many Fundamentalists explicitly declare their belief in "the literal, visible, bodily, imminent return of Jesus Christ to this earth as King." The majority believe that His second coming, though sure to occur, will be long delayed.

The other party, known as Liberals or Modernists, assert:
1. That the Bible was not miraculously inspired; that it is not free from error; that it contains myth and legend as well as history; and that, inasmuch as portions of it teach militarism, polygamy, slavery, witchcraft and spiritualism, it is not authoritative throughout.

2. That Jesus Himself appears never to have heard of His miraculous Virgin Birth; that two of His four biographers seem never to have heard of it; that St. Paul ignores it, and that it is a belief no Christian need accept.

3. That belief in the "literal, visible, bodily, imminent return of Jesus Christ to this earth as King" rests upon scriptural texts which set a time limit for His return, clearly stating that it would occur early in the second century, A. D., at the latest.

Mr. Bryan in the Fight.
There are strong leaders on both sides. Among the Fundamentalists William Jennings Bryan is the most conspicuous. He finds that "the twenty-fourth verse of the first chapter of Genesis contains more science than all that Darwin ever wrote"; thinks it "more important to know the Book of Ages than the ages of rocks"; and calls the Modernists "agnostics, apostates, atheists and enemies of the Bible."
Next in importance comes the Rev. W. B. Riley, president of the Interdenominational Fundamentalist Association, who tells us that "thinking men have not given up Genesis," and proclaims the bodily return of Christ.

Another eminent Fundamentalist is the Rev. J. Frank Norris. He has secured the expulsion of Professor Rice from the Southern Methodist University and of several evolutionists from Baylor University. At the recent Fundamentalist rally in New York, he likened Modernists to "wolves in sheep's clothing," "enemies boring from within" and "agnostics poisoning as Christians as they attack the essentials of our faith." Not content with that, he likened them to "Judas, approaching the Lord with a kiss of his lips and blood money in his hands" and cried fervently, "or I might liken them to lepers," adding, "these lepers of the spirit, these lepers of doubt, ever more dangerous than the lepers of old time; if they cannot be cured, they, too, must be cast out from amongst us."

The Rev. W. A. (Billy) Sunday, perhaps the most interesting Fundamentalist, next to Mr. Bryan, tells me that evolution is "bunk, junk and poppycock." Of modern Biblical scholarship he says the same. Like many other Fundamentalists, he believes in the bodily return of Christ.

Professor J. Gresham Machen of Princeton Theological Seminary (a Fundamentalist stronghold) declares that "if Catholicism is a perversion of Christianity, Modernism is not Christianity at all" but "another religion, belonging to another group of religions," and "no different from Christianity, that if the one is true the other must be false." He asks the Modernists to depart in peace, surrendering churches, colleges and denominational treasuries to the Fundamentalists.

Dean Gray of the Moody Bible Institute thinks that it is the Fundamentalists who should depart in peace. Many Fundamentalists agree with him. One of them tells me that if they fail to control next summer's Baptist convention they will withdraw. This same Fundamentalist declares that "there is going to be a new denomination; as for the existing ones, we mean to rip them up."

Modernist View of Christ.
Among the Modernist leaders, the most daring is Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, Episcopalian. He rejects orthodox Protestantism completely. He has no belief in a miraculously inspired

LEADING FIGURES IN THE CHURCH "WAR"

BISHOP WM. T. MANNING

BISHOP LAWRENCE

DR. LEIGHTON PARKS

Dr. Leighton Parks of New York City startled his Bartholomew Episcopal Church congregation by flouting the story of the virgin birth of Christ, saying he would welcome a trial for heresy. Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts is a leader of the "liberal" forces of the Episcopal Church, while Bishop Manning stands at the head of the conservatives.

or in a supernatural Jesus of Nazareth, or in the duty of a preacher to hide his convictions. He sees in the Nazarene neither a god nor a demigod, but a prophet, hero, martyr and a matchless teacher, the supreme religious genius of all time. Dr. Grant speaks out fearlessly.

As fearless, almost, is Dr. Karl Relland, rector of St. George's Church. When recently the House of Bishops pronounced the teaching of the Apostles' Creed and the doctrine of the Virgin Birth to be obligatory, Dr. Relland protested in his church bulletin: "The resolution is a reactionary Fundamentalist aberration and will stand as a humiliating monument to Episcopal scholarship and a witness to the utter lack of appreciation of the great advance of modern knowledge which these latter years have brought."

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick still clings to a belief in the deity of Christ, but abhors Fundamentalism. In fact, he abhors virtually the entire theological system of orthodox Protestantism and calls it "false and pernicious in practical results." Though a Baptist, he is a special preacher at the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue, where 1,600 people throng to hear him. A professor at Union Theological Seminary and author of numerous books, he wields enormous influence.

President William H. P. Faunce of Brown University, is likewise moderate in his liberalism. To be sure, he has attacked the "Fundamentalists" in a famous magazine article, and when he arose to address the Baptist convention last summer, Dr. Straton mounted a chair and loudly protested. Tumult followed, with cries of "Shame!" and "Put him out!" and more to match. But Dr. Faunce writes me that he regards himself by no means radical. His aim, as he declares, is to mediate between the Modernists on the one hand and the Fundamentalists on the other.

Perhaps the same might be said of Shailer Mathews, dean of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago. By constant pamphleteering, he and his associates have tried to bring Fundamentalists to understand Modernism. They are patient and tactful. Moreover, they have sought to commend Modernism to men of science. As a result, numerous scientists have openly proclaimed their faith in Legend or Truth?

Meanwhile, a brilliant layman, Glenn Frank, editor of The Century, speaks out boldly for Modernism. What the world needs, he argues, is "not the religion about Jesus, but the religion of Jesus." Like Dr. Grant, he would strip away all the legends and the dogmas invented by early Jewish-Christians and by St. Paul and his successors down to our own day, and force a return to the very ancient and at the same time very modern teachings of the Nazarene.

From the outset, Modernists felt that this effort to lead Protestants away from St. Paul, away from first century "legend-mongers," away from theologians and back to the Nazarene, must be gone about cautiously. It involves a revolution in religious thought far more sweeping than that brought about by the Reformation. It involved a disregard of time-honored creeds, a disregard of beliefs long since written into prayer book and countless hymns, a disregard of dogmas still held sacred by the rank and file of Protestantism in the country over. Rash measures would be ruinous.

Accordingly, the Modernists clothed their unorthodox ideas in orthodox verbiage, or trusted to letting the time-honored creeds do of neglect. Thus, they imagined that little by little they would succeed in winning acceptance for what they looked upon as pure Christianity. It never entering their thought that suddenly, in our own day, orthodox would arise in its might and fight for its very life. The extent of the uprising amazes them. A competent observer reports that the Fundamentalists control a quarter of the Protestant churches in New England, half the Protestant churches in the Middle West and three-quarters of the Protestant churches in the Far West. They themselves say, nine-tenths of the laity are with us.

It is, perhaps, true, Mr. Bryan, today the most influential preacher on earth, has an enormous following. Billy Sunday's every campaign wins multitudes of recruits for Fundamentalism. The Moody Bible Institute has a thousand students, all of them Fundamentalists, while its corresponding courses enroll 2,000 more and its publishing house distributes Fundamentalist books by the million. Meanwhile, the Milton Stuart Evangelistic Fund, a kind of religious Rockefeller Foundation, finances the circulation of a work called "Jesus Is Coming," proclaiming the bodily return of Christ and now in its sixth hundred thousand.

Fundamentalists Are Strong.
The Sunday School Times, numerous denominational weeklies and theological schools, all the best evangelists, all the best missionaries and a majority of the older clergy are on the Fundamentalist side. Modernism they abhor. They are strongly organized. Their zeal knows no bounds. Convinced that they, and they only, are Christians, they seek to expel Modernist clergymen, depose Modernist professors and drive all Modernists from the churches.

Concerning the righteousness of their crusade they have no misgivings. The Rev. T. T. Shields, president of the Baptist Bible Union, declared in New York the other day: "As surely as I know that the Bible was inspired of God, I know that Modernism is inspired by Satan. Anti-Christ is in the world, and we cannot fraternize with his exhortations. We cannot take their hands, we cannot eat their bread. We believe that Modernists who receive salaries from Baptist churches and societies while propagating their destructive views are unworthy to associate with ordinary honest men."

Meanwhile, the Modernists seem helpless. They are unorganized. They have no fighting spirit. Until of late, they have underestimated the enemy's strength. It is difficult for them to take the Fundamentalist movement seriously. Many of them look upon it as an after-the-war relic or as a result of the scare that swept over orthodox Protestantism when the boys in the camps showed but little acquaintance with, and less interest in, the historic creeds of Christendom. Give it time, they say, and the uproar will die out.

After a 5,000-mile journey among the Fundamentalists and a careful study of their literature, to say nothing of the Fundamentalist triumphs I have since noted, I am unable to discover any ground for believing that Fundamentalism will subside. I think it will grow.

Darwinism Attacked.
Generally, the Modernists call fundamentalism "a revolt of ignorance," and concludes that a "movement so foolish must fail." It "lacks brilliant leaders," they say, and its rank and file "lack brains." But somehow the despised leaders have had the cleverness to trace Modernism to its source, and somehow the despised rank and file have the sagacity to support their leaders in every effort to strike at that source—namely, at evolution.

Fundamentalists see clearly that Modernism is a product of what they call Darwinism. When nature appeared to make sense and when order seemed to prevail throughout the physical world, so that the laws were obtained by scientific methods, was found to be reasonable, there grew up a suspicion that truth itself must be reasonable and that unreasonable assertions must of necessity be false assertions. The suspicion, once aroused, was destined in course of time to become a conviction so deeply rooted that it would affect, in the minds of those who held it, every process of thought.

Ere long it brought about a great change in people's minds regarding the Bible. Advanced Protestants readily accustomed themselves to regarding the Biblical account of the creation as poetry; without too serious dismay they heard that there had been two Isaiahs; that at least three anonymous authors had collaborated upon the books of Moses; that the Gospel according to St. John was the work of an unknown, and that certain epistles supposed to have been written by St. Paul were not his in reality.

was a supernatural person, they put aside their objection in His case and went on declaring that He had been miraculously born; that He had performed miracles without number, and that in bodily form He had miraculously risen from the dead.

Unitarians, looking on, said: "These people will all come around to our position, for their own is untenable; the same logic that rules out miracles in the Old Testament will rule out miracles in the New Testament. Reformed Jews, looking on, commented in similar terms. Catholics looking on, said: "You will soon see what happened where believers have rejected the authority of an infallible Church and assumed the right to decide for themselves."

Old fashioned Protestants said: "Reason will yet blind them to the eternal truths of Christianity; they will end by doubting the Virgin Birth, the deity of Christ, the substitutionary atonement, the second coming and the infallibility of Scripture."

Just that has happened. Acceptance of evolution was the entering wedge. Therefore, in their effort to destroy Modernism, the Fundamentalists strike furiously at evolution. They are clamoring for anti-evolutionary legislation in several states; already they have obtained a law making it a crime to teach evolution in Oklahoma. What happened there can happen anywhere. At their convention in New York City, the Rev. J. Frank Norris announced: "We propose to carry our war into every college and every university and into every legislature. We intend to drive this product of German rationalism from all our schools.

Would Dominate Education.
In other words, the Fundamentalists purpose to tell the country at large that instruction in young folk shall receive. That they have a right to seek control of denominational schools and colleges, and to get control of them when they can, few outsiders will deny. But when they go into politics and demand laws regulating public education it is a different matter.

Outsiders, not sharing the Fundamentalists' abhorrence of evolution, fail to see why modern science should be suppressed in tax-supported schools and colleges. They fail to see why text-books in biology, geology, astronomy and chemistry should be rewritten to harmonize with ancient Jewish ideas of the physical world; and if public education needs reform, they fail to see why Fundamentalists are the best qualified experts to direct the reform.

Fundamentalists are not blustering when they talk of carrying the war into every college and university and into every legislature, and of driving out modern scientific instruction from all our schools. They mean it. More than that, they are working at it. From sources known and unknown, they obtain large sums of money for their crusade. Beyerless only appear them to renewed effort. Unless they encounter organized opposition, they may succeed.

Rev. Albert C. Dieffenbach, editor of The Christian Register (Unitarian), calls Fundamentalism "a religious Ku Klux." Like the Klan, it is a renaissance of a movement long since supposedly dead and buried. In their attack upon modern Biblical scholarship the Fundamentalists are repeating the exploits of orthodox zealots of 30 years ago, where Professor Briggs, a Presbyterian of Union Theological Seminary, was tried for heresy and found guilty. Professor Briggs joined the Episcopalians. The seminary proclaimed itself undenominational. There the thing ended. In those days no one imagined that after a lapse of 30 years the conflict would break out afresh.

Fifty years ago orthodox theologians fell upon the evolutionists. A number of distinguished professors were sacrificed to their fury. Then came peace. Quite generally Protestants agreed that the first chapter of Genesis was not to be taken literally, and until of late they have lived on tolerable speaking terms with evolution. Indeed, there were Protestants, thousands of them, who saw in evolution not an obstacle to faith in God, but an aid. In those days no one imagined that after a lapse of 50 years theology would again take up arms against science.

Let's begin by the removal of Fundamentalism. If the Fundamentalists cannot get them to go out and found a new Protestantism of their own, they say that the necessary will be taken. They gather annually. Modernists will then complete the work of the Reformation in peace.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE MILANE.
 What happens when the savages and cultivated man lie down together? This question finds expression and answer in "The Exiles," John Gilbert's latest starring vehicle for William Fox, which is scheduled to appear at the Milane Theatre Saturday.
 John Gilbert interprets the role created by Richard Harding Davis, Hulohane is the super-cultured man who is a lawyer in New York. Finding himself overworked, he is ordered to Tangiers, Africa, by his physician. On Tangiers the steel business man finds his entire conception of life changed.
 Where people were formerly regarded as subjects, they are now held in the light of human understanding. He meets a woman whom he had condemned before a court in New York. She saves his life in a thrilling rescue and he discovers love, an emotion he never took cognizance of before, invading itself into his entire being.
 The transformation of this man in the exotic East provides one of the most genuinely unusual stories that the screen has adapted. When it appeared in book form Richard Harding Davis was immediately proclaimed the master American fictionist.

Rumania-Russia Trade Negotiations Begun

(By The Associated Press)
 BUCHAREST, Dec. 22.—Much interest is being manifested here in the negotiations at Tinspal between Rumanian and Russian commissions, which are endeavoring to reach an agreement on a commercial treaty between the two countries. It is semi-officially declared here that the negotiations will be confined strictly to trade matters and will not extend to any political arrangements which the Russian negotiators may propose.
 The work of the commissions is somewhat simplified because of the recent minimization of the Red Russia campaign for the maintenance of the Bessarabian issue as an open question. It is reported that Rumania regards the move as a bid to undo the gains of the province with Soviet Russia as definitely Rumanian, never to be ceded back to Soviet Russia.
 The Russian trade mission at West Palm Beach Wednesday to the tenth convention, will be Miss J. H. Brown, Mrs. D. C. Gino, Mrs. Dwight Robertson, Mrs. Ditchford, Miss Lucile Stewart, Miss Laura Chittenden and Mr. J. Jones. Seminars continue now. The effort will be for attendance and a similar effort to hold it another year.

Tales Related About German Exchange

(By The Associated Press)
 NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The sharp depreciation in Berlin exchange to the point where one cent in American money will buy several billion German marks has given rise to several fanciful stories in Wall Street, and to many interesting mathematical calculations.
 One of the latest stories, credited to an American consular officer in Belgium, relates how shortly after the armistice the Belgian government, in an apparent effort to acquire sufficient marks to influence, if necessary, the German exchange situation, decided to redeem all the German currency then circulating in Belgium. It is said to have expected to acquire six billion marks in this manner, but the favorable rate of exchange offered induced considerable speculation by Belgians who purchased marks in Germany and sold them at a profit in their own country, so that several more billions were actually acquired.
 These marks are said to have been stored in a large warehouse and a guard placed over them, necessitating an annual outlay of 60,000 to 80,000 Belgian francs, besides the loss of interest. So great has been the depreciation in marks that the Belgian "treasure," which is said still to be under guard, is valued at less than $1 in American money at the present rate of exchange.
 Another story, which illustrates the extent of depreciation, says that 40 box cars would be needed to haul $1 worth of one mark notes at the present rate of exchange.

Germans Show Interest In Possible Dictators

(By The Associated Press)
 BERLIN, Dec. 22.—The notion of dictatorship and the possibility of some dark horse bursting upon the horizon and leading the country out of its sore troubles, seems uppermost today in the mind of the average German.
 Affairs have gone so badly since the Ruhr occupation that Germans are universally seeking some untested force which can make the life of the average man more endurable. There is a yearning for a Julius Caesar or a Cromwell, or even a Mussolini. And there is a general distrust of politics in many forms. It is not unusual to hear Germans express the wish that they had an iron-fisted man after the style of Poincare. Much as he is hated for his unswerving course against Germany, there is great admiration among Germans for his firmness. He typifies the old Iron Chancellor.
 Later writers and essayists are hard on work but they do not seem to develop a leader whom they can sell to the German public, anxious as it is to find a Superman to cure all of Germany's ills.

Stone Fish Wrought By Prehistoric Sculptor

(By The Associated Press)
 OREGON CITY, Ore., Dec. 22.—Deep in the original channel of the Willamette river here was found recently a "stone fish," which has been added to a collection of relics of prehistoric life in the possession of O. A. Hollingsworth. The shape was uncovered when excavation was being made for an addition to a local paper mill.
 The stone, about 16 inches long and seven inches high, is roughly carved in the shape of a fish, with mouth, eyes, gills and fins. Hollingsworth believes the stone, which shows signs of being worn by water, was carried along the river in floods of bygone years from the upper Willamette, possibly from the region of the mouth of the river near the present site of Albany, Ore. In his opinion, some early day savage with an artistic bent saw the stone by chance and, using its general shape was that of a fish, took his rough instruments and carved in the eyes, gills and fins.

BEN A. RUDOLPH TO BE CONNECTED WITH BIG CONCERN

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 22.—The Adair Realty & Trust Company of Atlanta announces the appointment of Ben A. Rudolph as general sales manager of the company's mortgage bond department.
 Mr. Rudolph, who for the last five years has been associated with the G. L. Miller Company, is well known throughout this section; having been connected with several prominent southern banks prior to his work with the G. L. Miller Company.
 Through the widespread distribution of Adair first mortgage bonds, this company has brought a vast stream of wealth from other sections of the country into the south, and has aided in giving greater impetus to its building program.

 No other area of equal size on earth possesses the natural resources that are to be found in the south. But the rapid development of these resources requires capital which must be supplied from other sections of the south can accumulate an adequate surplus of her own.
 The Adair Realty & Trust Company is helping in no small degree the rapid expansion now going on in the south. Almost overnight unbelievable changes are being wrought upon the skyline of southern cities, new office buildings, hotels and apartments are rushed to completion to meet the ever increasing demand for business and living quarters.
 This concern, the oldest real estate and mortgage investment house in the south has, within the last few years, assumed an even greater identification with the growth and prosperity of the south that has heretofore shored, through its vast real estate and development activities. The national advertising of this company, plus its continued participation in the fostering of southern building, is destined to place it in the forefront of American institutions engaged in this modern and economic field of constructive financial activity.
 Mr. Rudolph has been selected for the position of general sales manager because of his demonstrated fitness for the work and his many personal and professional qualifications.
 Mr. R. L. Griffin and two daughters, Emily and E. E., will leave Saturday for Ebbelake, S. C. to spend the holidays.
 The Tangiers school has become a state accredited school.

New England Shakers Give Up Community Life

(By The Associated Press)
 ENFIELD, N. H., Dec. 21.—The five last members of the local Community of Shakers, established here originally in 1725, will abandon the settlement this winter and move over to Canterbury, where there is a similar colony. Death has reduced the group from about 150 to these last remaining five, who today are about to close the barns and lock the doors for the last time. In 1886 the membership of the Enfield colony was about the same as at the beginning, but for 37 years it has steadily dwindled. Celibacy was obligatory. The colonists raised garden produce, seeds and roots and manufactured underwear, bonnets, quilts and wooden articles of various kinds. In keeping with the laws of the sect, all property was held on a communistic basis, and the men and women members lived separate lives of stern discipline awaiting the "Second Coming of Christ."
 The colony had friction in the early days with other residents of the town. The records show that in 1788 the legislature was appealed to for some remedy against certain alleged actions of the "Shaking Quakers," but the objections were overruled and the colonists have remained their peaceful lives of quietude with uninterrupted industry until now.

DEEP CONFLICT DIVIDES PROTESTANTISM

Churchmen Demand Literal Acceptance of the Bible and Organize Strongly Against the Modernists

The writer of this article made a 3,000-mile trip investigating the Fundamentalist Movement. He is the author of "The Man Himself," a book which has drawn attacks from the Fundamentalists, but his purpose here is to present a dispassionate view covering the latest developments in what may turn out to be the greatest internal struggle Protestantism has faced.

All over America a great quarrel about beliefs is tearing Protestantism in two. Among the Baptists, Dr. Stratton attacks President Faunce. Among the Presbyterians, Dr. McCartney attacks Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick. Among the Episcopalians, Bishop Manning attacks Dr. Grant. Among the Methodists, Bishop Stutz recently denied Dr. Buckner a pulpit. In all the denominations there is an uprising of old-fashioned orthodox against modernism, and already three organizations—the International Fundamentalists Association, the Baptist Bible Union of North America and the followers of Dr. Curtis Lee Laws—are up in arms. Together they represent the widespread, bellicose, passionately determined agitation known as the Fundamentalist Movement. It emphasizes five beliefs:

1. Belief in a miraculously inspired Bible, absolutely without error, and authoritative throughout.
  2. Belief in a miraculously inspired Virgin Birth of Jesus of Nazareth.
  3. Belief in a substitutionary atonement—the belief Robert G. Ingersoll denied in his famous epigram, "If God killed Jesus Christ for my sins, He got the wrong man."
  4. Belief in the bodily resurrection of Jesus.
  5. Belief in His second coming. Many Fundamentalists explicitly declare their belief in "the literal, visible, bodily, imminent return of Jesus Christ to this earth as King." The majority believe that His second coming, though sure to occur, will be long delayed.
- The other party, known as Liberals or Modernists, asserts:
1. That the Bible was not miraculously inspired; that it is not free from error; that it contains myth and legend as well as history; and that, inasmuch as portions of it teach militarism, polygamy, slavery, witchcraft and spiritualism, it is not authoritative throughout.
  2. That Jesus Himself appears never to have heard of His miraculous Virgin Birth; that two of His four biographers seem never to have heard of it; that St. Paul ignores it, and that it is a belief no Christian need accept.
  3. That belief in the "literal, visible, bodily, imminent return of Jesus Christ to this earth as King" rests upon scriptural texts which set a time limit for His return, clearly stating that it would occur early in the second century, A. D., at the latest.

Mr. Bryan in the Fight. There are strong leaders on both sides. Among the Fundamentalists William Jennings Bryan is the most conspicuous. His twenty-fourth verse of the first chapter of Genesis contains more science than all that Darwin ever wrote; thinks it "more important to know the Rock of Ages than the ages of rocks," and calls the Modernists infidels, agnostics, apostates, atheists and enemies of the Bible.

In importance comes the Rev. W. B. Riley, president of the International Fundamentalists Association, who tells us that "thinking men have not given up Genesis," and proclaims the bodily return of Christ.

Another eminent Fundamentalist is the Rev. J. Frank Norris. He has secured the expulsion of Professor F. C. Collins from the Southern Methodist University and several evolutionists from Baylor University. At the recent Fundamentalist rally in New York, he likened Modernists to "wolves in sheep's clothing," "enemies boring from within" and "agnostics poisoning us as Christians as they attack the essentials of our faith."

Not content with that, he likened them to "Judas approaching the Lord with a kiss on his lips and blood money in his hands" and cried fervently, "or I might liken them to lepers," adding, "these lepers of the spirit, these lepers of doubt, ever more dangerous than the lepers of old time; for they cannot be cured, they, too, must be cast out from amongst us."

The Rev. W. A. (Billy) Sunday, perhaps the most interesting Fundamentalist, next to Mr. Bryan, tells me that evolution is "bunk, junk and poppy-cock." Of modern Biblical scholarship he says the same. Like many other Fundamentalists, he believes in the bodily return of Christ.

Professor J. Gresham Machen of Princeton Theological Seminary (a Fundamentalist stronghold) declares that "if Catholicism is a perversion of Christianity, Modernism is not Christianity at all" but "another religion, belonging to another group of religions," and "no different from Christianity than if the one is true and the other must be false." He asks the Modernists to depart in peace, surrendering churches, colleges and denominational treasuries to the Fundamentalists.

Dean Gray of the Moody Bible Institute thinks that it is the Fundamentalists who should depart in peace. Many Fundamentalists agree with him. One of them tells me that if they fail to control next summer's Baptist convention they will withdraw. This same Fundamentalist declares that "there is going to be a new denomination; as for the existing ones, we mean to rip them up."

Modernist View of Christ. Among the Modernist leaders, the most daring is Dr. Percy Slattery Grant, Episcopalian. He rejects orthodox Protestantism completely. He has no belief in a miraculous Bible,

BISHOP LAWRENCE

or in a supernatural Jesus of Nazareth, or in the duty of a preacher to hide his convictions. He sees in the Nazarene neither a god nor a demigod, but a prophet, hero, martyr and a matchless teacher, the supreme religious genius of all time. Dr. Grant speaks out fearlessly.

As fearless, almost, is Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's Church. He recently the House of Bishops pronounced the teaching of the Apostles' Creed and the doctrine of the Virgin Birth to be obligatory. Dr. Reiland protested in his church bulletin: "The resolution is a reactionary Fundamentalist aberration and will stand as a humiliating monument to Episcopal scholarship and a witness to the utter lack of appreciation of the great advances of modern knowledge which these latter years have brought."

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick still clings to a belief in the deity of Christ, but abhors Fundamentalism. In fact, he abhors virtually the entire theological system of orthodox Protestantism and calls it "false and pernicious in practical result." Though a Baptist, he is special preacher at the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue, where 1,600 people throng to hear him. A professor at Union Theological Seminary and author of numerous books, he wields enormous influence.

President William H. P. Faunce of Brown University is likewise moderate in his liberalism. To be sure, he has attacked the "Fundamentals" in a famous magazine article, and when he arose to address the Baptist convention last summer, Dr. Stratton mounted a chair and loudly protested. Tens of thousands, with cries of "Shame!" and "Put him out!" and more to match, booed Dr. Faunce writes me that he regards himself by no means radical. His aim, as he declares, is to mediate between the Modernists on the one hand and the Fundamentalists on the other.

Perhaps the same might be said of Shailer Mathews, dean of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago. By constant pamphleteering, he and his associates have tried to bring Fundamentalists to understand Modernism. They are patient and tactful. Moreover, they have sought to commend Modernism to men of science. As a result, numerous scientists have openly proclaimed their faith in God.

Legend or Truth? Meanwhile, a brilliant hymn writer, Glenn Frank, editor of The Century, speaks out boldly for Modernism. What the world needs, he argues, is "not the religion about Jesus, but the religion of Jesus." Like Dr. Grant, he would strip away all the legends and the dogmas invented by early Jewish-Christians and by St. Paul and his successors down to our own day, and force a return to the very ancient and at the same time very modern teachings of the Nazarene.

From the outset, Modernists felt that this effort to lead Protestants away from St. Paul, away from first century "legend-mongers," away from theologians and back to the Nazarene, must be gone about cautiously. It involves a revolution in religious thought far more sweeping than that brought about by the Reformation. It involved a disregard of time-honored creeds, a disregard of beliefs long since written into prayer book and countless hymns, a disregard of dogmas still held sacred by the rank and file of Protestantism throughout the country over. Rash measures would be ruinous.

Accordingly, the Modernists clothed their unorthodox ideas in orthodox verbiage, or trusted to letting the time-honored creeds die of neglect. Thus, they imagined that little by little they would succeed in winning acceptance for what they looked upon as pure Christianity. It never entered their thought that suddenly, in our own day, orthodox would arise in its might and fight for its very life. The extent of the uprising amazes them. A competent observer reports that the Fundamentalists control a quarter of the Protestant churches in New England, half the Protestant churches in the Middle West and three-quarters of the Protestant churches in the Far West. They themselves say, nineteenth of the laity are with us.

It is, perhaps, true. Mr. Bryan, today the most influential preacher on earth, has an enormous following. Billy Sunday's every campaign wins multitudes of recruits for Fundamentalism. The Moody Bible Institute has a thousand students, all of them Fundamentalists, while its correspondence courses enlist 2,000 more and its publishing house distributes Fundamentalist books by the million. Meanwhile, the Milton Stuart Evangelical Fund, a kind of religious Rockefeller Foundation, finances the circulation of a work called "Jesus is Coming," proclaiming the bodily return of Christ and now in its sixth hundred thousand.

Fundamentalists Are Strong. The Sunday School Times, numerous denominational weeklies and theological schools, all the tent evangelists, all the gospel wagoners and a majority of the older clergy are on the Fundamentalist side. Modernism is their abhor. They are strongly organized. Their zeal knows no bounds. Convinced that they, and they only, are Christians, they seek to expel Modernist clergymen, depose Modernist professors and drive all Modernists from the churches.

Concerning the righteousness of their crusade they have no misgivings. The Rev. J. T. Shields, president of the Baptist Bible Union, declared in New York the other day: "As surely as I know that the Bible was inspired of God, I know that Modernism is inspired by Satan. Anti-Christ is in the world, and we cannot fraternize with his exhortations. We cannot take their hands, we cannot eat their bread. We believe that Modernists who receive salaries from Baptist churches and salaries while propagating their destructive views are unworthy to associate with ordinary honest men."

Meanwhile, the Modernists seem helpless. They are unorganized. They have no fighting spirit. Until late, they have underestimated the enemy's strength. It is difficult for them to take the Fundamentalist movement seriously. Many of them look upon it as an after-the-war hysteria or as a result of the scare that swept over orthodox Protestantism when the boys in the camps showed but little acquaintance with, and less interest in, the historic creeds of Christendom. Give it time, they say, and the uproar will die out.

After a 3,000-mile journey among the Fundamentalists and a careful study of their literature, to say nothing of the Fundamentalist triumphs I have since noted, I am unable to discover any ground for believing that Fundamentalism will subside. I think it will grow.

Darwinism Attacked. Generally, the Modernists call fundamentalism "a revolt of ignorance," and concludes that a "movement so foolish must fail." It "lacks brilliant leaders," they say, and its rank and file "lack brains." But somehow the despised leaders have had the cleverness to trace Modernism to its source, and somehow the despised rank and file have the sagacity to support their leaders in every effort to strike at that source—namely, at evolution.

Fundamentalists see clearly that Modernism is a product of what they call Darwinism. When nature appeared to make sense and when order seemed to prevail throughout the physical world, so that truth, wherever obtained by scientific methods, was found to be reasonable, there grew up a suspicion that truth itself must be reasonable and that unreasonable assertions must of necessity be false assertions. The suspicion, once aroused, was destined in course of time to become a conviction so deeply rooted that it would affect, in the minds of those who held it, every process of thought.

Ere long it brought about a great change in people's minds regarding the Bible. Advanced Protestants readily accustomed themselves to regarding the Biblical account of the creation as poetry; without too serious dismay they heard that there had been two Isaiahs; that at least three anonymous authors had collaborated upon the books of Moses; that the Gospel according to St. John was the work of an unknown, and that certain epistles supposed to have been written by St. Paul were not his in reality.

And the more they accustomed themselves to giving reason a dominant place in religious thought the more willingly they followed the new leaders who, insisting that natural law reigned everywhere and had always reigned, were impatient of the miraculous. Many Protestants began to question the miraculous recounted in the Old Testament. Many rejected them. In their approach to the New Testament, however, they were less audacious. Still clinging to their belief that Jesus of Nazareth was a supernatural person, they put aside their objection in His case and went on declaring that He had been miraculously born; that He had performed miracles without number, and that in bodily form He had miraculously risen from the dead.

Unitarians, looking on, said: "These people will all come around to our position, for their own is untenable; the same logic that rules out miracles in the Old Testament will rule out miracles in the New Testament."

Reformed Jews, looking on, commented in similar terms. Catholics looking on, said: "You will soon see what happened where believers have rejected the authority of an infallible Church and assumed the right to decide for themselves."

Old fashioned Protestants said: "Reason will yet blind them to the eternal truths of Christianity; they will end by doubting the Virgin Birth, the deity of Christ, the substitutionary atonement, the second coming and the infallibility of Scripture."

Just that has happened. Acceptance of evolution was the entering wedge. Therefore, in their effort to destroy Modernism, the Fundamentalists strike furiously at evolution. They are clamoring for anti-evolutionary legislation in several states; already they have obtained a law making it a crime to teach evolution in Oklahoma. What happened there can happen anywhere. At their convention in New York City, the Rev. J. Frank Norris announced: "We propose to carry our war into every college and every university and into every legislature. We intend to drive this product of German rationalism from all our schools."

In other words, the Fundamentalists purpose to tell the country at large what instruction its young folk shall receive. That they have a right to seek control of denominational schools and colleges, and to get control of them when they can, few outsiders will deny. But when they go into politics and demand laws regulating public education it is a different matter.

Outsiders, not sharing the Fundamentalists' abhorrence of evolution, fail to see why modern science should be suppressed in tax-supported schools and colleges. They fail to see why text-books in biology, geology, astronomy and chemistry should be rewritten to harmonize with ancient Jewish ideas of the physical world; and if public education needs reform, they fail to see why Fundamentalists are the best qualified experts to direct the reform.

Fundamentalists are not blustering when they talk of carrying the war into every college and university and into every legislature, and of driving out modern scientific instruction from all our schools. They mean it. More than that, they are working at it. From sources known and unknown, they obtain large sums of money for their crusade. Reverses only spur them to renewed effort. Unless they encounter organized opposition, they may succeed.

Rev. Albert C. Dieffenbach, editor of The Christian Register (Unitarian), calls Fundamentalism "a religious Ku Klux." Like the Klan, it is a revitalization of a movement long since supposedly dead and buried. In their attack upon modern Biblical scholarship the Fundamentalists are repeating the exploits of orthodox zealots of 30 years ago, whose Professor Briggs, a Presbyterian of Union Theological Seminary, was tried for heresy and found guilty. Professor Briggs joined the Episcopalians. The seminary proclaimed itself undenominational. There the thing ended. In those days no one imagined that after a lapse of 30 years the conflict would break out afresh.

Fifty years ago orthodox theologians fell upon the evolutionists. A number of distinguished professors were sacrificed to their fury. Then came peace. Quite generally Protestants agreed that the first chapter of Genesis was not to be taken literally, and until of late they have lived on tolerable speaking terms with evolution. Indeed, there were Protestants, thousands of them, who saw in evolution not an obstacle to faith in God, but an aid. In those days no one imagined that after a lapse of 50 years theology would again take up arms against science.

lets begin to be ashamed of Protestantism. If the Fundamentalists compel them to go out and found a new Protestantism of their own, they say that the necessity will not be altogether unwelcome. Modernists will then "complete the work of the Reformation" in peace.

TWELVE MONTHS GROWING SEASON WHERE NATURE IS AT HER BEST

CHRISTMAS CELERY FOR LOCAL MARKETS.

By R. J. Holly.

Every man who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before his fellow men for doing something is more or less of a public benefactor and should have the plaudits of the ordinary. Sanford produces for many years had certain products that were as immutable as the laws of the Medes and the Persians but as seasons come and go bringing their various brands of weather it behooves the growers to look for new crops and new growing seasons and new strains and kinds of products that will shift somewhat the glut of markets that are bound to come from time to time. Florida is such a great state and has so many wonderful possibilities that we should never sit idly by and allow California or any other state in the union take our markets and especially our local markets.

For many years we have depended upon California and Michigan and New York state to supply our Christmas celery for us. It was usually of inferior grade and usually cost a higher price but Christmas is not the real thing without celery and we always afforded a good market for other states in this line.

For many years the writer wondered just why Sanford or Manatee could not furnish Christmas celery and now thanks to the foresight of the Bell Brothers of Monroe we know that we can and will grow Christmas celery and instead of depending upon other states for it Sanford will grow it and grow it of the finest quality.

The Bell Brothers of Lake Monroe are among the oldest and the most progressive celery growers of this section. They are on the job early and late and they carry out the old adage of the early bird getting the worm and believe me they are some husky lads and not exactly in the worm class. They have one of the most complete plants for the growing and shipping of celery and other products in the state and this season conceived the idea of growing and washing and shipping Christmas celery to southern markets. They have brought out a brand of celery that cannot be discounted anywhere and it is also a self blanching strain that looks mighty good before it is put under boards at all or rather under paper as the new process of blanching is now accomplished. They have two of the finest patches of celery that I have ever seen and having put up a washing and stripping plant of the very latest type. They are busy as bees putting up a fine pack of early celery under the famous "Big Bell Brand" that is known now and will continue to be known throughout the country. They wash the celery and put it up in bundles wrapped in pure white parchment paper and packed in crates covered with tar paper and bound with wire—packages that will not be broken in handling by express—and they are by personal representatives in the field selling this Christmas celery all over Florida and other southern states and getting a fancy price for it. John Bell the "bell wether" of the Bell Brothers is the agent at Monroe and with his well equipped office on the grounds and with a competent office force works day and night in looking after the orders. Charlie Bell is on the road and Tom Bell puts over the packing and shipping and the three make a real working trio—big in stature, big in heart and big in the accomplishment of big things.

I was out there the other day with Editor Reese Combs of the Daily Herald and we were treated royally by the Bell Brothers as everyone is who comes in contact with them and they showed us all over the farm and plants and gave us a sample of celery hearts that they are also specializing in for the special northern hotel trade and made us feel at home. As usual it gives me pleasure to say something about the innovations in growing and planting of crops and this article is written with the idea of calling attention to the fact that Bell Brothers are doing something at Lake Monroe that they have real Christmas celery to ship and that if there are any merchants in this part of the state who want Christmas celery they can go farther and do much worse than patronizing Bell Brothers of Lake Monroe—the biggest men in Florida—in stature and in accomplishments.

I expect to have some pictures of the Bell farm and a real write up of this new thing in celery in the Florida Trucker—the new magazine that will be devoted to truck growing and the problems of the Florida farmers.

Low prices are now ruling on practically all Florida products. The orange crop has netted very little to the growers and the recent shipments of lettuce have hardly paid for the freight and packing. The present prices that we are receiving are not really unusual, because in former years there have been periods of these low prices, but we enjoyed lower freight rates then and the cost of crates and packing was not so high.

The biggest problem facing the Florida grower of fruits and vegetables is a revision of the freight rates so that the increased volume can be marketed at a profit to the producer.

More Florida products can be sold if the rate structures are so made that cars can be diverted from one market to another on the through rate. California enjoys blanket rates to different sections of the country.

The outlook for a profitable celery season is bright. The New York stored celery is clearing out pretty fast. Early this month it was estimated that there was a total of about 1,200 cars of New York celery in storage. California has about their normal acreage. Their sizes, however, are reported small. Present prices are satisfactory to the growers.

The total acreage of lettuce in the Imperial Valley, California, totals 13,777 acres. Indications are for a yield of not less than 150 crates per acre. This will produce a crop of 10,562 carloads. Most of the markets of the country now prefer Iceberg to Big Boston. There are a number of southern markets buying California Iceberg lettuce that do not want the Big Boston at all. There is a new law in California requiring the proper labeling of all lettuce, and which prohibits the placing of large heads in the top of the crates with small ones beneath.

Raising over 200 collies in four or five years has been one of the tasks of Miss Caroline Fritz at the Melrose Dairy, thereby disproving any theories that collies do not do well in the extreme south.

She has learned that puppae are not apt to stand the change of climate well if shipped in from the north, but that grown dogs can be imported satisfactorily so that good breeding stock can be secured for raising pups here. Every year she imports a new dog, National Prince of Iowa being the first at present.

Gipsy Girl, nicknamed "Boots," it seems is a great pet as well as a valuable dog for she is the daughter of Nishna Marie, called "Topsy" at home, who twice raised litters of 11 good pups each. "Topsy" was, however, run over while exercising on the Allapattah road one day.

Care of the long-haired dogs in the South is a question often raised. Miss Fritz does not favor clipping them, as she believes that the scratches and skin abrasions from sand spurs and other causes lead to skin diseases which prove worse than the discomfort caused by the long hair.

Poison sprays on fruits and vegetables will not be found by consumers in harmful quantities if growers who use them against pests and diseases follow the spraying schedules recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Experiments along this line were undertaken by the department because of the possibility that spraying of fruits and vegetables might leave enough arsenic, lead, or copper on the surface to be injurious to the consumer. The results, obtained by analyzing sprayed fruits and vegetables from various parts of the country and presented mostly in the form of tables, are given in Department Bulletin 1027, Poisonous Metals on Sprayed Fruits and Vegetables. Copies may be had from the department at Washington.—State Marketing Bureau.

Farm Fire Protection.
Dallas County, Texas, has made it possible for its rural districts to obtain protection from the fire department in Dallas through the construction of modern hard-surfaced highways. A contract executed recently between the Dallas city commission and the county commissioners provides for fire protection to farmers on all paved roads within a radius of 15 miles of Dallas. When a farm house or barn along a paved road catches fire all the farmer has to do is to telephone the Dallas department and it will respond at 40 to 50 miles an hour with a chemical engine or a steamer as occasion may warrant.

Dallas county is one of the first in the country to make such an arrangement. Several fires have already been extinguished with small loss. A general reduction in fire insurance rates in the smaller towns and farming districts has been the result. The service will be made more extensive when the big road building program now under way in Dallas county is finished. Farmers affected by the arrangement are reported to be delighted with the protection afforded.

There is no denying that the quickest way to have trained men and women managing our farms and grazing our farm homes is to start with and train the boys and girls of the country districts.

Our Crops

The truck crops of the Sanford section must yield a total of $4,140,000 before there is any profit or return to the grower. Of this amount $2,100,000 goes to the Railroads for transportation and the balance represents labor, fertilizers, bleaching paper, crates and general farm expense.

There is a serious responsibility on the market agencies in distributing and selling these crops. The success of the community depends upon how well the work is done.

We have been distributors of Sanford lettuce and celery for 24 years. Why not avail yourself of our experience.
