Irwin re-writes record books

MEDINAH, Ill. — Hale Irwin not only won in the first sudden death playoff in the U.S. Open's 90-year history, he became only the fifth three-time winner of the event. And at age 45 he is the oldest of the U.S. Open champions.

Police search suspect's home

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. — Police searched the Florida home of Kenneth Ponte, a reported suspect in the New Bedford-area serial killings, and confiscated some unidentified items, Ponte's attorney said.

Bristol County authorities have declined to confirm media reports that Ponte, a former Dartmouth attorney, is a suspect in the serial killings of nine women whose bodies were found along highways in southeastern Massachusetts.

But in a motion filed last week seeking to increase Ponte's bail, Florida prosecutors said "this state's attorney's office has learned that the Bristol County grand jury in Massachusetts has received testimony which could implicate the defendant in homicides."

Ponte, who has said he is a suspect in the killings but has repeatedly denied any involvement, was arrested last week in Port Richey, Fla., and charged with choking and threatening to kill a Lynn woman, Diane Doherty. Ponte is being held in the Pasco County, Fla., jail in lieu of $200,000 bail.

Doherty has since recanted her initial statement to police, but the charges against Ponte have not been dropped. Doherty is also being held in the Pasco County lockup, charged with being a fugitive from justice in a Lynnfield larceny case.

Ponte's attorney, J. Larry Hart, said Monday that Florida police searched his client's Port Richey home last Friday and removed "seemingly innocuous sorts of things that can be found in any home." He declined to elaborate.

Police refused to comment on the matter. The judge who issued the search warrant has ordered all documents related to the case closed.

Water supply in peril

By J. MARK BARFIELD

GENEVA — This community's fragile water supply known as the "Geneva Bubble" was threatened this weekend when a gasoline tank at the Geneva General Store on Avenue C leaked about 850 gallons of fuel into the ground, officials said today.

Officials from the Seminole County Environmental Health Services, Public Health Unit environmental health section and the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation have begun to inspect the site.

If the gasoline does not spread too quickly, wells can be used to draw out the contaminated groundwater, an official said.

John Cochran, director of Environmental Health for Seminole County said, "at the present time, we don't know what the water quality is in that area. But in cases like this involving petroleum products, the odor and taste of the water is generally evidence of intrusion in itself."

Cochran said Environmental Health Services has ordered bottles for testing area wells within a week, and they will be sampling wells previously tested in 1987, to determine whether there have been any changes.

"At the present time," he said, "we don't know of any water in the Geneva area that is unsafe to drink." He said the Department of Environmental Regulation will determine that.

A 26-foot-deep monitoring well placed within 40 feet of the store indicated contaminated groundwater had spread beyond its deepest point.

A Seminole County environmental official said the bubble is at about 30 feet at the store site.

If the isolated bubble becomes contaminated, Geneva residents would have no source of freshwater and would have to rely on tanker trucks to supply them until the contamination is removed.

Kirk Middleton, Seminole County fire marshal, said the 1,000-gallon tank had been emptied last week to allow its interior to be coated with fiberglass to meet new state underground storage

SANFORD — It's Summer fun and it's in the art at Idyllwilde and Wilson elementary schools.

Organized by parents and staffed by parents, teachers and community volunteers, the programs offer a variety of subjects such as science, cheerleading, computers, and karate.

"There are some academic and some pseudo-academic classes," said Jerrit Gilloft of the PTA at Wilson Elementary School, 985 Orange Ave., Sanford, who organized the summer programs.

"This is something constructive for them to do," she said. "The district can't afford to pay for the programs, but we were able to find a cure for the 'I don't have anything to do's' that the kids seem to get after a few weeks off."

Gilloft said the PTA at Wilson had various drives to raise money throughout the year to help pay for the classes, the use of the school facilities and the stipend paid to the teachers and community workers.

"There is also a small charge ($15) that helps us defray the cost of putting the program together," Gilloft said.

She said students will also have to pay for

Sanford studying ways to alleviate flooding problem

By J. BRADLEY DILLING
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The city this week will be taking a step toward alleviating the minor flooding problems created by thunderstorms such as the one that hit Sanford two weekends ago.

Bill Simmons, city director of planning and engineering, said he asks the Sanford engineering firm Conklin, Porter and Holmes to determine what could be done to prevent the flooding of local homes and businesses during the heavy thunderstorms.

Simmons said the problem was particularly bad in the area of First Street between Park and Palmetto Avenues, but the study would address the Cloud Branch and Mill Creek basins, both located in an area north of 25th Street and west of Airport Boulevard. The engineer said new stormwater systems downtown could take between $800,000 and $1 million to develop

Lake Mary might file mall protest

Possible traffic woes worry city officials

By NICK PFEIFAU

LAKE MARY — City commissioners this week are expected to decide whether to officially object to an amendment of the Sanford comprehensive plan regarding the proposed 246-acre Seminole Mall site. The deadline for filing appeals to the state is less than one week away.

According to the city's special counsel Forrest Fields, the city must file an appeal to the state Department of Community Affairs telling of its concern for mitigation of impacts on Rinehart Road by June 25. DCA, in turn, would be expected to issue its official objections, recommendations and comments concerning Sanford's Comprehensive Plan amendment to annex the mall site by the following day.

Lake Mary City Manager John Litton said, "While we're still working to resolve the problem of widening Rinehart Road, we have to process our objections by the deadline date in order to protect our rights."

The comprehensive plan amendment is the only practical avenue of appeal through which Lake Mary may ask the state to address the issue of Rinehart Road.

Rinehart Road is a two-lane, city-maintained street that runs from Lake Mary Boulevard near the Interstate 4 interchange, north to State Road 46-A, which would be near the southern entrance to the proposed mall. The $100 million Seminole Mall is to be a regional mixed use development containing approximately 1.41 million square feet of retail space, 400,000 square feet of offices and 60,000 square feet of office/showroom space in addition to 400 hotel rooms.

The East Central Florida Regional Planning Council (RPC) had reviewed the proposed mall's regional impact and recommended approval subject to several conditions, including transportation studies conducted on certain area roads and a provision of certain transportation facility improvements needed because of the impact of expected mall traffic.

LONGWOOD — It took a long time and a great deal of paperwork — and the anger of times of a number of people — but the friends of Rose Massey finally got to hold a small celebration last night.

The reason is that she will be allowed once again to live in a house on her own property.

Massey was forced to leave her Wilma Street home of more than 38 years earlier this year when it was condemned by the city. Since then, local residents and social organizations have rallied to help the 63-year-old woman.

The deciding factor at the Longwood City Commission meeting last night was the reading of a response from the state Department of Community Affairs saying

Boy accused in coin theft

WINTER SPRINGS — According to sheriff's office reports a 17-year-old Winter student at Greenwood Lakes Middle School was arrested Monday and charged with stealing $93.75 in coins from the father of a friend.

William Miller told sheriff's deputies that the money was stolen from his house by the suspect, who told officers that he has been involved in past robberies with Miller's son.

Man accused of spouse abuse

OVIEDO — Donald Lyndell Hopson, 1338 S. Central Ave., Oviedo, was arrested for assaulting his wife during a dispute on Monday, according to Seminole County Sheriff's office reports.

When a domestic dispute over money matters grew heated, the report stated, Hopson and his wife began shouting verbal assaults. When the woman tried to leave the couple's bedroom, Hopson allegedly hit her several times.

The report states that while she was scratched and bruised, the wife did not require any medical treatment.

Garbage employee accused in threat

LAKE MARY — Sheriff's office records show that a Sure Garbage Disposal employee allegedly threatened Donna Serafine, 717 Heather Glen Circle, Lake Mary, with a flashlight while involved in a verbal dispute with her son Chad, 16.

The report stated that Chad had parked near some garbage cans and entered into an argument over the situation with the employee. When the mother joined her son in the dispute, the employee allegedly told her to shut up or he would "have to hurt" her.

The employee has not been arrested.

Fraud charges bring arrest

WINTER PARK — A transient, who according to police records is currently on parole from the Massachusetts Department of Corrections on charges of theft and fraud, was arrested Monday for allegedly dealing in stolen property and defrauding several area businesses.

Frank Robert Merlino, who reports said uses several aliases and has no local address, was arrested after allegedly purchasing a $34,000 Toyota Supra from Jimmy Bryan Toyota in Winter Springs using the name, along with falsified identification and financial records, of a Winter Park man with whom he was casually acquainted.

He reportedly also took delivery of a computer system from Computer Touch of Winter Park by presenting himself as a representative of Westinghouse Aerospace Corp. Sheriff's office reports show that he then identified himself as a vice president of IBM when he sold the system to Steve Ettinger, sales manager of Dynamic Motor Cars in Maitland for $2,000.

The sheriff's office reports he also fraudulently received a Texaco credit card and allegedly opened a fraudulent checking account at the Citizens and Southern bank in Casselberry.

In addition, he allegedly had several stolen credit cards and drivers licenses from both Florida and Massachusetts in various names.

Merlino reportedly came to Florida in November when the Massachusetts Department of Corrections granted him a temporary two week travel pass which expired on Nov. 29.

He allegedly committed several fraudulent acts in Seminole, Orange and Volusia counties.

Seminole County DUI arrests

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

- Major Garvin, 54, 1841 McArthur Ave., Sanford, was arrested at 7:31 p.m. Sunday after he was found slumped at the wheel of his car parked on West 13th Street, Sanford.

State approves Little Wekiva dock

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — The Florida Department of Community Affairs has determined a wooden dock and observation deck in the Alauqua subdivision has minimal effect on the Little Wekiva river and surrounding wetlands.

Although someone can challenge the DCA certification until July 6, the president of the Friends of the Wekiva River Inc. said his group will not.

"I don't think a dock is going to have that much impact on the river," said Fred Harden, FOWR president. "In fact, we could use the extra canoe access point on the river. My main concern is the precedent this may establish. It may send the message that if you want a dock on the river, you can go ahead and build it, then pay the fee and get the permit and everything will be O.K."

The wooden structure and 1,365-foot, 25-foot-wide "nature trail" built through sensitive wetlands to it caused a storm of controversy in July 1989 when inspectors from the St. Johns River Water Management District discovered it had been built without construction or dredge and fill permits.

District staff subsequently recommended a fine of $64,000 and assessed $494 in fees and legal costs in Sept. 1989. The fine is still being negotiated, district staff said.

The district also gave Alauqua developer Sid Roche the option to remove the three- to four-foot high path through the wetlands or to seek a permit to allow the elevated path to remain. District staff oppose the permit. The district governing board may consider Roche's application in July.

Ned Williamson, Alauqua vice president, said the company is negotiating with the district in order to resolve the controversy and declined to comment further on the issue.

"As you can understand, we are negotiating this now and because of that, I have no further comment at this time," Williamson said.

Williamson said Roche is no longer chief partner and developer of Alauqua and Alauqua Lakes, although Roche remains part owner of the development. Williamson said Roche was removed from his position following a "disagreement" with partner Mike DeGroot Sr., president of Westberry Development Inc.

Seminole County approved the 200-foot dock and observation deck in April, but also ordered Roche to remove the path. Roche appealed the decision in May. The appeal was scheduled to be heard by the county commission June 26, but it will be rescheduled until after the district vote.

County natural resources officer Tim Clabaugh said the county would accept an elevated boardwalk through the wetlands if the fill was removed. Clabaugh said such an elevated path would allow water to flow through the wetlands with minimal interruption and would not deter wildlife from passing through the area.

Because the dock and observation area are near the Little Wekiva River, they must be reviewed by the DCA. In a letter received by the county last week, DCA reviewers said the wooden structure will have "minimal impact" on the natural resources and rural character of the area. The nature trail will be reviewed separately if the county approves it, said Jim Farr, DCA state planner.

Interested persons are asked to phone 843-POOL (7556) for specific times of departure and return in the Lake Mary area.

Midges to headline Doo-dah Parade

By J. BRADLEY DILLING
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — It's a celebration of liberty with a little bit of lunacy.

Be your own float or marching display or coordinate with friends. Be imaginative, but don't work very hard or spend a lot of time or money organizing, because that's not the spirit of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce July 4 Doo-dah Parade, said parade officials, who — in true Doo-dah fashion — did not want to be identified as officials.

The special guests of dishonor for this year's march will be the blind mosquitoes that make their homes in Lake Monroe and in the nasal passages of people at the lake.

But why are the mosquitoes under the spotlight?

"Well, we can't kill them all, and we can't get them to leave, so we might as well make fun of them," parade organizer Jean Skipper said.

Steve Alford — the individual who has tried to raise money to pay for the Fourth of July fireworks display abandoned by the chamber this year — has been asked to be the Less Than Grand Marshal of the parade.

Alford could not be reached for comment. Skipper said the parade will start promptly at 7:13 p.m.

But why specifically 7:13? "Because it's the Doo-dah parade," Skipper said. "Why not?"

In the spirit of the event, Skipper admitted that she was a parade "disorganizer" one moment and denied it the next, but said that disorganizer is an appropriate title for officials of this event.

She deferred questions to Karen Copp, who last year came up with the idea to have the parade.

In true Doo-dah spirit, Copp said she is an unofficial assistant to the official chairperson of the parade, the latter being a position that does not exist.

"It's supposed to be that way," Copp said. "Because it's the Doo-dah parade. It's not supposed to be organized."

Participants may register with the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce before June 25. The registration fee is $7.13 for individuals or groups, unless they are using a car in which case the entrance fee is $14.26 per automobile.

Themes are wide open and the parade is open to anyone.

Elephant who gored worker dies

United Press International

ROYAL PALM BEACH — A 15,000-pound African elephant who gored a handler in March died recently while Lion Country Safari workers were trying to move the animal to a remote location in the park, officials said.

Dr. Paul Wollenman, veterinarian for the animal park, said Jo Jo the elephant died Friday after being given a tranquilizer in preparation for the move.

Wollenman said Jo Jo developed heart and lung complications after collapsing a second time during the move.

The elephant's weight pressed on her lungs and heart, causing problems with breathing and circulation, Wollenman told The Miami Herald.

Tissue from the elephant will be sent to the University of Florida, where it will be studied for clues into the animal's increasingly violent behavior.

Jo Jo gored handler Bill Pentler on March 19. She lifted Pentler with her trunk, spun him around and tossed him to the ground twice. Pentler was trying to move the elephant herd to its sleeping quarters at the time.

Pentler is expected to return to work in August, officials said. The attack was the first sign of violent behavior toward humans by Jo Jo, who was brought to the attraction in 1972.

Following the attack, Jo Jo became more threatening toward other staff members, Wollenman said. To protect those employees and visitors who drive through the park, officials decided to move Jo Jo to a remote location.

Wollenman said he gave Jo Jo a combination of two sedatives in preparation for the move. The elephant later collapsed after approaching a gate, and was given another drug to reverse the effect of the sedative.

The second drug revived the elephant, he said.

"She did fine. She was up and eating for about 1 1/2 hours and then she went down again," Wollenman said.

Workers then administered another dose of the reversal drug.

"That didn't seem to help. Shortly after repeating the dosage, she died," Wollenman said.

Wollenman said a post mortem examination found no signs of diseased organs or other factors that may have led to Jo Jo's behavior change, or her demise.

Fire delays opening at local restaurant

From staff reports

SANFORD — A fire started by some deep fryers in the kitchen of Shoney's, 3150 Orlando Drive, this morning burned for about five minutes and was attacked with several fire extinguishers before being put out, said Sanford Fire Department officials.

The fire was burning in a row of deep fryers when fire department officials received an emergency call from Shoney's at 5:38 a.m. today.

"The flames were up about four feet in the air," said Tom Martin of the Sanford Fire Department. "There were about five (fryers) in and the fire was burning in two of them."

Firefighters said a dry-powder extinguisher system in the metal hood over the fryers put the blaze out temporarily, but the fire reignited after the department arrived causing officials to empty four carbon dioxide extinguishers into the blaze.

Martin said the restaurant manager activated the system manually before the heat from the flames could cause it to turn on automatically.

"She did just what she was supposed to," Martin said. "She activated the system and had it going before we got there. It was a mess. There was dry chemical powder everywhere and some of the ceiling tiles were covered with soot."

Sanford Battalion Chief William Ellenberg said no one was hurt and the restaurant could open this morning, pending a decision by the restaurant's management.

"Everything is safe as far as we are concerned," Ellenberg said.

Shoney's General Manager Laurel Hawkins said the restaurant would open at 9 a.m. this morning, two and one-half hours later than usual.

"We've almost got it all cleaned up," Hawkins said shortly before 8 a.m.

Trial begins in professor murder case

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — Opening arguments in the first-degree murder trial of a graduate student accused of killing his professor began Tuesday.

A six-member jury was selected Monday for the trial of Jens Peter Hansen, 42, who is charged with killing his pathology professor, Arthur Kimura, on Sept. 1.

Kimura was the chairman of the committee overseeing Hansen's doctoral work, and he had reportedly told Hansen that he would not receive his degree.

Kimura, 41, died of a gunshot wound to the head.

School registration correction

SANFORD — Erroneous information regarding registration of youngsters in the Seminole County school system appeared in the Newcomer's Guide which was a supplement to the Sunday, June 17 Sanford Herald.

The correct information follows.

A child entering kindergarten for the first time must reach his 5th birthday on or before Sept. 1 of the current school year. To find out what school your children will attend, call the school system administrative offices at 322-1252, extension 205. School assignments are based on the custodial parent's legal address. Parents must show proof of residence, such as a deed or lease agreement.

Proof of age must be shown for children entering kindergarten or first grade for the first time in Florida. Successful completion of kindergarten is a requirement for enrollment in the first grade. A birth certificate is proof of age.

Students of any age registering in Florida for the first time must have proof of a medical examination within the past 12 months, signed and dated by a Florida physician. They must attach proof of immunization in the form of a Florida Certificate of Immunization now available from the Seminole County Health Department or a physician.

Ethics watchdogs lack bite, past official claims

United Press International

MIAMI — The former chairman of the Florida Commission on Ethics says the panel he once headed is more of a legislative lap dog than a watchdog.

Former chairman Richard Gilbert, who quit the panel last month in protest, now says the commission does not have enough bite to cause even the most corrupt of lawmakers to lose sleep at night.

"It needs to be brought to people's attention that the watchdog commission they think they have is really a 'legislative lap dog,'" Gilbert told The Miami Herald for Monday editions of the newspaper.

The commission was established 16 years ago to keep an eye on Florida's elected officials and public employees. The panel employs four investigators and has an annual budget of $800,000.

Gilbert resigned after failing to persuade the Legislature to strengthen the state's ethics laws during its most recent session.

"I think the legislators are intimidated by the ethics commission," he said. "They are afraid to give the commission any real power to conduct investigations. They feel they are at risk."

At least one lawmaker disagrees with that assessment, however.

"I don't think things are that bad," said state Rep. Ben Graber, D-Coral Springs. "Any change has to come about slowly. I don't think it's that we are afraid of the commission."

Although the commission can recommend fines of $5,000 and removal from office, it rarely invokes that power. Since 1974, the commission has recommended the maximum fine only twice, and removal from office only once.

Last year, 76 percent of the 109 ethics complaints received by the commission were dismissed.

Of the 163 complaints received in 1989, 81 percent are still pending.

"We spend hours on the telephone doing nothing but trying to make people understand why the complaint they've filed is taking so long to process," said Jane Tillman, the commission's public information director.

Dark days

Vice President Dan Quayle deserves praise for incurring the wrath of the Chinese Embassy by meeting with Chal Ling, the heroine of Tiananmen Square. The 24-year-old college student is currently No. 4 on the Chinese government's most-wanted list. She led last summer's hunger strike by thousands of students, igniting the pro-democracy protest against Beijing's brutal regime.

Chal Ling, who has been living in France since tanks and troops crushed the pro-democracy movement, is imploring the Bush administration to abandon its non-confrontational approach to Beijing and push more actively for an end to the repression in China.

After a year of reassuring China's leaders that the crackdown would not derail U.S.-Chinese relations, President Bush is left holding a very empty bag. By maintaining business as usual, the White House has forfeited the opportunity to exert constructive pressure on Beijing to soften its hard-line stance.

Hundreds of persons involved in the pro-democracy movement have been executed during the last 12 months; thousands more are still behind bars. The regime periodically releases a few prisoners in an attempt to appear conciliatory. In truth, however, the regime continues to trample all vestiges of dissent.

That fact was demonstrated by the crackdown on students who demonstrated at Beijing University to honor the martyrs of Tiananmen Square. After an emergency late-night meeting, China's leaders ordered that the demonstrators be hunted down, arrested and expelled from school. The whereabouts of several student leaders apprehended before the demonstration are still unknown.

Meanwhile, 19 Chinese journalists are still in custody for having the temerity to report details of the Tiananmen Square massacre. Several of their foreign counterparts, covering the one-year anniversary of the crackdown, were beaten with rifle butts and truncheons outside the gates of Beijing University. In other incidents, reporters were detained for no apparent reason and had their equipment smashed. These outrages were blithely defended by a government spokesman as an "internal security" matter.

If China's miserable record during these last 12 months were not enough, U.S. intelligence agencies have reported that Beijing is considering the sale of chemicals to Libya for the possible manufacture of poison gas. This is occurring despite the Bush administration's repeated urging to the Chinese to refrain from such sales.

Is this a country that deserves to be granted most-favored-nation trade status so that its goods are permitted open access into the United States? Clearly, the answer is no.

Late last month, President Bush recommended that China's MFN status be renewed. His decision was based on the belief that keeping the lines open to Beijing would encourage the Chinese government to become less repressive. Yet, granting continued economic concessions to Beijing while denying MFN to the Soviet Union amounts to an indefensible double standard. While the U.S.S.R. and most communist countries have permitted their people some degree of freedom, China has regressed to the dark days of Stalinism. In China, virtually all dissent is illegal and dissenters vanish in the night.

This is definitely not a regime to which the United States should be granting special favors. If President Bush won't withdraw his recommendation that China be granted MFN status, Congress should reject it.

Constitution should protect the flag

SAN FRANCISCO — The Democratic strategy for scuppering constitutional amendment against flag-burning has failed.

When the Supreme Court ruled last year, by a vote of 5 to 4, that state laws against burning the flag violated the "free speech" provision of the First Amendment, popular indignation was swift and strong. President Bush promptly called for a constitutional amendment to authorize such laws.

The Democrats were too clever to oppose such an amendment outright. But under the leadership of Speaker Thomas Foley they devised a stalling tactic that they figured had a good chance of working. They passed a federal statute against flag-burning and sidled Bush's constitutional amendment while the new statute was being tested in the courts. They knew perfectly well, of course, that the Supreme Court would reject their statute too.

But testing it in the courts would take time — a year, as it turned out — and it was the Democrats' high hope that by the time that period was past the American people would have gotten over their attack of patriotism and gone back to sleep. Bush's amendment could then be ditched without doing unacceptable damage to the Democratic Party.

At first everything went according to plan.

Every Democratic representative from a district where the voters still give a hoot about the flag was televised making a fiery speech in favor of the doomed statute. Then, earlier this month, the Supreme Court, by the same narrow margin of 5 to 4, duly declared it invalid.

Mr. Bush thereupon renewed his call for a constitutional amendment, and the Democrats were dismayed to learn that opinion polls uniformly show that his call is strongly supported by a substantial majority of the American people. Faced with an up or down vote on a constitutional amendment, only Barney Frank and a few other liberals from districts where a crucifix in a glass of urine is considered art will dare to vote against it. What opponents of the amendment against flag-burning fail to understand is that the reverence which most Americans feel for "Old Glory" is not based solely on an appreciation of its function as a symbol of the rights enshrined in the Constitution.

America is distressingly short of tangible symbols of the Union, that can serve as objects of high-minded non-partisan devotion. Unlike the British, we have no living, breathing "sovereign" to whom we can give our emotional allegiance.

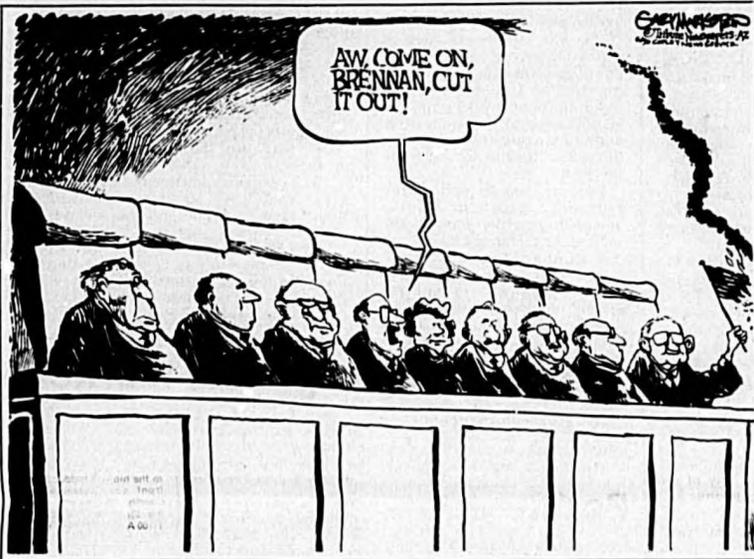

Arlington and the Lincoln Memorial serve us as best they can. In the case of the memorial, at least, a visit after dark can be a deeply moving experience. But you have to be in Washington to undergo it. The flag, on the other hand, can be found just about everywhere.

Our national anthem reminds us of how an American prisoner aboard a British warship glimpsed it flying bravely amid shot and shell over Fort Mifflin. The single most moving

To be told, now, that the Constitution requires us to stand idly by and watch it burned, or urinated on, or trampled by some flake with a bunch of jumbled hatreds, rightly elicits the quiet and perfectly understandable response: "Then change the Constitution."

The Democrats were too clever to oppose such an amendment outright.

Reform needed for House races

WASHINGTON — Half way through the 1990 primaries, only one incumbent in the House of Representatives has been defeated — a man already convicted of sex crimes with an underage female. If that's what it's going to take to beat any of them, 1990 may again see more than 98 percent of House members seeking re-election succeed.

Former President Ford, on his annual visit to the National Press Club, warned that the rigidity of the congressional election system was subverting the constitutional design and turning "the people's House into the incumbents' House." Perks, PACs and gerrymandering were the villains he identified.

Far too often, he said, incumbents of both parties have conspired with their allies in the legislatures to draw district lines that safeguard most of them from challenge and reduce the number of competitive or "swing" districts to a minimum. In addition, he said, they have expanded their staffs, the number of district offices, their mail and phone budgets to the point that their capacity to communicate with constituents dwarfs that of almost any challenger. Finally, they have converted interest-group political action committees (PACs) into fundraising machines for the re-election of both parties' incumbents, further tilting the odds in their favor.

The result, said Ford, is that House elections — which were designed to register and reflect short-term swings in the political mood and which did that job well as recently as the 1970s — now have become the most predictable and almost meaningless part of our decaying democratic system.

In the question period, someone asked the obvious query: If the House election system is that bad, isn't it time to limit the tenure of representatives, say, to 12 years? Ford, thinking of the skills of some of the veteran legislators with whom he served in his 26 years on Capitol Hill, said the sacrifice of experience and judgment would be too great. But the term-limit idea will not die. Just the other day, Irving Kristol, editor of the Public Interest and scholar of American government, announced that he was abandoning his earlier opposition and embracing the doctrine of 12 years and out.

The temptation to follow his example is great. But it's still a bad idea and the wrong solution to the stultification of House elections. The advocates have not thought through the consequences as well as Ford did in rejecting it.

A House with a 12-year life cycle would be stripped of its expertise and its institutional memory. As Rep. David Obey (D-Wis.) has pointed out, even though re-election is nearly guaranteed, retirements and decisions to seek other offices have left the House with only 51 members who shared the debates about the Vietnam intervention and only 47 more who experienced Watergate.

The memory of those follies on the part of past Presidents is important to the collective judgment of a legislative body — and would be sacrificed by the 12-year limit.

Unless, of course, congressional staff members were not subject to the same rule. This is a question I have never seen a term-limit advocate address. To rotate the membership of the House completely every 12 years while retaining permanent committee staff would have only one consequence: Power would shift very rapidly into the hands of that unelected congressional bureaucracy.

But to retire the staff as rapidly as the membership rotates would have an equally clear and undesirable effect: Congress would quickly be drained of its capacity to monitor and influence the career bureaucrats in the executive departments and agencies. No longer would anyone on Capitol Hill know where the bodies were buried — or even what questions to ask.

In short, term limits for House members would not serve to restore popular control of the government. It would leave the unelected congressional staff members and executive bureaucrats even more in control.

Nor would the proposal increase competition for House seats nearly as much as proponents suggest. My hunch is that if House members were limited to six terms, you would find hard-fought contests in some (but not all) of the roughly 75 seats left open by mandatory retirement each year, as you find now in some but not all of the 33 or 34 Senate seats up in each election. Two years later, perhaps half of the 75 freshmen would be challenged seriously in their first bid for re-election. And then, I suspect, most would be left alone for the next four elections.

That won't enhance competition significantly or allow the kind of great national swings Ford recalled from the House contests of such years as 1964 and 1966. The only way to restore energy to House races is to do it directly, by reducing the systemic advantages incumbents have given themselves and increasing the flow of resources to challengers.

The congressional election system was turning 'the people's House into the incumbents' House.'

Officers' clubs may be shuttered

WASHINGTON — A time-honored perk of military service — cheap food and drinks at NCO and officers' clubs — is about to be relegated to folklore. Congress has ordered that as of Oct. 1, 1990, clubs on military bases must operate in the black or shut down. The taxpayers will no longer be subsidizing the poor business sense of military brass dabbling in the restaurant business.

It's too bad Congress didn't act before Yokota Air Force Base in Japan spent $221,600 on an Italian restaurant that lasted only two years. The restaurant closed in March after losing more than $50,000 last year.

A savvy restaurateur may have been able to make an Italian restaurant profitable in Japan, but military clubs are not planned, built or run by savvy restaurateurs. The club managers must answer to base commanders skilled in warfare instead of culinary arts.

The loss of the clubs will be a blow to the morale of soldiers who carefully count their perks as part of the reward for serving their country. When the pay is mediocre and Uncle Sam is a hard taskmaster, the benefits package is important. Military sources told us that the Navy, Army and Marine Corps have accepted Congress' challenge and are using business sense to put their clubs on an even keel — raising prices, charging higher club dues and marketing themselves. But the Air Force may close many of its clubs rather than be the best it can be at running a business.

We have obtained an internal memo distributed to wing commanders in the Air Force's largest command — the Strategic Air Command headquartered at Offutt Air Force Base in Omaha, Neb. The memo says "The officer and NCO club system within the Strategic Air Command — and the Air Force as a whole — is about to fail." Between Oct. 1, 1989, and Jan. 31, 1990, 30 Air Force restaurants in Europe lost more than $1 million. The biggest bleeder was Ramstein Air Force Base in Germany, where the clubs lost $45,000 in those four months. Upper Heyford Air Force Base in England lost $41,000. The SAC clubs alone are being subsidized to the tune of $5 million a year from the taxpayers. And in four months, that subsidy will be gone.

Can a military club survive without tax money and still offer soldiers the reasonable prices they have come to expect? Not the way the system now operates with decentralized management that allows military commanders at each base to run the clubs like "mom and pop" stores. The whim of the base commander — perhaps a yen for Italian food — is the basis on which decisions are made.

At SAC, it appears things aren't going to change. In a memo to wing commanders, SAC Vice Commander in Chief Lt. Gen. Donald O. Aldridge urges the bases to come up with programs unique to each base to save their clubs. Somebody should tell SAC that McDonald's didn't sell billions of hamburgers by letting each restaurant do its own thing.

One internal SAC memo we have obtained says that 27 of the 48 SAC clubs "need major financial change or face restructuring or even closure." Another memo predicts which clubs will get the ax unless drastic changes are made. Expected to lose either their officer or NCO club or both are these SAC bases: Francis E. Warren in Wyoming, McCune in Kansas, Beale in California, Eaker in Arkansas, Fairchild in Washington, Wurtsmith in Michigan, Grissom in Indiana, Vandenberg in California, Mainstrom in Montana, Carswell in Texas and Ellsworth in South Dakota.

The loss of the clubs will be a blow to the morale of soldiers.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

U.S. killed own in Panama invasion

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department acknowledged that at least two and possibly three of the 23 American servicemen killed in the Panama invasion died as a result of "friendly fire" by other Americans.

In addition, the Pentagon disclosed Monday for the first time that at least 19 and perhaps as many as 40 of the 324 Americans wounded during the Dec. 20 invasion were hit by "friendly fire."

The Pentagon made the disclosures in response to a Newsweek magazine article Sunday that said the U.S. military operation against Manuel Noriega was far from flawless, with nine of the 23 Americans killed by "friendly fire."

Fulbright calls flag amendment 'tragedy'

WASHINGTON — Former Sen. J. William Fulbright expressed disappointment with his successors in government, saying it is a "great tragedy" that politicians have shifted their attention from world events to debate a constitutional amendment to ban flag burning.

Fulbright, 85, the longest-serving chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and an early congressional foe of the Vietnam War, also surveyed the world scene and found much to his liking.

Nevertheless, Fulbright clearly was troubled by the response of American politicians, faulting President Bush for refusing to cut defense spending or raise taxes, criticizing the invasion of Panama and the financing of the Contra rebels in Nicaragua, and accusing Democrats in Congress of timidity.

Sexism charged in medical research

WASHINGTON — The National Institutes of Health fails to include enough female patients in medical studies, casting doubt on how the results of major research apply to women, congressional investigators reported.

Landmark studies on many important health problems such as cancer and heart disease have focused primarily on men despite the strong likelihood of gender differences, according to a study released Monday by the General Accounting Office, an investigative agency of Congress.

Despite this, the NIH, which coordinates the nation's medical research, has not adequately implemented a 1986 policy aimed at making sure doctors understand how diseases and treatments affect women as well as men, the report concluded.

"A few of the people we talked to, I think it's fair to say, were pretty dismissive of these concerns," Mark Nadell, who led the study, testified during a congressional hearing. "I think they make the assumption that ... there are just no differences between men and women."

materials used in the classes, but the cost in most cases was minimal. "We did not want the cheerleading class to have to support the science classes," she said.

With nearly 200 students enrolled in the first-year program at Wilson, the parents consider it successful.

At Idylwild, 430 Viblen Rd., Summer Fun School, in its fifth year, was a "huge" success, Director Diane Cuozzo said Monday, the first day of the session.

"It's a cooperative effort between the school and the parents," said Lynn Farrelly, a secretary at the school.

Cuozzo explained the school is open to any elementary student, from those who are entering kindergarten to those entering the sixth grade.

"We've got mostly kids from Idylwild, but also some from Goldsboro, Pine Crest and some of the private schools in the area," she explained. "For a lot of them, this is their first time in another school."

Cuozzo said there are still some spaces left in classes, both this session, which runs through June 28 and next session which runs July 9 through 19. Some classes, such as computers, closed soon after the enrollment call went out.

"We want to keep it one child per computer," she explained. "And we only have 20 computers."

Cuozzo said parents have told her the main reasons they enrolled their youngsters in the Summer Fun program were they wanted them to make some social contacts and they wanted them to do something "other than watching TV all day."

One of the aims of the summer classes was to let the youngsters have fun and to learn without being in a rigid classroom environment.

In one classroom, a hand-drawn yellow poster that said "Creativity" beside the door, children ranging from five to 10 years old are brainstorming and sketching ideas for games.

Nic Ireland, 8, of Sanford, will be a third grader at Idylwild in the fall is designing a spinner for a baseball game.

"It'll have seven players in the field. You spin this and that tells you where they move," he explained, adding that one to seven people could play his game.

Ireland said he likes to play baseball and his game will let anyone play anywhere.

Jaylee Stenstrom, 7, of Sanford, rolled a die to demonstrate her game.

"See I got 4. So I move 4," she said moving a game piece through numbered palm fronds on a colorful tree drawn on the paper in front of her. "If I hit a green one, I go back to the beginning."

Cuozzo said "active minds are being challenged in new ways every day" and its students like Ireland and Stenstrom who have made the program a success.

She added that one of the most rewarding aspects of the program was seeing former Idylwild students, now in middle school, coming back as assistants to the teachers.

"This whole thing is just loads of fun," she said. "I'm having as much fun as the kids. I think."

Flooding

and the basins could require a project costing between $5 million and $10 million.

"We could have some ground broken on it downtown by the first of next year," Simmons said. "I'm not sure about the other areas. All of it will depend on money."

"We know we've got inadequate storm drainage in the downtown area," Simmons said. "There are some streets and intersections that are almost impassable during heavy rains."

Simmons said the study would have to be received before plans could be made, but at least part of the problem was that drainage pipes were not cleaned frequently enough to allow water to flow during a storm.

"A storm water utility program would include a maintenance program to clean out the drains regularly," he said.

Kathryn Hibbard, proprietor of Kathy's Books and Baby Shop at 211 E. First St., said water backed in the drains did cause problems during heavy storms and that there is an urgent need for a new system.

"We need it desperately," Hibbard said. "The water comes right up to the edge of the sidewalk and under the door."

guidelines. When the coating was completed, the tank was resealed and refilled to assure it was sealed, Middleton said. When the store's owner tested the well Sunday, he found it had completely drained.

the city could allow "the set-up of a building that could be used for residential purposes, even though the current zoning is for commercial only." This will allow the a house to be moved to the property owned by Massey so she may continue her residence.

The reading of the opinion from the Department of Community Affairs drew cheers and applause from Longwood citizens who packed the commission chambers to create standing room only.

The question of rezoning was first brought up at the May 7 meeting. Following a public hearing, the vote ended in a 2-2 tie.

Late Friday, an opinion was finally received from David J. Russ, assistant general counsel with the Department of Community Affairs, and presented at last night's city commission meeting. In his opinion, Russ said Florida Statutes contain "no definite schedule for having to amend land development regulations in order to make them consistent with comprehensive plan changes," which is what the city was attempting to do through its administrative rezoning. In light of that, Russ said, "I believe it is legal to abandon the administrative rezoning and to pursue an amendment to the (comprehensive) plan."

Although Massey's house at 401 Wilma St. was condemned by the city in 1989 and demolished by a group of friends, a house donated by the family of City Commissioner Hank Hardy will be put in its place.

Massey has lived in Longwood for more than 50 years.

the mall will generate so much traffic on Rinehart Road that four laning will be required in the very near future, and the city does not now have the money to widen the road to four lanes. It wants the developer of the mall to help pay the widening cost.

Lake Mary has met with Sanford officials and has proposed revisions to the draft development order to insure that widening of the road to four lanes is completed concurrently with the mall's traffic capacity impact on Rinehart Road. Lake

Mary says it is willing to enter into an interlocal agreement with the developer to reimburse any up-front costs in excess of the developer's fair share, but Sanford has not yet indicated it is willing to accept any of Lake Mary's proposed revisions.

The matter will come up for discussion at the Lake Mary city commission meeting Thursday at 7 p.m., in the commission chambers, 158 N. Country Club Road. If it is approved, the city is expected to instruct its special counsel to file the appeal with DCA before the June 25 deadline.

Don't Tread On Me

You don't even notice the sign until you are right in front of it. "City ordinance will not allow outside furniture display, PLEASE come in." That's when you first notice the neat wood store front with furniture displayed in the window and potted plants placed all around the front of the building.

When Joe Leonard opened his furniture store on Sanford Avenue four months ago, he was unaware of an existing city ordinance restricting him from displaying the wares of his trade in front of his building. When the ordinance was brought to his attention he was shocked and surprised because so many other businesses like his, in Sanford, are allowed to have outdoor displays. Through a little investigation, Joe found out that his competitors had been "grandfathered-in", that the ordinance only applies to new businesses. Joe feels cheated, and he wants Sanford to know about it.

Leonard Enterprises, Fine Furnishings, located at 1113 South Sanford Avenue, is Joe Leonard's second furniture store in Sanford. The first was located on 27th Street. Joe is a life long resident of Sanford and has just recently retired from his job at Jim Rowe Pest Control. Joe's wife, Teri has worked for Seminole County for the past sixteen years as a secretary. She is currently working for Judge Woods. Joe's son, Scooter, helps him run the family business. The store carries new and used furniture, bedding and other accessories. There is one corner attractively displaying kitchen accessories on a counter with a sink. Joe gets most of his items for the store at yard sales and by buying estates. He does not take items on consignment, but he will trade for just about anything.

The store is open Monday through Saturday, from 10:00 AM to 8:00 PM. Joe says, "be a regular customer, you never know what you'll find." Come by or call 323-3827.

Oh, and the plants out in front of Leonard's store; they're for sale, too.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Tigers becoming competitive

DETROIT — A recent hot streak has the Detroit Tigers dreaming those dreams again. "The first step is getting back to .500," Detroit shortstop Alan Trammell said Monday night after his three-run first-inning home run propelled the Tigers to a 7-2 victory over the Oakland Athletics, its fifth win in six games.

Detroit improved to two games under breakeven (32-34) for the second time in three days.

That's semi-impressive for a club coming off a 103-loss season and was 11-22 on May 14.

Elsewhere in the AL on Monday, Baltimore ripped Boston 7-2; Texas thumped Minnesota 7-1; Milwaukee handled New York 4-2; California stopped Chicago 4-1; and Kansas City beat Seattle 6-2.

AWARDS DINNER

Little Majors to be honored

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department's Little Major Baseball League season wraps up tonight with a covered-dish awards banquet at the Civic Center beginning at 7 p.m.

Supervisor of Special Events Rocky Ellingsworth will present trophies to the City Champion Rinker Materials Dodgers as well as to the American Division champion Disabled American Veterans Royals.

Each player who participated in the league will receive a certificate while each team sponsor will be presented with a plaque. Also, the league's Most Valuable Player will be named.

For more information, contact the Recreation Department at 330-5697.

WORLD CUP

Romania, Cameroon advance

ROME — Playing with one eye on their opponent and another on the volatile situation at home, Romania beat the odds and qualified for the second round of the World Cup finals Monday by tying defending champion Argentina 1-1.

The Romanian players, some of whom took up arms in the December revolution against the deposed Ceausescu regime, rejoiced in Naples after the draw.

Cameroon, the surprise team of the World Cup, clinched first place in Group B despite losing to the Soviet Union 4-0 in Bari.

Tuesday features four matches, including the final U.S. appearance in the tournament. The Americans play Austria in Florence, while Italy meets Czechoslovakia in Rome in the final Group A matches. In Group D, West Germany faces Colombia in Milan and Yugoslavia takes on the United Arab Emirates in Bologna.

BASKETBALL

Thompson headed to Denver?

WASHINGTON — Georgetown basketball coach John Thompson has been offered $700,000 a year to relinquish the post he has held for 18 seasons and become general manager of the Denver Nuggets, according to a report published Monday.

USA Today reported that Nuggets co-owners Bob Wussler, Bertram Lee and Peter Bynoe were in Washington Sunday to meet with Thompson and that the trio offered him a $700,000-a-year on a four- or five-year contract. Wussler said Thompson would also have an opportunity to own almost 4 percent of the franchise if he accepted the job.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Owen ties NL perfection mark

MONTREAL — To err is human. To error is baseball. But Montreal's Spike Owen is breaking all the rules by not committing any mistakes.

Owen tied the all-time National League record for consecutive games without an error for shortstops in a 5-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Monday night at Montreal.

In 60 straight games, Owen has handled 245 chances without a miscue, tying Kevin Elster of the New York Mets for the record set in 1988.

Owen still needs a dozen more flawless contests to eclipse the major-league record 72-straight errorless games set by Detroit's Ed Brinkman back in 1962.

Elsewhere in the NL on Monday, San Francisco edged San Diego 2-1 and Los Angeles turned away Houston 5-2. Pittsburgh at Philadelphia and St. Louis at New York were both postponed due to rain.

Compiled from staff and wire reports.

Gators going to nationals

OCS's Hufford leads locals to Southern Regional title

From staff reports

ATLANTA — Backed by the superior goalkeeping of Liz Hufford, the 16-and-Under Seminole Gators of the Seminole Soccer Club swept to the United States Youth Soccer Association's girls' South Regional championship this past weekend in Atlanta.

After regulation play in Sunday's championship game ended in a 1-1 tie, the Gators scored three goals in the 30-minute (two 15-minute halves) overtime period to beat Tennessee 4-1. Hufford made a pair of crucial saves in regulation to force OT and made two more big saves in overtime to preserve the win.

The Gators now advance to the National Tournament beginning July 26 in Alexandria, Va. According to Gator coach Pam Vandrestreek, this is only the second time in USYSA history that a team from Florida has advanced to national tournament in any age group, boys or girls.

Ironically, the only other Florida team to make it this far was another girls' 16-and-Under team, Blackwatch Heather from Tampa. Several years ago, they went all the way and won the Patricia L. Masotto Cup, which goes to the girls' 16-and-Under national champion.

In winning the regional title, the Gators tied their first game and won their next four, outscoring their opponents 13-3. Hufford, who attends Orangewood Christian School, allowed just two goals during 390 minutes in goal (which breaks down to a .46 goals against average).

The Gators opened the tournament with a 1-1 tie against Mississippi last Thursday morning. Jane Byers of St. Petersburg High School scored the goal on an assist from Hufford, who was moved from the goal to a field position at halftime.

Later Thursday, the Gators blanked North Texas 2-0 on goals by Danielle Garrett of Lyman High School and Lake Brantley's Jody Burkhart. Byers assisted on Garrett's goal while Kim Samuels of Lake Brantley had the assist on Burkhart's goal.

The Gators advanced to the regional final four by beating South Texas by an identical 2-0 score on Friday afternoon. Garrett netted the first goal on an assist from Lake Brantley's Stephanie Sanders. Sanders added the second goal with Mari Stark (also of Lake Brantley) picking up the assist.

In the semifinal game on Saturday, Lyman's Adriane Kane scored a hat trick to power the Gators to a 4-1 whipping of North Carolina 4-1. Stark assisted on first goal while Michele Harris of Lake Howell had the assist on the second goal and Kim Black of Lake Brantley assisted on the third.

Garrett scored fourth goal on an assist from Black.

While Sunday's championship game also ended 4-1, it was a much different contest as the Gators and Tennessee played to a 1-1 tie at the end of regulation. Black scored the Gators' only goal in regulation. Amy Vandrestreek (who will be attending Lake Brantley next year) registering the assist.

In overtime, Garrett scored goal on assist from Byers and Sanders tallied on assist from Vandrestreek before Garrett scored again, this time coming on an assist from

TRC, ABC post wins

From staff reports

SANFORD — The Tim Raines Connection romped by the Boomtown Boys while Auto Body Centers held off the Regulators in the second week of play of the Sanford Recreation Department's Monday Night Super C League at Chase Park.

Both the Raines Connection and Auto Body Center are 2-0 while the Regulators and the Boomtown Boys are 0-2. The standings should break down even further next week when the Raines Connection and Auto Body Center meet with the Regulators taking on the Boomtown Boys.

While Tim Raines wasn't available to play, brothers Levi, Ned and Sam were on hand to lead TRC in the romp. Levi had two singles, a double and two runs scored while Ned contributed two singles and a run scored and Sam doubled and scored a run.

In all, the Raines Connection pounded the Boomtown Boys for 26 hits, including six doubles, a triple by Mike Galloway and a home run off the bat of Ernest Shuler. TRC scored three runs in the top of the first inning and added four more in the second before exploding for nine in the fourth.

Shuler also had a single and scored two runs to go with his home run. Billie Griffith singled three

Blanton, Livingston shut out Lyman

From staff reports

LONGWOOD — David Blanton and Curtis Livingston combined on a four-hitter and Ovedo used a three-run seventh inning to break away and defeat Lyman 4-0 in high school summer league action at Lyman High School on Monday night.

Blanton, who will be a junior next year, threw four strong innings before Livingston came on to bail Blanton out of a jam in the fifth inning as Ovedo won his third game of the summer.

Livingston came in with runners on first and third and two outs and struck out John Jump on a 3-2 pitch. Ovedo struck for a run in the fifth inning. After Blanton led off with a single, Darcy Garrett came in as a courtesy runner. Nick Scortino grounded to the pitcher, who threw the ball away and allowed the runners to advance to second and third. Edgar Aviles then blooped

In the seventh inning, Bubba Fore started the rally with a single and Louie Traeger came in as a pinch runner. After Traeger stole second, Livingston walked. The two then executed a double steal before Nick Scortino walked to load the bases.

After an infield fly to second, Rufus Boykin hit into a fielder's choice, Traeger being thrown out at the plate. But B. J. Calapa came through with a bases-clearing double to the right field corner.

Ovedo hosts Trinity Prep in a doubleheader today. Starting time is 5 p.m.

Buddy Lake League standings tighter

From staff reports

SANFORD — Every league talks about trying to reach parity. After weekend action in the Buddy Lake Summer League at Sanford Memorial Stadium, it appears that this league has done just that.

The only team to come out of the weekend with a winning record was the East Coast All Stars, who broke a three-game losing streak by winning two of three games. The Patriots, Adeock Roofing and Wes Rinker's Florida Baseball School Academy all went 1-1 while the league-leading Sanford Reds went 1-2.

With three weeks gone in the season, the Reds are still on top at 5-3, but the All Stars and the Academy are both 4-3. Adeock 4-4 and the Patriots 1-5.

The schedule for this week has the Patriots playing the Academy at 6 p.m. Friday. On Saturday at 9 a.m. the Reds tackle Adeock. At 11:45 a.m. the Patriots face the All Stars and, at 2:30 p.m., the All Stars will challenge the Academy. On Sunday at 11 a.m., the Reds square off with the Patriots while Adeock and the All Stars will play at 1:45 p.m.

This past Saturday, the Reds had their five-game winning streak snapped in a 1-4 shellacking by the Academy.

JGA tackles Windermere in Maxfli

By ROBBIE STOCK
 Herald Correspondent

ORLANDO — One of the nicer aspects of the Junior Golf Association of Orlando is the fact that participants get to play some of the top-rated courses in the area every week. On Monday, 106 competitors teed it up at Windermere Country Club in the Maxfli Open, the second stop on the seven-event tour.

Highlighting the day was the performance of 14-year-old Ann Pohira, who aced on the 115-yard par-three fourth hole en route to a three-over-par 75, the best score of the day.

This Maxfli Open was conducted differently than last week's tournament. Instead of fighting by age groups and awarding trophies on the basis of scratch scores, golfers were grouped by handicap and trophies were handed out to one person for low gross and to

Irwin makes history with sudden-death U.S. Open victory

United Press International

MEDINAH, Ill. — The last man invited to the party walked off with the silverware Monday, and in so doing re-wrote the record book of the U.S. Open.

Hale Irwin not only won in the first sudden-death playoff in the tournament's 90-year history, he became only the fifth three-time winner of the event. And at age 45 he is the oldest of the U.S. Open champions.

For the second day in a row, Irwin showed that being behind late in the day doesn't mean he is going to be a loser when the day is over.

He made a 40-foot putt on Sunday at the final hole to win his way into an 18-hole playoff with Mike Donald and then, after both players had shot 74 in regulation, Irwin holed a 40-foot birdie on the first hole of sudden-death for the title.

"There were times," said Irwin, "when I found it difficult to believe it could happen. But I just kept trying and kept trying. I guess it was my turn."

"I actually dreamed a few weeks ago I would win the Open. I don't remember anything specific about the dream except that winning was an ideal — just like it turned out to be."

Because of his two prior victories in the Open — in 1974 at Winged Foot and 1979 at Inverness — Irwin was awarded a special exemption from qualifying for this tournament by the USGA.

The invitation came in the mail just as Irwin was preparing to fill out his application to enter the qualifying competition prior to the tournament.

Now, with a new 10-year exemption for his win, Irwin will have an invitation to play in the Open until he is 55.

"I guess since I am so old," Irwin said, putting special emphasis on the word old, "I feel blessed. You wonder if you will ever have this sort of

Drug conviction grounds pilot, but he soars again

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the concerned mother whose son was convicted of a felony and now believes he has no chance for a productive life and plans to drop out of college.

I'm an ex-felon. I certainly didn't intend to become a criminal. When I went to work for an aviation company as a pilot, I didn't know that my boss was a cocaine smuggler. When I found out, it was too late to run. It was either cooperate or die. I had lost control over my life - being arrested was more like being saved. I was a co-defendant in the John DeLorean drug trial.

I certainly didn't want to go to prison, but I owed a debt to society. Realizing that fact made my three years in prison easier to serve. I didn't want to waste my time in prison, so I took college courses and worked on improving my mind and character. More important, I took a deep look inside myself and came to terms with the flaws that led me down a criminal path in the first place.

When I finally stepped out of the prison gate, I thought, "Now I will have to go it alone." How wrong I was! Church groups and community organizations are eager to help the ex-felon get a fresh start in society. It wasn't easy, but maybe the lessons are more rewarding that way. As for finding a productive job, well, I certainly enjoy my career as a chief diver for the Coast Guard Society. Anything is possible when you are focused on the good.

ADVICE

In between expeditions, I speak to school assemblies about drugs and the crimes they lead to. I love what I do, and today I'm a contributing member of society. You may use my name.

STEPHEN ARRINGTON, LONG BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR STEPHEN: Stay tuned for more success stories.

FROM COLORADO: Back in the '60s, I was a Denver police officer involved in a large burglary ring. I was convicted and did time in the state penitentiary. I went back to college, graduated and turned my life around. My advice to felons: Failure is no more fatal than success is permanent.

REHABILITATED

FROM CALIFORNIA: I went from a professional thief to a professional man. From Monroe Reformatory in Washington state to San Quentin, to Folsom, to Leavenworth, to Alcatraz. Back to Folsom. Paroled. You can publish this, but not my name. I am a former felon.

FULLY PARDONED

Vacation time

Chronic colds could stem from allergies

DEAR DR. GOTT: I frequently catch colds that linger indefinitely, with sneezing and a runny nose. Most over-the-counter antihistamines and nasal decongestants indicate to avoid use if you are on blood pressure medication. Since I take Diuril 250 milligrams daily, can I safely take something in moderation to suppress the cold symptoms?

DEAR READER: Most people do not repeatedly catch colds, nor do the infections last for more than a few days. Your pattern of symptoms suggests that allergies might be the cause of your problem. I think you should request a referral to an allergist, who should be able to help you identify substances in your environment that could be causing your sneezing and runny nose.

Over-the-counter decongestants, which are often useful in relieving these symptoms, usually contain compounds that may raise blood pressure, worsen glaucoma and aggravate hyperthyroidism (over-active thyroid gland).

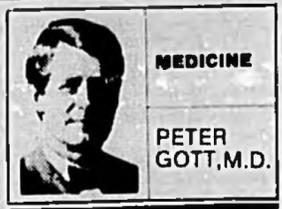

In my practice, I've found that most hypertensives under treatment are not affected by the short-term use of decongestants. Nevertheless, you should ask your doctor about this. Some antihistamines, such as Actifed, do not affect blood pressure.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with Wilson's disease. Can you print anything about the symptoms, treatment and causes?

DEAR READER: Wilson's disease is a rare, progressive disorder that is usually inherited and causes a toxic accumulation of copper in the body.

Over a period of years, as excess copper builds up in tissues, patients exhibit increasingly severe signs of copper poisoning. By measuring the blood-copper level, doctors can diagnose the condition.

Hepatitis (liver inflammation) occurs in up to 50 percent of patients with Wilson's disease. This leads to cirrhosis (liver

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

East should have risked bidding four hearts over North's jump to three spades. West would then have bid five hearts rather than let South play four spades. Unable to get to dummy to take a heart finesse, East would have the good fortune to bring down the singleton heart king and probably score up an overtrick. All of this is immaterial, since South was allowed to play four spades. Holding the spade contract to down one required some good luck plus the right judgment to take advantage of it. East won the opening lead with the ace of hearts, cashed the A-K of clubs and then got off lead with the queen of diamonds. Declarer won the king in dummy, cashed two trumps ending in dummy, and ruffed a heart. He then played ace and nine of diamonds. East had unblocked the 10 of diamonds under declarer's ace in the hope that West held the nine-spot, but no such luck. East had no choice but to win the third diamond. Now whatever he returned allowed declarer to shed his losing club while ruffing in dummy. No doubt if West had raised to two hearts over the one-spade overcall, East would have bid five hearts rather than let the opponents play four spades. But I understand West's pass. Queen-jack-queen and balanced distribution with only three trumps are too much junk to compete with when one is vulnerable. But West could hardly keep from bidding one more if East bid four hearts all by himself.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 20, 1990

Conditions in general look rather interesting for you in the year ahead. You should be able to do well in both independent and collective ventures. Get busy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be at your best today in situations where you have to juggle two endeavors simultaneously. You will understand their relationship, but others might not. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best not to prematurely discuss your intentions for furthering your personal ambitions today with others, even those you hope will participate with you in some manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) People with whom you pal around today will have a strong influence on your outlook and attitude. Try to spend time with friends who are upbeat and progressive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Much personal satisfaction will be gained today from developments where you use your intellect and resourcefulness to either overcome challenges or circumvent obstacles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually it's not a good policy to offer unsolicited advice to others, but today one of your friends might be in dire need of your helpful suggestions. Speak up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In a partnership arrangement today, let your cohort do the leg work while you do the brain work. Your chances for success are greater if you mastermind the effort.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you might have to make a decision on an issue that has alternatives of equal value. This could cause you to be indecisive rather than active.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you expect others to follow your ideas and suggestions today, you must first show them how well they work. Seeing is believing, so be prepared to teach instead of talk.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to set some time aside today for an enjoyable activity. A recreational break could serve as a marvelous release from tension build-up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) More than one matter of importance can be completed to your satisfaction today if you schedule your agenda in proper sequence. Prioritize your list.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're apt to be very observant today and there isn't much that is likely to escape your attention. You'll grasp the essence of ideas quickly and be equally as eager to impart any knowledge you gain.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might be able to devise a spin-off at this time from one of your present sources of earnings. It will require some imaginative twists that are within your scope of capabilities.
