Andrew J. May And Garsson Brothers Sentenced To Jail

Ex-Congressman Gets Up To 2 Years For Accepting Bribe In War Contract Deal

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Ex-Congressman Andrew J. May was sentenced today to a term of from eight months to two years in prison on charges of accepting $53,634.07 in bribes while he was wartime chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee.

The two men accused of paying the bribes—munitions makers Murray and Henry Garsson—were given prison terms with a minimum of eight months and a maximum of two years.

The maximum penalty that could have been imposed on each by Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut was six years in prison and a fine of $30,000.

The sentencing was delayed for more than two hours while the defendants' lawyer pleaded for a new trial and May beseeched the court for mercy.

The 72-year-old former Kentucky democratic congressman insisted that he had never taken "a single dime" dishonestly during his long service in congress.

He told Schweinhaut: "I stand before the court today with a clear, clean conscience. I never violated a law as far as I know in the 72 years of my life. I never received a dollar directly or indirectly that was not honestly earned or justly due."

May was convicted July 3 after a hearing in which he accepted $53,634.07 in bribes from munitions makers Murray and Henry Garsson. The Garsson brothers were found guilty of giving the bribes for favors and, like May, came into court to hear their penalty.

May told Judge Schweinhaut: "I never got a single dime from the Garssons or anybody else. I never did a thing in Congress that today vexes my conscience. I stand here today on the mercy of the court. If I go to jail, I know it will carry the case to the Supreme Court if necessary, pleaded for a new trial and praised May and the Garssons before May addressed the court.

Among the reasons cited by the lawyer for a new trial was the contention that the jurors had listened to radio descriptions of the trial.

Value Of County Property Given As $32,827,990

Nearly Half Of This Valuation Exempted For Tax Purposes

The total assessed valuation of all property in Seminole County at the present time is $32,827,990, or $545,241 more than the 1945 assessment. It was revealed today by Sanford F. Doudney, county tax assessor.

The total assessed value of all property in the county which is exempt or partially exempt from taxation is $14,649,700, he declared.

This is 44.6 percent of the total valuation.

Assessed value of property against which taxes may be levied for county maintenance purposes is the difference between the $32,827,990 and the $14,649,700 exemption, or $18,178,290.

Homesteads, valued at $5,801,140, are exempt by State law from taxation for maintenance, but can be taxed for interest and sinking fund. Adding this sum to the valuation for maintenance equals $23,979,430 valuation for the interest and sinking fund.

Of the $14,649,700 exemption, $8,825,900 is the value of property wholly exempt. The largest items in this sum are the Sanford Municipal Airport and Osceola airport which total $4,460,000 in estimated value, said Mr. Doudney. A total of $4,108,900 is exempted under many classifications including churches, schools, hospitals, and County owned lands. Other items exempted are churches, City Hall, churches, schools, lodges, disability and widows exemptions, etc. Also exempt is $221,900 worth of land that has reverted to the State Internal Improvement Board, and $950 of delinquent, non-exempt property.

Property classified as taxable includes non-exempt land valued at $12,784,540; personal property valued at $3,597,270 and railroad and telegraph properties valued at $1,796,480.

The assessed valuation at present shows a $545,241 increase over the $32,282,750 valuation for 1945, Mr. Doudney revealed.

This increase, he said, is due to natural causes such as new buildings and improvements. Maintenance tax valuation is $403,211 more than the $17,174,080 value of 1945.

In 1945, according to the report of the State Comptroller, Seminole County had a total assessed value of $32,282,750.

Slovak Communism Is Far Cry From Rigid Marxist Doctrines

By DANIEL DE LUCE
BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, July 25 (AP)—Slovak Communism wears a white collar to the office—and goes to church on Sunday.

It beats the propaganda drums for Soviet foreign policy. But it admits it never wants to see a Russian army on Slovak soil again.

It talks of democracy instead of dictatorship of the proletariat. It wants Czechoslovakia's windows to the West wide open.

What is Slovak Communism? The answer, from Party Secretary General Stefan Bastovansky, reading old Marxist doctrine, is about as much as a jet-propelled racer resembles the flying machine that the Wright brothers launched at Kittyhawk.

A quiet, scholarly ex-railway clerk, 37-year-old Bastovansky controls the party machinery which harvested a Red vote of 31 per cent in the first Slovak elections after war.

On the wall of Bastovansky's simple office hangs a picture of Lenin, but the No. 1 Bolshevik of history has a quizzical expression on his bearded face.

"The accusation that the Slovak Communist Party's program is made in Moscow is not often made, and it is easy to disprove," Bastovansky said.

"We propose nothing that cannot be achieved through democratic processes. The fact that we advocate cooperation with other parties in achieving a broad socialization of the economic structure of the state presupposes that we are open to compromises."

"We are for evolution, not revolution."

Bastovansky has never visited Moscow and he welcomes "internationalists" (Continued on Page Four)

Lions Schedule Practice Session To Beat Rotary

The Lions Club is prepared to take on the Rotary Club with a softball game to be played next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Lakewood softball park, it was announced today by Harry Robson at the meeting of the Lions at the Tourist Center.

"This is all the practice necessary to beat Rotary," he declared. Club President Robson was not so optimistic, however, and pointed out that none other than Dub Epps is slated to take the mound for the Rotarians.

However, Epps is due to face the following formidable lineup of Lion sluggers:

Russian Says United Nations Has No Power

Gromyko Insists Security Council Can Not Force Balkans To Aid On Border

LAKE SUCCESS, July 25 (AP)—Russia told the United Nations Security Council today the council had no power to force the Balkan states to cooperate with the American-proposed border commission.

Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko thus took sharp issue with contentions of Herschel H. Johnson, Deputy U. S. Delegate, that decisions of the council under Chapter Six of the UN Charter were binding.

Johnson immediately countered with another warning that failure of any state to comply with a decision of the Council might result in enforcement measures of the strongest kind.

"Any failure would lay the non-complying states open to serious action to insure their cooperation," Johnson said. "The Council can make such decisions under Chapter VI."

Johnson summed up his views in this way:

"The Council has the power to make investigations. Countries are obligated to cooperate. It is the duty of the members of the United Nations to abide by the decisions."

Gromyko replied that if a nation found that the work of the commission "is incompatible with its sovereignty, then it can refuse to cooperate."

State Department, AMG Disagree On German Policies

BERLIN, July 25 (AP)—A difference between the policies of the United States State Department and views of the American military government here concerning Germany became apparent today.

The news of Secretary of State Marshall's invitation to France to participate in a three-power conference on Germany's industrial level, but governing officials in Germany with sharp impact.

The U. S. Military Governor, General Lucius D. Clay, declined to comment but it was learned authoritatively that neither he nor any other top American military government official was officially informed of the State Department's sudden offer to France either before or after it was made.

The only information received in Germany on the whole was a request to hold up the announcement of an American-British agreement on Germany's level of industry, reached after weeks of negotiation, these sources said.

The question of giving France a voice in deciding what the level of industry shall be for the combined American and British zones of Germany was considered by authoritative sources here as virtually a complete reversal of arrangements which will drop out of collection.

Lewis Inspects Site Of Mine Disaster

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., July 25 (AP)—John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers chief, arrived here by automobile today for an inspection of the mine in which 27 coal diggers perished from an explosion yesterday.

Lewis, who was accompanied by Hugh White, president of District 12 (Illinois) of the U.M.W., and by Governor Dwight H. Green of Illinois in a downtown hotel lobby and then went out to the old Ben Coal company's No. 8 mine.

The old newsmen he had just arrived, he said because he had just arrived.

Before Lewis arrived here, a federal mine inspector examined the mangled corridor where the miners were killed and attributed the blast to an explosion of gas.

William Gallagher, Evansville, Ind., the federal mine inspector who began his examination while rescuers still sought the last three bodies said "it was a gas explosion. There's no question about it."

Twenty-six of the approximately 200 miners at work in the diggings 8000 feet underground were found about a mile and a half south of the main entrance shaft. One of five seriously injured miners removed to a hospital died today.

UNSOLVED CRIME

Repeal Of War Laws Is Signed By Truman; Armed Forces United

Air Force Is Given Equal Rank With Army And Navy In Unification Bill

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Congress sent to President Truman today legislation putting the Army and Navy under a single cabinet officer—to be called the Secretary of National Defense.

This so-called armed services unification measure also gives the Air Force equal rank with the land and sea forces. At present, the Air Force is a branch in the War Department where land officers wield biggest influence.

The legislation is one of the big measures Congress had ticked off for final action before adjournment tomorrow.

It is also one of the major proposals Mr. Truman made to the lawmakers. For future national defense, he also asked that military training be required for all physically fit young men.

All he got on that was a promise of early action when Congress reconvenes next January. That promise came when the House approved a universal training bill by a vote of 20 to 0, thus adding it to the calendar of bills which will be awaiting the legislators when they reconvene.

This was another progress in Congress' drive to clean its slate for adjournment.

The House passed compromise legislation to end Nov. 1 the government's restrictions on installment buying and selling.

The Senate Labor Committee approved 9 to 3 the President's nomination of former Democratic Senator Abe Ribicoff to be a member of the National Labor Relations Board. The committee also approved the nomination of J. Copeland Gray, as a member of the board and Robert N. Dethman as general counsel.

Republicans, after holding the Senate in session all last night, gave up serious efforts to put (Continued on Page Six)

New ACL Freight Depot Building Is Now In Operation

The new Atlantic Coast Line Freight Depot building, recently completed by the Lee Construction Company of Jacksonville, was put into use this week. Another improvement, an automobile loading platform is now being built near the freight terminal. Masonry work is by Bridges and Williams, Lake Mary, contractors.

The new building with its concrete floors and cement block walls is at freight car level on the south end, and tracks will be raised about 14 inches on the north end so that the new rubber-tired hand trucks can be pushed more easily in and out of cars. It was announced by E. N. Fielding, freight agent.

During wartime, Sanford was a transfer point for the whole of Florida, but since the completion of the big terminal at Waycross, Ga., this transfer business has been much reduced, and at present goods and merchandise are received mostly for the Sanford area. The location of the freight depot in the heart of Sanford makes it easily accessible to business interests, and thinking ahead is ample.

The building is more than 200 feet long and 35 feet wide, but a side-loading platform running the full length on the west side and on the north side has a 50 foot platform with roof shelter with a ramp for easy unloading of cars.

Within the freight building is a separate office for E. E. Feltner, warehouse foreman. He pointed out a screened enclosure which is rat proof, and used for storing food and perishables. There is a large platform scale of five-ton capacity. Rest rooms have hot water provision and ice water drinking fountains.

It is planned to cut the wood and improve the appearance of the area to the rear and side of the depot, according to officials. In front of the office building, shrubs bloom brightly.

Dutch Report End Of First Phase Of Indonesian Fight

BATAVIA, July 25 (AP)—A high-ranking Dutch source said today the first phase of Dutch operations against the Indonesian Republican army, aimed at isolating central Java from the rest of the island, had been completed.

Reporting from the Republican capital of Jogjakarta, deep in the interior, Associated Press correspondent Harris Jackson said independent Republicans obviously saw the possibility that the Dutch would render the Dutch position continuously precarious with guerrilla warfare.

The Dutch informant here said the next step for Dutch troops would be to mop up zones of resistance in the eastern and western parts of the island and install new administrations. Whether Dutch troops then would drive on Jogjakarta in an attempt to smash the remainder of the republic was undecided, the informant said.

A Netherlands army communiqué said fighting already was begun in the eastern part of the island.

Series Of Robberies Reported In Palatka

PALATKA, July 25 (AP)—County Judge Caudill Green today said two men and a girl had confessed participating in a series of business house burglaries during the past six months. He added the group was led by the 19-year-old wife of one of the prisoners.

Fifteen persons have been charged with participating in the affair which has upset official and business circles over Putnam county, but only four have been taken in custody.

Today Sheriff W. J. Reeves was looking for Coleman Hancock after Judge Green issued a warrant for him and set bond at $1,000, saying that Hancock had jumped a $200 bond.

HEARING SET

LEONARDTOWN, Md., July 25 (AP)—Civil authorities today tentatively set Aug. 1 for arraignment and preliminary hearing for a young seaman charged with the murder of Mrs. Julia Katona, 35 year-old navy wife found slain after a penny-ante poker game at her home near Tall Timbers, Md. The seaman, Joseph Daniel Houllotte, 22, of Manchester, N. H., is held in the county jail here.

JOINT SUIT

TALLAHASSEE, July 25 (AP)—The Supreme Court today ruled that a husband and wife may sue jointly for separate claims arising from the same transaction. Answering a certified question submitted by the circuit court of Orange county, the court said the joint suit could be filed even though a 1943 legislative act permits a woman to sue and be sued in her own right.

RAPIST EXECUTED

COLUMBIA, S.C., July 25 (AP)—An 18-year-old negro, Bert Grant, was electrocuted here today for kidnapping a 16-year-old white woman in Darlington county two months ago. Just 18 minutes before he was led into the pentagonal death chamber, Grant asked for and was given "a little more chicken" from his last night's supper.

"It sure is good," he remarked, eating heartily. "I remarked, 'He admitted his guilt.' I shortened my days myself," he told the prison chaplain.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

GOOD WORKS WILL GO FAR TO ASSURE ABUNDANCE OF GRACE IN YOUR OWN LIFE. God is able to make all grace abound toward you, that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound in every good work.—II Cor. 9:8.

Another "screwball" has been picked up in the halls of Congress with a pistol in his pocket, this time only a few minutes after a visit from the President. Only a few days ago Senator Quicker of Ohio was shot twice in the same building by another "screwball."

It was a high tribute which Bernie C. Papy paid the newspapers of Florida when he denounced them from the witness stand in Tallahassee as "propaganda" of the bill against book makers.

What capitalism can do, even under present day handicaps, is shown by a report from World's Business which says that the United States now produces 50 percent of the entire world's industrial output, a figure which has increased from 23 percent in the last 75 years.

The Supreme Court has held that it is not libel to say that a man was shot inside a gambling establishment "when actually he was shot outside."

Papy's Acquittal

Although Bernie Papy has been acquitted by a jury of six men in Tallahassee of offering a bribe to defeat the anti-bookie bill, some two and a half million Floridians are still convinced that the bill to put this corrupt ring of international bookmakers out of business, so far as this state is concerned, should have been passed, and would have been passed, if an unusual amount of undue influence had not been brought to bear.

They are also of the opinion that some law should be enacted by the Legislature making it a little more illegal to offer bribes to legislators than it is at present, and that some of the difficulties of convicting in such bribery cases should be removed.

Unfortunately, it is not enough for a legislator to have the courage to denounce such action, to protest against the use of bribery in the Legislature, or to openly accuse the man who made the offer. He must have proof. He must be able to show "beyond any reasonable doubt" which may linger in the minds of the jury, that the offer was made.

Offers of bribery are not apt to be made in the form of typewritten communications. Nor does one hire a town hall with a public address system when he wants to put over some nefarious scheme. He may not even have said "five hundred dollars," or "a case of Scotch whiskey," or "five hundred," or "a case of Scotch" would have been readily understood by anyone he was trying to buy.

Yet, despite the fact that Mr. Papy has not been proved guilty, we believe that a great deal of good has been accomplished by Bradley Odham's disclosures. He has thrown the fear of God into every politician in Tallahassee who believes that bribery is a natural concomitant of our political machinery. He has given them cause to think twice before offering bribes in the future.

It is no fun to be hauled into court on bribery charges, even if you are acquitted.

Immortal Greece

The guns still bark in the Balkans and the newspapers still tell of the carnage in the mountains of northern Greece, and Americans glance at the headlines and growl a little, perhaps, saying that they wish those trouble-makers would take their guns and go home. What is Greece to them?

Yet here and there an American eye lights up at the recognition of a name that he learned in his school days, recalling the Great Achilles and the deeds he wrought, and those of many another classic story of verse and fable, when men were so mighty that their deeds, real or imagined, shook the world, and seemed so real that they have endured in men's minds and in books (then unknown) that have lasted even to the present day.

And not only do their fables and poetry endure, as great as any ever written, but also the science and philosophy which gave mankind the first great urge for most of the basic sciences and arts. And so true is this that, even in the decadent Greece of today, much can be learned from her modern scholars.

Farley's Chances

James A. Farley's recently published reminiscences show that he seriously hoped to head the Democratic presidential ticket in 1940. It is hard to see why. In all American history no one known only as a political manager has ever won a major party nomination.

The nearest example was Martin Van Buren, who had been closely associated with Tammany Hall and with party wire-pulling in New York. But Van Buren was more than a politician. He had been senator, governor, secretary of state and minister to England, and had filled all these posts with credit. By contrast, Farley's only national office was the postmaster-generalship, a traditional reward for campaign managers.

Farley's hopes for the nomination were probably based on his wide acquaintance with Democratic politicians all over the United States. To expect his election he must have interpreted the sweeping Democratic victory in 1936 as meaning that any nominee of the party could win in 1940. Had he been nominated, he might have been greatly surprised in November.

SANFORD FORUM

Editor, Sanford Herald, Dear Sir:

An interesting footnote to the history of celery in Sanford is the fact that in 1898 when my father, Mr. H. H. Chappell, was preparing his land, which is on what is now Celery Avenue, for the growing of celery, drainage was as hard, if not a harder problem than irrigation.

Housewife Persuaded To Become Explorer

By TOM BRADSHAW
AP Newsfeatures.
PHILADELPHIA—Mrs. Gertrude Darlington finally has forsaken the idea of a vine-covered cottage in favor of things like ananacox and periodic attacks of malaria.

Mrs. Darlington's husband, Charles W., has convinced her at last that exploring is fun, as the two prepared for their jaunt into the South American jungle.

The shift from office worker and housewife to 20th century Magellans began back in 1945 after Darlington became interested in books on exploration.

As a result, Darlington left his job in the accounting office of an explosive plant and invested his $4,000 savings in adventure.

Mrs. Darlington, 32-year-old former public school physical education instructor, was not at all happy about the prospect of following her husband into the South American jungles, but followed she did.

The little vine-covered cottage she had been dreaming of owning on the road, is only five-seven, which makes him gaze sharply upward to get a gander at Harvey's eyes. . . . And Bert Wheeler, who filled in during Fay's vacation last year, being only five-foot-four, had to look almost vertically skyward to justify the alleged height of the comedy's invisible cotton-tail. . . . Jimmy Stewart is six-foot-three, and Producer Brock Pemberton hopes this inch-and-a-half short-comer will not prey upon Harvey's sense of step-ladder superiority.

Two real-life married couples are having their stage lives thoroughly scrambled by their roles in the play "Van Winkle" which is being done by "The Company of Twelve," having its warm weather theatrical fling right here in Manhattan, at the City Center Theater. . . . Phillip Bourneuf and Myron McGrath are actually married to Frances Reid and Grace Coppin, respectively, and all are featured in the venerable drama.

For drastic purposes, Mrs. Bourneuf plays Mr. B's daughter, and Mrs. McGrath plays Mr. B's wife. . . . The final dramatic insult is that Mr. McGrath plays the heavy, and nobody likes him. . . . Not even his wife. . . . On stage, that is.

Miss Geraldine Barbara Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Marshall of Oklahoma City, Okla., whose engagement to Peyton Miller Williams of this city was announced today. The wedding will be an event of early September.

some day faded gradually. Instead she found herself sleeping under mesquite netting in steaming jungle country. She lasted out that first six-month excursion and insisted on going again with her husband last November.

Both of them shifted their diet from ham and eggs to alligator tails, iguanas and armadillos. They learned to go barefoot though the water-filled swamps native fashion, despite leeches and fire ants. And they learned to laugh at such experiences as the time an electric eel shocked Mrs. Darlington's ox, causing the animal to throw her.

Darlington says that now his wife is as confident an explorer as himself. She wasn't bothered at all by helping to chaperone three ananacox snakes back from South America recently to the Philadelphia Zoo. The ship's crew was more disturbed by the presence of such passengers, Darlington says.

Those first two jaunts into the jungle were planned pretty much by Darlington himself. Now husband and wife are working together preparing for their next adventure.

Scotch Tour Made By Royal Family

LONDON, July 25, (AP)—The Royal family returned to Buckingham Palace today after a 10-day visit to Scotland during which they stopped at Holyrood Castle and toured Scottish border towns. Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, whose engagement to Princess Elizabeth was announced just before the Royal family departed for Scotland, accompanied them on the trip.

Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, July 25 (AP)—Swing music is definitely on the decline. This is the consensus of five top band leaders, all of them proficient in the jive idiom.

I found the bandmen indulging in a tart jab at the "That's Life" and questioned each on the issue "whither swing?" Only vibraphone king Lionel Hampton attested that hotter music gets a 50-50 break with the sweet stuff in court at demand. Colleague Louie (Satchmo) Armstrong said the trend is away from swing.

Other comments:—Charlie Barnett: "The public doesn't go for the hot stuff any more. Everything I play has to be danceable."

Tommy Dorsey: "We have to play sweet to the young dance. If they want to just listen, they'll go to a juke box instead of a ballroom."

Benny Goodman: "They still go for swing, if it's good. But most of it isn't very good these days."

Frank Sinatra will put all his other activities aside when he does his priest role in "Miracle of The Bells." He considers it his first dramatic break. . . . Betti Davis plans a European trip after "Winter Meeting." She'll play a spinster in her first film since her baby.

Gene Autry starts his third film under his own banner Aug. 6 and is aiming his new pictures at major-theater release, instead of "westerns only" houses. . . . Ava Gardner gets her first starring role at MGM opposite Van Johnson in "Wanted." She is pleased with the billing, but would like to get away from playing shady lady-roles.

Errol Flynn's hair, which was bleached for "Silver River," will stay that way for "Don Juan," which will be in color. . . . Sidney Blackmer is portraying Teddy Roosevelt for the sixth time in "Ever The Beginning." He tells me he has turned down the role 15 other times so producers won't think that's the only role he can do.

Peter Lawford is in "Joan of Lorraine" and he will give anything to appear with Ingrid Bergman. With "Easter Parade" postponed because of Judy Garland's breakdown, he may do it. . . . David Selznick may be interested in the way his star is billed in Paris, billboard for "Cluny Brown," which just opened there, advertise "Charles Boyer and Jefferson Jones."

Edward G. Robinson thinks he had enough of tough roles and is anxious for a comedy. He's playing a crystal-gazer in "The Night Has 1,000 Eyes." . . . The dance studio at MGM is still called "Eleanor Powell Bungalow." She hasn't been there in years. . . . Tom D'Andrea plays Dennis Morgan's pal in "The Victor." He's been pal to almost every woman star. . . . Marshall Thompson wants his MGM bosses to give him a Billy the Kid role. He's the right age for it and he learned the quick draw while vacationing in Wyoming with Wally Beery.

"Romance of Rosy Ridge" is a slow-moving but diverting backwoods drama of the north-south strife in Missouri after the Civil War. It has many exciting moments and would have been thoroughly satisfying with less conventional treatment. . . . Ban Johnson sings and act with his expert charm and is aided by a bright newcomer, Janet Leigh.

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)

Brig. General Wallace H. Graham, White House physician, said today he plans to fly to Grandview, Mo., tonight or tomorrow to check up again on the condition of President Truman's 91-year-old mother. Graham said that when he was in Missouri last week the condition of Mrs. Martha E. Truman was "very critical" but he did not consider it such as to warrant the President's going there. Graham made his comment to reporters after news dispatches from Missouri said Mrs. Truman had suffered a setback.

Luxury Liner Gets New Refinements

AP Newfeatures SOUTHAMPTON, England—The Queen Mary, "lovely lady," the sailors call her—is being restored to her pre-war elegance...

Along a deck where thousands of American and Canadian soldiers stood in blacked-out war-time going grayhound wouldn't know their Mary now...

War Role Forgotten Some three-quarters of a million soldiers who were her passengers during seven years as an ocean-going grayhound wouldn't know thousands of soldiers' brides and children the Mary brought to new homes in America.

Thousands of feet of serviceable, unlovely plaster board have been ripped out in drab quarters which housed 80 GIs a crossing there is a luxurious cocktail bar, gray in red leather upholstery and bright red and soft gray curtains.

The main restaurants have been redecorated; what was the brides' movie theater has been turned into a supper club with fluorescent lighting and tinted mirrors.

Luxury Quarters The wartime sickbay, with its wooden partitions, has been replaced by the first class smoking room. The main lounge again is a massive room with lofty maple wood pillars, paneling and a thick carpet of russet and gold.

When the 81,235-ton Cunard liner went to war, she left behind her in various parts of the world some 10,000 pieces of furniture and fittings. New York had a couple of hundred boxes and cases and in Australia stored quantities of furniture and 2,500 cabin and stateroom doors.

Hundreds of miles of wiring were removed and rewired, decks scraped, rugs laid, pumps, generators and other equipment were torn down and worn parts replaced. The whole ship underwent a gigantic face-lifting.

She's undergoing trial runs now and, at the end of the month, will be off for New York to the cheers of the crowd and the music of the bands.

Atom Bomb Knocked Pride Out Of Japs

By RUSSELL BRINES AP Newfeatures NAGASAKI, Japan—The world's second atomic bomb came to the people of this Kyushu city by an ironic twist of fate. It left no pride among them, no desire to perpetuate that agonizing moment with monuments.

Now they want only to forget and in forgetting they have let the weeds grow over homesites in gashed Urakami valley.

The valley, about two miles from the center of town, was hit by chance on the morning of August 9, 1945. The primary target for that atom raid, Kokura, about 100 miles northward, was obscured by weather. Nagasaki was second on the day's list.

Japanese figures say 30,000 were killed and 42,000 were wounded in the blinding single flash and reverberating after-effects of the bomb. It wiped out hundreds of thickly-packed workers' homes in the valley, ripped through factories and spent its fury high on enveloping hills where baldness still remains among the forests.

Paralleling ridges channelled the bomb's effects and protected Nagasaki itself from the force of the blast. Fires from the valley raced without check the two miles into town, causing most of its wartime damage.

Only a few have returned to the valley. Flimsy homes have been built in spots. A new church has been erected alongside the ruins of the Catholic church, which once had a congregation of 10,000 Japanese.

The remainder is a desolate vista of ruins and scathed earth covered with spring weeds. The epicenter of the blast is marked only by a huge arrow, erected by Americans. A once-busy navy yard, including a giant torpedo plant, slumps in ruins.

Residents of Hiroshima, on Honshu Island, have a fierce pride in surviving the first atom bomb. They are contemplating an atomic library and a monument in the center of the city. Hundreds of homes have been rebuilt and business is brisk—even in atomic souvenirs.

But Urakami valley has dropped into the backwash of war.

Russia Hits UN

He added that without adequate access to comprehensive and objective information on the world in which we live, the "very existence of democracy could be endangered."

Martin told the delegates that his government believed that facilities for full comprehensive and objective reporting, and the "right of access of all men to such information will contribute to international understanding and friendship."

"We believe, also," he said "that the principles of freedom of information of the press are essential to the other purposes of the United Nations: to the maintenance of international peace, and to the solution of problems of an economic, social, cultural and humanitarian character. We believe that it is essential to the promotion of social progress and better standards of living in larger freedom."

Martin declared that the delegates had met in the UN to make an effort to build a true community of all the people of the world. He said that his government deplored any effort to limit or destroy that community.

"We are inevitably concerned with any barriers which might remove any peoples, or groups of peoples, in any part of the world, from the process of give-and-take in economic, cultural or political affairs—which full participation in a world community implies," he said.

"We are concerned lest any such existing barriers be extended, we are deeply desirous that any existing barriers be removed. We need hardly stress the relevance of this principle to freedom of information. For censorship of outgoing news is one such barrier; internal censorship is another; prohibition of imported books and periodicals is a third. Denial of visas for foreign correspondents is also a barrier, and a dangerous one."

Indonesian Fight

"Our forces received the full support of the population surrounding the city," the Indonesian communique said.

Dutch communique said Dutch forces which swept past six more western Java towns, including an important former-Republican army headquarters, found much evidence of Indonesian scorched earth tactics.

The communique said two rubber-estates captured in West Java suffered badly and there was much destruction and burning at Tjiljalangka and Madjalaja. Air reconnaissance showed the important West Java radio station at Malabar was ablaze, the bulletin added.

May and the Garsons previously had protested their innocence and their lawyers had claimed these convictions were "unfair" and the result of "prejudice."

German was part of Bavaria for 700 years. The separation followed the end of the war. Now Bavarians want it back.

Whether the Palatinate wants to return also is controversial. This is a section of independent thinking that contribute so many early immigrants to the United States.

The French will not tolerate talk of a return to the old status, however. Communist spokesmen say this is one of the reasons they have banned public speeches by Dr. Karl Schumacher, leader of German socialists, an advocate of centralistic ideas.

The French now also require special permission for the German press to make telephone calls from the area to Munich with the result that the flow of news has been cut down from the sector to Bavaria.

PLAY BALL

NEW YORK, July 25, (AP)—President Ford Frick of the National League today ordered "in the name of common sense and sportsmanship" that the disputed game of last Sunday between the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals at Ebbets Field be replayed on Aug. 18, thus upholding the protest of the St. Louis club.

Greek Fight

A United Nations Balkan Subcommittee still in session in Ioannina drafted a report, opposed by the Soviet and Polish delegates, for U. N. headquarters, dispatches said.

Informed sources said this report included the subcommittee's conclusions that Greek guerrillas had entered this country from Albania and that Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia had obstructed the work of the subcommittee.

The Greek government last week reported the army had stopped a guerrilla drive on Ioannina said to have started in Albania.

Warrants were issued last night for the arrest of Nicholas Zachariades, leader of the Greek Communist Party, and Militades Porphyrogenis, former Communist labor minister. The government charged the two with "anti-national activities" and revolutionary plotting.

Speaking to French Communists in Strasbourg recently, Porphyrogenis urged that a "free" government be established in Greece, and Athens government circles subsequently indicated they expected a move in that direction.

Last night, however, Constantine Rodopoulos, governor general of northern Greece, said in an interview that the Communists "don't have the strength" to set up a provisional government.

German Policies

This policy of self-sufficiency through an industrial revival in Western Germany has been advocated by Herbert Hoover and numerous American business men studying Germany and has had the strong support of the War Department.

France had opposed this policy at every turn. The French proposed a low level of German industry, coupled with international control of the Ruhr.

The French position was regarded in military government quarters here as directly incompatible with the announced aim of Britain and the United States as far as a bizonal Germany was concerned.

These sources pointed out that France steadfastly had refused to join the bizonal merger and accept joint responsibility for Western Germany. They said the Marshall offer for a three-power conference apparently would give France the same sort of veto power over the rehabilitation of the Ruhr that France has exercised in the Allied Control Council in Berlin for the past two years.

The difference between the Army and State Departments aims in Germany became apparent at the foreign ministers Moscow conference last Spring.

The army school of thought, led by General Clay, held that it was all important to rebuild Germany as a prosperous nation both for the economic well being of Europe and to keep Germany from going communist.

The position of General Clay was subordinated at Moscow to the predominant State Department school, which held that the German problem could wait and that the most important thing was to

Last night, however, Constantine Rodopoulos, governor general of northern Greece, said in an interview that the Communists "don't have the strength" to set up a provisional government.

Informed sources said this report included the subcommittee's conclusions that Greek guerrillas had entered this country from Albania and that Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia had obstructed the work of the subcommittee.

The Greek government last week reported the army had stopped a guerrilla drive on Ioannina said to have started in Albania.

ed in military government quarters here as directly incompatible with the announced aim of Britain and the United States as far as a bizonal Germany was concerned.

These sources pointed out that France steadfastly had refused to join the bizonal merger and accept joint responsibility for Western Germany. They said the Marshall offer for a three-power conference apparently would give France the same sort of veto power over the rehabilitation of the Ruhr that France has exercised in the Allied Control Council in Berlin for the past two years.

The difference between the Army and State Departments aims in Germany became apparent at the foreign ministers Moscow conference last Spring.

The army school of thought, led by General Clay, held that it was all important to rebuild Germany as a prosperous nation both for the economic well being of Europe and to keep Germany from going communist.

The position of General Clay was subordinated at Moscow to the predominant State Department school, which held that the German problem could wait and that the most important thing was to negotiated, signed and readied for publication, hurried messages from Washington and London halted the release. It subsequently was disclosed that this resulted from a French protest.

"I think now we are right back where we were at Potsdam and the situation is far more critical," top official said. "If we are going to have a policy, let's have one and carry it out and not reverse our field every five months. We seem to be trying to ride two horses going in different directions."

In the two years since the war, veteran officials said, this was the first time they could recall that the American military government had not been kept informed of developments and moves in Washington.

The State Department's move in German policy was coupled with the recent State Department insistence that Ruhr coal talks take place in Washington, rather than in Berlin. This was taken as indicating that Secretary Marshall and the State Department were making direct control of policy making in Germany, which previously rested with the War Department.

The Ruhr talks, for example, would be in direct contrast with the handling by Clay and Robertson of the level of industry talks in which both were empowered to reach agreements.

Officials here regarded the immediate settlement of the industrial level for Germany as essential.

They pointed out that, while industry was lagging far below the envisioned levels, it was necessary to tell the German people what industries they shall have left and end the uncertainty and confusion from which the Communist party draws its strength in Germany.
