Drug Smuggling Link Shocks Altamonte Family

Man Killed In Crash Of Plane Carrying Ton Of Pot

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

The death of a man in a drug-related plane crash in New York state Friday has shocked his Altamonte Springs family members who said it was impossible for them to believe he was involved in drug smuggling.

Today New York state police and federal officials were continuing efforts to piece together the events leading to the crash of a cargo plane that killed Stanley Booker, 48, of Box 749, Altamonte Springs and Muscle Shoals, Ala. The crash also killed Gordon A. Douglas, 48, of Fort Lauderdale. The plane the men were flying was carrying more than a ton and a half of marijuana. The plane crashed approximately 60 miles south-east of Albany, N.Y.

Mary Booker, Booker's wife of 27 years contacted in Las Vegas, said that not only was her husband's death a shock but his reported involvement in drug smuggling was difficult to believe.

"It is hard to hear," she said.

"He lived the type of life he wanted. He was a man of his word and a good provider and took care of everyone," Mrs. Booker said.

State police said the second dead man, Douglas, was a licensed commercial pilot and worked for Booker who was also a pilot. It is uncertain who was piloting the plane when it crashed.

Booker was identified by fingerprints and Douglas by "discrete" inquiries with his family members.

Mrs. Booker lives with her daughter, Joy Carter, in Altamonte Springs and was temporarily staying in Las Lyman "Bud" Rogers, of Krider Road, Sanford, inspects impromptu repairs on his experimental craft after he was forced to land it on a road near Lake Mary Saturday.

Test Pilot Lands On Subdivision Road

With 25 years of experience as an ally, a Sanford pilot in a disabled biplane successfully landed on a few hundred feet of roadway near The Crossings, south of Lake Mary Saturday.

The pilot and the plane were unscathed.

Bud Rogers, owner of Rogers Aircraft at the Sanford Airport, said he was flying from a "fly-in" at Lake Land to Sanford in his experimental plane when he developed engine problems from carburetor icing.

Rogers said he was at 1,500 feet and in a landing pattern for Sanford Airport when he lost engine power and decided he didn't have enough altitude to make it to the airport.

Instead, Rogers, who has a commercial pilot's license and test flies airplanes he builds, turned towards two open fields near Lake Mary as possible landing sights.

As he approached one of the fields near the Greenwood Lakes subdivision, he noticed a short stretch of paved road near The Crossings.

Rogers landed the $25,000 plane on a short curved part of the road coasting to a stop on top of an earthen right-of-way by-pass on Greenwood Boulevard.

After changing carburetors, Rogers found the engine still ran poorly, so Sunday he removed the wings of the plane and trailer it back to the airport.

Today plans were underway to replace the motor, a spokesman for Rogers Aircraft said. —Deane Jordan

Fast Action Saves Lake Mary City Hall

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Arson was ruled this morning in an early morning fire that left an estimated $10,000 damage to Lake Mary's 60-year-old city hall.

Fire Chief Jim Orioles said the fire, apparently set at the double-door entranceway to city hall, was discovered by a passing motorist who called police at 1:15 a.m. Volunteer firefighters were on the scene by 1:17 a.m. He estimated the fire was set five to six minutes before it was spotted by the motorist.

Orioles said if the fire had not been reported so quickly the entire city hall would have "gone up like a tinder box."

Officials had no suspect in the arson this morning.

The motorist, who identified himself as Jim Dickenson, called from a nearby pay telephone.

Orioles said major damage, noted this morning in preliminary inspection, is to the front porch and the entranceway to the frame facility where city Fire Marshal Jim Tilghman found "pour patterns" of a flammable liquid.

With 18 volunteer firefighters at the scene, the fire was under control within 12 minutes, Orioles said. "It had just started to break through into the main structure," he said.

While "smoke was everywhere" in the structure's interior at 158 N. Country Club Road this morning, city business was being carried on today as usual, said Mayor Walter Sorenson.

The heat of the blaze broke a window, allowing the flames into the interior of the city commission chambers and setting afire curtains which fell onto an antique display case containing some fire department trophies and some other items.

The display case from the city's first drug store is irreplaceable, Sorenson said.

City records were not harmed in the fire. Some ceiling fans melted and the building's electrical system was damaged, Orioles said.

City hall was fully insured and insurance company investigators were expected at city hall before noon today.

Orioles expects it will be late today before final estimates of the damage will be known.

The structure, built in the 1920's as a community center, was purchased by the city for $35,000 in May, 1981. The city spent another $45,000 renovating and restoring the facility.

In addition, residents of the community, city staff, Sorenson and other elected officials spent weeks stripping paint from wainscoting and from the floors to restore them to their original varnished sheen before the city hall was opened formally in August, 1981.

Sorenson said part of the wainscoting and a section of the hard wood flooring was damaged in the fire.

Last October, the city bought the adjacent property for use as a parking lot.

Illinois: Too Close To Call

By Laurence McGuilian
UPI Political Reporter

CHICAGO (UPI) — On the eve of a tight Illinois presidential primary, Gary Hart aggressively is linking Walter Mondale to Chicago's heated political battles in hopes of scuttling his rival's renewed campaign momentum.

A new poll conducted by ABC News and The Washington Post, published today, found Hart held a 40 percent to 35 percent edge over the former vice president in Illinois. It showed 16 percent were backing civil rights activist Jesse Jackson, with 9 percent undecided and a 4 percent margin of error.

But the Chicago Tribune said of the outcome simply, "Nobody knows."

In the closing hours of the close battle for the state's 171 delegates to the Democratic national convention, the senator from Colorado has tried to push Mondale into the political cauldron of a city whose black mayor is at war with the vestiges of the machine assembled by Richard Daley, the legendary mayor.

Hart's ability to pry Chicago blacks away from Mondale may determine Tuesday's outcome. The city is 40 percent black.

Mondale put some new life in his presidential bid over the weekend, with an easy win Sunday in Puerto Rico and victories Saturday in Michigan and Arkansas caucuses, while Hart was winless.

Mondale's supporters say his victory in Puerto Rico's Democratic primary, where he picked up 48 delegates, should boost his fortunes with Chicago's large Hispanic population Tuesday.

During a Sunday night debate with Mondale and Jesse Jackson, Hart attacked Mondale's endorsement by Cook County Democratic Chairman Edward Vrdolyak — who is locked in a bitter feud with Mayor Harold Washington.

"It is somewhat symbolic of the differences in this campaign," Hart told a television audience. He urged voters to consider whether a "president is bound by ... old arrangements" before they cast ballots Tuesday.

Mondale said he is "glad to have everybody's support, including Mr. Vrdolyak."

Hart's goal is to draw minority voters away from Mondale even if they go to Jackson, who lives in Chicago. Blacks, who have been torn between Jackson and Mondale, have shown little interest in Hart's campaign. The ABC-Washington Post poll of 800 people, concluded Saturday, showed 52 percent of the blacks interviewed said they backed Jackson.

The survey also showed Mondale with 24 percent of the black support and Hart with 15 percent.

These Shriners Hillbillies from the Bahia Shrine Temple, Orlando, added quite a kick to the Sanford St. Patrick's Day Parade Saturday afternoon with their "moonshine" still. Sponsored by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, the parade downtown ended with green beer served in the chamber parking lot. Special features included kissing of a "Blarney Stone" and Ed McInnis and his shillelagh.

Storm Kills Five Boaters, 3 Still Missing

TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES, N.M. (UPI) — Rescuers found the bodies of a woman and four children whose boat capsized in 6-foot waves whipped by 60-mph winds on Elephant Butte Reservoir, but waited for daylight to search for three men who accompanied them.

The five victims were among eight people believed to have been in an aluminum boat that left a lakeside campground Sunday morning, state officials said today.

The bodies were found later in the day along the shore within 300 yards of each other.

Three other boaters, a man whose canoe was found capsized and a couple who had not been seen since they left from a marina Saturday night, were briefly feared missing but later found.

Reagan Wooing Hispanics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is making calculated overtures to specific segments of the 14.6 million-member Hispanic community in an effort to dilute traditional partisan bonds and a lack of support among women and blacks.

Last week, Reagan invited about 200 Puerto Ricans, most now living on the U.S. mainland, to the White House for a pep talk on his plan for "an opportunity society" and his strides on the economic front.

Today, he trained his political sights on another important component of the Hispanic community: Cuban Americans, who with common attitudes toward communism and economic fulfillment have demonstrated fervent loyalty to him in the past.

With his Central America aid requests facing resistance on Capitol Hill, Reagan was expected to use the occasion to sound a warning to Congress on the situation in El Salvador and reaffirm his objectives in the region.

X-Car Recall Pushed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's top attorney in a suit seeking the recall of 1.1 million General Motors 1980 X-cars says he will show in federal court the vehicles have a pattern of brake failures.

Justice Department lawyer Lawrence Moloney said the government plans to call more disgruntled X-car owners to testify in U.S. District Court today to back up its case that the cars are unsafe and should be fixed.

The suit also seeks more than $4 million in penalties from the nation's No. 1 automaker.

The Justice Department filed suit last year to force the recall of all 1980 GM X-cars — the Chevrolet Citation, Pontiac Phoenix, Buick Skylark and Oldsmobile Omega. The government contends the cars are a "grave danger."

The government contends GM knew during pre-production testing that the cars were unsafe but went ahead and manufactured them anyway.

4 Nabbed In Traffic Cases Hit With Pot Charges

Four men arrested in unrelated weekend traffic incidents including driving under the influence were charged with possession of marijuana.

Calvin Mitchell Mingo, 48, of Orlando, was arrested on a DUI charge at 8:42 p.m. Friday after his car was stopped for speeding on North Street at Lake Howell Road. When his car was searched after the arrest a bag of marijuana was allegedly found in his pants pockets and a second bag was allegedly found on the floor of his truck. He posted $5,000 bond and was released from the Seminole County jail.

Michael Grant Johnson, 23, of 1924 Azalea Ave., Winter Park, was arrested at 2:03 a.m. Saturday and was charged with DUI, possession of pot and drug paraphernalia and resisting arrest without violence. His arrest came after he was allegedly found passed out behind the wheel of his vehicle on Howell Branch Road, and attempted to drive from the scene. Johnson allegedly struggled with the arresting officer and a bag of pot fell from his hat during the arrest, a sheriff's report said. He posted $500 bond and was released from jail.

Joseph Howard Wilson III, 25, of 906 Rich Drive, Oviedo, was charged with possession of marijuana after he was found asleep behind the wheel of his vehicle at 5:14 a.m. Saturday on West Franklin Street, Oviedo. When his vehicle was searched a small quantity of marijuana and paraphernalia were allegedly found.

Eric Richard Waltenburg, 28, of 3795 S. Orlando Drive, Sanford, was charged with possession of under 20 grams of pot after officers searched his vehicle, which had been driven into a fence behind J.W.'s Bar, Sanford, at about 9:45 p.m. Friday. Bond was set at $500.

Brian Leslie Swanson, 19, of 106 Palm Terrace, Sanford, was charged with possession of marijuana and

SENTENCE NOT REDUCED

An Altamonte Springs man has been denied a reduction in a 15-year sentence he received for DUI manslaughter.

Robert Fraiser, 28, had asked Orange Circuit Judge Ted Coleman to reduce his 15-year sentence in the April 1981 traffic deaths of a Massachusetts family to 5 or 10 years.

On Thursday, Coleman refused. According to witnesses at Fraiser's trial in May, he weaved through rush-hour traffic at speeds up to 100 mph before smashing into the rear of the car driven by John Reis of Taunton, Mass. on Interstate 4 southwest of Orlando.

Reis, 68, his wife Mary, 62, and daughter Mary Lourdes, 27, were killed in the accident. Another daughter, Elena Reis, 34, was crippled. Fraiser was handed the sentence after a jury trial in Bradenton where the trial was held because of local publicity.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

A thief took two bicycles, a lawnmower, an edger and a football, with a combined value of $755, from the home of Dave R. Kleiman, 25, of 120 Gum St. Longwood, between Saturday and Tuesday.

Charles L. Lundquist, 41, of 212 E. Lake Brantley Drive, Longwood, reported that between 1:30 and 10 p.m. Thursday a thief took an $800 canoe from his yard.

A variety of lumber valued at $1,000 was stolen from building sites at 2661 and 2650 Bent Hickory Circle, Longwood, Wednesday. The items belong to G.R. Davice Development Corp., 101 Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs.

Luther Ray Slate, 41, of 1052 Harwood Ave., Altamonte Springs, reported that a thief entered his bedroom through a window and took $3,525 worth of items, including two gold watches and other pieces of jewelry between 10 a.m. and 2:43 p.m. Thursday.

About $2,200 worth of property including plants and building materials were stolen from several home construction sites on Augusta Way, Casselberry. David Solar, 28, of General Homes of Florida, Inc., 1611 Augusta Way, Casselberry, reported that some of the items were stolen between Feb. 20 and 27 and others were taken Wednesday or Thursday, a sheriff's report said.

...Drug Smuggling

Vegas working on a condo her daughter owns. Two other children, Jerry 23, and Jeff 15, also live in Altamonte Springs. Mrs. Booker said.

No funeral services are planned and Booker's remains will be cremated in New York.

Searchers found the bodies and debris of the demolished aircraft — which was registered to a fictitious tour company in Muscle Shoals, Ala. — early Saturday near Kelly Corners Road in the rural town of Milford, N.Y.

The plane, which crashed at about 11:30 p.m. Friday night, contained 3,500 pounds of marijuana, much of which went up in flames, sending a heavy odor throughout the area. The marijuana carried an estimated street value of more than $2.4 million.

The plane crashed in sleet, rain and foggy weather about a three-quarters of a mile from the Onocenta airport, but officials said there was no indication it was headed there. Police said they found no flight plan so could not determine the plane's origin or destination.

But the purpose of the flight was a matter of "common sense," said trooper Kenneth Crosby.

"He was from Florida, the plane's registered in Alabama, we have thousands of pounds of marijuana here in New York state," Crosby noted. "So we're talking at least inter-state drugs, if not international. Who knows?"

Crosby added, however, that his theories were "all just conjecture," at least until the Federal Aviation Administration completes its investigation.

According to one state official, Booker had been under surveillance for a long time and was supposedly deeply involved in drug smuggling.

Witnesses said the plane appeared to come straight down into the woods on top of a knoll, taking out only a dozen trees, rather than cutting a wide swath as if it had come down at an angle.

Police speculated the plane may have run out of fuel because witnesses heard no sound before the crash.

Troopers said neighbors reported seeing a bright flash about 11:30 p.m. Friday, but the crash site wasn't found until 8 a.m. Saturday.

Crosby said the crash was not investigated Friday night because neighbors though the fire and odor of marijuana came for local university students have a bon fire and smoking pot.

Investigators said it appeared the plane was a Lockheed Loadstar two-engine propeller plane, a type used widely in the 1940s.

Justice To Probe Meese's Finances

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Edwin Meese, President Reagan's embattled nominee for attorney general, has asked that further confirmation hearings be postponed so the Justice Department can conduct a separate inquiry into his financial dealings.

Meese, in a letter Sunday to Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said he was informed by Justice Department officials of the start of a "preliminary inquiry" of the circumstances surrounding a $15,000 loan his wife, Ursula, received from a longtime friend who later received jobs in the Reagan administration.

"I welcome this inquiry by the Justice Department," Meese wrote. "It provides a full opportunity to evaluate and to expose the baseless insinuations that have received extensive media exposure and have been undoubtedly motivated by election-year politics."

The Meese letter, read to Thurmond over the telephone Sunday evening, came less than 48 hours before Meese was to appear before the Judiciary Committee for a second round of questioning on the loan and about other financial help he received from associates who later landed federal appointments.

Justice Department spokesman Thomas DeCair declined Sunday to comment on the Meese letter and would not confirm that the department had opened an investigation.

Presidential spokesman Larry

Speakes told United Press International Sunday. "Reagan stands solidly behind the nomination."

Speakes said Justice Department officials advised White House counsel Fred Fielding Sunday of their plan to undertake an investigation. Fielding then informed Meese of the decision, Speakes said.

Meese's spokesman, James Jenkins, emphasized that Meese has no intention of asking Reagan to withdraw his nomination, which has been under fire from Democrats from the start.

Jenkins said Meese requested and received Reagan's permission to send the letter to Thurmond during a meeting at the White House late Sunday.

Jury Shielded From Rape Verdicts

FALL RIVER, Mass. (UPI) — Tight security was ordered today to prevent the jury in the trial of four men charged with a barroom gang rape from learning about the convictions of the two alleged ringleaders.

The convictions Saturday of Daniel Silva, 27, and Joseph Vieira, 28, for aggravated rape made prosecution attorneys optimistic that the other defendants would be found guilty of the same charge.

The trials, which have been conducted in tandem, were separated because two of the defendants have made statements implicating others.

Defense attorneys were to begin presenting their cases today for John Cordeiro, Victor Raposo, Virgilio Medeiros, and Jose Medeiros, all charged in the March 6, 1983, incident at Big Dan's Tavern in nearby New Bedford.

Court officials ordered extraordinary security measures when the panel returned to the county courthouse to make sure the jury did not learn of the other verdicts.

Judge William Young ordered the windows on the sequestered jury's bus waxed over and an advance car to steer the bus around crowds and people holding signs. Court hallways were ordered cleared whenever the jury passes through.

"I'm afraid someone will hold up a newspaper or shout," said Peter Cordeiro, chief court officer for Bristol County. The cases were expected to go to the jury by mid-week.

The convictions of Silva, of New Bedford and Vieira of Pomfret, Conn., followed 17 days of testimony and provoked angry outbursts from friends and relatives of the two men and from members of the Portuguese community who said the verdicts reflected bias against Portuguese. All six men are of Portuguese descent.

The woman and the prosecutor also are of Portuguese descent.

Women's groups, who complained the victim had been put on trial, said the verdicts vindicated the woman.

Merit Pay Excludes Many Honored Florida Teachers

TAMPA (UPI) — Florida's teacher of the year contests are attempts to single out the state's finest educators but a news report says only 36 percent of the 1983 winners will be eligible for the state's teacher merit pay plan.

In a survey of teachers of the year chosen in the 48 Florida counties that hold the contests, The Tampa Tribune-Times found that only 36 percent of the honored educators are eligible to apply for merit pay. The sticking point is a requirement that allows only people with a master's degrees in the subject they teach to enter the merit pay program.

The requirement means that 28 of the teachers of the year will not be eligible for merit pay of up to $3,000 a year over the next three years. Twenty-one of the teachers held no advanced degrees and seven more held them in the wrong subjects.

"The only thing we can do now is remember why we're here — for the children — and try not to let this destroy us, but try to do it," said Betty Ward, Escambia County's teacher of the year.

The failure of nearly two-thirds of teachers of the year to qualify for merit bonuses is "the most telling bit of evidence against requiring master's degrees," said former Brevard County School Superintendent B. Frank Brown. Brown chairs an advisory committee that has recommended the master's requirement be eliminated.

"I don't think one year of college makes that much difference," said Tallahassee's Cynthia Taylor, Florida Teacher of the Year for 1983.

But Don Magruder, director of the Florida School Boards

Association, said the advanced degree requirement is a necessary starting point for the merit pay program.

"We in this country have tended to believe that the higher the degree, the more knowledge of subject," Magruder said. "I think we have to begin with that premise. Otherwise, we might as well throw away all our universities."

Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington said the requirement also serves as an initiative for teachers to earn advanced degrees.

"I do think that you could say, in a great majority of cases, additional professional preparation in a field should improve that person as a teacher," he said.

But the failure of many teachers of the year to qualify for the merit pay program proved more of a discouragement than an initiative for Terri Haskins, Manatee County's teacher of the year.

"It really kills my motivation," she said. "It makes me feel second-rate. I'm not going to let it affect my work in the classroom, but I won't be doing any extras from now on."

AIDS Transmitted By Transfusion?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — For the first time, researchers have found a "clear-cut" instance where AIDS was transmitted by blood transfusion and they hope the case will help them unlock the riddle of the mysterious and deadly disease.

The case of acquired immune deficiency syndrome was diagnosed in a 38-year-old woman who received blood donated by a male homosexual while she was in a hospital for a hysterectomy. Both the woman and the donor have recovered from infectious diseases. But since there is no cure for AIDS, they remain susceptible to certain kinds of cancer and "opportunistic" infections that take advantage of impaired immune systems.

The disorder appears to strike homosexual men most often and appears to be transmitted by blood or sexual contact. Blood transfusions have been suspected as one way the disease is transmitted, but the link had never been clearly established.

Congressmen Get Environmental Report Cards; Democrats Head Of The Class

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The League of Conservation Voters gives 11 Democratic House members perfect scores but grades 11 Republicans "zero" in its annual environmental report cards on congressional voting records.

The report by the league — the political arm of the environmental movement — singled out for special awards Rep. Howard Wolpe, D-Mich., for scoring a perfect 100 for a third year, and Rep. James Jeffords, R-Vt., for having the highest environmental voting score among Republicans.

The league, which draws support from several national conservation groups, did not issue individual ratings for senators, because it does not believe there were enough significant votes on the Senate floor last year.

On the House side, the survey found the state delegations with the highest environmental voting records were Vermont with 98 percent, Delaware with 93 percent and Connecticut with 86 percent.

State delegations with the worst scores were Wyoming at zero percent, Utah at 4 percent and Alaska at 15 percent.

The ratings are based on recorded votes of House members on 14 major issues, including: money for pollution control, toxic waste laws, the Garrison Diversion water project in the upper Midwest and several other water projects, wilderness protection in Oregon and California, money for the Interior Department, National Park System protection, energy conservation funding, the coal slurry pipeline and nuclear non-proliferation.

At a pre-St. Patrick's Day news conference, league Director Marion Edey presented Irish shamrocks to Wolpe, Jeffords and 19 other House members rated highly for their voting record on environmental issues.

Also scoring 100 percent in the survey were Reps. Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa; Lane Evans, D-Ill.; Dennis Hertel, D-Mich.; Dale Kildee, D-Mich.; Edward Markey, D-Mass.; Gerry Sikorski, D-Minn.; Bruce Vento, D-Minn.; Henry Waxman, D-Calif., and James Weaver, D-Ore.

Ms. Edey noted there were big regional differences in the environmental voting records of members from different regions. By region, average scores were: New England, 81 percent; Mid-Atlantic, 65 percent; Midwest, 61 percent; West, 55 percent; Southeast, 41 percent; Great Plains, 40 percent; Southwest, 39 percent, and Mountain states, 28 percent.

Graham Fuels Rivalry By Naming Smith, Not Gunter, To Anti-Casino Campaign

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham, already embroiled in the fight against Amendment 1, has asked Attorney General Jim Smith to lead the crusade to keep casino gambling out of Florida.

Graham's decision to make Smith the point-man of the anti-casino movement caught Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter by surprise. Smith and Gunter are expected to butt heads in a race for governor in 1986.

"I didn't know that that was final at all," said Gunter.

Smith said the governor asked him to take charge of the anti-gambling effort during a trip to Austin, Texas on Feb. 22. The two officials are scheduled to huddle to discuss the campaign today, Graham's first day back from a trade mission to Israel.

A group of South Florida business interests have been trying to gather enough signatures to place a casino-gambling referendum on the state ballot. Unlike the doomed casino effort of 1978, this one would lead to casinos in all portions of the state if voters approve.

The casino advocates have raised money by selling shares in a pro-casino corporation, but Comptroller Gerald Lewis has taken action to halt the securities sales.

A newspaper poll last weekend showed Floridians would support a lottery, but remain split on the question of casinos.

A top Graham aide confirmed that the governor has asked Smith to lead the anti-casino fight if gaming supporters succeed in putting the issue to the voters.

'The governor is going to be really tied up with the Proposition 1 thing ... plus having to run the state at the same time,'
— Charlie Reed, deputy chief of staff.

"The governor is going to be really tied up with the Proposition 1 thing ... plus having to run the state at the same time," said Charlie Reed, Graham's deputy chief of staff.

Graham is guiding the effort against another controversial proposal, Amendment 1. The measure, which is also called Proposition 1, would return government revenues to their 1980-81 levels with limited provisions for growth.

"The governor is still going to be involved" in the casino battle, Reed said. "He just can't do it day to day."

Smith, on the other hand, said his role as the state's top law enforcement officer puts him in a position to lead the charge against the casino movement.

"I will be spending a lot of time on the no-casino issue," he said.

The pro-gambling forces have attempted to raise $1.5 million, though Reed said he has heard actual collections are below $600,000. Smith said he doubts the group will be daunted by the comptroller's attempt to halt the stock sale.

"I'll be shocked if they don't just transfer that money to their political action committee and continue their effort," he said.

Gunter, who shares Smith's belief that casinos would destroy Florida's carefully honed image as a family vacation destination, said he "would like to have any kind of positive involvement that is possible."

However, he questioned whether Graham had actually asked the attorney general to lead the anti-casino campaign.

The issue could heighten tensions between the two Cabinet officers. Smith has said it is likely he will run for governor when Graham's second and final term ends in 1986, and Gunter has said he will consider the race.

"I heard that Mr. Gunter had some fairly strenuous objections to that," Smith said of his selection to head the anti-casino effort.

Reed acknowledged that his boss may have fueled the fire of rivalry. Asked how Graham can manage potentially bruised egos, Reed said, "You include those people in the effort, in one way."

Gunter said he would like to play an active role in the anti-casino campaign. "I certainly would, if given the opportunity," he said.

'Pregnancy No Cause For Honor Society Dismissal'

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — A 19-year-old woman who was kicked out of the National Honor Society after becoming pregnant was treated unfairly and should be reinstated, her lawyer says.

But an attorney for Brown County High School told U.S. District Judge J. Waldo Ackerman in final arguments there were several reasons the girl was dismissed two years ago.

A ruling in the case involving Mrs. Loretta Wort is not expected for at least five weeks, attorneys said.

Tom Kennedy, one of Mrs. Wort's attorneys, said the school's action violates federal regulations and state and federal constitutions.

Kennedy said Mrs. Wort was discriminated against because she was dismissed solely on the basis of pregnancy, without any warning that her behavior had fallen below honor society standards.

"The reason was because she got pregnant and they were going to punish her for that," he said. "The only possible reason that they didn't warn her and tell her to straighten up is because she couldn't straighten up."

Attorney George Lewis, who represented the school district, said Mrs. Wort was dismissed because her attendance, interest, partici-ation in extracurricular activities and leadership declined and there was a notable shift in her character.

"If it were pregnancy alone, that would be (another) thing," Lewis said.

Mrs. Wort testified that while pregnant she maintained her high grade point average and remained active in most of the activities she had previously been involved in, despite being sick a lot of the time.

"When I was dismissed because of my pregnancy, I just didn't feel that they had a right to take something away that I worked so hard to get," she said.

Niemoeller's Haunting Warning

The passing of the Rev. Martin Niemoeller allows us to reflect on the life of one of the most complex and vigorous opponents of Adolph Hitler.

Pastor Niemoeller's original vocation was as a naval officer. His exploits as a U-boat commander during World War I earned him the nickname "the scold of Malta." After the war, he resigned his commission rather than surrender his submarine to the Allies. He became a farmer, but Germany's post-war hyper-inflation wreaked havoc with his finances. He then turned to the ministry.

During the 1920s, Pastor Niemoeller viewed the National Socialists (the Nazis) as the only political party capable of getting Germany back on its feet. But his support gradually turned to fierce opposition. He spoke out forcefully against Nazi anti-Semitism, Nazi paganism, and Hitler's increasing interference in church affairs.

In 1937, when his opposition became intolerable to the Nazis, he was given a term of "honorary imprisonment" that led eventually to internment at Dachau.

Although he would later call on Germans to confess their collective guilt for World War II, Pastor Niemoeller volunteered for military service when the war broke out in 1939. He explained later that "my sons were fighting and I think a father should die for his sons." One of his sons was killed in action. Two others disappeared in Soviet prison camps.

After American soldiers liberated Pastor Niemoeller from Dachau in 1945, his views took a strangely heterodox turn. It was obvious that the war had left lasting scars and that suffering had clouded his vision. Even as he denounced "the threat of Bolshevism" as "a hundred times more dangerous than that of Nazism," he argued against NATO, against German rearmament, and against nuclear weapons. And his anti-communism started to show cracks. He became convinced that Christianity was thriving behind the Iron Curtain, despite communist attempts to crush it. He began to worry that Western anti-communism would provoke further Soviet cruelty. And he finally fell in with the trendy, radical-chic anti-war movement during the Vietnam War.

Nevertheless, his early courage as an opponent of Hitler and his lasting contribution to our understanding of the horrors of totalitarianism, overshadow his later contradictions. His words haunt us still:

"In Germany, they came first for the communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time no one was left to speak up."

In a world still struggling against an expansive totalitarian state, Pastor Niemoeller's warning speaks to us all.

Another Puff Piece

The TV advertisement sounds sweetly reasonable. "Can we have an open debate about smoking?" It begins, then goes on to assert that there is "significant evidence" — none of it presented — contradicting the assumption that smoking causes disease.

This ad is part of an offensive launched by the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Appearing on "Nightline," Edward A. Horrigan Jr., chairman of the firm (and a non-smoker himself), dismissed the case against smoking as premised on mere "statistical association." When pressed to acknowledge any harmful effects of smoking, Horrigan allowed that it "may well stain your teeth."

Those denials are nonsense, of course, since the evidence of harm, most recently summarized in the 1983 surgeon general's report on smoking and health problems, is overwhelming. Indeed, the case against smoking is far stronger than the basis on which many other chemicals have been banned from food and the environment.

But this pitch is also dangerous nonsense. It offers reassurance to smokers looking for some reason not to kick their habit and allays the worries of teenagers who haven't yet taken it up.

The answer isn't to ban the ads, although they should be subjected to truth-in-advertising standards, or to ban cigarettes, for this vice is much too widespread to be combated through a new prohibition. What's needed instead is an equally effective anti-smoking campaign aimed at countering the tobacco company's message. In that war of persuasion, the "stop smoking" forces have one decisive edge: the truth.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Any ideas for foreign policy shifts today?"

By Deane Jordan

There are still good kids to be found. With the prevalence of drugs, juvenile crime, and illiterate high school graduates, it is sometimes easy to ignore the silent fact that most kids, by far the majority, are good law-abiding citizens and leave the public school system better off for the experience.

Last week, hundreds of such students from Seminole County made the trip to the Center Court of the Altamonte Mall for some traditional concertizing during the school music festival — much to the entertainment benefit of shoppers.

For this former music teacher turned police and courthouse journalist it was an opportunity to be reminded that there are still more good kids than bad, more outstanding schools than inadequate ones.

Among the many Seminole County music groups to perform Friday was the Sanford Lakeview Middle School band under the baton of Steve Parker.

With Parker on the podium, the 45 middle school students tastefully entertained hundreds of shoppers and music lovers for more than half an hour with tunes from a traditional march to contemporary compositions and special pieces such as "Flute Salad".

If the rest of the organizations played as well as the Lakeview Middle School band, it was indeed a good week.

The band members, some of the boys and girls dwarfed by their instruments, played with group participation — known as ensemble — beyond their years. And, they rendered their selections with beginning artistic flair, all the things that make a musical organization good such as playing soft when they should and giving the music its full measure of performance.

As a former teacher, it was good to see happy, productive kids in a place other than where this writer sees too many of our young adults — being sentenced in the courtroom for doing something they knew was illegal and being sentenced, so to phrase, for assuming they would never get caught.

Among the other music groups entertaining in the mall last week were the Jackson Heights Middle School chorus and band, music students from Idyllwild Elementary School, Lake Howell High School jazz band and chorus, Woodland Elementary, Lake Orienta Elementary, Lake Brantley chorus, Lake Mary chorus, Sterling Park Elementary, Rock Lake Middle School band and jazz band, Pinecrest, Wilson and English Estates elementarys, Milwee and Lakeview middle schools bands and Lyman High School chorus.

WASHINGTON WINDOW

Not So Useful Jolt

By Arnold Sawislak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One can imagine the Chinese chap who discovered gunpowder describing it to a friend: "I'm not sure what it's good for, but I think it will be useful in moving rocks and that sort of thing. Anyway, it makes a most marvelous bang."

Gunpowder, as we know, turned out to have some other uses that doubtless would surprise those who first brought it into being. The same kind of jolt may be felt these days by those Democrats who set out about 12 years ago to invent a sensible and democratic system for nominating presidential candidates.

It should be remembered that presidential nominations two decades ago were more or less decided by a relative handful of people — "leaders" to the winners; "bosses" to the losers — and the primaries were principally stage decoration.

Example: Estes Kefauver won 12 of the 16 primaries in 1952, ending up with 64 percent of the 5 million votes cast. Adlai Stevenson won the Democratic presidential nomination, mainly because the big city bosses like Chicago's Jacob Arvey and Pittsburgh's David Lawrence were for him.

When Hubert Humphrey won the 1968 nomination without winning any of the 15 primaries (Eugene McCarthy had won six; Robert Kennedy, four), the Democrats decided they had to reform the process.

They did so by making the primaries and caucuses much more important in choosing and, more significantly, instructing the delegates who would choose the presidential nominee.

The first year the new system went into operation, 1972, it selected George McGovern, who made a very big thud. The second and third times, 1976 and 1980, it came up with Jimmy Carter, who won and lost. That is a .333 batting average, marvelous in baseball but not considered all that good in politics.

This year, the reform rules, which were supposed to be fine-tuned since 1980 to balance the nominating power more between rank and file Democrats and party leaders, appear to be making some very strange noises just a few weeks out of the repair shop.

The first result was, in the eyes of the Democratic rules tinkers, desirable. The second was not exactly what they had in mind. The possibility of having a major candidate like Walter Mondale effectively knocked out of the race before Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York, California, Michigan, Texas or Ohio have voted would have horrified the reformers, whose entire rationale was based on letting the majority of Democratic voters choose the party nominee.

The problem was caused by "front-loading" — the scheduling of more than 20 primaries and caucuses, mostly in small states, before mid-March. The Democratic rules makers didn't plan this, but they set up the conditions that made it happen.

Now there are proposals that the rules writers go back to the drawing board and set up a more sensible schedule of primaries and caucuses to prevent an early spring stampede.

It may work, but if the past is any guide, it is almost certain to produce another marvelous bang.

Soviets Looting High-Tech Secrets

WASHINGTON — Like sticky-fingered kids turned loose in a candy store, the Soviets are looting the West of its high technology. They are using the information to develop sophisticated weapons and modernize their industrial plants. Yet the House of Representatives and the business community seem determined to encourage this high-tech drain.

U.S. officials believe that more than 150 Soviet weapons systems contain technology derived from Western sources. One secret Pentagon report lists two dozen methods the Soviets have used to obtain this material. They range from legal purchase to outright theft.

The report, seen by my associates Michael Binstein and Dale Van Atta, mentions 14 specific areas where U.S. technology has helped the Soviets "to develop new generations of smart weapons, to dramatically improve their airlift capability, to make their nuclear

Quota Racket Snubbed

When a federal official does something correct and courageous, it ought to come to wide attention. Such is the case of Mr. William Bennett, national chairman of the Endowment for the Humanities in Washington.

In a recent column I called attention to the position taken by the reconstituted Civil Rights Commission on reverse-discrimination. As commission chairman Clarence Pendleton put it, reverse discrimination merely creates a new class of victims of discrimination and perpetuates group racism.

Mr. Bennett has refused to go along with the group quota racket at the National Endowment, and has defied a request from another federal agency that he toe the line.

In a letter of January 16 to Mr. Clarence Thomas, chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Bennett wrote, in part, as follows:

"Enclosed is the response of the National Endowment for the Humanities to (directive) EEO-MD707A. Although we have sought to comply with your management directive, we cannot provide the requested indices of 'under-representation' nor the statement of numerical 'goals' concerning employment at the Endowment. We note that the Justice Department has recently taken the position that EEOC (Equal Employment Opportunity Commission) exceeds its authority by seeking such information. In addition to the question of authority there is also a question of principle — whether race or ethnicity or gender should influence employment policies. And we strongly believe that different or special treatment by this agency on the basis of these characteristics offends our best principles as a nation."

For those accustomed to the prose normal in communications between federal officials, that statement is a lightning bolt of clarity and courage. The folks over at the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission must have been struck dumb with astonishment. Mr. Bennett also writes:

"This principle of equality we take to be so clearly just that we now must decline to comply with your request. We decline even though some might feel that asking us for race- and gender-based 'goals' and 'timetables' is, in itself, moderate and benign. We do not agree. To request that we set and state numerical 'goals' for hiring is to ask us to anticipate hiring on the basis of such 'goals.' It asks us to consider race or sex or color as reasonable ingredients in such decisions. But they are not. We would find it difficult to envision a time when the answer, 'Because she was a black female,' or, 'Because he was a Jew,' would be the legitimate response to the question, 'Why did you hire or promote fire this person?'

"Moreover, we cannot support the argument that holds that 'goals' are somehow distinguishable from preferential treatment. 'Goals' announce to the world that race and sex will not be factors in arriving at our results. This is especially clear when 'goals' are coupled with the truly pernicious idea of 'under-representation' — the notion that there is a 'proper' proportion of races and sexes and colors for jobs. We cannot comply with any inquiry that has as its premise the idea that there is a proper and improper mixing of races, creeds, colors, or sexes in the workplaces of this country."

"Under its current leadership, this agency will neither favor nor slight ANYONE because of race, color, national origin, religion, or gender. As you know there has been no finding whatsoever of discrimination by this agency. We trust that in the future, as in our past, that all of our decisions will always flow from an honest estimation of merit and worth, not ancestry or gender or faith. Our interest in selecting the best individuals for the job, wherever they might be, and whoever they are, dictates that we at the Endowment cast a wide net when searching for new employees. We have done so and will continue to do so."

The National Endowment for the Humanities is not a very large federal agency, since it disposes of only around $130 million per year in support of work in the Humanities. It is, however, a highly visible entity in Washington, and, to some extent, across the country.

Illinois Battles Heat Up

CHICAGO (NEA) — In Illinois — and for the first time this primary season — presidential hopefuls will share the ballot with candidates running in meaningful state and local contests. In fact, those "other" races will have a significant effect on the presidential primary.

Illinois' most important statewide contest involves incumbent GOP Sen. Charles Percy's attempt to win a fourth term. Percy's challenger in the primary is Rep. Thomas Corcoran. Corcoran's campaign is large and well-financed, and he is backed not only by every conservative organization in the state, but by national right-to-life groups (which are very powerful in Illinois) and by Jewish groups that question Percy's commitment to Israel.

In their generally hysterical attack on Percy, Corcoran and his supporters have painted the senator as an avowed enemy of Ronald Reagan and as an "out-of-touch liberal" — a bit to the political left of George McGovern.

Most recently, Corcoran has tried to link Percy to Jesse Jackson's trip to Syria; his stump speeches have often included the line, "Jesse Jackson knows he can count on Chuck Percy." As chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Percy is much involved with international matters, which has led to charges that he's more interested in the Mideast than in Illinois. In his last campaign (1978) Percy had a surprisingly hard time defeating lawyer Alex Selth, getting only 53 percent of the vote.

This has led Democrats to believe that Percy might be vulnerable in November and to a strong field in the Democratic primary. The favorite is Rep. Paul Simon, a popular downstate congressman; however, Simon faces a strong challenge from a field that includes Selth; state Sen. Phil Rock, a power in Springfield; and State Comptroller Roland Burris, who is black.

Burris's race is of growing importance, due to the continuing battle between Chicago's black mayor, Harold Washington, and his enemies in the city council, led by Alderman Edward Vrdolyak. Publicly, Washington has remained neutral, but he has made it clear that he'd love to see Burris win the nomination. The Vrdolyak forces seem divided between Selth and Rock.

The March 20 balloting also puts all of the Chicago ward committeemen posts up for grabs. Many of these contests will pit a Washington ally against a Vrdolyak partisan, and bitter battles are being waged in some wards.

A battle is also brewing over Corcoran's 14th District seat, which he had to give up in order to run against Percy. The 14th is considered a Republican district, and nine candidates are involved in a free-for-all for the GOP nomination.

In addition, there will be sharp primary fights in at least four congressional districts around the state, primarily outside Chicago.

These contests will have a significant impact on the battle between Walter Mondale and Gary Hart. Hart's wins to date have shown that he has gained significant support from independent voters — the group that makes up the backbone of Chuck Percy's support.

Roth believes there are simply too many items classified as "Militarily Critical Technologies" to be controlled. Instead of presenting a reasonable list of these critical items, the Pentagon labored and brought forth a mountainous, 700-page volume. The result is that the Customs Service and Commerce Department waste valuable time and effort going after low-grade, obsolescent computers when they could be watching for highly sensitive items.

The CIA has a list of the items the Soviets want most — the gourmet products in the high-tech supermarket. Instead of the bottles of ketchup, Roth and his allies are trying to put through an amendment narrowing the list of controlled exports in return for stricter enforcement. But business interests are trying to kill the amendment, hoping to get rid of many existing controls on grounds that they're ineffective.

The report concludes ominously: "In view of the exceedingly lax enforcement efforts by certain COCOM countries, the cases that are detected and investigated may represent only the 'tip of the iceberg'...."

Company Head Snatched, Held For $4.5 Million

TOKYO (UPI) — Two masked gunmen Sunday kidnapped the president of a major candy company from his bath, hustled him naked into a red getaway car and demanded a $4.5 million ransom, police said.

The gunmen, wearing ski masks and armed with a pistol and an airgun, burst into the residence of 42-year-old Katsuhisa Ezaki Sunday night in the western Japanese city of Hyogo, near Osaka, police said.

The pair gagged and bound Ezaki's wife and daughter, then dragged the victim from a bathroom. Ezaki was taken away in the waiting car, police said.

Three hours after the abduction, a note demanding $4.5 million for Ezaki's safe return was found in a public telephone booth.

Police mobilized 300 officers and set up check points on major highways in the area. Kidnapping is relatively rare in Japan — only 27 cases were recorded in 1983 — and usually involves children. The abduction of the prominent businessman prompted sharp reactions from business leaders.

Terrorist Backlash Feared

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — An Ulster politician warned of a terrorist backlash today following the capture and extradition of Ireland's most wanted fugitive, Dominic "Mad Dog" McGlinchey.

"I expect that McGlinchey's associates are already planning new atrocities just to prove they are still in business," said Fraser Agnew, a member of Ulster's Official Unionist Party.

The handing over of McGlinchey, self-styled leader of the outlawed Irish National Liberation Army, marked the first time the Dublin government has turned a suspected terrorist over to Ulster authorities.

Police interrogated McGlinchey Sunday at a secret location and he was expected to appear in a Belfast court today. McGlinchey's lawyer said he did not know where his client was being held.

Chemical Weapons Used?

United Press International

Iran said 460 of its Islamic fighters were injured in Iraq's latest chemical weapons attack in the 42-month Persian Gulf war and that U.N. experts had collected soil samples contaminated by gas bomb explosions at the war front.

Iraq denied it was using chemical weapons and offered to show journalists a fertilizer factory that Western reports have labeled the source of Iraq's chemical weapons.

"Zionist and Iranian organs, which are working in full collaboration, have not ceased to fabricate such allegations about the nature of this plant," a senior Iraqi government official in Baghdad told United Press International Sunday.

Iran said Sunday 460 soldiers were injured by "microbic and nerve bombs" Saturday in the southern marshlands and more than 200 "are suffering from nervous spasm due to being exposed to nerve bombs."

Good Planning Averted Riots, Say Officials

MIAMI (UPI) — Advance planning by police, civic leaders and city officials helped keep violence down in black neighborhoods after a Hispanic policeman was acquitted for the shooting death of a black youth, authorities say.

"The Community Relations Board did its job, the black leadership did its job and the street leadership did its job," Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre said. "Lives were saved. Conflicts were avoided."

All was quiet Sunday in the Overtown, Liberty City and Coconut Grove ghettos, but rubbish, ashes and broken glass reminded passersby of events that occurred after officer Luis Alvarez, 24, was found innocent Thursday of negligently shooting Nevell Johnson Jr. two years ago.

Blood Trail Nets Suspect

MIAMI (UPI) — A man charged with attempted rape was caught after the victim's son alerted a neighbor who shot the suspect in the foot, enabling police to follow a trail of blood, officials say.

A police dog was called to trail the suspect — who had left his shoes outside the home when he entered — but the dog could track him only one block. Then detectives George Cadavid and Louise Vasquez took over and picked up the trail the hound had been unable to stay with.

Angel Del Valle, 35, was held Sunday without bond in the Dade County Jail on charges of breaking and entering and attempted rape.

He was arrested at Pan American Hospital Saturday as he sat in a wheelchair awaiting treatment for a bullet wound in his foot, police said.

Hawkins Out Of Hospital

ORLANDO (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Paula Hawkins was released Sunday from an Orlando hospital where she was treated after a minor auto accident outside Washington aggravated her long-standing neck problems.

"She's doing fine," said John Mica, top aide to Mrs. Hawkins, R-Winter Park, who was treated at Orlando Regional Medical Center after she was "jolted quite severely" Friday in a minor auto accident outside Washington.

The 57-year-old senator was held at the Orlando facility mostly for observation because of her history of neck problems, Mica said.

Fighting Goes On

Lebanese Peace Talks Not Producing Much

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (UPI) — Hopes for an agreement to end the Lebanese civil war dwindled as peace talks between leaders of the battling factions entered a second week with no progress reported.

"Either there is agreement here or there will be a full-scale war," said a conference source Sunday.

Conference sources said the positions of the leaders were far apart and predicted it could take days to come up with even a weak unified position.

Negotiators were to meet privately today in an effort to head off the increasing danger that the peace talks "that began one week ago would break down without agreement."

A Sunday evening session of the nine leaders adjourned after only 15 minutes and the leaders did not name a time for resumption of the full session.

"There is no agreement about anything," said Druze leader Walid Jambblatt. He predicted the conference would produce a final common position "that will mean nothing."

Officials in the delegation of Shiite leader Nabih Berri reported that the most they expected was a vague agreement that would halt fighting for a few weeks.

Despite a cease-fire declaration negotiated in Lausanne last week, fighting continued throughout the weekend along the "green line" that divides the Lebanese capital of Beirut. Sixteen people died and 50 were injured.

Michele Samaha, spokesman for President Amin Gemayel, said there had been "some progress" in Sunday's open session and the private meetings that followed adjournment of the full session.

But Samaha was less optimistic than usual.

"Let us see what will be coming out. I am waiting," Samaha said. "I think there will be something that will be much more positive than all of us think tonight."

"The fighting continues because there is no political will to arrive at a compromise," Jambblatt said. "And there is no political will because the fighting continues."

"The only thing we will perhaps arrive at is a cease-fire and in the meantime we have to wait for these famous radical reforms."

The official observers, Saudi Arabia and Syria, were attempting to mediate in the impasse. Syrian Vice President Abdul Halim Khaddam had threatened to hold the leaders of Lebanon in Lausanne long enough to get an agreement.

The conflict remained essentially between the traditional Christian interests represented by Phalange Party leader Pierre Gemayel, father of the president, and former Christian President Camille Chamoun and anti-government forces led by Berri and Jambblatt.

Berri and Jambblatt demanded an end to the system under which Christians dominate the government, while the Christian leaders want to preserve their power.

Hussein: Jordan May Take Its Arms Business Elsewhere

WASHINGTON (UPI) — King Hussein of Jordan says if Congress refuses to approve the sale of anti-aircraft missiles to his country, he might go elsewhere — possibly to the Soviet Union.

"If you turn us down, we are not going to remain exposed to danger," Hussein said. "We will look anywhere, and wherever we can get our needs. We will try to secure them."

When asked if that encompassed the Soviet Union, Hussein would not rule the country out and said, "If we ever have to go that far, I hope that it will be clear that we are doing it because of an attitude that we face in Washington."

Hussein, interviewed on CBS's "Face the Nation" Sunday, also said he was not being "impolite" or singling out the Reagan administration for criticism when he said last week that "principles mean nothing to the United States."

"I don't think I was impolite, I was factual," Hussein said of his comments in an interview with The New York Times.

He said he did not "lash out against the Reagan administration" but against a situation that has evolved over many years. He expressed "the highest respect for the U.S. president."

"I respect him as a man of principle, as a man of courage," Hussein said.

In the Times interview, Hussein said, "I now realize that principles mean nothing to the United States. Short-term issues, especially in election years, prevail." He also accused the United States of "succumbing to the dictates of Israel."

Hussein, longtime moderate Arab leader, said there is "no way by which anyone should imagine it would be possible for Arabs to sit down and talk with Israel" at present, rejecting overtures from the administration to enter into new Middle East peace negotiations.

The newspaper interview appeared a day after President Reagan made a surprise public appeal to a Jewish charity audience, asking them to support the U.S. sale of 1,600 Stinger anti-aircraft missiles. Congress now is considering the sale, which Israel strongly opposes.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, also interviewed on the CBS program, said Hussein's interview had been "perhaps unnecessarily harsh."

"I think the king is in an extremely difficult position because for him entering negotiations, whatever the outcome, exposes him to pressures from all the radical Arab states in the area," Kissinger said.

Fascell's Son Blamed For Fatal Accident

MARATHON, Fla. (UPI) — The 27-year-old son of U.S. Rep. Dante Fascell was recovering from little sleep and the effects of alcohol when he hit another car head-on, killing him and an elderly Illinois man, officials say.

A report released Sunday said Jon Fascell, son of the Democratic congressman from Miami was responsible for the fiery Feb. 9 accident on Seven Mile Bridge. His El Camino crossed the centerline of the bridge and smashed into a Pontiac at 7:05 a.m., it said.

The Pontiac's driver, John McKeen, 65, of Glenview, Ill., was killed. His wife and two daughters were injured.

"There is a strong possibility that (Fascell) dozed off at the wheel before crossing the centerline due to lack of sleep and the effects of alcohol," the report said.

The report, prepared by Florida Highway Patrol traffic homicide investigator James Mason, said statements from friends of Fascell indicated he had been drinking the night before the accident and had left to drive from Key West to Miami at about 3 a.m. the morning of the accident.

An autopsy revealed that Fascell had .12 percent alcohol in his blood.

Fascell's car burst into flames upon the impact of the crash, authorities said.

Rebels Announce Offensive To Disrupt Elections

United Press International

Salvadoran rebels announced an offensive aimed at disrupting next week's elections, warning they would burn cars and shoot out tires to paralyze traffic in the eastern part of the country.

In other developments in the region, Honduran said Sunday that U.S. and Honduran troops began limited military exercises some 25 miles north of the Honduran capital Tegucigalpa and Nicaraguan leaders said anti-Sandinista rebels killed 10 soldiers and a government official.

For the second straight day Sunday, Salvadoran rebels blocked the Pan American Highway — the major road link to the east — stopping traffic near the town of El Semillero, 50 miles east of San Salvador.

The guerrillas, who had earlier said they would allow next Sunday's presidential elections to take place without disruption, took away travelers identification booklets called "cedulas" that are needed to vote.

The rebels said they would allow people through Sunday afternoon for the last time until after the elections, warning they would shoot tires out or burn cars if people tried to pass after that.

Guerrillas also cut the Pan American Highway for several hours Saturday, taking about 500 cedulas from travelers.

Rebel commander Joaquin Villalobos, head of the People's Guerrilla Army, said, "we are going to expand the war before, during and after the elections."

Rebel attacks in 1982 — when guerrillas blocked the highway for several days — failed to quash a voter turnout of more than 1 million to elect a Constituent Assembly.

Salvadoran military officials said troops would not be withdrawn from their counter-insurgency operation designed to keep the rebels off balance before the U.S.-backed presidential elections.

The Honduran armed forces issued a communique Sunday saying U.S. and Honduran troops "initiated today, on a limited scale, an exercise that involves special troops from both nations."

Col. James Strachan, spokesman for the U.S. military in Honduras, said 40 U.S. troops had been flown in from Panama for the exercise, but declined to give the location of the mock operation.

Honduran military sources said 150 Honduran troops were involved.

The operation — which will end March 29 — will include "communications and survival tactics for internal defense," the communique said.

The last joint U.S.-Honduran war games, Big Pine II, ended Feb. 8, and no official date has been given for the next maneuvers, Grenadier I, that will reportedly include 1,700 U.S. and 2,300 Honduran troops.

In Nicaragua, Sandinista Commander Javier Lopez said U.S.-backed guerrillas ambushed a group of soldiers returning from Bocay, about 170 miles north of Managua, killing 10 troops and an Education Ministry official.

"The counter-revolutionaries fled when we began fighting," said Lopez, the commander of the military zone in Jinotega province where the attack took place.

"There are 11 dead," he said.

Prop 1: Familiarity Increases Opposition

By United Press International

Nearly half of Florida's voters favor a proposal to limit government revenues in Florida but Florida Newspaper Poll results published Sunday show opposition to Amendment 1 increases as people become more familiar with the measure.

The poll said about 48 percent of 1,000 registered voters questioned said they would vote for Amendment 1 compared to only 34 percent who said they would oppose it.

But opposition led approval among voters who said they were "very familiar" or "somewhat familiar" with the proposal — groups that constituted one-third of those polled.

The poll is considered accurate within 3 percent.

Amendment 1 would force state and local governments to keep their budgets under their 1980-81 revenues, adjusted to partially compensate for increases in the federal government's consumer price index. State budget analysts say that in 10 years the amendment would force the state to operate on half the funds it will need to keep service levels current with growth.

The poll said those with less than a high school education were much more inclined to support the amendment than those with some college.

More than two-thirds of respondents to the poll said Florida's taxes are "just about right," with 23 percent saying "too high," 5 percent "too low" and 3 percent unsure.

High Lung Cancer Rate Studied

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Duval County's lung-cancer rate is the highest for white men of any U.S. metropolitan area and health experts are trying to find out why.

Adjusted statistics taken in 1981 show that cancer of the lung, trachea and bronchus accounted for the deaths of 121.6 white men per 100,000 people in Duval County compared to only 78 per 100,000 in Florida as a whole.

Dr. John J. Witte, director of Preventative Health Services for Florida's Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, said the county's lung cancer rate "is certainly a substantial public health concern."

"...We've done the first thing, we've defined that there is a problem in Duval County and that it appears to spread to contiguous counties," Witte said. "Now we have to look at who are the people it occurs in, what is their occupation, where do they live. This information we don't have yet."

A University of Michigan study financed by the National Cancer Institute implicated a combination of cigarette smoking and on-the-job exposure to asbestos and wood dust as major reasons for Duval's high lung cancer rate. But Dr. John Davies, the study's principal author, said occupational factors do not "appear to fully account for the areawide excess of lung cancer."

John Winchester of the Department of Oceanography at Florida State University has proposed a theory to fill the gaps in Davies' findings. He said

Ferguson's 400-Pound Effort Wins State Championship

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

DELAND — Seminole High weightlifting coach Dave Mosure only took three lifters to the State Tournament Saturday at DeLand, but he received maximum performances from all three to earn a fifth-place finish with 15 points. Spruce Creek won with 39 points to DeLand's 36.

The maximum effort was turned in the minimum weight as 114-pound sophomore Stanley Ferguson came away with a state championship. Ferguson, in just his first year of competitive lifting, bench pressed 230 pounds and cleaned and jerked 170 for a total weight of 400 pounds. He topped Vansaran Koa of Lyman by 20 pounds.

"We felt Stanley had a shot at winning, although we knew he had some stiff competition from the Lyman guy (Koa) along with Spruce Creek and DeLand," said Mosure.

"They were all seniors. But Stanley psyched them out by making some really good lifts early."

Ferguson topped his previous best by 10 pounds when he added 10 more pounds to his bench press to earn the title.

Seminole's second-best finish came from junior strongman Fred Brinson. The Tribe's most valuable defensive football player placed third with a bench press of 345 and a clean and jerk of 240 at 198 pounds.

"Most of the coaches had Fred rated around sixth before the tournament," said Mosure. "But he really surprised them."

Seminole's other place was sixth by 123-pounder Brian Graham. The Seminole junior bench pressed 230 and jerked 165 for a 395 total.

"All three kids did a hell of a job," said Mosure. "Especially Stanley, for a guy who'd never lifted competitively before this year."

Prep Roundup

Lyman finished 14th thanks to Koa's effort while Lake Brantley, Lake Mary and Lake Howell all finished 30th, although they failed to score.

A couple of future Florida Gator football players made out pretty well, too. Lakeland's David Williams won the heavyweight division with a total lift of 705 and Winter Park's Paul McGowan won the 220-pound class with a lift of 650. Williams is considered one of the top linemen in the nation.

DeLand's Terry Nettles, bound for Florida State, won the 198-pound division with a total lift of 640 pounds.

CLASS AAAA

Team: 1. Port Orange Spruce Creek, 39; 2.

DeLand, 36; 1. Panama City Mosley, 22; 4. Winter Park, 15; 5. Sanford Seminole, 12; 6. Pensacola Washington, 10; 7. Lakeland, 9; 8. Bradenton Manatee, 7; 9. Daytona Beach Mainland, 6; 14. Lyman, Gainesville Buchholz, Clearwater Countryside, Orange Park and Pensacola Pine Forest (tie), 5; 18. Orlando Edgewater and Orlando Oak Ridge (tie), 3; 21. Orlando Evans, 1.

ANGELA, NOT SHERY — In Sunday's Lyman Invitational track story, Lyman's fine freshman discus thrower Angela Robbins was incorrectly identified as Shery Robbins. Angela placed second in the discus division with a throw of 104.8.

Lyman boys track coach David Huggins called the meet "of the best I've ever seen and definitely the best Lyman Invitational ever."

Record after record seemed to fall in the Friday night blockbuster. Milers Ken Cheeseman of Lake Howell and Doug McBroom of Lyman had an exciting battle which Cheeseman pulled away to win.

Seminole's classy hurdler Franklin Barnett blistered his way to a 13.5 clocking in the preliminaries before settling for a 14.0 in the finals to win the 120 hurdles. The 13.5 is believed to be the best in the nation this year, according to Huggins.

Trinity Prep's Adrienne Poltowicz showed what a two-week skiing warmup can do for you two-mile time. The Saint sophomore returned from two weeks on the slopes to run a 11:22.3 two mile, the best in the state this year.

Lake Mary junior Pat Murray won the 23.6 in the long jump for the third best leap in the state. His previous best was 21.9.

Seminole's boys and girls swept the meet and continued their dominance of Central Florida competition.

TRIBE AT HOWELL — The Five Star Conference baseball race resumes today when Seminole travels to Lake Howell for a 3:30 p.m.

game. Lake Brantley hosts Lake Mary at 3:30 p.m. and Lyman entertains DeLand at 7 p.m.

Seminole coach Bobby Lundquist will go with lefty James Hersey today as the Tribe (3-3) tries to keep pace with front runners Lake Mary (6-0) and Apopka (6-1-1) in the conference chase. Lake Howell (3-3) will probably counter with Van Goinmont or Damon Marlette or Bill Lang.

Lake Mary, which has won eight straight games, sends junior Eric Hagen against the Patriots' sophomore sensation Kenny Chapelaine. Lake Brantley (3-3) also needs to win in order to stay in the race.

Lyman (3-3) is looking to snap a three-game losing streak. The Greyhounds will hurl Derek Livermora if his shoulder is okay. If not, sophomore Byron Overstreet will get the call.

Oviedo (3-1) plays St. Cloud at home Tuesday at 4 p.m.

Seaver Headed For 'Hall,' LaRussa Wants To Join Him

SARASOTA (UPI) — Tom Seaver is headed for the Hall of Fame. Tony LaRussa would love to join him there, but he's practical about things like that. He isn't counting too much on making it. Not with that flashy .199 lifetime batting average of his.

Seaver is starting his 18th season in professional baseball and in all that time, he spent only one season in the minors. LaRussa played 16 years without ever getting to spend a single complete one in the majors.

Still, these two have one big thing in common apart from the fact they both are wearing those eye-catching, black-and-white Chicago White Sox uniforms.

You've heard of "heavy hitters," haven't you? Seaver and LaRussa are heavy thinkers. Very heavy. They use their heads for something more than just a hat-rack.

LaRussa is a bilingualist. He grew up in Ybor City, the Spanish section of Tampa, where everyone speaks two languages. He isn't one of those language butchers, either, whose Spanish comes straight out of some special hyphenated dictionary and is largely confined to buenos dias and hasta luego. He's fluent.

LaRussa also has the distinction of being the only licensed attorney managing in the majors. Until now, there were but four others.

Seaver, one of those people who does the New York Times Sunday crossword puzzle and finishes it, never has much trouble recognizing other thinkers. Maybe it takes one to know one. The three-time Cy Young Award winner whom the Mets let slip away, wasn't with the White Sox long this spring before he came up with what he considered an appropriate name for LaRussa. Seaver tells him Warren Burger. I'm sure you know who he is, don'tcha? Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

LaRussa smiles everytime Seaver calls him that. I think he gets a kick out of it, the same way someone like John McGraw did, as well as others who followed him like Charlie Dressen, Paul Richards, Eddie Stanky, Birdie Tebbetts, Gene Mauch and Earl Weaver, all of whom earned reputations of being cerebral managers to various degrees.

Richards, assisting the Texas Rangers with their baseball operations now, never hesitated making what others considered unorthodox moves or going against the book when he managed the White Sox and Orioles. When he had the White Sox and they were playing the Yankees in a close ball game one day, I remember him moving left-hander Billy Pierce from the mound to first base and bringing in a right-handed reliever to face a right-handed hitter, then sending Pierce back to pitch again.

Later, when he was general manager with Houston, Richards offered to trade the whole ball club man for man for the Milwaukee Braves, but was turned down.

LaRussa isn't afraid to try something unconventional, either.

One of the things he's attempting is to use Mike Squires as his backup third baseman even though Squires is left-handed all the way. It has been a long time since anyone tried to play third base left-handed, play it seriously, I mean, but before you fall down laughing, you should know that George Sisler did it successfully awhile for the St. Louis Browns better than a half century ago. Sisler, one of baseball's greatest hitters ever and another Hall of Famer, was normally a left-handed hitting and left-handed throwing first baseman, but he also played some second base, left-handed, too, for the Browns.

Squires was the best fielding first baseman in the American League last year and won a Gold Glove for his defensive work two years before that. He's one of the finest utilitymen in baseball and has played a little third base — and also caught a bit — for the White Sox, so LaRussa's experiment is in no way any kind of gimmick even though the normal throws a third baseman has to make come much more naturally for a right-handed thrower than a left-handed one.

Vance Law, the White Sox' regular third baseman, is right-handed all the way. When he needs a rest, it would make sense that LaRussa would sit him down against some of the tougher right-handers in the league, like Toronto's Dave Stieb and Detroit's Jack Morris or Dan Petry.

"That means we would like to have a left-handed hitting third baseman to fill in for Law," LaRussa says. "We don't have anyone outside of Squires. There haven't been many left-handed throwers with his quickness and defensive skills."

"I played him at third base at Cooperstown a couple of years ago in a game with the Mets."

"His throwing will be the biggest problem. He can do it, though. We've had three of our people, three real good infielders in their day, Eddie Brinkman, Bobby Winkles and Steve Dillard, watch Mike work out and they said, 'Tony, that little sonuvagun can play third base.'" Mike Squires thinks he can, too. Squires, who's taught in a couple of games for the Sox four years ago, believes he can play practically anywhere. And has. He may make Tony LaRussa look like a genius yet. Or at the very least, Warren Burger.

Off And Jumping

Seminole hurdler Jackie Johnson, above, is off and jumping in the 330 hurdles at the Lyman Invitational Friday. Johnson, a freshman, lost to Lyman's defending state champion Schowonda Williams in the 330s, but did upset Williams in the 110 hurdles with a time of 15.1 when Williams tripped and fell. At the left, Lake Brantley's Darren Walloch stretches for all he's worth in the long jump. This weekend, there are three meets on tap — the Bulldog Relays in DeLand, the Bob Hayes Relays in Jacksonville and the Lady Gator Relays in Gainesville. Seminole swept both the boys and the girls at Lyman.

Koch Singes Burns To Capture Bay Hill

ORLANDO (UPI) — Gary Koch has gone from an also-ran on the PGA tour to the hottest player on the circuit.

Koch won the $400,000 Bay Hill Classic Sunday, coming from back in the pack with a brilliant 8-under-par 63 and then winning a sudden-death playoff with George Burns.

"I'm elated," said Koch, 31, who pocketed the first prize of $72,000. "It's a great feeling of accomplishment."

Koch was never much of a force during his first seven years on the tour. But he revamped his game and the first sign of a new Gary Koch came last season when he won the Doral Open to break a six-year drought.

He opened this season with a victory in the San Diego Open — also won in a playoff — and now leads the PGA Tour in earnings with $194,767 this season.

His previous best money total for a year was $168,330.

"I feel much more relaxed on the golf course," said Koch, a Louisiana native who lives in Tampa, Fla. "I've changed my grip, my setup, my takeaway. Of course, a great deal of improvement is mental when you have an image of yourself as a winner."

Koch said his 63 Sunday was the best round of his pro career. He collected 10 birdies, including both playoff holes, and 10 pars for the round.

Winning wasn't on Koch's mind when he teed off Sunday. He started the day six strokes behind third-round leader Hal Sutton and said he was just shooting for a top 10 finish.

"I didn't think there was any way I could catch the leaders," Koch said.

But Sutton and Greg Norman, who had a course record 62 Friday and started the final round one shot out of the lead, stumbled through the front nine to open the door for Koch and Burns.

Koch finished his round Sunday with a four-day total of 12-under 272. Burns matched that score with his round of 67 and the players went to a playoff at the par-4 15th.

Both sank birdie putts on 15. At No. 16, a 446-yard par 4, each struck strong drives, but Koch clinched the victory when he hit a 7-iron within 2 feet of the cup and rolled in the putt. Burns took a bogey on the hole after missing the green with his second shot.

"I'm sorry there had to be a winner and a loser," said Koch. "George played some great golf, especially on the last few holes when I was already finished."

Burns, whose game also is undergoing a transformation, said he was happy with his play.

"I'm pleased just to complete four rounds of this tournament," said Burns, who nearly missed his tee-off time Thursday because of a late plane. "There's not really much disappointment. I'm playing very well."

West German Bernhard Langer captured third place with a 68 and 273 total, one stroke behind Koch and Burns.

Sutton finished three shots back with a 72 Sunday. Sammy Rachels was four behind Koch and Burns with a 70 in the final round. Norman had a 73 and finished five strokes behind, along with Raymond Floyd, who had final round 71.

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Chris Johnson, fresh from her back-to-back LPGA victories in Arizona, says her recent success isn't going to change her or her plans.

Johnson fired her second straight 6-under-par 68 to win the LPGA Tucson Open by six strokes Sunday. In doing so, she became the first female since Nancy Lopez in 1978 to record her first wins in consecutive tournaments.

While reporters pressed the comparison, the lanky 25-year-old University of Arizona graduate wasn't buying any of it.

"There will never be another Nancy Lopez," she said. "Nancy Lopez is Nancy Lopez and she's great. She's done a lot of things for golf and our tour. My thoughts are just to keep trying to play the best I can."

Johnson's best is pretty good. She topped runner-up Patty Hayes by five strokes in the Samaritan Turquoise Classic in Phoenix, Ariz., last week and then blew open a close race in Tucson in Sunday's final round.

Her four-day total of 16-under-par 272 was just a stroke off the all-time record set by Hollis Stacy in 1977.

Lauri Peterson birdied the final hole to finish second at 10-under-par 278. Becky Pearson was another shot back at 279, while Barb Bunkowsky finished fourth, eight strokes behind the winner.

Johnson had a promising sophomore year on the LPGA tour, recording seven top-ten finishes, but 1983 was a big disappointment. She blames it on letting the pressures and expectations of others bother her. She vows it won't happen again.

"That's what I did before, allowing people to tell me what I had to do," she said. "I make my birdies when I make my birdies. Sometimes I make birdies that people think I shouldn't make, and other times I don't make birdies people think I should make. The main thing is to keep after it and try to do the best I can. That's all I can do, I can't be anyone else."

Johnson said a major difference between her game this year and last is confidence and her approach — something she has worked on during the off-season with friend Waylon Ward.

"I just have so much more confidence," she said. "It makes such a big difference when you know what you're doing out there."

Her positive attitude has even affected her personal life.

Asked what she would buy now that she is making a lot of money, she replied, "I don't need anything right now. I like my situation."

Gold On The Rise After 36-30 Victory Over Bandits

DENVER (UPI) — With the sale of the Gold seemingly imminent, coach Craig Morton undoubtedly improved the stock in the USFL club after Denver's impressive come-from-behind victory over the Tampa Bay Bandits.

As the Gold's expected new owner, Joe DiGerlando, looked on, Denver rolled to a 36-30 victory Sunday. DiGerlando, a Madiera Beach developer, is a limited partner in the Bandits.

DiGerlando said after weekend meetings with Gold owner Ron Blanding negotiations had reached a decisive point and "we will have an announcement very soon."

Morton indicated he had been given unspecified "assurances" by DiGerlando even before the start of Sunday's game in which quarterback Craig Penrose threw two touchdown passes.

"Right off the bat he gave us a lot of assurances and I appreciate all the things he said even before he saw the game," Morton said. "He will be a fun person to work with."

Morton said the contest was one of the Gold's better performances and demonstrated the team's character after having been humiliated and shut out in a loss last week.

"We made comebacks when we fell behind," he said. "But we hung in there. Our game plan was to go to our strengths and it worked."

The Gold went into halftime leading 16-14 but had to fight off a furious third-quarter attack in which the Bandits scored 13 points.

On the first drive after halftime, Tampa Bay quarterback John Reaves hit Willie Gillespie for an 85-yard touchdown. Later in the quarter, running back Gary Anderson threw a 34-yard option pass to Marvin Harvey to the Denver 2 that set up Greg Boone's 1 yard TD run.

The Bandits then widened their lead on a 35-yard field goal by Zenon Andrusyshyn.

The Gold, which earlier scored on a 14-yard Penrose pass to Elmer Bailey, a 14-yard run by Vincent White and a 31-yard field goal by Bryan Speelman, added two fourth-period TDs.

Denver's Leonard Harris, who earlier set up White's touchdown on a 74-yard second half kickoff return, scored on a 13-yard pass from Penrose at 7:49 of the final period and teammate David Martin less than a minute later intercepted a Reaves pass and dashed 38 yards for a score.

"The only thing I can promise is that there will be some different guys covering kickoffs," said Bandits coach Steve Spurrier. "We've got the wrong people covering kickoffs."

Spurrier said his players turned in a good effort "but we didn't come up with the big plays. We were close but it just didn't work out for us."

Panthers 31, Wranglers 26

David Greenwood got the jump on his U.S. Football League competition because the Michigan Panthers' safety learned how pleased because Arizona's assistant coaches were heckling Michigan.

"I was very, very glad to stick it in their face," Greenwood said.

Michigan quarterback Bobby Hebert threw three touchdown passes — one to tight end Mike Cobb and two to split receiver Derek Holloway.

Hebert steered Michigan to scores the first two times it had the ball, including a 10-yard touchdown pass to Holloway that helped the Panthers take a 14-6 halftime lead. Arizona was held to first-half field goals of 31- and 26-yards by Frank Corral.

In the second half, both teams scored on every possession until Greenwood's interception. Landry, who completed 27-of-40 passes for 294 yards, threw a 9-yard pass to receiver Len Willis and handed off for TDs of 9 and 2 yards to back Kevin Long.

Michigan responded just 1:56 after Long's second TD run with Hebert's 60-yard strike to Holloway.

In other games, Denver defeated Tampa Bay 36-30, Pittsburgh dropped Washington

16-7, Philadelphia routed Oakland 28-7 and Houston topped New Jersey 32-25.

Maulers 16, Federals 7

At Washington, Tony Lee kicked an 18-yard field goal with 1:56 left and Jeff Delaney returned an interception 50 yards for a touchdown 40 seconds later to give Pittsburgh their first USFL victory over the winless Federals.

Stars 28, Invaders 7

At Philadelphia, Kelvin Bryant, who gained 173 yards in 24 carries, scored two touchdowns and Chuck Fusina passed for two more Sunday to lead the Stars over Oakland and spoil the debut of new Invaders coach Chuck Hutchison.

Gamblers 32, Generals 25

At Houston, quarterback Jim Kelly passed for 271 yards and one touchdown, and cornerback Will Lewis intercepted two Brian Sipe passes and returned one for a TD Sunday for the hosts. Houston, 3-1, delighted 35,532 partisan fans with the triumph. New Jersey suffered their first loss in four games under coach Walt Michaels.

DePaul Rips Illinois State

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — The common misconception is that DePaul players want to win the 1984 NCAA Championship for their retiring coach Ray Meyer. Actually, Meyer wants to win the elusive national crown for his players.

Both players and coach moved a step closer toward that goal Sunday with a 75-61 rout of Illinois State in the NCAA Midwest Regional. Four more wins this season would bring Meyer the first and only NCAA championship of his 42-year coaching tenure.

"I'm so happy," Meyer said. "Let's face it, I love this team. They do so much more for me than I could ever do for them."

"I came into the lockerroom before the game and told Kenny Patterson if he bent over quickly he'd break. I kidded around with the players, just tried to relax them. There was no pep talk. We were so much better a team (than Illinois State). There was no way they were going to beat us."

Meyer improved his career record to 724-353 with his second milestone victory of the season against Illinois State. He beat the Redbirds 69-66 back in December for his 700th career win and his triumph Sunday enabled the Blue Demons to equal a school single-season record of 27 victories.

Tyrone Corbin collected 20 points and 9 rebounds and Dallas Comegys and Patterson chipped in 14 points apiece as DePaul, the top-seeded team in the Midwest, improved its record to 27-2 with its eighth straight win.

DePaul hit five of its first six shots in the second half — and Comegys grabbed the offensive rebound on the one miss and returned it for a basket — to move from a 9-point intermission lead to a 47-34 advantage. Corbin scored 12 of his 20 points in the second half to complete the rout.

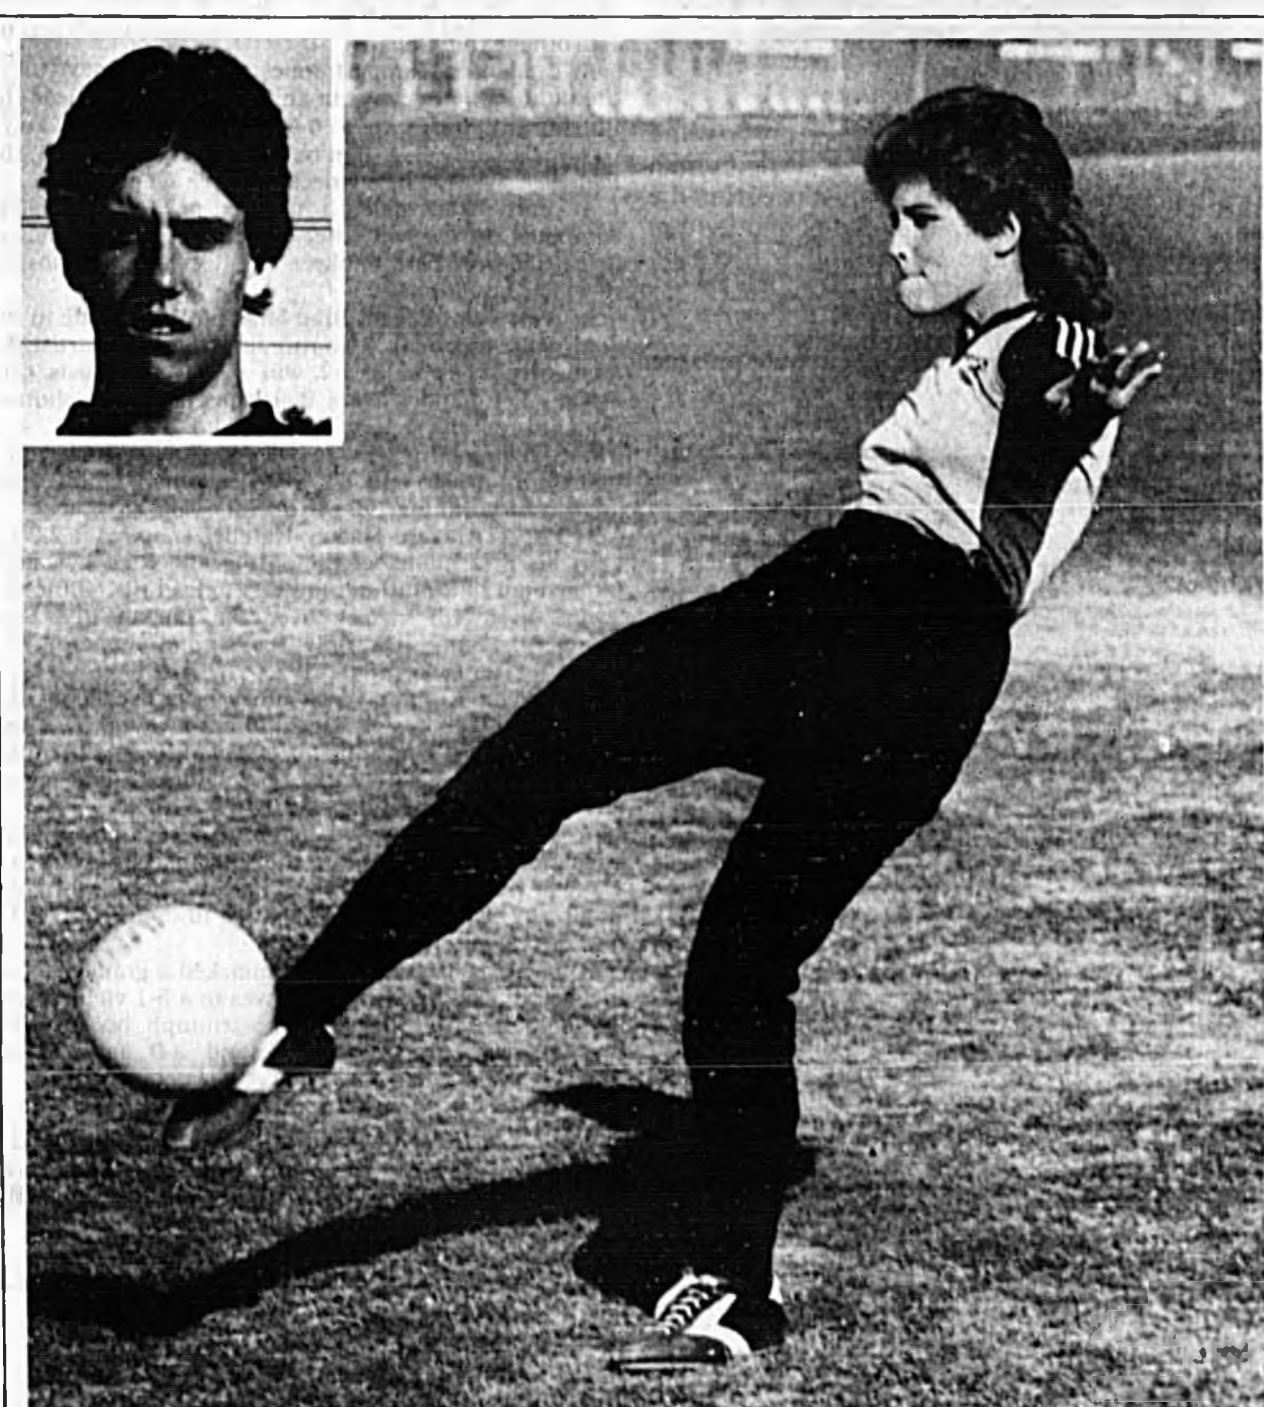

"I was so proud of the boys," the 70-year-old Meyer said. "This team does whatever we ask of them. If we lose, it will be because the other team is better. This team will not beat itself."

DePaul advances to a regional semifinal game Friday night in St. Louis against Wake Forest, a 69-59 winner over Kansas Sunday in the second game of the double-header.

Kenny Green scored 20 points and Anthony Teachey had 13 points and 15 rebounds to help Wake Forest equal its own single-season win record of 22.

The 6-9 Teachey was the only player on either team to go the full 40 minutes and he outrebounded the entire Kansas front line of 7-foot-1 Greg Drelling, 6-8 Kelly Knight and 6-8 Calvin Thompson (a combined 13 rebounds). Teachey also had 4 assists.

"I don't think Teachey has gotten the credit he deserves," Wake Forest coach Carl Tracy said.

Howell, Dalton Perfect Couple

Debbie Howell, Lake Mary's sophomore keeper, has a lot to kick about, along with Lake Mary boys' senior keeper Joe Dalton, inset. Howell, who posted four shutouts for the year, and Dalton were both named to the Florida Athletic Coaches Association 4A All-State Soccer Team last week. It was the first time two goalies from the same school had ever made the all-state team. See Tuesday's Evening Herald for the Seminole County players who joined Howell and Dalton on the elite squad.

Irish Eyes Do Smile On Racer McKinney

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — On Saturday, St. Patrick's night, it was very appropriate that Doc McKinney, a full-blooded Irishman, was the popular winner of the hotly-disputed thundercar feature at New Smyrna Speedway.

But for Mike McCrary, another fighting Irishman, things did not turn out so well. McCrary, driving a car owned by his parents, Ken and Pat McCrary of Miami, led the late model feature for 22 laps, surviving a multitude of caution periods, only to destroy the car's front end when he clobbered the wall with three laps to go, after tangling with eventual winner David Rogers.

Rogers was at the wheel of the brand new All-Pro legal Wayne Densch Budweiser Firebird which he plans to drive in the All-Pro Super Series Neil Bonnett Race Cars 200 this coming Sunday at Five Flags Speedway in Pensacola.

Second generation chauffeur David Snodgrass, in a Camaro, scored a well-deserved street stock victory over 1980-82 State Champ Bill Kinley, Ben Booth, 1981 Florida Street stock king Lance Smith in the "Bud Light" Special and Pat Weaver.

Stan Eads, Milo Vidic, Bill Martin, Chuck Shank and Eddie Tovot were the top four cylinder finishers. Spectator races winners were Troy Maloney and Mike Fritts.

Ewing's Tip Saves Hoyas From Premature Burial

United Press International

Slowdown basketball nearly buried Georgetown in the West.

"I hope that's the bad ballgame we have to get out of our system," Hoyas coach John Thompson said. "It was a bad game for us."

Patrick Ewing tipped in a missed free throw with 51 seconds left and Michael Jackson added a foul shot with 8 seconds to go as Georgetown escaped 37-36 against Southern Methodist in the West Regional in Pullman, Wash.

In the other game, Washington dominated Duke 80-78 behind Detlef Schrempf's 30 points. The Hoyas meet Nevada-Las Vegas Friday at Los Angeles with Dayton facing the Huskies.

Georgetown, expected to storm through this regional, trailed 24-16 at halftime. Its lethal man-to-man defense then took control, limiting SMU to 2 points in the first 13:48 of the second half.

After spreading their offense midway through the second half, the Hoyas built a 32-26 lead. But SMU — which outrebounded Georgetown 31-24 — got the ball inside and tied it 34-34 with 2:46 left. Ewing followed a missed free throw by Gene Smith to make it 36-34 and Jackson's foul shot secured it.

Ewing had 10 points and 7 rebounds for the Hoyas, 30-3. SMU, 25-8 was led by Jon Koncak with 13 points and Larry Davis with 12.

"I didn't think it was the big guy's best game," Thompson said of Ewing. "But I've always said he's a prime-time player. He made the big play."

In the second game, Schrempf, a West German native, scored 21 points in the second half for Washington, 24-8. Duke cut it to 79-78 with 1:05 left on Mark Alarie's jumper. Tommy Amaker of the Blue Devils missed with eight seconds left. Johnny Dawkins had 22 points and Alarie 20 for Duke EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Georgia is not just on their minds — it's on the schedule.

Virginia and Syracuse survived the East Regional Sunday to join the NCAA Tournament's final 16 teams. The next stop will be Ailanta, where the East Regional resumes Thursday night. The Cavaliers face the Orangemen and North Carolina plays Indiana.

Virginia beats Arkansas 53-51 in overtime on Rick Carlisle's jumper from the corner with four seconds left following a blocked shot.

In the second game, Syracuse defeated Virginia Commonwealth 78-63 behind 24 points by Rafael Addison and a gutsy man-to-man defense.

Carlisle, who made two bad passes late in the game, atoned for all transgressions with his 12-footer from the baseline. With the score 51-51, Virginia's Othell Wilson had his shot blocked by Alvin Robertson but the ball wound up in Carlisle's hands. Robertson then missed a 28-footer at the buzzer.

"I had to put it up higher than normal because someone was right on me," said Carlisle, a 6-foot-5 guard. "It seemed like the ball was in the air for three or four seconds."

"It wasn't a fluke," Robertson said. "They beat us for the loose ball. They deserve the credit."

Virginia, 19-11, was paced by Wilson with 13 points, including a foul shot with 15 seconds left in regulation, and Carlisle with 12 in a game suited to the deliberate tempo of the Cavaliers.

"I've never been involved in a game more intense than this one," Virginia coach Terry Holland said. "Arkansas forced us to great heights and our kids responded."

For No. 7 Arkansas, 25-7, Joe Kleine was hounded inside and scored 15 points. Robertson finished with 14 points, 8 steals and 7 assists while Ricky Norton added 11 points.

"If we played them a series, I believe we'd win," Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton said. "But we didn't — we played once and they beat us. And that's what makes college ball the best game in the world."

two critical fouls. With 49 seconds left Norton was charged with an offensive foul and with 15 seconds remaining Robertson fouled Wilson, whose 1-of-2 free throws tied it 49-49. A 24-footer by Robertson was off, forcing overtime.

"College officiating may be the thing that drives me into the NBA," Sutton said.

The Razorbacks went the last 4:18 of regulation without a field goal. Overtime was no better as a field goal from the floor. Kleine made two free throws but Wilson's corner shot tied it 51-51 with 1:32 left. Then came another Arkansas blunder — Leroy Sutton's bad pass — before Virginia and Carlisle took over.

Virginia Commonwealth, a disciplined team that uses flash cards on the sidelines to signal its defense, stayed with Syracuse until late in the second half. The Rams drew to 59-57 with 6:33 left and then went dry. The Orangemen ran off 14 straight points in slightly more than six minutes and were untroubled the rest of the way.

Addison (9-of-13 shooting) was backed by Dwayne Washington with 18 points. Sean Kerins with 16 and Andre Hawkins with 14. Syracuse capitalized at the line, making 19-of-23 in the second half to 1-of-1 for Virginia Commonwealth.

"I'm at my best when everyone gets involved in the offense," Addison said. "When I don't get into foul trouble that dictates how well I do offensively."

Syracuse trailed by 9 in a lethargic first half before switching to a man-to-man defense.

Young Lifts Virginia Tech

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Al Young's only points of the night turned out to be the ones that counted most for Virginia Tech in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

The 6-foot guard went up in traffic and tipped in a baseline jumper by Perry Young with three seconds left Sunday night to lift the Gobblers to a 68-66 victory over South Alabama.

Virginia Tech thus moves to the NIT third round with Pittsburgh, a 66-63 winner over Florida State in Sunday night's first game.

NIT Basketball

Al Gipeon, who led Florida State in scoring with a 20.5 average this year, spent much of the early going on the bench. Coach Joe Williams said his 6-foot-10 star took himself out of the game because he was dissatisfied with his play.

"We're not going to let this detract from a good season," said Williams. "They've done some good things."

Phillies Rough Up Hoyt; Jenkins Gets Inevitable

By United Press International Last year's Cy Young Award winners went face-to-face Sunday in what promised to be a pitching duel. So much for promises.

Philadelphia's John Denny gave up one run in six innings but Chicago's LaMarr Hoyt was routed with six runs in just over four innings in the Phillies' 8-1 triumph over the White Sox at Clearwater.

Len Matuszek collected four hits and drove in four runs and Mike Schmidt blasted his first spring home run in the victory.

Hoyt, who was was 24-10 last year, was tagged for four runs in the fifth.

The White Sox jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first on an RBI single by Greg Walker off Denny, who turned in a 19-6 record in 1983. The Phillies tied it in the second on Schmidt's drive to dead center. Matuszek's RBI double in the third made it 2-1.

Matuszek knocked in the Phillies' third run in the fifth with a double. Gary Matthews tripled him home. Schmidt scored Matthews with a double and Joe Lefebvre's hit made it 6-1. Philadelphia's final runs came in the eighth on Matuszek's third double.

Philadelphia's spring record improved to 7-9. The White Sox dropped to 9-5.

In other exhibitions: At Bradenton, Ruppert Jones scored the tying run in the fifth and later drove in an insurance run to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-4 win over the St. Louis Cardinals. Jones, a non-roster player, was with the Padres last season before declaring free agency.

At Fort Lauderdale, a quintet of Texas pitchers combined on a seven-hitter to help the Texas Rangers defeat the New York Yankees 5-3. It was the first loss in relief for Dave Righetti.

At West Palm Beach, Brad Mills broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth with a two-out, two-run single which carried the Montreal Expos to a 4-2 win over the Kansas City Royals. Left-hander Chris Welsh pitched three shutout innings to get the victory.

At St. Petersburg, George Bell drove in five runs with a home run, single and triple to lead the Toronto Blue Jays to an 11-inning, 8-3 win over the New York Mets.

At Winter Haven, Mickey Hatcher snapped a 2-2 tie with his first homer of the spring and Rick Lysander pitched out of a ninth-inning jam to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Hatcher's homer was only the second homer in 12 games for the Twins this spring.

At Lakeland, John Wockenfuss' sacrifice fly in the eighth lifted the Detroit Tigers to a 2-1 victory over the Houston Astros. Houston starter Nolan Ryan retired the first 19 batters before Alan Trammell was safe on an error in the seventh inning.

At Yuma, Ariz., Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to nine games to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-1 win over the San Diego Padres. Molitor hit two singles to boost his spring average to .543. He has 19 hits in 35 at-bats.

At Vero Beach, Bob Watson smacked a grand slam in the fifth to lead the Atlanta Braves to a 5-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. The triumph boosted the Braves' spring record to 8-6 and 3-0 against Los Angeles, which fell to 7-6.

At Mesa, Ariz., Fred Lynn drove in three runs with a double and triple and Brian Downing doubled twice to lead the California Angels to an 11-7 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

At Scottsdale, Ariz., Rickey Henderson went 3-for-4, including a homer, to power the Oakland A's to a 7-2 Cactus League victory over the San Francisco Giants.

At Tucson, Ariz., Al Cowens drove in five runs with a triple and a home run to lead the Seattle Mariners to a 15-13 triumph over the Cleveland Indians. Seattle's Bill Nahorodny added four RBIs, including a two-run homer. Cleveland outfielder Carmelo Castillo, who went 3-for-4, drove in three runs with a bases-loaded triple.

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Ferguson Jenkins, just 16 victories shy of 300 for his career, called his release from the Chicago Cubs "inevitable" and says he will probably retire after 22 years in the major leagues.

Jenkins, 40, was placed on irrevocable waivers Saturday after giving up seven runs in five innings during two outings in spring training.

"It was inevitable," said Jenkins. "The Cubs have young pitchers they're going to take a look at, and my performance last year wasn't that great."

"I've played 22 years, and I've had a lot of fun. There is a time and a place to say, 'Hey, it's all done.' I've seen guys released before. It's not easy, but you've got to take it."

Jenkins said he probably will retire to his farm in his hometown of Chatham, Ontario, to raise cattle and spend time with his family.

"My agent said a few teams were interested," he said. "But there's a lot of hard work involved. I have my daughters, and 16 games is tough to win at age 41. Maybe I'll take the easy way out and go home."

Jenkins, the oldest player on the Cubs' roster, had a 6-9 record with a 4.30 ERA last year.

Jenkins compiled a record of 284-226 with 3,192 strikeouts for the Cubs, Texas and Boston. He is 19th on the all-time career victory list, sixth on the all-time strikeout list, and is one of only four pitchers to win 100 games in both leagues.

Jenkins is also the only pitcher to strike out more than 3,000 batters and walk fewer than 1,000. He was a Cy Young award winner in 1971 and was selected comeback player of the year in 1974.

"Fergie has been a great pitcher," Green said. "He's contributed to Cubs' history and baseball history."

CHICAGO (UPI) — White Sox batting coach Charley Lau, who made some of the best hitters in baseball even better during a 15-year career as a major-league instructor, has died after a year-long battle with cancer.

Lau, 50, passed away Sunday at his home in Key Colony Beach, Fla.

"In my opinion, he was a genius," said White Sox manager Tony LaRussa. "He was able to work with anyone, a veteran or a rookie."

"There was no question Charley was regarded as the best in all of baseball at teaching the craft of hitting a baseball," said White Sox chairman Jerry Reinsdorf.

Lau began coaching in 1969 with the Baltimore Orioles and spent the 1970 season with the Oakland A's.

'If I Could Turn Back The Clock, I Would Buy My Mom The New...'

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago I read a letter in your column from a grieving son. In it was this line: "If I could turn back the clock, I would buy my mom the new coat she needed so badly and take her anywhere she wanted to go."

Dear Abby

Please print it again. Someone I know needs to be reminded that he has a mother.

YOUR FAN IN ARIZONA

DEAR FAN: Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday was the saddest day of my life. I buried my mother. And now many thoughts come to mind that make me even sadder.

I recall the many times I meant to call her and ask if there was anything she needed, but I seldom got around to it.

I recall the day I ran into Mom in the bakery. Her winter coat looked so shabby and worn, and I thought, "Gee, I've got to take Mom downtown and buy her a new coat." But I never found the time. I was too busy.

On her last birthday I sent her an azalea plant, but I forgot to enclose a card. I had wanted to get over to see her, but there was a football game that day, so I never made it.

The last time I saw mom was at my cousin's wedding. She looked so old and tired. I told myself, "I must send Mom to Florida to visit her brother and get a little sun," but I just never got around to buying the tickets.

If only I could turn back the clock, I'd buy Mom that coat, and spend every birthday with her and take her anywhere she wanted to go. But it's too late now and I am heart sick.

Please print this letter. Maybe if I had seen one like it, I would have done things differently.

especially now that we are older. I was never too fond of sex in my younger years, but now I think it's revolting. I'm 68 and my husband is 69.

I have never refused my husband, but he knows how I feel about sex and he doesn't bother me very often. I thank God for such a kind and understanding husband.

I offered to give him a divorce, but he said he loves me and doesn't want one. He also said he didn't want to take a chance on another woman — she might deny him sex all the time.

He's not very demanding, so I try to accommodate him now and then. I really do love him.

DEAR FRIGID: A marriage between a frigid wife and a kind and understanding husband who doesn't "bother" her very often must have been made in heaven. You are indeed lucky to have found each other.

DEAR ABBY: I've enjoyed your column for many years. It was so witty, with just the right answers to some very real problems. Will you please return to those days and skip all the lectures and sermons you've been running of late?

Also, please let the Food and Drug Administration buy space in newspapers and medical journals to warn people about combining drugs with certain foods, etc. We need you as you were.

DEAR MRS. D.: To paraphrase Abraham Lincoln: You may please all of the people some of the time, and some of the people all of the time, but you can't please all of the people all of the time.

Thanks for writing. I learn more from criticism than I do from praise.

How To Shop For Antiques

How do you determine the value of an antique?

Theta Epsilon members answered this question from pointers given during a recent presentation on a "Contemporary Approach to Antique Shopping" by member Norma Loopp.

Mrs. Loopp, an 18th century furniture buff first asked each member to define antique. A general answer was something rare from an earlier period, usually 100 years previous. Working from this definition, Mrs. Loopp gave fellow members some value determinants to keep in mind.

According to Mrs. Loopp, there are eight factors to consider. The first one is rarity. "Rarity is not an absolute factor, as some are so rare that they just aren't available," she says.

The second factor to consider is quality. "If it's so far gone as to have nothing of value left then it's old trash, and trash is trash," Mrs. Loopp says. A broken but mended piece still is all there and as such is worth something, she explained.

Adaptability is third. It has more value if it is decorative or useful to you or someone else, according to Mrs. Loopp.

Popularity is the fourth factor. The more popular the item the more its value will be. Popularity of the antique also leads to the fifth value factor, regionalism. Pieces from New York are going to be more popular in New York for "historical or family roots" reasons. As such, they will be of more value to somebody from New York than from Florida.

Mrs. Loopp's sixth factor is condition. The better its shape, the better its value, she told the members. Historical documentation or proof of its earlier existence and the craftsman's signature and date are the last two deciding factors stated by Mrs. Loopp.

After carefully storing this information away, members were then asked to go on an imaginary antique shopping spree. They were told to carry their tools — flashlights and magnifying glass to examine with; magnets for testing brass; tape measure for testing true round wooden pieces. "You will never find an antique table that is perfectly round," Mrs. Loopp said.

After the antique shopping, she gave members a good definition to add to their list of value factors. The definition, taken from Albert Sack is: "An antique is an old piece of fine quality that was designed in such a way that it had reason to survive." This working definition can apply to some of today's furniture such as the Scandinavian pieces so all who are interested in a piece of history will still be able to antique shop in the future.

After the conclusion of the program, president Laurel Rodgers presided over a brief business meeting.

Members discussed recent social events, including a brunch at Cassidy's Restaurant to honor their Valentine Girl, Ruth Gaines. Attending were Laurel Rodgers, Lois Smith, Virginia Hagan, Bonnie Jones, Norma Loopp, Victoria Hughes, Tracey Wight, Vickie Hall, Ruth Gaines, Faye Lord and guest, Robert Tromblay.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you feel you are owed something in order to budge the other party, you'll have to speak up today to get that to which you are entitled.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Beware of tendencies today to postpone making difficult decisions. Don't kid yourself into thinking conditions will improve the longer you wait.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Important achievements can be realized today provided you are willing to pay the price. If there's something you want, roll up your sleeves and go to work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your luck, energy and drive have their limitations today, so don't attempt to push them too far. The results could be counterproductive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A feather-light touch will be required in delicate domestic situations today. Heavy-handed methods will only create additional problems.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When dealing with others today, think before speaking. There's a possibility you could unwittingly make caustic remarks that will not be readily forgiven.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Look out for your interests today, but don't do so in ways that others could interpret as being too selfish. This attitude will invite losses, not gains.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have considerable reserves to draw upon today, so don't be discouraged if your aims aren't accomplished on the first try. Keep plugging.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally, your optimism is easily aroused, but today trying situations could cause you to think negatively. Let your positive qualities emerge.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Old projects must not be allowed to suffer today because of your enthusiasm for new ones. For best results, give each equal attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is one of those days where your progress might not be as rapid as you'd like. Keep in mind: As long as you're moving forward, every step counts.

Impotence Medical Or Psychological?

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 39 and impotent. I've been dating a woman for 18 months and I'm in love and want to marry her. She returns these feelings. We used to have a good sexual relationship. Sometimes we made love twice a day. Now I can't get an erection, or if I do, I lose it. It's gotten to the point I'm afraid to start making love because of it.

My girlfriend has been understanding and loving, but sometimes she thinks she's at fault. She asks me if I still love her. I can imagine how frustrated she must feel.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Four years ago when I was 16, one of my testicles was removed. Does my other testicle produce extra testosterone now? Does my body have as much testosterone in it as it would if I had not had one removed? Does the sperm count pose any problem in my having children?

DEAR READER — There definitely is a tendency toward compensatory enlargement in such circumstances. The testicles are stimulated by hormone from your pituitary gland. The same amount of hormone continue to be secreted by the pituitary, all targeted on one testicle, and it responds.

DEAR READER — Naturally you are upset. Confidence is very important in sex and once you lose your confidence the problem gets worse. When your confidence is restored, you should regain your ability.

But you shouldn't assume that it's a psychological. You need a complete examination to find out. After all, you're not inexperienced or afraid of sex.

Some men and women have sexual problems when they're going through depression. And some men have problems because of diabetes or alcohol.

I've discussed what an examination for impotence should include in the Health Letter 18-6. Help for impotence, which I'm sending you.

Read it and then find a urologist to have a proper examination. If your present doctor has not done this kind of evaluation, he may not be up-to-date on the rapid changes in thinking about impotence. Psychological factors are sometimes the cause, but impotence often is a symptom of underlying medical problems. Solving the problem depends first upon finding the cause.

go down at. South has six easy club tricks. Or has he? The answer is that if clubs break 2-1 as they are supposed to do in friendly climes, there are six club tricks plus three aces.

Jim: "The authors point out that declarer can guard against a 3-0 club break by ducking the first spade, as well as the second spade if it is led. After these two ducks he can discard a low club on the spade ace and have his nine tricks."

Oswald: Suppose West is that one West in a million who would shift at trick two. The authors have set up the red suit so that South can win the red suit trick, lead a second spade and duck in dummy. West is back on lead and can do nothing to upset South. If West leads a red suit again, South will end up back in his hand, will play K-Q of clubs and lead the nine of clubs to dummy's ace.

He now can discard the bothersome fourth club on the ace of spades and run the rest of the clubs. He scores either nine or a possible 10 tricks, depending on the defensive discards.
