Recall committee meets Tuesday

LONGWOOD—The Longwood Recall Committee is scheduled to meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the community building at 194 Wilma Ave. and each Tuesday through June. According to committee member Carol Odom the group will be getting organized for the second petition drive in their effort to unseat Mayor David Gunter and Deputy Mayor Lynette Dennis from their seats on the commission.

The recall group turned in petitions bearing more than the required 420 signatures on Monday. If enough signatures are validated by the Seminole County Supervisor of Elections Sandra Guard, the committee will then have to obtain signatures of 15 percent of the registered voters (630) on petitions with defensive statements by Gunter and Dennis attached in order to force a recall election.

The committee meetings are open to the public.

Clergy lunches in local lockup

SANFORD—Between 40 and 45 area ministers will be in the Seminole County Jail Monday, but only to visit. As guests of correctional officials and Seminole County jail chaplain Charles "Chuck" Pittroff of Good News Jail and Prison Ministries, they have been invited for a noon lunch and a tour of the new facilities.

In addition to the pastors, members of the President's Council, the local Good News advisory board, will attend. The council is headed by the Rev. Freddie Smith, pastor of Central Baptist Church, Sanford, and is made up of business and professional persons from the community as well as clergymen.

Length of skirts debated by board

SANFORD—The Seminole County Board of Education decided to let individual building principals determine the length of skirts or shorts to be allowed in their buildings.

In the board's annual update of its dress code, it decided fashions are too changeable to set a specific length requirement for the entire district. See story on Page 2A.

NAACP asks for investigation of Ball

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD—In the wake of a remark with racial overtones made by Sanford Housing Authority Board Commissioner Bob Ball and charges of money misuse, the NAACP will call for a full investigation into the matter at Monday night's city commission meeting.

Ball told a Herald reporter in a May 18 article there would never be an investigation into the housing authority "as long as blacks are in charge out there."

Turner Clayton, Seminole County president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) told the Herald today that he plans to put the matter of an investigation into the alleged misuse of funds on Monday's agenda.

"We will ask the city commission to conduct a full investigation," said Clayton. "First of all, we feel Mr. Ball's statement was full of racial overtones. Second, if he does not return the money, we feel it is an act of theft."

Ball said Thursday he has no plans to resign from the housing authority board. "A lot of people I know have called me and encouraged me to hang in there and not let the blacks win out again."

In addition, Clayton said the NAACP will also ask the city commission for an investigation into unprofessional behavior charges levied against board commissioner Terri Buratt.

Alexander Wynn, III, chairman of the housing authority board, formally reported Ball to the Florida Commission on Ethics two weeks ago for failing to return $203.75 to the commission for unused expenses during two trips made last year, for which he received advance payments.

Wynn also reported, in a letter to the mayor and city commissioners, charges of unprofessional behavior against Buratt, alleging she told a housing authority employee, "I am going to kick your ass."

Both Ball and Buratt deny any wrongdoing.

"I really wasn't surprised by what he (Ball) said," said Wynn of Ball's May 18 comment to the Herald. "That is part of what I've been telling the mayor and the city commission all along. We've got a lot of feedback about it and people are upset, especially in the black setting of the project."

"A lot of people who called thought it was a slap in the face. When you say 'blacks' that covers a lot of people."

1960s revisited

Lake Mary High School U.S. history students were asked to dress in clothing they thought was representative of the 1960s Wednesday for a historical overview of that decade. The latter part of the decade obviously has made the deepest impression on today's students, who mostly dressed as anti-war protesters and "flower children."

1,700-mile bike ride planned

SANFORD—Four men, including three city residents, will make a 1,700-mile bicycle ride from Maine to Florida next month to help raise money for the American Heart Association.

The four will leave Sanford, Maine, June 11 and hope to arrive in Sanford, Fla. by June 19.

"We just want to show how easy physical fitness can be," said Dr. James Quinn, who has a family practice in Sanford. "We are just average people. People can do something each day to prevent heart disease."

Quinn, 37, along with John Lommerse, 23, Jim Clark, 43, both of Sanford, and Tom Clark, 33, of Manhattan, N.Y., will travel approximately 1,700 miles depending on the weather and the routes taken.

"We should be back in Sanford (Fla.) by the 19th," said Quinn, who is vice president of the American Heart Association

Seminole County unit and president-elect.

The four will fly to Maine with their bikes and then leave on June 11, Sanford, Maine, with a population of over 18,000 is See RIDE, page 14A

Lake Mary commission approves moratoriums

By Joyce Herald
UCF Intern

LAKE MARY—Lake Mary City Commissioners voted to adopt a six-month moratorium on the construction, maintenance or repair of off-premise advertising signs Thursday night, and passed the first reading of a moratorium on construction within the 104-foot setback along Lake Mary Boulevard.

The six-month billboard ban was unanimously approved despite opposition from a local billboard promoter.

During a 45-minute discussion on the issue, Marcos Marchena, an attorney for Peterson Outdoor Advertising, Inc., expressed his client's concern about banning the form of advertisement.

"We don't mind being regulated...but don't take the steps to destroy the industry. We're really not the ogres that we may at times appear to be—or that we may be painted as at times."

Commissioner Tom Mahoney stressed that the moratorium is designed as a "pause" to give the board time to study the issue of billboards and off-site advertising.

Off-site advertising signs are those that advertise a service or product available somewhere other than where it is advertised.

"I don't know if we are going to ban billboards or if we're going to leave the ordinance completely unchanged. The point is we're going to talk about

One holdout on impact fee agreement

By J. Mark Barfield
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD—Although the proposed road impact fee interlocal agreement between the county and cities satisfies other city representatives, Winter Springs council president Leanne Grove said Wednesday the document fails to assure cities will retain significant control over where road dollars are spent.

If Winter Springs or any city falls to sign the agreement, county officials say the entire $200 million, 20-year road-building program could be in jeopardy or could be delayed.

Grove said an agreement could be reached. "It's close, but we'd like to see more," Grove said following a meeting of city and county officials.

When asked if the agreement failed to meet Winter Springs concerns which led to a lawsuit against the county over the imposition of mandatory county-wide collection of impact fees,

Grove answered "Yes, I guess that would be the bottom line."

Fred Streetman, Seminole County commission chairman, remained confident an agreement will be reached that will satisfy all seven cities and the county.

"I'm optimistic Winter Springs officials will see they have a vital role in the county-wide program," Streetman said.

Winter Springs, Sanford and Casselberry filed suits against the county last year when the county sought to collect impact fees from cities and unincorporated areas for a county-wide road-building program. Although the other four cities in the county agreed to participate in the program, the three cities said they shouldn't be forced to collect the fees for the county.

In March, a Seminole circuit judge decided cities could not be required to collect the fees for the county if they didn't want to.

Grove said Winter Springs doesn't approve of the county's plan to have the agreement entered as a possible settlement to the lawsuit, and said the judge's decision should stand to allow cities to choose whether to participate in county-wide programs.

Grove said the agreement does not give the cities enough control over how road dollars will be spent. The agreement proposal establishes a city-county committee to decide which roads need to be improved and when.

Sanford teacher accused of molesting girls

SANFORD—A Goldsboro Elementary teacher is being held in Seminole County Jail charged with eight counts of lewd and lascivious acts upon a child.

Albert L. McGoldrick, 53, 1999 Geneva Drive, Geneva, was arrested by Sanford police Thursday afternoon after being brought to the police station for questioning. He is being held in lieu of $2,000 bond and was scheduled to appear before a judge this afternoon.

The age of the children, all girls, was from nine to 11 years old and the acts occurred between October 1987 and May 1988, according to Police Chief Steven Harriett. All the acts occurred at Goldsboro School, according to the arrest report.

McGoldrick has been employed as a reading and math teacher at Goldsboro Elementary School since Oct. 15, 1987, according to school principal Lorraine Oiler.

Oiler said she has asked Seminole County School Superintendent Bob Hughes to suspend McGoldrick pending the outcome of the charges.

Harriett said that police officer James McAuliffe, working with state Health and Rehabilitation Services (HRS) officials, conducted the three-day investigation. The investigation was initiated by the parents of one of the children, Harriett said.

County officials react to Eckstein comments

SANFORD—County officials reacted strongly to comments Thursday by Sanford Commissioner Herbert "Whitey" Eckstein, who said a "high ranking" non-elected county official told him last week the county would resist city efforts to have the county grant a special zoning exception for a wastewater sprayfield on a 2,200-acre site near Geneva, also proposed for a federal prison.

"That's utterly unthinkable that anyone in the county would say that," said County Administrator Ken Hooper.

Hooper, Tony Vanderworp, county planning director, and Herb Hardin, manager of the county land management office, denied making the comments to Eckstein, who refused to name the source. Eckstein said the official told him the county was prepared to deny an application from the city for the sprayfield because relations between the city and county were strained.

Hooper said the relationship between the county and the city of Sanford has been improving.

"Since Yankee Lake, things have been getting better and better," Hooper said. "We've been working together on water and sewer improvements, road impact fees — a number of areas."

The city would need a special exception from the county to construct its proposed $10.6 million wastewater spray irrigation field on about 1,200 acres of the site, purchased for $3.5 million about a year ago. The remaining 1,000 acres near Lake See COUNTY, page 14A

Lehder jury asked to confiscate drug king's assets

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Prosecutors who won the conviction against Colombian gangster Carlos Lehder promptly took aim at new targets in America's war on drugs, declaring "we're coming after" the violent Medellin cartel that floods the nation with cocaine.

"I think their days are numbered," U.S. Attorney Robert Merkle said.

After Thursday's verdict against Lehder — a billionaire leader of the cartel based in Medellin, Colombia — the U.S. Embassy in Bogota tightened security, ordering a "red alert" in case his smuggling cohorts planned violence.

Prosecutors, meanwhile, began pressing the jury to hobble the vast drug network that they say stretches from Colombia through the Bahamas and into the United States.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ernst Mueller urged jurors to order the confiscation of millions of dollars in property that Lehder bought with his drug money. He said the government must seize the assets or Lehder's cocaine network will be left intact for others to run. The jury began considering that issue, then recessed until today.

"If you just prosecute a drug smuggler without taking away the tools he used to accomplish that end, then only part of the job is complete," Mueller said. "Then they are left out there for somebody else to use. Not only can someone else use them, the defendant himself can direct them."

Lehder, 38, faces a maximum sentence of life in a federal prison and millions of dollars in fines, besides the possible property forfeitures, for being one of the leaders of the cartel that the government says is responsible for 80 percent of the U.S. cocaine supply. U.S. District Judge Howell W. Melton set sentencing for July 20.

"This is a victory for the good guys, by the good guys I mean the American people," said Merkle, head of the prosecution team.

Merkle called the drug trial the most important in U.S. history and pledged to go after other leaders of the Medellin cartel, which is suspected in the murders of public officials, judges and journalists in Colombia.

"It's got to shake them up a lot and it will disrupt their peace of mind, if not their actual logistical method of transporting cocaine, because they're going to be looking over their shoulder and they know that we're coming after them," he said.

Merkle said he will refuse to consider a plea agreement with Lehder to ease prosecution of others in the cartel and will recommend that Lehder spend the rest of his life in prison.

In Washington, Attorney General Edwin Meese said he was "very pleased" and praised prosecutors and drug investigators as well as the Colombia government, which extradited Lehder.

NASA assesses impact of fuel plant explosion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NASA and the Pentagon are trying to assess the specific impact of this month's rocket fuel plant explosion in Nevada that threatens space agency plans for nine shuttle flights next year, officials say.

According to Rear Adm. Richard Truly, associate NASA administrator for space flight, the May 4 explosion is not a problem in the near term for either his agency or the Department of Defense.

"We're in good shape in both the shuttle program and also the DOD programs in the immediate future because naturally there's a supply that's already been delivered," Truly told a news conference Thursday.

"The issue is going to first come probably in 1989," he said. "But I can't say there is even going to be an impact in 1989 until we've had the time with the DOD to totally match requirements and availability."

"We're working on all parts of that problem — the possibility of increased production — new capabilities in plant production for the future. It is a very serious problem and we're working hard on it."

At issue is the availability of a chemical called ammonium perchlorate, which makes up about 70 percent of the solid propellant used by shuttle boosters. It also is used in a variety of military weapons systems.

A series of explosions May 4 destroyed an ammonium perchlorate production facility run by Pacific Engineering and Production Co. in Henderson, Nev. The plant was one of only two, both in Henderson, that can produce large amounts of the chemical known as AP.

NASA, with two shuttle flights planned for 1988 and nine on tap for 1989, has only enough AP at the moment for five launches — and that includes 1.7 million pounds not yet delivered from the other AP plant, operated by Kerr-McGee Corp.

The second facility has a maximum production capacity of 36 million pounds, officials said. When the explosions leveled the Pacific Engineering factory, the Kerr-McGee plant was operating at 32 million pounds a year.

The rest of the Western world's AP production combined amounts to about 9.1 million pounds a year. The plant that was destroyed could produce 40 million pounds a year, although it was operating at about 20 million pounds a year at the time of the accident, officials said.

The NASA-Pentagon task force assessing the impact of the Nevada accident is not expected to reach preliminary conclusions until at least the end of next week, and Truly said no shuttle flights have been delayed officially.

But many agency insiders have expressed concern the AP issue will have an impact on the number of shuttle flights the National Aeronautics and Space Administration can launch in 1989, even if the agency otherwise could support such an ambitious flight schedule — which most engineers doubt.

"It is a serious (issue) and the Air Force and NASA and others who depend on that AP are working it," Truly said. "We're presently gathering data as to what the requirements are, what the options are. It is clear we will need additional capacity in the out years for the U.S. space program."

Ammonium perchlorate is an oxidizer. Gasoline burned in an automobile engine uses atmospheric oxygen as an oxidizer but rockets must carry their oxidizer supply with them because they operate above the atmosphere.

Was amnesty a success?

Now that the period of amnesty for undocumented aliens has expired, the time has come to pause and ask the inevitable question: Was it a success?

To make any kind of assessment, it is necessary to recall the intention of the Immigration Reform and Control Act, which was finally enacted in November, 1986, after a decade of debate and several failures.

The act was intended to achieve two goals: To offer long-term undocumented aliens amnesty and bring them out of hiding, thus freeing them from the ever-present threat of deportation; and to stem the increasing flow of undocumented immigrants into this country.

There can be little doubt that the amnesty program proved greatly successful in meeting the first goal. The consensus is that the Immigration and Naturalization Service's network of legalization centers worked with considerable efficiency for most of the amnesty year.

Critics may point to several failings: A shaky start, a failure to get the amnesty message across to aliens in a really big way until halfway through the year, and so on; but the fact that 1.6 million undocumented aliens came forward voluntarily speaks not only for the efficiency of the operation but also for the sincerity of the INS officials, who found themselves changed overnight from hunters of illegal aliens to purveyors of comfort and advice.

There were those who questioned the logic of granting residence to so many aliens as a reward for breaking the immigration laws for six years, and the point was not lost on thousands of law-abiding, would-be immigrants in other countries. The answer lies not in the logic of the mind, but the forgiveness of the heart. Amnesty was an act of compassion on a scale probably unparalleled in modern times.

Amnesty has not proved to be the total answer to illegal immigration, nor was it ever held out to be. There are many problems ahead which will take wisdom and patience, problems concerning the welter of unresolved legal issues, the splitting of families and what to do about the millions of aliens who remain in hiding.

What matters is that amnesty has achieved the major goal of decriminalizing 1.6 million human beings whose major offense was to seek work and a better life denied to them in their homelands. That is an accomplishment every American can look back upon with considerable satisfaction and even pride.

3-wheel relief

It has taken four years and a lot of blood and broken bones to persuade Ed Meese's Justice Department to take some action against all-terrain vehicles.

The federal Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that these unlicensed, overgrown motorcycles with balloon tires have accounted for 880 deaths and more than 300,000 injuries since their introduction in 1982. But when at last Meese's men did beat themselves, allegedly on the consumer's behalf, they offered the ATV manufacturers a deal tantamount to a license to continue the killing.

The settlement that Meese proposed would have given Honda and the other manufacturers of these vehicles a government-sanctioned form of immunity from liability for the deaths and crippling injuries they cause.

Fortunately, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell rejected that proposal. And when the attorneys general of several states, including Florida, threatened to bring a consumer protection suit of their own against the ATV makers, Meese was forced to arrange a more responsible new deal.

CHUCK STONE

Rose and Regan, hero and hellion

"That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet" — and would run the bases as swiftly as a paramour pursued by an angry cuckold.

Peter Edward Rose: Record-holder for most hits, most singles, most games and most at-bats. Second in doubles, second in hitting safely in consecutive games and Time magazine cover-story subject, Aug. 19, 1985 ("Cincinnati's Wondrous Rose").

A. Bartlett Giamatti: Record-setter for the dumbest suspension in baseball history.

Dave Pallone: Record-setter for umpire buffoonery in an argument.

The videotape of the Pallone-Rose verbal barbecue about the comparative merits of their visual acuity is as clear as a windshield-wiped glass in between swishes. Pallone appears to stick his finger in Cincinnati manager Rose's face. Rose instinctively reacts by shoving Pallone.

Rose's tepid response recalled one of my father's favorite anecdotes from Moran & Mark, two minstrels from the 1920s.

"What made you knock that boy down, jump on him and stomp him?" asked an incredulous Mack.

"The Lord told me to do it."

"The Lord told you to knock him down, jump on him and stomp him?"

"No. The Lord told me to knock him down. Jumpin' on him and stompin' him was my own idea."

An umpire is supposed to diffuse the battle, not aggravate it. After a belligerent Pallone stuck his finger in the direction of Rose's eye (a scratch under Rose's eye supports Rose's accusation), Rose should have knocked him down.

His right to such an appropriate response is justified by what is known as the "fighting words" doctrine.

In Chaplinsky vs. New Hampshire (1942), the Supreme Court discussed "epithets likely to provoke the average person to retaliation ... words which by general consent are 'fighting words' when said without a disarming smile."

Rose and Pallone were not smiling.

But it may have been the violent response of Cincinnati fans after the Rose-Pallone blow off that frightened National League president Giamatti. The classical scholar envisioned a 20th century reprise of the lions and the Christians. He responded by wrapping his mind in a Roman toga, signaling, "Thumbs down" and sacrificing Rose to the den of lions.

But heroic reputations always survive the stench from the toxic dump of bad judgments.

Hallelujah! Until little boy blue's published diatribe, I thought that the Reagan-Regan-Reagan regime (read that the Ronald-Donald-Nancy romper room) had sole responsibility for some of their bizarre decisions. At least, they reached for the stars.

Obviously, astrology isn't a science, but the movement of the stars is. The problem comes from assigning values to those movements.

Nancy Reagan merely joins millions of Americans who believe that galactic reliability supports a seer's guesses about their lives.

But Nancy's honest faith is no worse than Reagan's reptilian pragmatism. If any doubts lingered about the wisdom of his dismissal, the soreheaded hellion has removed them.

Only the Pete Roses stay heroes forever.

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Tailored trade bill

WASHINGTON—While the watered-down trade bill failed to get enough votes in the Senate to override a veto, there's growing evidence of a turnaround on trade at the intellectual level.

For years, economic orthodoxy has been that the United States should hold to a purist free trade policy. Now, however, economic thinking is undergoing a change.

An example of this is the article entitled "Tailored Trade: Dealing with the World As It Is," published in the February number of the prestigious Harvard Business Review. Pat Choate and Juynne Linger, authors of the article, argue that the United States is "operating with an obsolete trade policy" that leads to devastating losses in market position, profits, equity and jobs.

Free trade made sense in the post-World War II period when the United States dominated the world and other countries lay in ruins. But, Choate and Linger point out, "economic circumstances have shifted radically. United States trade policy has not."

The authors are opposed to multilateral trade negotiations, citing the fact that "World trade is no longer governed by the free trade economies." Less than 7 percent of global commerce is now covered by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The authors sensibly assert that the United States needs a less ideological trade strategy, one that addresses real world issues and isn't bent on proving a particular trade theory.

Revamping America's trade policy is an urgent matter, though Congress is moving haltingly and the administration opposes any change. As the Review article reports, more than 70 percent of American industry faces stiff foreign competition.

Part of the problem involved in changing trade policy is that U.S. officials and most economic commentators ignore the national objectives, interests and orientation of our trade competitors. They continue to urge other countries to adopt our economic practices.

As Choate and Linger rightly say, the U.S. must change its trade policy "to deal with nations as they are, rather than as we wish they would be."

Soviets bug first lady's calls to astrologer

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — First lady Nancy Reagan's calls to her San Francisco astrologer may have given the Soviets a stream of personal and political intelligence about the president that rivals anything they got from their spies.

Sources in the White House, National Security Council and Central Intelligence Agency told Dale Van Atta that they are assessing the damage the calls may have caused in sheer espionage terms. But they are doing it behind the president's back, so he doesn't take offense. He would not look kindly on someone who suggested that the first lady might possibly be a leak to the Soviets.

Our sources presume that the Soviets intercepted the hundreds of calls Mrs. Reagan made to astrologer Joan Quigley, since they were primarily made from either the presidential retreat at Camp David or the White House. Both are top targets for Soviet bugging.

The sources also presume that Mrs. Reagan shared enough details about the president's thinking and plans to allow the astrologer to chart his future course.

JEFFREY HART

The Dukakis Hour

Naturally, Michael Dukakis has jumped in the polls, which for the moment show him ahead of George Bush in California, Florida, Michigan and other key states.

Dukakis is the new boy on the block; the general public knows next to nothing about him and therefore can attach to him whatever it desires. But these polls of the moment do not matter. Things will begin to settle into place after the Democratic and Republican conventions this summer. And, after the conventions, the laser beams of full media scrutiny will be turned on the candidates.

Right now, Bush is relatively a known quantity. Dukakis is an unknown quantity, and under the glare of the national klieg lights he could melt like a snowman in April.

The admirable political reporter Hendrik Hertzberg, who writes for the New Republic and is based at the Kennedy School of Politics at Harvard, will undoubtedly vote for Dukakis. Nevertheless, he delivers to us an accurate and ambiguous assessment of the Massachusetts Governor.

"Dukakis is a candidate whose weaknesses are his strengths. If his character has hidden depths, if his soul has dark corners, no one has been able to find them—not even his wife, Kitty, who has called him 'the most uncomplicated man in the world.' The simplicity, banality, consistency, stolidity, matter-of-factness, and emotional equanimity that make him an unsuitable vehicle for political fervor also make him an elusive target for political attack.

—He is not exactly a cardboard cutout; his sense of himself is too firm and palpable for that. But the aspect he presents is sufficiently two-dimensional that to his opponents, who see him from the side, he is practically invisible. (Fortunately for him, television is a two-dimensional medium.)"

Remember, this is the prose of a Dukakis supporter. Mr. Hertzberg goes on: "Dukakis is a caricature waiting to be drawn. He has oversized features on an oversized head, a trait he exaggerates by wearing suits so tight they look like they were spray-painted on. His needlelike trousers end at enormous, suspiciously thick-soled shoes that resemble bumper cars."

Of course, Dukakis will not be running against Thomas Jefferson or even Dwight Eisenhower; but George Bush is probably widely under-rated. When the general public actually focuses on the two men, Bush will grow and Dukakis will shrink.

Boxing the electoral compass, here's the call: Bush will take Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Dukakis scores in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Bush takes Connecticut, New York is a toss-up, Bush takes New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Dukakis wins in Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia. Once we hit Virginia and head South, we're in Bush country. It's Bush around the entire Southern arc, including Florida and Texas.

Do babies really feel pain?

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Before the birth ritual, or ritual Jewish circumcision, the rabbinical model traditionally places a small piece of gauze or sponge soaked with sweet wine in the infant's mouth.

The wine is not required by Judaic law, but almost all rabbis use it, because "it seems to calm the babies down," says Rabbi Moshe Kushner, a licensed model based in Chicago.

"In a sense, I would guess it is a form of anesthesia," Kushner says. "It helps them sleep. But the procedure is very quick anyway. I have yet to see a child suffer."

In standard circumcision, performed more than a million times a year in U.S. hospitals, no anesthesia is used. Even though the procedure is precise and lightning fast, the newborn males typically "scream like crazy," says Dr. Howard Stang, a pediatrician from White Bear Lake, Minn.

"For a long time, physicians believed that anesthesia might be dangerous to the newborn and it was also felt that it was not necessary," he says. "Doctors thought babies didn't really feel pain."

Most doctors don't believe that anymore, but it wasn't so long ago that they did. Until a few years ago, it was not uncommon for pediatric surgeons to perform open heart surgery on newborns without anesthesia. The risks — of suppressing the infant's fragile respiratory system — were felt to outweigh any benefits, which were considered to be marginal.

Doctors theorized the insulating sheath surrounding nerves — the myelin — was not completely developed in newborns, preventing them from feeling intense pain. Early studies found that many babies did not react to apparently painful stimuli — a toe-pinch, for example — and many others did not cry after an injury. Crying was thus thought to be a situational response rather than a reaction to pain.

"There are some babies who do not react to stimuli the same way as adults," Stang says. "But some rather sophisticated studies in the past year or two have shown that even though these babies aren't developed enough to respond to the pain, they are still feeling it."

One of the few White House officials who knew about the astrologer for at least five years said others who knew shared their national security concerns among themselves. But they dared not take it up with the president or Mrs. Reagan.

Mrs. Reagan has been discussing the president's business with Quigley since 1981, usually on Saturday afternoons. The kind of information she might have given Quigley pertained to scheduling events, taking action or assessing Reagan's moods. It isn't as dramatic as slipping a secret document to the enemy, but it is the bread and butter of intelligence, where part of the game is keeping one step ahead of the enemy, knowing what he plans to do and when and how he thinks.

"Let's assume," an alarmed White House official told us, "that Boris or Ivan is sitting in his little Soviet listening post at one of their embassies one Saturday and, at the same appointed time, Nancy Reagan calls her astrologer and she says, 'I need your advice on this. Ronnie's thinking about changing this policy or that policy. Are the signs right?' The astrologer is sort of a pseudo-psychiatrist, and she asks for more information. "Now Ivan is sitting there, latches on to this gold mine and begins to notice the regularity of the calls. So every Saturday he's watching a football game on TV and ... listening to the regular 'Saturday feed' of intelligence."

A White House official has been asked to quietly find out if Mrs. Reagan had a secure line installed to her astrologer. He told us that as far as his people can tell, the answer is no. He added that the subject of the first lady and her stargazing was so odd, no one wanted to make it official by installing a secure line. "Nancy or those who knew her were so embarrassed that she was talking to an astrologer that she just used a plain old White House or Camp David line, as far as we can tell, oblivious to the fact that the Russians were listening in," the White House source said.

The president, Mrs. Reagan and her friends tried to paint the long-distance huddles with Quigley as harmless. But postponing a summit meeting or closing the president can affect policy in a major way, especially if the Soviets know when and why it is happening.

Lake Mary group forms subcommittees

By Joyce Herald
UCF Intern

SANFORD — Members of the Lake Mary Boulevard Corridor Study Committee voted Wednesday night to organize three subcommittees to evaluate and make recommendations on overall goals and objectives, design standards and roadway improvements affecting Lake Mary Boulevard.

The proposal to form subcommittees resulted when a broad discussion of the group's goals for the Lake Mary Boulevard project began.

During the discussion at Sanford City Hall, Seminole County Commissioner Robert Sturm reminded members of a previously stated goal asking, "What can we do along Lake Mary Boulevard to avoid what has happened on 436 and, to a lesser extent, 434?"

Later, members voted unanimously to break into the subcommittees.

Chairman of the advisory committee Randy Morris, a Lake Mary Commissioner, said the subcommittees became necessary because "the detailed inspection and the complicated issues were too broad and too lengthy for a group of 11 or 12 people to work out."

Jay Marder, Sanford city planner, Commissioner Whitey Eckstein of Sanford and Morris will comprise the Goals and Objectives Subcommittee. Morris said the group will deal with policy issues and will work to set the "tone, policy and tenor" of the committee.

The Design Standards Subcommittee members are Tony Vanderworp of the Seminole County Planning Department, Matt West, Lake Mary's city planner, and Jeff Salzman, a resident representative for Sanford. They will discuss aesthetic issues such as burying utility lines.

Roadway Improvement Subcommittee members include Sturm; Larry Dale, a developer, and Sandi Rauch, a Seminole County resident representative. Some of the issues they will discuss include medians, greenways and traffic signals.

The 11 attending members of the 12-member board also voted 10-1 in favor of directing Deputy County Attorney Robert McMillian to draft a model ordinance to fight "snipe signs."

According to Morris, the ordinance will allow the policing of illegal signs along the public right of way on Lake Mary Boulevard regardless of jurisdiction.

Morris explained the county attorney will draft an ordinance which may be approved or amended by the advisory committee. After approval, the ordinance will be submitted for adoption by commissions in Seminole County, Sanford and Lake Mary.

Last night's meeting was the group's third. The Lake Mary Boulevard Corridor Study Committee began meeting in a cooperative effort to reach a consensus on the future appearance of Lake Mary Boulevard.

Three government offices have a say in the matter. Officials from Seminole County and the cities of Sanford and Lake Mary will make recommendations on the road's future.

In other business, the group consulted with McMillian about the legalities of requiring various companies to place their electrical lines underground.

McMillian said the county does have the right to require the utility lines to go underground. "The question is how to exercise that right," he said.

The group talked about two ways to go about mandating the underground cable. The first dealt with drafting an ordinance and the other with setting up a special zoning district. A decision on the issue is pending additional study.

Also pending is the issue of who will pay the additional expense of burying the lines. The answer will depend on legalities and other issues yet to be studied. However, if the utility companies are required to foot the bill, Sturm pointed out that consumers will pay in the end.

Titanic exploration ship seized

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A research ship and a Navy mini-submarine that took the first interior pictures of the Titanic on the ocean floor will be returned to their owners as soon as the U.S. Customs Service receives a written promise that no more drugs will be found on board.

The vessels — worth $80 million — were seized under the controversial "zero tolerance" drug program after traces of marijuana were aboard the mother ship, authorities said Thursday.

The Atlantis II and the mini-submarine Alvin, which carried researchers to the sunken Titanic wreckage in 1986, were confiscated by the Customs Service Wednesday after a routine search in San Diego Harbor turned up about a quarter of a gram of marijuana. Customs Service spokesman Michael Fleming said.

The ship was the 11th vessel confiscated since the start of the "zero tolerance" program in which customs agents are under orders to seize vessels found carrying even tiny amounts of drugs, Fleming said.

"In our discussions with the owners of the Atlantis II, they have been extremely cooperative and it's clear to customs that they are innocent parties with regard to the marijuana being found on their ship," Fleming said.

"The ownership of Atlantis II is forwarding to Customs Service a letter supporting customs in the war on drugs, including their agreement to customs that they will tighten their procedures in the future and that no drugs will be on board their vessel," he said.

Fleming said once the letter is received, the Atlantis II will be returned to the prestigious Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution of Massachusetts.

Jazz fast break past Lakers, 108-80

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Eleven days ago, the Utah Jazz were limited to a record-low 8 points in the first quarter by the Lakers. Thursday night, they extracted a bit of revenge — and with it, a decisive seventh game in their Western Conference semifinal.

Behind a stifling defense and relentless fastbreak, Utah scored 18 unanswered points to fashion a 31-13 advantage after one period, then went on to a 108-80 rout of the defending NBA champions.

"They almost had our record," Utah's Thurl Bailey said. "When the first quarter was over I looked up at the scoreboard and said, 'Wait a minute, these are the Lakers we're playing.' It was amazing."

Karl Malone scored 8 of his 27 points in the 18-0 blitz. When the Lakers closed within striking distance, Bobby Hansen scored 13 of his career playoff high 25 points in the first 6:45 of the third quarter to help fend off the challenge.

In overcoming Tuesday night's heart-breaking 2-point loss at the Forum, the

NBA PLAYOFFS

Jazz pinned the Lakers with the sixth-worst playoff loss ever.

The series now returns to Los Angeles Saturday afternoon when Utah will participate the first Game 7 in its history. The winner meets Dallas, which earlier Thursday clinched its series against Denver.

"It's a one-game series now," said Hansen, who hit 10 of 11 from the floor, including both 3-point attempts. "We have a lot of confidence and anything can happen."

The Lakers — their bid to become to first team since the 1989 Celtics to repeat as NBA champs in serious jeopardy — have not been pushed to a Game 7 since 1984, when they fell to Boston in the final series.

Thursday night's loss was Los Angeles' darkest day in the playoffs since the "Memorial Day Massacre," a 148-114 thrashing by the Celtics in the opener of the 1985 title series.

"We were throwing away the ball a lot tonight," said Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, whose team shot just 37.5 percent from the floor in its worst offensive showing of the season. "We just couldn't get anything going on the court. We can't throw in the towel; we still have the home-court advantage."

With Los Angeles held to one basket in a 7-43 span, Utah sped to its 31-13 lead after one quarter and led by as many as 21 in the second period.

The Lakers got to within 12 points just before halftime, but Hansen took over at the outset of the third quarter, fueling a 22-7 burst which built the Jazz cushion to 78-49 with 4:55 left in the period.

Utah led 81-60 entering the final period, and for the first time in the series, was able to rest its starters. The Lakers trailed by 33 in the final quarter and never got closer than 23.

Bailey added 20 points off the bench for the Jazz, while John Stockton contributed 14 points and 17 assists.

Byron Scott led Los Angeles with 16 points, but Abdul-Jabbar had just 10 and James Worthy 4.

In that regard, the game was reminiscent of Utah's 89-86 victory in Game 3, when Worthy managed just 9 points and Abdul-Jabbar 6.

After a layup by the Lakers' Magic Johnson brought an end to Utah's 8-0 burst, the Jazz reeled off 18 straight points — all but two coming from shots inside the lane.

Los Angeles went scoreless for a 5:17 span, and trailed 28-9 with 1:48 left in the first quarter. In the Utah surge, Hansen dunked twice off Stockton feeds, then returned the favor with a pass to Stockton that produced a layup.

In taking its 18-point first quarter bulge, the Jazz committed just one turnover to seven for the Lakers while outscoring their opponents 9-0 from the line. Los Angeles' 13 points was the fewest it had scored in an opening period this season.

Mavs oust Nuggets

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Mavericks Thursday night produced the most important five-minute stretch of basketball in their history and, with a new captain at the helm, pointed their ship toward uncharted waters.

For the first time in the franchise's eight years, the Mavericks will compete for the right to go to the NBA's championship series.

Dallas bulled into the Western Conference final with a 108-95 triumph over the Denver Nuggets to win their best-of-seven semifinal 4-2.

"We're going to a place where we've never been," Dallas forward Mark Aguirre said.

However, Dallas is going there without Aguirre as its leader. Since he was made the NBA's No. 1 draft choice in 1981, Aguirre has been the Mavericks' big gun — until now, that is.

In the game that pushed them into the conference finals, Aguirre played just 19 minutes and scored only four points. In his place, second-year forward Roy Tarpley reasserted himself as the Mavericks' dominant factor by pulling down 19 rebounds.

"I was ready from the start and I went out there strong as usual," said Tarpley, named this week the NBA's leading sixth man. "But I think everybody did a great job."

Dallas will get a brief rest before the first game of the conference title series while awaiting the results of the Los Angeles Lakers-Utah Jazz battle. The Mavericks will play next Monday, either at home against the Jazz or on the road against the Lakers.

Denver's chances in Game 6 against Dallas Thursday night were slim to begin with since the Nuggets had to play for the third straight contest without guard Lafayette Lever (strained knee) and forward Jay Vincent (pulled calf muscle).

Despite the absence of Lever and Vincent, the Nuggets overcame a 10-point third-quarter deficit to trail by just one with 4:47 remaining in the game when T.R. Dunn hit a jump shot.

For the rest of the game, however, the Nuggets scored only two points while Dallas was putting things away.

Rolando Blackman scored seven points during the final four minutes and Tarpley grabbed almost every rebound during that time.

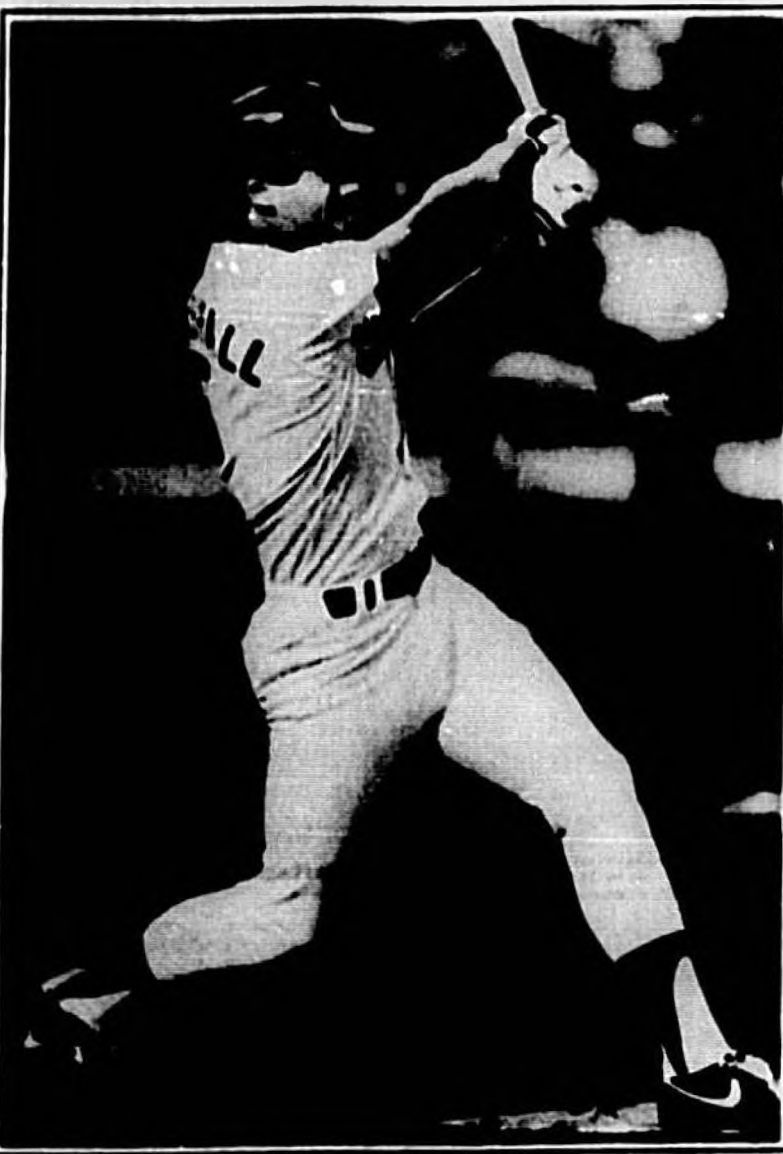

Tarpley rebounded a Blackman miss with 1:15 to play and the Mavericks leading by three. Given another chance, Blackman drove for a layup and was fouled by Dan Schayes. The three-point play gave the Mavericks a 101-95 lead.

Seconds later, Alex English missed a jumper for Denver, and Tarpley got another rebound. Dallas guard Derek Harper made a 3-pointer to clinch the game.

Blackman and Sam Perkins each scored 23 for Dallas, Harper had 19, and Tarpley 18. English led the Nuggets with 34.

"I can't be unhappy about the way we played," Denver Coach Doug Moe said. "We had a very inspired effort, but we just didn't get any bounces to go our way. I just couldn't ask for anything more from the players."

"You just have to accept what fate deals you."

Mike Marshall takes a big cut. Marshall's home run and Tim Leary's pitching helped the Dodgers to a 2-0 victory over the Montreal Expos Thursday night.

Leary, Marshall lead LA over Expos

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tim Leary struck out 10 and Mike Marshall homered Thursday night, leading the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 2-0 triumph over the Montreal Expos.

Leary, who had not won since April 18, allowed seven hits and walked none in registering his second shutout and complete game of the year. Leary, 3-3, entered the season with just two career shutouts. Dennis Martinez, 3-6, was the loser.

The Dodgers, who squandered a scoring opportunity in the first when Mike Davis was picked off third base with one out, scored twice in the fourth. Kirk Gibson singled and reached third when Martinez threw wildly on a pickoff attempt. After Pedro Guerrero lofted a sacrifice fly to center for his National League-leading ninth game-winning RBI, Marshall slammed a drive to left for his sixth homer.

The Expos had runners on second and third with none out in the second, but Leary struck out Jeff Reed, got Johnny Paredes to hit a comebacker that was turned into an out at home and handled Tom Foley on a weak grounder to first.

Montreal, which won the first two games of the series, had two on and two out in the third before Hulse Brooks fled to left.

Martinez, who has lost four straight decisions, yielded nine hits in six innings. He struck out five and did not walk a batter.

BEDROSIAN READY

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Relief pitcher Steve Bedrosian, who was disabled in spring training with walking pneumonia and pleurisy, will be reinstated to the Philadelphia Phillies' active roster Friday, the team announced.

To make room for last year's Cy Young award winner, Bill Dawley has been placed on the team's 21-day disabled list retroactive to May 4. Dawley has been sidelined because of bone chips in his right elbow.

Bedrosian pitched one inning in Philadelphia's first spring training exhibition game March 4. Three days later, he complained of chest pains, which were discovered to be the result of pneumonia and pleurisy.

He was placed on the disabled list March 21.

Bedrosian began pitching May 9 for Philadelphia's AAA farm team, the Maine Phillies of the International League. He relieved six times and allowed six hits, two walks and had five strikeouts in 6 2/3 innings. Bedrosian had a 0-0 record and didn't allow a run.

Dawley was signed as a free agent.

Florida's Stafford wins NCAA tennis title

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Shaun Stafford upset Florida teammate Halle Cioffi 7-6 (6-8), 6-4 Thursday to win the NCAA women's tennis title.

It was the first time two players from the same school competed for the NCAA women's singles title.

"I developed my type of rhythm in the beginning of the match," said Stafford, the fourth seed who upset the top-seeded Ronni Reis to gain the final. "My serves were big and I was hitting hard and accurate shots. However, I had to earn every shot."

Cioffi, the third seed, plans to turn professional after the tournament.

"She was definitely on the offensive tonight," Cioffi said. "My serve wasn't going in and she definitely took advantage of it. I didn't play well at all in this tournament."

In a late match Thursday night on the

NCAA ROUNDUP

UCLA campus, Allyson Cooper-Stella Sampras of UCLA faced Rets-Jami Yonekura of Miami in the doubles final.

GOLF: TAMPA LEADS

OSAGE BEACH, MO. (UPI) — The University of Tampa maintained its lead Thursday after three rounds of the NCAA Division II golf tournament. Tampa's Jeff Leonard stayed in first place with a 54-hole total of 214.

Tampa holds the team lead of 890 at Tan-Tar-A Resort. Completing the top five are Florida Southern, 912; Columbus, 916; Florida Atlantic, 922; and Bryant, 924.

Leonard is followed by Tony Chieffo of Cal State-Northridge and John Williams of Rollins at 222. Bob Brown of Bryant at 223 and J.P. Velasco of Northeast Missouri State at 223.

The tournament concludes Friday.

TRACK: MILES EXCELS

SAN ANGELO, Texas (UPI) — Jearl Miles of Alabama A&M ran the fastest women's college time of the season Thursday in a qualifying heat of the 400-meter dash at the NCAA Division II Track and Field Championship.

Miles, a senior from Gainesville, finished in 51.39, shattering the Division II record of 52.36, set last year at the national meet. She is now the favorite in Saturday's final.

Also Thursday, John Schwepker of Southeast Missouri State won three second-day events to capture the death-throes title by a comfortable 70 points. He finished with 7,773 points. Knut Gundersen of Mount St. Mary's (Maryland) was second with 7,703.

Winning Colors an unproven mudder

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Besides the eight colts trying to spoil Winning Colors' chances of capturing the Triple Crown, trainer D. Wayne Lukas' filly must cope with a more uncertain opponent in Saturday's Preakness Stakes — Mother Nature.

The Preakness, scheduled to go to post at 5:31 p.m. EDT, will be televised live nationally by ABC.

Pimlico Race Course, drenched by days of rain, threatens to degenerate into a muddy mess for the 113th running of the Preakness — bad news for a horse unaccustomed to such conditions.

D. Wayne Lukas, trainer of Winning Colors, said he is concerned about the way his Kentucky Derby winner will handle a sloppy surface.

"It is definitely a concern because we have never run on an off-track," Lukas said. "We have never even trained on one."

"I think she'll be all right, because she has handled every other surface, but you never know how a horse is going to react."

Lukas elected not to allow

Winning Colors to gallop Thursday morning in the filly's first look at Pimlico because a second straight day of rain had rendered the course "too rough."

The National Weather Service reported a 40-percent chance of showers or thunderstorms through today and a 50-percent chance of additional rain Saturday. Trainer Woody Stephens was more optimistic about the way Kentucky Derby runner-up Forty Niner could handle a sloppy track.

"I think he's a good mud horse," Stephens said of Forty Niner. "He won the Sanford (Stakes) awfully big in the mud at Saratoga last year."

Should Winning Colors take the Preakness, the middle jewel in the Triple Crown, she would need to win the Belmont Stakes June 11 at Elmont, N.Y., to become the first filly, and first horse since Affirmed in 1978, to win the Triple Crown.

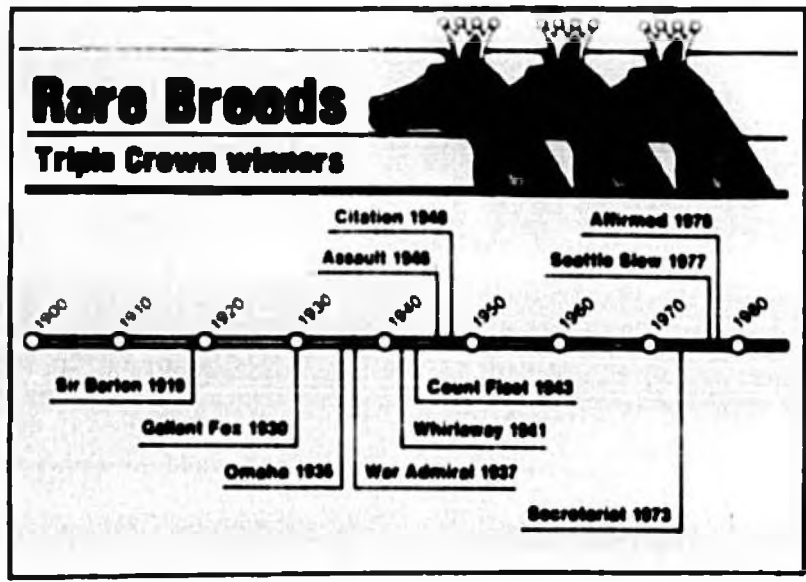

Only four fillies have ever won the Preakness — none since 1924.

A horse with plenty of experience at Pimlico is Kentucky Derby favorite Private Terms, who has been trained in Maryland by Charlie Hadry. Private Terms finished ninth in the Derby after winning his previous seven races.

"Certainly she's beatable, sure," Hadry said of Winning Colors. "She's not only beatable, but I'm going to beat her."

Winning Colors and Forty Niner drew side-by-side post positions Thursday, launching a poker-style game of bluff on what strategy would be employed by cagey veteran Stephens. Forty Niner will break from the fourth position, with Winning Colors coming out of

Swindell blanks White Sox

United Press International The hitter struggling most in the White Sox lineup was the only man preventing Greg Swindell from tossing a no-hitter Thursday night.

Swindell, 8-1, hurled 6 1-3 no-hit innings en route to his second two-hitter of the season and Cory Snyder homered in the bottom of the ninth to lift the Cleveland Indians to a 1-0 victory over Chicago.

Swindell, whose eight victories are one more than any Cleveland pitcher managed all last year, yielded both hits to Ken Williams, each on a slider.

"Maybe I should've blended the slider better, after all, I'm a fastball pitcher," said Swindell, who missed more than half of last season with an elbow injury.

Swindell walked former Indian Dave Gallagher on a 3-2 count with one out in the Chicago first. The left-hander retired the next 18 batters, seven on strikeouts.

AL/NL BASEBALL

AL/NL BASEBALL The hitter struggling most in the White Sox lineup was the only man preventing Greg Swindell from tossing a no-hitter Thursday night.

Swindell, 8-1, hurled 6 1-3 no-hit innings en route to his second two-hitter of the season and Cory Snyder homered in the bottom of the ninth to lift the Cleveland Indians to a 1-0 victory over Chicago.

Swindell, whose eight victories are one more than any Cleveland pitcher managed all last year, yielded both hits to Ken Williams, each on a slider.

"Maybe I should've blended the slider better, after all, I'm a fastball pitcher," said Swindell, who missed more than half of last season with an elbow injury.

Swindell walked former Indian Dave Gallagher on a 3-2 count with one out in the Chicago first. The left-hander retired the next 18 batters, seven on strikeouts.

In the opener, Chili Davis bounced into the ninth double play of the game to score Bob Boone from third in the 10th inning and lift California. Bryan Harvey improved to 2-1, while Dave Schmidt fell to 1-2. The nine double plays tied an AL record.

Meta 9, Padres 4 The Mets clubbed 16 hits to back Ron Darling, who improved to 4-3. In Darling's three losses and two no-decisions this year, the Mets had managed three runs in 35 innings. The right-hander entered with a 1.89 ERA, and two of his victories were shutouts.

Darling struck out eight and walked four. He has pitched at least seven innings in each of his nine starts. His effort was particularly strong considering he was fighting the flu.

Cardinals 8, Cubs 1 At Chicago, rookie Kris Carpenter pitched a four-hitter and Bob Horner singled in two runs to help the Cardinals sweep the three-game series. Carpenter, 1-0, making his second start since his major-league debut May 14, struck out five and walked two. Al Nipper, 0-2, yielded five runs on eight hits.

Finley belongs in hall

By MIKE TULLY UPI National Baseball Writer NEW YORK (UPI) — Charles O. Finley belongs in the Hall of Fame.

Not many people did more to shape today's game than the former owner of the Oakland A's. Not many people ever did a better job of building a ballclub. Those credentials should land Finley on the library steps at Cooperstown one of these summers, preferably while he can still see the green grass and the blue lake.

Of course, Finley being Finley, he might not even show up. He might tell them all to go to blazes. But maybe not. After all, he attended last summer when Catfish Hunter entered. He might go again if the Veterans Committee, deciding to let bygones be bygone, ever gave him credit for the ideas he brought baseball.

Finley pushed for night World Series games so working people could watch. He wanted night All-Star Games for the same reason. Many young baseball fans can't recall when teams wore uniforms of white and gray. Finley was the one who put color into the uniforms. He liked the idea of having a DI.

Finley also liked money, but he realized he couldn't make any unless he pleased the fans. That's an idea baseball never seemed to grasp until recently.

"He was somebody two or three years ahead of all the owners and maybe 20 years ahead of baseball," said Seat-ter Manager Dick Williams, a former employee of Finley's. Finley, a self-made millionaire, bought the Kansas City A's after the 1980 season. The franchise hadn't won anything since the Philadelphia A's reached the 1931 World Series. Finley moved the team to Oakland, where it became the last great dynasty. He finally sold in 1980, not before enough lawsuits and controversy to hurt his chances of making the Hall of Fame.

"He would have no chance," said Red Patterson, longtime baseball exec and now a consultant to the California Angels. Patterson probably represents the view of baseball's establishment. Finley sold the A's only eight years ago, so the memory of the feuds and the fines and the lawsuits remains fresh.

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Manager Tom Kelly and first baseman Kent Hrbek of the Minnesota Twins are branching out.

They have teamed to buy a horse and plan to race it at Canterbury Downs in Shakopee. It was reported Thursday.

They are considering changing the name of the horse from "Verbatim's Pride" to "Dome Boys."

The 6-year-old bay has career earnings of more than $100,000 with six wins in 38 starts, beginning in 1985. He won three times last year.

Trainer Charles Tallaferra purchased the horse in California three years ago, according to his wife, Linda.

She said, Kelly, a frequent Canterbury patron, invited her husband to be a guest on one of his radio shows last season. Later Kelly visited Tallaferra's barn and saw the horse.

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — It turned out to be much ado about nothing, but infielder Steve Lombardozzi found a double surprise when he arrived at the ballpark Wednesday night.

Not only was his name in the Twins' starting lineup for only the second time since the April 23 trade for second baseman Tom Herr, but Lombardozzi found himself penciled in at shortstop for the first time in his major-league career.

"I did a double-take," laughed Lombardozzi, who last regularly played the position at Double-A (Orlando, 1983). "It was almost a quadruple-take. Twig (coach Wayne Terwilliger) thought it was pretty funny."

Not so funny has been the Twins' and Lombardozzi's mutual desire for a trade. But all parties denied any possibility of a "showcase" motive behind Lombardozzi's sudden position shift.

Lendl favored to win 4th straight French Open

PARIS (UPI) — Can anyone stop Ivan Lendl from winning his third consecutive French Open tennis championship?

Probably not. With several of the world's top male players injured and others not comfortable on the soft clay at Roland Garros stadium, Lendl must be considered a strong favorite in the Grand Slam event beginning Monday — especially since he has swept to a pair of tournament victories since returning last month from a foot injury.

Lendl won in 1984 for his first victory in a Grand Slam event and scored again the last two years.

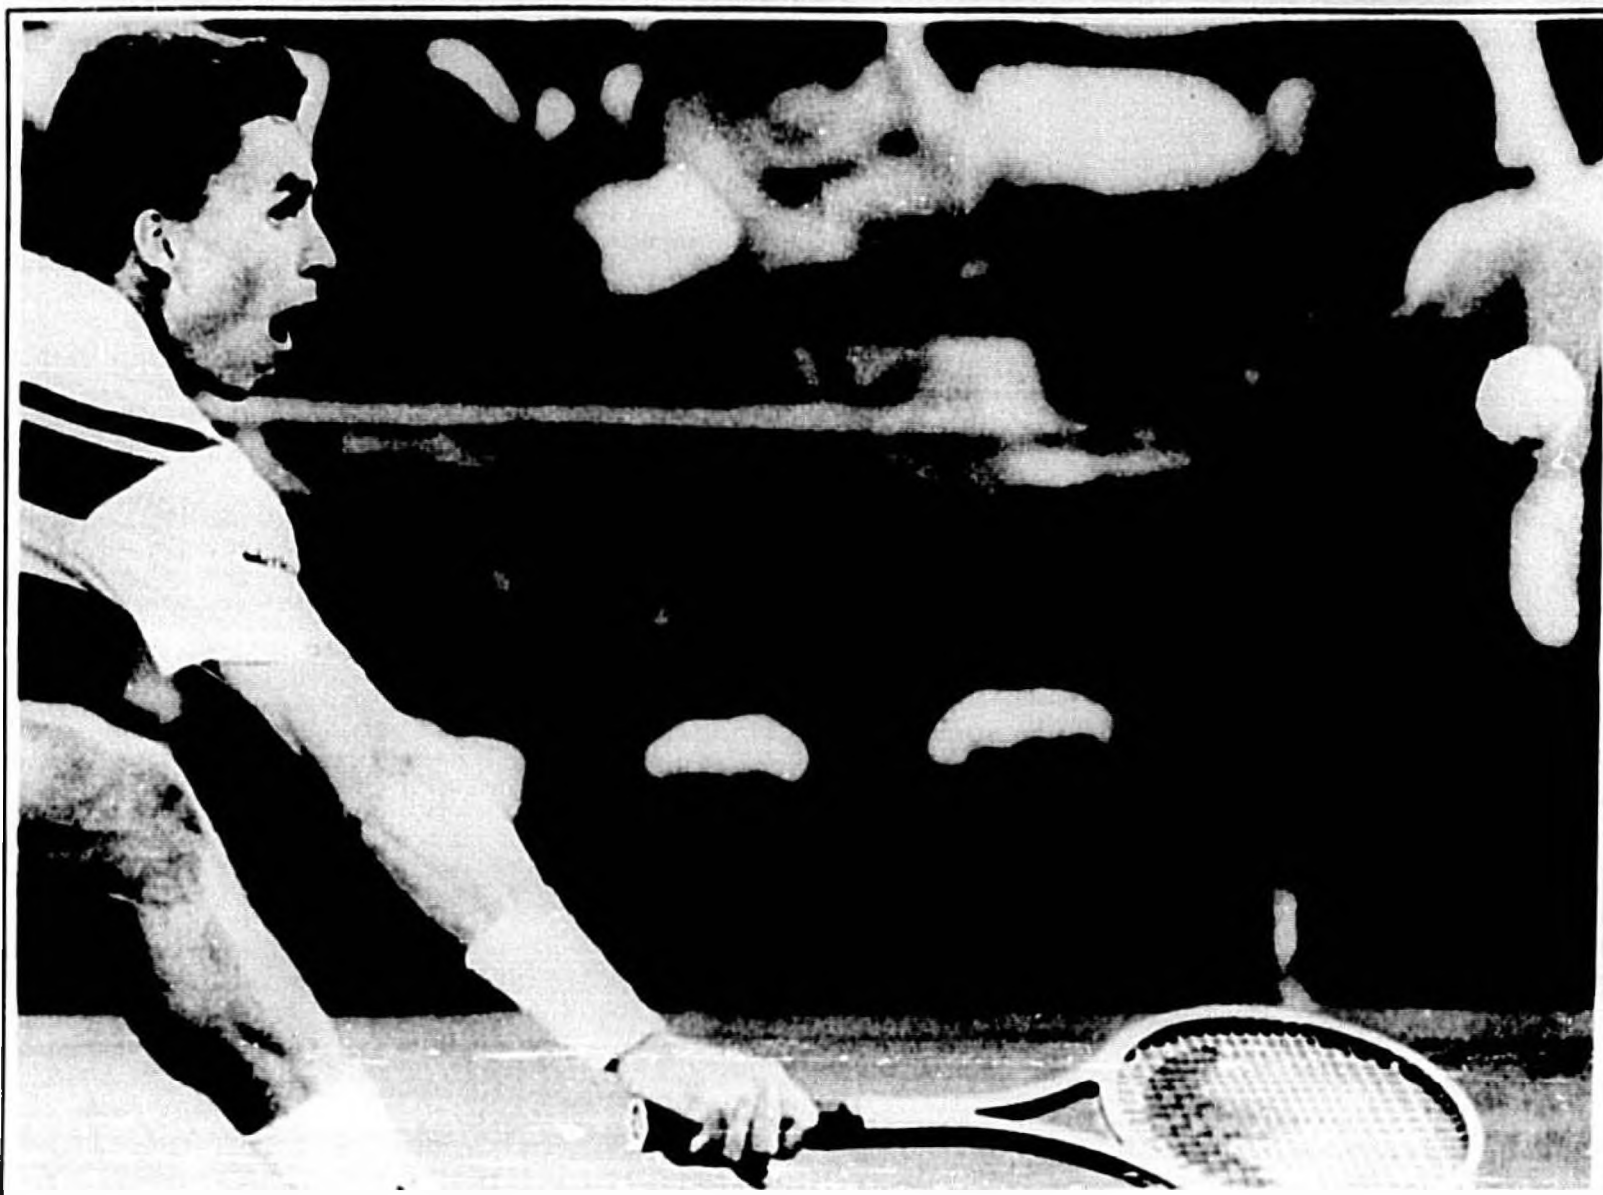

Among the injured and missing this year are world No. 5 Jimmy Connors of the United States (right foot), No. 7 Czech Miloslav Mecir (herniated disc) and No. 11 American Brad Gilbert (heel).

John McEnroe, now No. 19, will be playing despite a neck injury that has undermined his comeback after a seven-month layoff. Injury-prone Yannick Noah of France, the 1983 winner and the current world No. 8, has been bothered in recent weeks by tendinitis in his right knee that limits his exceptional court quickness, though a West German doctor has proclaimed him fit to play.

Among the other top players, few are in best form on clay. No. 2 Stefan Edberg of Sweden, No. 4 Pat Cash of Australia and No. 6 Boris Becker of West Germany all are more comfortable on other surfaces, and No. 3 Mats Wilander of Sweden has had a terrible spring.

Wilander has had groin and ankle injuries, suffered from a sinus infection and food poisoning and lost early in clay-court tournaments in Monte Carlo and Rome. He won the French Open in 1982 and 1985 and was runner-up to Lendl last year but he has had few matches on clay this year because of early exits.

That would seem to clear the path for the 28-year-old Lendl, who claimed the recent Monte Ivan Lendl reaches for a backhand. Lendl is heavily favored to win his fourth consecutive French Open title.

Carlo and Rome tourneys while gradually working himself back into top form following an eight week layoff because of a stress fracture in his right foot.

But two hot younger players, 20-year-old Swede Kent Carlsson and 24-year-old Henri Leconte of France, could detour Lendl's march toward his seventh Grand Slam title.

Carlsson, a hard-hitting baseliner, has won clay court tournaments in Madrid and Hamburg, West Germany, in the last five weeks and has moved back up to ninth in the rankings after missing eight months while recuperating from knee surgery.

"The only thing I know is that I will be in very good form in Paris. We'll see if that will be good enough," said Carlsson, who claims improved footwork is helping him get in better position to hit long, hard returns and to take more chances rushing the net.

Leconte, who injured his left hand by taking out his disappointment on a wall during a tournament in Milan, Italy, in February, now is taking out his aggression at the net. He is playing the most consistent tennis of his career and has perhaps the best serve and volley game on the tour.

Among the women, the French Open marks the anniversary of Steffi Graf's coming of age. The 18-year-old West German won her first Grand Slam tournament in Paris last year and is favored to repeat.

Last year she showed her maturity by refusing to crack in an exciting 6-4, 4-6, 8-6 victory over Martina Navratilova for the title. This year it again may come down to a final against second-ranked Navratilova, who is playing better after a shaky early part of the year.

Third-ranked Chris Evert, who was humiliated 6-2, 6-2 by Navratilova in the semifinals in Paris last year, may not be at 100 percent because of a bone spur in her right heel. She had to drop out of a tournament in Rome two weeks ago when it became inflamed.

Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina, the fourth-ranked woman in the world, scored her first victory over Graf earlier this year and won the Rome tournament in early May. She lost to Graf in the French semifinals last year.

Among the high ranked women who will miss the tournament are Pam Shriver of the United States and Bettina Bunge of West Germany.

Stock stars to appear at Smyrna

The cars and stars of the United Stock Car Alliance tour will make their first appearance ever at the New Smyrna Speedway tomorrow night for a 100-lap championship event. The 100-lapper will be the sixth USA Late Model race of the season. Leading the drivers in victories this year is Wildwood's Dick Anderson with three wins coming at Orlando Speedworld, Lakeland Interstate Speedway and the Citrus County Speedway in Inverness. Lakeland rookie Joe Nemechek has won the other two events at Auburndale Speedway and the Gateway National Speedway in Ellsville.

Among the USA tour regulars expected at NSS are several defending track champions such as Edward Howell (DeSoto Speedway), David Russell (Orlando Speedworld), Eddie King (Auburndale Speedway and Lakeland Interstate Speedway) and defending USA tour Champion Frank Johnson.

More than 70 drivers are now at the super-fast high-banked half-mile oval. Getting ready for this week's big race, LeRoy Porter bested a strong 20-car field to win the 25-lap feature last week. David Russell held on for second place. Joe Middleton, David Rogers and Dave McCabe rounded out the top five. Lake Mary's Randy Smathers, Marc Kinley of Osteen and Sanford's Joe Warrack chased Sportsman winner Buford Clonts across the finish line. Guy Lingo, Bobby Sears, John Ripley and Scott McDade are some of the local drivers running at the front of the pack in their classes.

Tuck Trentham won his second feature of the year at Volusia County Speedway as he edged out Bob Underwood and Keith Noshisch in the 30-lap Late Model feature. VCS is getting ready for the first race of the National Street Stock Challenge Series. The race is to be held June 3-5. More than 150 cars are expected to compete for the first-place prize of $10,000.

Wadkins leads Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — The Colonial Country Club reverted to its old, nasty self Thursday — except where Lanny Wadkins was concerned.

The par 70 Colonial layout was once considered one of the toughest tests on the tour, and on a warm, windy day, that reputation was enhanced.

Wadkins, John Luman, Scott Hoch, Jodie Mudd and Clarence Rose all shot 3 under 67 Thursday to share the first round lead in the $750,000 Colonial National Invitational.

The 67 marked the highest first round leading score in 12 years, and the 15 sub-par rounds represented the lowest first round total in 13 years.

"On a windy day like today, par is a good score," Wadkins said. "When it is windy like this, there is no hole that gives you a breather. There is not one shot here that you can stand over and say, 'I can relax.'"

Wadkins has never been able to relax at Colonial because, until Thursday, he had not broken par on the treacherous 7,116-yard course. He had played 35 competitive rounds here and his previous best effort was a par 70.

He was so frustrated by his performance at Colonial that he skipped the tournament the past two years even though he lives only an hour from the course.

Maybe it's like an old girl friend, Wadkins said. "You see her three or four years later, and she looks a lot better than she did before."

This was kind of fun for a change.

The five front runners had one shot advantage over Mark Calcavecchia, Buddy Gardner and Ed Fournier at 2 under 68.

The group at 69 included Lee Trevino and Ben Crenshaw, both former Colonial champions, while Paul Azinger and Bruce Lietzke, last week's Byron Nelson champion, were at even par 70.

High winds and the heavy rough, which has been allowed to grow at Colonial this year, gave much of the field problems.

Payne Stewart, Tom Kite and defending champion Keith Clearwater all shot 75, but Tom Watson had lots more problems than that — suffering a double bogey and triple bogey on the front nine and shooting a 44-34-78.

Wadkins has 17 tour victories, more than four times as many as the other four co-leaders combined.

the fifth position in the nine-horse $530,200 race.

Stephens, hoping for his first Preakness victory since he trained Blue Man in 1952, insisted that his post position "forced" him into a speed duel with Winning Colors.

Jockey Pat Day held back Forty Niner early, then made a gutsy late charge that fell a neck short of Winning Colors in the Derby.

"I'm serious," Stephens said after tipping his hand about challenging Winning Colors immediately out of the gate. "We'll see who outlasts who."

Lukas was unimpressed, saying Stephens still had "all his options" available.

Pimlico oddsmaker Jeff Weissman installed the filly the 8-5 early favorite, and Forty Niner the 5-2 second choice.

From the rail, the entire field for the 1 3/16-mile race, with jockeys and odds, includes:

1. Cefis, Eddie Maple, 20-1; 2. Regal Classic, Jorge Velasquez, 15-1; 3. Risen Star, Eddie Delahoussaye, 4-1; 4. Forty Niner,

Day, 5-2; 5. Winning Colors, Gary Stevens, 8-5; 6. Brian's Time, Angel Cordero, 12-1; 7. Private Terms, Chris Antley, 9-2; 8. Funder's Choice, Kent Desormeaux, 9-2; and 9. Sorry About That, Randy Romero, 30-1.

Private Terms and Funder's Choice, both owned by Stuart Janney and trained by Halcy, will be coupled for betting purposes. Cefis and Forty Niner, coupled in the Derby because they are both trained by Stephens, are not required by Maryland law to run as a single entry because they have different owners.

Victory is worth $413,700; second place, $70,000; third, $35,000; and fourth, $17,500.

Utah led by 21 in the second period and was ahead 50-30 following Stockton's jumper with 3:32 left until halftime. The Lakers used a 10-2 rush to get within 52-40, and forced the Jazz to settle for a 56-42 advantage at the break.

Scale insects will tap plant sap

By Phil Braunschweig
Special to the Herald

Scale? I have trouble with this one. It is referred to as scale, but this is not just one "it." Scale of insects are myriad number of creatures defined as scale insects.

They are very small and gut-like. The male is winged while the female is a de-generated and scale covered insect that attaches itself to the host plant and produces little ones who suck juices out of the host. About the only good thing is that you can readily see the wax like covering which surrounds them.

A large number of scale insects make a living in Florida with names such as the Citrus Cuscuton, Hemispherical Japanese Wax, Pyralis Brown Florida Red Snow, Tea and the orange bug. Just about everyone's yard is the home of one or more of these insects, and the particular kind or quantity depends to some extent on what you are trying to grow. Snow scale is partial to hibiscus and Burford holly, tea scale to camellias and so on.

Scales are classified into three groups: armored, soft and mealybugs. Armored scales secrete a waxy substance that covers their bodies, and this covering may be almost any color or shape, including circular, oval, oblong and pear. Soft scale secrete a similar waxy matter, but this is attached to the body. These can vary from 1/8 to 1/2 inch in diameter and may be flat to almost spherical in shape. Armored and soft scales crawl upon a plant looking for succulent growth, there spending the rest of their life cycle. Life spans vary from one to several generations in a year.

Scale damage usually results in a generally unhealthy looking plant, but the same conditions can be caused by disease, drought, other insects and nutritional imbalance. This makes it necessary to examine closely the affected plant. Look on the underside of the leaves, on stems and in crevices. One cannot miss snow scale.

Again, certain ornamentals have a history of persistent scale problems, and these should be sprayed in the spring after new growth begins, and before scales become mature, then sprayed again in two weeks. It takes some observation and experience to know when the time is ripe.

Unfortunately, getting rid of mature scales is difficult because one is confronted with the wax armor or coating. Orthene and Diazinon are suitable for young crawlers and mealybugs, but you can never see them unless you crawl around your yard with a 10 powder glass. Dimethoate (Cygon) and Metasystox Rate systems that once absorbed by the plant make it toxic to certain insects.

You can make up spray solutions or even make liquid drenches to apply to the soil around the plants. Do not use Cygon on Burford holly. I tried that before I read the label carefully. Cygon will defoliate the holly. Malathion or Ethion mixed with an oil emulsion are the best bet for armored and soft scales. These two also are suitable for citrus trees as they control not only scale but mites, whiteflies and mealybugs.

People who do not like to use insecticides may get good results from using an insecticidal soap. When you spray, apply to the point of runoff, and make sure to cover the underside of the leaves as well as the stems.

Another miserable condition that sometimes accompanies soft scales, whiteflies, and aphids is sooty black mold. This fungus grows on the honeydew excreted by the insects. It is not generally fatal, but is unsightly and growth-retarding. Weathering eventually will wear away sooty black mold, but on indoor or patio plants it may be necessary to wash it off one leaf at a time. A pail of water, some insecticidal soap or Ivory liquid and a sponge are all that is needed.

I might add that in the case of patio plants you can avoid some problems by making sure there is good air circulation. Many serious epidemics, including mine, have areas where there is poor air circulation setting up ideal conditions for insect and fungus infestations.

Keep in mind that many insect problems in Florida involve species invisible to the naked eye. This may necessitate following a preventative spray program and being continually on the lookout for evidence of insect damage.

Woman wonders if she should forget debt married man owes

DEAR ABBY: Back in 1960, "Tom" and I were engaged. He needed money to finish college, so I gave him $2,000. It was a nurse living at home at the time.

After Tom graduated, we broke up by mutual agreement. He said he'd repay the money when he could afford it.

Ten years later, he sent me a money order for $1,000, saying he had to be "careful" about sending me money because he didn't want his wife to know about what she would assume was an affair. Since then Tom has become very wealthy. While my husband and I are not destitute, I resent the fact that he has never really thanked me properly for helping him out when he needed it.

Now my question: Since it was a gift, should I forget it as he obviously has done? If not, how can I remind him that he still has a moral obligation to repay me? I haven't talked to him in 15 years, and I don't want to jeopardize his marriage over money.

the price tag was still on the back of it.

I suppose this painting has some special meaning to Andy and he probably spent many precious hours on it.

Our question: Should we keep the painting and hide it in the closet? Or is there a tactful way to give it back to Andy so he can enjoy it himself, or give it to someone who will appreciate it?

Surgery treatment for rectal cancer

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please describe the new procedure for treating rectal cancer known as endocavitary irradiation.
 DEAR READER: Endocavitary irradiation means the application of radiation into a hollow organ. This is usually performed using radium needles, as a treatment for cancer — particularly of the cervix and uterus.

Endocavitary irradiation is not a new technique. To my knowledge, it is not used for treating rectal cancer. The preferred treatment for rectal carcinoma is surgical removal followed by colostomy.
 Because of your interest in this subject, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Viruses and Cancer." Other readers who want a copy of this report should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: The main artery in the lower part of my stomach was plugged so badly that the doctor gave me a bypass with a plastic implant. Two months after the operation, my stomach is still so sore that you can't touch it, and when I walk or stand after sitting, I feel it rubbing. The doctor says, "Get used to it."

DEAR READER: Assuming no infection or other complication of surgery, your wound should become painless with time.
 You evidently had a form of bypass during which the diseased artery was bridged with a prosthesis. This required a lot of technically difficult surgery. With this type of operation, I've found that healing may not be complete for up to a year after the procedure. You don't have to "get used to it" in a few months; your discomfort should vanish. Of course, you will want to follow your doctor's instructions with respect to exercise and follow-up visits.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My hearing is so oversensitive, it's unbearable. Even with earplugs, I can hear loud, droning noises from two miles away. Is there anything I can do?

 DEAR READER: Hyperacusis (exceptionally keen hearing) usually denotes a painful sensitivity to sounds. It is uncommon and poorly understood. It is not due to ear disease. Although you may wish to see an ear specialist (otolaryngologist) for confirmation, I suspect that your best approach would be to take great care of your ears, using earplugs or sound-deadening earmuffs when necessary.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
 Is there a genetic factor in bridge genius? There isn't any scientific proof, but observers of the bridge scene have noticed young experts of distinguished lineage making their mark currently. Janice Seamon of Chicago and Miami is a good example. Both her parents have won North American championships. Her father played in the world championship in 1957; her aunt, Edith Kemp-Frelich, is a strong candidate for the best woman player of all time; another aunt, Anne Burnstein, has won a number of national championships. As you might imagine, after this buildup I am going to show you a contract that Janice played very, very well.

got a diamond lead. She won the king in dummy and played the ace of hearts. With the bad split giving West a sure trump trick, she had to work out a way to avoid losing a club. There was no hope unless spades behaved, so Janice played out the Q-K-A of spades successfully. She then cashed her high hearts and played a diamond to dummy's ace. Her plan was to ruff a diamond and then play the fourth good spade. Hopefully West would have to ruff and lead away from whatever club honor he might have. If she could guess the location of the club honors, she would be home. The endplay came earlier than she expected. West overruffed the third diamond and led the eight of clubs. Janice Seamon guessed to play dummy's queen and made her slam.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...
By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY MAY 21, 1988
 A course you'll choose for yourself in the year ahead may not be an easy one, but you will be fully cognizant of the value it has to offer. Don't let associates who are unaware of its merits discourage you.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you are too difficult to please today, someone who is willing to lend you a helping hand might up and leave you and let you fend for yourself. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you go shopping today and purchase something from a store with which you've never dealt, make doubly sure you can return the item if necessary.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be extremely careful how you deal with others today. If you are arrogant and condescending, it could scar your image in ways that will be slow to heal.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might have to deal with someone today with whom you've had problems in the past. If you try to even up the score, it will only add fuel to the fire.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) On occasion, you are sometimes too generous to the wrong people for your own good. There's a possibility that this might be one of those days.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your ambitious inclinations are admirable, however, be certain that whatever you are striving for will really please you when it is attained.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Usually you are a rather open-minded person, but today, you could have preconceived ideas that cause you to be biased toward certain issues.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19) You're likely to be better off today if you avoid associating with someone in your peer group who has a faculty for stirring up trouble.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone with whom you're associated may not be as loyal an ally as you have led yourself to believe. Today, this person might reveal his/her true colors.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rather than perform them poorly, it's best to temporarily postpone distasteful tasks until you are in a better frame of mind. Attitude is everything.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might have some difficulties today getting one who is obligated to you to ante up. Don't make matters worse by trying to pressure him/her.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Members of your family, especially your mate, require delicate handling today. Everyone in your household may be walking around with a chip on their shoulders.

FINANCIAL

Market active, prices climb

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 7.63 Thursday, was up 5.97 to 1964.69 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 645-245 among the 1,295 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 14,900,000 shares.

The stock market ended mixed Thursday after investors, anxious about inflationary and interest-rate pressures, became discouraged by overseas losses.

Dollar slightly higher; gold, silver open lower

By United Press International

The dollar drifted slightly higher today in light trading on major foreign currency markets. Gold edged lower.

In Europe, the dollar opened in Paris at 5.7505 francs, down from Thursday's close of 5.7540, but firmed elsewhere.

In Frankfurt, the dollar began the day at 1.6996 West German marks, up from 1.6993 and in Zurich, the dollar opened at 1.4165 Swiss francs, up from 1.4155.

In Brussels, the dollar opened at 35.705 Belgian francs, up from 35.70, and was 1,261.90 lire in Milan, up from 1,261.55.

In London, the pound opened at $1.8635, compared with $1.8665 on Thursday.

On the bullion markets, gold lost $1 in Zurich to $457 an ounce, and fell $1 in London to $457.25.

The London morning gold fixing was $456.50, off $1.75 from Thursday's close.

Traders in New York noted the foreign exchange market was exceptionally quiet.

Traders said the Labor Department's report showing the nation's consumer price index rising 0.4 percent in April, had little impact on the market and gave them no answers to the puzzle on inflation.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar held firm against the Japanese yen, closing out the week at 124.82 yen, up 0.02 from 124.80 yen on Thursday.

April consumer prices go up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher prices for clothing, energy and food sent consumer prices up 0.4 percent in April, an annual inflation rate of 5.3 percent, the Labor Department reported today.

up 0.8 percent from March, ranging from higher grocery stores prices for meat, fish, eggs, fruits and vegetables to more expensive meals at restaurants and markups at liquor stores. Only dairy product prices were down.

Patrick Jackman, a department spokesman, said more than a quarter of the increase was due to a 2 percent leap in clothing prices on the heels of another 2 percent rise in March.

Patrick Jackman, a department spokesman, said more than a quarter of the increase was due to a 2 percent leap in clothing prices on the heels of another 2 percent rise in March.

"It was not unexpected," Jackman said of the higher cost of clothing. "Some of it can be laid to imports. It's like model changeover in automobiles; people tend to introduce new lines at higher prices."

The cost of petroleum-based energy products was up 0.8 percent, the first increase in energy prices since November, the department said.

Food also cost more in April.

Jesup is either under water or wetland and could not be used for spray irrigation wastewater disposal, city officials said.

The site is currently zoned for agricultural uses. Though owned by the city, the land is unincorporated and under county zoning regulations.

County officials said they haven't seen a proposal for the sprayfield and are not in a position to say whether they would approve it until it has been reviewed. A special exception requires approval by the Seminole County Board of Adjustment and county commission, Hardin said.

Bill Simmons, Sanford city engineer, said the sprayfield is part of the city's $39.8 million revamping of its wastewater treatment system, designed to upgrade distribution of effluent and eliminate pollution of Lake Monroe.

Simmons said if a 200-acre prison was eventually built on the site, it could still be used for the proposed maximum of 3.2

it," Mahoney said.

Lake Mary currently has a sign ordinance, however its weaknesses and effectiveness have recently been called into question.

The commission will use the next six months to study the issue.

In other commission action: The ordinance proposing a 180-day moratorium on variances, site plan approvals or construction within the 104-foot setback along Lake Mary Boulevard received mixed support from commissioners but was amended and approved on its first reading.

The ordinance was amended to take into account Seminole County's decision on the future alignment of Lake Mary Boulevard. As a result of the county's decision, commissioners changed the point from which the 104-foot setback would take effect.

Commissioner George Duryea and Mahoney expressed reservations about the changes. Mahoney's main concern is a five-block section of the road.

He explained that the original ordinance's setback required 85 feet of undeveloped property between the road and property lines. Amendments to the proposed ordinance require a 39-foot buffer on the north side of the road.

Mahoney said the south side of the road would be improved by the amendment to the ordinance, but additional landscape requirements, rear buffers, and side buffers need to be studied.

"You can call this ordinance a moratorium, but it really is a redefinition of the setback to 39 feet," Mahoney said, adding he thinks the commission should consider aesthetic issues.

Duryea and Mahoney voted against the amended proposal. The ordinance's second reading will be at the next commission meeting on June 2.

In other business:

●The commission voted to discuss city pay increases at a workshop. Staff Coordinator Charles Lauderdale presented the commission with a package detailing pay scale adjustments.

In a memo to Mayor Dick Feas and commissioners, Lauderdale said the compensation adjustment plan "will start to move the city to a point where it is competitive within the local market."

The city has had difficulty keeping and recruiting employees because of its pay scale, he said.

Lauderdale's memo states the pay increases will make city salaries competitive, however, he points out they still will not equal the county's pay scale.

●The commission voted to approve an Interlocal Agreement between Lake Mary, Altamonte Springs, Casselberry, Longwood, Oviedo and Winter Springs allowing election services to be provided for the cities by the county.

The agreement states that when city and county elections occur at the same time the county will provide a number of services including computer programming services and ballot counting services. The city will in turn provide voter registration services.

...Fee

With a member from each city and the county on the committee, the agreement would require six of the eight members to approve new projects and changes in priorities.

The county commission must then give final approval to the road list.

The agreement does not assure the county will approve the changes because current commissioners, in adopting the initial agreement, cannot legally bind future commissioners from making changes, county officials said.

But County Administrator Ken Hooper said if the agreement were entered as a settlement, the judge's decision could bind future county commissions to the agreement.

Winter Springs officials are also angry that the first road priority list included with the agreement ranks a four-lane widening of Tusawilla Road from State Road 426 to East Lake Drive as a priority 3 and 4 in the six-priority ranking.

The list was ranked according to current and future traffic demands for the roads with a four and six-lane widening of Howell Branch Road receiving the highest priority in the county.

Hooper said if a city doesn't sign the agreement, the judge would have to decide whether the agreement would be binding on the remaining cities and the county. If it isn't, the county might be forced to appeal the March decision—something county officials don't want to do to avoid antagonizing the cities.

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith said she supported the agreement. "I'm ready to recommend the agreement," she said. "It's important because the need belongs to all of us."

Ken Ehlers, Casselberry city engineer, said that city's attorney is still reviewing the document and the city has no opinion as yet.

Other city officials at the meeting Wednesday said they support the agreement and will recommend it to their commissions.

Quinn said, with the exception of Tom Clark, none have had extensive riding experience with 20-pound, 12-speed bikes, but that the three Sanford residents have been putting in a lot of miles on the weekends preparing them for the trip. He said the three rode 102 miles on Sunday.

The four will travel approximately 100-130 miles a day during the trip and will "credit card it" on the way from Maine. Quinn said they hope to get early starts each morning and will not be traveling at night.

"We will not take any tents or anything like that," said Quinn. "We will stay at various motels along the way. We will take only the necessary equipment and credit cards." The four will carry water, clothing, tools and spare tires.

Quinn said that the four are financing their own trip and that all donations and pledges should go to the American Heart Association.

"We hope to raise $5,000," said Quinn. "We have asked that part of that go to cardiac rehabilitation, if they can do that sort of thing."

"We ask people to donate by the mile we ride, or any amount that they can," said Quinn.

Donations can be made by calling the American Heart Association at 843-1330 or by writing the association at P.O. Box 530665, Orlando, 32853.

have to deal with the black community now, not just the housing authority."

Wynt said he informed Mayor Bettye Smith and the city commissioners about the Ball situation once by registered mail and "several times" by regular mail over the last six months.

A May 9 letter from Mayor Smith to Wynt said that the city commission only had the authority to appoint members to the board and could not involve itself with the operation of the housing authority board, and could only remove a member for cause.

City attorney Bill Colbert said Thursday the city commission has the authority "if they chose" to hold a hearing on the matter "after notice of specific charges."

The hearing could be held at a regularly-scheduled city commission meeting or at the special hearing, according to Colbert.

City Commissioner Bob Thomas said Thursday that Ball should be removed from the board.

"I don't feel that he is worth being a part of that board any longer," said Thomas. "If he is allowed to get away with that (May 18 comment) the board will not function in a positive manner. Mr. Ball's comment was most unfortunate. I am very sorry he did make such a comment."

Ball said he wants an investigation into all the expense accounts of all the commissioners, including his own, and then he would be glad to reimburse any money owed. Ball said Thursday that he asked for his investigation months ago.

"I tried to get (Mayor) Bettye Smith to investigate eight or nine months ago," Ball said. "She said that she would talk with the city attorney to see what could be done and if I didn't hear from her there was nothing they could do."

Ball said he never heard from the mayor.

Commissioners John Y. Mercer and A. A. McClanahan said they also believe there should be an investigation into the entire housing authority, including its staff and Executive Director Elliott Smith.

"I have been concerned about the operation of the Sanford Housing Authority since I've been on the city commission," said Mercer.

"I would welcome an investigation into the entire housing authority," said McClanahan.

Ball said he has had no contact with the mayor or city commissioners about his May 18th comment. "They know what the situation is. They are well aware of everything," Ball said. "Why should they talk to me?"

Tapes help jury convict rapist

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Jurors say they argued bitterly for 10 days before convicting a delicatessen worker in a four-year spree of robberies and rapes against women who identified him only through voice recordings.

Thursday's conviction against Scott Carroll, 27, was the first in New York state obtained largely with the use of a tape-recorded "voice lineup" in which victims identified the attacker by the sound of his voice.

Defense attorney Eric Naiburg maintained that Carroll, who did not testify, is not the masked intruder who carried out the attacks and was identified mistakenly on the basis of the voice recordings.

Six of the 12 jurors accepted the voice identifications, but the others were reluctant, finally becoming convinced after intense and sometimes angry deliberations that took 10 days, a record for a criminal trial in New York state.

"Do I think he was guilty? Yes," said juror William Brown, a postal worker. "But do I think he was proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt? I'm not sure. I don't think you can identify a voice from a tape. I got to go home and examine myself. The pressure was something else. I was called everything you can think of."

Prosecutors maintained that Carroll is the "South Shore rapist" blamed for the sexual assaults and robberies of seven women between January 1983 and January 1987 in the South Shore section of Long Island.

They said he stalked his victims for days, then sneaked into their bedrooms as they slept, placing a screwdriver at their throats.

Carroll was convicted in Suffolk County Court of 31 counts of rape, sodomy, sexual abuse, robbery, burglary and grand larceny. The convictions included four rapes and one attempted rape.

The jury acquitted Carroll of two counts of burglary and could not reach verdicts on 21 other counts, including one of rape and one of attempted rape.

Carroll showed no emotion as the jury foreman recited verdicts for each of the 54 counts. Several members of the jury of nine women and three men wept.

16 injured in student protest

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Dissident students hurled homemade bombs at the U.S. Embassy in Seoul and stormed a ruling party office in a provincial city today in protests that injured 16 people.

Sixteen students, identifying themselves as members of "death squads" out to punish the perpetrators of a 1980 "massacre," were arrested in the two demonstrations.

Five protesters scaled the fence at the embassy, taking clubs and explosive devices with them, but they were quickly captured.

Seven students were arrested after the series of clashes with police at the U.S. Embassy, which broke out at 11:30 a.m.

One hour after the embassy violence, nine students stormed an office building of the ruling Democratic Justice Party in Suwon, 30 miles south of Seoul, the official Yonhap News Agency reported quoting police.

Four students and 12 policemen were injured in the incidents.

The U.S. Embassy said an undetermined number of male youths rushed the outside wall of the embassy compound, hurling explosive devices at the building.

At least one of the bombs exploded on the embassy grounds and another device was believed to have blown up prematurely in the hands of one of the students, the embassy said. The extent of injury to the protester was not immediately known.

"Five of the perpetrators gained access to the embassy compound by scaling the front fence," the embassy said. "In accordance with standard procedure agreed upon with the Korean authorities, Korean police entered the compound immediately to remove the intruders."

Security officials later found two explosive devices and two steel clubs on the grounds of the compound, the embassy said.

"The intruders, who were armed with additional explosive devices and steel clubs, resisted the police, possibly resulting in some injuries," it said. "All five intruders and two additional persons were taken into custody by the police."

Korean police said four policemen were wounded, one seriously, at the embassy.

Iran says it is at war with United States

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — A senior Iranian official told a prayer meeting in Tehran today that Iran is "at war" with the United States and accused Washington of providing financial and propaganda support for Iraq.

Parliamentary Speaker Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani said U.S.-Iranian relations worsened when the United States sent its naval fleet into the Persian Gulf last year to protect 11 reflagged Kuwait tankers.

"The situation is different this year compared with the year before," the official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Bahrain, quoted Rafsanjani as saying.

"The Americans have officially entered into a war with us ... we are at war with the U.S. at the time being."

Report from another planet

By Guy MacMillin

Report to the Supreme Council, Albamore Galaxy, Section A-11:

As instructed, we have been investigating the possibility that intelligent life exists beyond Section A-11.

Here on the third planet from a remote star, our exploratory party has succeeded in tapping into the prime transmission system for information. Although there are three principal transmitting agencies — known by the codes AIC, CBS and NBC — we have observed no differences among them.

Some of these transmissions have been discontinued during our visit, but here is what we have learned:

The planet's science is outlined in a transmission called "Probe" (AIC). It is said to come "from the science-fiction mind of Isaac Asimov," which may be some sort of artificial intelligence. The only mention of this mind is at the beginning of the transmission. The rest of the information concerns a creature called Austin James. He is said to be extremely intelligent, but the transmissions do not confirm that.

Some police agents here are called "High Mountain Rangers" (CBS). They participate in what are called action-adventures, which we would deem mostly action. High Mountain Rangers all appear to be members of the same family.

Another police agent is called "The Highwayman" (NBC). He drives a vehicle that our research indicates may be the result of an accident in which a flying vessel (known as a helicopter) has embedded itself in a land vessel (known as a freight train).

Highwayman travels with a male named Jetto, who is introduced at the start of the transmission as Jacko. We are attempting to resolve the contradiction, but it does not seem important.

The planet's education system is explained in a transmission called "Day By Day" (NBC). Adults bring their offspring to a structure where they are looked after by a male and a female who communicate through something called humor. After each communication, other creatures that cannot be seen in the transmission make gasping and honking noises. We are endeavoring to determine why.

The religious beliefs here are outlined in a transmission called "Aaron's Way" (NBC). A large, godlike creature called Aaron is the focus. In other transmissions, he is called "Father Murphy." Aaron is extremely pleasant, but occasionally must punish non-believers by knocking them down. The god Aaron can also be seen in transmissions that urge people to purchase flowers, which apparently don't grow freely here as they do on Section A-11.

The planet's social organization is seen in a transmission called "In the Heat of the Night" (NBC). Creatures with light surfaces do not enjoy the companionship of creatures with dark surfaces. The only exception appears to be a light creature called Gillespie, who spends much time with a dark creature called Tibbs. Another mystery.

The system of laws is explained in a transmission called "Eisenhower & Lutz" (CBS). Legal experts here, called "lawyers," are extremely dishonest.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Nina was ecstatic, but Phillip ran out of Ray's mansion when she told him that the paternity tests show that Phillip is the father of Nina's baby. Paul told Jack that his investigation of Brad turned up the fact that Brad had once married a shy, but wealthy, young woman after working as the family's gardener. The girl's family later had the marriage annulled. Lisa sped on Brad, who was having lunch with Tracy. Tracy admitted that she's pregnant after John guessed that she's going to make him a grandfather. Danny encouraged Cricket, who is thinking about going on a cruise so that she can think about what she wants to do with her life. Leanna (Kelly) fantasized about disfiguring Victor's handsome face. Jason told Tim that he has a publisher who is thinking about paying Tracy's novel. At Victor's insistence, Nikki went to Casey for a medical checkup.

OUTSIDING LIGHT

Alan was stunned when Phillip announced at the Spaulding gala that the board of directors voted Alan out as chairman. Wrongly suspecting that Reva had a part in his demise, Alan told her that he never wants to see her again. The Lewis clan signed Phillip's merger papers, but turned them when they learned that he doesn't plan to implement the merger right now. Will told Solida (Sonni) that even though the merger hasn't gone through, he's going through with his plans to kill Jack so that Solida (Sonni) will inherit his estate. Harley crashed the Spaulding gala after Cameron was unable to get them tickets to the bash. Maevr admitted to Maureen that she and Fletcher are trying to patch up their romance. Rusty and Rose hid in the country club stables to elude Nick's hit man. Nick found that the hit man hasn't killed Rusty yet. Mindy was impressed by Frank's business sense. Rusty and Rose made love.

LOVING

Gwyneth turned when Jeff snid her up. Meanwhile, Jeff spent an enjoyable evening dining with Trisha, who agreed to keep mum about their evening together. After renting a room from Kate, Egypt and Minnie learned that Ava is Kate's daughter and Alex's (Clay) new wife. Rick stole the manuscript for Stacy's novel, then gave it to literary agent, Liz, who liked it. Ava became upset when Egypt said that Clay (Alex) reminds her of someone she used to know. Sharna told Jim that she wants a divorce. Dan kissed Sharna.

Where is '40s star Luana Patten now?

Dear Dick: What can you tell me about Luana Patten, who played in a very good movie in the '40s? I would also like to know the name of the movie. — L.T., Milford, Ind.

Dear L.T.: I'm sure you're referring to the Disney classic, "Song of the South." Miss Patten, a teenage star of the '40s, is 50 now and, she tells me, her health has been very poor since a cancer operation in '77. She has undergone several operations in the last decade — a kidney removal and, recently, heart bypass surgery — and she says her health is so poor she doubts she will ever work again.

Dear Dick: A few months ago, the TV listings said there would be a world premiere of a movie called "Moving Target," with Jason Bateman. But I never saw the movie. What happened to it? — N.B., Reading, Pa.

Dear N.B.: It was duly aired by NBC on Feb. 8. It is possible that the NBC affiliate in your area elected not to carry it, but it was aired throughout the nation. Maybe you slept through it.

Dear Dick: I loved Julie Christie in the movie, "Far From the Madding Crowd." Was it made before or after "Dr. Zhivago"? Is it available on video? Why don't we see the fabulous Julie Christie any more, or have I just missed her? — J.S., Cedar Hills, Utah.

Dear J.S.: Her most recent films have not been very good; they've come and gone quickly. They had such names as "Miss Mary" and "Power." But watch for her in a forthcoming CBS mini-series, tentatively called "A Long Way From Home," with Victor

Dick Kleiner

Banerjee. "Dr. Zhivago" was released in '65 and "Far From the Madding Crowd," which is not available on cassette, two years later.

Dear Dick: What was the name of the robot on the show, "Lost in Space"? — C.C., Irondale, Ohio.

Dear C.C.: It had no name. It was simply called The Robot.

Dear Dick: Back in the middle '60s, I purchased an album of songs from Judy Garland films. In it was "Bei Mir Bist Du Schon" which I believe was written by Sammy Cahn. Where can I find this recording by Judy, and what movie is it from? — T.C., Key West, Fla.

Dear T.C.: That was Cahn's first hit, written in '53. He wrote it for the Andrews Sisters, not for a movie. It is possible that it was performed in some movie, but it was originally strictly a Tin Pan Alley tune, written just to be sung on record.

Dear Dick: Do you know what the first name of Lt. Castillo (Edward James Olmos) is on "Miami Vice"? None of us know and it's driving us crazy. — D.E.S., Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Dear D.E.S.: Control yourselves. His name is Martin Castillo.

Dear Dick: Joanna Kerns of "Growing Pains" has a sister who was an athlete.

But I can't remember who it was. Can you help? — L.S., Watsonville, Pa.

Dear L.S.: Joanna's sister is the ex-swimming champ, Donna DeVerona.

Dear Dick: Could you please inform me how I could reach Mr. Forrest Tucker? — R.K., Marquette, Mich.

Dear R.K.: Forrest Tucker died in 1986.

Dear Dick: I liked "Carter Country." I wonder what happened to it and what was the name of the black man that played on that program. — C.K.D., Savannah, Ga.

Dear C.K.D.: It simply got cancelled when the network felt its ratings were not high enough. Keme Holliday was the actor in question and you can see him currently on "Matlock."

Star Speak

Talking with Eric Roberts

By Frank Sanello

Eric Roberts has played many exotic roles in his career — most of them as heavies. He was a petty thief in the title role of "King of the Gypsies" (1978), a murderous pimp in "Star 80" (1983), a small-time hood in "The Pope of Greenwich Village" (1984), and an escaped convict in "Runaway Train," which earned him an Oscar nomination in 1985.

In "To Heal a Nation," an NBC-TV movie airing May 29, 30-year-old Roberts gets to play a hero for a change. He portrays Jan Scruggs, the real-life veteran who fought to erect the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C.

Here, the Atlanta-raised Roberts, who studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London, talks about the Vietnam War, his near-fatal car crash in 1981, and his recent arrest in New York on drunk and disorderly charges.

Q: If you had been 19 instead of 11 in 1969, would you have gone to Vietnam or resisted the draft?

A: There are some days when I think, "Hell, no, I wouldn't go," and other days I feel like, just to prove that the men who went there weren't baby-killers, I would have gone. All I know is they didn't go as troublemakers.

Q: Why do you think there was a need to honor the veterans of America's most unpopular war?

A: It's not a case of honoring. As the word "memorial" suggests, it's to remember them. It's not a political issue. It's a personal one. The 50,000 guys whose names are on the memorial weren't Republicans or Democrats, socialists or fascists. They were guys who came home in plastic body bags.

Q: You almost wound up in one of those yourself — but not in Vietnam.

A: I crashed my Jeep into a tree going 35 mph in 1981. I was trying to stop my German shepherd from jumping out, so I leaned over and let go of the wheel.

I was in a coma for 71 hours. I had to re-educate my body and learn to walk again. I still don't throw a ball straight. The dog got 22 stitches.

Q: The press reported that you had extensive plastic surgery after the crash.

A: Yeah, I read that I had my face completely rebuilt. But I didn't have any plastic surgery. And I've got the scars (from the accident) to prove it. I'm just not pretty anymore.

Q: What is your most vivid memory of studying at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts when you were only 15?

A: I was chosen by my fellow classmates to invite Laurence Olivier to attend a school production. He couldn't come, but he did take the time to chat with me as we walked toward his Bentley. It made such an impression on me that I will always be nice to my fans.

Q: What's your explanation of your recent run-in with the law?

A: I was charged with drunk and disorderly conduct — for about five minutes. I was at the wrong place at the wrong time. I went to visit an old friend who had moved and hadn't told me. The police were there to answer a call about someone disturbing the peace. They thought I was the guy. Contrary to press reports, I wasn't drunk, and no cocaine was found.

Q: Of all the bad guys you have played, which one did you despise the most?

A: Paul Snider in "Star 80." It was the only role I ever took on that I had no affinity for. The only reason I took the job was I admired (director) Bob Fosse so much.

Q: How did you feel when you learned you had been nominated for an Oscar for "Runaway Train"?

A: I was walking my dog when I bumped into my manager on the street. I was in front of a doughnut shop, and ran in and shouted, "Doughnuts on me!"

Q: You've starred in some major films. Were you hesitant about appearing on television?

A: It's the script, not the medium, that interests me. I didn't become an actor to become a movie star, but, don't get me wrong, I have no objections to being a movie star.

Q: What would you like to be doing in 10 years?

A: Breathing. (C) 1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

ERIC ROBERTS stars in "To Heal a Nation," NBC's made-for-TV movie about the efforts of Vietnam vets to construct a memorial in Washington.
