leisure time and much has been done to decrease juvenile delinquency by turning of youth interests into worthwhile channels.

"Fifteen years or so ago, three 'R's' were reading, 'fitting' and 'rhythmic'. Now there are six 'R's', he claimed. "In addition to the first three, responsibility and right relationships must be added. And the last three are particularly important in band work," the bandman emphasized. He concluded his remarks with a careful analysis of work of his department during the past four years and stated that he looked forward to another fine year as he starts his fifth at Seminole High.

He introduced the following program which was enthusiastically received: Sidney Vihlen in a trumpet solo; Robert Armstrong and J. D. Stone, Robert Horn Duet and a Trumpet Trio by Sidney Vihlen, Leslie Smith and Joe Fisher. The last number "Bugler's Holiday" literally brought down the house. Robert Reely Jr. was the accompanist for the instrumentalists and also offered a very difficult piano solo.

The program arranged by Gene Tucker was introduced by Charlie Morrison. The meeting was in charge of President William Bush. The Rev. Lucian Scott offered the invocation and introduced the visitors. George Touhy announced the three stellar attractions in the Seminole Mutual Concert Association headed by Francis E. Roumillat, a member of the local club.

Residents Want

E. P. Hair, operator of a Sanford Ave. filling station, said that he welcomed the renewing of interest in the petition.

No action was taken on the petition, was the apparent outcome of the filing of the paper with the city. However, it is understood that the Board of Commissioners were probably discussing new ordinances or a new ordinance that would require the flagging of street crossings.

An accident Friday, shortly after noon, prompted the renewal of the complaint by Sanford citizens.

One resident of the immediate area of 25th St. where the Friday accident occurred said, "I've helped pull two dead out of wrecks at this crossing and one that was critically hurt." He said, "Something must be done about the safety of motorists who travel this thoroughfare."

The accident involved a 65-year-old retired man, driving a 1946 Nash car, who smashed into the side of the Diesel engine traveling toward Oviedo. ACL officials, at the scene of the accident, said that the crossing was not a flag crossing and that signs were in evidence on both approaches to the street and railroad crossing.

Police Chief Roy Williams, this morning, intimated that the signs at the crossings were those that should be used outside of the city limits.

As a result of the accident, Friday J. K. Lane received a broken leg, abrasions of the face and head, and possible internal injuries.

A witness, who barely got across the ACL tracks without getting hit, and a nephew of the injured man, signed a statement at the scene that the whistle of the train blew only one time about 20 yards from the crossing in question. Chester D. Harper, said in his statement that the whistle warnings should have been two long and one short blast.

The crew of the train, Extra 58, consisted of: W. B. Brinson, conductor; G. P. Harkey, engineer; W. H. Bruce, fireman; B. Joseph, brakeman; and W. J. Crawford, flagman.

Another accident, involving the same train, manned by the same crew, occurred later in the afternoon, about 3:40 p. m., according to Florida Highway Patrolman Carl Williams, when a car driven by Mrs. Isabel Horton, 58-year-old Oviedo housewife, crashed into the train at a crossing on State Road 410. Patrolman Williams said that the car, apparently traveling at a high rate of speed, skidded 160 feet, most of the distance sideways, and crashed into the diesel engine with such an impact that the rail of the track was bent.

The entire side of the car was telescoped and completely destroyed. Mrs. Horton was dead on arrival at an Orlando Hospital. Her son, 12-year-old Billie Joe, remains in a critical condition from injuries received in the accident. He was enroute to Sanford with his mother, for a dental appointment.

Dr. Edward W. Stoner, of Oviedo, administered first aid to the accident victims until the ambulance took them to the Orlando Hospital.

Both mother and son were pinned in the wreckage, the mother under the wheel, the son in the front seat on the right side.

counsel of laziness. It has to do with anxious thought about the morrow and crossing bridges before we get to them and a failure to trust in God's care. We often lose the present through regrets regarding the past and anxiety concerning the future. It is our faith that the whole experience of life and death fit into an eternal plan of God which is concerned with our best interests and our highest good.

The Rev. David S. Carneff, pastor of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church used as his subject yesterday, "The Earthly Reign of Christ."

Practically, without exception men of all races and ages have fancied a Utopian dream. They have thought of a place of plenty and prosperity and peace... of social and economic equality where no man must live in want... of unparalleled happiness and joy.

Thus, the Scriptural depiction of the earthly reign of Christ is not beyond the scope of human imagination. However, the total picture which the Bible presents of the World-wide Kingdom of Christ is an undisputable fact of Bible prophecy.

Only Jesus Christ can straighten out the tangles and clear away the mess into which this world has been engulfed by the futile efforts of human agencies. These agencies no matter how mighty the powers that be; no matter how influential the leaders; no matter how diplomatic the ministers; no matter how careful the international plans—can never produce a permanent and lasting peace in the world.

Is it any wonder that the Apostle Paul should exclaim: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things that God hath prepared for them that love him." (I Cor. 2:9)

Pastor Perry L. Stone of the First Christian Church preached yesterday morning on "Good News for All." In introducing his message he said, "Do you feel that your worth and dignity as a free human being is unappreciated and that you are treated as a pawn or cog or case or number? Then the gospel is good news to you that you are more precious in God's sight than the most sacred institution; that his Son out of love for you died on the Cross to save you from sin; and that the very hairs of your head are numbered. Is your life a rat race and your work pointless? Then the gospel is good news to you that there is a cause worth living for and dying for. Are you sad and bowed down by trouble? Then the gospel is good news to you not of ease or escape, but of joy in the midst of trouble, because of divine companionship and the assurance of ultimate victory. Are you victimized by moral weakness, frustrated by fear or discouraged by failure? Then the gospel is good news to you of power to enable you to live a godly and heroic life, whatever your past may have been."

The Rev. Phillip Schlessmann, pastor of the Lutheran Church of The Redeemer, chose his text from Psalm 46, and his sermon topic was, "The Lutheran Confidence Which Won the Reformation Victories."

He said "Luther's confidence sprang from the Word of God from this very Psalm (Ps. 46). The revelation it makes of God, God's Grace, God's Help aids us from countless other Scripture revelations, which Luther believed and accepted as they read, and refused to change for the notions of men."

"Luther's confidence was from his absolute certainty of God. Not with self-made, presumptuous, and thus false certainty, but with a certainty from God himself; for God never forsakes his Word nor those who cling to it. Luther was certain that God was his refuge and his strength."

"That certainty or confidence was so strong that it defied all enemies of God and His Word though it should turn it into chaos. God was with Luther and made him know it; his enemies had to fail."

"Such was the power of the great reformer, not a power of his own making, but the power of faith, the power of confidence and trust. Luther knew from the Holy Word, that faith in Jesus Christ as the Savior was God's truth and carried that banner before the eyes of all. Even when death and respite faced him he would say let us sing the 58th Psalm for he knew that 'A Mighty Fortress is Our God,' said Pastor Schlessmann."

Friday Is Circus Day

Two performances are scheduled—the afternoon show at 2 p.m. and the night performance at 8 p.m. During the recent performances at Tampa, and the following day in St. Petersburg, it was necessary to stage three performances each day to accommodate the heavy advance sale of tickets.

King Bros. Circus will be staged in three rings—elevated stages—a mammoth menagerie of wild animals and herds of performing elephants—a hippodrome track and with a galaxy of 150 world famous circus and arena stars, including many new acts from all over the world—including the English Rockettes, 12 beautiful aerialists from London, England—the famed Dorchester Riding Troupe—Senior and Ingra Smaha—from Argentina—with 24 trained Arabian horses—the Tunisian troupe of Arabian gymnasts—risky acrobats—a dozen funny zuela—The Hungarian troupe of the Valencinos troupe from Venetians and trained animal acts.

Following the luncheon meeting, an inspection tour was made of the local Seminole Memorial Hospital. The general consensus of opinion, according to reports, was that "Sanford and Seminole County has a beautiful hospital with all facilities."

Harry M. Weir, administrator of the local hospital, and secretary treasurer of the hospital group, said that every visitor was completely thrilled by the hospital. One to such an extent, that while they're in the process of building a 200 bed hospital, wanted his architect to visit the Seminole Memorial Hospital for ideas.

Jack Monahan, of Orlando, executive secretary of the Florida Hospital Association, gave a brief report of hospital activities throughout the state.

H. A. Schroeder, executive director of Blue Cross and Blue Shield, of Jacksonville, gave a brief report on problems confronting both hospitals and Blue Cross.

Harry Weir, said this morning, that Friday's meeting was participated in by one of the biggest turnouts of the council, motivated possibly by the local hospital group the tour which was made.

The next meeting of the council will be held in Lakeland, said Weir, Jan. 20. The Morrell Memorial Hospital is located in Lakeland.

An election of officers will be held at that time, said Weir, because of the resignation of President W. C. McLain due to his leaving the State to assume a position in Indiana.

Memberships Sold At Record Pace By Concert Group

Memberships in the Seminole Mutual Concert Association are being sold at a record pace, said president Francis Roumillat today as the second report was received from the more than sixty workers on the membership committee.

Mrs. Ralph Austin Smith, heading the membership drive committee, said that she anticipates in bringing outstanding artists to Sanford for the winter concert series, is the highest ever expressed in similar drives over the years.

The office of the association, located in the Strickland-Morrison Building on East First St., is being deluged with telephone calls and visits by workers to make their reports.

An additional 32 memberships were sold yesterday afternoon, immediately following the first report, which brings the total membership sold to date up to 244.

Roumillat said this morning that there are only 204 memberships left for the series and he expects them to be reserved prior.

Local Game Warden Retires Yesterday

One Seminole County Game Warden retires when new age and disability policies of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission were put into effect yesterday with 11 wildlife officers and an area supervisor retiring.

Director A. D. Aldrich said the posts were being filled by nine younger men selected from a merit system eligible list.

The commission adopted a policy at its meeting in Daytona Beach last month fixing compulsory retirement of game officers at age 65. Aldrich said the charges are in line with a decision "to hire younger men, pay them more and expect more of them."

Retired were area supervisor J. E. Ahlstrom, Aradria, 65, and the following wildlife officers: A. B. Bauknight, Groveland, 64; J. D. Warren, Longwood, 67; H. L. Langston, DeLand, 65; F. T. McDonald, Panama City, 67; J. C. Johnson, River Junction, 72; H. C. Pelt Crawfordville, 67; L. P. Anderson, Clewiston, 69; W. B. Sparkman, Plant City, 69; J. A. Daughtry, Indian Town, 67, and Roy Ostrow, Holly Hill, 69.

Aldrich said Ed Richey, 54, wildlife officer of Fruitland Park, was retired because of his physical condition.

Named to probationary appointments as wildlife officers:

Francis W. Davis, Tampa; Franklin E. Jones, Eustis; V. G. Nouse, Valrico; Albert E. McLaughlin, DeLand; Jacob H. Parker, Bonita Springs; Ernest G. Perce, Clermont; Sam Pridgen, Wausatchia; Raymond C. Taber, Orlando; and V. D. Johns, Wauatchia.

The new men being hired are in the 21-35 age group.

C. C. Laramore stepped down from his engine at Rands Siding yesterday and was greeted by his friends and fellow workers as he completed 55 years of service with the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

"Larry", as he is called by his friends and acquaintances, began his work with the Atlantic Coast Line in Sanford with the roadway department in July of 1900. He started work as a fireman in 1904 and was promoted to engineer in 1910.

Laramore was born on Oct. 20, 1883. He looked serious, at moments yesterday, as he stood by his engine receiving the plaudits of railroad men in every department in Sanford. Once in a while though, he broke into a smile and pushed his cap way back on his head to get a few words in edgewise, so to speak.

Bearing gifts of all kinds, he reached for a check presented to him by W. I. Crabtree, General Yardmaster, on behalf of all of his fellow employees. The letter accompanying the check read, "While the amount may not be great, we assure you our esteem for you is great and we shall miss you in our daily labors. You have earned your rest."

General Yardmaster Crabtree said, "You've been one of the fellows that has made the railroad what it is today."

Searching for words for immediate answer, Laramore said, "It's been a pleasure to work here with all of you."

Just a little less than a year ago, Laramore was presented a diamond studded pin by the Atlantic Coast Line for his long years of faithful service. It was his 50 year emblem.

"He's going to be missed by us," was the general consensus of opinion among the railroad men gathered for the occasion and who were on their way to scheduled work.

Among those praising Laramore for his many years of devotion to duty were, in addition to W. I. Crabtree, General Yardmaster, H. V. Nelson, Road Foreman of Engines, L. M. Cornell, General Foreman, Mechanical Department, and C. P. Hixley, engineer.

Along side the engine, when "Larry" Laramore stepped down, was a sign which read, "Good luck to C. C. Laramore."

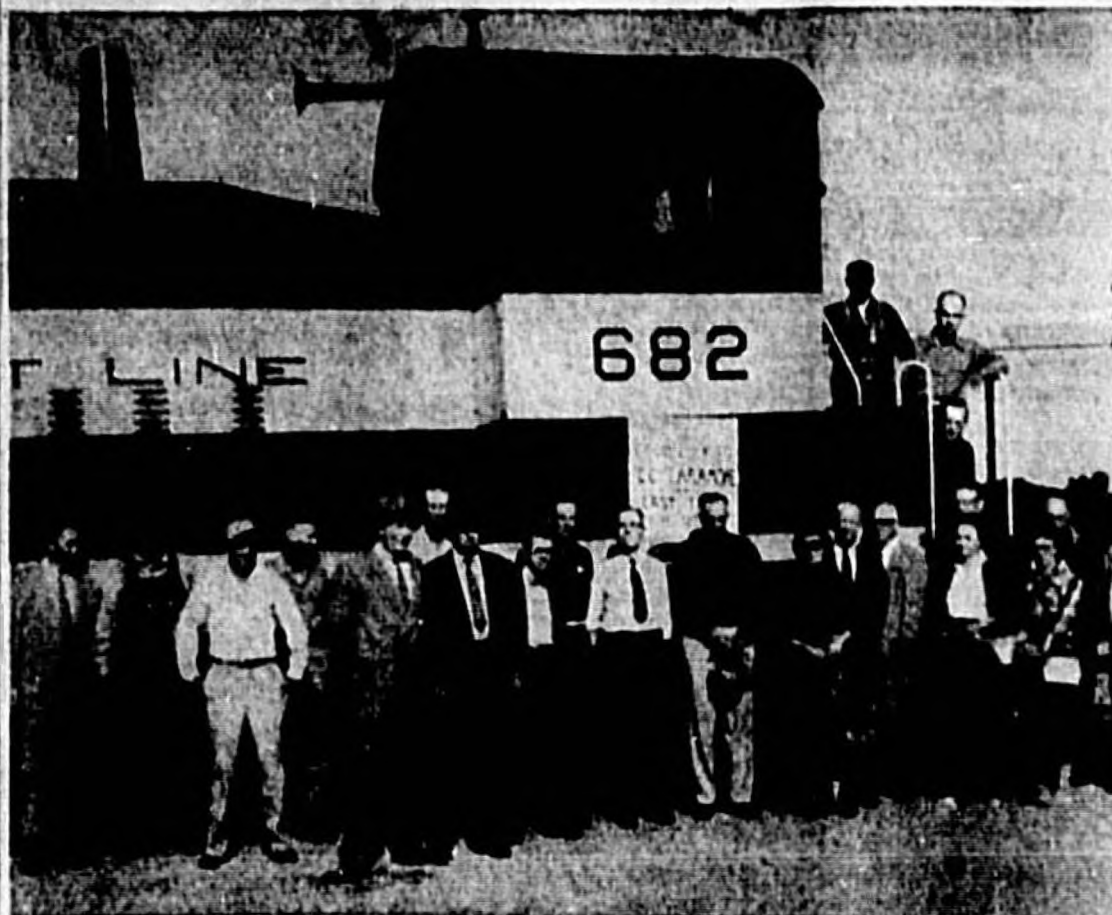

Mrs. A. Sullivan Dies Yesterday

Attie Hunt Sullivan, 85, 1238 1/2 18th St., died yesterday morning in an Orlando hospital.

Mrs. Sullivan was born in DeKalb County, Ga., moving to Orlando 20 years ago from Live Oak. She was a member of the First Assembly of God Church.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Pearl Byrd, Sanford; Mrs. Allie Thompson and Mrs. Thelma Thompson, Orlando; three sons, Thomas Thompson, Tampa; William A. Hunt, Orlando; and R. T. Hunt of Sanford; one sister, Mrs. J. E. Todder, Palatka; 20 grandchildren; 27 great grandchildren; and two great, great, great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the First Assembly of God Church with the Rev. J. M. Stallings and the Rev. John P. Hall officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery with Fairchild Funeral Home in charge.

Criminal Docket For Fall Term Of Court Told Today

Captain Roy Tillis Retires Last Night At Benevolent Meet

Captain Roy Tillis retired last night from his 41 years of service to the people of his community.

As a law enforcement officer, Captain Tillis served in every capacity possible in the local police department after being hired originally, he said, for one job just to try out for the job as a rookie patrolman.

However, the 43-year-old police captain didn't get to sleep down without a bit of fan fare from his fellow police officers and members of the Sanford Board of Commissioners and the Civil Service Board.

At a meeting of the Police Benevolent Association last night at Jim Spencer's, Captain was presented with a resolution from the Board of City Commissioners praising him for his outstanding work and long, faithful service. Along with the resolution, Mayor Denver Cordell, with fellow officers, city commissioners, civil service board members, and Mrs. Tillis looking on, presented Captain Tillis with a silver platter in recognition of his untiring efforts as a member of the Sanford Police Department.

Ben Butler, patrolman, and emcee for last night's dinner meeting, presented Captain Tillis with an unexpected gift. Wrapped in a huge silver-striped package, was a genuine Stetson sombrero, a black western shirt, trousers, and belt. Captain Tillis, eyeing the gifts, was speechless but his eyes glittered with pride. The outfit was a gift from his fellow officers.

Chief Roy Williams presented the retiring captain of his police force with a Smith and Wesson revolver, gleaming with silver plate and bearing his record with the Sanford Police Department engraved along the side.

Russell Tongay Is Slated For Release To Treat Ailment

TALLAHASSEE.—Russell Tongay, serving a 10 year prison term in connection with the death of his 5-year-old son, was slated for release to the VA hospital in Atlanta.

The Cabinet agreed today to release Tongay after being told the Veterans Administration will accept him as a patient.

Parole Commission Chairman Joseph Cheney said he had been advised by Dr. T. J. Ready, chief medical officer of the Veterans Administration, that Tongay would be accepted as a patient and sent to the VA hospital in Atlanta.

Dr. Ready told Cheney the Veterans Administration would not be responsible for Tongay's custody or his return to the state prison at Raiford.

At Cheney's suggestion, the Cabinet

Ray Baldree, 14, Reported Missing

A 14-year-old boy is missing from his home on South Sanford Ave., according to reports of the Sanford Police Department.

Mrs. Lottie Baldree reported in the Sanford Police Department that her son, Ray, 14, has left home. He is about 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs about 145 to 150 pounds. Ray has dark brown hair and wears a blue and white striped shirt.

Mrs. Baldree wasn't sure about the clothes he was wearing when first missed.

Volume Of Produce Is Anticipated

Manager Randy Anderson, of the Sanford State Farmers' Market, accounted for the past week with this report, "Business declined sharply due to depressed marketing conditions earlier in the week. The cucumber, squash, bean and fruit market showed quite an improvement toward the last of the week. Ideal weather conditions the past 10 days have improved quality and yield. We anticipate a good volume of beans, cucumbers, squash, eggplant, orange and grapefruit during the current week."

Henry Witte Jr., formerly of Sanford, and now manager of the Port Myers State Farmers' Market, advised, "The season started here the past week with cucumbers leading in volume and light supplies of eggplant, squash, and tomatoes following. With good weather conditions, crops are making rapid progress and volume of all commodities should show a decided increase."

Vandalism Reigns Here Last Night

Merchants Urged To Help Make Yule Parade Successful

The 1955 Christmas Parade sponsored jointly by the Sanford Merchants' Association and the Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce, was officially announced yesterday in a letter to merchants of the county.

The letter, from E. D. Hunt, Chairman of the 1955 Christmas Parade Committee, asked for the cooperation of this year's gigantic event to make it the most successful presented by the merchants and citizens of Seminole County.

Hunt, in his letter, said, "Over the past few years the annual Christmas Parade has grown and has become one of the most looked forward to events of the winter season." It is because of your past interests and participation, the letter continued, that has made the event so successful.

The letter from the Jaycee Christmas Parade Committee offered help and assistance in obtaining trucks for floats with material and labor the responsibility of the merchant or the organization.

Hunt, explained in the official letter that, "In order to make this year's parade one of the most successful ever held here, that one of the themes named be selected." Those themes were: religious, manager, choir, wise men, (Continued on Page Eight)

City Property Damaged Small Youngsters Cause No Trouble

Vandalism ran rampant in Sanford last night as older youths took over where the tiny tots left off.

Small youngsters, most times with parents, enjoyed Halloween "Trick or Treat" fun with caution and regard to property of others.

But as the youngsters left their modest fun, older youths took over with an eye bent on destruction.

An estimated damage could not be established as reports came in to the Sanford Police Station and the City Managers Office.

City Manager Warren F. Knowles said this morning that at least 18 stop signs were removed or damaged. "It will cost the city a pretty penny," said Knowles, "with each sign costing more than $9."

The Sanford Police Department reported 13 school signs uprooted, torn apart, or damaged as the band of allegedly older youth, took the town in its stride.

Princess Margaret Resists In Seclusion After Decision

LONDON.—Sad hearted Princess Margaret resided in seclusion today while statesmen, churchmen and commonfolk showered her with sympathy and praise for her decision to put duty before love.

The discreet man whose suit she rejected, Group Capt. Peter Townsend, tried to face reporters but suddenly turned away with shoulders drooping. He looked pale and downcast.

Margaret's mother stayed with her in Clarence House, half a mile from Buckingham Palace. Small clusters of curious gathered outside.

Queen Elizabeth II carried on usual duties, awarding medals and creating knights in the white and gold ballroom of Buckingham Palace.

Crowds cheered the Duke of Edinburgh when he arrived in York to unveil a memorial to war dead. He flashed a smile. He is identified in many minds as an opponent of the marriage.

Two Post Bonds For Violations

Two Sanford men have posted bonds for violating the game law relative to the bag limit of fresh water fish.

According to the Seminole County Sheriff's office, Albert Williams of 1211 West 14th St. and Louis Wright of 218 E. 8th St. were charged with "exceeding the bag limit of fresh water fish." Bonds for each were set at $50.

Harry Hershov, game warden in Seminole County, said that Williams had in his possession 45 speckled perch, while Wright was found with 50 of the fresh water fish.

Hearing Aid Blues

KEY WEST.—"Some one is trying to break into my house, using an electric saw," a woman screamed into the telephone.

Police Sgt. P. A. Case rushed two squad cars to the woman's home. The officers approached quietly and surrounded the house.

There was no one, they went inside to question the woman. "Why, they're still trying to get in," she said. "Listen to that saw."

The woman wore a hearing aid and officers asked to examine it. It was out of order, and making a noise just like a saw biting through wood.

A. Woodward Says Noise Prompts Shot

ST. LOUIS.—Mrs. Ann Woodward, now says it was a noise rather than anything else, which caused her to fire shotgun blast which killed her wealthy sportsman husband, William Woodward Jr.

Earlier, amid soba shortly after the Sunday morning shooting, she had told officers she shot at a figure or shadow, fearing it to be a prowler and not recognizing it as her husband.

Meanwhile, an arrest today led credence to her statement that the Woodward's Long Island (Continued on Page Eight)

Representative Will Be At CoFC Office

A representative of the Social Security Administration District Office in Orlando will be at the Chamber of Commerce Building in Sanford on Friday, Nov. 4, Friday, Nov. 18 and Friday, Nov. 25, between the hours of 9:30 a. m. and noon.

Scientist Constructs Steam Boiler

Jerusalem, Israel, Oct. 30. — A British-born, 38-year-old Israeli physicist has constructed an apparatus for collecting sunshine to produce steam.

It is Henry Tabor, a scientist who likes to see anything go to waste.

There is high hope that his design will provide an answer to the energy problem of many countries like Israel that have much sun but little or no natural fuel.

This month Tabor demonstrated his new steam boiler for the first time to members of the Israel Science Association. They already have seen it in action.

He did. On Oct. 6 government members gathered for the occasion saw a small column of white steam come out of a little pipe on top of the collector.

Last month Tabor will show his new steam boiler in Phoenix, Ariz., at the first World Symposium on Applied Solar Energy.

Tabor points out that successful experiments converting solar radiation into usable energy were made several decades ago in Egypt and the United States. But these used lenses or reflecting mirrors which are too expensive and too large to be practical.

Water heaters operated by the sun are relatively inexpensive, he says, and his collector would not be much more than a large conventional water heater.

from the wind by a single or double layer of glass.

Tabor's model looks the same but his patented change adds an extremely thin layer of black nickel on the plate instead of the usual black paint. He says it's this layer that produces high enough temperatures for steam. It practically eliminates the loss of heat by radiation from the plate as the sun heats it.

Water heaters operated by the sun are relatively inexpensive, he says, and his collector would not be much more than a large conventional water heater.

What Is Attitude Of Rich People

DETROIT (AP)—When I was a boy I used to dream that my grandfather was Henry Ford, that I inherited his billion dollar company, appointed some bright people to run it, presided grandly at a board meeting once a year and spent the rest of the time gadding about the world.

Recently I met Henry Ford II and his brothers Benson and Bill and they made me ashamed.

Although they easily could have afforded to, they said they never once thought of becoming gay members of the idle rich and international loafing set.

Even as kids, they said, they had always assumed they would go to work for the company their grandfather started, that their jobs would be full time and not just titular. In fact they never had any other ambition except that Bill wanted to become a racing car driver but he got over that.

And so today, at 37, Henry Ford II is president of the Ford Motor Co. It employs 184,000, has plants and offices around the world, makes cars and farm equipment and industrial engines, and its gross from autos alone runs to the billions every year.

Benson Ford, 36, is a vice president and group director of the Mercury and Special Products divisions. William Clay Ford, 30, is a vice president and group director of the Lincoln and Continental divisions.

I had always wondered what the attitude of very rich people was toward money. Did they want more of it? Did they take it for granted? Tolerate it? Had it become in their minds just another piece of useful equipment?

The question was put to Benson Ford and, being a friendly, casual man, he laughed and said:

"Money means the same to us as it does to everyone else. Need it? You always need money. I know I do. You see, we're in an inflexible position. Our company stock is tied up; we can't sell it. If we needed money, we'd have to go to the bank and borrow it. Therefore, we have to have an income like anyone else."

There was a time when strangers didn't put such questions to a Ford. But today the atmosphere is different. While it does not encourage undue familiarity, an ordinary man of 37 can ask another man of 37 if he were ever frightened by the responsibility that goes with being top dog at such a large company.

Tall, full-faced, brown-haired Henry Ford II said that even when he took over at 28, he wasn't awed by the job but was impressed with how much he had to learn. The company then was losing money heavily, its management was chaotic, its future blurred.

"We had an obligation to fill," he said of himself and his brothers. "My father (Edsel Ford) had died. Grandfather was pretty old. Somebody had to look after the company. I couldn't see letting it just drift."

"It was, I suppose, a matter of family pride and responsibility. But frankly, I was also fascinated by the business. I enjoy it. I find the competition exciting."

A more relaxed atmosphere warmed by a sense of humor distinguishes the current Ford administration from the old.

For more than two and a half years and with a heavy capital investment, the division under Bill Ford was working on reviving the super-plus Continental which his father had introduced originally.

Finally, late last year, the first working model was almost ready. The boys at the plant thought it would be a fine gesture if they could speed things up, get the first model off the assembly line on Christmas Eve and then solemnly turn over the keys to Bill Ford. He would then ride off in a roar of triumph.

And on Christmas Eve, they had it ready. They made last minute

Police Force Going Back To School For Driving Lessons

AP Newsfeature

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia's entire police force of 4,000, almost all veterans behind the wheel, is going back to school again to learn how to become better drivers.

Among the first to graduate was William F. Quirk, police academy superintendent.

It's a six-day course, which each man on the force must eventually take. There are three days in the classroom and three days driving.

Classroom work includes driving instruction, a brushup on traffic laws and psycho-physical tests. Driving tests include use of signals, operation of the car and braking distances at various speeds. There is also an obstacle course.

One test determines the steadiness of a driver. According to Patrolman Wassen Claus, an instructor, "It can tell almost to the minute what time a person got in the night before."

The apparatus consists of a V-shaped metal slot. The officer takes a metal rod connected to a power supply and tries to slide it between the two sides. As soon as the rod strikes the side of the device, lights flash and a buzzer sounds.

Another instrument tests the area which the eyes can see.

At least four policemen have failed the course so far. This device proved that one of them could only see straight ahead. Normally when a person looks straight ahead he also can see objects on either side.

The flunkies have since been assigned to a position where they will not drive.

Veterans Corner

Here are authoritative answers from the Veterans Administration to four questions of interest to former servicemen and their families:

Q. I would like to go to France to study cooking under the Korean GI Bill at one of the world-famous French restaurants. Would this be possible?

A. It would not be possible. Foreign training under the Korean GI Bill is limited only to VA-approved courses in colleges and universities.

Q. I am a service-disabled Korea veteran. Recently I was blinded in an industrial accident. Would I be entitled to VA aids for the blind, even though my loss of sight was not service-connected?

A. So long as you have a service-connected disability, you may be entitled to VA aids for the blind. Blindness itself does not need to be service-connected.

Q. I hold a World War II GI insurance policy. I have just been married, and would like to change the beneficiary from mother to my wife. Am I supposed to notify my mother of this change?

A. You have the right to change beneficiaries without notifying either the old or the new beneficiary. All you have to do is notify the VA district office that handles your insurance account.

Q. I am a Korea Veteran with a 20 percent disability rating. Would that automatically make me eligible for vocational rehabilitation training?

A. Not necessarily. In order to qualify, you must have a need for training to overcome the handicap caused by your disability. (Veterans living in Central Florida who wish further information about their benefits, should write the VA office at 42 E. Central Ave., Orlando, Florida.)

Dark Intent

By RAE FOLEY

SYNOPSIS
Death of Roger Brindle, an extremely popular syndicated newspaper columnist who wrote of the people he knew in his New England hometown of Stowville, opens new chapters in the lives of his young widow, Carol, and the people of whom he had written so well. These include Albert and Bonnie Kibbee and their son, Clyde, and Joe and Ethel Hattery, all of whom live in cottages on the grounds of the Brindle home. Another cottage occupant is Shandy Stowe, the reputedly wealthy former owner of the estate. On the heels of learning of a cryptic note regarding Roger's death, Shandy is told by Carol that a sheet writer, Lois Fleming, is going to help her write a series of stories on Roger, Shandy had known Lois years before.

CHAPTER SEVEN
"STOWVILLE"
For a moment Lois Fleming stood on the platform, breathing in the sweet, cool air, looking at the rolling hills of the Connecticut hills, at the trees—maple and oak, white birch and hemlock. Stowville was better than she had expected.

"A typical New England village with a green." That was all Shandy Stowe had ever said to her of the little town that had been named for his great-great-grandfather. He had talked more about the house in which four generations of his family had been born. "A big white house with pillars, southern colonial style, with ornate iron gates and four little cottages scattered around the grounds that have been added from time to time for guests." Strange how clearly she remembered.

There was no one to meet her, of course. She was not expected for another ten days. Serve her right if she were turned away at the door. For the first time she wondered why Mignonette had wanted her to make an unaided appearance. Since her illness, she reflected, she had been putty in the hands of well-meaning relatives with whims of iron, of anyone who took a strong line about her. And Mignonette had taken a very strong line. She had been determined that Lois should accept this job.

Probably, Lois reflected ruefully, she knew it was still too dim to think for herself. Or was it that? It occurred to her now that Mignonette had been unlike her forthright self during that interview in her office. She had not really given Lois time to think about the job.

Lois stood uncertainly on the platform and then hailed the only taxi.

"Mrs. Roger Brindle's home. Do you know where it is?"

The driver swiveled around for another look at her. "Going to visit Mrs. Brindle, are you? 'Poor soul. It will do her good to have some company. That house without Mr. Brindle—" he shook his head dolorously.

Automatically, Lois found herself opening a source of information on her subject. "Did you know him?"

"Everyone knew him. I guess it's not too much to say everyone loved him. Always a nice word and a smile for you. Of course, he lived here most of his life. Even after he was famous he wouldn't live anywhere else."

Something of Roger's shadow seemed to fall over the cab. How big he had been, Lois thought. He had filled this town with his presence. In a sense, he still filled it.

The taxi driver turned onto the village green, driving through the cool shade of great elm trees. Beyond were green lawns, towering trees, white houses self-consciously gleaming with an anxious eye for the public, criss-cross curtains crisp at sparkling windows.

A quarter of a mile beyond the village the driver slowed down before ornate iron gates through which Lois saw a deep lawn shaded by big elms and sugar maples and, some distance back from the road, a gracious colonial house with a beautiful doorway and a slender balcony supported by white pillars.

"But this must be the Stowe house!"

"It was," the driver said. "Mr. Stowe sold the place to Mr. Brindle right after he came back from the war. Just shut himself up like a hermit. People have almost forgotten that he still lives around here."

As he turned the car into the driveway, Lois was thoughtful. This was the home to which Shandy had expected to take his bride. Something must have happened; the thing, perhaps, that he had anticipated and she had refused to believe possible. How vile, she thought in swift anger, how utterly vile. What kind of woman would break her engagement because a man had been scarred by war?

She stood on the porch for some time after she had paid off the driver, her luggage stacked neatly beside her. Then she took a deep breath and rang the bell. The door was opened by a young girl in black slacks and a yellow pullover who looked in surprise from Lois to the matching luggage.

"I am Mrs. Fleming," Lois said. "Mrs. Brindle is expecting me."

"Mrs. Fleming?" The girl stared at her in consternation. Then she stepped back awkwardly. "I'm sorry. We thought you were coming on the fifteenth."

"What a shame."

"Sit down, won't you? I'll get Aunt Carol. Oh, I'm Mrs. Brindle's niece, Paula Case." She was slight, with sandy hair and a sprinkling of freckles over her small nose. She was not pretty but she had the touching, ephemeral charm of seventeen. "I hope," she added politely, in an endeavor to cover the embarrassment of the unexpected arrival, "you aren't too tired from your trip."

As the train time from New York City was well under three hours, Lois was staggered. Then she recalled that Scott Fitzgerald as an undergraduate had written of "a fading but still lovely woman of twenty-eight."

"Nothing that a nice cup of tea won't cure," she said sedately, her eyes sparkling. "How lovely it is here!"

"The village green is quaint, if you like that sort of thing." There was a touch of condescension in the girl's voice. "And there are a lot of real characters around. Old-timers, Roger—" the young voice broke and then steeled. "Roger lived here."

Lois gave her a quick look. She saw now that there were shadows under the hazel eyes with their sandy lashes.

"Well," Paula said, backing away. "If you'll excuse me, I'll get Aunt Carol." She ran up the stairs as though eager to escape.

Lois looked around her. The first sharp impression of a man's house often told her as much about him as her first sight of the man himself. If she could not see Roger Brindle, at least she could see the surroundings in which he had lived. But, she reminded herself, this was not Roger Brindle's house, it was Shandy Stowe's.

Natalie Wood Has Solved In-Between Gap With Ease

HOLLYWOOD — The in-between stage—that hobgoblin of all child actors—holds no terrors for Natalie Wood. She has bridged the gap with the greatest of ease.

Few have been as fortunate. Most kid stars are buffeted by that age when they're too old to lick lollipops and too young to pose for cheesecake. Most of them drop out of sight until they have matured enough to play grown-up roles. Not many again achieve the prominence they knew as children.

But Natalie, a cute chick who started in films at 4, looks set for a brighter career than ever. She's now 17.

"I guess I was lucky," she reflected. "I was always skinny when I was young. So when I was 11, I could play a 9-year-old. When I was 13, I could seem 11."

"When I got to be a teen-age type, I was in a TV series, 'Pride of the Family.' The show was pretty bad, but it kept me busy for a year. By the time it was over, I was ready for leading roles."

Warner Brothers recognized the fact and placed her opposite James Dean in "Rebel Without a Cause." She then appeared in "The Searchers" with John Wayne. Warner's has just signed her to a seven-year contract.

San Francisco-born Natalie began her acting career in Santa Rosa, Calif., where her family later moved. The townspeople were enlisted to appear in a movie being made on location there. The late Irving Pichel was directing. He took a shine to 4-year-old Natalie.

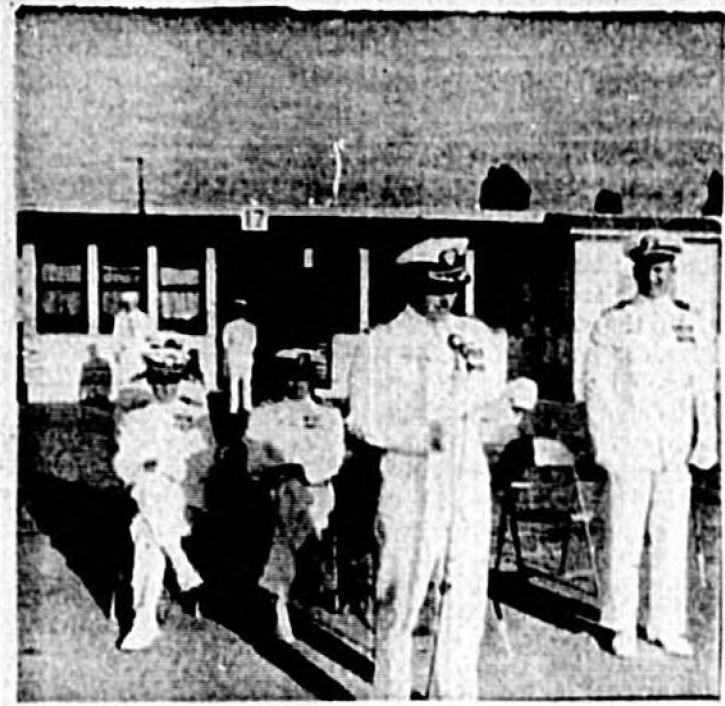

"I had a scene in which I was supposed to drop my ice cream cone and cry," she recalled vividly. "I guess I was convincing, because Mr. Pichel kept corresponding with my family and advising me to come to Hollywood."

When she was 6, Pichel was directing "Tomorrow Is Forever" with Orson Welles and Claudette Colbert. He sent for Natalie, who tested for the role of Welles' orphaned ward. She won the part, scored a hit in the film and the Wood family moved from Santa Rosa to Hollywood.

In succeeding years, Natalie played daughter in dozens of top stars in such films as "Miracle on 34th Street," "Chicken Every Sunday," "Father was a Fullback," "No Sad Songs for Me," "The Blue Devil," etc.

Despite her heavy film schedule, she managed to lead a fairly normal life. After grammar school, she enrolled at a public junior high, returning to her regular classes after movie assignments.

Despite frequent acting jobs, Natalie remained enrolled in public school and graduated from Van Nuys High School last June.

Three Gals Make Good In Michigan

AP Newsfeatures
Do you have a couple of sisters who like music? Or a couple of friends, maybe.

If so, you can make it pay off. Three Detroit sisters did just that. The organized a band and today they're satisfying their musical urge while earning money for future musical education.

The girls, Audrey 16, Arlene 14 and Alfreda Walenga 13, along with a friend Pat Schobalski 15, made up the Bel-Airs, a four-piece band that is very much in demand for parties, dances, weddings and what have you.

All the girls have been interested in music since their sub-suburb days. Audrey, leader of the band, started taking accordion lessons when she was six. Pat took to the song flute in the fourth grade but later she says, "I liked music so well, my parents let me take clarinet lessons from a private teacher. Two years ago I started on the sax."

The girls met at the music school.

Alfreda plays a hot drum for a girl, and incorporates all the gymnastics necessary to keep busy, learned by observing other drummers on television. She's on her second set of drums and has a big order in for her Christmas stocking—cymbals, tomtoms, and other accessories. Right now she sits behind a high and low tomtom, a snare and bass drum, four cymbals, a wood block which she beats when the band plays polkas and a cow bell used for rumbas and mambo.

The thing that egged Arlene on was the chummy duets that Alfreda and Audrey played. Arlene felt left out so she started clarinet lessons. That was the end of her tears, because in no time at all she was one of the band.

The girls give off plenty of rhythm and in the fast moving number "In the Mood Special"

Laura LaPlante Is Back!

HOLLYWOOD — Look who's coming back—Laura LaPlante! Yes, the same Laura LaPlante who starred in silent films and early talkies. Remember the villain's hand reaching out at her from behind the bedstead in "The Cat and the Canary"? Yipes!

It's a pleasure to report that the years have done little to Laura. She's frank to say she'll be 51 on Tuesday, but she looks much like the impish blonde who delighted film fans of another generation. She has the same boyish bob, clear skin and bright eyes.

For the first time in almost 20 years, she has made a return to acting. As something of a lark she portrayed a onetime movie star in the TV comedy series, "It's a Great Life." The film will be shown Nov. 13.

This is an about-face for the actress who gave up films to be a wife and mother. In the early '30s she left Hollywood to go to England with her husband, producer Irving Asher. She did some films and stage work there, then gave birth to her daughter, now 19.

"That seemed like a good time to stop acting," she remarked. "So I did." She also has a son, 16.

"Now that they're just about grown, they don't need me as much," she reasoned. "In fact, I think it's better for them if mother isn't around now and then. I think all of us have a tendency to want our children to remain babies."

When the TV producers came to her recently with the notion of acting for them, her first impulse was to say no. But her husband urged her to at least see the script. He thought it was amusing and suggested she do it.

So she did. She confessed to being frightfully nervous. But one of the things that brought her through was the encouragement of fellow workers. The word spread around the Hal Roach lot that she was working there. Crewmen who had been in her pictures years ago dropped in to wish her well.

Laura's career started in 1919 for the Christie Brothers. She came here from San Diego to visit a cousin and wangled a job in a comedy. It seemed like an easy way to earn money, so she stayed. Her big break came when Carly Ray gave her the go-ahead in "The Old Scumming Hole." Universal signed her and she starred there for nine years.

You may have wondered where she got her name, which sounds like the epitome of silent star names. She was born Laura LaPlante.

You Can Help Youth Of Sanford By Supporting Scout Movement

How have you helped the boys in the community find their place in life? Modern business keeps most boy-lovers away from the fields and streams, schools and hobby-dens, the streets and alleys, where youngsters find an outlet for their pent-up energy.

Every year finds the Boy Scouts of America playing an ever-growing part in the life of a growing, yearning, pleasure seeking youngster. The Boy Scouts of America, you see, provides the program that leads a boy through useful stages, and teaches him to build for himself. And the Boy Scouts, too, has the leadership through volunteers, to make the program possible for your boy.

As a group, the Boy Scout learns to manage affairs, of his own and of others. He learns self-reliance, confidence in himself. He acquires a knowledge of budgets and incomes, to spend and to save.

But without leadership, without the program, without the materials, the youngsters must search for themselves, into devious channels, the pathways for growth, and learning, for entertainment and relaxation. Seminole County, and all of its communities, enjoy the benefits of Scouting.

In 1955 425 boys of Seminole County participated in the many Boy Scout programs planned for them, an increase over the 291 boys who enjoyed scouting in 1954. New units have been formed, and no doubt the council will continue to grow.

The Central Florida Council, Boy Scouts of America, are now in the midst of a fund raising campaign. In the next few days, a budget of $52,000 must be raised to keep scouting in the six county area.

In Sanford, Oviedo, Altamonte Springs, Lake Mary, Casselberry, Fern Park, Longwood, and Geneva, men and women who believe in the Boy Scout program will be calling on friends and neighbors to help them reach their goal.

Help them, won't you?

Educate Your Children!

A series of events in Sanford might be a warning to parents. Your job is now! Not after a crime is committed and you try to blame everybody that was ever in sight.

We have experienced a child molester in the community. And, because of thoughtful parents, parents who know that they must teach their children the pitfalls of a world so confused that helter-skelter lives are common, the children warded off a candy buyer, ice cream offerer, and smooth talk artist.

Had the children this molester approached not have received the thoughtful training of wise parents, another crime might have been committed.

A $50 fine was the premium a child molester had to pay for his attempt to lure children away from their fun.

Another molester is attempting to pick up children on their way to school. Mothers and fathers must prepare their children to be on the alert and look-out for such a man. Tell your children to accept rides from no one except friends of the family.

Children, we know are venturesome, they want to find out for themselves some of the secrets of life. Early training at home, confidence in the child and confidence of the child in the parents is necessary to prevent much unhappiness.

We are in favor of a Parental Responsibility Law, one with teeth in it. Until such a law is accomplished, business in the juvenile court departments will flourish.

Hickory switches and pop's razor strap did much to curb juvenile delinquency, if that's what it is to be called. They are just as good now as they were five, ten, or even twenty years ago.

TODAY'S BIBLE VERSE

And now abideth faith, hope, charity; but the greatest of these is charity.—(1 Corinthians 13:13). It well may be that charity is the greatest because it alone of the three is outside of ourselves—outgoing, out-giving, of ourselves to others, flowing out from us to our fellowmen, in love and understanding, in sympathy and tolerance, in kindness and helpfulness, unselfishly.

World Disarmament Given Publicity

WASHINGTON (U)—The possibility of world disarmament has been given a lot of publicity since July's summit meeting when President Eisenhower made his sensational "open door" proposal. On its face, it may have seemed simple.

The President suggested the United States and Russia exchange complete blueprints on their military establishments. Then, as a check on each other's honesty, he proposed they agree to aerial inspection of each other from the air.

In spite of repeated optimistic statements about eventual agreement by Harold E. Stassen, the President's special disarmament adviser, the two sides are still far apart.

Any agreement on disarmament at the Big Four foreign ministers' meeting, which began yesterday in Geneva, has a splendid chance of getting nowhere. A look at the problem shows why.

For years the United States has said that before this country would agree to disarm—which would mean giving rid of the atomic weapons on which it had spent so much time and cash—there would have to be this kind of agreement: Before any disarmament the big powers must agree on a foolproof system of checking to prevent cheating. This country backed the idea of international teams of inspectors free to roam around inside the territory of the big powers.

The Russians wouldn't buy. They traditionally had refused to let outsiders poke around inside Russia. Then last May, no doubt as part of their so-called new look, they agreed to inspection but in a very limited way.

They suggested international inspectors be stationed only at air fields, railroads and harbors. That left a lot of territory unexplored. The United States wouldn't buy. Then in July at Geneva, Moscow however offered his suggested. After many weeks the Russians insisted they wanted Eisenhower to accept their idea of limited ground inspection.

Eisenhower replied in effect: "All right, if it'll make you happy, I'll agree on limited inspection. But I want you to agree on the aerial inspection too. How about it?"

So far—no answer from the Russians. But there is a point which the Russians certainly would want cleared up which this country hasn't cleared up at all. The President had spoken of aerial inspection only over each other's territory.

He didn't say anything about letting the Russians inspect American overseas bases inside countries friendly to this country. Yet it is from these bases the United States would let the Russians inspect if the Soviets tried to attack.

Joe Frisco, the stuttering comic, is not exactly a connoisseur of mint juleps. At a party preceding the Derby at Churchill Downs a few years ago, he slapped the Governor of Kentucky on the shoulder, and requested, "Hey, Buddy, slip me one of th-those d-d-drinks with the s-s-see-wood in it."

Cynthia pointed to her ma. "What did Daddy mean when he said I couldn't get married on account of my youth? I'll be 34 in May."

"I guess you missed his drift," explained Ma. "Your youth is the town playboy and besides he owes you father twenty dollars."

Profound thought from the Post-Punch Book: Some lady guests have reached the top because their wives won't let them stop. In fact, quite often, were it known, A wife's power behind the dress!

LAST YEAR'S BIRD'S NEST

HAL BOYLE

Golden Boy Of Writing Scene

NEW YORK (U)—Today's success story:

Tennessee Williams, who once wrote purely from hunger, has become one of the golden boys of the American writing scene.

He has been so successful that his friends have given him a new nickname: "Tennessee Millions."

At 41 the prolific author has turned out nine full-length plays, a volume of verse, two volumes of stories, and a collection of a dozen shorter plays called "Twenty-seven Wagonloads Full of Cotton."

He has completed for Paramount Pictures a film script of "The Rose Tattoo," starring Burt Lancaster and Anna Magnani—it is the third of his dramas he has adapted for the movies—and his "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" is a top Broadway hit.

Most successful people credit their rise to hard work. Williams feels that his own fame came, in large measure, from the revolt stirred in him by his discovery of poverty and what it did to people.

Born in the Episcopal rectory of his grandfather in Columbus, Miss., he moved at the age of 12 to St. Louis, where his father worked as a salesman for a shoe firm. The family lived in one of a row of ugly brick apartment buildings "the color of dried blood and mustard."

In the South the young writer had been unaware of any distinctions based on wealth. "But," he says, "we suddenly discovered there were two kinds of people. The rich and the poor of people. The rich and the poor, and that we belonged more to the latter."

"If I had been born in this situation I might not have resented it deeply. But it was forced upon my consciousness at the most sensitive age of childhood."

The shock resulted in a rebellion and a social consciousness which Williams feels still marks most of his writing. But the shock paid off well.

"I am glad that I received this bitter education," Williams once wrote, "for I don't think any writer has much purpose back of him unless he feels bitterly the inequities of the society he lives in."

How did he get his odd first name? He picked it out himself. As a boy he had published some lyric poetry which he later decided was pretty awful, under his birth name—Thomas Lanier Williams.

"I felt the name had been compromised," he says, "so I changed it to Tennessee Williams, the justification being mainly that the Williamses had fought the Indians for Tennessee and I had already discovered that the life of a young writer was going to be something similar to the defense of a stockade against a band of savages."

A depression product, it took Williams seven years to earn a college degree. Twice his health broke down in years during which he worked all day and wrote most

Children To Get Bicycles Because Of Brothers Faith

HUMBLE, TEX. (U)—Two little boys and their sister are getting shiny new bicycles and their baby sister a tricycle because one of them has faith in policemen.

They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brown — Jerry Wayne, 9; Charles, 12; Janet, 13; and Janie, 2.

Jerry Wayne read that the Roanoke, Va., police warehouse was stacked with unclaimed bikes. He wrote Detective Capt. Kermit E. Allman couldn't he please have one so big brother Charles could carry newspapers and add to the family income. He also told Allman about his sisters.

Illness prevents the father, a disabled veteran, from driving a truck more than part time. Mrs. Brown can't work. They live in a rural community near this south Texas town.

Mrs. Brown has been entering contests for years trying to win money for a bicycle. Jerry Wayne and Charles picked up bottles along the highway to get money for the postage.

Allman wrote Jerry Wayne that he was shipping not one unclaimed bicycle but three new ones and a tricycle for baby Janie this week. They are gifts of the Roanoke Fraternal Order of Police and others.

Allman said he still remembers how badly he wanted a bicycle that his parents were too poor to buy when he was a boy. He finally paid for one at 14 out of a $4-a-week newspaper route.

The night after the letter came, Mrs. Brown said her boy woke her several times to ask if he had been dreaming about it. She's having trouble getting him to go to school because he wants to be home when the bicycles arrive.

Jerry Wayne said he never had any doubts about hearing from Allman "because he's a policeman."

That's what he wrote Allman he wants to be when he grows up.

WE'RE becoming a nation of critics, says Dr. Thomas K. Cureton of the University of Illinois. Because we don't work hard enough. That's funny—the best has been saying something like that all along!

The doc says too many adults are overweight. In other words, he doesn't like the way we shape up.

Americans have a horror of physical exercise, he adds. Look, Doc, can we ponder that last statement of our beloved?

Dr. Cureton declares further that housewives should plan exercise for their families just as they plan meals. Now wait a minute!—we don't mind helping with the dishes, but not three times a day!

An Arizona biology teacher, in demonstrating how gametes should be handled, was bitten twice. Who faulted THAT test?

Some 12,000 tumbleweed roam the streets of New York City—photographs. But that count wasn't made on a rainy day!

Canadian cops investigating a disturbance in a home were greeted with a barrage of peaches—in jars. The canner, we understand, is now in the can.

Prices Continue Slow Rise

NEW YORK (U)—Prices continue their slow rise in many lines as manufacturers adjust to higher costs. But nowadays retail prices don't necessarily follow wholesale prices as they tended to a generation or so ago.

Price increases were announced this week in many fields—from newspaper to tin cans, from tires to corduroy, from plywood to prunes.

Consumers may feel some of this increase in the weeks ahead. The newspaper hike, for example, brought a quick prediction that the price of papers and of the ads in them may have to go up, too.

The rise in tin can prices will be felt by the canners preserving next year's foodstuffs. Whether they pass it along to the grocer, and he to you, will be determined then.

Most rubber companies have hiked the factory price of inner tubes and tube-type car and truck tires. For the average passenger car tire the price rise comes to 35 cents. Again, it will be the retail tire seller who must make the decision as far as the motorist is concerned.

As the new models of cars continue to make their debut, factory list price increases over last year are usually announced. They average around 5 per cent. But the dealer has the final say.

Predictions of further price increases shaping up come from several sectors.

But the Federal Reserve Board sees inflation pressures generally held in check. It reports: "Credit restraint in all major industrial nations, including the United States, has helped to maintain general price stability and so to moderate the swings in the value of world trade."

Finished goods that the merchants buy have changed little in price, as a whole, in the last three years.

But retail prices in the last year have tended to sag more often than to climb. The reason is competition in styling and quality has rounded as much with the public as has the competition in price.

Why, television, of course. Closed-circuit television.

Rather quietly, with a word here and a hint there, the closed-circuit TV age has suddenly descended upon us. What is closed circuit television? Don't bother with the technicalities. Just think of the TV camera as an extension of human vision, able to perceive and transmit to selected viewers miles away or in the next room scenes and information that cannot otherwise be readily seen.

"This is the point," says John R. Howland. "If I can see in the other room it's going to save me time or effort or money."

Howland is general sales manager of Dage Television Division, Thompson Products Inc., of Michigan City, Ind., a major producer and pioneer in closed-circuit TV. A year ago there were about 100 such installations in the country. Today there are about 1,500. By the end of 1956 there will be 5,000, says Howland.

Here are not just some of the of doing. Here are some actual accomplishments:

Department stores in certain cities have installed cameras which keep an unobtrusive eye on shoplifters. Banks are using the system to speed signature verification and customer balances between drive-in tellers' offices and centralized accounting divisions.

Churches are using it to televise service to overflow crowds, thus doing away with the need for two Sunday morning services.

Closed circuit TV is making enormous strides in higher education. It's used in lecture to huge classes, in teaching operating technique, and even to enlarge microscopically small objects in laboratory courses. At Penn State, for example, about 4,500 students are being taught in part with the aid of the method.

In hospitals closed-circuit TV keeps a watchful eye on baby areas, narcotics cabinet, and even back doors. It teaches operating techniques to nurses who cannot crowd into a sterile operating room. In certain hospital wings patients can be watched in case of a nurse shortage.

In a Reno gambling casino there's a camera installed in a chandelier to make sure that the proper money ends up in the proper pockets. The Potomac Railroad Yard in Alexandria, Va., saves thousands of dollars annually by using it to check boxcar numbers. . . Bay Meadows Race Track in San Francisco installed it over the perimutual windows so that late bettors could see the track.

How To Tell If Tonsils Need To Be Removed

By WILLIAM H. HARRIS, M.D.

UNTIL now there has been an urgent reason. It's probably best to wait until a child is at least three years old before having the tonsils removed. Six is an even better age.

Infected tonsils, though, may have to come out at any time, although tonsillectomies are rarely performed on tots under the age of two years.

General Symptoms
Generally, tonsils should be removed when:

The child has repeated attacks of sore throat due to tonsil infection.

The tonsils are so large they interfere with swallowing and breathing.

Continued fever, swollen neck glands or other disturbances can be traced to continued tonsil infection.

Other Infections
Infections in other parts of the body, such as ear, heart, joints and sinuses, follow an attack of tonsillitis.

Tonsils should not be taken out just because a child has frequent coughs or colds, has a poor appetite or fails to gain weight.

Continued gain in a child's shoulder or neck muscles may mean tonsils may be removed permanently by tonsillectomy. Frequently, temporary relief can be obtained by managing the tonsils.

Whether or not the condition runs in families has not as yet been definitely determined.

Kenneth Ramsey Wins UDC Essay Contest; Is Presented Award

By SANDRA BERG
Herald Society Editor

Confederate bells probably rang there are such bells, when the state convention was held recently for the United Daughters of the Confederacy in Daytona Beach. The Sanford group consisting of Mrs. E. H. Laney, district director for the UDC; Mrs. F. E. Roumillat, new president; Mrs. Dave Caldwell, Mrs. A. D. Wallace, Mrs. A. K. Rosenthal, and Mrs. L. A. Brumley, was especially proud of Kenneth Ramsey, 17 year old senior at Seminole High School, who was awarded the United Daughters of the Confederacy's statewide essay prize.

Kenneth's essay was on "The Facts About Major Henry Wirtz and Andersonville". During the essay he dwells on the fact that "Major Wirtz died as he had lived, honorably and bravely". He also brings out the point that the real story of his trial and facts behind it are known to few people. "On the surface it appeared that he had been guilty of the deaths of thousands of Northern prisoners," he says. "Actually the guilt of their deaths lies not with him, but largely with the North itself."

Mrs. F. E. Ratliff was president of the Norman De Vere Howard chapter during the time Kenneth entered the contest.

Mrs. Laney, District No. 3 chairman presented the award to him during a meeting held Friday in the home of Mrs. M. R. Strickland. He read the entire essay to the group which was greatly appreciated.

During the convention Mrs. Laney reported on the activities of the seven chapters in Central Florida over a two-year period.

Included in the district are The Norman De Vere Howard chapter, Sanford; Florence Collier chapter, Apopka; Daytona Beach chapter; Stonehill Jackson chapter, Deland; Confederate Gray chapter, Leesburg; Annie Coleman chapter, Orlando and the Jefferson Davis chapter, Orlando.

During the course of events Sanford's report to the state assembly stressed the local participation in Armed Forces Day and the observing of Gen. Robert E. Lee's birthday along with Southern Memorial Day.

Over 100 UDC's attended the convention held at the Daytona Plaza Hotel that warm summer weekend. They heard addresses by Dr. Gilbert Lyman, dean of Stetson University's historical department and Henry Coleman, president of the Commercial Bank in Daytona.

Another interesting fact is that Mrs. E. H. Laney, district director for the UDC; Mrs. F. E. Roumillat, new president; Mrs. Dave Caldwell, Mrs. A. D. Wallace, Mrs. A. K. Rosenthal, and Mrs. L. A. Brumley, was especially proud of Kenneth Ramsey, 17 year old senior at Seminole High School, who was awarded the United Daughters of the Confederacy's statewide essay prize.

Rev., Mrs. Miller Feted At Party Friday Evening

The Rev. and Mrs. John L. Miller were honored with a party Friday by Mrs. C. C. McManus at her home on S. Sanford Ave. They will leave soon for Hypoxia where they will make their home.

The Rev. Miller has been called as pastor of the church at Hypoxia which is sponsored by the First Baptist Church of West Palm Beach.

Games and contests in the keeping of the going away of the honored guests were played. Prize winners were Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Frank Woodruff Jr., Don Baron and Mr. Valentine.

A suggestion of Autumn was carried out in the decorations. Field flowers and fruit were used throughout the rooms.

The Rev. and Mrs. Miller were presented a wrought iron magazine rack and center piece accompanied by a memory book of hearts.

Each guest was given one heart on which a snap shot was pasted along with a good wish. Refreshments of pumpkin and mince pies and coffee were served.

Those invited were M. and Mrs. J. F. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reel, Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Brooks Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Roy Britt, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Flamm, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Dooley, Deland, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. Red, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. McCoy, Miss S. J. Nix, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sloan, Mrs. Frank Woodruff Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Otto Thomas, Mr. Bowden, and Forrest May.

During the Friday meeting, at which Mrs. J. H. Nicholson was co-hostess, the usual business was taken care of before reports were given. The session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Roumillat and the ritual was led by the chaplain Mrs. J. St. Clair White after which the pledge to the American flag and the salute to the Confederate flags were given.

The President-General's message was read by the secretary, Mrs. J. H. Nicholson and Mrs. R. P. Robinson was welcomed as a new member.

The state meeting reports were given by Mrs. J. M. Hayes, Mrs. D. D. Caldwell, Mrs. L. A. Brumley, Mrs. J. M. McCaskill and Mrs. Roumillat.

A social meeting was held on a refreshment course served. Members present were Mrs. C. P. Herndon, Mrs. B. L. Perkins, Mrs. W. R. Ryan, Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. L. A. Brumley, Mrs. McCaskill, Mrs. Watson Wallace, Mrs. Z. B. Ratliff, Mrs. Roumillat, Mrs. St. Clair White, Mrs. W. B. Fields, Mrs. Laney, Mrs. Nicholson, Mrs. Strickland, and Mrs. G. D. Bishop.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. William Wray, Mrs. W. B. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Milne and Kenneth Ramsey.

During the convention Mrs. Laney reported on the activities of the seven chapters in Central Florida over a two-year period.

Included in the district are The Norman De Vere Howard chapter, Sanford; Florence Collier chapter, Apopka; Daytona Beach chapter; Stonehill Jackson chapter, Deland; Confederate Gray chapter, Leesburg; Annie Coleman chapter, Orlando and the Jefferson Davis chapter, Orlando.

Garden Nook

By SADIE R. GUT
The Sanford Garden Club of F.F.A.C.

Early November being a good time to get many fall chores out of the way ahead of the holiday rush, the following reminders should prove helpful.

One of the first jobs is the lawn, which should receive its fall application of 4-7-5, 6-6-6, 5-5-7 or whatever, if not already done. However, if you are troubled with lawn pests requiring treatment with D.D.T., Dieldrin, chlordane, Cold Smoke etc., attend to this first, under the advice of an expert, such as your dealer, or county agent.

Winter rye is wonderful for giving a temporary green lawn during the cold months, if you are prepared to follow a continuous program of fertilizing, watering and cutting all season long. The seed may be sprinkled lightly over established grass or more heavily on new home grounds that have first been ready with humus or peat dug into the upper six inches.

Blossoms will respond well with a good crop of fall bloom if given balanced fertilizer at this time. A good rose dust will keep black spot and aphids in check. For new roses choose a spot away from large trees or shrubs and with at least four hours of sunshine per day. Spade deeply into the soil plenty of peat or other humus, a balanced fertilizer, or bone meal and sharp prunings, and allow to mellow until planting time.

If citrus and other fruiting or flowering trees have not been fertilized yet, do it now. A regular citrus formula containing the minor elements is best. Frost susceptible shrubs such as camellias and hibiscus should have a fertilizer high in potash and low in nitrogen. Keep these plants well watered as an added protection.

Camellias, gardenias, azaleas and other scale or white fly infested plants, excepting citrus should be sprayed right away with an oil emulsion such as Florida Volex. Safe temperatures for this treatment are between 45 and 60 degrees, so do not delay, and do cover all the under surfaces of the leaves.

Dasillies and amaryllis may be dug and replanted this month, if crowded, putting peat and fertilizer in their holes. The former may be pruned severely to an 8 bottom but do not disturb the amaryllis roots as little as possible.

The dainty Camellia sasanqua is blooming now, also the earlier varieties of Camellia japonica, making it a good time to select some of these beauties for your garden.

Brush away all crumbs when you are ready to frost a layer cake. Then place one cake layer upside down on your serving plate. Spread the layer with the filling or frosting and let stand until set. Place the second cake layer right side up on top of the filling. Now frost the side and top of the cake, using a spatula. Don't flatten the frosting; swirl swirls in the frosting make the cake look pretty.

Beat an egg, a cup of milk and a couple of tablespoons of molasses together; serve to small fry for a mid-morning or mid-afternoon snack.

Helpful Hints To Stop Noise

Modern homes today face a much greater noise problem than homes of twenty years ago. This is due to the increased use of highly sound reflective materials which bounce noise back into the room and to the use of more mechanical appliances and lighter, modern furniture which does not absorb much sound. Bugs on the floor, heavy draperies, stuffed furniture, and use of acoustical material on the ceiling will help cut down noise in the home.

If you are having a house party, here's a tip: Don't try to get too many people into one room. The noise climate of a room is in direct proportion to the number of people in it. Sound is a physical thing that travels in waves at the rate of 1,120 feet per second. Like light hitting a mirror, sound waves bounce back and forth from smooth surfaces, such as windows, walls and ceilings.

Too many people in one room, especially at a party, create confused sound pattern that is annoying and fatiguing.

If your home is noisy, here are a few hints on how to reduce the din! See that all mechanical equipment such as refrigerators, dishwashers, mixers, furnaces, etc., are in good repair.

Use rubber casters on chairs and tables; line drawers with resilient materials and use rubber on plastic dish drain racks.

Use door stops and mechanical door closers to keep doors from slamming.

Use rugs and pads on the floors, drapes on the windows and upholstered furniture which all will absorb unwanted noise.

Place rubber pads or resilient materials under vibrating equipment, such as a fan.

Use acoustical materials on ceilings of kitchens, dining rooms, bedrooms and other rooms where quiet is desired.

Trees, shrubbery and tight fences will shut off some street noise if planted around the house.

Stop making noise YOURSELF!

Is Show Business In Love With Self?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Observation: "Isn't it about time show business stopped being in love with itself?"

This viewer was struck with that thought when viewing the NBC color spectacular, "Show Business." It was possible entertainment, but how many caveats of the show world can the public take?

The same reaction was evoked by the Judy Garland spectacular. Two many stars have been stricken by the disease of reminiscing about entertainment. What they should do is entertain, not talk about it.

The classic examples are the oldtimers who refuse to quit. Pershaps they are still great performers. But you can't tell, because they keep talking about how they wowed 'em at the Palace, rolled 'em in the isles, amazed 'em in Duquesne.

So what? Can they still entertain this generation? That is the question.

It's not just the trouper trouper who go on for his routine. The younger stars have been afflicted, too. Take Judy Garland. She is a wonderful singer. But on her TV show, the emcee, singers and dancers gave her such a buildup that you expected a combination of Sarah Bernhardt and Queen Elizabeth to come on stage. There was bound to be a let down.

Sammy Davis Jr. is another example. He is a great talent. "He is the most extraordinary performer I've ever seen. He can sing better than Jolson and dance better than Astaire, and he's a great mimic. He can even imitate me, and that's about as low as you can go."

All Davis has to do is display his amazing talents. But he spends too much time on night club floors describing his early years and eulogizing his dad and uncle, "who taught me everything I know."

So please, performers, no more medleys starting with a routine chorus of "There's No Business Like Show Business." Just show us what you can do.

Princess Margaret

came expressions of admiration and praise for the 25-year-old Margaret's decision, in which she said: "Mindful of the church's teaching that Christian marriage is indissoluble and conscious of my duty to the commonwealth, I have resolved to put these considerations before any others."
There was some anger here at what was felt to be the tyranny of tradition and convention that forced Margaret to give up marriage because of the religious views of one segment of the population. Some newspapers predicted the commonwealth and the Church of England — the established church — would be more hurt than helped by her renunciation.
"There are women who only love once," said Sir Beverly Baxter, a Canadian-born member of Parliament who knows the Princess. "I have a haunting feeling that Princess Margaret is one of them."
He gave his views in an Evening Standard article entitled "Margaret's Sacrifice."

Seminole County Schools will close for the event which will be held Nov. 30 at 2:30 p. m. Floats entered in the parade by schools will be judged separately and trophies awarded the winners.
Hunt, in his letter to the merchants, said, "To make this, your 365th Christmas Parade, the most successful held, we heartily urge your full support and cooperation. Let's bring good will, cheer and a real spirit of Christmas to our wonderful town."

Russell Tongay

not agreed that Tongay should be required to post a $10,000 bond to assure his return after medical treatment.
However, Gov. Collins said he should not be denied proper medical care if it is financially impossible for him to put up a bond.
Cheney was instructed to work out recommendations to govern Tongay's release and return to the hospital and consult with Tongay's lawyer, Wayne Ripley of Jacksonville.
The cabinet scheduled a special meeting for Friday to formalize the release.
Tongay is suffering from an ailment for which he cannot be treated at the prison.
He was convicted of manslaughter for having directed his daughter to dive from a 33-foot springboard at a Miami Beach pool. She suffered fatal injuries in the dive.

Mrs. Tillis, who beamed with pride and bore a broad smile throughout the presentation of gifts and the praises from officers, said, "I want to thank the Sanford Police Department, Chief Roy Williams, and the city, for the wonderful cooperation through these years."

Rankin Has Big Job In Formosa
TAIPEI, Formosa, (U. S. —) When Karl L. Rankin was in college one would hardly have guessed that some day he would be U.S. ambassador to the Republic of China.
Rankin was educated as an engineer, a career he had wanted to follow from boyhood. He studied engineering at California Institute of Technology, Federal Polytechnic in Zurich and Princeton.
By the time he was 23, Rankin had turned to the foreign service, but in many respects the engineer's training has continued to serve him well. For with the State Department he has again found delicate problems in which a single false calculation might cause great harm.
This is particularly true of his present assignment.
Rankin has been America's top representative on this nervous island during a period of almost continuous crisis in the Far East. His appraisals have helped to shape U.S. policy in the face of repeated threats by Communist China to invade Formosa and other offshore islands.
And during his tenure on Formosa there have often been sharp differences between the objectives of the State Department and those of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. In the face of all these difficulties, Rankin has retained a relationship with Chiang Kai-Shek perhaps more cordial than those between Rankin's first assignment was as assistant trade commissioner at Prague. He was later assigned to Athens, Brussels and Luxembourg, and was serving at Brussels when Nazi Germany ordered the American legation there closed. Rankin was then assigned to Cairo, but it took him two years to get there.

In 1941, while on a roundabout voyage to Egypt with his wife, Rankin was caught at Manila by Japan's entry into World War II. Interned for 21 months he was finally freed and proceeded on to Cairo, arriving in 1944.
The future ambassador was consular general at Canton prior to being assigned to Taipei in 1931. In the meantime, the American ambassador to China, Dr. J. Leighton Stuart, had quit the mainland and returned to Washington. Something of a we-want-Rankin movement developed on Taipei as speculation arose as to Stuart's successor, and the subsequent appointment was greeted here with unqualified satisfaction.
Part of Rankin's popularity here is due to his often-spoken opposition to all forms of communism. But he also has a reputation as a forceful yet genial administrator who preserves a strong sense of humor while adhering to protocol.
The tall, graying ambassador is liked by both Chinese and American members of the embassy staff. A senior American employee said simply, "I could never expect to work under a better boss."

Country Living Means Relaxation

GETTYSBURG, Pa., (U. S. —) Country living generally means relaxed living, plenty of privacy and freedom of movement.
And living on a 400-acre farm should give one plenty of all three unless you're the President of the United States.
Even though the President will be recuperating here from his heart attack last month, the problems of privacy and freedom of movement will be big ones at his sprawling, rolling farm on the edge of Gettysburg's famous Civil War battlefield.
Trying to help, however, are Gettysburg Battlefield Park authorities and the Civil Aeronautics Administration—with an understanding assist from residents of this historic town and surrounding farm countryside.
First step toward assuring the President's privacy came when park authorities offered to close in all battlefield tourists one of the half dozen observation towers which dot the battlefield.
This particular tower is along

Confederate Avenue, about a half mile from Eisenhower's front door. It reaches up and over a wooded section which separates the farm from the battlefield. A tourist, even with the naked eye, can see what's going on at the farm. And, with the aid of even medium powered glasses or binoculars, he can tell what color dress Mrs. Eisenhower is wearing.
The secret service didn't want to cause any inconvenience to tourists but they reportedly were concerned when they took a good look at the situation and realized a crackpot with a high-powered rifle, equipped with a telescope lens, could endanger the President or members of his family. So it was decided to close the tower when the President stays at the farm. Later this was modified and, during Eisenhower's visit here, the tower will be open—but under surveillance.
Meanwhile, while the CAA has not posted the area as a section over which aircraft may not fly, it has issued a memorandum in which it notes "that air traffic in the immediate vicinity of the Eisenhower farm has steadily increased and is unnecessarily low altitudes." Much of this traffic, it pointed out, was from local planes apparently hired by tourists who want an aerial look at the farm.
As a result, the CAA has asked the cooperation of airport operators and pilots in the vicinity to avoid sightseeing trips.
The usual regulations calling for flight of 1,000 feet above the highest obstruction still hold and there's no action taken against pilots flying over the farm on regular trips and for those who don't realize that the farm is owned by the President of the United States.

Traffic on regular public roads around the farm continues as usual—and that's the way President Eisenhower reportedly wants it. His house is reached by a long lane off Waterworks Road but the entrance now is blocked by a heavy gate and a sentry box, occupied by secret service personnel when he's at the farm.
Meanwhile, work on putting the farm in top operating shape continues. When President Eisenhower purchased the farm it comprised 185 acres in not-too-good shape. Today his holdings total nearly 400 acres and with the enlarged house, remodeled barn, improved lands, addition of a farm pond, it is an A-1 farm according to strict Pennsylvania Dutch standards.
Strip farming, grass waterways and other methods are being followed to put the fields in top condition.
The old farmhouse, owned by Simon Redding, was torn down except for one section at the end. To this portion were built two more sections with all modern conveniences, including air conditioning. The house today bears little resemblance to the modest 180-year-old red brick farmhouse the President purchased in November 1950.

A. Woodward

estate had been plagued by unauthorized visitors.
A 22-year-old German refugee, identified by authorities as Paul W. Wirths of Floral Park, was picked up and allegedly admitted he was prowling the Woodward estate over the weekend.
He also was quoted as saying he broke a window a day or two earlier.
Wirths, who has a burglary record, had been sought for questioning in the Woodcase as well as in connection with a series of break-ins in the vicinity of the Oyster Bay home of the Woodwards.
A policeman spotted him early today in Huntington, about 10 miles from Oyster Bay. In his car officers said, was a shotgun stolen Oct. 22 in another Long Island community.
Wirths was turned over to Nassau County authorities for questioning about the Woodward case.
Dist. Atty. Frank Gulitita did not immediately make public plans for his activities today and could not be located by newsmen.
He had taken a new statement from Mrs. Woodward at Doctors Hospital here last night.
Propped up in bed, the attractive blonde gave details of the events leading up to the shooting. However, she broke down when she reached the actual shooting and questioning was broken off after her statement that it was a noise, rather than anything she saw, which caused her to fire Sunday morning.

Vandalism

Phil Haire, was damaged extensively when a bolt or rocks were thrown through a rear window striking a water faucet causing water to run through the night.
Other reports said that coin boxes were torn off machines, windows were broken, traffic was blocked as automobiles were pushed into the street to block oncoming cars, screen doors were pulled off, were just a few of the acts of vandalism caused during the evening.
The farm building at Seminole High School was entered but no immediate report of damage was made. However, it is known that the youngsters left the building once to drive cars around the high school football practice field and then return to take up their frolic.
Mother's accompanying youngsters for their Halloween calls, said that there were more parents out with their children than ever before. However, they reported no vandalism and no roadblocks in the groups of smaller youngsters as they visited homes of friends and strangers in their neighborhood.

DRIVING RANGE HELPED
NEW YORK (U. S. —) Doug Ford, who has earned more than $22,000 in golf prize money this year, says in his book "Start Golf Young," that he got his chance because of his father's driving range near Van Cortlandt Park. Ford says: "When I moved to an indoor range I went over whenever I had the chance. It was there that I found out what a pleasure golf is—found on a big city driving range."

Nominating Group Submits Choice Of New Officers

DEBARY — Plantation Estates Property Owners Association met Tuesday night at the Mansion House. Those bringing chairs were fortunate for the two assembly rooms were crowded three quarters of an hour before opening time at 8 p. m.

Ralph Witherell, president, opened the meeting with the Lord's prayer. Propositive and new members' names were reported; 25 of whom promptly paid their January dues, bringing the membership to 516. Quorums were made for a volunteer for another deputy sheriff and discussion of sharing the bond payment for Dave MacFarlane, who officials alone at present.

The nominating committee, Charles E. Fraser chairman, Mrs. Arthur Lambert, Carl O. Lind and Gaston E. Crosby submitted their choice of proposed new officers: Sergeant at Arms, Stanley S. Stroud; Secretary, Mrs. Wallace F. Gabler, treasurer, Charles Fraser and President, E. M. Jewell. By unanimous vote these names were adopted for voting in the December meeting.

A covered dish dinner was announced for Nov. 15 at the Mansion House. The report on zoning as given by Everett Swift at a recent meeting of property owners was approved and the association adjourned.

15-Year-Old Boy Missing From Home

A 15-year-old boy is missing from his home after leaving classes at Seminole High School yesterday morning at approximately 10 o'clock.

Mickey Carter, 15, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing 150 pounds did not return to his home yesterday after leaving the school after the first class of the day.

The boy's father, F. H. Carter, a Shore Patrol Chief in the Navy here, reported that his son, when last seen, was wearing a plaid shirt, a brown suede jacket, levis, and black oxfords.

In describing his son, Carter said that he had light brown, curly hair.

The report, made to the Sanford Police Department, has been transmitted to all law enforcement agencies.

POLIO CASES DROP
JACKSONVILLE (AP)—Florida's 1935 polio total reached 430 through Oct. 28 compared to 1,549 for the corresponding period last year, the State Board of Health says.

There were four new cases reported for the week ending Oct. 28. Three were in Dade County: A woman, 43, nonparalytic; a 6-year-old boy, unspecified; and an 18-year-old girl, paralytic. None had received antipolio vaccine. The other case was in Duval, a 9-year-old girl, type unspecified.

The fourth accident within a two-month period, in a 200 yard stretch of highway in the city limits of Sanford, occurred this morning shortly after 6 o'clock.

The accident, on Seminole Boulevard, just east of Mangrove Ave., was reported at 5:53 a. m. this morning.

A 1933 Ford sedan, driven east on Seminole Boulevard, was declared a total loss by the investigating patrolmen, W. R. Cosgrain and J. W. Rumbley, of the Sanford Police Department.

Eugene Williamson, driver of the car, was taken to the local hospital by Brison's ambulance. It is reported that the accident victim received a broken jaw, broken shoulder, broken ribs, and possible internal injuries. Being thrown from his car, and coming to a stop at least 20 feet from the automobile, the 24-year-old driver sustained bruises and lacerations in addition to his injuries.

The Sanford filling station operator, whose address is given as 508 West 7th St., lost control of his car just east of Mangrove Ave., and traveled a distance of 225 feet before coming to a stop parallel with the Lakeview Hotel building. The Sanford Police Department report states that the car turned over five or six times as it rolled out of control. The estimated speed of the car at the time of the accident, according to the report filed at the Sanford Police Department, was 50 miles per hour.

Injuries were reported in all four accidents which have occurred at this particular location of the highway. One of the accident victims died later, and all cars involved in accidents at this location have been declared a total loss.

Charges have not been made in this morning's accident and will be withheld pending release from the hospital of the driver.

Meriwether Smith Faces Life Prison Term For Staying

DELAND — Meriwether Smith, 31-year-old part time preacher and grading contractor, faces a life prison term for the strangulation slaying of his wife Zona.

A Circuit Court jury convicted Smith of first degree murder yesterday with a recommendation for mercy. Under Florida law, the verdict carries a mandatory life sentence.

Circuit Judge George W. Jackson deferred sentence.

Smith, who told a coroner's jury he found his wife dead after he struggled with intruders at their farm home near Osteen the night of July 28, did not take the stand. Samuel Smith, 18-year-old son of the couple, said he did not see how the jury could have brought in any other verdict. He testified Monday he believed "my father murdered her." He said he was awakened by his father attacking him but escaped.

Many County Firms Subject To Law Effective Jan. 1

Many Seminole County firms now covered by the Unemployment Compensation Law are being sent forms by the Florida Industrial Commission for determining their status under changes in the law, reports J. F. Spellman, Principal Field Deputy for this area.

Most firms with as few as four or more workers will become subject to the law and a three percent charge against their payrolls, effective Jan. 1, 1936. Spellman said. Those with eight or more workers are presently covered. The Federal Congress made (Continued On Page Twelve)

Building Permit Requested By Men

Jack Siegel and Robert Wasdon are the co-owners reported in the partnership requesting a construction permit for a new radio station for Sanford.

The two men, doing business as the Sanford Broadcasting Company, have applied to the Federal Communications Commission for a new AM station at 1270 Ke, with a power of 500 watts, and for day time operation only.

The two men give their address as P. O. Box 101, Moonlit Ave., Portsmouth, Va.

Christian Church Works On Additions As Adopted Goal

The First Christian Church, along with sister churches over the state, is putting forth evangelistic efforts that will come to a climax on Dec. 31, which has been designated as Decision Day. The adopted goal is 31 additions to the congregation by that time. Fifty-odd members have vowed to pray daily for the attainment of the goal. There have been 15 additions already. Last week friendly calls on prospective members were made by teams of men and women. Tonight at 6:30 church board members and their spouses, and other couples, will have a pot-luck supper at the church and then go calling on prospects. Mrs. O. T. Pearson and Mrs. John Dietz will have charge of the supper arrangements.

Pastor Perry L. Stone is teaching a class of boys and girls in preparation for church membership. The class will come to a close on Dec. 31.

A refurbishing job on the exterior of the brick sanctuary has been completed at a cost of $400.00. Two coats of paint have been applied to the woodwork, windows have been puttied and repaired. Bad screens have been replaced. The church parking lot has been improved. (Continued On Page Twelve)

Sanford Man Charged With Criminal Attack

City Manager Says No Local Official Will Attend Confab

The Senate Subcommittee to investigate Juvenile Delinquency continues its investigation of interstate adoption practices during hearings scheduled for Miami on Nov. 14 and 15.

However, City Manager Warren E. Knowles said that it would be impossible for city officials to attend the sessions since the annual meeting of the Florida League of Municipalities will be held at the same time.

Knowles said that the Florida is to be held in Jacksonville and League of Municipalities meeting that the annual event is attended by the City Manager, the Mayor, and the City Attorney.

At a separate hearing on Nov. 16, mayors from a number of Florida cities will testify on local projects designed to curb juvenile delinquency. Already scheduled to appear are: Mayors Abe Aronovitz, Miami; Paul Bundy, representing Mayor Peter G. Reynolds, Ft. Lauderdale; Raymond W. Greene, Winter Park; Ben H. Hopkins Jr., Sarasota; Samuel G. Johnson, St. Petersburg; S. Scott Kelly, Lakeland; C. P. Mason, Pensacola; Francis W. Morrison, Daytona Beach; Ray A. Patgett, Ft. Pierce.

Commenting on the interstate adoption practices hearing, Senator Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), chairman of the Subcommittee said:

"Our preliminary investigations reveal that a growing number of young, unmarried mothers (eighty percent of the unmarried mothers are under 19 years of age) it is properly a subject of study of our Subcommittee.

"In the past ten years there has been a tremendous increase in the demand of children for adoption. (Continued On Page Twelve)

Oviedo Customers To Be Given New Series Of Numbers

A new series of telephone numbers will be assigned to Oviedo customers when the work on the new central office here is completed.

This was a reminder issued this week by Gordon J. Rothermel, Deland Group Manager for the Southern Bell Telephone Company, week by Gordon J. Rothermel, Deland Group Manager.

The changeover is set for 2 a. m., Dec. 26.

Rothermel said that nearly 375 telephones in the Oviedo area would have the prefix "F0rest 5", plus four numerals. F0rest 5-1234, for example. Telephone users will dial F-0-3-1-2-3-4 on local calls.

Reason for the change is for greater speed and accuracy in the handling of long distance calls.

A new directory will be issued with the new numbers included. This new book should not be used until after the change has taken place, Rothermel cautioned.

Daughter Reports Father Is Missing

An 84-year-old negro man has been missing from his home since Sunday, according to a report received at the Sanford Police Department.

James Thomas, whose home is reported as 855 E. 8th Street, in Sanford, when last seen, was wearing a brown shirt, brown trousers, brown hat, and a black leather jacket.

Members of the Sanford Police Department have searched all areas in which Thomas might have been located. Someone, they say, however, reports that Thomas "might be" in New Smyrna Beach.

The report of the missing negro was made to the Sanford Police Department by the aged negro's daughter, Lucy Thomas.

Jones Picked Out Of Lineup By Nurse

A 35-year-old Sanford negro has been charged with the criminal attack of a 27-year-old Orlando nurse on Oct. 6 as she returned home from work along a lonely road two miles south of Longwood.

The warrant, signed by Seminole County Judge Ernest Housholder, and served on the negro by Deputy Sheriff Morgan McClellan, read: "Fletcher Jones did ravish and carnally know a female of the age of 10 years or more, by force and against her will."

Sheriff Luther Hobby said that the car owned and driven by Fletcher Jones was identified by the nurse and the negro was identified by the criminally attacked white woman in a lineup. She definitely and positively pointed to the large negro, Fletcher Jones, as the negro who attacked her on the lonely Seminole County Road.

Jones, who said he was born in Sanford in 1917, and has lived in Sanford all of his life with the exception of a three year period, 1942 to 1945 when he was in the Navy, was apparently shaken by the charge.

The negro said, following the serving of the warrant, "I don't know anything about this lady."

As if scared, he exclaimed, "I haven't seen this lady but one time and that's right there in that room." He looked at Deputy Sheriff McClellan and Sheriff Hobby and said, "I don't know a thing in the world about that white lady." Asked if he had anything else to say, he told the Deputy Sheriff, "I don't know nothing." And speaking to Sheriff Hobby he said, "Mr. Hobby, I am an innocent man."

Sheriff Hobby and Deputy Sheriff McClellan said that a thorough and complete investigation of the charges against the Sanford negro was made before charges were preferred against him. The negro has been allegedly employed by a fish concern in Sanford.

The Seminole County Sheriff said that the negro is being held in an undisclosed location, without bond.

For nearly a month the investigation has been going on, to thoroughly establish the facts in the case, Sheriff Hobby said, following the serving of the warrant on Fletcher Jones.

Jones, a towering, large negro, appeared disturbed when the charges were made known against him.

Sheriff Hobby, when asked about charged trouble, said, "I don't expect trouble from no one, but to prevent any disturbance at all, we are not disclosing the location of the prisoner."

Following reports from the various members selling tickets for the two-performance circus, the members will settle back to see the "Jaycee Story."

The film on loan to the Jaycee organization from the film library at the national Jaycee headquarters in Tulsa, Okla. is to be shown here for the first time. It is reported that the "Jaycee Story" is an outstanding account of the work accomplished in the communities where the young men's organization is represented.

They will checkup on their ticket sales for the gigantic circus that will be seen in Sanford with two performances Friday.

An unidentified group of seven members quickly indicated it plans to bid for the club's purchase.

K. E. Haddock, a Richmond city spokesman who acted as the group spokesman said it would be "premature at this time" to identify the men involved.

The order seizing the club was directed at Consolidated Enterprises, Inc. headed by Harry C. Seibold, included in the seizure were contracts of 18 players, uniforms, bats, balls, a scoreboard, catchers' mask, shin guards, a lime spreader and a whirlpool bath.

The Richmond Virginians have been in Sanford for their spring training each year that the team has been fielded.
