Work on the 66.6 million widening project was stopped on July 19, following a dispute between the prime contractor, Mahoney Construction, and the local subcontractor.

The subcontractor left the job site, taking with him most almost all of the large equipment being used in the project. At that time, John Mahoney said. "We are renegotiating our contract for the heavy equip-ment and it will be on the job shortly."

The new local project manager for Mahoney is Steve Ashby would not discuss the delay in construction. Ashby's secretary said he was not allowed to comment, and was referring all calls to Mahoney's Boston office.

A spokesman at Mahoney's office said. "He has been away all week, and no one else is allowed to discuss the Lake Mary project."

Seminole County Project Engineer for Produc-tion, Frank Van Pelt said, "As we understand it, there is a continuing dispute between Mahoney and some of his subcontractors, and between the subcontractors and their subcontractors." He added, "That's probably why they refuse to comment."

SANFORD - Construction of the new U.S. Highway 17-92 bridge over the St. Johns River will benefit the Seminole County's land preservation program.

Tuesday, officials from the Florida Department of Transportation presented county commissioners with a $270,000 check. The check was to compensate for the approximately four acres of wetlands that will be destroyed during the construction of the four-lane bridge. An equal amount will be given to the Volusia County Council.

Beminole County will use the money towards the purchase of undeveloped Bt. Johns River wetlands in the Riverside Ranch Retrest area of the Senford Farms subdivision. The su is located about a mile west of Interstate 4. The county is seeking to buy about 320 acres in the area to preserve it from development as part of their $20 million program approved by voters in 1990.

Hurricane Andrew: Echoes of howling rage

Sanford Salvation Army heads south

By VICKI DeBORA Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Sanford unit of the Salvation Army loaded up a trailer with sandwiches, drinks and other food and headed to Ft.

Lauderdale Tuesday. According to Mrs. Capt. Joy Bergen of the local unit, 15 volunteers began cooking hams and turkeys and making sandwiches to send to the Selvation Army unit in Ft. Lauderdale where refugees from Hurricane Andrew are seeking shelter.

"We all work together and if there is a need in some other unit we respond to it together," Bergen said.

Capt. Gary Bergen, who heads the Sanford unit, drove a trailer to south Florida and returned to Sanford Tuesday evening.

Though Sanford has already sent 175 sandwiches. 150 bags of potato chips, 20 gallons of lemonade, 10 gallons of water, four allced cooked turkeys, 20 cooked hams, 36 case of soda and 24 cases of other canned drinks,

"We are really hoping for cash to be able to pay for the items we already sent down. but we will accept canned food or bags of food too," she said.

She noted that if schools or businesses conduct a food drive the Sanford unit will make arrangements to pick up such large donations.

"We'll send the trailer out for something like that," she said.

Those with smaller dona-tions or with financial offerings are asked to bring them to the unit at 700 W. 24th St. in Sanford. They are open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Bergen said they were called to go to Ft. Lauderdale by the Salvation Army unit in that area. There are five units in Miami and they have enough supplies and food at the moment to take care of their needs. Some of the outlying shelters are in more dire need.

MIAMI - South Floridians struggled to get on with their lives after Hurricane Andrew's heavy blow amid stunning destruction and lack of necessities ranging from electricity and water to cash.

The Florida death toll, which officials said was certain to rise. stood at 14 Tuesday. Two of the victims were blind men.

Authorities said at least 50,000 people were left homeless and some 35,000 were still in shelters.

An estimated 2 million people sweated in the dark without electricity for lights or air conditioning, although hundreds of thousands customers did get power back by Tuesday evening. Health officials warned that massive outbreaks of gastroin-testinal ailments and other communicable diseases were a threat because of overflowing sewage and garbage, rotting food and tainted water.

All Dade County residents were ordered to boil or chemically treat water before drinking it - if they had any. In one hard-hit neighborhood south of Miami, 500 people lined up for free bottled water Tuesday.

"We've got nothing." said Alma Sawyer, who got the max-imum three bottles. "We're the only house with a roof on our street. I'm housing three families . I have six bables on water bottles."

Police made more than 200 arrests, for looting, curfew vio-lations and related incidents. Arguments and fights broke out in some lines, but for the most part. South Floridians seemed to be trying to work together.

"God was merciful here." Alleen Martines said of her Coral Gables neighborhood, where damage was mostly limited to fallen trees and power lines. "Still, we're taking little sips of FRANKLIN, La. - Hurricane Andrew threw its deadly fury into Louisiana's bayous and marshes with 140 mph winds and tornadoes, striking only a glancing blow at New Orleans before heading deep into Cajun country today.

The storm, already labeled the costlicst natural disaster in U.S. history with damage put at more than $15 billion, added plenty to the bill it ran up earlier this week in Florida and the Bahamas.

A tornado spun off by the storm ripped through a New Orleans suburb, and 30 people were reported injured. Andrew also flooded roads, uprooted trees, tore off huge limbs and started power lines popping throughout the region.

"This house is falling apart around me," said Ken Perry, manager of an airport in Patterson, 60 miles west of New Orleans. "I'm standing in water right now in the house, and we're 10 feet above sea level."

A natural-gas pipeline exploded early today in a residential section of Kenner, a New Orleans suburb, said Capt. Mike Zito, Fire Department spokesman. He said the blaze might have been ignited by an exploding transformer. No injuries were immediately reported. About 75 people were evacuated. A high school in Patterson where 120 people took refuge lost its roof to the wind, said Sheriff Hucy Bourgeois of St. Mary Parish. He said no one was hurt. Andrew was blamed for 17 deaths in Florida and the Bahamas. Official reports of any deaths in Louisiana were not expected for hours.

SANFORD - Another attempt to rezone property across from the Sanford Middle School was scheduled for Monday night's city commission meeting. The matter was tabled, but not before cillzens had the opportunity to object.

The property is located east of French Avenue, and between 15th Street and 18th Street. It is presently owned by the Semi-nole County School Hoard, but being considered for purchase by Richard Hardwick, of Tidewaer Enterprises, Inc., of Clearwater.

Hardwick has requested the property be rezoned from SR-1A. single family residential. to GC-2, general commercial. The city's Planning and Zoning Commission had recommended denial during an Aug. 6 meeting.

When the tiem was presented last night, Hardwick recom-mended that the matter be tabled until the next city commission meeting, to allow him time to add more information to his presentation. Mayor Bettye Smith accepted the request, but because many citizens had attended the meeting to object. they were allowed to address commissioners.

Hardwick had earlier announced that he planned a strip shopping center on the property. and that he had already received a letter of intent from Eckerd Drugs. He said he had discussed the proposal with Block Buster Video and Dunkin Donute.

Citizens were against the de-velopment. "People who come in to Sanford already see French Avenue as trash." said Betsy Phillips, of 423 W. 18th Street. "Now these people want to come in here and put up a strip mall in a residential area when we already have plenty of other strip malls that are vacant. If the city wants to do more to attract younger residents, I don't see how this is going to help.

Sylvia Smith, 425 W. 18th Street said. "If you will deny this application. I would be willing to get together with the people in the neighborhood and see what can be done to buy this property for use as a park. Our neighborhood just does not want this commercial development." Glen McKendry, 122 W. 17th Street said. "I've checked the area between 13th and 20th Streets, and between Park and French Avenues. We already have at least seven service stations and a car wash. We certainly don't need any more."

Stepdad faces chair for killing of second child

By Associated Press

ORLANDO - Irvin Rogera spent less than two years in prison for killing a stepdaughter In 1987.

Rogers could be sentenced to death next month, however, for the beating death of a second child last September.

A circuit court jury Monday found Rogers, 25, guilty of first-degree murder in the slaying of his 8-month-old stepson. Marquise Lewis, by punching him in the stomach.

Rogers admitted both killings. which were certly similar.

Circuit Judge Alice Blackwell White allowed the jury to hear testimony about both crimes because the two slayings were so similar.

Orange County Medical Exam-iner Thomas Hegert testified Monday that both children were hit hard about three times by a fist or hand. Both suffered cracked ribs and a torn liver and severe internal bleeding.

In 1987, Rogers pleaded guilty to manulaughter in the killing of his stepdaughter from another marriage, 17-month-old Ashley Bridges.

He was sentenced to seven years and released in October 1989 because of crowded prisons and time off for good behavior.

According to trial testimony, Rogers had been drinking with two friends last Sept. 7 outside his house when he had words with Marquise's father — the ex-boyfriend of Rogers' wife.

The little boy was killed a short time later.

A defense lawyer said the killing was not planned and urged jurors to convict Rogers of second-degree murder.

Scientific probability

The United States is still the unrivaled global leader in basic scientific research. But whether it will retain this economically vital edge in the next century will hinge in part on whether Congress supports two mammoth science projects.

One is the space station Freedom and the other is the giant atom smasher known as the superconducting super-collider. Both projects face heavy realstance on Capitol Hill, where cflorts are under way to kill them this year.

Neither is cheap. The orbiting space laboratory would cost at least $30 billion; the 54-mile-long underground particle accelerator to be built in Texas carries a price tag of $8.25 billion. In each case, however, the costs would be partly offset by contributions from international partners. Japan, Russia, China, South Korea and Canada are among the nations expected to collaborate on these so-called "big science" ventures. The strong interest from other countries attests to the value of both projects. The space station would provide an irreplaceable environment for conducting biomedical research and for developing an array of other advanced technologies. More important, if man is ever to venture to Mars or elsewhere in the solar system, a space station will be essential to learn about human exposure to prolonged weightless flight.

The superconducting super-collider would supply insight into the basic building blocks of matter. It may hold the key to understanding the nature of matter and, with it, the fundamental structure of the universe.

America's continued leadership role in science depends on these two undertakings. Congress should support them.

Census nonsense

More than a year ago, then-U.S. Commerce Secretary Robert Mossbacher dug his heels into the mud of inaccuracy. Rather than make any attempt to correct the badly flawed 1990 Census - the 1990 Undercount - the Bush administration stuck with the tried but not quite true.

Given a chance to rectify matters somewhat, in one of the population updates the Census Bureau does every two years, there's a danger that, once again, accuracy won't count for much.

The 1990 population figure of 248 million was off by about 2.1 percent. That effectively nulled the existence of about 5 million people. many of them inner-city minorities. The rate of error in California was even worse, off by about 3.7 percent, or 1.13 million people. That means a decade of the state being shortchanged. California unfairly loses hundreds of millions of dollars in federal funds (not to mention one congressional seat to which it was entitled).

It was said that "multiculturalism" revealed an American stress fracture, that the harsh candidactes of David Duke and Pat Buchanan showed the political dimension of the ugly situation, that "polariza-tion" would be the halimark of the coming election, that the Los Angeles riot proved it, that a long hot summer would drill it home.

The Democratic Convention in New York bashed Bush and ridiculed Quayle. The Republican Convention in Houston worked over both Clintons, and Buchanan slithered back into the spotlight to proclaim a "religious war." Democrats said that Republicans wanted to help swinish bankers get golden polo mallets. Republicans said Democrats favored socialism leading to serfdom.

There will be more to come. You will hear complaints that this is the lowest, stupidest, ugliest, stillest, rottenest, and, above all, the most divisive campaign ever.

Wrong. America is coming together: you could see that at the conventions. The people are being heard. Beneath all the balloons are some emerging agreements about first principles that have long been contentious. Consider a lew. The idea of bigger government is dead. Isolationism is dead. Trade and markets work. Pluralism - both ethnic and cultural - is with us. Values

It now concerns the same amount ofgovernment va. less government. Bill Clinton keeps saying. "I hate bureaucracy." The idea that bigger gov-ernment is the answer crested in the 1960s. The front cover of the "right wing" and "conservative" Republican platform shows a picture, circa 1900, of immigrants coming to America. That is not a right-wing image. Those immigrants are Southern European Catholics. (Don't ask me how I know; I know.) And that used to be a big issue in America. Liberals were for those immigrants: conservatives were against them. Now, America is a big tent, and everyone knows it.

Does this mean that Republicans and Democrats are the same, that liberals and conservatives would have the same policies? Surely not. It means that they have a different emphasis on items that are becoming part of our common set of beliefs

JACK ANDERSON D'Amato serves constituents well

WASHINGTON - Marine Cpl. Chuck Kleckner lost the use of his right hand while serving in the military in the 1950s, and was discharged with 70 percent disability benefits. About 10 years ago, a mugger savagely beal him on the streets of New York City, crippling his other hand.

Kleckner went to a Veterans Administration physi-clan to have his disability raised to 100 percent. Instead, it was slashed to 30 percent because the doctor saw "im-provement" in his right hand.

Despairing and facing destitution. Kleckner called New York's Republican Sen. Alfonse D'Amato in a plea for help. "Anger was not the word." says Kleckner. "Fear was the word. Fear. Ter-FOF.

On paper, D'Amato should be running scared.

Not only did D'Amato get

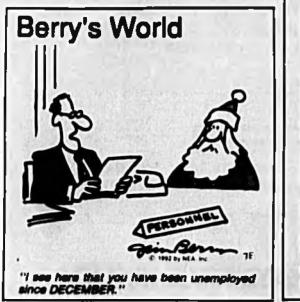

Kleckner's benefits restored, he got them increased to the full 100 percent disability Kleckner deserved.

"I don't think that if he and his office hadn't gotten involved I would have had a prayer," Kleckner told us. "Somebody finally cared. Having been hurt in the 1950s, I had the disability so long. Then getting hurt again — emotionally and physically it destroyed me Kleckner's story and thousands of others show why constituent service has become the hallmark of D'Amato's political career, and how it could serve as a springboard for him to mount a come-from-behind re-election win. On paper, D'Amato should be running scared because he is facing a double whammy: he's an incumbent male facing a probable female challenger. But no member of Congress has ever run a constituent service shop like D'Amato has. Even his flercest critics concede that D'Amato hustles when it comes to righting wrongs for hts 18 million constituents. And his nickname — "Senator Pothole" — is an allusion to his focus on the parochial. "He's filled in a pothole but his votes have destroyed the road." charges Frank Wilkinson, press secretary for former vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, who is the strong favorite to win the Sept. 15 Democratic primary and face D'Amato this November. "Gerry Ferraro ran a first-rate constituent service office when she was a congresswoman from Queens. It was one of her top priorities. Although most polls show him trailing Ferarro, the race promises to be a mudfest. If Ferarro mentions last year's Senate Ethics Committee probe of D'Amato — which cleared him of most charges concerning influence peddling by his brother - D'Amsto can fire back with recently published reports linking some Ferarro associates to the Mafia. D'Amato is drawing from a deep well of senatorial social work stories to make his case with new radio spots that are energizing his once sagging base of support. In the ads, a litany of first-person accounts is followed by the bottom line he's trying to drill in to voters: "Sen. At D'Amato. Getting it done. Making waves. Taking them on."

In this computer age, errors spread like viruses. The sooner they are corrected, at least to some extent, the less the damage. California should not have to wait 10 years.

But lawmakers in Eastern and Midwest states where population growth is flat or even shrinking, and which benefited inordinately from the faulty 1990 calculation, would have people believe that this is so much petty hair-splitting. They are pressuring the Census Bureau not to compensate for 1990's miscount. The Census Bureau already has scrapped plans to make its adjustment decision by Sept. 1 and instead will open the issue up to public hearings — and to emotional politicking.

The census should, above all, be accurate, not prey to manipulation. Census officials should use the blennnial update to rectify the skewed count as best they can.

funny, and frankly frustrated.

After all, the first lady had long been suspected of having pro-choice, uh, leanings. People in the know had always known.

Then, "finally, Barbara," after years of being a national tease on the subject, had dropped the seventh vell and talked pro-choice. "Finally. Barbara" had shared her belief that Republicans should at least have the right to choose sides on the subject of choice without a party order.

But anybody who believed in the power of pillow talk had a wake-up call at this convention. After all, while the first wife was privately, discreetly, and only allegedly prochoice, what was the president doing? Appointing pro-life judges, promoting gag rules and turning back the clock on population policies.

After the first lady had publicly said that the party should take abortion out of the platform, what did the delegates do? In a voice vote, they adopted the most conservative platform in their history, with a plank that favors an absolute ban on all abortions.

'Finally, Barbara." may have been offering up a national role model of a pro-choice, pro-Bush voter. A subtle, blinking - If not winking - sign for the voters that if she can do it, so can you. But these days, being pro-Bush and pro-choice is getting to be a bit of a stretch, requiring some ideological acrobatics.

indeed moments after the platform was adopted, Ann Stone, the feisty head of Republicans for Choice, declared herself still in favor of Bush. But Tuesday morning, she still lamely tried to avoid explaining her loyalty. Right now I can't be enthusiastic.

Kathy Gingrich Lubbers who has had more than her share of experience in family debates on this issue, echoed the shaky sentiment. The 29-year-old pro-choice daughter of pro-life Rep. Newt Gingrich said with a laugh. "My father taught us to be independent thinkers. Be careful what you wish for."

She is still pro-father and pro-choice, but ask her whether it's possible to remain pro-president and she says, "We are all trying real hard. I don't know how long it can last."

Susan Molinari, the 34-year-old congreaswoman from Staten Island, N.Y., has been through a similar struggle with her father, who held the congressional seat before her. She and her mother are as resolutely pro-choice as her father is pro-life.

If this group of committed Republicans is having trouble being against the platform and for the president, the voters are likely to find it even harder. As Lis Hager, a Republican candidate for governor of New Hampshire says. "They still don't realize that choice is a bottom line for voters."

The night before she flew to Houston, Hager answered questions for an hour from a group of several hundred voters. Curious, she finally d, "Don't you want to know where I stand on choice?" Several in the crowd said. "We already know that or we wouldn't even be bere.

They promised Hand a replacement.

Affordable housing to get money

By J. MARK BARPIELD Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Seminole County affordable housing spending could double in three years with the new state initiative to provide self-owned homes for more Floridians.

Seminole County expects to receive $305,000 from the State Housing Initiative Program. SHIP, by early next year. Next year, the county anticipates re-ceiving $479,000 from the program. But by 1996, the county anticipates receiving $1.8 mil-tion or more a year from the program.

The increased spending for affordable housing is dramatic when you consider by the end of this year, the county will have spent or allocated a total of $2.7 million for its affordable housing effort - a period spanning seven years.

"Eventually, SHIP will double our spending." said Buddy Balagia.

SHIP was titled the "1992 William E. Sadowski Affordable Housing Act" in honor of Community Affairs Secretary Bill Sadowski who was killed in an airplane accident before the bill was passed this year. The state program, which will total $1 billion by 2001, is financed by the state documentary stamp tax on land trasactions.

Seminole County will use the money to focus on providing housing for "very low" and low" income residents.

The regulations issued Monday by the state Department of Business Regulation are good for 90 days.

"We had to take a position to give this industry something to hold on to." DBR Secretary Janet Ferris said. "The Legislature has agreed to come up with new parimutuel laws in the organizational session ... Nov. 17."

Ferris said she will appoint a panel of industry representatives in the next few weeks to develop more comprehensive rules to recommend to lawmakers. She also apologized to track and fronton operators and owners who have been offended by her warnings that organized crime could get a hold on the industry if left unregulated.

"I know the industry is angry with me for the comments I made about the infiltration of organized crime into gambling." she said.

The emergency regulations address general rules and issues that if left unregulated could ruin the integrity of legalized gambling: race fixing, bookmaking, wagering by minors, animal cruelty, illegal drug use.

Lobbyists and track owners seemed relieved to have some rules to follow. Their biggest gripe will centered on the lack of tax breaks. The old rules included tax breaks for certain tracks and frontons.

The emergency rules call for flat tax rates - 7.6 percent for greyhounds, 7.1 percent for jai alai and 3.3 percent for thoroughbred racing, according to Bill Tabor, director of the state's division of parimutuel wagering. Bottom line is tax exemp-

SANFORD - The Seminole County school board agreed last night to purchase 22 new school buses through the state of Florida.

The buses are being purchased to replace vehicles that are over a decade old.

According to district officials, school buses are designed to last about 10 years. The average bus being relaced by the district this year is 14 years old.

We try to make sure we utilize our vehicles for as long as possible by taking good care of them," Jerry Kieln, the district's director of transportation, said.

The vehicles must also be, officials pointed out, safe for the students being transported, so they can not be allowed to age too much. The district decided that the 22 buses being replaced this year were the most obsolete in the fleet.

The district tries to replace about 10 percent of their vehicles annually. The buses being purchased are 14 65-senger vehicles, four 65-passenger vehicles designed with a wheelchair lift for exceptional education students and four 88-passenger buses.

U.S to warn Iraq today

WASHINGTON - The United States and its allies intend to deliver a formal warning to Saddam Hussein that any of his warplanes flying above Shiite villages in southern Iraq will be shot down.

The threat has been aired unofficially for days; meanwhile, both the air and ground assaults by Iraqi government forces upon the Shitte population have subsided. President Bush planned to make the ultimatum official in a public announcement today, while the United States, Britain, France and Russia deliver formal notes to the Iraqi mission to the United Nationa in New York.

The warning will tell iraq to clear the skies below the 32nd parallel or risk counterstinck in the sir, U.S. officials said.

At the three-day international conference beginning today. the U.S. delegation led by Acting Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger was seeking to ensure Berbs do not to keep the territory they gained in their war with Bosnia's Croats and Muslims.

Engleburger, a former ambaaaador to Yugoslavia, also planned to press for a tightening of U.N. sanctions against Serbian-dominated Yugoslavia for backing the Serba in Boania. U.S. sources said.

Two dozen nations were represented at the conference.

OKLAHOMA CITY - Rep. Mickey Edwards was swept out of Congress in the Republican primary after a campaign spent apologizing for being one of the worst offenders in the House banking scandal.

Edwards, the fourth-ranking Republican in the House after eight terms, finished third Tuesday in a field of five candidates. He received 26 percent of the vote.

Edwards' defeat made him the 16th House representative to be defeated in an election year marked by a strong anti-incumbent mood among voters.

Another Oklahoman, Democrat Rep. Mike Synar, was forced into a runoff for the 2nd District nomination. Synar has served in the House for 14 years.

In Okiahoma, Edwards, 55, blamed his defeat on an anti-incumbent mood - not his role in the House bank scandal.

United Way to announce new leader Associated Press

NEW YORK - William Aramony, who was ousled as United Way president amid charges of financial mismanagement, will be replaced by Peace Corps Director Elsine Chao, a newspaper reported today.

The United Way and Chao both declined to confirm the report in today's Wall Street Journal, but unidentified sources told the paper that she was the final choice to lead the charitable organization.

Chao, 38, who oversees a $197 million budget at the Peace Corps, is one of the highest ranking Asian-American officials in the Bush administration and served as a former deputy transportation secretary. She was confirmed as director of the Peace Corps in December.

Aramony was ousted in May amid allegations of financial mismanagement and lavish spending. New York authorities and the Internal Revenue Service are investigating allegations that nearly 03 million of United Way money was loaned to some affiliated groups in which Aramony and others had financial interests.

The United Way rewrote lis bylaws last week to give local chapters more power after reve-nue dropped 42 percent for the first five months as local contributors withheld their support. The organization has received only $17 million pledged to cover its $23.7 million annual budget, which was cut 17 percent amid charges of excessive spending, the Journal reported.

MIAMI - From their locker room at Joe Robble Stadium, the Mlami Dolphins listened to the steady roar - not from cheering fans, but from Hurricane Andrew.

"You could hear shaking and ratiling and the water coming down." rookie cornerback Troy Vincent said Tucsday. "It was BCATY.

At the stadium, it was also safe. That's why about 20 Dolphins, their families and three pet dogs went there to wait out the killer storm carly Monday. Tim. Dan. Brian and Janet Robbie, whose father built the stadium, were also there.

They found refuge in the fieldlevel locker rooms, although some ventured to the second level of the stadium to get a look at Andrew. "Clouds were flying across the sky," fullback Tony Paige said. "It was amazing. Everybody was fearful of it, but I really wasn't because I'm from up north, and I didn't know the magnitude of it.

Now I know.

Ironically, the Dolphins are scheduled to play their final pre-season game Thursday night in Baltimore against New Orleans, which was being threatened Tuesday by Andrew.

North Alabama is a member of the Gulf South Conference and is coached by Gary Elliott, who has a 65-23 record at the school. Robinson was recruited by sesistant Billy Gamble, who has recruited players from SCC while at North Alahama and previously at West Georgia.

Reports were more bleak from the University of Miami. Assistant football coach Alex Wood had the back of his house blown off; others on the staff also sustained substantial property damage. The school's football complex escaped relatively unacathed.

Some of the players living on campus sought shelter elsewhere during the storm, and only a few remained in their dormitory. One was running back Larry Jones, who slept in a hallway. "You could feel the mattress

Rogers takes advantage of Powell's bad luck

By PANL MARSONIA Special to the Herald

BAMSULA - James Powell's bad fortune turned out to be David Rogers' good fortune last Baturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

When Powell, who was leading the FASCAR-anctioned Late Model feature event, had to retire from action on the 18th lap, Rogers assumed the lead and went on to win the 25-lap contest. The race was not a "gimme" for Rogers, who arted the event from the tail end of the 17-car field.

"We definitely had the fastest car tonight." and Rogers, who picked up his 12th win of the season. "James (Powell) had a real big lead but we were starting to close in on him. I'm sure I could have caught him. It would have been a real nd race to the flag."

Guy Thomas took the carly lead, only to eitequish it to Powell on the sixth circuit. Once reito on the point. Powell managed to pull away to a 16-car advantage on the rest of the field. Meanwhile, Rogers moved into third place on the ninth lap and, four laps later, got around Thomas to take over second place and began to close in on Powell.

During the 17th lap. Powell slowed and pulled his car behind the pit wall with apparent mechanical problems.

"The transmission seal blew out and we were throwing oil everywhere." Powell said. "It's a real shame. The car tonight was just outstanding. This is the best our car has ever run at this track. I'm sorry we fell out of the race but pleased with how we ran before the scal blew.

Thomas crossed the finish line behind Rogers. Trailing the two leaders were Ed Meredith, Tank Tucker and Chuck Stanley.

Jon Harney held off a late race charge by Darren Gould to win his first ever Homber feature event. Harney started the race from the inside of the second row and before the first lap was completed, took over the point and went ont to lead every circuit.

Francis goes wire-to-wire for Late Model victory at Volusia

BARBERVILLE - Despite Intermittent show cra, a full NASCAR Winston Racing Series program got the green flag last Saturday night at Volusia County Speedway. The Late Model Stock feature saw Ken Francis of Jacksonville take the lead right at the start and hold on for the entire 30 laps to take the win.

With Francis in front, the battle was for second between DeLand's Tony Ponder and Mike Hunter of DeLeon Springs. The two ran bumper-to-bumper for several circuits before Hunter took Ponder on the inside with only eight laps to go.

Now in second. Hunter tried to close the gap between himself and Francis. However, Hunter was hooked up and held on to the checkers.

The 15-lap Sportsman feature saw Jim Winks of Edgewater jump to a commanding lead and never looked back. David Clegg, running a strong second, tried to reel him in during the early laps.

but problems with his No. 7 mount forced Clegg to the pits for the rest of the night. Winks continued to run way out front until a caution with only two laps remaining tightened up the field. DeLand's David Ponder, now in second, was right with Winks at the restart. On the final lap. Ponder tried the low side but couldn't make it as Winks won by a nose.

In the second seco

With only five laps recorded, Billy Jones of DeLand came charging to the front of the pack of hungry Street Stock guns for the lead. Hunting him down was Chris Lawrence of Orange City. who tried everything he could to get by. But Lawrence got loose, enabling Ormond Beach's Scott LeCates to take over second.

Once in second, LeCates poured on the pressure and nearly took Jones on the high side during the final lap. Jones was able to fight off the challenge and went on to score his first win of the 1992 season at Volusia County Speedway.

Mike Winn of Orlando was the early leader in the Mini Block feature. Derrick Luthe of Orange City was on the move and took over the lead before two laps were completed with inverness Rick Fairbanks several car lengths back.

Luthe continued to run strong and remained unchallenged to the end.

It was Mike Bowling of DeLand with the early lead in the Charger main event. But he didn't have the motor to hold off Ormond Beach's Jimmy Heffner, who had taken over the point by the fifth lap with Tony Newsom of Orlando following close behind.

The two ran none-to-tail until the final lap, when Newsom shot past Heffner for the victory. The special Ladies' Powder Puff race naw Debbie Cerkowski hold the lead right to the final tap before Tina Heffner poured on the power and passed Cerkowski and a lapped car on the inside to take the victory by inches.

"I'm very excited and happy," said Harney, who has been racing for about one year. "We put a lot of work into our car, but this win wouldn't have been possible if it weren't for the support of our friends and fellow drivers."

Gould came in second ahead of Bob Richardson, Rick Thompson and Dale Shade.

The official outcome of the Sportsman feature event. sponsored by Action Performance of Daytona, was decided by track officials in a post-race technical inspection.

Paul Colgan, the apparent race winner, was stripped of first place honors when his car was found to have a ported intake manifold.

As a result, runner-up driver Jerry Smith was declared the winner with Dale Howard, Ted head. Sanford's John Ripley and Allen Herring each moving up a spot to round out the top five.

Tommy Symons, a recent graduate of the New Smyrna Beach-based Southard School of Racing, notched his second Mini-Stock feature win of the season. Symons led Bobby Sears, Ted Vulpius, Buddy Ingeraole and Richard Newton to the checkers.

"The school was a real big help," said Symons, who has been racing for eight years. "I learned a lot about setting the car up and about the technical side of racing. Our car is faster now than it's ever been before." Jerry Symons outmanuevered veteran Butch Yoakam to take the point and went on to score his sixth Modified victory of the year. Taking the checkered flag behind Bymons and Yoakam were David Rogers, Kenny Heckle and Bill Coody. Mike Williams took Limited

Starting on the pole, Meredith - subbing for Sherman Walker — led every circuit to secure his third win of the season.

Early in the event, Tank Tucker and Jimmy Sills tangled while battling for second place, sending both cars to the rear of the field for the restart. At the drop of the green flag, Jeff Burkett and Ronnie Roach moved out to challenge Meredith but

All drivers can do in wake of tragedies is keep going forward

By MOKE MARKIE AP Motorsports Writer

Auto racing is one of the most popular sports in the world. It is filled with excitement, speed. competition, the throaty roar of engines and the feeling of imminent danger.

Happily, that danger is usually at arm's length. Unhappily, it sometimes spills over from threat to tragedy, with a driver being badly injured or killed.

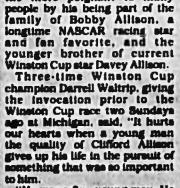

Such was the case recently at Michigan International Speedway when 27-year-old Clifford Allison received fatal injuries in a crash during practice for a Grand National stock car race.

Allison's death was made all the more poignant to many

"Life is precious. We never know how long we're going to be here. As the young stars of this sport on this racetrack shine ... Clifford's star will shine brightly in heaven, and we can all look up at that star and just give him a little wave and let him know that we missed him." Richard Petty, the grand old man of NASCAR, about to retire from driving at the age of 55, said, "Speed and accidents are relative. It's got nothing to do with what happened (to Clifford Allison).

"People fail off bicycles and get killed. You see just as many people killed on a quarter-mile or a half-mile as you do on a superspeedway. Most of the cars are aster when they run at high load converg capacity by up to 1100 p ay 49100, 48200, & 48300 series on a

You can't do anything to bring him back. Bo we have to go from here forward. We can't go back and redo anything." Petty, whose father was one of NASCAR's carly racing greats and whose son Kyle is a current Winston Cup star, was asked how a family can cope with a racing death.

"The same way as any other family gets through .it," he answered.

IN BRIEF

Tuna recalled

Barbara Hughes/Gregg, Seminole County extension home economist, reports that over the past several months U.S. marshals, at Food and Drug Administration's request, have slezed thousands of cans of certain tuna products from Canada that were originally labeled for use as cat food but had been relabeled for human consumption.

Although these products are not believed likely to pose a risk to human health, they were fraudulently mialabeled, and FDA is recommending that retail store managers inspect their stocks of tuna cat food for the suspect product. Consumers are also advised to look at codes on cans of tuna and tuna cat food in their homes.

The mialabeled products can be identified by a two-line code emboased into one end of the can. Each line consists of five characters with a "V" in the fourth place of the first line and a 'T'' in the second place of the second line. Only 6½ ounce cans of tuna containing the two-line code are involved. The tuna could be labeled as Ocean King Chunk Light Tuna. IGA Chunk Light Tuna. Blue Bay Chunk Light Tuna. National Chunk Light Tuna. Ocean Pride, Shur-Fine or Ocean Best or the tuna cat food called 7th Heaven Tuna Treat.

Anyone finding a can with the code configuration listed above, regardless of the brand involved, should notify the nearest FDA office and set the suspect can aside until investigated. Retail and consumer reporting of these suspect tuna and tuna cat food cans will help the agency in determining the distribution status of these products.

Fruit juice contaminated

Barbara Hughes/Gregg, Seminole County extension home economist, reports that the Food and Drug Administration has issued a warning to consumers against drinking certain varieties of Jumex brand fruit nectars and Jumex pincapple juice. The juice is being recalled because of lead contamination. The high concentrations of lead in these products could result in permanent, severe injury, particularly if consumed on a regular basis.

"Regular consumption of high levels of lead is extremely dangerous, especially for infants, children and pregnant women." said FDA Commissioner David A. Kessler. M.D. "Prolonged consumption can result in permanent damage to the nervous system, severe developmental problems in children and insertement cases death."

the nervous system, severe developmental problems in children and, in extreme cases, death." Vilore Foods Co., Inc., of Laredo, Texas, which imports these products from Mexico, has initiated a nationwide recall of 12-ounce cans of Jumex nectar or pincapple juice drinks that have "2084," or a lower number, at the end of the numerical portion of the code located on the bottom of each can.

The can labels are blue and white with yellow lettering. Consumers and retailers should examine carefully any cans of Jumes brand nectors and pinespple juice and immediately put noise any bearing these numbers. Consumers should riurn these products to the store where they were purchased for a refund

The U.S. Food canning inudstry has ended its use of lead-soldered cans for food marketed for human consumption.

SANFORD — Alexandria Gamer is surrounded by history in her job at the Seminole County Historical Society museum. The Sanford woman is also privy of some antique recipes her mother-in-law, Marilyn Garner, has collected over the years.

As a young girl, about 1939 to 1942, Mrs. Garner frequently dined with her family at a Corbin, Kentucky restaurant named Sander's Court & Cafe. The owner, Harland Sanders, placed his recipes on the tables for customers to take home, and Marilyn somehow hung on to these four. That same owner went on to specialize in cooking chicken, and achieved fame and fortune as Colonel Sanders.

Food through the ages

By DEL PRESMAN Herald Correspondent

in the middle ages in Northern Europe, virtually no fresh meat or fish was to be had, so the tempting hush puppy recipe above would have gone unused. What fresh meat was available, spotled quickly, and was preserved by sait or drying.

The technique still left many with only beans, dried plant stems, chail and straw as the usual winter fare.

The first method of salting food was dry salting, when meat was buried in a dry. granular bed of sait. In noble households, this gave rise to the now defunct position of "powderer." The lumpy sait of medieval times was ground into a fine powder with mortar and pestie by this castle employee, hence the term. 'powdered meat."

Salt was of such importance in sustaining a healthy diet, that it remained a government monopoly in British India into the 20th political demonstrations in history, when Ghandi and his followers marched to the sea to illegally make sait.

Salted meat had to be noaked before cooking. to remove the excess,and with no running water, much was still too salty in cooking. causing meat to be served with side dishes which absorbed the excess salt, such as frumenty and mortrews. Both bland dishes, they were composed mainly of grans and almond milk, cooked to a thick pudding paste.

Today's cook might opt for a side dish of potatoes, but in the early days there was great suspicion about spuds. In 1619, the potato was banned in Burgundy because people were persuaded that frequent ingestion caused leprosy.

The mainstay of backyard summers in recent years, the barbecue, was discovered by early settlers who first learned how to salt and smoke meat on lattices of green wood built over a fire of animal bones and hides. Caribbean natives called it boucan, translated

DEAR MS. M.M.I Will do. But the meter maids I've seen appear well able to defend themselves.

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to you? You used to encourage married couples to do everything within their power to neve their marriages. Lately, you give the impression that divorce could be the answer for some couples. Way? PATTERUL READER DEAR READER: Because 1 think it's more important to save people than marriages. And in some cases in an effort to save the marriage, people have de-stroyed themacives.

DEAR ABBY: Would you advise a husband and wife to work together every day? My husband is opening a new business, and a lot of people have told me we might get tired of each other if we're together all day and all night. We get along very well.

I am a bookkeeper and receptionist, so it's not like we'd be elbow-to-elbow all day long.

DEAR CONSIDERING: If you get along well together, and aren't elbow-to-elbow all day long, there's no reason why it shouldn't work out. Some married ocupies who are nose-tonose all day enjoy being check-to-check all night, while others who are apart all day would be happier apart all night. 100.

DEAR ESADERS: Credit Georgia's Gov. Zeil Miller with one of the best quotes to have come out of the Democratic National Convention in New York on July 13:

"I know what Dan Quayle means when he says it's best for children to have two parents. You bet it is!

"And it would be nice for them to have trust funds, too.

'But we all can't be born rich. handsome and lucky ... and that's why we have a Democratic Party ...

"I made it because Franklin Delano Roosevelt energized this nation.

"I made it because Harry Truman fought for working familics like mine.

"I made it because John Kennedy's rising lide lifted even our tiny boat.

"I made it because Lyndon Johnson showed America that people who were born poor didn't have to die poor."

Marcia Adams, a food writer from Indiana, has written other encounters with colleagues from the East and West Coasts who have asked whether she found "enough material" to write about in the Midwest.

"I didn't know there were any food writers in Indiana," a fellow food writer once said to her. "Is there anything out there to write about?"

Adams' book. "Heartland." [Clarkson Potter, 1991] answers that patronizing question with a resounding "YES!"

Spanish to barbacos. Much of the meat roasted over these early barbecue pits came from the wild hog which roamed the countryside.

North American Indiana passed their passion for pork onto the early Virginia settlers, causing William Byrd III to remark in the 1720s that the people, themselves, became extremely hoggish in their temper...prone to grunt rather than speak." As beef came into prominence. it was cut, boned and defatted, and cut into 14-inch alices. It was then dipped into strong brine and rubbed with salt, rolled up in animalhide for 10-12 hours to absorb the sait and release the juices, and then hung in the sun to dry. Tied into bundles, it was used as a mainstay ont he American travels across the plane and called "charqui." ("jerked" beef).

Early American farm wives seasoned stews with maple syrup and sweetened pies with molasses; and cooked commeal much more often than bread. but they discovered some in-ventive ways to produce foods during their wagon travels. On the move to more fertile ground, carly settlers learned to make butter by the dashing of the wagon, and calculated leaven in wagon, and calculated leaven in bread dough so that as soon after the wagon stopped and an oven could be dug: the dough would be well-kneaded and ready for baking. One of the carliest seasonings, pepper, was a mainstay of the Roman Empire, and was first used as a medicine, not for conting.

Here's how to care for abscessed cyst

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a pilonidal cyst that recurrently abaceases. My doctor has suggested having the hair follicles excised to prevent this from happening again. What can you tell me about this procedure? Is it your recommendation that 1 have it done?

olds. DEAR READER: A pilonidal ACROSS cyst is a congenital abnormality that produces a dimple in the 1 Moet soft an skin between the buttocks. The dimple is connected to a small 13 End of the sack, a defect beneath the skin. 14 Dried up 15 Actrees

On occasion, bacteria can work their way through the dimple and into the defect, causing infection or an abscess. This inflammation is aggravated by hairs that grow into the dimple. providing both a conduit for the bacteria and an irritation, as any ingrown hair can do.

Therefore, one way of reducing the likelihood of pilonidal abscess is to remove these hairs. Ordinarily, the ingrown hairs are shaved. The procedure is rela-tively painless. If this doesn't do the trick, the saccular defect has to be surgically removed during a simple operation under local anesthesia.

To give you more information. I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach To Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long. scif-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTTi I have two trandehildren with Ehler's Danios syndrome. For the past month, the 16-year-old has been getting quite a few bruises that swell up. What's happening? DEARREADER: Ehler's-Danios syndrome is an unusual inherited disorder. marked by loose joints, extremely elastic skin and increased fragility of tissues. Patients with this genetic abnor-mality usually show "double jointedness." Also, in some instances, a bleeding tendency may be present. Therefore, patients with this condition must carefully protect themselves against injury, a precaution not characteristic of most 16-year-

You are watching a football match. The quarterback huris a bomb into the end zone, but you don't see who catches the ball — was the pass completed or in-tercepted? Then a referee puts both of his arms up - a touchdown. You have drawn an inference based on the available evidence. It is the same thing at the bridge table. You must use all the information at your fingertips to decide who holds which cards.

North's three-heart response was a limit raise, showing about 11 points and at least four-card trump support. Despite the potential worthlessness of the spade king, South had to move on to game. With an unappealing choice of leads. West selected the heart two, the recommended lead of low from a doubleton in the trump suit. Declarer won in hand with the nine, cashed the heart ace and led a low diamond. winning with dummy's queen. West won the next diamond lead and exited with his final diamond. Then declarer cashed the club ace and exited with a club to West's king.

West was endplayed. He had to lead a spade, allowing de-clarer to collect his 10th trick with the spade king.

West should have seen this coming. For his bidding, South had to have the spade king. If he had the A-J of clubs as well, the contract was unbeatable. (Also, he would have taken the club finesse, not cashed the ace first.) So East was marked with the club jack. Under the club ace. West should have jettisoned the king. Then East must win a trick with the club jack, and a spade switch collects two tricks in that mult to defeat the contract.
