Plumber Ends Up In Hot Water

DALLAS, N. C. (AP)—Plumber Nelson Eldon found himself in hot water today because his elaborate home plumbing system did not hold water.

In fact, officers found that it held nothing but pure whiskey.

For some time officers had suspected that, in addition to his obvious flair for pipe-fitting, Eldon had other talents. Last year he was arrested for hiding whiskey in his fireplace.

When officers raided his home this week, one of them accidentally turned on the kitchen tap. Whiskey came out and kept coming. The officers followed copper tubing from the kitchen sink to a 42-gallon tank in the back yard.

Eldon was released under $500 bond on charges of violating the liquor laws.

"Waiting" Is Easier If You Look Pretty

By HERMAN H. RUNDELSEN, M.D.
EXPECTANT mothers should maintain a continual happy and contented frame of mind.

Keeping up your appearance despite your expanding figure will help a great deal. Don't "let your self go" just because you're going to have a baby.

Mental and Physical
While it's important to wear nice clothes because of the mental uplift they bring, it's just as important, from the physical aspect, to wear the proper clothing.

All clothing, of course, should be adequate for the weather. You've got to keep warm.

But no matter what the temperature, you should stay away from high heels, at least during your pregnancy. Heels no more than one and one-half inches in height are advised.

If the heels are higher, I think you'll find it difficult to stand. This is especially true in the final months of pregnancy with the rapidly changing weight balance.

Bad Fall
A bad fall during pregnancy, or even a serious thing, is also suggested that your abdominal avoid rolled stockings and garter.

These tend to interfere with circulation and might cause swelling of the ankles and feet. The brassiere should lift the breasts upward and inward. While it should offer firm support, it should not flatten the breasts, since this might be harmful.

Welcome Comfort
A maternity corset is advisable for some mothers-to-be in the latter months of pregnancy. It relieves the work and tension placed upon the muscles of the abdomen and provides welcome comfort.

Ask your doctor whether such a corset might aid you. If he suggests you get one, be sure that it is fitted carefully. Corsets made of non-elastic material probably are best, since most elastic tends to lose its strength.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
L. M. A.: What are the symptoms of menopause?
Answer: During menopause, or change of life, there are such symptoms as hot flashes, nervousness, and cessation of menstrual flow. Indigestion and disturbances in the circulation may also be present.

U. S. Stands Firm In Opposing More Israel Concessions

WASHINGTON — The United States stood firm today in its opposition to granting Israel any more concessions as a pre-condition for withdrawal of its troops from Egyptian territory.

"No chance," was the answer officials gave when asked whether the United States might change its stand.

Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion Thursday rejected President Eisenhower's latest appeal for a withdrawal. But he said he hoped the "door to further discussions" with the United States was still open.

Dormitory To House Over 300

Local citizens will have an opportunity to see the New York Giant Farm System's dormitory building recently completed next to the Sanford Memorial Baseball Stadium at Celery Ave.

A formal open house is being held Sunday afternoon from 1 to 5 when the doors will be thrown open and the public taken on tours throughout the huge plant that will house more than 300 young baseball players who will be in Sanford for the Farm System's spring training season.

The dormitory building was opened for the first time last Wednesday when the Sanford Kiwanis Club held their weekly luncheon meeting in the dining room as guests of the New York Giants Farm System with Carl Hubbell, the Director and Frank Mohr, Jr., Manager of the Mayfair Inn serving as hosts.

John Krider, Manager of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce and for many years directly connected with baseball, told the Kiwanis Club group "This is the first time that a major league club has made a solid investment in a community to train a baseball club."

The dormitory building is adjacent to the Sanford Memorial Baseball Stadium where not only the baseball diamond there will be built into use during the Spring Training season but where additional baseball diamonds have been built to take care of the large number.

Holland Urging Navy To Keep NAS In Area

Rotarians Hold Indoctrination Here Last Night

Three of the newest members of the Sanford Rotary Club, Dr. W. V. Roberts, "Kim" Kimbrell and Wally Phillips, are thoroughly indoctrinated into which they were recently inducted as a result of a "Rotary Indoctrination" meeting put on by five "prominent" Orlando Rotarians at the School Administration Building last night.

Taking part in the program of instruction were: James B. Keith, district governor; Paul J. Shine, past district governor; the Rev. Malcolm Watson; J. Stanley Bumby, past president of the Orlando club; and Howard Sweat, presently Orlando club president. The meeting was pronounced as the best of its kind yet presented by George Silve, Walter M. Hayes

"I have strongly urged the Navy to continue the Sanford Station, in whole or in part, and to give preference to the Osceola site rather than completely abandon Seminole County," Senator Spearman L. Holland told The Sanford Herald in a letter received late yesterday.

Senator Holland stated "That will continue to be my position."

In his letter directed to the Executive Editor of The Sanford Herald, Holland explained "I believe that all existing facilities should be utilized insofar as possible and I object to the abandonment of any facility that would be the requirement of the Navy air mission in favor of construction of new bases at added cost to our tax bill."

The Florida Senator said "I have discussed this matter several times recently with officials of the Navy Department who advise me that the Navy feels that civilian development around Sanford has continued to the point where expansion of the local station is not feasible and that the site itself is too close to the populated areas of Sanford to be compatible with modern jet operations."

Interest in the proposed new Naval Air Station, Sixth Naval District continues to run high in the Sanford area. However, yesterday, the campaign for funds with which a representative from the county might be "on the scene" in Washington to investigate every possibility, ran into a "slow down" snag with no additional pledges or payments of pledges coming into the Chamber of Commerce office.

All funds will be handled by the Armed Forces Committee of the local Chamber of Commerce and dispersed only over the signature of the treasurer, R. J. Bauman and the President, Clifford McKibbin.

Funds not used for the specific purpose for which they were contributed will be returned, said Chamber of Commerce Manager John Krider.

Krider expects to leave Sanford for Washington next Monday, accompanying Senator George Smathers and Congressman A. B. Herlong Jr. It is expected that the local Chamber of Commerce executive will have a full schedule of conferences slated for his Funds being raised now "in effort to retain the Naval Air Station, Sixth Naval District in Seminole County" increased again today.

The total subscribed and contributed up to this point totals $11,755 according to the records maintained in the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Office.

A check received this morning from Winn-Dixie Stores added $1,000 to the $10,755 total. The need for $18,000 to $25,000 to wage a political battle to retain the Navy facilities in Seminole County.

The Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce has already placed the new Ford automobile on the street carrying signs that it will be "given away" on March 30.

Contributions of one dollar are being taken to benefit the fund which will be used by the Armed Forces Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Additional pledges are needed to swell the total.

The pledge below may be used to send to Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, Sanford, Fla.

Jaycees To Give Away Automobile In Fund Drive

The Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce is giving away a brand new automobile in an effort to raise funds for the effort to keep the Naval Air Station, Sixth Naval District in the Seminole County area.

Contributions are being taken, according to Ed Hunt, chairman of the Jaycee effort, which will enable the citizen who has just a dollar he would like to invest in the effort.

The automobile is expected to be awarded on March 30.

The Chamber of Commerce has strongly urged that all those who have made pledges to the fund send their checks in as soon as possible. "This is a combined effort and a cooperative venture in the interest of preserving the economic life of our community," one member of the committee said.

Era Of Space Flight To Begin End Of Year

"At the end of this year, a Vanguard rocket will rise into the air to mark the beginning of a new era — the era of space flight," R. S. Ronay, an engineer with the Douglas Aircraft Corp. assigned to the Air Force Missile Test Center at Patrick Air Force Base, told the Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce yesterday at its noon luncheon meeting.

Ronay spoke on the ideals, trials, and tribulations that made the satellite possible; and how the men and scientists now working on the project are hoping that this will be the first step toward space travel.

"It will be the first time that man has placed a vehicle in space which will circle the globe without a continued means of propulsion," he said.

"A proposal of this sort just 15 years ago would have seemed sheer lunacy," Ronay stated.

The engineer, who is originally from New York City, and who served as a radar technician with the U.S. Navy during World War

II, explained that "The Vanguard is a three stage 'finless rocket' utilizing a completely self-contained guidance system. This system includes a pitch programmer which controls the amount of tilt the rocket should have at any time, for optimum ascent. This angle is the difference between the rocket's heading and true vertical."

Flower Experts Demonstrate

At tables centered with beautiful tropical arrangements the Sanford Garden club held its annual luncheon at the Mayfair, after which it presented a flower arrangement forum and demonstration.

Mrs. Frank Evans was chairman. At the brief business session Mrs. Fred Ganas, president, spoke of a landscape course which will be given at the court house on eight successive Tuesdays, at 7:30 p. m., beginning Tuesday Mrs. Ganas called on a volunteer to assist her with the course's functioning and Mrs.

E. Leeper of the Dirt Gardeners circle proffered her help.

Mrs. George Hardin introduced the three speakers for the afternoon: Mrs. Harry Griffin, past state president of Florida Associated Garden clubs, Mrs. E. M. Murphy, who gives valuable time to teaching new clubs her technique in floral design and Mrs. Frank Owen, Jr. whose hobby is orchids. All three are from Daytona Beach.

"Bouquets of assorted flowers always look pretty," stated Mrs.

Murphy, "and we enjoy them but when we undertake real arrangements we must give them thought. First, there must be a design, then comes the selection of flowers which will harmonize with the place chosen for their display or requirements of a flower show motif. Containers are to be considered, also. Then, there is a standing rule of height one and one half times that of the container but many of us moderns say 'let the sky be the limit.'"

Play's Opening Night 'Success'

A small but enthusiastic audience attended the Opening Night showing of Bell, Book and Candle, produced by the Sanford Theatre Guild and presented last night in City Hall Auditorium.

Spectators, not only pleased but thrilled with performance of the cast responded with "not only well cast, but superbly staged and excellently directed."

In the audience last night for the first night was Volle A. Williams Jr. and his wife who both stated that "Bell, Book and Candle is certainly worth seeing."

Both praised the show highly.

Bell, Book and Candle will be presented again tonight in the City Hall auditorium with curtain time at 8:15 o'clock.

Mrs. Ernest Cowley who had a leading role in the Sanford Theatre Guild production said, following the first night performance,

"Credit should be given to George Dabbs for the wonderful part he played with less than two weeks of rehearsal."

Dabbs commented "The show went over well but not as many attended as we had expected. The audience responded well to the performance of the cast."

Mrs. Cowley portrays Gillian in Bell, Book, and Candle, a young girl adept in the art of witchcraft who loses her power when she falls in love with Shop, done by George Dabbs.

Rob Mera takes the part of Gillian's brother and Mary Schueneman plays the part of an aunt who also practices witchcraft with Gillian and Nicky.

Harry DeWitt is cast in the role of Sidney Redlitch, an author whose book fails to be published because of the "hax" placed on it by Gillian.

Don Fletcher and Francis Roumual did the set and the cast was responsible for their own makeup. "We helped each other out," they remarked following last night's show.

The play will be seen both tonight and tomorrow night with the same curtain time each evening. A cocktail party was held last night in the Mayfair Inn Hallroom following the first night performance honoring the cast.

Living Costs Shoot To Record High Again Last Month

WASHINGTON (AP)—The cost of living shot up to a record high again last month, the government has reported. It was the fifth consecutive month it has set a record.

The increase brought automatic cost of living pay hikes for 1.4 million workers in the automobile, farm equipment and aircraft industries.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor statistics said its consumer price index rose two-tenths of one per cent between December and January to 118.2 per cent of average 1947-49 prices.

Bureau Commissioner Clague said he expects living costs to continue "to creep up like this" again in February.

Record Level
 The Bureau reported that the average take home pay of factory workers in January and their paycheck buying power were at record levels for the month. But they were below the peak reached in December.

It said the decline was due largely to a drop in the number of hours worked and an increase of one-fourth of one per cent in the social security tax.

The average factory worker with three dependents earned 74.99 a week after taxes last month—about 31.50 below his December earnings. His buying power stood at 122.8 per cent of the 1947-49 average, compared to 125.5 per cent in December.

As a result of the rise in living costs, 1.1 million automobile, farm equipment and aircraft factory workers will get a penny an hour pay hike on March 1.

Electrical Workers
 The bureau said pay increases will go to 300,000 workers in electrical and other industries whose wage contracts contain cost of living escalator clauses. These include 120,000 Westinghouse Electric Corp. employees who will get a penny an hour increase next month.

The price index showed prices for food and clothing declined slightly last month. However, the reductions were more than offset by price hikes for all other major

Central Florida Kentucky Picnic Slated March 17

The Central Florida Kentucky picnic which was to be held on the regular third Sunday in February has been postponed to the third Sunday in March on account of the Leeburg Centennial now in progress.

The Kentucky picnic will be held Sunday March 17 at the Community Building in Leesburg. "Please note the change of date and be on hand at that time bringing a covered dish enough for three," a spokesman said. Table service, coffee and trimmings will be furnished.

groups of goods and services. Price rises were reported for fuel, oil, coal, gas, telephone service, laundry and dry cleaning, hospital and medical services, used cars, automobile insurance, gasoline and new models of some appliances.

New car prices at the dealers' level were lower but the decline was only half that registered in January a year ago.

Rents averaged about the same as in December.

Household fuel oil prices rose 1.3 per cent and coal and gas prices a fraction of one per cent. Clague said the rise in fuel oil prices since the Suez Canal shutdown was "pulling" the prices of other fuels with it.

Now Hear This!

By JACKY FENWICK

After several false alarms, and a few minor mishaps, we are very happy to announce the definite and official opening of the E. M. Club! Tonight, Feb. 22, 1957, with appropriate ceremonies, Capt. R. W. Jackson, commanding officer of S. N. A. S., will cut the ribbon and open the doors to all enlisted personnel and their guests, at 1900 hours. (7 o'clock to all you "landlubbers") All refreshments (both drinks and food), will be "on the house", and an orchestra will be on hand so you can dance until closing! To those of you who may not have heard, the club has been closed for some time during which it has been undergoing a complete "face-lifting". Everything is new, from the ceiling to the floor! Yes, I mean the ceiling and the floor, as well as all the furnishings. If you don't want to eat, or drink, or dance, it will be worth a trip out just to see how it looks. So come one, come all, and support your club. It needs each and everyone of you to make it the success I know we all want it to be.

Heard tell that the loyal order of H. A. R. P. had their first monthly get together at the Lake Golden Recreation Area, Feb. 18, 1957. The hostess for the occasion served barbequed chicken, potato salad, baked beans, tossed salad, and all the little extras that make that kind of an outdoor meal so good. Also want to let all you H. A. R. P. know that you soon will be called for a business meeting, so be prepared! What is a H. A. R. P.? Why, aren't you one? ?

Congratulations go out to Chief L. A. Lasey of V. A. H. 8, J. H. Mitchell, AMC, R. D. McKenzie, ADL, and Kenneth P. Morla, AKI, (all in Eason St.) on their "shipppingover".

Casual But Careful

Another firm will feature the "garden party look." This matches floral printed fabrics. Eye make-up lipstick and rouge will come in "Van Gogh sun colors"—bright tones.

Another cosmetics maker (Lily Dache) forecasts a casual but carefully put-together look for spring—skin that definitely is made up but looks as though it grew that way.

This firm predicts that face will lose their mask quality. Skins will have a shine, not a mat finish. Eyes will be highlighted. Lips will be bright and shaped into a ready smile. This maker also will favor brown and grey eye pencil instead of black, mauve and blue eyeshadow, and a new power containing real crushed pearls.

Another cosmetics house stresses the monochromatic idea, or make up that carries out the matching look in clothes.

Seminole Take On Cocoa Here Tonight In Last Home Game

Hebert Reported To Be Playing Best Game In Tourney

Jay Hebert, Sanford playing pro for the New York Giants at the Hotel New York, who is now in Houston, Tex., for the $30,000 Houston Open, was reported by the wire services as playing his best game.

But Hebert, winner of the Bing Crosby and Texas Open and presently leading PGA money winner in the nation, along with golf's other touring pros, and along with the golf experts, were looking a wary eye at three-time British Open winner Peter Thomson as the tourney got underway yesterday.

But Thomson had mighty challenges to meet yesterday in the form of Hebert and defending champion Ted Kroll. And Kroll, who confessed to keeping "under par" in a practice 18 hole round Wednesday, said to contend with former Houston Open champion Dr. Cary Middlecott, Johnny Palmer, Jackie Burke, Mike Souchak, and Dave Dodgins.

Hebert was listed as a strong favorite to close out with consistent play when the chips were down in the final round.

"It's now or never in the regular season," basketball mentor Bud Laver said this morning of his Sanford Seminole cage quintet as they made last minute discussions for their last home game of the season tonight when they take on Cocoa.

"This bunch is not beyond being upset," Laver told the group in a spirited discussion. "They have more determination."

Since the New Smyrna Beach game the Seminoles have been giving out with a capacity of energy in preparation for this last "big one" of the season.

The only remaining events on the Seminoles' schedule is an elimination game with Vero Beach for the State Tournament next Tuesday night and then possibly the Group 5 Tournament for final eliminations before the State event.

"You boys haven't done a disreputable job this season," Laver said. "We beat the only teams that figured to be on an equal basis with us and we gave some top-notch teams a run for their money. Next year we will have a peak season. Don't let a building year get you down. You have all earned valuable experience and have done yourselves proud."

Both mentor Laver and assistant mentor Dick Silvers said this morning that, with the exception of two weeks when the pressure from all sides caused the team to lose confidence, the season had been better than actually anticipated at the beginning of the season. Laver urged that the interested people of Sanford, who were eager to help build a bigger and better athletic program at Seminole High, turnout in mass for this, the last game of the regular season. "Nothing will help the future of these boys more than to have a huge turnout tonight," he said. "As far as the season record is concerned, the team has had a bad year, and nothing would be more helpful to the spirits of these boys than a feeling that they still have the following of the home town people."

Laver said that his boys would put on a good show and guaranteed that they would give the best in tonight's game. "The boys want to win now, and the way they are received tonight could mean the difference in how the game ended."

Silvers was in accord with Laver's comments. When informed of Laver's remarks, Silvers said, "It's indeed fortunate for the school that we have Laver here. When a man has patience and understanding during a losing season and he keeps encouraging his boys he is a true coach. The boys will have a brilliant year next year, and a good turnout tonight would let the boys turn in their uniforms knowing that the people understand and appreciate their problems this season. There would be no better climax to the season than a packed auditorium tonight."

Upsel Over Missing Pin Boy Results In Automatic Setter

NEW YORK—A young engineer's disappointment over a bowling league game called off when a pin boy failed to show up, led to invention of the automatic pin setter and virtually revolutionized the game.

Product Engineering, McGraw-Hill publication tells the story in its current issue. Fred Schmidt was the bowling enthusiast who, one night in 1936, had to forego his league game. George Becherie, operator of the alley at Pearl River, N. Y., where Schmidt bowled, told him a tale of woe, describing the troubles he and 18,000 other certified alley operators had with unreliable pin boys. He added that "someone should invent an automatic pin-setting machine."

Laid Schmidt, "That's easy," he could have been more wrong. Schmidt reasoned that the top of a bowling pin was generally the least battered part. An inverted suction cup, he figured, could pick up the pin by the top.

Further Refinements Needed But it was not enough. The machine had allowed for pins that were knocked down. To do this, the cup would be arranged so that if a pin entered, it would determine whether the suction in the cup should turn on.

With Schmidt's idea, plus Becherie's financing and a draftsman from the plant where Schmidt worked, the job began in an old turkey house. They fitted it out with drawing board, bench, what tools they had between them and a coal stove.

Part of the machine was made from scrap. Metal lampshades were used to make the respothing mechanism. For a vacuum pump, a hose was attached to the intake manifold on a car.

Soon, the critical parts of the machine functioned sufficiently well, and they felt they were ready to file a patent application.

Others Planned Machine A preliminary search showed that there were a number of patented attempts at making a pin-setting machine. Enough differences were found, however, that were patentable and several patent applications were filed.

In 1937, Morehead Patterson, now president of American Machine and Foundry Company, was looking for something to keep a plant in Brooklyn busy. The idea of mechanizing a growing sport appealed to him.

Patterson visited the turkey house and watched the machine actually set, though somewhat haltingly, tenpins. After the first all was thrown, the machine lifted the standing pins, swept the fallen pins into the pit and even returned offset pins to offset positions, according to the game's rules.

New Ideas Added An option on an exclusive license under Schmidt's patent, applications was arranged. A design-engineer worked with Schmidt. He took the original machine, added his own ideas, and in 1938, he had put together a machine known as Model A.

Model A did everything a pin boy was expected to do, except take tips. Bowling alley operators were enthusiastic. But when the machine finally reached the production stage, the United States was involved in World War II. The option with Schmidt and his associates was dropped in favor of defense work.

As the war neared its end, pin boys were even more scarce, and recreation facilities were booming. The automatic pin setter was a promising potential product.

The company reentered negotiations with Schmidt. A contract on a royalty basis was signed.

Machine Gets Blessings Two improved versions were exhibited at the ABC tournament in Buffalo, in 1946. The ABC, bowlers and alley owners gave it their blessings, and unsolicited orders came in.

But the company was not happy with Model A. Costs were still too high. There was some question as to whether a pin-setting machine was really economically possible.

Finally, they decided to throw overboard much of the existing machine, together with an investment of $1 million and start again. Model B was the result.

This new machine gave a good account of itself, and was put into production.

10,000 in Operation About 10,000 automatic pin setters have now been placed in operation. The machine has transformed bowling into a sport attracting a higher class of operators, better financing, and has resulted in the building of finer recreation centers.

This, in turn, brought out a better class of bowlers and induced them to bring their families, changing the whole tone of bowling alley operations. All, because an engineer wanted to bowl, and there was no pin boy around.

With Seminole High School practice fields reduced to virtual mud holes and inclement weather filled with drizzles and whipping cold winds, the practice sessions in both track and baseball were halted yesterday afternoon for the second day in succession.

The Sanford Seminole mentoring staff voiced alarm at the delays in training routine and voiced warning that a continuation of the weather today and the normal two day week-end layoff would deal a crippling blow to the stiff training program that has been inaugurated to prepare the Sanford Seminoles for season opening dates in mid-March.

The Seminoles are the only teams to lack adequate training plant facilities so that training can be carried on even during bad weather in the Orange Belt Conference, and both baseball coach Dave Laude and track coach Fred Ganas were considerably concerned least their young candidates for the two sports lose all they have gained in the past two weeks of training.

Ganas summed up the situation: "We are hard pressed with the abundance of inexperienced stock for the sport in the beginning. We have a limited number of athletes in the senior class, whereas most of the teams that we will be facing will be experienced and feeling the results of an extended and extensive training program. We are building; and there is great hope for the future at Seminole High, but Rome wasn't built in a day and neither is an athletic program of great worth to the community and the school. All this is bad enough for the current season, but add to it bad weather to the extent that practices here have to be called and yet practices just move indoors at the other schools, and it is easy to see that our training schedule is really strained."

When asked if he would send his charges out in the rain if the bad weather continued, Laude said, "Definitely not. We are building a program here and we are not going to exploit the young material and cut our own throat, or theirs, in the process. We'll weather the storm and then just simply work harder."

Ganas hinted that the possibility of week-end practices for both sports were not out of the realm of possibility if the crippling weather continued for very much longer. "We will not, we can not, let these boys down and make them suffer undue humiliation because they lack the proper physical conditioning. It's rough enough on a young bunch of boys to have to go out and face an older, more experienced team every time they have a meet or a game. The least we can do is give them all the help that is possible, and physical training coupled with teaching basic fundamentals is an absolute must."

Andy Bracken, SHS principal, said that he shared the views of Ganas and Laude but said that auditorium space, except for that required for practice by the basketball team, was impossible. "We must be continually reminding ourselves that there are other activities of worth here besides sports," Bracken said. "We are sadly lacking in facilities right now, and nothing can be done about them. We can only look to the future and hope that our citizens recognize the responsibilities that we have to the students of the school and that action will be taken to do the best for the welfare of the child."

Track season opens March 13 with a three school meet of 15 events in DeLand; baseball season opens three days later, March 16, with a night home game against Winter Park in Memorial Stadium.

Housewife Catches False Albacore

Mrs. J. F. Yount, an Eau Gallie, Florida, housewife, credits her biggest piscatorial thrill... the catch of an 11 lb. 4 oz. False Albacore that measured 30 1/2 inches... to a new lure. She landed her prize off Port Canaveral, Florida, using the world-famous lure in mullet finish.

Mrs. Yount, who is Theresa to her friends, quite naturally counts it her favorite lure. Of her catch she says, "My False Albacore is False Albacore is the biggest fish I have ever caught and I had some real thrills before I landed it."

The False Albacore, which is a junior version of the tuna both in physical characteristics and in fighting tendencies, was hooked after a struggle that marks the Mary Nell Murphy was the high scorer in the game with 11 points.

Near East Tapped For Home Decor

CHICAGO—Home furnishings of 1937 will borrow "an air of mystery and intrigue from the veiled women of the Near East," according to William Pahlmann, co-ordinator for the 1937 Leather in Decoration show at the International Home Furnishings market.

Pahlmann said homes will show "dramatic influence from Turkey, Syria and other Near East countries."

Pahlmann said color will strike the most important note, vividly influenced by the tiles that are typical of Middle and Near East architecture.

The "lilid" colors, he said, as well as white, beige, and gray, are fading away. But the desert and shades continue to be the catalyst in the color field, the "ideal neutral to coordinate bold splashes of color."

Edwardian Fading
Pahlmann sees the Turkish influence expressed in small pieces of decorative accent. Wood turnings and small tables with meticulously handcrafted inlays of ceramic, tile, porcelain and enamel, will be conversation pieces.

The decorator also looks forward to the return of the window "as a unit, as a relief from the acres of glass and miles of fabric that give an institutional look to the home."

"Elegant grilles and screens," said Pahlmann, "will catch patterns of light and shadow, lending the air of mystery and intrigue."

Pahlmann predicted stripes to be a major design factor in carpeting, fabrics, and wall coverings.

"The Edwardian influence, which has been so strong with the super-sophisticates, is a passing fancy," he added, "soon to be forgotten in the path of more livable traditional styles and improving modern design."

The Great Barrier Reef of Australia, 1,250 miles long, is the world's largest coral structure, the National Geographic Society says. Most of the reef's 88,000-square-mile area lies underwater.

Armless Woman Leads Normal Life

By JOE McDAVID
United Press Staff Correspondent
MEMPHIS, Tenn. — 7 — Time has mellowed Mrs. Martin Chanin.

Fifteen years ago, she prayed for death. Today, she can look back without despair on the accident which cost her both arms.

"Perhaps my life is richer," she said. "If I had not lost my arms, I might never have married."

It was the summer of 1941 that Mrs. Chanin, then Miss Margaret Jones, a dental student at the University of Texas, was injured.

She and a group of friends had anchored their sailboat in an Austin Bay. Margaret and her date decided to go for a swim.

Mrs. Chanin jumped into the water and grabbed the steel anchor chain. Her date started tugging at her arm.

At that moment, a breeze rocked the boat and the mast grazed some power lines, strung from shore across part of the bay.

The young man was killed instantly. Mrs. Chanin was pulled from the water, both arms badly burned.

Back To School
Three weeks later, when she came to in the hospital, Mrs. Chanin realized both arms had been amputated.

It was then that she prayed for death.

But her sister, Mrs. W. B. Thorne of Houston, Tex., and her mother, Mrs. R. H. Jones of Osceola, Ark., refused to let her retreat into a shell.

They made her dress like a fashion plate," Mrs. Chanin recalled. They talked her into going back to school, and she won three college degrees.

Six years after the mishap, Margaret met and married Dr. Martin Chanin. They now have two sons, Philip, 8, and Robert, 6.

When she married Chanin, Margaret was completely dependent on others.

The doctor made his wife her first artificial arm, so she could hold the baby they expected.

Drives Auto

Mrs. Chanin quickly became proficient with her mechanical arm.

"Now I can do practically everything except dress myself and comb my hair," she said. "My husband does that."

Mrs. Chanin drives her own specially equipped car, keeps house, and does her own grocery buying and cooking.

Mrs. Chanin's most delightful conquest over handicap came when she got her driver's license.

The state highway policeman was dubious, even after she had passed the written test.

Then they got into her car, and the trooper told her to drive around the block.

When they arrived back at patrol headquarters, the trooper took off his hat.

"Lady, mind if I tell you something," he said. "You're the best driver I ever saw."

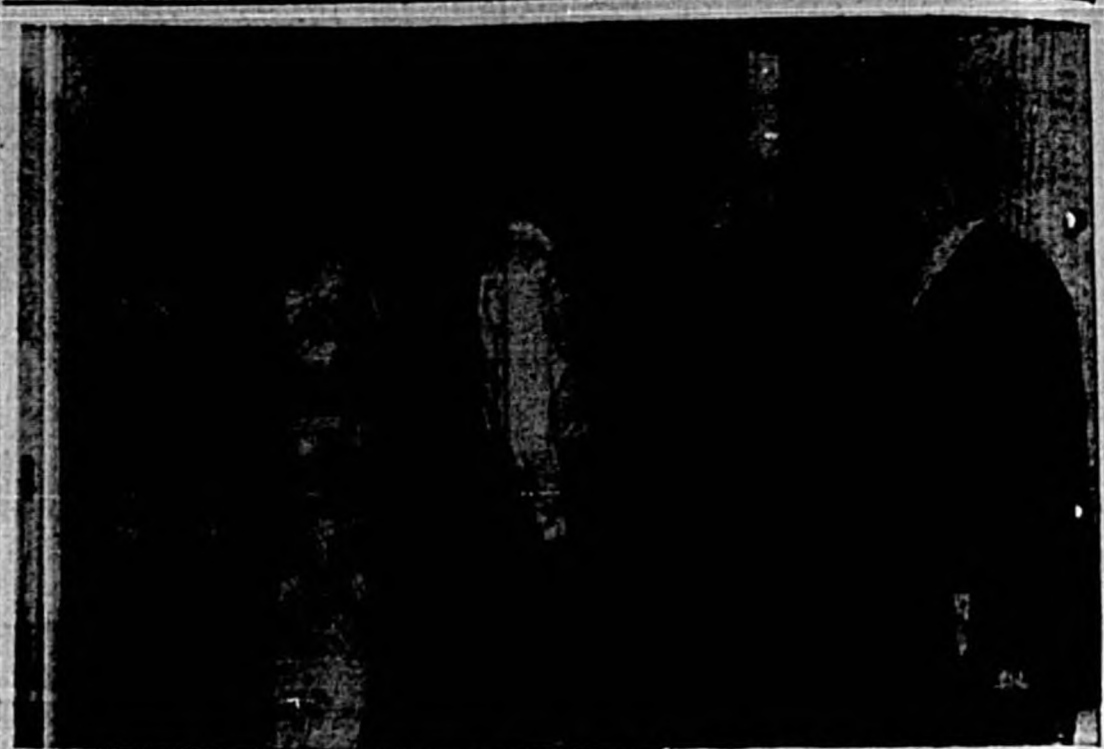

'New Twists' Due In Floor Coverings

CHICAGO — 7 — Edward Fields, a leading rug and carpet manufacturer, says there will be many "new twists" in floor covering styles this year.

Designs will be drawn from all periods, he said, and each will blend with room settings to fit any period.

Beiges and golds will continue as leaders, as they did in 1936. But, he said, there is a strong trend away from pre-established color styles and toward rule-of-thumb color selection.

Housewives will continue to turn to area rugs, although wall-to-wall carpeting still will remain fairly popular. Unpolished wood floors will be more in vogue because of increasing simplicity of maintenance, Fields predicted.

Anne Mason, home decorator for one manufacturer (Lee) said that California has assumed an important role in setting nationwide trends, because of the growing fondness of Americans for outdoor, suburban living.

People who live near the sea have a serene outlook, claimed Miss Mason. This environment is reflected in their use of color. The softer, lighter tones, first used on the West Coast, have spread to the whole nation.

In the east, however, tweeds are catching on, particularly among young homemakers with small children, Miss Mason said.

Carpet texture will be a leading point of interest this year, said officials of a Philadelphia company.

The American Medical Association says only five per cent of us have dreams in technicolor.

Quebec Shrine Is To Be Renovated

— Q — An elaborate combination porch and terrace called a parvis will be built this year to replace the present steel stairs at the entrance to the Ste. Anne de Beauséjour basilica.

The imposing structure will be of white granite and will measure 60 by 276 feet.

Members of the Redemptorist Order, guardians of the shrine on the banks of the St. Lawrence River near Quebec City, say work on the parvis will start this spring.

The fathers hope it will be ready for celebration of the shrine's tercentenary in 1958.

It is possible that religious plays will be staged there. Years ago the parvis was used as a stage for the presentation of church plays and tableaux.

Because many pilgrims who visit here come in wheelchairs and on stretchers, hoping for a miracle that will cure their ailments, ramps will be built beside the center flights of 22 steps each. The entrance to the crypt will be between the two center flights of stairs.

The Redemptorist Fathers said plans for the parvis was designed by Louis N. Audet of Sherbrooke, Que. They said the structure will follow the same combination of Gothic and Romanesque architectural style of the basilica.

The Redemptorists also hope before long to complete the two steeples for the basilica, which was opened in 1927 as the sixth church to be built in Beauséjour. Work has gone ahead as funds have become available.

Italy's Chianti Region Fallen On Hard Times

ROME — A famed Italian territory in the picturesque region of Tuscany is slowly succumbing to the consequences of the onslaught of a small bug that invaded it 20 years ago.

The territory is the Colline del Chianti, more simply known as Chianti. It is famous throughout the world for its ruby-colored wine. The little bug that touched off the process of slow but steady economic and social decay is a plant louse that attacks the leaves and roots of grapevines and is known to entomologists by the Latin name Phylloxera.

There is only one valid defense against the deadly phylloxera — substitution of the roots of local American grapevines. That is what Chianti's growers have been doing for the past 20 years, with good results against the bug but with disastrous economic consequences.

No Profit

In that hilly region where the land is as hard as rock, the yearly effort of re-rooting grapevines is an expensive enterprise. Frequently farmers are forced to use explosives to break the earth, and their toll is so painful that it was figured that the revenue of a 16-hour day of work hardly exceeds 300 lire (48 cents). Too little to make grapevine cultivation profitable.

So, little by little, farmers trickle away from the territory. They are lured of earning a living in the cities, or migrate to other agricultural regions where the land is easier to till and profits compensate adequately for hard work.

The attention of the government is now being called to the celebrated territory. Chianti to Italians is actually far more than a simple grade of red wine. It is for the prestige of the nation abroad what the famed Cognac region is to France.

The present plight of the producers is illustrated by a few significant figures worked out by Prof. Pietro Albertaggio, a member of the Italian Academy of Enology. Albertaggio found out that the production of 100 liters of wine costs Chianti's growers 10,406 lire ($16.64) as against 4,500 lire ($7.20) in other wine-producing regions such as Piedmont and Apulia.

Many Have Quit
The dilemma facing Chianti growers was either to alter the quality of their celebrated wine by mixing their product with cheaper wines from other Italian regions or to quit the business.

Many have chosen to quit. Vacant vineyards are now a common sight in the tiny territory comprising eight communities in 172, 976 acres of land. In an area where up to a couple of decades ago a plot of land cost a small fortune, an estate of 14 to 17 acres now can be obtained for a price comparable to that of a small automobile, 1,000,000 lire ($1,600 dollars).

The process of de-population is particularly serious in some communities. The village of Radda, for example, had 3,600 inhabitants in 1938. Today there are only 2,600.

The production naturally follows a parallel trend. The wine output of the village of Castellina, for example, stood at 36,000 quintals in 1935. Now it has fallen to barely 10,000 quintals, and another 10 vineyards are to become vacant at the end of next season.

Tuscan economists who have studied the problem are convinced that some benefits may result to the territory from the building of roads. The territory has very difficult communications, adding to the cost of making and distributing the wine.

Some have proposed to divert through Chianti the north-south super-highway, known as the Autostrada del Sole (Sun Highway). Its construction was started a few months ago to connect the misty lands of northern Italy to the sunny south.

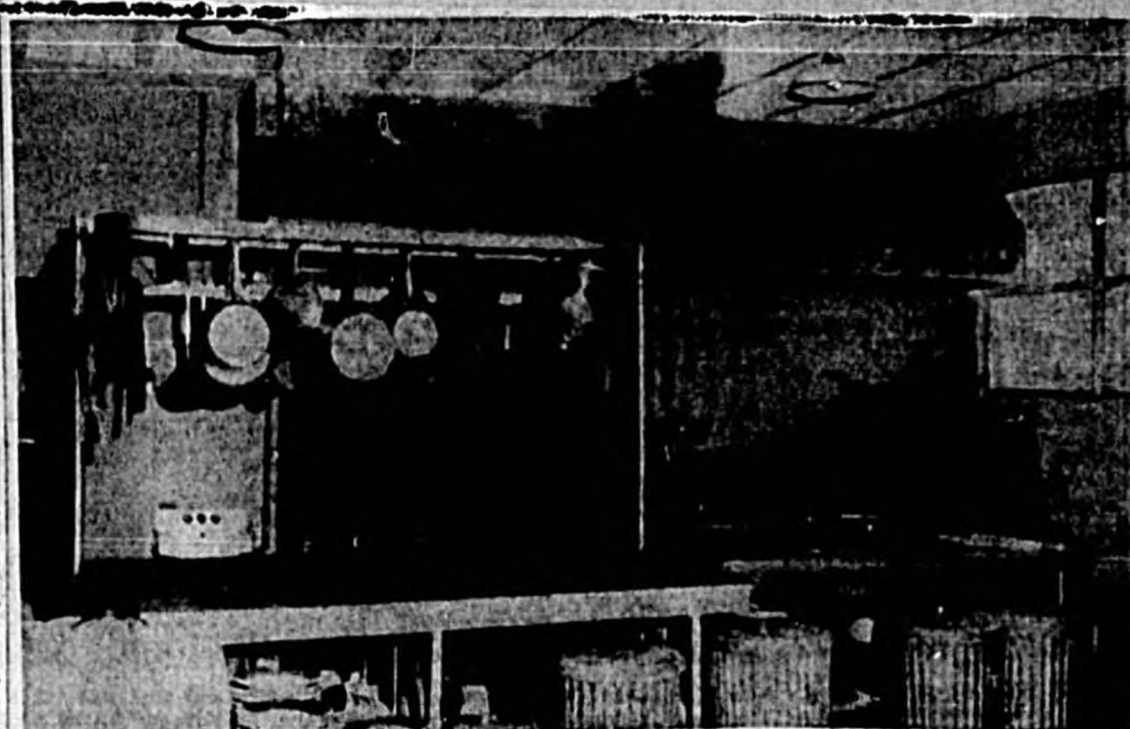

Concentrate Operations To Be Swift

LAKELAND UP — The switch in concentrate operations from Florida's rapidly dwindling mid-season orange crop to the new crop of Valencia's will be much more rapid this year than usual, it has been reported.

Frank Trovillion, director of Florida Citrus Mutual's market information division, said some of the large concentrators will be operating for about three more weeks on mid-season oranges. Other plants will finish with them within one or two weeks.

Trovillion told Mutual's board of directors and advisory committee that Valencia oranges will be ready for concentrating by April 1. The waiting period will be much shorter than usual, he said.

Growers sometimes get jittery when concentrate operations slow down, even though the lull is the result of mid-season crop being exhausted before Valencias have the amount of sugar desired. There was a six-week lag last season.

Too Late To Classify

I received a letter this week from a guy who lives in upper New York State. The poor guy is unhappy as is sore at me and a lot of my good friends in Florida.

Considering the wonderful weather we have been experiencing in Florida this winter it is difficult for us to picture folks living in below zero temperatures, shoveling snow, fighting blizzard winds, slipping on icy sidewalks and ordering another ton or two of coal.

You know they have had some right nasty weather in upper New York state this winter. Old Man Winter has been having a regular brawl up there while you and I have been basking in the sunshine.

Well, my New York friend has a big gripe and I'll have to admit it is more or less legitimate. He thinks it is very well for us folks down here in Florida to enjoy live and have fun but what gets under his skin is our publicizing the fact to the world and making millions of fellows like him unhappy.

Don't get me wrong," he says, "I have nothing against Florida. I would rather be there than anywhere else in the world, but damn it, I'm just a poor down-trodden little guy with a family to support and nothing in reserve. I can't take a month or so off and gallop down to Florida like a lot of folks do. I am stuck here and all I can do is like it."

Here is his big gripe. He says that every newspaper or magazine he picks up is filled with pictures of guys catching fish in Florida. Beautiful bathing beauties playing on the beach at Miami. Gorgeous aqua-matids water skiing at Cypress Gardens. Tourists riding glass bottom boats in the warm sunshine at Silver Springs. Mermaids doing an underwater ballet at Weeki Wachee Springs. Folks sitting in an outdoor amphitheatre at Lake Wales watching the Passion Play. Glamour gals riding floats in the Gasparilla parade and on and on and on.

He says the newspaper stuff and magazine or rotogravure features are had enough but he can't sit down in his living room when he's snowed in trying to keep warm without having to watch Garry Moore frolicking around at the Citrus Exposition in Winter Haven. Dave Garraway doing his stuff in Miami Beach. Arthur Godfrey singing the praises of the Sunshine State and even the commercials, he complains, are showing palm trees, motor boating and skin-divers.

On top of all that the Florida Development Commission insists on cluttering up his favorite magazines with glorious pictures of life in the land of sunshine. They all invite him to come on down and have fun.

"Maybe you think it is funny," he howls, "but it isn't. Not to a poor guy who is tied down like I am and can't do anything but shiver and shovel snow and try to think up new cutes words to fit the situation."

Then he comes up with a solution to the whole problem. He says, "From all I can gather reading the papers and magazines and watching TV or listening to the radio, Florida wants me. They want me so bad they got me cornered like the Light Brigade. I got Florida to the right of me, Florida to the left of me, and Florida in front of me, but damn it, I can't just up and go to Florida and CHARGE like the fool Brigade did, unless you and some of your friends get busy and find me a job down there that will enable me to come and bring my family and live more or less in the state I am accustomed to."

"I'm waiting," he says, "for the first advertisement or feature story that says, 'Ruster, you don't have to stay up there and freeze. Come on down. Catch the next plane or train, bring the family. We've got a swell job for you, and you can go to work Monday morning.'" O. K. Industrial Commission, figure that one out.

Two-year-old ewes in Montana produce nearly 60 per cent more pounds of lamb when wintered on hay and concentrate than those grazing on range and concentrate.

At least four million acres of North Dakota cropland should be farmed on the contour. The North Dakota Agricultural College estimated that improved yields on contoured land should add about $4,000,000 to the state's annual income.

Early Care For Lawbreakers Advised

By ROLAND DOPSON

MIAMI — Mrs. John Doyle Carmody, Miami's woman crime-buster, believes in fighting juvenile crime by treating the young culprit early.

The 32-year-old Mrs. Carmody, new vice president of the Crime Commission of Greater Miami, is one of the first women in the nation to hold a top job in the crime-fighting bureau of a large city.

Combating juvenile delinquency is one of her major interests. To carry out her theory about young criminals, she suggested that the courts set up juvenile juries to decide punishment for first offenders among teen-agers.

Experiment Worked

One judge put the plan into effect, and said it is coming along fine. Mrs. Carmody said other judges now are showing interest in the plan.

"No child likes to be told things by an adult," said Mrs. Carmody. "When a youth is given punishment or is admonished by those his own age, the impression is usually greater."

Mrs. Carmody has been a member of the crime-fighting board ever since it was set up eight years ago. She worked on committees, helped in gambling investigations, and worked her way up to the present major office. Other members of the commission say she is one of the hardest workers one could find.

Mrs. Carmody said that officials should not be as interested in punishing as in helping the teen-age offender. She thinks her juvenile jury idea may be a solution.

Ideas From Travel
Mrs. Carmody said you can't classify a delinquent into any one category. Delinquents come from all types of homes, all types of environments. But she said when the "average" child becomes a delinquent the blame is on the parents.

Mrs. Carmody said she got many of her ideas about people and crime-fighting in her world travel with her late husband, an army colonel.

"People the world over are pretty much alike," she said. "Breaking the law in one place is as frequent as in other places." She said the big difference is in the areas where people try to fight crime.

"If we can stop crime among the young," she said, "We've started in the right direction."

But Mrs. Carmody, who is a doctor's aide by day and a crime-fighter by night, said the battle against crime must continue in all phases. Her special department with the commission will be investigations of hoodlums, racketeers, gamblers. But she added that big interests always will be the one "we can help," she said.

There's No Sure Way To Cure Common Cold

By HERMAN M. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WITH everyone so cold-conscious these days, I think it's about time I tried to clear up a few misunderstandings about this most common illness.

No Known Cure

First, let's admit that there is no specific drug or combination of drugs that will cure a cold swiftly and surely.

Doctors as a rule don't prescribe penicillin or other antibiotics for colds. This is a widespread mistaken belief which would like to correct once and for all.

When your physician advises one of the antibiotics such as penicillin when you have the sniffles, he is not prescribing it for the cold but for the secondary bacterial infections he believes may develop.

Caused By Virus

The common cold, you see, is an upper respiratory infection in which we believe is caused by one or more viruses. Inasmuch as cold viruses have never been isolated and identified, medical scientists have been unable to develop a chemical cure or a vaccine to prevent a cold.

Doctors realize that it is both futile and illogical to use anti-

Home Remedies

Those age-old home remedies of "sweating away" a cold or curing it with whiskey (highly favored by many persons) are best ignored. Excessive sweating might be harmful and generally should be avoided.

The best thing to do is to spend a day or two in bed if you have a temperature and humidity—the room with moist air. Humidity eases throat irritation and also coughing.

Aspirin may help relieve pain and reduce fever. But see a doctor if your symptoms do not clear up quickly.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

C. F.: What are the effects of benzedrine and thyroid tablets in which we believe is caused by one or more viruses. Inasmuch as cold viruses have never been isolated and identified, medical scientists have been unable to develop a chemical cure or a vaccine to prevent a cold.

Doctors realize that it is both futile and illogical to use anti-

Blind Brownie Troop Leader Teaches Sewing

SEATTLE—Fancy needlework is a fast disappearing art, but 10 little girls in Seattle are learning the skill, although their instructor will never see the finishing stitches. She's been blind since the age of 12.

As adult leader of Brownie Troop 220, Mrs. John Quigg supervises the often boisterous activities of the youngsters who meet in her home once a week.

"I try to help them have fun and teach them something at the same time," Mrs. Quigg said.

Mrs. Quigg began her work with Brownies three years ago when her 10-year-old daughter told her there was no troop in the neighborhood because no woman supervisor could be found.

"I guess I was a natural for the job," Mrs. Quigg said. "I've learned so many crafts and skills at schools for the blind."

After attending four Brownie leadership training meetings, Mrs. Quigg was on her own. Troop 220 was organized.

Although blind, she can identify all members of the troop. The girls believed she has some secret way of knowing what they're doing. They're still mystified when Mrs. Quigg threads a needle for them.

"One little girl used to hide ignored her and she finally gave up."

Games and craft work make up the main portion of the weekly gatherings. Mrs. Quigg has taught them basket-weaving, sewing, and leather work—and the troop won a prize at a local art show with one of its projects.

To Lose Girls

The reputation of Troop 220 has spread. Mrs. Quigg is besieged by calls from mothers who would like to have their girls belong to the group.

"I'm limited to 10 girls," Mrs. Quigg explained, "or I'd take more."

The slim, blue-eyed woman will give up her growing Brownies this year because she can't participate in older girls' activities. But that doesn't mean retirement.

"My three-year-old boy will be ready for the Cub Scouts in a few years, and the Cubs always need den mothers," Mrs. Quigg said.

Th boys, like the girls, soon will forget Mrs. Quigg is blind. It took one little girl more than a year to learn that her troop leader was blind. And then her mother told her.

Pattern Of Home Financing Changed

LOS ANGELES — — Two Los Angeles economists report

major change since 1930 in the way people finance buying a home.

Dr. James Gillies and Clayton Curtis said their research shows that banks, loan companies and insurance companies have become the major holders of home mortgages. From 1930 to 1939 the mortgage holdings of these institutions increased by 125 per cent.

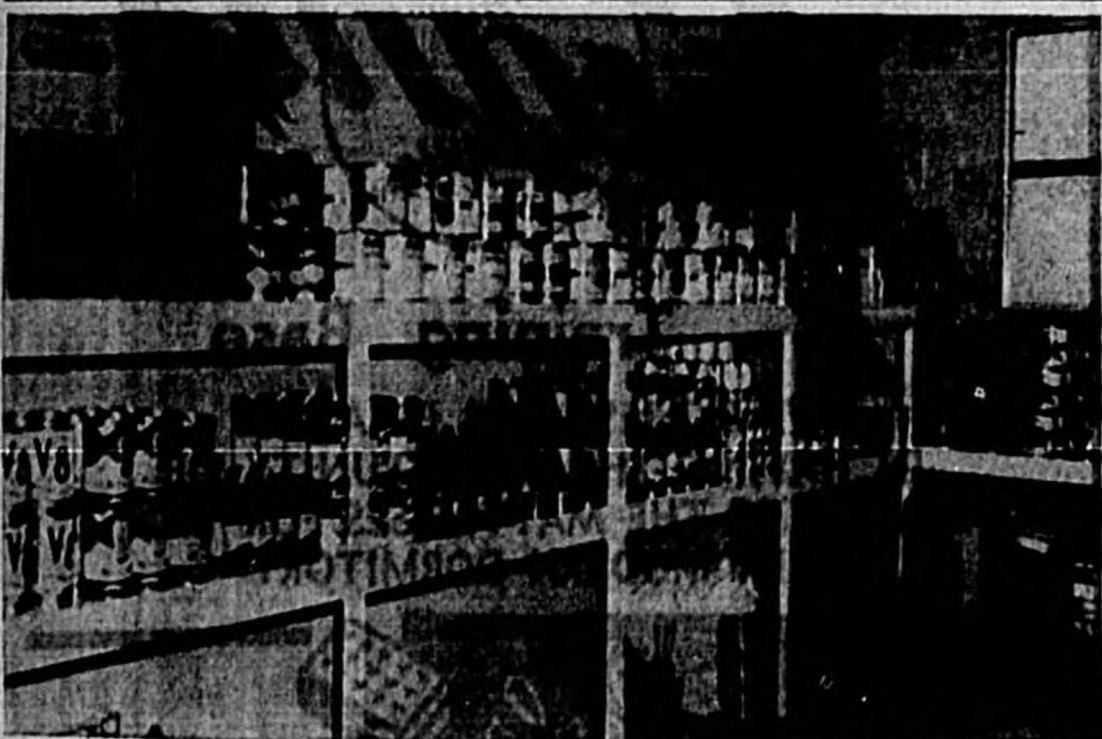

The majority of mortgages in 1930 were held by individuals or non-institutional lenders. But in the next 10 years such mortgages increased by only three per cent.

The pattern seems to be that even if a person sells his own home, he would rather turn the mortgage due on it over to a bank than hold it himself.

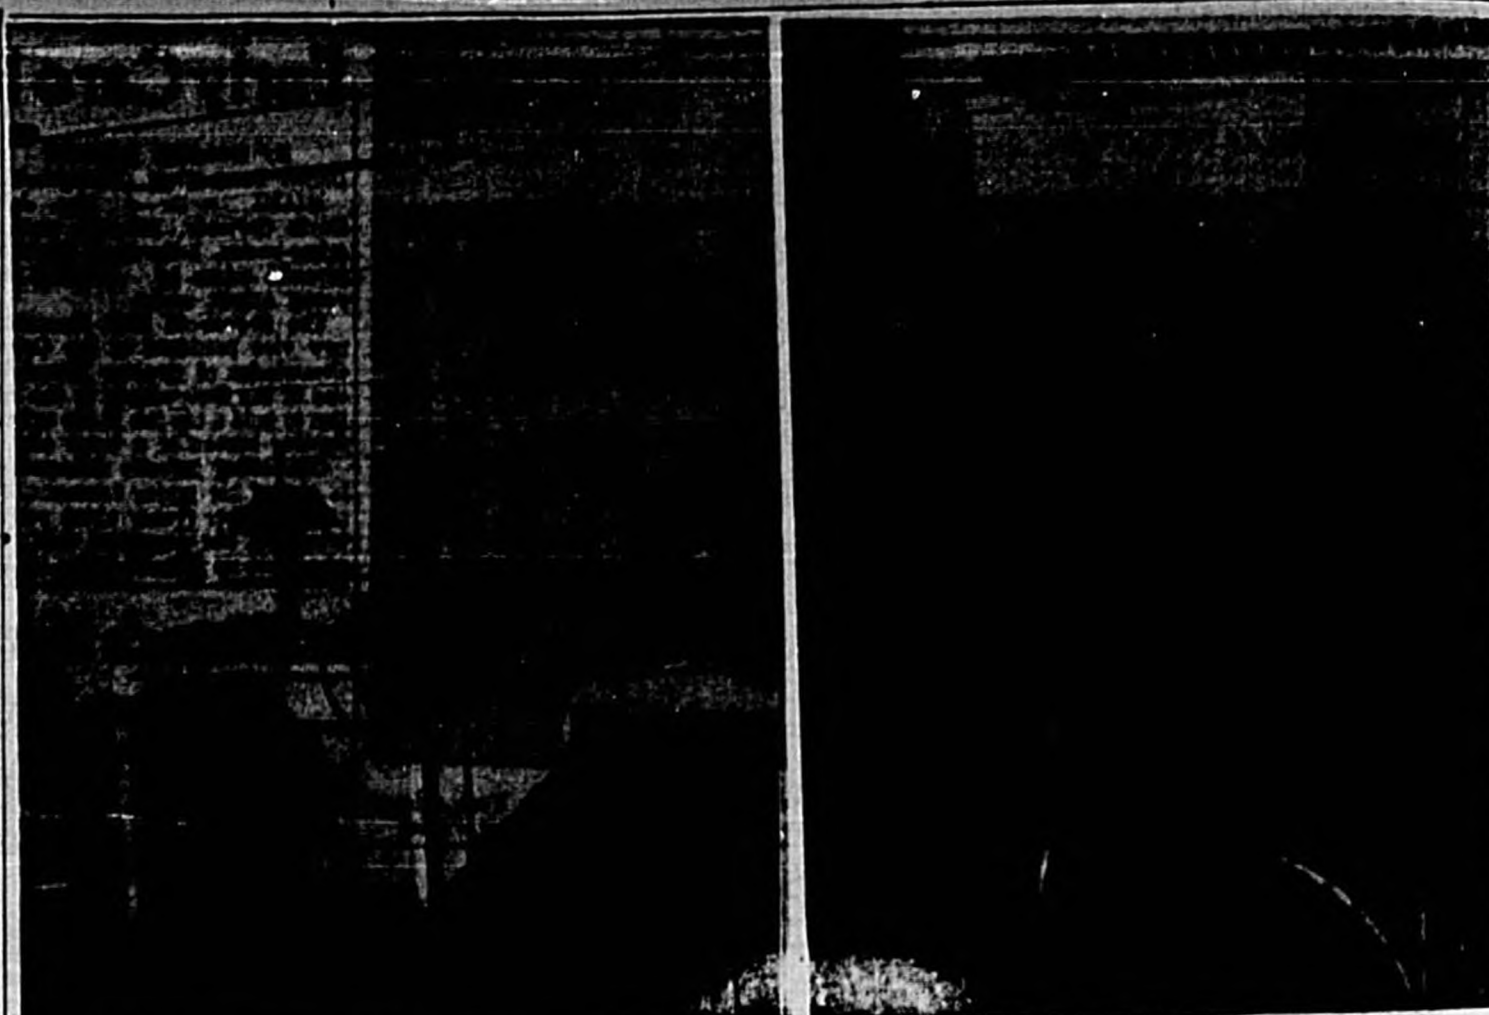

The trend was brought about by the federal government protecting savings accounts, various government lending programs, the unhappy experience of many individuals with mortgage lending in the 1920's and the need for large amounts of capital to finance housing tracts during the post-war period.

Antarctic Continent Is Strange

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — My friend and former igloomate, Walter Sullivan, has come up with a book about an earthiness that is truly stranger to man—as the old explorer wheeze goes—than the sunlit side of the moon.

That statement applies to the Antarctic continent, and when you're there it's too true for comfort. We just don't know from nothin' about most of Antarctica. Our southern exposure is a great unknown.

Sullivan is a tall, skinny bundle of energy and erudition who is homeward bound now from his latest of several visits to the lifeless Antarctic as a New York Times correspondent. His "Quest of a Continent," published next week, wraps up 300 years of man's suffering fight to explore the modern ice age.

The Nose Froze
Sully—as Admiral Byrd used to call him—was in my ship-cabin and ice-lent mate for five months of the fourth Byrd South Polar expedition of 1946-47. He takes to the "south country" as easily as a penguin to ice, except for one part of him—his nose.

Many times, walking against the wind at Little America, he turned and asked me: "Is my nose frozen?" It always was white as a sheet.

Sully and I were among 197 men who won the dubious privilege of living in tents on the Little America ice while the ships were taken 600 miles outside the icepack so they wouldn't get frozen in.

Three of us reporters lived in an ordinary pyramidal tent, same as is used in the tropics, with a vent in the top and mosquito nets handy. We stuffed the nets in the vent and spare clothing in all corners, and Sully tolled prodigiously cutting out igloo blocks and stacking them outside as windbreakers.

The Beard, Too

We slept cocooned in double sleeping bags. Sully had grown a huge red beard which froze solid on him, and then thawed into his coffee and soup when he came inside. One night, he dreamed it was choking him to death. Groping for scissors, he banged into the water bucket.

Struggling to escape his cocoon, he got the zippers jammed and fell to the floor wriggling like a man trying to bust out of a strait-jacket. This knocked over the fire extinguisher, which began foaming onto the hoarfrosted tent sides. Next day, Admiral Byrd allowed he'd seen tidier places.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y. — An — The International Association of Pipe Smokers has picked this Adirondack community for its 1957 convention. LEWISTON, Me. — An — Two buildings were set on fire within two weeks here when the sun's rays shone through two different jugs of water igniting the sides of the structures.

Anything Goes In Collection

EAST BIGGS, Calif. — Retired farmer Ben Harrison Johnson had a hobby that possibly beats them all — collecting anything.

He claims that any object of the last century can probably be found in his house, garage, or barn.

"I collect anything I think will some day become a relic," says Johnson.

"It's really hard for someone to pick up things of years ago that are in good condition. I have these things because I have been saving them."

However, not all of the 70-year-old collector's prized items are dated within the past 100 years. He possesses wood carvings reputed to be several hundred years old, a Mohammedan prayer book holder some 1,400 years old and Egyptian coins from 800 A. D.

Sell any of these? Here's what Ben says to that:

"These things that I am saving for my family are not for sale. You should see some of the professional collectors fighting over some of my things."

Three of the biggest pieces of the huge gathering of items are a 1907 motorcycle, a 1918 auto and the enclosed horse buggy used on this Butte County town's first mail route.

What'll You Have
Other automotive collections include a wide variety of fittings for old time cars, plus auto emblems running from the first horseless carriage to the newest sport car. And he needs only Maine's license plate to have one from each of the 48 states. Foreign plates dot the showcase, too.

Still not satisfied, Johnson boasts of possessing weapon fittings thought to be part of the ill-fated Donner Party's tragic trip over the Sierra range into California. For these he searched Donner Summit for days. Other prairie schooner artifacts include a buffalo meat and sausage grinder, lanterns and cooking utensils.

Numbered among his other collections are stamps, Indian stones, cabinet maker's wooden planes, bullet moulds, musket shot and a musket. Others are buttons, belt buckles, colored woods, wood carvings, marble-topped furniture and war souvenirs.

The gray-haired curator of what has practically become a home museum has gone far and wide to gather these things—despite the fact that he's been crippled since childhood from infantile paralysis.

LOOKING TOWARD THE registration office also located off the lobby of the New York Giants Farm System's dormitory on Mellonville Ave. The building will be thrown open for public inspection Sunday afternoon from 1 to 5 p.m.

Survey Of Motives Made By Professor

LOS ANGELES — A University of California professor of marketing says that although at least 600 motives exist, usually only from five to 20 different motives influence an individual's decision to buy a specific product at a given time.

Dr. C. Joseph Clawson is engaged in putting together the first large inventory of motives which influence consumers to buy motivational research conducted by 300 business firms across the nation.

He found that reasons sometimes are extremely subtle. For example, manufacturers of instant coffee found that sales increased when they began to advertise elaborate ways of making instant coffee because this seemed to allay fears of women that they would be considered poor hostesses, neglectful of their families, or slovenly in their habits.

Whitman Relatives

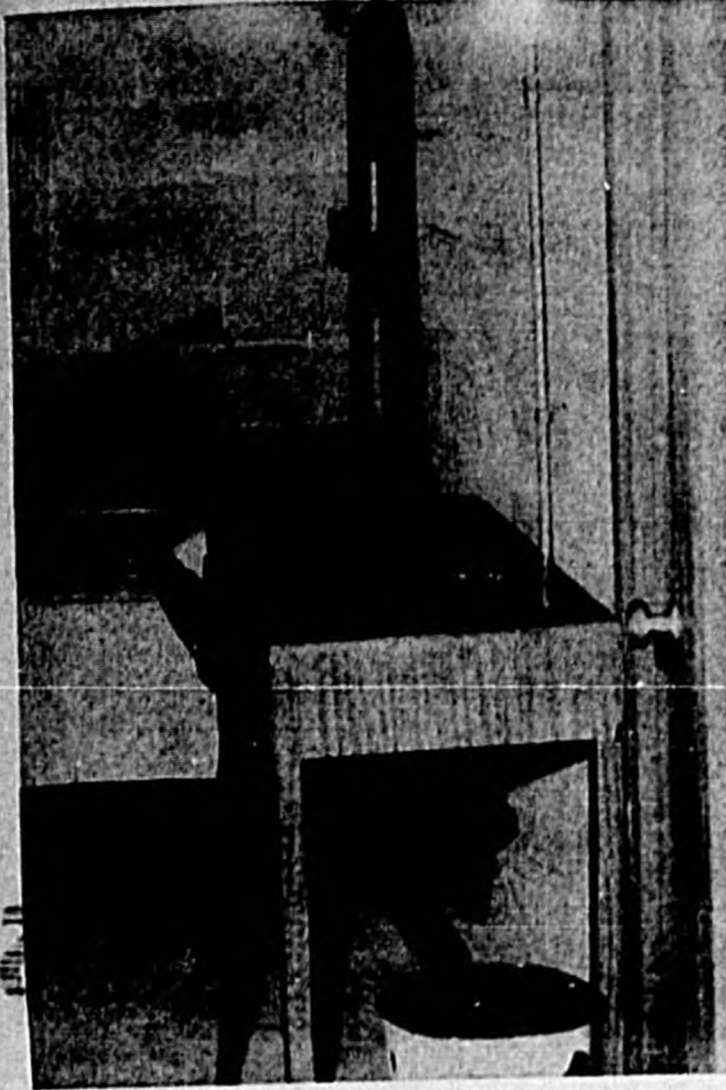

CANTON, N. Y. — A long search for living relatives of poet Walt Whitman by the Walt Whitman Birthplace Association ended successfully. A graduate of St. Lawrence University, Walt Whitman Swerfager, produced authentication of such relationship. Swerfager and his twin brother, David, are great-great-nephews of the author of "Leaves of Grass."

Old Stuff In Minn.

ST. PAUL, Minn. — An — The first anti-segregation law in Minnesota was passed without a word of debate in 1869. The act, which prohibited classifying or separating school children on the basis of "color, social position or nationality," was approved by the state House of Representatives 30 to 12. The Senate and Gov. William R. Marshall quickly approved measure.

Florida's Ports Are Doing Good Trade Business

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's 17 deep water ports and its airports are doing a thriving business in international trade. The State Development Commission reported that trade with other countries during 1956 probably will be well over the half-billion dollar mark when all the figures are in. Using a compilation of U. S. Commerce Department figures, the commission said trade during 1955 amounted to $544,600,000. Figures for last year are not complete, but the commission feels they will be even higher. During 1954, the last year for which complete totals are available, the report showed that the port of Palm Beach ranked first in dollar value in foreign trade with $101,185,617. Jacksonville, second with $80,079,314; Tampa third with $53,269,637; Miami $45,789,242; Port Everglades $23,626,751; Pensacola $10,975,287; Panama City $10,272,209; and Fernandina Beach $5,923,981.

New Electronic Device Aids Blind

Buffalo, N. Y. — (UP) — Two Bell Aircraft Corp. engineers, Dr. Iben Browning and Dr. S. Lawrence Bellinger, have invented an electronic device to help the blind.

Already tested with favorable results, their "Hear-a-Light" is a three-ounce instrument resembling—but somewhat larger than—a fountain pen, connected by wires to an earpiece. Operated by a miniature battery, it contains a sensitive photo-cell and electric oscillator.

The device transmits to the ear a steady tone which varies in pitch with the intensity of light that strikes a lens in the case.

Robert O. Monaghan, a teacher of music in the New York State School for the Blind at Batavia, N. Y., who has been blind since he was 12, was the first to test the device. In a recent demonstration, he and all low blind teacher at the institution measured the light in a room and even were able to distinguish salt from pepper by the light reflected through glass containers.

The two inventors have formed the non-profit Biohysics Research Foundation, Inc., to manufacture the device. They expect that when they get into production that "Hear-a-Light" will cost the buyer in the neighborhood of $20.

"We expect to make no profit whatever," said Dr. Bellinger. "Finance is one of our greatest problems, and we expect at best to survive."

Dr. Browning said that the late Lawrence D. Bell, founder and board chairman of Bell Aircraft, has given the two engineers much encouragement on their invention and had suggested the non-profit system for production.

Food Sense - Not Nonsense

It's not the rockin' air that's got you-- it's that it ain't say!

If... your body's starved of food is low; energy fades; spirits droop

The hours between last night's dinner and your first meal of the new day are long. When you lengthen these hours by skipping--or skimping--breakfast, your vitality suffers.

For pep and push to carry you through till noon, eat a complete breakfast. It should include enriched or whole bread; cereal, eggs, or meat substitute; and fruit.

Each morning a good breakfast... eat!

You'll need it to compete!

NEW YORK—Paul Taubman is a man who likes to keep busy. He is the musical conductor of several TV shows, also the proprietor of the Penthouse Club, a prominent restaurant.

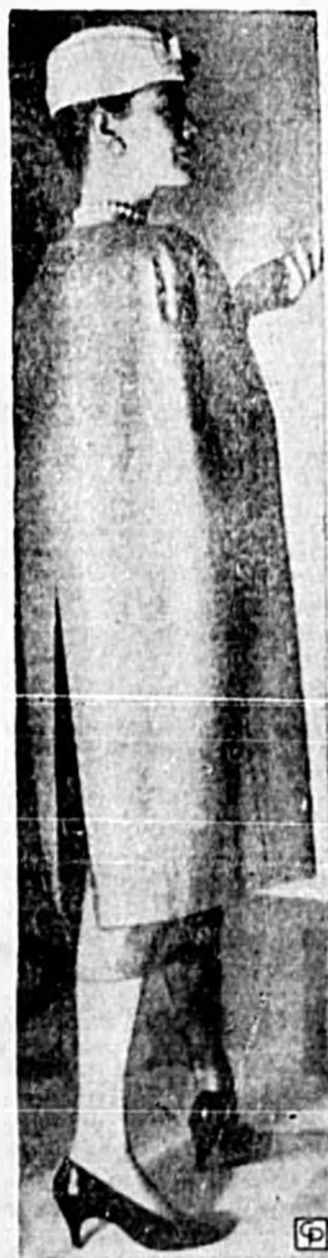

There is talk of Elvis Presley heading up an NBC spectacular involving "country music" this spring. He has no TV commitments at present.

New additions to the cast of "The Lark," NBC spec starring Julie Harris Feb. 10 are Basil Rathbone and Denholm Elliott. The latter is being brought over from London just for the play.

Feb. 10 is the date for the world premiere of American composed Stanley Hollingsworth's, new opera, "La Grande Breteche," to be presented by NBC's opera company. NBC commissioned the one-hour work.

"Kraft Television Theater" on NBC has been renewed by the sponsor for another year, its 11th. This is the longest uninterrupted dramatic program on network TV; it plays 52 weeks a year.

The rumors are plentiful that Art Carney will not be back with Jackie Gleason next season. Gleason wants to do several big shows, but doesn't want to be on every week. This would give Carney a fair excuse to break away, and it is no secret that he has had many offers in the past two or three seasons to go on his own.

Male phalaropes do the house-keeping. The father bird not only selects a nesting site and builds the home, but hatches the eggs and rears the young. Females, after laying the eggs, go off in flocks by themselves.

Open Letter To Sanford Citizens From Mrs. Dow

On leaving your lovely City of Sanford, may I not open my heart to you in a brief open letter seeing it is impossible to reach you all individually.

I would like to express once again my heartfelt gratitude for all you have done in erecting the beautiful Memorial Library to the honor of your Founder, my beloved Father, General Henry Shelton Sanford.

I know well it has meant on your part much time, labor, effort, and sacrifice in which I too shared in distant Connecticut.

But you have completed it and it stands a beautiful and fitting memorial to him who loved this fair land of sunshine and flowers.

Then, in his honor, you all gave me a most wonderful ovation and welcome on my arrival in Sanford.

Never in all of a long life (although by no means 87 years long as some one has suggested) never have I realized such a thrilling experience and you all made Dedication Day one of the very proudest days in my life. Further, you have made me, one and all, feel so at home here. I grieve to leave you now but am determined to return for a whole winter next year.

I am happy to say I have found a lovely little foothold near the Library, therefore look forward with joy to my return to Sanford.

There is much to be done still and I would like to be among and help the creation of the new museum. There is much to plan to get the funds needed. I would suggest a series of subscription entertainment to promote this project, all different and all interesting, with amusing, musical, historical and horticulture programs.

If I cannot today either walk or see very well, I am in my head and I would love to devote all my time and service for ideas to plan among you which will further this great and sacred Memorial Unit.

Thus, in leaving you, let me tell you not Goodbye, but Au-revoir! and for always while I live. Believe me.

Gratefully, your friend
Carola Sanford Dow

Delegation Leaves For Capitol

Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Manager John Krider, J. Bralley Odham, and Congressman A. S. "Syd" Herlong Jr., will leave for Washington at 5:30 this afternoon to begin an "on the scene" campaign in an effort to keep the proposed Naval Air Station, Sixth Naval District, in Seminole County.

The Washington trip comes on the heels of announcements from the three man Washington congressional delegation that they are supporting the move to keep the important naval air base in Seminole County.

The latest announcement came this morning when Senator George Smathers, in a telegram to The Sanford Herald said "In my previous discussions with the Secretary of the Navy and the Navy's other officials, I have insisted that the Navy, insofar as practicable, continue to use the facilities at Sanford and when it appears those facilities are no longer useable in the light of developing aircraft requirements that they make every effort to use the site at Osceola."

This gives Sanford two-man delegation, on its way to Washington, a "foot in the door" perhaps as they look into the questions of "How to keep the Naval Air Station here."

Senator Smathers, in his state-

32nd Pioneer Night Is Success

By Gladys Brown & Clara Cooke
The Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce Building was the scene of one of the most beautiful and inspiring gatherings of the year when the 32nd annual Pioneer night was celebrated by people over 60 years old from Seminole County which was the biggest crowd in history.

Frank Evans as master of ceremonies was certainly in true form and makes the people of Lake Mary proud to have such an illustrious person as their neighbor and friend. He was the originator of this annual event which is the only one of its kind in the State of Florida.

Earl Toney, President of Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce made a welcoming speech for all pioneers.

Baskets of gladioli presented by W. E. Kirchhoff, Jr. banked the stage and were later given to the guests. It. J. Bauman, President of the Sanford Atlantic National Bank donated red and white carnations which were presented to each guest by the lady ushers.

One of the interesting features of the evening was the discussion of the original pioneers of this section by Dr. Fred Ensminger, President Emeritus of Southern Union College, Watley Alabama.

Randall Chase gave the history of Seminole County. Other talks were made by Jimmy Phillips, Rev. S. L. Drawdy, Jay Beck, Senator Douglas Stenstrom and Attorney Fred R. Wilson. This was the 10th year that Senator Stenstrom has attended the Annual Pioneer Night and highly complimented Evans for originating this annual event.

Tap dances were given by Deanna Nichols and Bobby Jean of the Duxbury School of Dancing, and the Triple Trio and mixed ensemble of Seminole High School presented their rendition of "Chopsticks" and "Once In Love With Amy" under the direction of Miss Ollie Reese Whittle, Musical Director of Seminole High School. Those taking part were Penny Marion, Kaye Jenkins, Carol Nutt, Lois Barinseau, Sylvia Price, Ann Davis, Iris Causey, Juanita Wynne, Nancy Cash, Double Quartet, Johnny Barley, Bill Tyre, Phillip Boyd, Bobby Little, Murray Nance, Brantley Schirard, Teddy Walker and Al Collins.

Mrs. Nellie Wheelless, 95 years old, from Longwood was the oldest lady present. Sheriff J. L. Hubby, presented a white orchid corsage to Mrs. Wheelless. Other ladies receiving gifts were Cassandra Brown Schultz, 92, Mrs. Joseph
