Sanford Adds Funding For Police Projects

Spending Plan Would Up Taxes 53%

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Unless the Sanford City Commission makes some substantial cuts in its proposed budget, residents face a property tax rate next year of about $5.28 per $1,000 assessed valuation. The commission agreed Monday to spend about $160,000 more than what was called for in City Manager Frank Faison's 1985-86 budget of about $12.4 million. That brings total spending increases to about $190,400 — triple the $63,000 the commission has cut so far. The commission has also picked up an additional $25,000 in revenues. The commission is scheduled to complete its initial review of the proposed budget today at 4:30 p.m. in the city manager's conference room at city hall. More than half of the amount of increased spending the commission tacked on to the budget Monday is for the police department, including staffing of a BAT Mobile to help catch drunk drivers. Faison's proposed budget would have increased taxes 43 percent over last year. He recommended property tax rates be increased from $3.44 to $4.94 per $1,000 assessed valuation. The $127,400 in increased spending proposed by the commission adds about 34 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation to the proposed tax rate, for a tax rate increase of 53 percent. While the increase may sound high, City Clerk Henry Tamra said today city revenues from other sources would probably increase before the budget is finalized, offsetting some of the increase needed to pay for what commissioners want included in their budget. The commission's proposed property tax rate, along with the budget, is scheduled to be set July 22. After that date, the rate can be decreased but not increased, according to Mayor Bettye Smith. Public hearings are scheduled to be held on the budget and tax rate Sept. 9 and 23. The final budget and tax are expected to be adopted Sept. 23. The police department submitted a budget of about $2.4 million — the largest chunk of the overall budget. The department is slated to get that plus $88,700, added Monday, for beefing up its ability to catch drunk drivers and parking violators. A fifth officer, over and above the four being requested by Chief Steve Harriett in his budget, is needed to operate a truck equipped with blood alcohol testing machines, used to nab possible drunk drivers. The truck, called a "BAT mobile," is expected to be donated soon to the department by a local resident, according to Police Chief Steve Harriett. The truck is valued at about $35,000, he said. Harriett declined to name the benefactor, saying only he's "a local businessman."

Farr Suggests Ramp Tolls

To Finance Repairs

Sanford City Commissioner David Farr, saying he was "thinking out loud," suggested the board consider levying a 50-cent to $2 ramp toll to help pay for repairs to the city's five public boat ramps.

The repairs are expected to cost $79,000, exceeding an original estimate by $24,000.

"A toll would give us time — three or four years — to pay" for the repairs, Farr said.

The ramps are scheduled to be closed for repairs for 45 days. The commission is expected to approve the repair plan Monday and repairs are to start soon after that.

The ramps have been eroded and broken up by propulsion from the engines of big cruise ships and souped-up motor boats which dock at the marina, B.C. Conklin, of the city's engineering firm, Conklin, Porter and Holmes, reported to the city commission.

The ramps were closed by Monroe Harbour Marina, which leases the marina from the city, in April after five-foot dropoffs were discovered at the base of the ramps. Marina operator Chuck Volk shut down the ramps, saying boaters could lose their trailers and vehicles in the dropoffs while backing into the water.

Two of the ramps which received lesser damage were later reopened by the commission after boaters complained they had to go elsewhere and business people near the marina said they were losing money.

But all of the ramps will be closed for 45 days during the repairs, Conklin said. The ramps will be rebuilt at a sharper angle and will extend farther into the water, Conklin said. The cost exceeds the original estimate of $55,000 because, Conklin said, the ramps were in worse shape than first believed.

The project may cost even more, Conklin warned. More damage may be found as the workers repair the dock, he said, and the $79,000 does not cover repairs to the damaged bulkheads.

But Commissioner John Mercer said, "If it's under double the price I'm heckled to death."

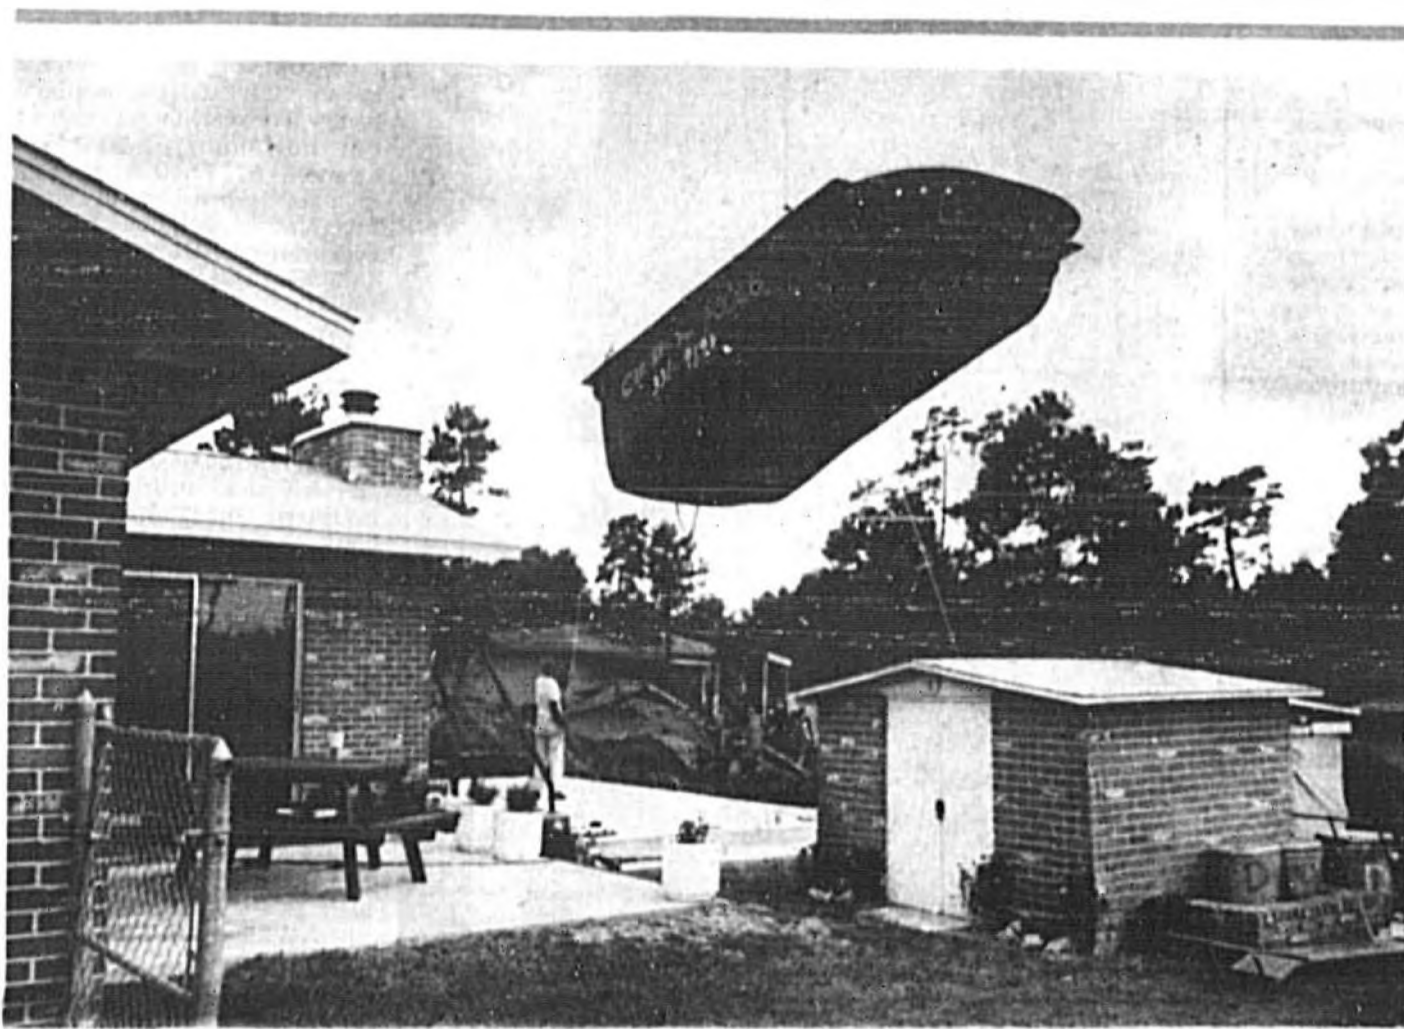

As for a toll, Volk said, "I don't think there would be any resistance from the average boater." But he added some

Soviet Vehicle Rams U.S. Car

BERLIN (UPI) — A Soviet vehicle chased and rammed a U.S. military mission patrol car in East Germany, injuring the American officer who heads the mission in the second U.S.-Soviet incident in the area in four months, military sources and the Pentagon said today.

Col. Roland Lajoie, the head of the 14-man U.S. Military Liaison Mission, was a passenger in the rear of the U.S. vehicle and fractured the lower part of an eye socket when his head hit the front seat, a Pentagon spokesman said. The others in the car were a major and a staff sergeant, he said.

Pool Haul

With the help of a crane and guidelines, workmen haul a preformed pool into place so it could be lowered into the back yard of Scott and Daisy Downer, of 109 Garden Court, Monday afternoon. On Sunday, pool room was made by digging a hole the same shape as the 1,800 pound Fiberglass basin. The Downers, who had the pool installed to improve their family's health by swimming, are scheduled to take their first dip Wednesday. Mrs. Downer said the 13-foot by 33-foot "Instant" pool is the first of its type to be installed in the Sanford area. It will hold 14,700 gallons of water.

Doctors Think All Reagan's Cancer Removed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is taking in stride word that a 2-inch tumor removed from his intestine is malignant, expressing relief that a team of surgeons located the cancerous growth before it spread.

Doctors said Monday they expected Reagan to resume his official duties after spending about ten days in the hospital and a period of convalescence.

Reagan got some reports from chief of staff Donald Regan Monday morning and conducted business from his hospital bed while aides worked on a plan for handling issues that may arise during a six to eight week convalescence.

Reagan's doctors told a nationally televised news conference Monday there is a better than 50 percent chance the cancer will not recur.

"Given the local findings of this lesion, there is every expectation that the local problem has been cured and the chances that the lesion will recur at the local site are small," said Dr. Steven Rosenberg, chief of surgery at the National Cancer Institute.

Rosenberg said Reagan has the maximum chance of being cured as a result of surgery that has been performed.

"The president's recovery is proceeding in a flawless fashion," he said, continuing the rave notices from all of Reagan's doctors who have run out of superlatives on his condition.

"There is greater than a 50 percent chance that the president now has no cancer whatsoever," he said.

He said that cancer is not an unusual disease in men the president's age, 74, and added that he always advises them to "resume their full and complete activity and that will be my advice to the president as well."

Doctors said there is no need for radiation or chemotherapy at this time, but Reagan will have

No-Show Trooper Foils DUI Manslaughter Case

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

While a state trooper was out deep sea fishing, the DUI manslaughter trial in which he was to be the key witness fell through Monday and the 19-year-old defendant was able to plead no contest to a lesser charge.

"You murdered my sister. You killed her," the sister of the 15-year-old victim shouted at defendant Michael Behnke, of Sanford, as he entered the plea and the proceeding ended, according to Assistant State Attorney Kurt Erlenbach. He said the victim's family was distraught leaving the courtroom.

"I really felt horrible about the whole thing," said Erlenbach. He said without the investigating trooper's testimony he had no choice but to not prosecute the DUI manslaughter charge and accept the no contest plea to the lesser charge of vehicular homicide. DUI manslaughter is punishable by up to 15 years, vehicular homicide up to 5 years.

Erlenbach said trooper James Mauney was deep-sea fishing either off Cocoa or Naples and wouldn't be back until Monday. He said he even entertained having the coast guard pick him up but no one knew the name of the boat he was on.

Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Lefler accepted the no contest plea in connection with the Sept. 23 death of Kimberley Lynne Crotty, of 125 Maple St., DeBary.

Erlenbach said the trial had been postponed several times, the last time at the state's request, and could not be continued again. Three accident witnesses from California were also present for the trial.

Lefler directed Erlenbach to prepare a contempt of court order for Mauney and ordered that Mauney show up at a future hearing explain his absence or face contempt for court charges. If guilty of contempt, Mauney could be jailed for 6 months and fined $500.

Erlenbach said he spoke with Mauney last week about the trial starting Monday and if there was any reason why he couldn't make the trial to let him know immediately.

The no-show was not the first problem the State Attorney's office has had with the trooper, Erlenbach said. In the same case, the officer failed to show up for twice for depositions and appeared only after a circuit judge called the trooper's superior officer.

Capt. Leland Newborn said the incident must have been a misunderstanding because it "not like Trooper Mauney not to show up." Newborn said Mauney was one of the best FHP troopers assigned to Central Florida and was a very conscientious officer. Newborn said he would investigate the matter informally and if necessary conduct a

YMCA To Appeal Building Denial

YMCA officials said early today they plan to appeal the rejection of their plan to a $500,000 building with gymnasium, offices and lockers on a five-acre tract near Lake Brantley High School by the Seminole County Board of Adjustment. The plan was turned down Monday 2-2 vote.

The organization has 15 days to file an appeal.

Board Chairman Roger Perra and member Danny Brown voted against a requested special exception to permit construction of the 12,000 square foot building on agriculturally zoned land.

Perra cited traffic as the major reason for his vote against while Brown said the proposed use is not consistent with the county's comprehensive plan for agriculture areas, that the proposed use would be highly intensive and it is not compatible with adjacent low density residential development.

Members Mike Hattaway and Dr. James Hickman voted

Mother Gets $5,000 In Teacher Abuse Case

A Sanford woman who charged that a Seminole County teacher abused her 10-year-old emotionally handicapped son has received an out-of-court settlement of $5,000 from the Seminole County School Board, according to the woman's attorney.

Missy Jemery, 29, said today the settlement, reached last week, was a victory for her and her son, Michael Cote, but the "money means nothing" if the teacher is not fired. The teacher, while moved to a different school, will remain employed by the Seminole County School Board, according to personnel director Ann Neiswender.

An attorney for Mrs. Jemery, of 1214 Randolph St., filed a demand for $12,500 damages with the school board's insurance agency in May, claiming that her son's teacher at Pinecrest Elementary abused him during an alleged incident Sept. 13. A lawsuit was not filed.

The boy told Sanford police during interviews his teacher, Stanley Shave, "grabbed me around the neck and scratched me" on that date, according to interview documents supplied by Mrs. Jemery. The boy told police Shave also kicked him and other students "in the butt," the legs, punched him in the arm and slapped him "across the face," according to the interview documents.

The boy was moved to another class and the teacher moved to Goldboro Elementary after Mrs. Jemery complained to school officials in September.

Michael finished his special classes at Pinecrest this past school year and will attend regular classes at Hamilton Elementary next year. Mrs. Jemery said.

She said she was satisfied with the settlement but still wanted Shave fired.

"If he is fired, I'm thrilled. I'm as happy as can be ... that's more important to me than the Brown." Fair said.

One of the men asked to inspect the pizzas to make sure they were hot, according to a police report. While one man sniffed and fingered the pizzas, the other was going through Castle's car looking for money, Fair said.

The two men, with the pizzas and about $7 from the car, then took off, hotfooting in opposite directions. The value of the purloined pizzas, $17.

It was the second time Castle has been duped by the same pair of pizza thieves, Fair said.

Environmentalists Sue Over Federal Land Use Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Environmentalists want a federal court to halt an administration program allowing mining and other development on federal land now used for hunting, fishing and camping.

The National Wildlife Federation filed suit Monday challenging the so-called land withdrawal review program, which it says threatens at least 173 million acres of federal land in 17 states.

The federation complained that the Interior Department is conducting the program illegally, without necessary regulations and without publicly stating the program's purpose.

The environmentalists complained the Interior Department put the program into effect "in piecemeal fashion" by withdrawing protective status from various parcels of land without the necessary approval from Congress and the president.

The affected land is in Alaska, Arkansas, Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Mexico, Nevada, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

Fire Forces Evacuation Of 10,000

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (UPI) — A fire possibly sparked by a workman's torch raged in an abandoned sewage plant today, spewing toxic smoke that chased an estimated 10,000 people from their homes and prompted authorities to barricade roads leading to the heart of the city.

Many downtown businesses planned not to open today and barricades were set up at Interstate 380 exit ramps and main traffic arteries into the city to "keep out people who don't have to be here," a police official said.

The blaze, which began at about 2:30 p.m. Monday, was confined to the plant, officials said. Burning plastic was producing hydrogen chloride, a toxic chemical that causes nausea and headaches and irritates the eyes and throat.

No serious injuries were reported, but about a dozen people were treated at St. Luke's Hospital and released.

Officials said they have not officially identified the cause of the fire, but that workmen who had been taking apart the sewage treatment plant Monday said the blaze had been started accidentally by a cutting torch.

Pot War Begins Anew

GARBERVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Helicopter-riding law officers swooped into rural gardens and seized marijuana plants as tall as 10 feet, kicking off the third year of the state's war on the illegal, lucrative crop in Northern California.

Four helicopters, flying from a state command post on the Eel River 185 miles north of San Francisco, were used Monday in the first raids against pot gardens in Humboldt, Trinity and Mendocino counties. The raids will last three months and will involve many areas of the state.

The first flights went off as scheduled without interference from local groups who have complained about the military tactics of the marijuana war.

Opponents said they will monitor this year's raids.

"Last year, our entire community was under military attack," said Paul Bassis, a leader of the newly formed Citizens Observation Group. "We felt defenseless, so we got together to figure out what we could do."

He said observers will make sure officers operate within the law and do not violate a court order limiting helicopter flights and forbidding searches of homes without warrants.

Coalition Government Totters In Wake Of Fatal Soccer Riot

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Prime Minister Wilfried Martens today offered to King Baudouin the resignation of his coalition Cabinet, which has been riven by a dispute over a May soccer riot that left 38 people dead.

Martens delivered the resignation to Baudouin after his Christian Democrat-Liberal government — the country's 32nd since World War II — met in emergency session for a hour to discuss the feud.

A royal palace announcement said Baudouin, who is empowered to dismiss or appoint ministers, had not decided whether to accept the government's resignation.

The crisis was sparked when Deputy Prime Minister and Justice Minister Jean Gol, a French-speaking Liberal party member, submitted his resignation Monday in protest over a refusal by Justice Minister Charles-Ferdinand Nothomb, a Christian Democrat, to accept responsibility for ineffective safety arrangements at Brussels's Heysel Stadium.

Thirty-eight people were killed and hundreds were injured May 29 at the stadium when fans began rioting an hour before the kickoff of the European Champions Cup final between England's Liverpool team and Juventus of Turin, Italy.

Lebanese Ambassador Wounded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon's ambassador to Saudi Arabia was wounded by gunfire in Moslem west Beirut today, hours after police sent out token patrols with orders to disarm and arrest militiamen and impose a new security plan.

A police source said Ambassador Zafer al Hassan was wounded in the hand by bullet fragments when gunmen opened fire at the gray police jeep in which he was trying to cross the Green Line from the Moslem west Beirut to Christian eastern Beirut for a meeting with President Amin Gemayel.

In southern Lebanon, Israeli troops kept Israel's self-declared security zone 3 to 11 miles inside the Lebanese border sealed off a day after a suicide car-bomb attack that killed at least 14 people — including the driver.

The explosives-laden car, disguised as a Red Cross vehicle, exploded at Kfar Tibnit, headquarters of the South Lebanon Army, Israel's surrogate militia in the region.

Sex, Gold Used To Lure FBI Agent Into Spying

Soviet Mata Hari Gets 18 Years

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Soviet woman accused of using sex and gold to lure an FBI agent into espionage has begun serving an 18-year sentence for her guilty plea to charges of conspiring to spy on the United States.

Svetlana Ogorodnikova, who admitted conspiring with former FBI agent Richard W. Miller to spy for her native Soviet Union, was formally sentenced Monday under a plea bargain reached last month.

U.S. District Judge David V. Kenyon gave Ogorodnikova the sentence her attorneys negotiated with prosecutors in exchange for the guilty pleas she and her husband, Nikolai Ogorodnikov, entered as their trial neared its end.

Miller — the only FBI agent ever charged with spying against his country — is scheduled to go on trial July 24. Testifying under an agreement in which his testimony cannot be used at his own trial, Miller was the key witness against the Soviet couple, who had lived in the United States since 1973. The husband was sentenced to eight years in federal prison on June 26, the day of the pleas.

The couple had faced possible life prison terms.

Kenyon said Ogorodnikova, 35, will be eligible for parole after serving six years, and gave her credit for nine months already spent in custody since her arrest Oct. 2, 1984.

Ogorodnikova, a tiny woman who usually appeared unkempt during a trial in which she was accused of being a siren who lured Miller into a sexual liaison, wore make-up and had her short-cropped hair neatly combed as her sentence was pronounced.

Gregory Stone, one of her lawyers, asked Kenyon to specify that she be confined at the federal prison at Pleasanton, Calif., rather than at another federal prison for women in West Virginia. Kenyon said he had no objection if the federal Bureau of Prisons decided to place Ogorodnikova at Pleasanton.

Ogorodnikova declined Kenyon's invitation to address the court. In contrast to her husband, who issued an embittered, hour-long tirade after he was sentenced, A meatpacker by trade, Ogorodnikov blamed his problems on his wife's alcoholism and the FBI.

"They took my wife and turned her into a prostitute," he said at his sentencing. "I just end up outside like a dog. I just said everything to help her. She is the reason I am here."

Miller, 48, and the father of several children, said he met Ogorodnikova in May 1984 and they soon began a sexual affair.

The former agent claims she told him she was a major in the Soviet KGB and that he was attempting to infiltrate Soviet intelligence in an effort to salvage an undistinguished career as an FBI counterintelligence agent.

Prosecutors allege Miller eventually passed secret FBI documents to Ogorodnikova in exchange for sex and the promise of $65,000 in cash and gold.

Did Smugglers Compromise U.S. Security?

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A ring apparently used the military's own computerized supply system to help steal F-14 jet fighter parts and smuggle them to Iran, and officials are concerned that national security could be compromised.

Navy Secretary John Lehman was described by an aide as "very much concerned" about the apparent vulnerability of the Navy's supply system. And Rep. Jim Bates, D-Calif., said a "freeze" should be placed on the supply system until its integrity can be improved, saying "our national security could be endangered."

At a news conference Monday in San Diego, Customs officials said the ring's motive was money.

"It was a bunch of thieves who figured out the computerized parts ordering system and worked it," said Quintin Villanueva, Customs commissioner for the West Coast. "I think we've got a bunch of crooks on our hands. The motivation was money."

Officials said the ring probably made about $5 million in the seven years it is believed to have operated, and that more arrests — including U.S. military personnel — are expected.

Three suspects — including an American sailor — were arraigned Monday before a federal magistrate on charges of theft and illegally exporting war materiel. Another man was in custody in New York and an Iranian businessman is being held in London, from where he allegedly supplied shopping lists of F-14 parts to Navy personnel. All were held without bail.

The pilfered equipment included sophisticated electronics and engine parts, but much of it was apparently never of any use to the Iranians. Officials told the Los Angeles Times and San Diego Union that federal agents infiltrated the ring and sabotaged some of the shipments, substituting bogus parts.

About 80 F-14 Tomcats were sold to Iran under the Shah, but the shipment of military equipment was banned after the country was taken over six years ago by the fundamentalist regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Experts say Iran — embroiled in a lengthy war of attrition with Iraq — has only about 10 operational F-14s left.

The parts recovered have tentatively been traced to Navy installations in California, Virginia and the Philippines, as well as the carriers Ranger, Kitty Hawk and Carl Vinson, all based in California.

"There's no question this is a very significant case," Winston Kuehl, regional director for operations of the Naval Investigative Service.

Wrongfully Imprisoned 'Rapist' Gets $717,500

COLUMBUS (UPI) — William Bernard Jackson, imprisoned for nearly five years for two rapes he did not commit, has been awarded $717,500 in damages in what is believed the largest wrongful imprisonment award ever granted in Ohio.

Jackson, 33, of Columbus, could not be reached for comment following Monday's announcement of the award. A family member said he was probably out celebrating.

From October 1977 until September 1982 Jackson was held in the maximum security Southern Ohio Correctional Facility in Lucasville and at the London Correctional Institution. He had been charged with committing crimes later attributed to Dr. Edward Jackson of Columbus. The two men are not related.

Edward Jackson was subsequently convicted of 21 rapes and 39 other crimes.

Columbus police officials who investigated the rapes said the two men looked alike and both had beards. The women who were raped had originally identified William Jackson as their attacker.

William Jackson claimed he was stabbed five times while in jail and required treatment in the prison hospital. He was earning between $3 and $6.50 an hour before his arrest.

"It kind of destroyed me to know I was in the penitentiary for something I didn't do," Jackson said in a CBS "60 Minutes" program following his release. "Every day you had to walk around in there with hardened criminals. This was a horrifying thing for a man to go through."

According to the judgment, signed by Judge John L. Maxwell of Cuyahoga County, Jackson will receive $67,500 for loss of earnings; $200,000 for loss of liberty and separation from family and friends; $200,000 for injuries and adjustment difficulties during imprisonment; $100,000 for damages to his reputation, and $150,000 for legal fees.

Jackson had asked for a judgment of $1 million.

Officials said Jackson would receive the money within four to six weeks in one payment, but it was not known immediately whether it would be tax free.

County: No Hazardous Waste Storage In Silver Lake Area

By Donna Estes
 Herald Staff Writer

A large audience of residents of the Silver Lake Road area responded with rebel yells and rocking applause to the Seminole County Board of Adjustment's refusal Monday night to permit a hazardous waste transfer station in their neighborhood.

Pat Vindett, vice president and manager of Hazardous Waste Consultants Inc., which was seeking permission to operate the transfer station temporarily on a tract across the street from Cobia Boats, left the chamber with head down. She was followed by three or four others from her firm, one of whom was heard muttering, "Stupid, stupid jerks."

After a motion by Dr. James Hickman to approve the "necessary evil" for six months died for lack of a second, board member Mike Hattaway motioned for denial. Hattaway's motion was seconded by Danny Brown and board chairman Roger Perra voted with them. Hickman voted against the denial. Member Alan Robinson was absent.

Ms. Vindett today said the matter will be appealed to the county commission within 15 days.

Hattaway said he appreciates the job the firm is doing, but feared the danger of pollution, noting that HWC planned to park trailers containing drums of waste in the grassy field at the site. During Ms. Vindett's testimony he asked several times if HWC planned to construct a concrete pad for the trailers to contain a spill if one occurred. She said since the site would be only temporary, there were no plans for such a pad and none was required by the law.

Perra said if plans were to create a permanent site, he probably would have voted for it. "It's going to happen somewhere," he said. Hickman, who favored the proposal, called hazardous waste sites "necessary evils."

Ms. Vindett and her partner David Bishop took turns explaining how their company serves small generators of hazardous wastes by collecting the materials for transportation out of state for disposal at federally approved sites.

She said the wastes, which range from solvents and acids to used oils, would be kept in semi-trailers at the nearly one-acre site for no more than 10 days. Ms. Vindett said the drums of waste would not touch the ground, but would be transferred directly from trucks into the trailers for transport. Each of the five trailers to be parked at the site could contain up to 80 drums, she said.

Ms. Vindett said during the three years her company has been in operation there has not been a single incident of spillage or contamination of any kind.

Ms. Vindett said nothing radioactive and no biological wastes or explosives would be kept at the site.

The opponents, while conceding that HWC is probably doing a job that needs to be done, pounded away at the existing problem of ground water contamination at Cobia Boats, from which HWC intended to lease its temporary site until a permanent site could be found.

'Pied Piper' Gets Another 3 1/2 Years

A Longwood man dubbed "the Pied Piper" for leading several children into sexual attacks has gotten an additional 3 1/2 years tacked onto his longer-than-life sentence for the fondling of a 9-year-old Longwood girl.

John Sessum Worling, 52, of 318 Heather Drive, was sentenced Monday by Seminole Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor.

The sentence is the last in four child-assault cases.

Worling pleaded no contest June 19 to two counts of lewd and lascivious assaults on the girl.

The sentence brings the total time Worling has been sentenced in the four cases to life plus 12 1/2 years. He has been found guilty of molesting four girls, one age 8, two 9-year-olds and a 10-year-old.

Worling was originally arrested Sept. 23 after a 9-year-old reported an assault that occurred on the 18th of that month. He was rearrested Nov. 16 and charged with lewd and lascivious assault on a 10-year-old girl. After investigations, subsequent charges were lodged against him.

Worling had access to children because he had toys, games and a swing at his home that attracted kids, according to court records.

At one point Worling sought to consolidate the charges and plead guilty if the sentence would not exceed 22 years however he was unsuccessful in finding a judge to go along with the deal according to former Assistant State Attorney Steve Brady who handled several of the cases.

Fortress Holds Tons Of Cocaine; Agents Fear Attempt To Steal It

MIAMI (UPI) — A secret, heavily guarded fortress holds an estimated 10 tons of cocaine seized by federal authorities and as the stash grows so does the fear that someone will attempt a raid.

If there are 10 tons, the pile of white powder, three times as valuable as gold, would be worth $3 billion on the street.

"It is valuable like Fort Knox is valuable," said a congressional investigator who visited a federal cocaine warehouse in Miami last spring. "But on the other hand, it is not guarded like Fort Knox."

The Drug Enforcement Administration, which takes custody of federal seizures in the region, has at least two major cocaine storage buildings in south Florida and most likely, several smaller stockpiles to handle the overflow. The Miami Herald reported.

In the first six months of this year, 27,000 pounds of cocaine came into federal possession in south Florida. That is more than was seized by federal agencies in the entire United States in all 1984.

Much of the cocaine must be held as evidence for trials. Before the remainder can be destroyed, agents must complete laboratory tests and burdensome amounts of paperwork that sometimes takes months to complete.

In April, the DEA told congressional investigators it was seriously concerned

'Anyone who could afford to do that (amass the military firepower needed to stage a successful raid on the coke depository) could buy the stuff for peanuts in Bolivia.'

—Lawyer Sam Burstyn

about "the lack of secure space" to store cocaine, the newspaper quoted an unidentified congressman as saying.

The growing fear is that someone will attempt to seize the stash, attempting what would be the biggest armed robbery in the history of the world.

"We think about it every day," said DEA spokesman William Yout.

Drug agents and federal prosecutors are "painfully" aware of the problem, said Leon Kellner, executive assistant U.S. attorney in Miami. "Everyone from the attorney general on down is aware of it."

The cocaine's whereabouts are a closely guarded secret. Even Kellner claims he does not know where it is stored.

"I don't want to know. If somebody knew or had an idea and they heard about the amount, you can understand the problem there," he said.

Kellner estimated five to 10 tons of cocaine are currently in storage.

"I think it's more like 20 tons," said Sam

Burstyn, a lawyer specializing in drug trafficking cases. "I alone have three cases with defendants worth three tons."

Burstyn, who as a defense lawyer is allowed to view evidence against his clients, said there is a central depository at a secret location. He said it is so well guarded that an attempted raid would require massive military firepower.

"Anyone who could afford to do that could buy the stuff (cocaine) for peanuts in Bolivia," Burstyn said.

The unidentified congressman quoted by the newspaper complained about lax security at a federal cocaine storage building he toured. But defense lawyers allowed to view some of the cocaine told the newspaper they were escorted by armed agents through a series of guarded hallways and electronically controlled doors.

"I got the feeling that if I had tried to grab even one gram, they would have shot me," said lawyer Alan Ross, who reported seeing 50 to 60 armed guards.

Attorney Michael Oclacovski said he had to pull a paper bag over his head before DEA agents would take him to view a cache of marijuana.

"It's a little humiliating, but on the whole I think it's not an inappropriate measure," Oclacovski said.

A raid on the fortress would be suicidal, Ross said.

ombia's cocaine "families" remains at large

Dearie said cocaine base, smuggled into the United States from Colombia, was delivered to the laboratories on Long Island, upstate New York and Virginia, where it was treated with chemicals to produce the cocaine powder sold on the illegal drug market.

Formerly, processed cocaine was smuggled into this country. But that trend is shifting to U.S. production of the drug. Dearie said in many instances, the cocaine base is brought in and treated with ether, acetone and ammonia to convert it into water soluble powder capable of absorption into the human body.

"This has taught us a very hard lesson about the resourcefulness and ruthlessness of cocaine trafficking from South America."

Dearie said the labs were set up in rural areas where the clandestine conversion operation could be carried out without much fear of discovery.

One was setup in a stable behind a rented house on 47 acres in Baiting Hollow on Long Island.

Another was established in an outbuilding behind a farm house in Gordonsville, Va. The third was a cottage with an addition built onto it on a 66-acre site in Fly Creek, N.Y., about 90 miles west of Albany.

You've Heard Of OPEC, Now There Is A 'Cocaine Cartel'

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Federal authorities say a new cocaine "cartel" is smuggling cocaine base from Colombia into the United States, where "factories" treat it with chemicals to produce the illegal white powder sold on the drug market.

"Three major Colombian cocaine distribution networks have reached an understanding to form a cartel whereby they would pool their resources to convert cocaine base into cocaine (powder) in the United States," U.S. Attorney Raymond Dearie said.

"They had their own supplies of cocaine base but agreed to share the facilities and equipment needed to process the drug," he said.

He said the laboratories used to produce the drug represent a "major change" in the distribution of cocaine in the United States.

In raids on Long Island, upstate New York and Virginia, authorities netted enough cocaine base and chemicals to churn out 7,000 pounds of the drug, Dearie said.

Dearie said the processed cocaine, cocaine base and chemical agents seized in last week's raids would have a street value of "hundreds of millions of dollars."

Ten Colombians were arrested during the raids. Bur authorities said Jaime Orjuela, the reputed and long-sought chief of Col-

Sudan's Military Government Faces First Signs Of Internal Discontent

By Charles Mitchell

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — Three months after street rioting and strikes led to the downfall of President Jaafar Numeiry, the jubilation that greeted his ouster has faded into disillusionment.

Sudan's new military regime finds itself on rocky unstable ground faced with a grumbling junior officer corp, angry labor unions, a festering civil war in the south and a civilian Cabinet too weak to be convincing or of any real use in reigning in the forces of dissent.

The devastating famine that threatens 11.5 million people — half the country's population — has strained Sudan's fragile infrastructure and resources.

The promised revision of the harsh and unpopular brand of Islamic law introduced by Numeiry in 1963 has not taken place.

"There is a lot of disillusionment on the streets, in the political parties, in the unions and the military. Sub-surface tension is high," said a senior Western diplomat.

"Everyone expected everything to be done immediately. For the ordinary man in the street nothing has changed."

After 16 years of autocratic rule under Numeiry, ousted while he was on a visit to

Washington and now in exile in Egypt, the 15-man Transitional Military Council comprised of senior officers and headed by former Defence Minister General Abdul Rahman Suwar Al-Dahab has adopted a ruling strategy that differs little from their deposed leader's.

Col. John Garang, head of the 10,000-strong Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA), a guerrilla force in the rebellious south, refers to the new regime as Numeiry II. It is a catchline one hears more and more in shops, streets and cafes of Khartoum.

The SPLA intensified its fight after the Military Council failed to convince Garang to come into the post-coup government.

The disillusionment is beginning to translate into signs of tangible dissent.

The country's communist and leftist-dominated trade unions are openly debating the possibility of a general strike aimed at hurrying the pace of change and a return to full civilian rule before the end of the announced 12-month transition period. Elections are to be held in April 1986.

The unions are fearful the old rightwing political parties that dominated life prior to Numeiry will resurface as strong as ever, cutting off the unions from any meaningful political power.

Their strength was apparent in the days before the coup.

On July 4, more than 40,000 students and trade unionists defied a government order banning street demonstrations. They marched on the Egyptian embassy demanding Numeiry's extradition from Egypt.

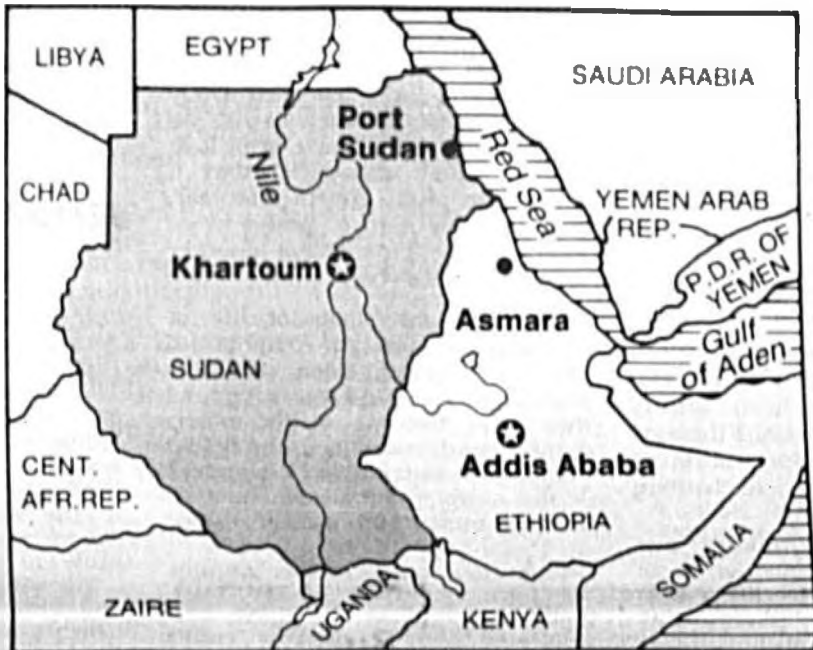

The march was the biggest since the massive street demonstrations that led to Numeiry's downfall. Diplomats say there is strong support for a strike before the elections.

Libya, an avowed foe of Numeiry, has been hedging its bets on its relationship with the new government, supplying arms and money to its internal opponents and at the same time attempting to forge a union between the two countries, according to diplomats.

Sudan has so far resisted the move towards such a union, favoring instead its traditional allies, the United States and Egypt.

At the heart of the crisis is the inability and unwillingness of the military men in charge to set a direction for the energy still seething after the coup.

The 15-man civilian Cabinet set up two weeks after Numeiry's downfall has been reduced to window dressing, its sole role is to advise the TMC, counsel that so far mostly has been ignored.

Sudan's economy is virtually bankrupt, owing more than $9 billion in foreign debt with little hope of ever paying it off.

The SPLA, composed of Christian guerrillas and those from other religions, has cut off the oil flow from the south in its war against Moslem domination from the north, compounding the economic crisis.

Sudan has been reduced to living on the handouts of friendly countries like the United States and Saudi Arabia.

Outside capital, even long-term development aid has dried up, mainly because the TMC is not prepared to commit itself to long-term projects.

"The line is wait for the civilian government to come in then they can decide," one Western economic expert said.

But there are growing doubts whether the April 1986 elections will ever take place.

"The situation could deteriorate so quickly that it would be impossible to hold elections," said one Western diplomat.

"Secondly it is doubtful that the rebel-controlled south would participate so the TMC could postpone them until they felt full nationwide elections could take place."

"Thirdly, they (the TMC) may simply not want to leave," the diplomat said.

Mistrial Declared In Case Of Woman With Messy Desk

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — A lawsuit brought by a woman fired for having a messy desk came to a halt when the judge found out one of the jurors knew the woman.

Because of the mistrial, the case will be rescheduled in early 1986.

Palm Beach County Circuit Judge Mary Lupo declared a mistrial Friday in a civil suit filed by Rita McClean, 63, who was fired seven years ago by the West Palm Beach Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Lupo asked Doris Sales to return her juror's badge after learning that Sales allegedly told another juror she had met McClean years ago. Sales allegedly said she "I think I remember those ladies. I remember one was nasty and one was nice, and I won't tell you which was which."

"I am outraged at the conduct of one of the jurors," Lupo said, warning Sales that she could be found in criminal contempt of court. Lupo then ordered Sales to leave the courthouse.

McClean said she was fired because she kept a messy desk, complete with a framed letter of reprimand and a Peanut cartoon that showed the character Pigpen saying: "Neatness is man's greatest fallacy."

McClean's supervisors claimed McClean was not a team player and was difficult to communicate with. They said her dismissal came after she refused to clean up her office.

Man Claims "Biker Types" Beat Him, Drove Truck In Lake

A Fern Park man told police he was abducted by two "biker types" who beat him and then drove his pickup truck into a lake.

Wayne Harrison Stumpf, 27, of 551 E. Semoran Blvd., #4, told police he pulled into a 7-Eleven convenience store at State Road 427 and U.S. Highway 17-92 near Longwood about 1 a.m. today. He left the store about five minutes later and stopped at a traffic light and felt his truck shake, a police report said.

Stumpf told police did not see anyone and continued on his way when the signal changed. Moments later a man reached around from the rear of the truck, stuck a chrome revolver to Stumpf's head and ordered him to pull over, the report said.

The gunman entered the vehicle through the driver's door and forced Stumpf to sit in the passenger seat. Another man, this one with a knife, then stuck his arm through the passenger window and held the knife to Stumpf's throat, the report said.

Stumpf told police he was struck in the head with the gun and the two men drove him down a dirt road off State Road 427 to a lake.

The police report said Stumpf fought with the two abductors and was kicked in the head and chest.

Police said the only injury visible was a small bruised area on his head.

Stumpf said he was pinned to the ground with one of the men pointing a gun at his face while the other drove his truck into the lake.

The assailants then fled in a 1969 Chevy van, the report said. Police said they found several inconsistencies in Stumpf's story. No arrests have been made.

SHOP AND STAY

A Forest City man who went into a Shop & Go convenience store for a bag of ice came out and found his car stolen.

William Vernon Dempsey, 58, of 9701 Forest City Drive, told police he left the keys to his brown 1977 Pontiac in the ignition. While in the store, thieves drove away with the vehicle bearing tag number WHZ 760.

WIFE BEATEN

A Longwood man has been arrested and charged with spouse abuse after allegedly punching his wife in the face.

According to a Seminole County sheriff's report, the man tried to strike his wife in the kitchen of their home about 7 p.m. Friday. The woman asked him to stop. While pushing him away, she knocked off his glasses.

The man hit his wife, causing her lip to bleed and swell, the report said. She broke away and ran to a neighbor's house and called police.

Charged was Cecil L. Barkley, 52, of 102 S. Sweetwater Blvd., who was released late Friday on $500 bond from the Seminole County jail.

box that originally held an ice chest.

Pat McAfee, a security guard at Zaryes, 100 State Road 436, told police the man switched the TV and ice chest, took the box to a cashier and paid for it.

Police were called and security guards detained the man as he tried to exit the store.

Charged with grand theft was George Rivera, 33, of 11325 Portal Court, Orlando. He was released Saturday from the Seminole County jail on $5,000 bond.

GABBED

An Orlando man who is accused of stealing $6 worth gasoline from a Longwood filling station Saturday night wound up being charged with assault with a motor vehicle, robbery, battery on a law enforcement officer and driving with no valid license.

A Seminole County sheriff's deputy parked at the corner of U.S. Highway 17-92 and State Road 434 at about 9:45 saw an attendant at the Phillips 66 station across the highway yelling for help.

The deputy's report said the attendant was preventing a green Ford Pinto from driving away by holding onto the steering wheel. A few minutes went by before the deputy could get to the station because of heavy traffic, the report said.

Before the deputy could arrive, the driver of the Pinto revved the engine and took off, causing the attendant to jump out of the way.

The deputy caught up with and pulled the Pinto over at Dog Track Road and 17-92.

As the officer prepared to get out of her patrol car, the driver of the Pinto attempted to flee, the report said. But the deputy pulled forward and cut off the escape route.

The driver of the Pinto could not produce a driver's license, only an identification card, the report said. He was arrested and taken to the Seminole County jail where he was charged with aggravated assault with a motor vehicle, not having a valid license, and robbery.

Enroute to his cell, the man turned around and attempted to punch a deputy in the face, the report said. Added to the list of charges was battery on a police officer.

Arrested was James Lloyd Flarity, 25, of 4100 S. Rio Grande Ave., Orlando. He was released on $3,000 bond Sunday.

Friendship Outlasts Turmoil

If the economic stagnation and political anger growing under the rule of President Ferdinand Marcos continue at their present steep rate, the Philippines may be ripe for a communist takeover by the 1990s.

That is an opinion shared by U.S. intelligence analysts and Filipino communist leader Jose Maria Sison.

Moderate opponents of Marcos and conservative U.S. State Department officials echo this view, saying that increasing numbers of conservative Filipinos, including the business and professional elite, are attracted to communism not because they like it but because it is at least an alternative.

Marcos has remarkable tenacity. He is 67. His rule has lasted two decades. His most potent challenger, Benigno Aquino, was killed at the Manila airport Aug. 21, 1983, on returning from the United States hoping to dislodge Marcos. Many Filipinos and others believe Marcos ordered the killing and cover-up attempt that followed.

If the ailing Marcos survives, he is expected to run for president again in 1987 when his six-year term expires. Since he controls the election officials, he should win.

At first Marcos's policies stressed reform and modernization. But in the 1970s he began to tamper with Philippine constitutional processes and to intervene massively in the economy, giving immense power to a circle of cronies and monopolists whose mismanagement precipitated capital flight and paralyzing stagflation.

The archipelago is rich in human and natural resources, but inflation and interest rates are in the 40 percent to 50 percent range, and productivity, wages, industrial production and imports have been falling steadily. An estimated 70 percent of Filipinos live below the poverty line. Expressions of unrest bring harsh responses including executions.

Reagan administration policymakers are unlikely to try to "dump" Marcos as their predecessors "dumped" the shah of Iran and Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua, paving the way for the Khomrini and Kremlin-oriented Sandinistas.

But near the end of May, Newsweek reported that CIA director William Casey, during a three-day mission to the Philippines to assess the expansion of the communist insurgency, talked with Marcos about holding a new presidential election before 1987.

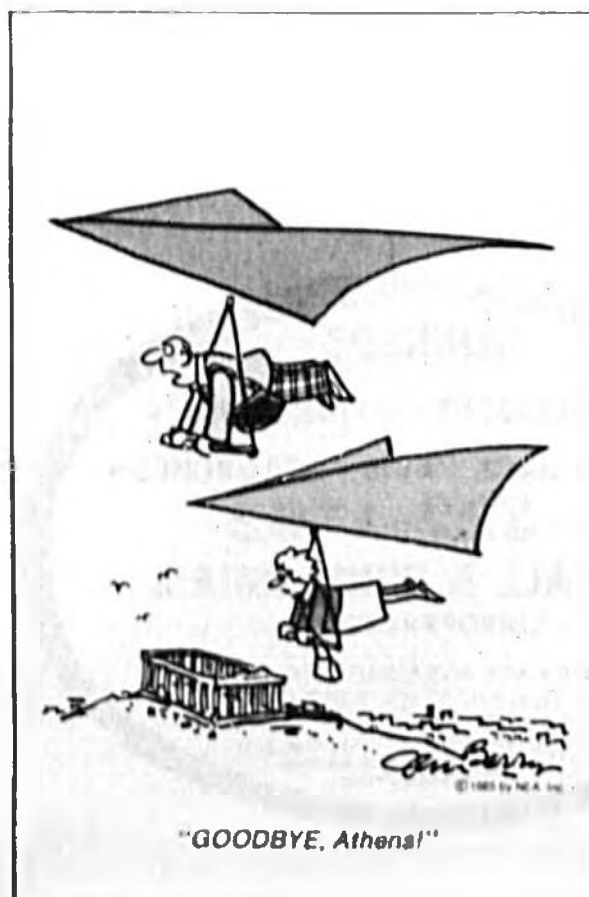

Marcos rejected that idea when it was advanced by senior Philippine opposition leaders. But Newsweek reported that a senior Philippine official "let it be known" that Marcos might be more responsive to Casey's suggestion.

If Marcos is concerned with his place in history, one Philippine political insider said, his most prudent course of action would be to do all in his power to improve the economy, stabilize the political situation and prepare for an orderly, constitutional succession.

Were Marcos to succeed in such a task he might redeem himself and be acclaimed a statesman instead of just one more of the countless petty despots who flyspeck history's pages.

In spite of an often mutually hurtful colonial relationship, Filipinos and Americans have fought side by side in two wars. They share an array of worthy values. They have a long, true friendship that ought to last — and outlast any turmoil that the next few years may bring. They should work hard to see that it does.

BERRY'S WORLD

GEORGE MCGOVERN

Time For A Mideast Peace Conference

The great historians Charles and Mary Beard, when asked if they had learned any single overriding lesson from the study of history, replied: "It gets darkest just before the stars come out."

If this is a valid observation, perhaps the time is at hand for a fundamental step toward peace in the Middle East. It is difficult to imagine a darker time in the long history of that troubled region. Suffering little Lebanon is ripped and bleeding from its own bitter internal strife — aggravated by a bloody Israeli invasion, pressure from Syria, the Palestinian turmoil and the hostage crisis.

Israel is under tremendous strain from its challenged borders and from its enormous military outlays, with the accompanying burden of one of the worst inflation rates in the world. The Peres coalition government badly needs the boost of a successful initiative to resolve some of the antagonisms and dangers that confront Israel.

Iraq and Iran are caught in a cruel, draining and seemingly endless ordeal that must be marked by war weariness and hunger for an end to the killing.

Moderate political leaders such as Hussein in Jordan, Mubarak in Egypt and the Saudi ruling family all have very real and urgent reasons for alarm over the growing Moslem fanaticism and the increasingly explosive crosscurrents convulsing their region.

Syrian President Assad is a tough, opportunistic leader. But, according to current reports, he is concerned about the kind of dangerous extremism represented in the seizure of American hostages.

The once feared and militant PLO under Yasser Arafat is broken and in disarray. Arafat is now among the growing number of Middle East leaders whose future depends on a breakthrough toward a resolution of the area's conflicts.

For these and other reasons, now may be the time when we can begin to hope realistically either for a comprehensive peace conference on the Middle East, or at least for a series of dialogues on various aspects of the regional crisis.

As the editors of The Nation concluded in a recent issue: "For all the wrong reasons and despite hard-line opposition from both sides, a peace conference on the Middle East now seems conceivable."

I came to the conclusion long ago that if real peace is to be secured in this area, it must include all the significant countries, factions and interested outside powers. There cannot be a comprehensive Middle East settlement that excludes the Palestinians and the Soviet Union.

High Tech Failure

Even while America's trendier economists continue to predict the end of manufacturing and a bright new dawn of service industries, Business Week publishes a cover story entitled "The Computer Slump."

The numbers tell a story of death and destruction in the "high-tech" sector. Apple Computer, Inc. has fired 1,200 employees. National Semiconductor furloughed 1,300. On the opposite coast in Lowell, Mass., Wang Labs has shed 1,600 layoff victims. Throughout the industry, 18,000 jobs have been lost. IBM has just announced that it expects no profit growth this year. Says Andrew Grove, president of Intel Corp.: "This is not another slowdown. It's a shakeout."

The economic facts of life of overcapacity, foreign competition, and slack management are not recognizable in high technology, as they have become in the older, durable goods manufacturing fields. Computers, indeed, work wonders — but people still decide how to finance, build, and market them.

Clearly, too many people brought the false promises of the false prophets of high tech — those who suggested that Americans could consign heavy manufacturing to East Asia and support themselves by tapping at consoles at home. Too many signed off on that myth, at least in relation to available markets.

Investment in new computer and software ventures in the form of seed capital and new stock offerings rose from $600 million in 1977 to $19 billion in 1983. The number of microcomputer software composing companies grew from 34 in 1981 to 120 in January of this year. Microcomputer makers increased from 8 to 47 in those four years. Companies building disk drives and other data storage devices multiplied from 11 to 54.

Inevitably, consumers are faced with an intimidating selection of incomprehensible machines and programs, most of which do basically the same things, but far more than most customers need or want or can manage. Systems costing hundreds of thousands of dollars have been purchased by business, buildings, redesigned and rebuilt to accommodate them, employees let go — and the computers left underutilized or resold, in disgust. The high-priced consultants, speaking a different language, are distrusted or ignored.

French Have Better Way To Supply Military

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — There's a whole of a difference between the way the French military buys its weapons and the way it's done in this country. U.S. defense contractors and their Pentagon pals may well cry gratefully, "Vive la difference!"

But American taxpayers would save billions if only the Defense Department would adopt the no-nonsense, superbly efficient French military procurement system.

Believe it or not, someone high up in the Pentagon knows this and has cited the advantages of "la methode francaise" in a hard-hitting memo that was obtained by our associate lady badwar.

The memo makes some impressive claims for French efficiency, economy and incorruptibility. If their procurement system were adopted here, the memo indicates it would virtually depopulate the Pentagon, drive the "Beltway Bandits" out of their lucrative consulting jobs — and bring the military budget back to earth.

The Flight West

I wonder if other Easterners feel as I do, something special about flying out to California, chasing the sun as it sets over the Rockies, over the Pacific. In many ways California is the still moving frontier of America, moving now not geographically but socially.

The flight West is a kind of metaphor. The Boeing 727 on which I am flying has just crossed the Rockies. The landscape 30,000 feet below is wonderful in its beauty. I remember the first time I flew out here, to work in Ronald Reagan's 1968 attempt to wrest the Republican nomination from Richard Nixon. I had scarcely arrived in Sacramento when Martin Luther King was assassinated, not much later Robert Kennedy, and then we had the shambles of the Democratic convention in Chicago, where many felt that Lyndon Johnson had stolen the nomination from Gene McCarthy in favor of Hubert Humphrey.

Then there were the Nixon years at the "Western White House," La Casa Pacifica at San Clemente. The most vivid images I have of that, apart from the serious politics, are the mustard colored cliffs on the beach and the violently colored birds.

The 727 on which I am flying West this time is a kind of metaphor for Western civilization. Immensely powerful, surging through space, but also fragile and potentially vulnerable.

We have had champagne with lunch and my headset is pumping Mozart into my brain.

California may be used to it, but my Eastern heart cannot regard as merely customary the destinations of the great jets flying outward over the Pacific — Honolulu, Samoa, Manila, Tahiti, Tokyo, Melbourne.

Samoa! The Pacific Ocean!

As a child I had possessed the Pacific Ocean imaginatively even though I had never laid eyes on it.

That dream of the Pacific was a vast expanse of auril blue ocean under ever cloudless skies. Sometimes in this dream there would appear an island with golden sand and palm trees, with a blue lagoon, so blue, on which there was always just landing one of those wonderful Pan American flying boats. There, there, see the white spray as the great plane touches down on the blue water of the lagoon.

The pilot and co-pilot step off the dock. They wear starched white cotton uniforms with epaulettes. Their shirts always have short sleeves. They are tanned and tropical.

Somewhere out there Amelia Earhart died, forever a mystery. The first woman to fly the Atlantic, was she an American spy reconnoitering the great Japanese naval base of Truk? There is some evidence that the Japanese spotted her and killed her, but we will probably never know the truth. Amelia Earhart, what a name. Everyone knew, as the decade of the 1930s drew to a close, that the moving American frontier in the Pacific Ocean would collide with the Japanese empire.

Even for an Easterner, the war in the Pacific was always more important than the usual fight that was going on in Europe. Oh yes, we had to defeat the Germans again, sort of a re-run, but the great battles of World War II were really Pearl Harbor, Guadalcanal, Midway, New Guinea, the Coral Sea (wondrous name).

thousands of bureaucrats would be unhorsed," the memo states, adding:

"There would also be a ripple effect because tens of thousands of people in the engineering-support-consultant-think tank defense-intellectual business (generically called Beltway Bandits) would also be superfluous because there would be nobody left to read the tons of drivel they turn out every year."

Furthermore, the memo gloats, "lobbyists, congressional staffers and the diamond cufflink Gucci set in the Washington offices of the major corporations would be out of work because the people left in the bureaucracy would be too busy and too smart to bother with them."

What is there about the French system that would achieve these miracles? For one thing, the defense minister is the procurement czar and the military chiefs of staff "have little to do with procurement besides being the end users and defining requirements," the memo explains. FARMING WORLD

Battling Farmland Erosion

By Bonja Hillgren
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Environmentalists and Senate conservatives have formed an unlikely alliance in favor of withholding federal farm benefits from farmers who fail to practice conservation on highly erodible cropland.

The revolutionary concept, if enacted into law, would for the first time end a glaring contradiction requiring farmers to reduce acreage to qualify for price supports yet providing a sufficient price guarantee for them to risk growing crops on land vulnerable to topsoil loss caused by wind or water.

Provisions approved last week by the Senate Agriculture Committee would give farmers until 1988 to initiate conservation practices to reduce erosion on highly erodible land or lose federal farm benefits.

"I think it's been historic in the Senate Agriculture Committee," said Peter Myers, assistant agriculture secretary for natural resources and environment.

Myers, a Missouri farmer and conservation leader, called the measure the most important conservation effort since federal farm programs were created a half century ago.

The Agriculture Department estimates crops are grown on 132 million acres of highly erodible land, nearly one-third of 421 million acres of U.S. cropland, but conservation is already practiced on some of that. The government is able to identify erodible land under a detailed soil classification system. A national soil survey is 82 percent complete.

Some of the land is so poor farmers would have incentive to take some of the land out of production or put it into a conservation reserve, which is likely to be enacted this year. Under the reserve, the government would pay farmers to quit farming highly erodible cropland and plant trees or grass instead.

The Senate Agriculture Committee approved a reserve of a minimum of 20 million acres and a maximum of 30 million. The House Agriculture Committee has endorsed a 25-million-acre reserve.

Nothing would keep farmers from farming erodible land if they chose to ignore the policy, but they could no longer get government financial support, ranging from commodity price supports to federal credit to crop insurance.

In farm parlance, linking conservation and benefits is called "cross-compliance."

the combat branches are allowed to move into the Armament Directorate; they "are highly qualified, spend their entire careers at the job and get very good at it." And they are not forced to retire at an early age.

Furthermore, "anyone who negotiates any kind of contract is forbidden from going to work for the contractor for five years," the memo notes, adding: "They enforce this rule and are perfectly willing to impose prison sentences on miscreants."

Summing up, the memo lists the features of the French system that the U.S. system lacks: strong checks and balances, a tiny bureaucracy, thoroughly trained personnel with good job security and, finally, "incentives to do the right thing and not the wrong thing."

Footnote: In fairness to the Pentagon, we should note one crucial factor the French procurement system lacks that ours has in abundance: interference from legislators hungry for home-state defense contracts.

Heartbreakers

Bizarre Finish Lifts Maitland

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

DELTONA — Even the thrill of a District 14 Division 2 championship couldn't erase Bobby Lieflander's compassion for Oviedo catcher Jonathan Boston Monday night.

"I feel sorry for him (Boston)," Lieflander said following Maitland's bizarre 4-3 victory over Oviedo. "It stinks for a game to end like this. It was such a great game. It's just too bad it ended that way."

With runners on second and third, Oviedo held a 3-2 lead with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning. Maitland's Ted Schieffelin faced a 2-2 pitch from Oviedo reliever Richard Cobb.

Cobb wound up and delivered. "It was a sinking fastball," said Schieffelin. "It was low but I swung anyway."

He missed. For a brief instant, the Oviedo fans and players were ecstatic. Then, they realized the ball had bounced before Boston caught it. (The ball must be fielded cleanly on a third strike.) Boston straightened up and took a step toward the runner as Schieffelin scrambled down the line. Then he turned and looked back at Chris Norton, the runner on third.

"I went halfway down, trying to get his attention," said Norton. "I wanted him to throw to third because I knew I could get back safely."

Boston, then realizing he needed only to retire the batter, turned back to throw to first. His toss, however, went over first baseman Ron Veras' outstretched glove and rolled down the right field line.

"I dove head first into first base," said Schieffelin. "I saw both runners coming around third. I knew they'd score."

Norton, who had walked to lead off the inning, and J.C. Sandberg, who had doubled one out later, both romped home as Maitland pulled out a shocking 4-3 victory over the dejected Oviedoans to advance to the District 14 final against Division 1 winner, either Rolling Hills, Windermere or Pine Hills.

It was an incredible ending to a very well played, but not very well behaved game. Shouting matches continually broke out between opposing players. Umpires and coaches huddled on several occasions in attempts to restore order. One Maitland player was ejected. Two Volusia County deputy sheriffs were called in after the game to ensure the orderly dispersal of the highly emotional crowd.

Bobby Lieflander watches a letter-high pitch as Jonathan Boston receives.

The baseball, nonetheless, was topnotch. Oviedo starter Dwight Everett and Maitland ace Willy Daunic matched goose eggs for the first three innings. Everett, using his bending curveball to perfection, gave up a leadoff single to Schieffelin but immediately picked him off first. The herky-jerky right-hander then retired the next eight hitters in succession.

Daunic was doing the same with Oviedo. The slim left-hander knocked down seven straight between the first and third before Derek Mays blooped a single down the third base line. Boston then walked but Daunic escaped by getting Poochie King on a popup to second. In the fourth, Willie Galney beat out a bunt for a single. Alan Greene flew out to center but Charlie Warner dropped another bunt. As Daunic threw Warner out at first, Galney rounded second and headed for third. His head-first dive appeared to beat the high tag but he was called out for an inning-ending double play.

Manager Bruce Hodgson's Maitland crew finally got to Everett in the fourth. Schieffelin drew Everett's only walk. Lieflander then smashed a liner to left center. Schieffelin was rounding third as the ball rolled under the fence. He was sent back to third and Lieflander was given a ground rule double.

Everett, though, toughened up. He induced Daunic to groundout to second as the runners held. Kevin O'Brien then hit a towering popup which Cobb corraled at shortstop for the second out. Everett then fell behind Perry Teague 2-0 and when he came in with his roundhouse, Teague topped it down the left field line to chase home both runners for a 2-0 lead.

After a scoreless fifth, Oviedo finally broke through in the sixth for a run. Some poor baserunning and a great catch by Lieflander cost it a big inning, however.

King slashed a single up the middle to lead off. Gaine drew a walk on four pitches. Greene fell behind 0-2 and then tried a surprise bunt. He fouled it off for the third strike. Billy Moorehead then pinch hit for Warner and hit a high popfly

Late Homer Stuns Sanford

ORMOND BEACH — About the only explanation for the Sanford Americans' 4-3 loss to Holly Hill in the Florida Little Major League District 4 Tournament Monday night is it was just not meant to be.

The Americans had a chance to break open a close game but it was taken away from them on a tremendous catch by right fielder Will Finelli. Then, with Sanford holding a 3-2 lead going into the bottom of the sixth, the Americans could only watch in disappointment as Brian Sims slammed a two-run homer into the night to give Holly Hill the victory.

The loss, its first in tournament play, drops Sanford into the losers' bracket where it will take on host Ormond Beach tonight at 6. In the winners' bracket game, Holly Hill faces Ocala Fisher Park at 8. Ocala advanced by squeezing out a 2-1 win over Ormond Beach in Monday's first game.

"It just wasn't meant to be," said Sanford coach Ronnie Sippio. "The kids still played a great game. You can't take that away from them. Now we just have to come back through the losers' bracket."

Sanford couldn't have played much better ball Monday night. The Americans just couldn't break the game open when they had the chance while Holly Hill, which was held to two hits by Eric Washington, took advantage of almost all its opportunities.

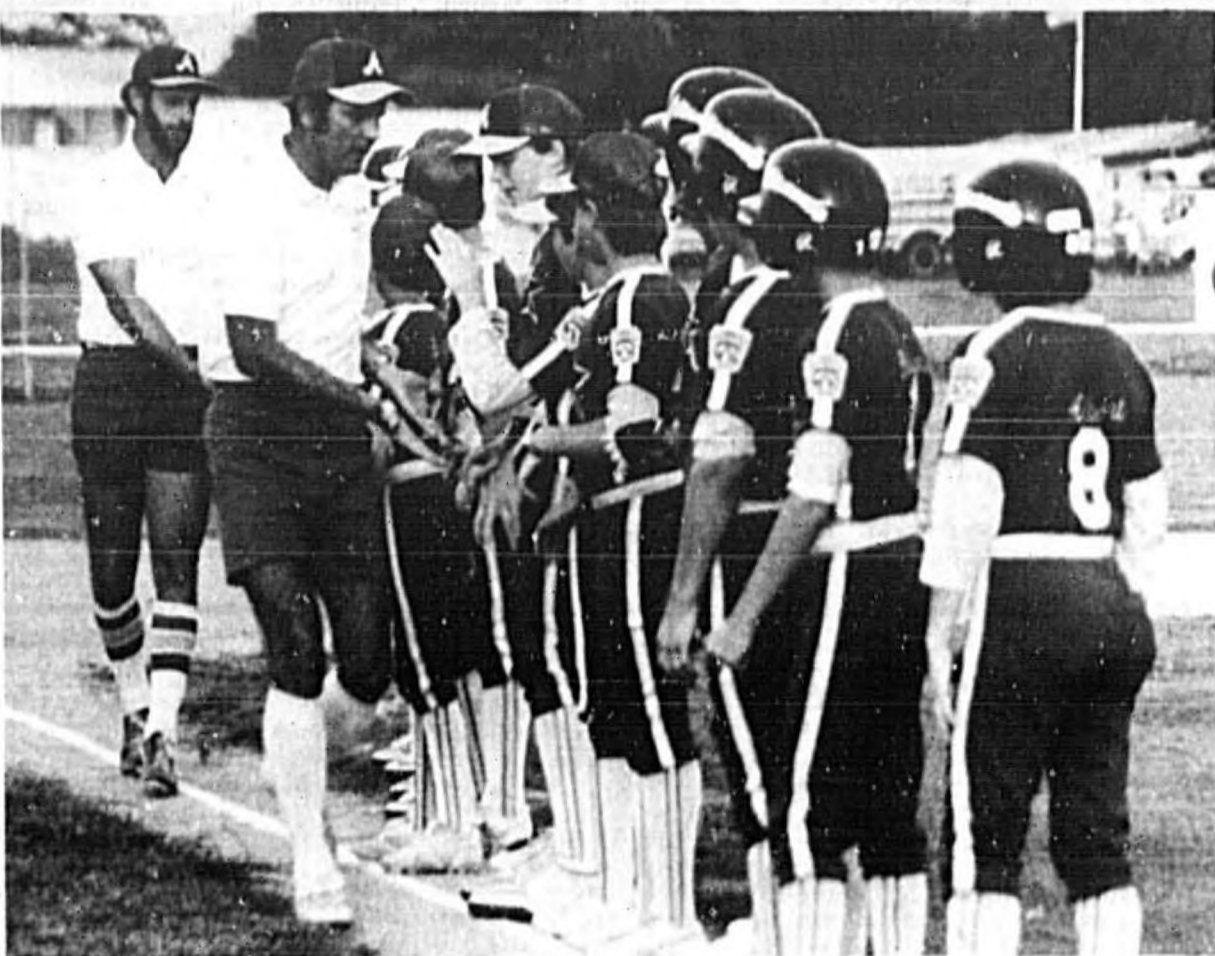

After a scoreless first inning, Sanford took a 1-0 lead in the top of the second. Al Perkins drilled a single to left center to lead off, took second on a passed ball, third on a wild pitch and scored on another wild pitch. It was a good thing Perkins scored when he did because Holly Hill pitcher Brian Applegate went on to strike out the side.

Washington set down Holly Hill quietly in the bottom of the second and Sanford went down without a threat in the top of the third.

Holly Hill then tied the score with a run in the bottom half of the third. Kevin Reynolds drew a walk to lead off and Applegate followed with a walk. Starting Kitchell then hit into a force play with Applegate out at second and Reynolds took third. After Kitchell stole second, Reynolds scored when David Cobert grounded out to short. Duke Pleicones, right, and Frank Harmer fire up the Altamonte Nationals before a tournament game. Altamonte and Oviedo try to avoid elimination tonight at Pierson.

Tulp Decrees 'Major' Warning: Altamontes Beware Of Oviedo

Baseball

"Altamonte beware, both Altamontes, we are ready. There will not be a similar ballgame to our first game."

Those were the words of Oviedo Major all-star manager Louie Tulp after his team disposed of Deltona, 8-5, Monday night to advance to tonight's District 14 Division 2 loser's bracket final against Altamonte National.

Oviedo and the Nationals will square off tonight at 7:30 at Pierson with the winner advancing to the finals against unbeaten Altamonte American. Craig Cozart, who blanked West Volusia with a 1-3 strikeout performance Friday, will be on the mound tonight for Oviedo.

Oviedo has not played the Nationals but it opened the District 14 Division 2 tournament with a lopsided 9-0 loss to the Americans. In that game, sloppy defensive play took Oviedo out of the game early. Tulp said the defensive play has greatly improved and he expects Oviedo to knock off the Nationals tonight and do the same to the Americans Wednesday. His team would then have to top the Americans Thursday to claim the division title since they are unbeaten.

Altamonte skipper Duke Pleicones, whose team suffered an 8-2 loss to the Americans Saturday, said he will start big right-hander Neill James. James was wild in his last outing but finished strongly to help the Nats edge Maitland.

Oviedo, meanwhile, started strongly and finished strongly Monday night at DeLand. It jumped out to a 5-0 lead in the second inning but Deltona fought back to tie it at 5-5 after four frames. Oviedo added a run in the fifth and two more in the sixth while reliever Shelley Elliott blanked Deltona in the last two frames.

After a scoreless first inning, Oviedo erupted for five runs in the second. Russell Davis led off with a double to get the inning going and David Blanton capped it with a two-out, two-run single. Deltona came back with a five-run inning of its own in the third off Oviedo starter Russell Davis. With one run already across, Deltona had the bases loaded when Tony Niemesh launched a grand slam homer to tie the score at 5-5.

Neither team scored in the fourth and Oviedo broke the tie in the fifth on an RBI single by Marvin "Bubba" Fore.

Oviedo then went with Elliott in relief in the bottom of the fifth and he struck out the two batters he faced.

Oviedo then tacked on two more runs in the top of the sixth when, after consecutive singles by Dana Allen and Elliott, Danny Phillips ripped a two-run single.

Elliott came back to retire the side in order in the bottom of the inning with two more strikeouts, giving him four Ks out of the five outs while he was on the mound.

"We didn't do great but we did well enough to win," Tulp said. "The biggest thing was Elliott's two innings of relief. He did an excellent job." — Chris Flister

Apopka, Musselwhite Next For Juniors

Baseball

Jeffrey Thurston tossed a two-hitter and Chris Radcliff pounded out three triples Monday night as the Altamonte Juniors won the District 14 Division 2 title with a 16-1 victory over Oviedo at the Oviedo Little League complex.

Altamonte, which rolled to four straight wins in Division 2 play, goes up against Division 1 champion Apopka for the district crown Wednesday night at 7 at Rolling Hills.

Both teams are unbeaten after division play so the district will be the best 2 of 3 series. The second game will be Thursday and the third game, if necessary, Friday at Rolling Hills.

Apopka advanced with a 12-3 rout of Rolling Hills Monday behind the strong pitching of former Altamonte star Jimmy Musselwhite. Musselwhite, who pitched the Altamonte Nationals to the Little League World Series last year, will probably pitch the second game of the series.

In five innings of work Monday (Oviedo conceded after the fifth), Thurston struck out three and walked three.

Radcliff went into the game with seven hits in seven at bats in the three prior outings. In his first at bat Monday, he ripped a triple for his eighth straight hit but the string was snapped when he flew out his next time up. But the big left-hander crunched two more triples to give him 10 hits in 11 at bats in four games.

Altamonte took command right away with six runs in the first inning. Kevin Wainwright singled up the middle to lead off and Radcliff tripled to right center for a 1-0 lead. Thurston's fielder's choice scored Radcliff for the second run. With two outs, Danny Albert doubled to right to drive in Thurston and Aaron Iatarola. After Curt Prom walked, Kent Brubaker singled to drive in Albert and Jason Varitek reached on an error to chase home Prom for a 6-0 lead.

Altamonte upped its lead to 12-0 with six more runs in the third. The big hit in the inning was Radcliff's three-run triple.

In the fourth, Ricky Shelman grounded out but Varitek doubled. After Greg James flew out, Radcliff tripled to left center to score Shelman. Thurston reached on an error to score Radcliff and Hendricks reached on another error. Jamie Wallace then singled to left and when the left fielder misplayed the ball, Hendricks scored the final run.

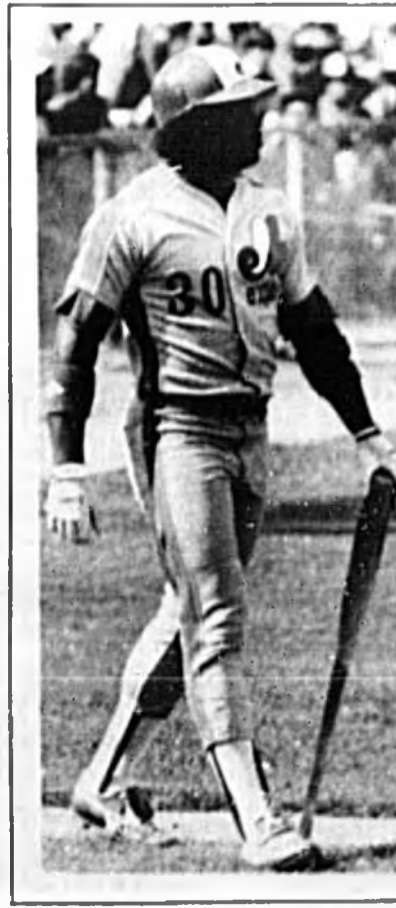

Manager Tom Ferguson's Oviedoans broke up the shutout in the bottom of the fourth when Josh Seward walked, stole second and scored on a single off the bat of Vince Hollis. Hollis had both Oviedo singles.

"Thurston looked real good and he threw a lot of strikes," Altamonte manager Kelly Wainwright said. "We didn't make any errors. We looked real good. We were very patient. When he (Oviedo's pitcher Dwayne Clark) threw it over, we hit it."

Behind Radcliff's three three-baggers, Wainwright and Albert had two hits each. Hendricks ripped a double of the top of the fence in the second. Aaron Iatarola, Brubaker, Shelman and Wallace added a single apiece. Varitek added a two-bagger.

Wainwright said Radcliff would start Wednesday's game against Apopka. "Chris has been throwing the ball real well," he said. "He looked real sharp in his start (a no-hitter against Deltona)."

RUNS, RUNS, RUNS — Although Altamonte outscored its division opposition, 72-4, he does not expect the onslaught to continue against Apopka. "We're due for some tougher competition," he said. "But I think we'll play a lot better against the better teams. The kids will rise to the occasion."

Raines Makes 5th Appearance

Sanford's Tim Raines will make his fifth consecutive All-Star Game appearance tonight when the National League takes on the American League in the July classic at Minneapolis' Metrodome. Raines, who was voted to a starting position one year, has been selected as a reserve four times. Raines put on a surge the past three weeks to convince N.L. manager Dick Williams to select him. The Montreal leftfielder is hitting .295 and is among the leaders in stolen bases, hits, runs and triples. See related All-Star Game articles on 6A.

Players Target Aug. 6 As Strike Date

CHICAGO (UPI) — Major league players have given club owners three weeks to reach a new labor contract or they will walk off the diamonds for the fourth time in baseball history.

The 30-member executive board of the Major League Baseball Players Association voted Monday to set a strike date of Aug. 6. The vote was unanimous except for one unidentified player who argued the strike date should be later in the season.

The players and owners are scheduled to hold their 32nd bargaining session since November on Thursday. The players' contract expired Dec. 31.

"We have seen functionally no indication that the owners have any interest at all in trying to reach an agreement," said Donald Fehr, the union's acting executive director. "In fact, a significant number of players have been told by the owners they don't want to reach an agreement."

Asked if he felt the strike were inevitable, Fehr said "Absolutely not. If we put our heads together there is a chance to find a way through this."

Fehr said the players seriously considered boycotting tonight's All-Star Game in Minneapolis to emphasize their demands, but decided to go ahead with the annual classic in the interest of the fans.

Several players at the game, however, didn't disguise their bitterness toward the owners.

"I think we should do it when it hurts them most — the playoffs and the World Series," said San Diego third baseman Graig Nettles. "That's when all the owners would lose money. And the players would have their money."

Fehr would not say what strategy led to choosing the particular deadline. However, Aug. 6 is exactly two months before the close of the regular season and it falls during the week when pennant races begin to intensify and contending clubs expect large crowds.

"There was a discussion as to other dates and there were a lot of ideas passed around," said Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Jerry Reuss, a non-voting observer at the board meeting. "And when all was said and done, it was decided that August 6 was, in our opinion, the best date."

The players all knew that there would be a date set sometime in August," said Paul Molitor, the Milwaukee third baseman and player representative. "We just didn't know when."

Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, who Sunday described any strike deadline as a "failure date," learned of the players' vote at the Metrodome in Minneapolis.

"I am confident both sides are reasonable and ethical and that they will find an ultimate area of agreement," he said.

Although both sides have been meeting regularly since their contract expired, there has been little discussion of issues: minimum salary, salary arbitration, free agency, pensions and other benefits.

"We had to set some kind of time deadline," said New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly. "We didn't see anything happening. I don't think anyone wants a strike but it seems like nothing was going on."

If the nearly 700 major league players carry out their threat to strike, it would be the third walkout in five years and fourth in baseball history.

The first strike, in the spring of 1972, was a dispute over pension contributions and lasted nine days into the regular season. The players struck again in April 1980 during spring training but the season began as scheduled. The third strike in 1981 lasted seven weeks and a third of the season was canceled.

This year's negotiations have been bogged down in a war of financial analysis of the 26 clubs. The owners say three-quarters of the teams lost money last year and that losses in the industry are escalating so fast they will climb to $155 million.

Fehr said he expected to release an analysis of the owners' financial statements reviewed for the players' union by Stanford University economist Roger Noll on Thursday or Friday.

Nobody, though, seems happy about the possibility of a strike.

"I just need time to let it sink in a little," said Milwaukee All-Star first baseman Cecil Cooper. "I'm concerned, but I think we all are."

A.L. Banks On Metro Hex To Upstage N.L.

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The American League hopes the mysterious Metrodome casts a spell over the National League in Tuesday night's 56th All-Star Game.

"The Metrodome's hex is on them this week," said New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly.

The AL could use some magic to end the NL's dominance in the All-Star series, which the NL leads 35-19-1. The AL has won only twice in the last 14 years.

National League starter LaMarr Hoyt of San Diego said he didn't feel the AL had an edge even though its players know about the indoor stadium's quirks. Most of his All-Star teammates agree.

"It won't make much difference," said Texas outfielder Gary Ward. "The team that gets the most runs is going to win. We'll see tomorrow."

The Metrodome's springy turf has been known to turn singles into triples, and outfielders have a tendency to lose fly balls against the dark ceiling. Although all the AL players have tested the turf, they are still wary of the Metrodome.

"It's a whole new dimension to baseball. The fluorescent lights inside, the turf — everything," said Boston's Wade Boggs.

Yankees manager Billy Martin and owner George Steinbrenner attacked the park last May, saying the national media would discover what a disgrace the stadium is during the All-Star Game.

"It looks a lot better," Mattingly said. "They got rid of the twilight zone in the center of the ceiling and it's a lot brighter in here."

Harold Baines of Chicago has lost his share of fly balls in the outfield while playing against the Minnesota Twins.

"I know better than most about this ballpark," he said. "A lot of the National League teams have AstroTurf and it's bouncy, but not as bouncy as this is."

"Both teams have to get the ball over the plate and both teams have to score runs. It's that simple." This is the third indoor All-Star Game. The first was in the Houston Astrodome in 1968 and the second in Seattle's Kingdome in 1979.

Baseball

Overshadowing the stadium's silliness is the pending players' strike. Players representatives voted Monday in Chicago to strike Aug. 6.

"I feel bad about it. If that's what the union feels is right for us, then it's OK. I'll go home and relax," said Rickey Henderson of the Yankees. "It'll be disappointing because of the way I'm playing lately."

Neither Metrodome nor pending strike could dampen the spirits of Jack Morris of Detroit nor Tom Brunansky of the host Twins.

Morris, a native of St. Paul, Minn., will start for the AL Tuesday night, playing before his hometown fans.

"It's great to be back in Minnesota," the Tigers right hander said. "I grew up here. To come back here in Minnesota, where I grew up, the feelings I have about this All-Star Game are special."

Brunansky, making his first All-Star appearance, received a standing ovation as he stepped into the batting cage for a workout Monday and responded by swatting the first pitch over the left-field fence.

"I wish the whole team (the Twins) was here," Brunansky said. "I feel charged up."

He wasn't about to offer any advice to the NL, which might be tempted to seek the right fielder's help in understanding the Metrodome.

"There aren't a whole lot of places like this," he said.

Prep Star Robs Sandberg, Saves A.L.

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Major-league baseball's prolific power hitters competed in a home-run contest Monday but the star of the event was an 18-year-old high-school player.

Sean Moe, the center fielder for St. Cloud Apollo, was shagging flies during the contest in the Metrodome. The event was held between team workouts for Tuesday's All-Star Game.

Chicago Cubs second baseman Ryne Sandberg sent a long drive to center field. Moe scurried to the warning track and leaped over the fence to rob Sandberg of a homer.

Baseball

The catch prompted a rousing ovation from the crowd of more than 40,000. It also was the difference as the American League sluggers topped the National League's 17-16 in the two-inning contest.

"I really didn't think about it," said Moe, who will attend the University of North Dakota in September. "I just caught the ball. I wasn't sure if I was supposed to catch the ball. I thought when I went in I was going to get my face beat in."

Sandberg looked toward the youngster in amazement after the play.

"It was a great play," said Sandberg, who has 14 homers this season. "He took one away from me. I thought it was funny as one of those used on the highlight films of the week."

Tom Brunansky of the Twins won the competition for the AL, belting three homers in the final at-bat of the event.

"I was nervous," said Brunansky, who has 19 homers. "We were down by two and I had five swings left."

The Oviedo dugout enjoys happier times early in the game Monday night.

to short center. Liefelder couldn't pick up the ball and it fell for a single to lead the bases.

"After I moved from left to center, I had trouble picking up the ball," said the stocky lefty who played in the Altamonte league last year.

He made up for it one batter later. Gary Gotwalt piked on a Daunic fastball and roped a deep liner to center field. Liefelder broke straight back and made a superb over-the-head catch. King, thinking the ball was over Liefelder's head, was halfway down the line from third base. He couldn't scramble back in time to tag and score.

"That was just luck," Liefelder modestly said of his great grab. "I thought I was going to have to dive for it but it just fell in my glove."

Oviedo did get a run when Cobb fouled off several fastballs and eventually drew a walk to force in King. Everett tried a suicide squeeze with two strikes and did get it down but third baseman Wayne Kemp threw him out at first for the third out.

Although the suicide didn't pay off in the sixth, Oviedo performed it perfectly for two runs to take a 3-2 lead in the seventh.

Mays walked to start the frame. Boston rolled a bunt down the third base line and when Kemp threw to second, Mays beat the throw. Daunic then uncorked a wild pitch to move the runners to second and third before striking out King on a sharp breaker over the inside corner.

Gainey was next. With the count 0-1, Austin flashed the squeeze sign. Daunic rocked back and the runners started. "I saw him start to square around, so I threw a high curveball," said Daunic. "I couldn't believe he got it down."

Daunic rushed in for the bunt. He wheeled and just nipped the speedy Gainey at first base. Mays scored easily and Boston never hesitated at third, cutting the corner cleanly and steaming home. His slide beat the return throw and sweep tag by Norton.

"We had them coming and the execution was perfection," said Austin who won two weekend games with the suicide squeeze. "If we win on that bunt, it's phenomenal."

"But we didn't. It's a game. Life goes on."

another run when he made a nice backhanded stop of a grounder and fired to first for the final out of the inning.

Sanford then had its big inning in the top of the fourth when it scored two runs on three hits but the Americans left the bases loaded.

Anderson beat out an infield single to start off the frame and Perkins followed with a single to right center to put runners on the corners. With one out, Harvey Clinger beat out a bunt single to load the bases. Ray Adcock then scored Anderson with a groundout to second for a 2-1 Sanford lead.

Erskine Howard followed with a walk to reload the bases and Tony Duval also looked at four balls to force in Perkins for a 3-1 lead. Jackson then stepped up and belted a line drive down the first base line. If it dropped, and it looked like it would, it would most likely have scored three runs. But Finelli, a left-hander, made an outstanding backhanded grab to end the inning.

"We were about to break the game open when he made that catch," Sippio said. "That was our big chance right there. But he made the play and that was it."

Washington came back to set Holly Hill down in order in the bottom of the fourth but Holly Hill pulled within 3-2 in the fifth. With one out, Reynolds coaxed another walk out of Washington, took second on Applegate's grounder to first and scored on Kitchell's two-out single that hit the third base bag and went past third baseman Adcock and into left field.

Ray (Adcock) would have made the play if the ball didn't hit the bag," Sippio said.

Sanford got a runner to third in the top of the sixth as Clinger singled to left with one out took second on a passed ball and stole third. Applegate then got Adcock on a pop up to the mound and Howard on a grounder to short to end the inning.

Rex Willis lead off the bottom of the sixth for Holly Hill and worked the count to 3-2 on Washington. The big right-hander then came with a fastball which was close but the ump said it was outside and Willis took first on a base on balls. Washington then got two quick strikes on Sims but the next pitch was right in the wheelhouse and he blasted it well over the fence in left center for a 4-3 Holly Hill victory.

"Eric (Washington) was getting a little tired but we had to go with him," Sanford coach Duane LaFollette said. "He threw a good pitch on the first guy (Willis) but the ump called it a ball and then he came back with another good pitch (on Sims) but he got all of it."

The Americans will send Al Perkins to the mound tonight against Ormond Beach. The Americans, who won the Sub-District with three straight wins, will now have to win four straight games for a berth in the Florida Little Major League State Tournament.

Wilander Breezes Past Jaite

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — The mid-day sun never touched Mats Wilander at the U.S. Pro Tennis Championships and neither did any of his opponents.

The top seed and No. 1 attraction, who did not play a daytime match as temperatures soared into the 80s, never lost a set in the eight-day tournament, finishing with a 6-2, 6-4 victory Monday night over Martin Jaite.

Wilander's first-ever U.S. Pro tournament provided a winner's check of $37,500. Whether he will return for another might depend upon the schedule.

"I can't say for sure if I will come back, but I might if they keep putting me in the evenings," said Wilander, ranked third in the world. "I had heard a lot about the heat here."

In the final, the Swede broke Jaite's serve six times and employed the new, aggressive style he used to win the French Open in June.

O-Twins Find Their 'Marks'; St. Pete Blanks Osceola, 6-0

Mark Funderburk hammered his 26th homer and Mark Davidson smacked four hits as the Orlando Twins bopped the Huntsville Stars, 7-2, Monday night at Tinker Field.

The Twins, who trail first-half winner Charlotte by one game in the Southern League's East Division, have tonight off.

Funderburk raised his average to .299 with his homer and single. The homer gave Orlando a 2-1 lead in the fourth inning. Dan Hanggle chipped in a solo homer in the fifth.

Orlando returns to action Wednesday at Chattanooga. It returns home July 25. Hall of Famer Bob Feller will be on hand to pitch to several local bigshots.

In other minor league play, St. Petersburg hung a 6-0 shutout on Osceola in Florida State League baseball. Left-hander Steve Peters struck out nine and yielded six hits.

Osceola, which leads the FSL's Central Division by 2 1/2 games, hosts St. Pete at 6 tonight. Bob Parker was 0 for 3 for Osceola.

Tacy's Decision Shocks Officials

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Wake Forest officials say they were "shocked" to learn that basketball coach Carl Tacy, who guided the Demon Deacons to 222 victories in a 13-year career, is quitting his post and leaving coaching.

"I was shocked to receive the news today of coach Tacy's resignation," Wake Forest athletic director Gene Hooks said Monday. "He has administered a basketball program which has brought national recognition to the university."

Tacy, who will be 53 Thursday, had guided the Deacons to post-season play in each of the past five years. He enjoyed a banner recruiting year and Winston-Salem voters had just passed a bond referendum for construction of a 14,000-seat coliseum.

"There was no indication that anything like this was coming," said Bert Woodard, assistant sports information director. "Things definitely didn't look bleak for him."

Tacy reportedly had the full support of the administration, but was under pressure from fans frustrated by a 15-14 mark last season and the prospect of an upcoming rebuilding year.

Stable Fire Kills 5 Horses

CONWAY, Mass. (UPI) — An overheated lightbulb was the cause of a weekend stable fire which killed five Morgan horses, three of them international champions, the stable's owner said Monday.

The bulb ignited some hay in the loft of the stable where 17 purebred Morgan horses were kept, according to Dana Harlow, owner of the Morgan Manor Farm.

"It flattened my show barn and killed some good horses that were known across the country," Harlow said. "It was devastating — any fire you have is devastating."

Harlow and investigator from the state fire marshal's office probed the wreckage from Saturday's fire on Monday.

One of the horses killed, a breeding stallion, perished when it ran back into the stable after workers had rescued it, Harlow said. Four others had to be destroyed after suffering burns in the fire. Fire Chief Robert Baker said.

Johnson Whereabouts Unknown

MIAMI (UPI) — No one on the Miami Dolphins knows where hefty fullback Pete Johnson is. He better not be in a restaurant.

Johnson was among the missing Monday when the Dolphins opened their pre-camp. Coach Don Shula had wanted Johnson in camp to see how much he weighed and whether the eight-year veteran from Ohio State was in shape.

The Dolphins have said Johnson, whose inability to control his weight is legendary, must report to camp weighing 255 pounds or less to be offered a contract. In past seasons, Johnson has played at close to 300 pounds.

Gold Medalist Takes Sabbatical

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI) — Ed Etzel, an Olympic gold medalist in shooting at the 1984 Los Angeles Games, says he's taking a sabbatical from the sport to pursue an advanced degree in psychology.

Etzel may not have grazed the cover of a cereal box or praised a fast-food hamburger as gymnast Mary Lou Retton has, but he has had his taste of Olympic fame just the same.

Etzel, the rifle coach at West Virginia University, says he's glad the limelight has been turned off.

Dizney: Taking On NFL, TV Is Tough

Football

TAMPA (UPI) — Claiming, "When you take on the NFL and the three networks there's a lot to talk about," Orlando owner Donald Dizney Monday reaffirmed his interest in merging with the USFL's Tampa Bay Bandits.

Dizney was optimistic about a merger despite minimal contact to date with Ralph Campbell, the Bandits' director of business operations who is running the team. Campbell left the USFL owners' meetings in New Jersey Friday to fly back to Tampa, while Dizney stayed until Sunday.

The latest gathering of USFL executives produced little of substance but Dizney refrained from labeling the meetings a failure.

"I'm disappointed we didn't get more done, but I'm happy anytime all the owners get together to discuss the direction of the league," said Dizney. "When you take on the NFL and all three networks, there's a lot to talk about."

Dizney, a limited partner in the Bandits and owner of the Renegades, said he expects to soon step-up negotiations with Campbell — who is trying to find a buyer or a team interested in a merger.

The Jacksonville Bulls have also made inquiries about a merger with the Bandits, whose principal owner, John Bassett, remains in Toronto for treatment of two brain tumors.

"Ralph Campbell and I don't have any meetings scheduled, but I intend to call him very soon," Dizney said. "We're definitely interested in doing something with Tampa Bay."

ICBA Prepares For National Tourney

The ICBA Seminoles, representing the Inter-County Basketball Association, are busy preparing for the National AAU 11 and under boys tournament to be held in Orlando the week of July 22.

The Seminoles captured the state title last month, making it two years in a row for the ICBA to claim a Florida championship. A year ago, ICBA's 13-year-old and under team won the title but did not participate in the Nationals in Memphis.

The Inter-County league enters its fourth season of play in 1983-86. It covers most of south and southeast Seminole County as well as Winter Park, Maitland and Eatonville. There has been interest expressed from the other parts of Orlando-Orange county for next season, according to ICBA president Mickey Norton.

The Seminoles, made up of fifth graders who played "up" this past year in the ICBA's JV boys (sixth and seventh grade) division, will begin practicing for the Nationals this week.

Heading the ICBA Seminole roster is captain Chuckie Atkins, a 10-year-old peppercot from Eatonville. He stands just 4-6 but was named MVP in the state tourney. He scored 17 in the championship game and led the team in steals and assists.

Basketball

Adkins is joined in backcourt by Larry "Scooby" Quinn who scored 18 in the finale. Norton, who also coaches the team, said Kenny Kroeg — a corner sharpshooter, Rhys Daunte — another 4-6 dynamo on defense and Mark Bellhorn who is aggressive and hits and boards well, too, complete the starting five.

"Swingman Cade Reaves adds defense, boards and excessive hustle," said Norton. "Up front big Bobby Anderson (a 5'7" all-state tournament choice), Theron Perkins, Seth Rubin and Kelly Kuhn give depth, inside shooting and lots of rebounding."

There are 24 teams entered in the Nationals, coming from as far away as the state of Washington, Washington D.C., Indiana, New York and Texas. The games will be played at Orlando's Memorial and Walker junior high schools with action day and night from Monday, July 22 through the finals on Saturday morning, July 27.

Forecasters Spot Season's First Tropical Depression

MIAMI (UPI) — The first tropical depression of the 1985 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season formed in the Atlantic Ocean south of Bermuda Monday, forecasters said today.

Officials at the National Hurricane Center at Miami said the storm was located about 200 miles south of Bermuda early today, carrying maximum sustained winds of about 35 miles an hour near its center.

A tropical depression is the first stage of a developing tropical storm, though many fail to reach tropical storm intensity.

Officials said winds were expected to pick up to about 40 mph today. The storm was moving toward the west-northwest at about 10 miles an hour and was expected to maintain that path for the next 24 hours.

Should the depression's sustained winds, whirling counter-clockwise around the center, reach 39 mph, the it would become the first tropical storm of the 1985 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season and would be named Ana.

Shuttle Launch Rescheduled

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The space agency will try to launch the shuttle Challenger around July 29, but the delay prompted by the ship's blastoff abort means two other flights will have to be pushed back, officials say.

NASA officials said Monday the delays for the repeatedly interrupted shuttle schedule will not have a major impact and that no flights will have to be canceled.

After analyzing Friday's abort and the maintenance necessary to ready Challenger for another blastoff try, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration decided to reschedule the ship for launch around the end of the month on a long-planned weeklong astronomy mission with a crew of seven.

Challenger's delay means the new shuttle Atlantis will have to wait until Sept. 12 for its planned test firing, which had been scheduled for July 30, and the ship's maiden launch on a secret military flight will slip from Sept. 19 to early October.

That delay, in turn, will push Challenger's next flight from Oct. 30 into early November.

But NASA spokesman Charles Redmond said in the meantime, Discovery will take off on schedule Aug. 24 for a dramatic mission to rescue a satellite stranded in useless orbit.

Roberta Andrews, a nearby property owner, submitted a copy of the state Department of Environmental Regulation file on Cobia, showing contamination of ground water at the Cobia plant with a 20-foot deep layer of acetones, chloroform and other wastes had been discovered two years ago by the state agency. Also discovered at that time were some 600 barrels of chemical wastes. The barrels have since been removed.

Jim Jarmolowski, a DER environmental specialist, said Monday that Cobia is working with DER to clean up the site.

Noting that the water supply for homes in that area comes from private wells, Mrs. Andrews said those wells may already be contaminated. No tests have been done to determine whether they are contaminated, she said. The residents found out about the Cobia contamination only by accident during the past few days, she said.

Mrs. Andrews also suggested that drainage waters from the contaminated area may have contributed to the recent fish kill in Lake Jesup.

Melanie Gilmartin of the North Lake Jesup Homeowners Association said the Cobia wastes may have contaminated nearby farms and livestock and endangered species in the Lake Jesup area such as bald eagles and black-bellied red foxes. There have also been sightings of the rare Florida panther in that area. Mrs. Gilmartin said. And, she said, HWC could add to the problem.

Also opposing the HWC request were the Sanora Homeowners Association and Carl Schilke of Burear Aluminum. A representative of Cardinal Industries asked for a continuance to allow more time to look into the Cobia problem. A letter of opposition was also read from the Mobilite Corp. which is located near the proposed HWC site.

normal investigation which would be closed to the public until it was completed.

Behnke could have received up to 15 years if he were convicted of the DUI manslaughter charge. The maximum sentence under state law for vehicular homicide is 5 years. Sentencing is set for Aug. 30.

According to Florida Highway Patrol records, Behnke and Miss Crotty, daughter of Kenneth Crotty and Elaine Kobak, also of DeBary, were southbound on U.S. Highway 17-92 in a 1976 Ford between 70 and 100 mph when he lost control of the vehicle just south of the bridge separating Seminole and Volusia counties. The out-of-control vehicle hit a power pole slicing the car in two.

Miss Crotty received fatal injuries in the 10 p.m. crash and Behnke received head injuries.

Behnke was charged with DUI manslaughter and driving with a suspended or revoked driver's license. Behnke's blood alcohol level after the accident was 0.2 percent, according to an FHP report, twice the concentration needed to be considered driving under the influence, which is 0.1 percent.

The girl's parents have filed a civil suit against Behnke and Jeanene M. Behnke, the registered owner of the smashed vehicle, according to court records.

In the suit they claim Behnke negligently and carelessly operated the vehicle, causing the accident and had the permission of Ma. Behnke to drive the car. According to law, the no contest plea Behnke entered in the vehicular homicide instance will have no effect on the civil suit. In a separate incident, a power pole at the same site was struck June 22 by a car traveling at a high rate of speed killing two of three men in the vehicle.

School superintendent Robert Hughes could not be reached for comment.

Morgan said in a letter to the school board's insurance company, Gallagher and Bassett, Winter Park, it was his un-

Mrs. Jemery said in police interviews that Shave apologized after the incident.

Shave claimed Michael spread soap all over the counters of the classroom, spurring the incident, according to Mrs. Jemery. She said when Michael denied doing it that's when Shave lost his temper.

to submit to examinations of his intestines within six months and undergo frequent blood tests.

Dr. Dale Oller, chief of the surgical team at Bethesda Naval Hospital, said the cancer in the 2-inch polyp was confined to the bowel wall. Pathologists said tests showed no cancer cells in the blood or lymph nodes surrounding the growth.

After a five minute session with the surgeons, Reagan said "Well, I'm glad that that's all out."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said that Reagan took the news calmly and that Nancy Reagan also felt a sense of relief.

"Both the president and Mrs. Reagan were relieved that they 'got it all,'" Speakes said.

Oller and Rosenberg met with Mrs. Reagan for 35 minutes, giving her the medical report first before they all went in to see the president.

She asked many questions and Rosenberg said that it is normal to inform the family first so that they can adjust to the situation and also to prepare them to be supportive.

Oller said that Reagan spent most of the day reading.

Reagan complained of "a bit of abdominal pain when he gets out of bed," Speakes said, but the president's vital signs were "the same as someone who has not had surgery."

He said the president's temperature was slightly elevated but below 100 and his blood count was in the normal range. He still was getting antibiotics intravenously.

Reagan walked about 60 feet in his room Monday and was awake until after midnight reading the western novel Jubal Sackett by Louis L'Amour because he wanted to see "if the butler did it."

When he finished, Speakes said, he began reading Calvin Coolidge: Return to Those Hills and fell asleep with the book in his lap.

The officer operating the truck would be paid $22,263 a year.

The commission also agreed to spend another $15,237 for a "parking enforcement specialist." Harriett said a full-time officer has been checking the downtown area for parking violations and could be better used on patrol.

An additional $7,200 was earmarked for a field training program. About six officers, designated "police officer first class," would be paid an additional $100 a month for performing leadership tasks. These officers would be groomed for sergeant positions within the department, Harriett said.

Half of the $88,700 in increased spending for the police department — $44,000 — is for overtime pay. The Supreme Court recently ruled that police officers must be paid overtime for hours worked over 43 hours. Firefighters must be paid time and a half for work over 52 hours.

The commissioners said the increases would help the department expand protection as the city grows. Mayor Smith said the additional money would also help upgrade and professionalize the department, which has suffered in the past from a poor public image.

The Fire Department received an additional $28,354 to its $1.5 million proposed budget. The money is tagged for overtime for firefighters.

Chief Thomas Hickson said he could cut an additional $16,000 from his budget by signing his men up at a local health spa for their exercise routines. Instead of the city paying about $21,000 to build an exercise room at Fire Department Headquarters.

The police and fire departments earlier this year decided to require officers and firefighters to exercise more.

In addition to the savings, Hickson said the spa offers more and better equipment than the city could. But he said the plan could backfire if the city got flak from residents opposed to paying for firefighters to go to a spa.

"What will a percentage of the population think when they drive by and see Engine 15 parked in front of the health spa?" Hickson asked the commission.

The commissioners, fearing potential adverse publicity, then discussed letting the police and fire departments share the weight room at the police department. The department is slated to get another $5,000 for more equipment in the proposed budget.

But Hickson said shared use of the police facility would create a conflict between firefighters and police officers — with firefighters resenting the police department for being favored with its own facility.

The commission agreed and decided to build the firefighters their own weight room.

In the Public Works Department, the commission agreed to spend an additional $41,000 to revamp a dragline. The moved would save the city about $100,000 — the estimated cost of a new one, according to Commissioner David Farr.

The commission also boosted the Chamber of Commerce's $6,500 promotion budget $1,000. The money is tagged for a film that will promote the city.

Despite calls from Farr, no cuts were made Monday. Faison said the increases may be offset by additional money carried forward from this year's budget. So far, $90,000 has been earmarked for that Faison did not say how much more additional cash could be expected.

Faison, acting on a request from Farr, also reluctantly said the commission could count on more money than the $89,000 in federal revenue sharing funds. In his budget message, Faison said the city was to lose about $327,000 in federal money. But Farr, noting that other Seminole County cities, such as Longwood, are budgeting next year for the full amount they are expected to get in federal revenue sharing money. He said Sanford's tax rate could be lowered if more federal money was figured into the budget.

But Faison advised against including the federal money in the budget because the program may be cut by President Reagan. The city would be depending on money it may not get, he said.

The Parks and Recreation Department's $1 million budget was heavily scrutinized by the commission but no cuts or increases were made. The department is adding eight additional workers, including a couple of gardeners, to improve maintenance of city parks. The department was criticized in a recent report made by the city's Scenic Improvement Board for not properly maintaining the city's parks.

The commission was pleased with this proposal, saying it did not want to cut any of the money for recreation to devote to beautification.

"We are not taking anything away from recreation," Commissioner John Mercer said.

Woman's Painful Past May Help Ease Pains Of Others

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Ashamed in Amherst," the young woman who left a good husband and two babies for a married man she thought she couldn't live without. She soon realized she had made a terrible mistake, and messed up her life so badly she couldn't go back. She seriously considered suicide.

Dear Abby

Abby, this letter will be long, so you have my permission to shorten it or change it any way you wish, but I beg you to print it.

BEEN THERE IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR BEEN THERE: Your letter is long, but I'm running it just as you wrote it.

DEAR "ASHAMED": When I was 23, suicide looked pretty good to me, too.

My husband and I had two beautiful children, ages 2 and 3, our own home, good jobs and lots of nice things, but I had to leave to "find myself."

Leaving was especially easy when I found out that a couple of my "good buddies" at work wanted to be more than good buddies. I was Queen of the May and it was party time. My husband filed for divorce and I went along, figuring it was what he wanted. (I found out later it wasn't.)

Fun-time became less and less fun. And a year later I was living with one of my good buddies who wanted to get married, but I didn't. What a mess I'd made of my life? I'd left a wonderful husband and babies for what? I wanted to go back, but I was too ashamed. I considered all the different methods of suicide I'd ever heard of, trying to decide which would be the least difficult for someone to clean up. And what if I failed? I could be paralyzed, have half a brain, or be permanently damaged somehow. If I succeeded, what was waiting for me after this life? Who would find me? My boyfriend? Someone in my family? A stranger?

My children's precious faces kept popping into my head, and I saw people pitying them and whispering to one another. "Their mother killed herself, you know." Worst of all, my adorable babies would always think it was their fault because children feel guilty about anything that goes wrong in their family, and mine already had my divorce to contend with. I had to tough it out for them.

I'd always believed in God, so I prayed. I told him: "God, I've messed up my life, so from now on I'm not going to do anything unless you tell me to do it. Please, just take over my life and do what you want with me."

Maybe you've never believed in God, but if you have just the faintest idea that he exists, give him a try, that's all he needs to get you started. How he answered my prayer is another long story, with an enormously happy ending.

I'm married again, to the most terrific guy in the world. We've been married for eight years, and it's getting better all the time. (It was only nine years ago that I wanted to end my life.) We have a beautiful 14-month-old daughter, and I'm happier now than I ever thought I could (or deserved) to be.

Abby cares, your babies care, and I care. That's four people right there, and there are many more who would let you know they care, too, if they even suspected how hopeless you feel. In faith, hope and love...

"BEEN THERE" Land countless others are indebted to you for your inspiring testimony. Too bad you'll never know how many lives you've touched because you cared enough to write.

DEAR ABBY: I suppose my problem is a common one, but it doesn't make me feel any better. You see, I'm a 25-year-old male and I've never been out with a woman. It's not that I don't like women, it's just that I can't seem to get up the courage to ask one out. I have no trouble talking with the women at work, but asking one of them out is a major problem.

Any advice you can give me will be appreciated.

DEPRESSED IN ASTORIA

DEAR DEPRESSED: There's more than one way to communicate. Why not write one of the women a note inviting her to a movie, concert, dinner, sports event, museum or whatever.

Anyone who writes well enough to elicit a published response from Dear Abby should have no trouble getting a date with the same technique. Go get 'er, Tiger!

DEAR ABBY: I just read about the lady who blows her nose at the dinner table whether she's in a restaurant or in someone's home. I can relate to that.

Whenever I eat something hot, my nose runs. (I have a sinus condition.) I can't just let my nose run, Abby. I have to blow my nose and clear my sinuses.

If you have a better suggestion, let's hear it.

ANOTHER NOSE BLOWER

DEAR BLOWER: Out of respect to your fellow diners, you could leave the table for the big blowout.

Salaries To Climb 6 Percent This Year, Survey Reveals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Salaries in the U.S. employees will get pay raises averaging about 6 percent this year and in 1986, the lowest level in a decade but still well ahead of inflation, according to a survey released Sunday by the Conference Board.

The survey, which included 1,022 companies around the United States, found that most salary increases will be in the 5.5 percent to 7 percent range, for both years.

"Salary increases are clearly down from their earlier, inflation-driven heights and are in fact at their lowest levels in 10 years," the study said.

"But the continued low rate of inflation is producing a real earnings gain for employees. It is also allowing employers to stop using salary increases as cost-of-living catchups and to link pay to individual performance."

Currently, the nation's consumer price index is rising at annual rate of 3 percent. The Conference Board predicts that it will increase 3.4 percent this year and 3.5 percent for 1986.

Raises in the banking industry will be the largest, at about 7 percent, the Board predicted. Increases in 1985 are expected to average 6.5 percent in insurance, 6 percent in manufacturing, retailing and among utility firms and 5 percent in construction.

HCA Loses Merger Gets $200 Million

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Hospital Corp. of America was left standing at the altar Monday when American Hospital Supply and Baxter Travenol Laboratories agreed to a $3.8 billion corporate marriage.

But while Nashville-based HCA may be branded a jilted suitor, it was not left empty-handed. It will receive up to $200 million for giving up its planned merger with American Hospital Supply.

In March HCA announced plans to merge with American Hospital Supply to form the world's largest health care company, the $6.8 billion KURON Corp.

But Baxter Travenol came up with a sweeter bid.

American Hospital Supply of Evanston, Ill., and Baxter Travenol of Deerfield, Ill., announced Monday that their boards had unanimously approved a $3.8 billion combination.

The joint announcement said that Baxter will pay $51 a share in cash to American Hospital shareholders who chose cash. The cash payment is limited to 53 percent of American Hospital's shares.

Baxter will issue a package of Baxter equity securities to the remaining American Hospital shareholders.

In a hastily-called news conference shortly after the announcement, HCA President and Chief Executive Officer Thomas Frist Jr. said he was disappointed with the turn of events but felt the settlement HCA will receive is fair.

Frist said American and Baxter have agreed that American will pay HCA $200 million in cash. Frist said $150 million will be paid if the American-Baxter merger is consummated and payment will be made on the effective date of the merger.

He said the remaining $50 million will be paid if the aggregate purchases by HCA pursuant to its supply agreement with American equals or exceeds $1.325 billion prior to Dec. 31, 1990.

"We felt it was a fair price ... for stepping aside in a $3.8 billion effort," Frist said.

But Frist said he was disappointed "because I saw the vast potential of putting American Hospital and HCA together for the long term."

Frist said HCA will continue to grow.

"We have in the past looked for mergers and will in the future expand through merger acquisitions and internal growth," he said.

"There is nothing in the near future of the magnitude of American."

Frist said HCA did not raise its offer of $36.50 a share for American stock because "it was not in our best interest to compromise our financial strength in the future."

Frist said he admired the "very bold, courageous move" by Baxter President Vernon R. Loucks Jr. to acquire American.

"It behooves us to have as excellent as possible relationship with the new company," he said. "We will be one of the largest customers."

Baxter and HCA have been battling for control of American since late June, when Baxter interrupted HCA's plan to merge with American — an arrangement that was seemingly settled in March.

HCA's original plan proposed that American shareholders would receive stock in KURON. The stock was valued at $36.50 per share.

The HCA-American proposal included a "poison pill" stock swap arrangement to ward off unfriendly intervenors. But the New York Stock Exchange said the arrangement is against its rules and, if executed, would mean both companies would be removed from the Big Board.

After delayed openings, Baxter Travenol stock lost $1.75 to $14 a share, American Hospital Corp. stock gained $3.875 to $46 a share, and HCA stock climbed $1.125 to $51.25 a share.

Elderly Captives Case Bungled

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — An angry prosecutor says housing authorities so bungled an investigation of five elderly women allegedly held captive and robbed of their Social Security checks for 15 years that he will not file criminal charges in the case.

Monmouth County Prosecutor John Kaye would not elaborate on what mistakes were made by the state Division of Housing and Development, but said, "I'm sure you will read about it in the civil lawsuits that will follow this thing."

Kaye said Monday his office has stopped investigating the case and asked the state attorney general to take over.

Housing officials said Sunday that Rosemary Scorp and her mother, Josephine, had kept the five women, in their 60s and 70s, locked in filthy attic rooms and fed them a diet of dog food, tea and bread for up to 15 years.

The housing agency had said the Scorps could face charges of criminal restraint, theft by deception and physical abuse, but Kaye refused to file charges.

Kaye said he was first informed of the allegations about one week ago, but reports sent him by the agency were not enough to warrant prosecution.

"This case got out of hand," he said.

The amateurish lack of professionalism by these housing people has seriously jeopardized any possibility of a conviction — that's if there has been any wrongdoing.

"There will be no charges from this office. We stopped the investigation (Monday), although it is incomplete," Kaye said. "We're sending the entire matter to the attorney general."

Discussing the housing agency's investigation, Kaye said, "The sworn statements they took and the videotapes they took — there is no indication of abuse or maltreatment. The report of a diet of dog food is absolutely false."

William Connolly, the agency's director, said Sunday investigators found the women while searching the Scorps' Ocean Township house July 3 and Saturday.

On Monday, before Kaye commented on the case, Connolly said he did not think there would be any prosecution because the five alleged captives would not make "very good witnesses." He could not be reached for comment after Kaye discussed the case.

The Scorps were charged last week with running two illegal boarding homes and ordered to pay $50,000 in fines. They are appealing that order.

State Workers May Get Emergency Fire Training

By United Press International
With 375,000 acres of wild brush and timber already charred and California's last major brushfire far from contained, officials are considering a plan to train state workers in emergency firefighting techniques.

Up to 2,000 employees from the state Department of Transportation, the California National Guard and California Conservation Corps could undergo a 16-hour course in tackling wildfires, although now they do not handle such work directly.

Puerto Rican Crowned 1985 Miss Universo

MIAMI (UPI) — Miss Puerto Rico, Deborah Carthy-Deu, overcame the title of "queen of fire and water" to win the coveted Miss Universe 1985 title, $175,000 in cash and prizes and a movie screen test.

She was crowned Monday night by Miss Universe 1984, Yvonne Ryding of Sweden.

More than 600 million people worldwide watched on television as the field of 79 contestants was trimmed to 10 semi-finalists, then five finalists during the two-hour pageant.

Carthy-Deu, 19, 5-foot-8 and brown-haired, is an aspiring actress who majors in theater at the University of Puerto Rico. She is the second woman from Puerto Rico to win the Miss Universe title, Mariel Malaret won in 1970.

The new Miss Universe has had bad luck at past beauty pageants in Puerto Rico. Fire broke out at one, interrupting the contest for hours. A downpour drenched the Miss Puerto Rico pageant in April.

"Many people said I was the queen of fire and water," Carthy-Deu said.

She won the evening gown competition in a white, low-cut gown with gold trim to move into serious contention for the crown.

Miss Spain, Teresa Sanchez, 20, had taken an early lead in the voting among the celebrity judges with a victory in the swimsuit competition.

Sanchez was first runner-up. She won a $2,500 cash scholarship and will serve as Miss Universe if Carthy-Deu is unable to fulfill her duties.

Miss Zaire, Benita Mureku, 18, was second runner-up, winning a $2,000 scholarship.

Thumping Helps Detect Trouble In The Lungs

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — What's the doctor doing when he takes his finger and thumps on my back during an exam?

DEAR READER — Sound alters its characteristics depending on what it passes through. Normal lungs are filled with air. When a doctor thumps your back, he is listening for (and feeling) the sound vibrations. They are perceived as a resonant and somewhat hollow tone. If, on the other hand, there is fluid in the chest or some condition that replaces lung air, the tone will be flatter and less resonant. This medical technique is called percussion, and despite the extensive use of chest X-rays for diagnosis, it remains a useful and accurate method to detect abnormalities.

You can try it yourself and see what I mean. Firmly rest your third finger on your thigh and strike it smartly with the tip of the curved third finger of your other hand. You will experience a sensation (from your fingers and ears) of a dull, flat sound. Now repeat the process on the wall of your abdomen. The sound will be more hollow because, unlike solid thigh muscle, the intestine contains air. The difference in tone results from sound traveling through different tissues of unequal density.

Try percussing other parts of your body. The lungs, for example, give off a slightly different note than the abdomen. With a little practice, you will be able to detect the dullness of your liver (in the right upper abdomen) and, possibly, even a full bladder (just above the pubic bone).

You can try this on your friends, on a date or at a party. Pretty soon everyone will be percussing each other like crazy and having a thumping good time.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is susceptibility to skin infections and rashes inherited, or is it more often the result of poor diet and stress? Is there any way to reduce one's susceptibility to skin disorders?

DEAR READER — For the most part, skin sensitivity seems to be inherited. Acne and allergies, for example, tend to run in families. Of course, poor diet and stress add to the likelihood of skin irritation.

Just because you inherited a certain type of skin does not mean that you are helpless in coping with dermatological problems, however. You may need to wash or shampoo more often if your skin is oily. You may have to use a sunscreen if you are particularly sensitive to ultraviolet light, and you may have to avoid certain foods or clothing if you have allergies. Finally, you may choose to see a dermatologist if your skin problems persist or are severe. Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio, 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Denver bridge teacher Norma Sands is the author of a very useful book titled "Playing the Cards." This week you're invited to test yourself with some of her themes. Try not to look at the East-West hands until you've developed a plan.

Playing today's deal, you might be tempted to grab dummy's club ace and go after trumps first. If that was your thought, go right to the foot of the class. You definitely have two heart losers and a spade loser, but you must contend with the possible diamond loser, and you have to hurry.

If you play spades at trick two, it is certain that the defenders will attack the diamond suit. An eventual diamond loser will be inevitable.

Instead of going up with the club ace, win the first club trick with the king and play a heart. When West plays low, put in the 10, forcing out East's king. East will thrust the queen of diamonds at you. Win the ace and play another heart.

West can win the ace and play another diamond, but you will be able to take the king, get to dummy with the club ace, and shed your little diamond on the heart queen. Only then is it time to play trumps.

This approach makes the hand whenever West holds the heart jack with either the ace or the king. What if West holds the A-K of hearts, but no jack? His opening lead would then almost surely have been the heart king.
