SANFORD — Dean Ray, fresh from an unsuccessful bid for the mayor's office in Sanford, is not giving up on public office in the city.

RIVIERA BEACH — A World War I Army private wounded while carrying coded messages in France in 1918 has received his Purple Heart — at age 101 — in a coremony at a Veterans Administration nursing home.

"I appreciate this very much. I didn't expect this," said Ralph Montecalvo, who has lived in the nursing home since breaking his hip in March at his North Mismi Beach home.

Montecalvo was wounded in the right arm when his regiment took a barrage of artillery shells near Chateau Thierry.

His discharge papers said he had been gassed, not enough of an injury to qualify for the medal. It didn't mention the wound that left a scar on his arm.

His daughter, Dorothy Cronin, of Hypoluxo, mentioned the oversight to another patient who put her in touch with Morris Wiener, who is the state's judge advocate for the Military Order Wiener said it's unusual for a veteran to receive a Purple Heart 78 years late and even more unusual when there are no supporting records. All of Montecalvo's military records were destroyed in a St. Louis fire in the 1960s.

His first request to the Defense Department was denied, but was approved the second time around.
"I think age was the factor. He wanted that so badly." Wiener said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Higher tuition would threaten the Prepaid College Program

TALLAHASSEE - Ten friendly faces awaited a plan to raise state university tuition to the national average at today's meeting of university presidents.

The reception from Stanley Tate and his legion of a half million wasn't so warm.

That's about how many Florida parents have purchased "prepuld" tuition plans for their children, and would likely oppose a string of tuition hikes that could destroy the financial un-derpinnings of the program.

The Florida Prepaid College Program invests parents' money assuming that tuition will rise an average 7,5 percent annually.

An average increase of 10 per-cent, year after year, would underout that assumption and eat away at the program's

"We would resist whatever way possible a 10-percent-per-year increase on an an-nualized basis," said Tate, the Miami developer who founded the program and serves as the chairman of its volunteer board of directors. "The Board of Regents can do as many reports as they want."

The new proposal, crafted by a regents' task force to study tuition and financial aid, is only the letest round in the state universities' yearly quest for more money to pay for nine, soon to be 10, campuses.

ness group, the Council of 100, also pressed increasing the state's tuition to the national average to help bring and keep top professors and researchers to Florids, which in turn would attract business to the state. The university system was able to parisy that support into a 7 percent tuition increase in this spring's legislative session.

University presidents and regents say the increase was a good start, but not enough.

Morris Marx, president of the University of West Florida in Pensacola and a task force member, said he hadn't really considered the political chances of a perennial tuition increase.

"My job is to run a quality university," he said. "We're not being adequately funded and we need the money."

"You can only keep the tuition rates flat for so long," said regent Steve Unifolder, the regents vice charmen. "There are no say ways to pay for education."

In-state university students currently pay about $1,000 a year in tuition, which ranks Florida 46th in the nation. The national average for state universities is $3,210a year. Year-after-year increases, however, would force the state to find extra money to provide tu-ition to those Floridians who have already bought the plans, and would probably force a higher price for new plans, as

State accuses Prudential of deception

By BILL BERGETRE AP Business Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Prudential Insurance must show why it should remain licensed in Florida after using deceptive sales pitches to get 100,000 elderly customers to buy life insurance policies that drained their savings.

The state's insurance commissioner, Bill Nelson, on Monday ordered the nation's largest life insurer to show why he shouldn't impose "the stiffest of fines" and revoke its state

Florida also will refuse to join a $410 million settlement Prudential has reached with 46 other states for such "churning" tactics, he said, estimating about 3 million people were affected nationwide.

"We have accepted ... that deceptive sales practices did occur." said Prudential spokesman Bob DeFillippo in Newark, N.J.

Customers thought they were getting better insurance enverage for the mans price. Nation and They were total that dividends on old policies probably would cover promiums on new policies, but many ended up paying the new premiums paying the new premiums anyway when dividends fell short after a few years, he said.

Nelson said he couldn't estimate how large a fine Prudential would face until the company turns over more information, saying the insurer had destroyed potential evidence and ignored a subpoena for information on its sales practices.

Prudential sold 428,000 life insurance policies in Florida from 1982 to 1995.

Florida will object to the set-tlement Prudential has offered nationwide at a Jan. 21 hearing in U.S. District Court in Newark. 'it's a bad deal for policyholders," Nelson said.

Among other things, he said, the settlement would require policyholders to give written proof of deception. But often, he said, "it wasn't written, it was all done orally."

DeFillippo denied that any written proof of deception would be required. However, Department of Insurance spokesman Dan McLaughin said customers without written documentation would find it harder to get compensated.

Commissioner Lon Howell moved to adopt the ordinance at Monday evening's meeting and discuss the options at a later date. "We will look at each business individually," he said. They have a right to their side of the City Manager Bill Simmons acknowledged at that meeting that various types of businesses should be classified according to the number of people they have working, the need for a drop safe, video cameras and lighting issues.

At the close of the meeting, Commissioner Eckstein brought up the afternoon's dedication of the Bettye D. Smith Cultural Arts Building. "Loyalty is exhibited in how the commission feels in dedicating the Arts Building," he said.

The mayor stole a, quote from Harry Truman to express her reaction to the day's events. "This just couldn't have been nicer," she said, recalling Truman's reaction when he went back to his hometown after his presidency.

"Or, as Nixon said, You won't have me to kick around anymore," Commissioner Lon Homell interlected.

Howell interjected,
"Speak for yourself, Mr. Howell," Mayor Smith answered.

But, unlike Hurtado's killing, the entire nation is transfixed by Nicole Brown Simpson's murder.

The public demands -- rightfully so -- that her killer be positively identified and punished to the

The media has led the charge, devoting more than a billion words to her murder case in newspapers and magazines and more than a million minutes of television coverage. In contrast, Hurtado's murder has rated only one small tion was founded, which hold that all equal in the eyes of the Creator.

By the same coin, all murderers are equally wretched. And when they take an innocent life, they should pay the forfeit for their crime. But the reality is that in idden country in which we live, roughly half of killers are not even brought to justice. And, of those who are charged, few ultimately receive punishments commensurate with their crime.

indeed, the Los Angeles Times published a series this week in which it studied 9,442 willful homicides between 1990 and 1994. It found that a suspect was arrested and charged with murder or manulaughter only 47 percent of the time.

Moreover, only 16 percent of the alayings ended with murder convictions, and another 14 manulaughter. Furthermore, only 3.5 percent of killers were sentenced to life without parole and a scant 1/2 of 1, percent received the death

So Nicole Brown Simpson's killer is hardly the only one in Los Angeles who has gotten away with murder (or faced only token punishment). Yet, one would think so from the public's mass indignation about the acquittal last year of her ex-husband, who was charged with taking her

The stadium has been built, and the road could be used to relieve the congestion, but it's not a federal responsibility. So NDSU has leased some unused land to a strip mail to raise money for what is called the "18th Street Project." All-in-all, the project will cost $2.4 million -- and NDSU still hopes to get some federal money for it.

There remains a love-hate relationship between Fargo and federal dependence. Midwestern independence prompts some in Fargo to forgo federal tender. Yet financial necessity forces them to accept it grudgingly.

By one estimate, so much federal money flows into Fargo and surrounding Casa County, that it amounts annually to $5,186 for every man, woman and child. For every dollar Cass Countians pay in federal taxes, they get $1.30 back -- one of the best deals in the United States.

That kind of hefty entitlement spending, evident across the country, is one of the very reasons that the budget can never be balanced unless both programs tighten their belts. It's something the newly re-elected president and the new Congress should take a tough look at ment year.

Christmas play by Guedali Willion Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Lourine Messenger, a Georgia native, has made her home in Sanford since 1913 and has given of heraelf through her volunteer duties as soon as she was able. Presently, Messenger concentrates her efforts in selling tickets for performances at the Rits Theater. Yet, the list of former volunteer efforts spans many years and is quite lengthy.

She has assisted in selling tickets to the last three plays at the Rits. "I'm very inter-ested in Sanford," she said. "That's why I enjoy selling the tickets for the Ritz. I've lived here since I was four years old. The next play will be 'A Christmas Memory' and will be held at the First Street Gallery. Kay Barthlomew has been so generous to hold the play there. I also worked in selling tickets for 'I Do, I Do,' and 'Celery City Revue.'

Although her love of Sanford and the Ritz consumes some of her time. Messenger also spends much of the Christmas son "ringing the bell for the Salvation Army and Sanford Woman's Club each year since 1974." And, when not attending church at First Presbyterian and acting as chairman of a ladies circle and Bible study group there she "visits nursing homes" and numerous acquaintances who are home-bound or ill.

She has also served as the treasurer of the ESO, a division of the Education Department of the Florida Federation of Woman's Clubs. "This honorary educational sorority for club women helps those who wish to continue their education through planned reading." Messenger Messenger is a 42-year member of the American Legion Auxiliary, a member of Daughters of the American Revolution where she is chairman of the Constitution Week committee. She's also a 25-year member of the Pilot Club serving as president for many years and was editor of "Pilot Wane" for one year.

The Roberta Gatchel Woman of the Year Award was bestowed on Messenger in 1960. She was the first woman in Seminole County to serve as an elction official - Supervisor of Elections for eight years. The Sanford Christian Sharing Center also benefited from the services of Messenger for several years. Messenger was also em-ployed at Sanford Herald for 20 years as the circulation manager and the advertising manager. She later left the newspaper and worked for 18 years for a group of surgeons also located in Sanford.

Treat tree like a bouquet of flowers tree for your house is year. There is nothing like the ameli of a pine tree inside your house. Even if you have one of those artificial trees that you can use every year, there is no substitute for a living Christmas tree. What tree should I buy: There are many types of trees that are available for your particular taste and budget. In general, the Christmas tree should be cone-shaped, have an attractive green color and a dense growth, with little empty spaces. The most popular trees are scotch and white pines, Douglas and Balsam Fir. Whatever you prefer, make sure that you buy a tree t hat is fresh; the more recent the tree has been cut, the better. The longer they stay on display, the more likely the tree will not make it until Christmas. Piorida's warm weather will dry up a pine tree very quickly.

The needles will start dropping very soon after you buy your tree. It may be so severe that you may have to buy a second tree before Christmas.

Living trees need water: In order to avoid that your Christmas tree dries up too soon, keep the tree in water. Buy a stand that holds enough water to keep your tree watered for a long time. The most important thing that you need to do when you bring your tree home is to cut the stem at least one half inch or more above the original cut. This exposes the water-conducting tissues of the stem to enable the tree to take up water. If the tree runs out of water, a seal will form on the cut surface of the tree trunk, and the tree will not be able to take add water later on. It will be brown needles.

Never pick up a hitchhiker

DEAR ABBY: When I saw that letter from "Worried," whose husband picks up hitchhikers, I had to write: He may do it because it makes him feel good, but he should listen to his wife. Or maybe he would rather hear it from me. I've had firsthand experience.

My grandfather was also a kind man. One day that kindness led to tragedy. He had always said if he needed a ride, he hoped someone would pick him up. One day, he saw a young man walking on the high-way "thumbing" a ride. My grandfa-ther couldn't ignore the man, so he gave him a ride. That was the last ride my grandfather gave anybody. He was brutally beaten to death. He was thrown into a ditch, with only a blanket to cover him. His body was discovered a week later by a bus full of schoolchildren returning from spring vacation.

Because of his age and "good behavior," my grandfather's killer served only a few years for his

"Worried" should ask her husband to read this letter. Perhaps then he will realise that someday my grandfather's story may be his own. I know how this hurt our fami-

CONCERNED IN WASHINGTON

DEAR CONCERNED: 1, too, hope your letter will serve as a warning to other kindhearted but misguided souls.

Nover pick up a hitchhiker, If someone appears stranded on a street or highway, the prudent way to lend assistance is to noti-ty the police, sheriff or highway

DEAR ABBY: As a professional who works with grieving individuals on a daily basis, I would like to offer another opinion to the person who wrote you advising that food brought to grieving people be brought in disposable containers or "garage sale castoffs" rather than in containers that need to be returned. Abby, returning the empty container is the important part. It becomes a way for the grieving indi-vidual to have contact with the per-son who sent the food. That subse-quent contact may be more needed than the food that came in the conteiner.

People who are grieving need contact with others, and this is a good way to get it.

DEAR ABBY: "Angela in Savan-nah" wrote to ask if you had ever heard of anyone eating a suppository. Well, I can top that. I work in a pharmacy and was instructed that we should emphasize the fact that the foil wrapping must be removed before inserting a suppository.

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - Seminole Community College suffered its second heart-breaking loss in as many days Saturday afternoon as Okaicosa-Waiton Community Col-lege from Ft. Waiton Beach edged the Raiders 78-77 in a women's basketball game at the SCC Health and Physical Education Center.

Mariins bring Fernandez back home

AP Sports Writer

MIAMI — Alex Fernandes's $35 million contract with the Florida Marlins will allow him to buy plenty of tickets for friends and family.

"If I give tickets to everybody who wants one, I'll fill the stadium by myself," he said.
The 27-year-old Miami native signed a five-year deal Monday with Florida, rejecting better offers be-cause he wanted to pitch for his hometown team. The Marlins an-ticipate that Fernandes will boost sagging attendance because of his local ties and South Florida's large Hispanic population.

"I've been in Miami for four years." Marlins executive Tony Peres said. "And every time Alex pitches on television, the next day everybody is talking about him. Now they're going to come and see him. He's a hero here, and he has been for years."

After seven seasons with the Chicago White Box, Fernandez became a free agent Saturday when the new labor agreement restored service time from the 1994-95 strike. He accepted 67 million a have received up to $8.5 million eleewhere, said his agent, Scott "Once he knew he could get that much, he didn't have to take it." Borne said. "He knew he had the year from Florida when he could respect he deserved." The Marlina' stiffest competition reportedly came from the Cleveland Indiana.

Atlanta's John Smoltz became the best-paid pitcher in baseball history last month when he signed a four-year, $31 million contract, an average of $7.75 million per season. Fernandes will settle for being the Marlins' best-paid player, surpassing Gary Sheffield's 86.1 million for 1997.

"The money was overwhelming somewhere else," said Fernandes. who fought back tears at an emotional news conference attended by his parents. "It wasn't an easy decision. It all comes down to being at home. I wanted to pitch in front of my fans again."

Fernandez grew up in Miami and pitched for the Miami Hurricanes before turning professional in 1990. He's building a new house 15 minutes from Pro Player Stadium.

The burly right-hander became the latest acquisition during the Marlins' offsesson spending spree, but he won't be the last. General manager Dave Dombrowship hopes to add an outfielder, possibly free agent Moises Alou, and a lefthanded reliever.

Florida earlier signed slugger

Bobby Bonilla to a $25.9 million, four-year contract; outfielder Jim Elsenreich to a $3 million, two-year deal; and outfielder John Cangelosi to a $1,075,000, two-year contract.

Fernandes rejected a five-year, $30 million offer from the White Sox. He never won 20 games or a Cy Young Award for them, but he was durable and consistent, compiling a 57-54 record with a 5.52 ERA over the past four seasons.

Joining Kevin Brown and Al

Leiter, Fernandes gives the Marins three starters who could rival Atlanta's trio of John Smolts, Greg Maddux and Tom Glavine, Fernandez was 16-10 last season with a 3.45 ERA.

"Any time you can sign a quality player from the local community, that's important." Dombrowski said. "And he's only 27. He'll pitch here in his prime, and he can get Keeping fit in the 'golden years'.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Thank you for the common sense expressed in your columns, which have been my pleasure to read for several years. Here is my problem. Although I am 79 years old, I jog and lift weights every day. Nonetheless, I've noticed that my muscle tone is deteriorating. Would human growth hormone or some other prescription drug be of any help in improving muscle tone? DEAR READER: First of all, you are to be congratulated on continuing a fitness program. Many studies have confirmed the value of regular exer-cise in the elderly. Regular work-outs will help maintain strength and cardiovascular performance, improve your appearance, and make you feel better.

Despite vigorous exercise, however, the inexorable consequences of age will still affect your body. These include stiff joints, fatigue, slowly diminishing strength, and impaired physical ability. You can slow the progression of these consequences, but you cannot completely overcome them, because as we age, tissues simply deteriorate. This is what the aging process is all about. I'm afraid that you're just going to have to accept the inevitable: Old muscles don't enlarge and grow strong the way young mus-

Nonetheless, you can probably increase the challenge of your work-out and this will produce demonstrable change. Rather than being content with using light weights in a repetitive pattern, try heavier weights. If you can do 20 "reps" with one set, increase the weight so that 10 "reps" is hard work.

Moreover, try increasing the speed with which you jog, or - even better - use weight machines to develop your leg muscles. In other words, stress your system within limits and with suitable supervision.

Such a program of progressive weight training, long the standard fare of body builders, has been shown in studies to add significant strength and tone to aging muscles, too.

I do not believe that drugs will help you and, in fact, they might be harmful by damaging your heart, for example. Growth hormone is necessary for proper development at a certain age, but once we stop growing, growth hormone supplements are not useful.

If you choose to follow my suggestions, I recommend that you join a fitness program, where trained professionals can assist you to achieve your

To help you further your fitness program, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Eating Right for a Healthy Heart." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had my spicen removed when I was a youth. About 12 years ago, I had my first pneumonia vaccination. Believing that I would have a booster, I recently contacted my physician and was advised that the pneumonia shot provided life-long immunity. It's my understanding that the pneumonia vaccine should be administered every five to seven years.

DEAR READER: You're correct. The pneumonia vaccine booster should be given every five to seven years to susceptible individuals: those with lung disease, a propensity to develop pneumonia, immune deficiency, and patients who have undergone splenectomy. The spleen normally acts as a filter for the body's blood; it traps bacteria before the microorganisms can infect internal organs. Although it protects against only 23 strains of pneumonia-producing bacteria, the vaccine can be life-saving for such patients.

I believe that your doctor was wrong. In my view, you should receive Pneumovax boosters about every five years. Find another doctor who is:

In general, I am not fond of fictional stories built around an occasional bridge deal. They tend not to be funny or well written. An exception is "Tales Out of School" by David Silver (Master Point Press; US $9.95 or Can. $12.95; 800-749-3292 in the United States or 800-263-4374 in Canada). It appealed to my sense of humor and contains a fair amount of bridge, some of it even in-structive. I particularly liked the last two chapters, in which Silver hypothesizes on bridge in hell. This is one of the deals.

Silver was sitting East. In six spades doubled, declarer won the first trick with his heart ace, drew trumps ending in the dummy, ruffed the heart seven in hand and exited with three rounds of clubs. Silver switched to a diamond, anding the queen for South.

For Silver's partner, Bruce Gowdy, who had suffered many similar disasters, this was the last straw. He tried to throttle Silver, but was restrained by kibitzers. After peace was restored, here is how the story continued in the book.

A quiet, middle-aged woman asked Silver about his diamond shift. "Wouldn't it have been better merely to continue hearts?" Mr. Silver responded, rather sarcastically, that one didn't attain his stature as a player by giving declarers ruffs and sluffs. Mr. Gowdy, as one witness put it, "went berserk."

Screaming "What good could it have done him? He opened one diamond and there were four in the dummy."

Mr. Gowdy kicked the table over and lunged at Mr. Silver for the penultimate time. mate time.
