Sheriff Saunders Took Big Interest In Youngsters

ST. PETERSBURG— Sheriff Sid Saunders succumbed Wednesday, Feb. 19 at St. Anthony's Hospital, Pinellas County. He was 54.
Mr. Saunders was elected in 1937 as president of the Sheriff's State Association and was recently appointed by Governor Collins to serve in the Florida Sheriff's bureau.
His interest in youngsters caused him to take the lead in developing a Florida Sheriff's Boys Ranch in Live Oak. The camp will be operating Sept. 1, providing a home for homeless and underprivileged boys.
At the time of his death he was attempting to raise $150,000 for the project. He was to have attended an executive session of the camp group the day of his death. Those who wish to contribute to the project in his memory, may send checks to the project in Clearwater or St. Petersburg Sheriff's office.

By putting advertisements in lonely hearts columns. Many German newspapers and magazines run columns of "husband wanted" and "wife wanted" advertisements.

Numerous marriage bureaus also cater to the needs of lonely people and provide a fertile field for adventurers.
The marriage swindler meets a lonely woman through an advertisement or an agency, quickly proposes marriage and sets a date for the wedding.

Shortly before the wedding, however, he borrows money to meet a financial obligation or to make a down payment on a home or to meet some wedding expenses.

Mack's Interest In Firm Said Flagrant Violation Of Regulations

WASHINGTON (UP)—A House investigator said today FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack's reputed financial interest in an insurance firm holding the account of the National Airlines TV station in Miami is "unquestionably a flagrant violation" of government regulations.

Mack voted to award the hotly-contested Channel 10 to the airline.

Rep. Morgan M. Moulder (D-Mo.) said evidence also showed Mack had violated other rules in his relationship with persons seeking to "influence" Mack's vote on the award of television channels by the Federal Communications Commission.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) said on the basis of what already had been brought out in the explosive investigation of federal regulatory agencies, President Eisenhower should have called for Mack's resignation "before now."

But Moulder and other investigators said they wanted to hear Mack in the witness chair before comment on whether he should resign or be fired. Mack is scheduled to testify Thursday, but there is a chance he may be called Wednesday.

When Mack was first accused two weeks ago of having "pledged" his vote to Coral Gables, Fla., attorney Thurman A. Whiteside in the award of Channel 10 to National Airlines after Whiteside had given him $2,650, Mack denied any wrongdoing and said he would not resign.

But Mack declined to reassert this stand following testimony by Whiteside linking him to the insurance company with television clients. Asked if he still had no intention of resigning, Mack told the United Press, "I have no comment."

Whiteside said Mack holds a one-sixth interest in the Assembly-Shelden insurance agency which has the account of the Channel 10 station owned by National Airlines. He said the agency also sold an insurance policy to Biscayne Television Corp. which operates Miami Channel 7.

Mack also cast a favorable vote in the FCC's Channel 7 award.

He said the House Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight Monday the insurance arrangement "is completely proper if you take into consideration the circumstances."

Moulder, who quit the chairmanship of the subcommittee over the firing of chief counsel Bernard Schwartz, apparently referred to the regulation which specifically forbids any FCC member from being "financially interested . . . in any company furnishing services or apparatus to any company engaged in communication by wire or radio."

Whiteside, recalled for testimony in the FCC's Channel 7 award.

$5 Billion Debt Limit Passed By Senate

Senator George Smathers told The Sanford Herald this morning that the U. S. Senate passed the $5 billion debt limit bill last night about 6:15.

This move will automatically, when President Eisenhower signs the bill, release funds for the interim improvements program at the Sanford Naval Air Station in the amount of $2,800,000.

Senator Smathers said that the "release of funds for the local Naval Air Station improvements is almost presumptuous."

Congressman A. S. "Syd" Herlong Jr., told The Sanford Herald today that the debt limit bill "has been holding up the release of the funds for improvement and expansion at the Sanford Naval Air Station."

However, said Congressman Herlong, the Navy proceeded with plans and advertised for bids on the first $1 million of the project and expect to award bids by the first of April.

"It is automatic now," said Herlong.

There will be no gigantic expansion program, Congressman Herlong told The Sanford Herald. The Navy said "We're not going to make any huge giant base in Sanford but we're not going to leave it any," according to Congressman Herlong.

The local base, according to the Navy's plans, said the Congressman, isn't adaptable to a huge base.

Herlong said "We're in real good shape as far as Sanford is concerned." He said, "A new runway will be built and other things will be done that will make the Sanford Naval Air Station a first class base."

He explained "The Navy won't need those long 11 to 15 thousand foot runways that were being planned. Modern jet aircraft can land and operate off shorter runways."

"The Sanford Naval Air Station will be a useable base for the next eight or nine years and its permanency is assured," said Congressman Herlong.

"Additional personnel will be coming in from time to time to build the Sanford Naval Air Station to its maximum strength," the Congressman said this morning.

"That's good news," Chamber of Commerce Manager John Krider said this morning when he heard of the possible immediate release of funds for Navy improvements here.

VAH-7 Back From 9 Month Deployment

After an absence of almost nine months the officers and men of Detachment 36, VAH-7 have returned to their home base at the Naval Air Station, Sanford. During that time they were deployed aboard the USS Randolph (CV-15) and served with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean Sea.

Five crews, led by Cdr. H. M. Cummins Jr., Officer-in-Charge, were the first to return. They flew off the ship the day before they docked and arrived in Sanford Sunday afternoon shortly before 1:30 p.m.

The rest of the detachment remained on the ship until it docked at Norfolk, Va., the following day and then was airlifted to Sanford arriving this morning shortly before 8 o'clock.

During their deployment as part of the Sixth Fleet, the detachment was in a constant state of readiness in the event of an all out war and participated in such NATO exercises as Counterpunch, Deepwater, and Flip Flop. In addition they remained on alert for a period of almost four months during the Syrian crisis while steaming in the Mediterranean Area.

In performing the latter task they transferred a total of 15,000 gallons of gasoline to fighter and light attack aircraft.

As a Heavy Attack unit of VAH-7 under HAWKING ONE, they served in the dual role of bombers and tankers. In performing the latter task they transferred a total of 15,000 gallons of gasoline to fighter and light attack aircraft.

Two VAH-11 Men Receive Letters Of Commendation

Two letters of commendation were awarded at the Heavy Attack Squadron Eleven (VAH-11) inspection held last Friday. Cdr. Ray Fernandez, USN commanding officer of VAH-11 inspected the squadron, then read and awarded letters of commendation to Lt. L. D. Tennison, USN, and Wylie F. Petch, Aviation Machinist's Mate Chief, USN.

Lt. Tennison's letter of commendation was from the Chief of Naval Air Basic Training, Naval Air Station, Pensacola, commending Lt. Tennison on over two thousand hours of accident free instruction time and stating, "This achievement is considered to be outstanding." Lt. Tennison was an instructor at NAAS Sauffley Field, when he achieved this record.

Chief Petty Officer Petch received his letter of commendation from the Commanding Officer of VAH-11 for his work as Leading Chief Petty Officer of VAH-11 from August, 1956 to September, 1957. The letter read in part, "Your devotion to duty, your assumption of responsibilities, and your resourcefulness and perseverance have not only contributed materially to the successful accomplishment of this squadron's mission but have served as an inspiration to others."

Cdr. Fernandez presented both letters with congratulations.

Krider Blasts Board On Sale Of City Property

Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Manager John Krider blasted the Board of Sanford City Commissioners last night on the sale of city property on Seminole Boulevard.

"We've got a valuable asset and it should stay a valuable asset until we either fail or succeed," said Krider.

The move came about when commissioners began a discussion on a proposal to use Seminole Boulevard property for a motel site.

"This property is valuable for industry," said Krider, "and a motel has no business in that area."

Krider explained that should a motel site be approved additional zoning would be necessary in order to eliminate unnecessary noise and obnoxious detail which would hinder the success of the proposed motel.

The Board of City Commissioners put off further discussion of the property and its use until the meeting of Mar. 24.

Commissioners were up in arms at one point concerning the licensing of nurseries.

Commissioner Earl Higginbotham demanded a description of a "nursery." "Why, that would keep some families from assisting neighbors in the care of children," he said.

However, it was explained that a nursery operation would be "one which has a place of business" or one "who receives money for the care of children."

Nurseries need not be in a commercial zone, explained City Manager Warren E. Knowles. The county sanitarian is now checking nurseries.

"Such an ordinance is already on our books," said the City Manager, "and this move is to know whether or not the ordinance should be enforced or done away with."

Commissioner Higginbotham insisted that "I am against creating a law that can be used any way you want it—just opposed to that kind of ordinance."

The move was approved to license nursery operations in Sanford.

According to the City Manager there are, at present, 14 nurseries and three new ones planning to open in the near future.

License to operate was set at $25.

SHS Band Parents Will Sell Tickets For Concert Friday

The Seminole High School band parents will meet tonight at 8:30 p. m. for the purpose of distributing concert tickets.

According to plans the sale of concert tickets and the solicitation for contributions for the High School Band will be from door to door.

Band members will accompany band parents for the collection.

Bandmaster Ernest Cowley said this morning that the concert will be given at the Pinecrest School auditorium at 8 p. m. Friday night.

The SHS Bandmaster also said that the local band participated in the George Washington Birthday parade in Euclid last Saturday. It was one of two out-of-county groups participating.

Hospital Receives Additional Funds From Navy Unit

Seminole Memorial Hospital through A. B. Peterson Sr., Chairman of the Board of Trustees, has announced the receipt of an additional gift to the fund raised by the Women's Auxiliary for hospital equipment.

A check for $25 was presented Friday night, by the enlisted men of VAH-11, Sanford Naval Air Station, at an All-Hands party, following the "hilarious" Low-Fever Frolic which included Squadron members who had recently taken part in the High Fever Frolic.

Chairman Peterson expressed the appreciation of the Board for the continued support given to the hospital by the personnel of the NAS and called attention to the fact that this generous gift from the enlisted men of VAH-11 was in addition to the great contribution of talent, service and time spent in making the recent High Fever Frolic such a "tremendous success."

CofC Coffee Club Convenes Thursday

The monthly meeting (it's actually an informal get-together) of the Coffee Club of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce will convene at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at Mrs. Appleby's Valdez Restaurant with Charlie Morrison, Sanford's "goodwill ambassador" in charge.

The entire program, which lasts a half hour, is featured by good fellowship, coffee and doughnuts which "are on the house" and the absence of long speeches. Morrison usually introduces newcomers to the community, particularly those of new businesses. This month's event will be graced by the presence of several ladies, the emcee announced.

Explosion Investigated

NEW DELHI, India (UP)—Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon planned a trip to Pathankot today to investigate a railroad yard explosion which killed 30 persons and injured 15 others. Civilian laborers and military personnel were among the victims. The blast occurred Monday 350 miles northwest of here.

Episcopal Church To Honor Local Firemen Sunday

Sunday when the family service of Holy Cross Episcopal Church pays special tribute to the men who protect property and lives 24 hours a day.

The fire chief and all off duty firemen will march into the church behind the choir at the 9:15 service. The Rev. John Thomas, priest of Holy Cross Episcopal Church, stated today, "We hope that this recognition service will bring to the attention of the people of Sanford the great debt we owe our firemen."

The first Sunday of each month is the morning prayer service. There will be no communion.

Navy Base Proves That Action Speaks Louder Than Words

The City of Sanford was recently shown that the old adage, "Action speaks louder than words," is understood and practiced by the U. S. Navy, or at least by the Naval personnel at the U. S. Naval Air Station, Sanford.

The Naval Aviation News, a Navy Magazine, is planning on publishing a feature article in its magazine concerning noise problems which have arisen as a result of high performance aircraft operations. The NavAirNews (as it is often called), recently contacted Captain L. A. Arthur, Commanding Officer, NAS, Sanford, and requested that his Public Information Staff provide the magazine with such information.

Lieutenant Commander, F. H. Dohne, Assistant Public Information Officer at the Naval Air Station, in compliance with the request from NavAirNews, conducted an interview with several Sanford residents on the problem of air noise created by jet aircraft operating at NAS Sanford. Dohne interviewed Mrs. Earl Higginbotham, housewife; Charles M. James, proprietor of a gasoline station; Miss Dorothy Powell, co-owner of Powell's Office Supply; and Mrs. Jack Hall, whose husband is the owner-manager of Yowell's Department Store in Sanford.

The majority of opinion is that air noise can sometimes be quite annoying to the residents of Sanford, but that they are more than willing to put up with this "necessary evil" in exchange for the strong, protective arm of the Sanford-based, Heavy Attack Wing One.

City Fathers Turn Fire On Civic Center Cost

City Commissioners last night turned their fire on the Sanford Civic Center and the cost of putting the structure into readiness for use by local citizens.

Commissioner David Gatchel led off in the burst of words against the cost when he told commissioners "It was never the intention of the city commission to spend the money it is now forced to spend."

Finance Director H. N. Sayer told commissioners that the present cost of the civic center stands at $20,998.12 and the original figure set aside for the building was $278,000.

"We're over a barrel now," said Commissioner Gatchel, "because we're building something for many years use by the people of Sanford."

Commissioner Robert S. Brown brought out, however, that "a building for public use and assembly requires a heck of a lot more than a normal building."

"If I were building a home and had no more conception of the cost than we have of the Civic Center I'd never start building," said Gatchel, and he stormed "It gets me the way this thing has gotten away from us."

Commissioners, at their last meeting, approved additions to the Civic Center building that had been removed because of the lack of funds. Additional funds were received from the sale of city property which was added to the Capital Improvement Fund.

Approval of architect's fees prompted the blow-up over the structure's cost. However, the board approved the bill for payment as directed by the contract.

This morning, commissioners met at the new Fire Station on French Ave. to approve colors of paint for the building and to make definite plans to clean up city property.

In another blast at the way city property is appearing Commissioner Earl Higginbotham said "It's a shame the way city property is kept—just in French Ave.—the main drag."

However, City Manager Warren E. Knowles explained that sewer and water pipes were being stored behind the water works fence because of vandalism at another location. "Pipes were being broken and we could not stand the loss," he said. Knowles explained that sewer pipe cost the city 38 cents a foot and water pipe is even more expensive, $2 a foot.

Scout Blue, Gold Banquet Scheduled Thursday In Oviedo

The annual Blue and Gold banquet for the Explorer Scouts and Boy Scouts, Oviedo Troop 213 and Cub Scouts Oviedo Pack 213 will be held Thursday night at 8:30 p. m. at the Memorial Building.

All scouts and parents are invited to attend. This will be a covered dish affair and all are asked to bring their own eating service.

Honored guest of the evening will be Colie Caldwell of Orlando, Central Florida Council Scout Executive and Dr. Edward W. Stoner of Oviedo. Each will make short addresses.

Scout committeemen will be introduced.

Cosmic Dust Studied

COSMIC 30-3 BOLD INS.—By DELOS SMITH United Press Science Editor NEW YORK (AP)—By weighing cosmic dust or "star dust," if you like, collected on two Hawaiian mountain tops, a geophysicist arrived at an estimate that 11.3 million tons of this fine-grained stuff from space settles down on the earth every year.

The estimation of Prof. Hays Peterson found that twice this amount—22.6 million tons—is suspended in the earth's atmosphere at all times.

Just the same, it was almost four times larger than the largest of previous estimations, but scientific interest was as much in Peterson's methods of arriving at his figures, as it was in the figures themselves.

Found Air Clean A member of the faculty of the University of Vienna, he was at the University of Hawaii as guest professor of Geophysics.

Analysis of meteorites which reached the earth have shown that generally they're 2.5 per cent metal. Having that percentage, knowing the volume of air filtered, and able to calculate the volume of atmosphere up to a height of 60 miles, Peterson arrived at his figure of how much cosmic dust is suspended in the atmosphere.

Then, he took into account the famous eruption of Mount Krakatoa in 1883, to settle out of the atmosphere. It took the volcanic dust about two years to settle. Thus, by having his figure for suspended cosmic dust, Peterson concluded that 14.8 tons settle on the earth annually.

He assumed on these calculations that the cosmic dust in the atmosphere was entirely renewed every two years. But, as he pointed out, if a more rapid renewal is assumed, then the amount which reaches the earth annually would have to be correspondingly more.

Of the 123 million persons covered by health insurance policies, the institute reported, 70 million had such coverage for hospital expenses.

Nation's Economy Basically Vigorous

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (UP)—The nation's economy is basically vigorous and will bounce upward again if we maintain a "tough-minded confidence in the future," President Eisenhower said recently.

Loss of such confidence is the only thing that could plunge this country into a critical and sustained economic slump, the President said in a telegram to Gov. Averell Harriman of New York.

Presidential Press Secretary James Hagerly indicated meanwhile that the President's week-end travel plans probably would be announced today.

The telegram to Harriman was made public at the end of the President's first day of hunting on his current visit to the estate of former Secretary of the Treasury George Wm. Humphrey.

He held up his latest acquisition. It was shaped like an earth satellite.

"Here is your famous 'Explorer,'" he said. "This came from New York just today and was given me by a friend."

How many bottles have been broken? Don Pedro smiled. "Only three in 20 years. That's not bad, I think."

But don't rush for Madrid just because you're thirsty. Nobody ever opens these bottles, not even Don Pedro, who is strictly a wine-and-soda man.

Radar May Be Used In Other Cities To Count Autos

A four-month test by the State Road Department in pioneering with radar units to count motor vehicles on state highways has proved successful in Tallahassee that radar is being considered for use in most other city areas.

Several other states have already expressed their interest in the Road Department's experiment and Melvin A. Conner, engineer of traffic and planning, said as far as he knows Florida is the first state to use radar for the primary purpose of counting vehicle traffic flow.

Conner said the radar units had proved more effective in some respects than the familiar tube device across highways, and required almost no maintenance.

He said the four-month test in Tallahassee, conducted on heavily-traveled Tennessee Street—U. S. 90—which traverses the city east and west, proved radar more effective on an hour to hour basis than the tube devices.

Conner explained that over a 24-hour period, however, both radar and the tube devices will average about the same volume of traffic.

Power Of Suggestion Aid In Curing Warts?

By HERMAN K. BRIDGES, M.D.

TOM SAWYER and Huck Finn, doctors whose reputations are not questioned, have employed similar methods involving suggestion with quite successful results.

All of which tends to prove that the power of suggestion often can eliminate warts.

Now it is important to understand that warts are infectious lesions caused by a virus—there is no psychic element involved in their formation.

Magical Cures
Folklore is full of "magical cures" for warts. But don't laugh at them too heartily. Along about the end of the 19th century, Dr. J. Bonjour developed this method of treating warts:

The patient was told to place his hand on a piece of paper. Then an outline of his hand was drawn and the position of the warts pencilled in.

After being blindfolded, he was told to touch the warts and then told never to touch them again. Finally, he was advised that the warts would disappear in from 10 days to five weeks.

Dr. Bonjour claimed no failures in 30 years. He even began conducting treatments by mail.

Added Other Techniques
A similar series of treatments was conducted in 1927 by Dr. Bruno Bloch who added colored dye and a running motor to the technique. Reliable statistics show he had great success in removing warts.

A careful follow-up study at the Zurich Hospital showed the method was successful in 73.5 per cent of 179 cases. In addition, doctors whose reputations are not questioned, have employed similar methods involving suggestion with quite successful results.

Since emotional factors can bring about changes in the blood vessels, it is thought suggestion might produce a spasm in these vessels, lowering the blood supply to the wart. Or suggestion might have the same effect by lowering the blood pressure.

Nervous system mechanism changes, such as pallor and blushing, may result in local psychobiochemical changes which prevent virus activity.

Still another theory is that the changes are caused by release of histamine or acetylcholine under emotional stimulation.

At any rate, suggestion seems to cure many cases of warts.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
A. B.: I have a stomach ulcer that has not been cured with medical care. Do you think I should have surgery?

Answer: Most physicians are of the opinion surgery is definitely indicated in cases of ulcers of the stomach that do not respond to medical treatment.

Gracie To Quit Team In Spring

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD—Gracie Allen, the nation's favorite dumb dora, said today she will realize a life-long ambition this spring when she quits the team of Burns and Allen to become strictly a Beverly Hills housewife.

While she potters in the garden or baby sits with her two grandchildren, Gracie can reflect on a show business tradition going back to 1924 when she first walked an stage in Union Hill, N. J., to play "straight man" for a third-rate comedian named George Burns.

Here's how George recalls their first show:

"Gracie was supposed to feed me straight questions, and I was to get the laughs. But the audience—only about 30 people—laughed at her questions instead of at me.

"We were paid $5 for the performance. But from the minute Gracie opened her mouth I knew we had something big."

Playing fleabag theaters at first, the team was known as a "disappointment" by performers who stood by with packed bags in the event a regular act failed to appear.

They traveled vaudeville circuits for two years, building the act carefully, before being married. George happily admits he never would have been a success without Gracie's instinctive talent for dinn-witted humor.

They became headliners in the late 20s, going on a radio show wash stayed at the top for 20 years. Their current TV show has been topped-rated for eight years—outlasting all other situation comedy programs.

Shy Woman Of 51
A soft-spoken, almost shy woman of 51, Gracie made her debut in San Francisco at the age of four with her song-and-dance-man father, Edward Allen.

She "retired" after a few performances and attended school until she was 14. Gracie then returned to the footlights to hoof it with her three older sisters.

Hazel Boylston lives in San Francisco. Hattie Meyers resides in Los Angeles. Both are widows.

While she was learning shorthand in business school, a friend persuaded Gracie to catch Burns' act. She went backstage, met George and agreed to return to show business.

"I'd never think of trying to find a new partner," George said. "The audience would miss 'Geogie' (his nickname for Gracie) terribly if I tried to do that. It would be like chopping off my neck."

BEN HECHT, reminiscing about his old friend and collaborator, the late Charlie MacArthur, writes, "In the grin that slightly turned the edge of his lips, and in the loggy look in his eyes, there lurked always the promise of 'lively doings.' This was a pet phrase of his. He treasured a postal card sent him by Hilda, the cook for the MacArthur household, who had returned in 1938 to her home in Berlin. 'Dear Mr. MacArthur,' wrote the effervescent Teuton, 'I am happy to be home. Adolf Hitler is a fine boss and there's lots of lively doings.'"

A 9-year-old acting prodigy turned up for a TV audition. "What do you do when you're not acting?" asked the casting director. "I watch TV," answered the kid. "And when you're not watching TV?" "I listen to the radio." "And when you're not listening to the radio?" The kid answered blithely. "My ma sends me to the unemployment insurance office."

Third Graders Give Program

One of Hopper Elementary School's best original programs to date was rendered during NEGRO HISTORY WEEK, on the date of Feb. 12, 1938 at 9:00 A. M. by the third graders.

Since all the students' names will not appear in the "Who's Who of the Famous and Greats" (all of whom we are indeed proud of) all, however, can become good, desirable dependable, citizens of the community in which they live by:

- (1) Serving and worshipping God;
- (2) Doing hard, honest work;
- (3) Paying all honors, and just debts;
- (4) Being kind and courteous to everyone;
- (5) Respecting the rights of others and
- (6) Treating everyone as one would like to be treated.

With these thoughts in mind, some successful citizens of our community were interviewed by some of the third graders. Each person was asked the following three questions: (1) Why did you choose to do the work you are doing? (2) What are some differences in schools when you were a child and now? (3) What words of good advice do you have that will help us to be good citizens now, as well as when we are grown-ups?

Interviews of Honored Guest were: Rev. B. H. Hodge (successful pastor and minister) by Belinda Jane Daniels; Sidney Matthews (successful poultryman) by Gloria Jean Alexander; Miss Cleo Alexander (successful beautician) by Julius Caesar Ringling, Jr.; Wesley Wright, Jr. (successful restaurant owner) by Harrison Hampton; Nathan Burns (successful owner of dry cleaning plant) by Glenn William Alexander; and Mr. Willie Kelly (successful machinist and garage owner) by Walter Grady.

Jr. Laura F. Fulton, teacher and sponsor; L. R. Eubanks, principal.

Strict Regulations Of Health, Housing Conditions Called

TALLAHASSEE—Gov. LeRoy Collins has called for strict regulation of health and housing conditions of migrant workers in Florida.

And he indicated he will try to find a way to make the farmers and growers more responsible for the transient workers who harvest their crops.

He said positive steps must be taken immediately to prevent a recurrence of the "disgraceful" situation in south Florida farming areas where thousands of migrants were left penniless and starving in the wake of destructive freezes and rains this winter.

"There can never be any excuse for Florida to have conditions like in Immokalee and other parts of the state," Collins said.

The governor pointed out the state has been handicapped in its attempts to clean up the migrants "shacktowns" because a legislative act on slum clearance was declared unconstitutional. The act would have enabled the state to work cooperatively with the federal government in raising substandard housing and urban renewal.

But he said there are other ways in which the counties themselves can get rid of slum areas and he intends to find them out.

"I think for the future we should find some way of regulating the recruiting of people to do this kind of work migrant labor. Some assurance should be had that health standards are adequate when they come into the state."

He said it is up to county health and law enforcement agencies to make certain that health and safety standards are maintained at the migrant camps.

"I do think," said Collins, "this whole experience that we have had should enable us to find ways to prevent a recurrence even if the dire consequences of a repetition of this wretched should occur in future years."

Italy levied a tax on bachelors in 1926.

Right Of People To Know Needs Support Of Every Citizen Now

Too many government officials display an alarming desire to conduct public business in private. The American Society of Newspaper Editors and other newspaper groups recently appealed for action which might make it more difficult for federal officials to ignore the right of the people to know. The Society has urged passage of a pending bill which would assure that a law passed by Congress 169 years ago cannot be used to keep information secret today. As might be expected the change is opposed by government departments. In a sense this is understandable. The ability to decide what information should be made public is a kind of power, and officials surrender power with reluctance. No reasonable person will dispute the necessity of keeping some information secret. When our National Security is involved, most people are willing to suspend their right to know. But the security of the country is too often used as a mask to hide information to which the public is entitled. The stand taken by the newspaper editor's society deserves the support of every citizen who cherishes his heritage.

There's A Lesson From Baseball

It has sometimes been remarked that baseball opens a million doors to a young fellow. Much is made of the opportunities which baseball offers to young Americans and, in consequence, the so-called national pastime is represented as a bulwark of democracy. Actually, baseball's opportunities are much over-rated.

The simple justification of a sport is that people like it. Sports are possible under any social system and are not peculiar to democracy. Sports, including baseball, offer an opportunity for some poor boys to make money and improve themselves if they wish to. But the claims made for baseball don't jibe with the facts.

Actually, there are only 400 jobs for baseball players in the major leagues. If the young prospect is really good, he will get his chance, and if he is good enough, he'll make big money. But the opportunities in baseball are quite limited, and the chances for young players to come up in any given season are not many unless the player has exceptional ability. The average baseball life of players is now probably around seven and a half to eight and a half years. Obviously, the opportunities in baseball exist, but only for a limited number.

Some baseball people are carried away by their love of the game, and they fail to realize that baseball does not offer careers for thousands but only for a few boys every season. This is no argument against baseball, but it does reveal how statements can be made and receive acceptance without checking and reference to the facts. There is a lesson in this, a lesson that is self-evident.

Local County Schools Can Lead!

Here's something that will give local educators something to work on and possibly come up with something new and even bigger.

When pupils at Fairlawn public school in Akron, Ohio, are asked, "Parlez-vous Francaise?" even the first graders can sing out in reply, "Oui!" To say that the pupils all speak French may be stretching a point, but all of them in grades one through six have been studying the language since last September. And they love it.

French is being taught under the sponsorship of the Parent-Teachers Association. A qualified teacher is paid for by parent contributions. The success of the project thus far suggests the means by which many communities could enrich the curriculum in their schools.

Not many years ago, the idea of teaching a foreign language in grade school might have been widely regarded as rather silly. This attitude is changing. Americans are coming to realize the value of an extra language, not only as a means of communication with people of other nations in a conflicting world, but as part of a full educational experience. This has long been understood in Europe, where most children study one or two languages other than their native tongue.

Here in this country, such a curriculum is regarded as essential by people of wealth who employ tutors for their young children and start their education at an age much younger than six.

There is no reason why the duplication of the program would not be valuable in public schools.

There is good reason to believe that when changes in American education begin to emerge from the present ferment of discussion, language study will be much more common in elementary and secondary schools than it is today. There is no need for a community to wait, however. The Akron Schools to lead the way.

Now is the time for Seminole County Schools to lead the way.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

"The idols of the heathen are silver and gold, the work of man's hands."

Too Late To Classify

By Russell Kay
While Florida has taken a beating from Old Man Weather this winter she is a long way from licked.

We have been selling sunshine for a long time and it has proven a profitable business. We still have plenty of sunshine in stock even if it has been tempered with chill for the last few weeks.

In an effort to stimulate stepped up tourist travel to Florida this spring the Florida Development Commission plans to carry ads in 40 top population newspapers east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio River.

These ads measuring 2-columns by 4-inches will point out that the maximum temperature in Miami Beach is 67 and actual daily temperature will be wired for inclusion in these ads for a three week period. Reading will be taken at 4 in the afternoon instead of at 5 or 7 A. M. as has been the practice.

Dick Pope of Beautiful Cypress Gardens feels that the time has come for Floridians to stand up and fight back against the adverse publicity that has flooded the nation with stories and pictures of snow in Tallahassee and icy winds in Cross City.

As chairman of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce Tourist and Advertising Committee he has organized a statewide campaign in support of the Development Commission effort.

Dick explains that this campaign is a sort of Florida "SOS" which interprets two ways: "Save Our Selves" and "Spread Our Sunshine". Enthusiastically supporting the move are such business and civic leaders as Bob Silver, president of the Florida Junior Chamber of Commerce, Jack Shoemaker of the State Department of Agriculture, Ray Wase of General Electric, Roland Hagedorn of All-State Insurance, Stuart Johnson of the Greater Orlando Chamber of Commerce, Hank Meyer, publicist of Miami Beach and many others.

This drive to "Sell Our Sunshine" and "Sell Our Springtime" will take many forms. Business, industrial and civic groups will urge members and friends to write letters, thousands of them urging folks to come to Florida this Spring. Ministers will be asked to preach on "Faith in Florida" and urge that we count our blessings and tell others about them.

If everybody starts to vigorously "Spread Our Sunshine" instead of talking gloom it will go a long, long way toward overcoming the damage this bad weather has caused. As Dick puts it, instead of quoting the weather bulletin "Partly Cloudy" why not say "Mostly Sunshine". This would be nearer the truth for it is a matter of record that the St. Petersburg Independent gives its paper away

Clearer Understanding Of Views Possible Through Questionnaire

"Some of the questions are the same as in previous years. The reason is these issues are still before the Congress. We want to know if changing world and domestic conditions have altered your thinking. Naturally I will use my best judgement in voting on these issues, but it is helpful to have the expression of the views of the people I represent. Obviously I can't agree with all of you on any issue because I am sure that your replies will not be unanimous on any one subject. I will appreciate it if you will fill out the questionnaire and mail it to me, Congressman Syd Herlong Jr., 1506 House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

Foreign News Commentary

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Last week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

President Eisenhower asked Russia's leaders last week to start negotiating for a "summit" conference instead of just talking about one.

He also suggested that Russian charges of American war-mongering were due either to ignorance or deliberate misrepresentation.

Eisenhower set forth his views in a letter to Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin. It was the latest in a series of exchanges which Bulgarian started last December in the Kremlin's campaign for a "summit" conference on means of reducing world tensions.

In suggesting that Soviet leaders choke off their bombardment of propaganda statements, the President referred both to Bulganin's letters and speeches by Communist Party Leader Nikita S. Khrushchev.

France and Tunisia accepted an offer by the United States to help them settle their dispute over the bombing of a Tunisian border village by French Air Force planes based in Algeria.

The immediate result was to avoid a United Nations debate which would have made the situation worse and would have benefited only Communist propagandists.

A local French commandant had ordered the village bombing after months during which machine guns set up on the roof of the Tunisian Administration Building had fired on planes of the French Air Force in Algeria. French troops have long been angry over the help which Tunisia has given to the Algerian rebels. In an obvious propaganda move, Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai announced that Chinese troops would be withdrawn from North Korea this year and suggested that the United States pull its troops out of South Korea.

The United States promptly announced that its troops would remain in Korea until the Reds agreed to free elections, supervised by the United Nations, to unite North and South Korea.

Withdrawal of American troops would be of obvious advantage to the Communists. Chinese troops would remain on the Manchurian frontier, in position to invade Korea again at any time. As the United States no longer maintains combat troops in Japan, it would have to move forces from Okinawa, the island base between Japan and Formosa to meet any new Communist attack on South Korea.

Soviet Russia followed up the Chinese Red move by suggesting that nuclear weapons be barred from North and South Korea and that an international conference be called to get the two parts of the country together.

The government of the Sudan, Egypt's neighbor on the South, accused Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser of trying to grab two small areas on their frontier.

Conning The News

By VIRGINIA CONN, Society Editor

Dianne and John Sangster spent the weekend in Havana, visiting friends. John's parents from Colorado have been vacationing here and assumed the responsibility of the baby while they were gone.

Sally Hutchison has been in Hobe Sound again, visiting her mother. She left just as the weather here turned pleasant again.

Wally and Jane Phillips gave a small dinner party Saturday. Their guests enjoyed a delicious dinner of lasagne and an evening of charades.

Cle Heard gave a birthday party, Sunday night for Andy Carraway, who celebrated his twenty-fifth on Saturday, along with George Washington. Andy and Helen had just returned from a week in New Orleans.

The attendance was small but enthusiastic Friday night when the Ambassador of Jazz played for the George Washington Ball at the B. O. Q. My reporter says that her slice of roast beef could hardly fit on the plate, and that those who did not come really missed something.

VAH-11 had a party the same night but do not have the details on it yet.

Hazel and Mike Rowell have as their guest, Mike's father, I. M. Rowell of Marlboro, N. Y. Mr. Rowell is becoming well known around Sanford. Seems to be one of his favorite spots.

Dodie King was surprised Friday night when her guests entered bearing a birthday cake and numerous beautiful presents. Treating her were Betty and John McCracken and Anita and Bob Madden. Johnny did not neglect her this year. Dodie is now happily cleaning the house with a brand new vacuum cleaner.

Marlene and Larry Donovan will be leaving Sanford Friday. They have rented a place in Jacksonville. We never got to know Larry very well, since he was always gone, but Marlene will be much missed in town. She has been president of the Newcomer's Club for the past six months, and has done much hooping in both years of the High Fever Follies.

The gal is also an excellent gardener, and while the neighbors husbands were not always admiring her work, they had to admit that it made a mighty pretty background for Marlene.

Also on the leaving list are Tom and Dorothy Deans. Tom is going to be C. O. of Fason in Puerto Rico, a mighty fine place to go. The Deans will leave Sanford in another week, and we will be most sorry. Many, many of us have felt the touch of Tom Deans—many of those never knew it. He has been largely responsible for the wonderful, public relations between the Navy and the civilians of Sanford. Tom has also been ready whenever needed for ticklish jobs and errands of mercy. He is one of those men you can't help but like—and I speak from experience. When I first met the boy I was already sold on Sanford. Being a sensitive soul, Tom realized this and was able to get me good and

Juliette Low International Friendship Program Presented

The auditorium was full Sunday afternoon when parents, friends, brothers and sisters of Girl Scouts of the Seminole Association watched them present the Juliette Low International Friendship Program.

Mrs. Randall Chase, neighborhood chairman, welcomed the large audience, and outlined the growth of the scouting program in Seminole County during the past year.

She stated that the Girl Scout cookie sale had been extended one week, because of the cold weather. She expressed hope that all friends and parents of Girl Scouts would help the girls sell every box of cookies. Eighteen cents of each box goes to the improvement of Camp Ticochee, where the Girl Scouts camp each year.

Two cents from each box goes to the troop treasuries for individual projects.

Mrs. Chase particularly expressed thanks to the Navy for bringing so many experienced and eager leaders into the area.

The invocation was given by the Rev. David S. Carnell, of the Christian Missionary and Alliance Church.

Troop 10 presented the opening flag ceremony, followed by the singing of "America" and "Our Chant," led by Mrs. L. M. Millsaps.

Guest speaker was Mrs. E. Reed White, president of the Citrus Council of Girl Scouts. Mrs. White spoke of Juliette Low and the establishment of scouting. She received the Friendship Fund from representatives of each troop.

The program of skits and songs was then presented by the troops of Girl Scouts and Brownies. Bright costumes and cheery voices filled the auditorium with laughter and applause. It was evident that both leaders and mothers had put much effort into training and dressing their girls for the event.

Special thanks went to Mrs. Richard Bauer, chairman, for arrangements. The directing of Mrs. Charles McBratton made the whole afternoon enjoyable, as one act smoothly followed the other with no delays.

Guests were greeted at the door by members of the service team. City and County officials and Navy leaders were special guests of the Seminole Association.

Rehearsal Party Given Friday

A rehearsal party was given Friday night for the former Miss Sandra Monforton and Ensign Fred Wilson. The couple was married Saturday night in the First Baptist Church.

Hostesses for the party were Mrs. Doug Stenstrom and Mrs. William Stemper. The Stenstrom home was decorated with arrangements of pink azaleas and white caryanthemums in the entrance hall and on the coffee table.

The mantel held pale pink carnations and white caryanthemums with white candles. The buffet table was overlaid with pale pink damask and centered with an arrangement of pale pink carnations and white caryanthemums in a silver conical.

Mrs. George Wells and Miss Marty Stemper poured tea and coffee during the evening. Assisting in serving were Mrs. John Salisbury, Mrs. Blanche Stringer, Miss Jan Wilkie, and little Miss Patricia Stenstrom.

About sixty people attended, including the wedding party, close friends and relatives. The honored couple presented their attendants with gifts. The hostesses gave the bride and groom a set of Franciscan china.

"DIXIE" CHECKED TWEED is used for a gray and off-white mixture in this dress-and-jacket costume from Hattie Carnegie's collection. The back-pannelled jacket covers a sleeveless, unfitted dress with banded, square neckline.

Ladies Aid Has Two New Members

Two new members joined the Ladies Aid of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer when a meeting was held recently at the church.

Today's Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK—The pro golf brigade is having cash and carry troubles today.

The carry difficulty is that there has been a rash of extra clubs in the fairway luggage, players unconsciously exceeding the 14-club limit. This, in turn, causes a deficit in the cash they could have been carrying.

The Tucson Open provided a startling example of the absent-mindedness of those who line their wallets with a wedge.

His players suffered penalties in the Tucson event, four of them because of too many clubs. The penalty is two strokes per hole for each extra club being carried. It can get expensive.

Louis 67

Milton Marusek of Webster Groves, Mo., carried a surplus wedge in his bag for two holes before he discovered the extra. It cost him four shots, and you just don't give away that kind of scoring mileage on the pro circuit and wind up with a big slice of pie.

In the semi round, Bill Ogden of Chicago was packing an extra putter. He didn't discover the blunder until he had played 10 holes. The price was 20 strokes—transforming a five into a horrible 27.

Tony Holquin of Midlothian, Ill., was penalized two shots for having an extra club in his satchel. Tony didn't know how it got there and he made certain it wouldn't be there any more. He broke it over his knee. But the two-stroke penalty meant he "lled to qualify for the final 36 holes.

You think that's bad? Well, Art Barry of Detroit didn't discover he had 15 clubs in his bag until he had finished his round. His 52 was enough to make any pro feel bad. But when they got done adding 36 shots penalty—and he had a nice fat 118—Berry was completely crushed.

A Tough Par

Penalties were a dime a dozen at Tucson. Pete Mazur of Buffalo started off with an eagle by holing a wedge shot, but gave them back on the 10th by playing the wrong ball. And Bill Hone, the former Yale placekicker, knocked a shot into a tree and suffered a two-stroke penalty when the ball rebounded and struck his bag.

Penalties are the bane of a golf-

Tourneys, Duo Matches Set For Uoff Golfers

Uoff Swimmers At FSU Tonight

TALLAHASSEE (Special)—Florida State's swimmers host a powerful University of Miami squad and its Olympic star Jack Nelson here tonight.

The FSU swimmers, fresh from their Saturday night bout with the University of Florida's Gators, will have their work cut out for them and Coach Blm Stults is aware of it.

"We haven't lost to Miami since 1962," Stults said, "but they're loaded this year and it'll be one of our toughest meets."

Miami clipped the Seminoles, 53-52, in 1952 but the Hurricanes haven't been able to repeat since. FSU defeated Miami twice last year—53-53, and a 10-0 defeat.

Nelson, a former Olympic star, is Miami's top butterfly artist while sophomore William Lohde has already swam the backstroke faster than any other Hurricane swimmer.

Going into the Florida meet Saturday, the Seminoles had been beaten only by Southwest Conference Champion Southern Methodist. They owned triumphs over Georgia, Rice, Georgia Tech, Birmingham Southern, Kentucky, Louisville and Oberlin College of Ohio.

The Seminoles are the defending Florida and Georgia AAU champions and won nine of 12 meets last year.

er's career, and crop up with unexpected frequency.

Jackie Pung got more attention losing the U. S. Women's Open last summer than she would have in winning it. She signed a faulty score card and was disqualified. Betty Rawls, who suffered a crippling penalty the year before, thus got even a year later by backing in.

But Babe Licharus of Hillsdale, N. J., found a new way to make a par in the Phoenix Open. He drove the green on the 290-yard fifth hole and cannon K for an eagle two—but the eagle hit "froot" on the stick and the ball hit the flagstick and dropped in.

The two-stroke penalty left Babe with a par four.

"It is," observed Babe, "a tough way to make para."

Change Made In Race Plans

SEBRING—Pat O'Connor, ace speedway car driver who had his first taste of big time sports car racing last year, has revealed a last minute change in plans for the big Sebring sports car classic to be held Saturday, March 22.

O'Connor, who qualified for the coveted pole position in last year's Indianapolis Speedway 500-mile race, had planned to compete again in the Sebring 12-hour sports car grand prix as co-driver with Indianapolis sports car dealer Jack Enley, driving a D-type Jaguar.

O'Connor had made his sports car debut at Sebring in 1957 with Enley.

The late switch for the upcoming race puts O'Connor in a Lister Jaguar with sports car veteran Ed Crawford and Russ Boss, a Rhode Island industrialist-sportsman.

The Lister Jaguar employs a lighter chassis than the D-type, with virtually the same engine, thus providing a more favorable power to weight ratio.

The two Lister Jags are being entered by Alfred Momo, chief of the New York service department for the American Jaguar importers.

In the second car will be Archie Scott Brown of England and American Walt Hansgen, 1957 Sports Car Club of America national champion.

At the moment, Enley has not named his new co-driver. His D-Jaguar is a private entry of his own.

Meanwhile, Dr. Harry Fry, president of the Miami Sports Car Club, is rushing repairs to his Abarth-Flat, damaged at New Smyrna Beach.

Fry is presently listed as a reserve entry, but race secretary Reginald Smith reports that a change in the Abarth-Flat lineup may move Dr. Fry into the confirmed official starting line-up.

Prize money for the 12-hour international grand prix, which starts at 10 a. m. March 22, totals $13,000, plus the coveted Amoco trophy which goes to the overall winner of the sports car class.

WAYNE D. OVERHOLSER'S DESPERATE MAN

CHAPTER 17

AFTER SUPPER I helped Julie Hageman with the dishes, when the two of us went out to sit on the front porch and look the cool night breeze. Charlie and the other hand were leaning out the back door, getting ready to leave for good in the morning because a man with scarcely thirty years of age didn't need paid hands.

All the while we sat there Julie kept on looking at me, and I began to wish she'd stop. "Smoke, what are you thinking about?"

Cord would have told her, but I wouldn't be bold like that. I wouldn't come up with a half-truth. "I guess I think about you most of the time, Julie."

"That's hardly fair to you, Smoke. I don't think of you all the time."

"I know that," I said. "I guess I ain't much, compared to Cord."

"She turned sideways in her rocker, Smoke, but I didn't want to let on that I knew. I never wanted a woman that was capable of hurting you."

"What was that?" I didn't know what she was talking about. "When you love me, you give me the power to hurt you. I never wanted that power, but you forced it on me."

"I'll take the chance," I told her. "It's not all right!" Her sharpness came as a surprise, then she made her voice soft again. "I wish I could say that I love you, Smoke, but I don't think you'd want me to say it if I wasn't sure."

"I guess it's Cord you love," I said. "It sort of figures."

"Love him? I don't think so. Yet there's an excitement about him that I've never found in another man. He's like a wild horse, Smoke. Very handsome and very dangerous and there's always that challenge there, asking you to try and tame him. You may know that others have tried and failed, but pride, being what it is, convinces you that you might be the one to succeed. She looked at me, then reached out for my hand. "Smoke, I don't love him. I'm just—fascinated by him."

"I guess that settles that," I said. "I sure ain't very fascinating."

"You aren't your own man either," she said bluntly. "If you want to know the truth, no woman could take you seriously because if you said something today, there's no guarantee that tomorrow Cord wouldn't send you around to take it back."

"That sure pains me a prime jackass," I said. If I sounded bitter it was because I was. No man likes to be reminded that he's second best all the time, not even to his own brother.

"When I got up and stepped along with the bread and butter, I've said too much."

"It's been plenty."

"Her hand came out and held me. "Smoke, I'm sorry. But you wanted the truth, didn't you?"

"The truth or a lie? What was the difference? The impulse hit me and I reached for her, not easy like I'd always figured on doing, but not in the way when she is determined to take what he wants and all her hollering he's damned. She came to her feet and against me hard enough to make me wince. Then I had her locked tight in my arms and was kissing her, not gently, but with enough stored-up passion to let her know she was wanted the hard way.

"When I turned her loose, she stood there looking a little bewildered. I had the wind up then and really spotted off. "Is that what you want? A lot of bruises that you can admire in front of your mirror after a buggy ride? Hell, you don't have to go to Cord if that's what you're after. I grabbed my hat and stepped off the porch, pausing in the yard. "And you want to know something else? You got nothing to brag about. I've seen recreation squaws that kiss a lot better."

This last was a bald-faced lie if I ever told one, but I was mad, angry with being controlled and wishing I had a double-jointed leg so I could out-jerk a man. A man turns into a blamed fool after he's made a mistake in front of a woman. "I did anyway."

Julie called after me but I didn't stop. I just fetched my horse and got on him, striking out for the river. Every step he took was counted and regretted because I really wanted to go back and tell her how sorry I was. But I wasn't a big enough man to do that and this was something she could rightly hold against me.

The next morning I got up before Ma or Edna, fixed a hearty breakfast and riding toward Wade Everett's place before the grayness of dawn started to thin out the darker shades of night. Cord and Luther were still absent. I checked the barn and their horses were gone. This put me in a sour frame of mind for the work fell on my shoulders, too much work. There was some dust under the door even get the herd to town alone; a man can't hide drag and flannels at the same time.

Then I recalled the small favor I'd done Wade Everett and headed directly for his place. He was up; there was lamp lighting through the open doorway. He heard me approaching and stuck his head out the door. I made sure that I dismounted in the high and that he saw me. It was, he beckoned me inside.

They were eating breakfast. The little one was looking on a piece of fat and he looked as though he hadn't craved for days.

"I wish I had some coffee to offer," Wade Everett said. "I fixed it up, but he's glad to oblige. We heard the rattle of a wagon coming across the flats, then Everett and I looked out just as Julie Hageman was dismounting in the yard. She saw me and said, "Help me unload this, Smoke."

"What's this?" Everett asked, but Julie didn't bother answering. She hefted thirty pounds of Arbutle's coffee and carried it into the house. Seems like she brought everything the cook shack held: potatoes, rice, kidney beans, Mexican sausage, sugar, flour, a side of bacon and some salt pork. Mrs. Everett was happy, so she cried.

Julie explained: "We paid off the mortgage on the yard. I didn't want it to go to waste."

"Sure was a thin lie, that. Everett recognized it, but it appeared his, and that was important. With the food stored, Julie got back on the wagon. I wanted to talk to her, explain if I could, how the devil could get into a man's head and good him into all sorts of fool things, but the explanation stuck in my throat.

"Are you driving to the railroad this morning, Smoke?"

"Yes, Everett's help," I said. "Why don't you meet us at the river? Charlie and Russ will help you."

"Thanks," I said. She lifted the reins and moved out. "Julie, about last night."

"Some other time, Smoke."

I stood there as she wheeled out of Everett's yard; she was right. I was right and I really didn't blame her. . . .

"You listen to Cord," Smoke is warned. Continue "Justice, My Brother" here tomorrow.

Membership Class For Youths Slated In March

A Pastor's class in church membership for intermediate and Junior boys and girls will be conducted at the First Christian Church beginning Saturday, 3:30 p. m., and continuing each Saturday afternoon during the month of March, Pastor Perry L. Stone announced today.

A booklet entitled "We Learn About the Church" will be used along with the Bible. Each session will last an hour. The purpose of the course "The purpose of the course" is to help those who make the decision to become followers of Christ to do so with an intelligent understanding of the vital steps they are taking.

Three Greyhounds Will Be Popular In Featured 9th

Three greyhounds that are certain to be popular with quailine players meet tonight in the featured ninth race at the Sanford Orlando Kennel Club. They are N. E. Heaton's Steppin Jim, Paul Sutherland's I've Don't and Mrs. M. V. Kirkland Jr.'s Pay Nite.

Though their win scores are low, each one seems to be in the second. To date Steppin Jim's score is three firsts and eight seconds. I've Don't and Pay Nite have each accounted for two firsts and six seconds.

Two youngsters in this main event seem destined to go places. The Lawrie Kennel's Marvis Mack and R. E. Bennett's Grant's Pass only won their maiden races earlier this season and have since moved up to feature competition. Grant's Pass is a four-time winner while Marvis has accounted for five firsts.

The latest financial report through last Friday night shows the kennel of W. F. Swafford leading in the amount of purse money collected for the season. Jack Herold is in second place and the Huron Kennel in third place.

Unemployment Rise In U. S. May Be Coming To Halt

WASHINGTON — A Labor Department spokesman said today the rise in U. S. unemployment may be coming to a halt—although it's too early to tell for sure.

Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell said early he believes the administration will recommend a tax cut if joblessness continues to climb next month. He said most cabinet members feel the same way.

However, Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson said only that his department has the question of a tax cut under constant study and review. He said he had not yet prepared any "package" proposal for a tax reduction.

A top Labor Department employment expert reported that benefits have been going down, although not as rapidly as usual this season as in recent years. He said claims for jobless benefits apparently "are not going any deeper" and the worst that can be expected now is that claims will level off at a "pretty high" level.

45 Prisoners Lodged In Jail

There are 45 prisoners lodged in the Seminole County Jail as of midnight last night, Seminole County Sheriff J. L. Hobby reported this morning.

Of the total 14 are white male, one white male incompetent, 11 colored male, one colored male incompetent, six colored female, and two colored male juveniles.

Sheriff Hobby said that five prisoners were brought in during the 24 hour period ending at midnight last night and one prisoner was released.

The institute reported that an estimated $4,200,000 was paid in health and hospital benefits during the 12-month period, compared to $3,400,000 in 1957.

An Itch Might Indicate Serious Medical Problem

By HERMAN S. BENDER, M.D.

YOU PROBABLY CAN'T imagine that anything so trivial as an itch could be a serious medical matter. The truth is, however, that more persons complain of itching than any other skin disease.

Spontaneous itching is actually a modified form of pain. It travels along the same nerves used by pain sensations.

Assessing Quality
The itch is about half-way between the pleasurable tickle and pure pain. The most annoying quality of an itch, in fact, is that it is compounded of pure pain and pain-dependent pleasure—the latter in equal quantities.

Extreme itching, or pruritus as it is known in medical terminology, can be agonizing torture. It can produce pain which often is greater than that resulting from much more dramatic afflictions.

Variety of Causes
Riching can be produced by a vast variety of causes. Temperature changes might cause an itch, or woolsen clothing, so common in this weather, might be the villain.

Sometimes the cause is more serious—nephritis, gout, hepatitis, diabetes or other organic conditions. There are psychological causes, too.

For example, I'd bet that you will have to scratch once or twice as you read this article. I got itchy just writing about it.

Most Important
Removal of the cause, whether organic or psychological, is the most important object of treatment. But immediate relief from that often maddening itching sensation is also desired.

Temporary Relief
Scratching will give temporary relief, but the remedy often causes more damage than the affliction.

If you scratch or rub an itching area too vigorously you may develop flures, wheals, hives, eczema, blotches or even lichenoidosis. In lichenoidosis, the skin becomes thick and leathery, the normal markings of the skin are exaggerated and a noticeable crimson pattern develops.

Worse Than An Itch
Believe me, this is much worse than any itch, no matter how tormenting the itch may seem.

Your body is covered by approximately 10 square feet of skin which varies in thickness from one-eighth to one-thirty-second of an inch. An itch may occur anywhere, anytime.

It is not, as you can see, as funny as many persons think.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
D. T.: My sister is suffering from Lupus erythematosus. Can you tell me something about this disease?

Answer: Lupus erythematosus is characterized by pinkish or reddish-colored patches of various sizes. When these patches heal, they leave thin, white scars. The eruption usually appears on the cheeks and bridge of the nose and does not itch or cause other symptoms.

The cause is not definitely known.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

AT HER NEIGHBORHOOD butcher shop, a lady returned to pay 90 cents a pound for hamburger steak. "There's a shop on the next block offering the same meat for 70 cents," she declared. "So buy it from them," said the butcher. "They're sold out," she admitted.

"Humph!" snorted the butcher. "When we're all out of hamburger, we sell it for 50 cents a pound!"

The town's leading banker was guest of honor at a fine banquet for his eightieth birthday, and five speakers said some wonderful things about him. Finally it was his turn.

"Contentment," he said with a broad smile. "I must admit I'd rather hear the lady than the optaphy."

Accompanying her mother to a fashionable shoe shop, a little girl asked innocently, "When will I be old enough to wear shoes that are too small for me?"

'Apparitions Of Lourdes' To Be Observed

By ROBERT MUEHL
United Press Staff Correspondent

LOURDES, France (UP) — Lourdes was a little garrison town scattered at the foot of a great castle in a "lost corner of the Pyrenees" 100 years ago. It must have seemed so unlikely when the story of Bernadette.

For there it happened, a century ago next week, in the rock grotto of the hill called Massabielle, at the end of Monsieur de la Fite's big field where the poor sometimes trudged in search of firewood on the banks of the River Gave.

This year Catholics the world over celebrate the centenary of what is known in ecclesiastical history as "The Apparitions of Lourdes."

More than six million of them will come as pilgrims to the grotto where the little peasant girl said she saw and spoke to the Virgin Mary.

Became a Saint
Lourdes is preparing to receive them. It is still a small town of about 15,000 in the valley among the towering hills, although several times more populous than it was in the time of Bernadette.

For many months Canon Marthy, who is the church's secretary-general of pilgrimages, has been preparing for this centenary year.

Some think he is being cautious in his estimate of three times the yearly average of two million for the anniversary. Already there are 650 mass pilgrimages scheduled—80 from the United States—against only 274 for all of last year.

Pope May Attend
Thirty cardinals and hundreds of archbishops and bishops will attend the various functions ending with the festival of the Immaculate Conception on Dec. 8.

There is some hope that Pope Pius may come here during the year—as a pilgrim rather than Pontiff since his official presence would raise his appearance to the formality of a state visit.

The hill of Massabielle has been transformed since 14-year-old Bernadette said she heard the sound of a storm, although there was no storm, and saw emerging from the grotto a golden cloud followed by a beautiful lady who later commanded: "Go tell the priests that I wish them to build here a chapel..."

Above the grotto since 1863 has stood the great church of Notre Dame de Lourdes, its basilica holds only 2,000 people and for the celebrations and underground basilica, named for St. Pius X, big enough for 20,000, is being rushed to completion.

Many cures and 34 "miracles" have been claimed either from drinking Lourdes water or from prayer at the grotto. The church makes no special point of these. Nowadays it prefers the emphasis to be on faith. Such faith, it says, as the simple peasant girl whose experience in the grotto created one of the great shrines of Christendom.

Uoff Planning New Basic Plant Science Unit

GAINESVILLE — Dr. A. T. Wallace has been named to head the new basic plant science unit being planned by the University of Florida Agricultural Experiment Station, according to Director J. R. Beckenbach. He was today promoted to associate in charge and is heading up the planning activities for the new unit.

The new unit head came to Florida in 1950 as assistant agronomist at the Main Station, and was promoted to associate agronomist in 1956. In his new post he will also have charge of the cobalt 60 irradiator recently announced by the Experiment Station.

A native of Georgia, Dr. Wallace has an enviable record of achievement in agronomic research since graduating from the University of Georgia in 1948. He was awarded the doctor of philosophy degree in 1950 by North Carolina State College.

Dr. Beckenbach says the plant sciences research center, when complete, will put Florida another notch ahead in scientific agricultural research. It will be constructed on the Main Station grounds in Gainesville, but its facilities will be available to workers at all branch stations and field laboratories throughout the state.

To cost an estimated $370,000, the center will consist of five buildings—four for laboratories and one to house the growth chambers in which climatic and environmental conditions will be under complete control. The scientists will make weather to order.

The building housing the climate control equipment will be patterned after the so-called phytotron designed by a California Institute of Technology worker. Another similar unit is in operation at everything used in the operation of the project will be sterilized; the soil, seeds and plants; even the workers. Persons working in the project and visitors will be required to go through a sort of "operation-room" screening upon entering the buildings.

In discussing the establishment of the project, Dr. Beckenbach said its primary purpose is to provide space, equipment and specialized facilities for fundamental research in the plant sciences, including plant pests.

Some of the questions which Dr. Beckenbach hopes can be answered by scientists using the new life cycle of a fungus or insect parasite is it most vulnerable to control and attack? Can control of nutritional balance minimize attacks by disease and insects? Are there controllable microclimatic or nutritional conditions under which the disastrous effects of frost can be minimized?

Answers to these and many other questions will have a profound effect upon Florida's agricultural economy.

FAIL TO CLEAR SNOW
NEW YORK (UP) — Last week's storm brought 147 court summons to New Yorkers who failed to clear their sidewalks within the required four hours after the snow stopped falling. Sanitation Commissioner Paul R. Scriver has announced.

The effect of varying degrees of heat and cold on the composition of plants, grains and fruits will be easily determined. After subjecting a given crop to killing temperatures of heat or cold, the scientist will be able to analyze it for changes in content, if any.

Four laboratories included in the project will be equipped for a wide variety of research. These will include radiolabels and X-rays, as well as facilities for studies in pesticide residues.

Other questions will have a profound effect upon Florida's agricultural economy.

Republican Party Looking For Man To Answer Truman's Address

WASHINGTON (UP)—Republican anguish under the hurt of Harry S. Truman's campaign oratory is making by administrative anxiety to make an adequate answer to the former president's Washington Birthday address. The formal Republican reply is tentatively scheduled for March 4.

It would be a wonderful opportunity for somebody. As Bert Williams, the old black face comedian, used to sing, some Republicans are saying: Wonderful opportunity for somebody; somebody else, not me.

As of 72 hours after HST raked the administration in a give'em hell sendoff to the 1956 Democratic congressional campaign, Republican strategists had not picked their man to answer the former President. The search has been on for weeks because it long had been known what Truman intended to do last Saturday night. Come Out Swinging. If such an attack had been made on Franklin D. Roosevelt during his presidency, FDR most likely would have come out of his corner swinging and the attacker might soon have wished he never had been born. Failing that, President Roosevelt had a stable of hatchmen and the incomparable political poison pen of the late Charley Michelson. FDR not only had them, he used them to the utmost, now the man down. FDR would say to Charley Mike or to the late Harold L. Ickes and the mowing proceeded in the roughest kind of style. The Ick, as Honest Harold familiarly was known to FDR, was known around town, also, as Donald Duck in recognition of the sustained staccato of his quackery. Charley Mike was a sure shot with his trusty typewriter, a political gun slinger unmatched before or since. Old Charley was publicity director of the Democratic National Committee, an asset to the party near the weight of James A. Farley and of FDR, himself. Deadly in debate as were Michelson and Ickes, it was FDR on his own who usually took on the tough ones and when Mr. Big moved 'em down they were likely to go down for good. That's what Republican strategists would like just now to happen to Harry S. Truman.

So it might be if President Eisenhower would do the job himself, bringing to the task, as did FDR, the great prestige of the White House. Some Republicans distaste of political conflict. The vice president is a rough man in political debate, as Truman and other wounded Democrats well know. But the White House on occasion has required Nixon to soften his campaign speeches. Given full freedom to answer Truman's kind, to slug him with bare knuckles, Nixon might welcome the opportunity to answer HST. It would be quite a show.

Ike Sees Business Upturn By Mid-Year

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today it will take some time to get the business recession, but he advised the nation to abide in his confidence that there will be an upturn by mid-year.

The President said the development of an upturn naturally would be a slow, gradual process. He remained confident that basic improvement in business and employment conditions would be evident by the middle of the year.

In a news conference the President made these other major points:

He strongly defended Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson and said he had no intention of asking Benson to resign. He said it is his business alone—not congressmen's—who is in his cabinet.

He denied a story published in Time Magazine today that the cumulative effect of his illnesses since 1953 had forced him to reduce his workload by as much as 25 per cent. The President chuckled and said he had never heard of such a thing.

No Judgment Now
He declined to express an opinion on whether Richard A. Mack of the Federal Communications Commission should resign. The President said that as long as the attorney general was in the process of investigating the controversy involving Mack, he himself had no judgment to pass at the present time.

He said he still believed in the basic merits of the natural gas bill he recommended last year, but he hoped there would be no repetition of the recent fund-raising incident involving J. H. Porter, Republican national committeeman from Texas. The proposed bill would ease federal regulation of natural gas prices.

In discussing the sagging economy and possible methods of pepping it up, the President said a reduction in taxes was still a possibility in event of a deepening of the economic decline, but he said he did not want to consider a tax cut unless it proved absolutely necessary to bring about an upturn.

He said it is desirable to get as much money as possible into the federal purse because of the increased federal spending expected this year.

Cdr. Tully Guest Speaker At Coffee Club Tomorrow

The business men and women who will attend the Coffee Club of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock at Mrs. Appleby's Valdez Restaurant will have an opportunity to hear CDR. J. M. Tully, Jr., commanding officer of VAH-5, tell of the winning of the coveted Conover Trophy by his squadron in the recent three day derby. The trophy is awarded each three months to the top derby squadron and has been won three out of four times by VAH-5.

Navy Plane Towed To Sanford After Emergency Landing

LCDR. Carl Stiles, attached to All Weather Fighter Squadron FOUR, normally based in Atlantic City, New Jersey, made an emergency landing in an abandoned airport five miles south of Indian River City, Florida last Thursday at 9:30 A. M. Stiles enroute from the aircraft carrier Valley Forge to his home base, experienced engine difficulty shortly after sighting Indian River City. Realizing that a forced landing was imminent, he glided the aircraft into the abandoned airport without injury to himself or passengers, or damage to his aircraft. LCDR Stiles was piloting a small transport version of the Navy's famed Douglas Attack Bomber, the "Sky Raider". Responding immediately to a call for salvage operations, the Naval Air Station, Sanford dispatched a towbar crew to the abandoned airport where the aircraft was taken in tow and towed through three counties and twelve cities for a distance of 70 miles. Ten hours later the aircraft was safely aboard the Naval Air Station.

County Has 45 Pct. Population Increase

Seminole County's Population has increased by about 45 per cent since 1930, according to a recent estimate by the University of Miami's Bureau of Business and Economic Research. This is slightly less than the 48 per cent gain for the state as a whole. Seminole County (Sanford area) now contains a population of about 38,000 or some 121 persons per square mile. Of the 67 counties in the state, Seminole ranks 6th in land area but 23rd in population, and 8th in population density. It is also 21st in value of assessed property, 22nd in school enrollment, 27th in sales tax collections and 10th in number of tourist accommodations.

Since 1950, the entire East Central region of Florida, of which Seminole County is a part (together with Brevard, Highlands, Indian River, Lake, Okeechobee, Orange, Osceola, Polk and St. Lucie), has grown faster than the state as a whole and now contains some 15.1 per cent of Florida's total population as against 13.9 per cent in 1950. East Central Florida, with about 17.3 per cent of the state's land area, accounts for 27.8 per cent of its farm acreage, 13.8 per cent of its school enrollment, 13.6 per cent of its assessed property valuation, 13.5 per cent of its employment, 11.7 per cent of its sales tax collections and 14 per cent of its tourist accommodations.

All these figures, and many more, come from the new Handbook of Florida Counties, 1958, just published by the University of Miami's Bureau of Business and Economic Research (now available from the University in Miami at $1 per copy). This publication contains a full page of figures for each of the 67 counties in the state, together with maps and tabulations for the state's six major geographical regions.

Serious Split Develops In East German Leadership

A serious split has developed in the leadership of the East German Communist Party.

Three first-ranking men have been ousted from their posts in the last few weeks. Others are under attack.

It is reported persistently, despite denials, that Walter Ulbricht, the party leader, and Premier Otto Grotewohl are on opposite sides in what looks like a critical situation.

The split stems from disagreement on party policy—"Stalinist" Ulbricht, who favors a harsh dictatorship, against a number of "revisionist" leaders who favor a relaxation like that which has taken place in Poland.

But the quarrel also is reported to be due to the increasingly urgent East German economic situation.

Ulbricht and his supporters are trying to speed up production at the expense of industrial workers, by increasing individual output quotas without raising wages.

Ulbricht's opponents favor concessions to industrial and farm workers. They fear that such unrest might lead to a new uprising like that of June 17, 1953.

There is no evidence that such an uprising is likely. Nevertheless, East Germans obviously are unhappy. They have only to contrast conditions in Red-ruled East Germany with those in free West Germany, which is about the most prosperous country in Europe.

Ulbricht seems to be firmly in control of the party machinery. But disunion is so serious that it is bound to weaken the Communist regime unless it is ended.

In consequence, it is being reported that Ulbricht may soon order a sweeping purge of his enemies.

The party split first became apparent when Karl Schirlewand, Ernst Wollweber and Fred Celsner were expelled from their posts in the ruling Communist Party Politburo and central committee. Celsner later was ousted as a deputy premier.

Communist Party newspapers now are attacking Fritz Selbmann, one of East Germany's leading economic experts, who only last week was made deputy chairman of the state planning commission.

Selbmann is under attack at present on the ground that he thinks too much along "capitalistic" lines in his ideas about factory management.

Party leaders also are making demands in newspapers that additional punishment be imposed on Schirlewand, Wollweber and Celsner for opposing Ulbricht.

An interesting angle of the report of disunion between Ulbricht and Premier Grotewohl is Grotewohl's personal position in East German leadership. He was a leader of the Social Democratic Party and led a wing of it into cooperation with the Communists.

He is valuable to the Reds as a symbol of unity between Communists and Socialists. Hence Ulbricht might think it unwise to oust him even if they disagreed.
