Gang of boys robs store clerk

From staff reports

By DAVID FRAZIER Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Shortly after 1:30 Tuesday morning, seven black males, estimated to be between 12 and 16 years of age, entered the Circle K store at 2201 W. First Street, and robbed the two clerks at gunpoint.

One of the youngsters reportedly held a 22 caliber pistol at the head of one clerk while the others ransacked the store. An attempt was reportedly made to remove the tape from the surveillance VCR in the back room, but the at-

Sanford police said the seven all wore shorts and had no shirts. Each reportedly had a shirt or pillow case with eyeholes cut out, over his head.

Items taken included three 12-packs of beer. three cartons of cigarettes, $17 from the cash register, and other items.

Neither of the clerks was injured, although one report said one of the youths tripped during the incident and may have suffered a leg injury.

Has county the muscle to whip sex clubs?

By RUSS WHITE Herald Patriarch

SANFORD - As he witnessed the latest episode of As the County Turns, attorney David A. Wasserman seemed more entertained than intimidated Tuesday at the initial thrusts by Seminole County officials in their war on the adult-entertainment industry.

"They're giving us some free advertising and beginning to shoot themselves in the foot," said Wasserman, who represents Circus Circus, one of the adult clubs the BCC is intent to chase out of the Fern Park area and beyond.

Bracing itself for what may be a nasty conflict in the courts, the Board of County Commissioners voted, 3-2, on Tuesday to hire the law firm of Schutts and Bowen - and discussed how to See Adult, Page 5A

Drug summit greeted by parent apathy

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The war on drugs is usually viewed as a vicious battle pitting politicians and law enforcement personnel against drug cartels and street gangs. Last night, anti-drug forces were defeated by more insidious ene-mies - spathy and busy schedules.

The City of Lake Mary sponsored a drug seminar at Seminole Community College to give parents the opportunity to learn about the warning signs of teen drug abuse, as well as to provide information about treatment alternatives.

All the big time warriors were on hand; drug treatment professionals, local politicians and the city's top cop. Police Chief Richard M. Beary. It seems that everyone was there - everyone except the parents.

Despite the fact that the city called the leaders of every registered neighborhood watch in Lake Mary and sent notices to all of the middle schools and high schools in the area, only one private citizen showed up.

The planned event, which was also promoted by both the Sanford Herald and the Orlando Sentinel, never took place. After waiting nearly 30 minutes past the originally scheduled presentation time, Clinical Director Kimberly Barnes of Associated Counseling and Education, Inc. began packing up the drug vi-als and informational brochures she had brought along for her presentation.

According to Barnes, who was expecting a crowd of between 20 to 50 people, disappointing turnouts are the norm rather than the exception in many events of this type. Often,

Butterflies are free

By JEFF BERLINICKE Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD Ah the wonders of pature It is easy to take nature for granted Take butterflies for example

Where do they get their wings? Where do they get their magnificent color? What do they eat? It's easy to overlook those little things, but not for the kids at Wilson Elementary School Kindergartners spent a couple of weeks near the end of the school year studying the evolution of butterflies and they are fascinated One of the big events for the students is the butterfly release which capped off the month-long project of Wilson's kindergartners It started recently when some packages arrived at Wilson containing small cocoons The kids didn't even know what they were but studied the creatures as they transformed into caterpillars by the end of the following week Sitting in plastic cups. throughout all the kindergarten classes were the tiny, furry caterpillars that the kids began to understand will eventually be butterflies

The kids watched them intently, studying their eating habits, their lives and still wondered, like kindergartners do about everything, when they will become butterflies

*Sometimes it takes a long time but we're finding out how they go from caterpillars to butterflies," said Wilson's restdent kindergarten expert Bryce Grier. "Hefore they leave the cocoon they like to hang up side down then they come out as a beautiful bufferfly The kids got a lack out of looking into the caterpillars temporary homes and staring at what passes for caterpillar

"I wouldn't want to eat that stuff said Eric Jones 1 d want leaves instead " Bryce added 'I don't know what it is but it sure looks gross It might be yumany to Shawn Lathan explained how the cocoons become butter Hies

"There are four parts," he said They become a cocoon. then a caterpillar, then some things happen and they are a butterfly," he said Noel Nert added. They grow until they can stretch their wings and learn to fly "

In case the Wilson kindergartners got too technical for you, here's what really happens. It takes about 21 days for a caterpillar to become a butterfly. The caterpillars were brought to Wilson approximately five days into the transformation process. They hang from a twig or a stick in their temporary homes. pumping their wings until they are at full size. They eat a mixture of sugar and water and maybe some fresh flowers. They like carnations the best

Vanessa Mendiola said she hopes the butterflies will be green and brown. She also noticed that they are "always asteep."

But the Wilson kids certainly aren't. They are becoming well aware of the evolution of butterflies and taking a major part in nature and preserving the

Should city consider higher taxes

The City of Sanford in preliminary budget negotiations wonders how to pay for the 50 new employees department heads say they need, including 27 for the police department. At a commission meeting this week, Mayor Larry Dale asked fellow commissioners if they wanted to raise property taxes, via a hike in the miliage rate for homeowners, to pay for added personnel. Finance Director Carolyn Small worked the numbers, and even with a one mill increase on property, the city would fall short of the needed revenue to add the 50 employees.

So, do we consider a two mill increase to homeowners, who already pay 6.8759 mills, the highest millage rate in the county?

We're pretty sure our commissioners feel like they're between a rock and a hard place on this one: Department heads clamoring for added staff, and homeowners screaming that it's criminal to tax them at that rate. (A two mill increase on a home assessed at $100,000, with a homeowner paying on $75,000 after the $25,000 homestead exemption, would mean an increase in city taxes from about $516 to $671.

We have a suggestion for our commissioners.

Think corporate.

Make every department head accountable for his or her budget, and for finding ways to trim the fat. Reward the department heads who do save the city money by paying them a bonus for doing so. An accountable department head will assess employees' strength weaknesses and make the best use of the talent employed, which means perhaps, that it may be unnecessary to add 50 employees to about 400 already employed, an approximate increase of 12.5 percent. (With corporate America still downsizing, we think upsizing that much is a pretty hefty request.)

The discussion by all of the commissioners Monday was an intelligent concern for needs balanced by paying for them.

Again, we urge the city to think corporate as these talks continue.

Clinton should push trade deals

With Russia's historic assent to expansion of NATO, President Clinton is on a foreign policy roll as well as a domestic one -- which is why he should not delay seeking fast-track authority to negotiate new trade deals.

For both political and scheduling reasons, the White House is postponing the fast-track issue until fall, which Republicans say will inevitably delay it into 1998 and closer to the 2000 presidential election, when trade is likely to be an explosive issue.

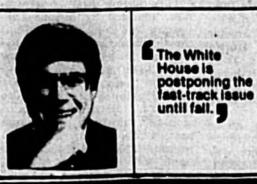

A fight awaits the administration whenever it asks Congress for authority to negotiate new trade agreements. Liberal Democrats led by House Minority leader Dick Gephardt (Mo.) want trade legislation and trade agreements to contain stiff labor and environmental standards and sanctions to enforce them.

Republicans want no such restrictions -- or as few as possible -- and the administration basically wants to write-language that will please both moderate Democrats - and Republicans but will not alternate organised labor, whose support Vice President Al Gore wants for 2000.

White House aides any the scheduling difficulty arises because the administration will be engaged over the summer with another politically hot trade dispute -- most-favored-nation status for China. Pushing fast-track at the same time could "overload the circuits." they say.

However, Clinton's prospects of defeating efforts to deny MFN to China improved markedly recently when House Speaker Newt Cingrich, R-Ga., announced that he would support a full year's extension.

Simultaneously, a potential future GOP

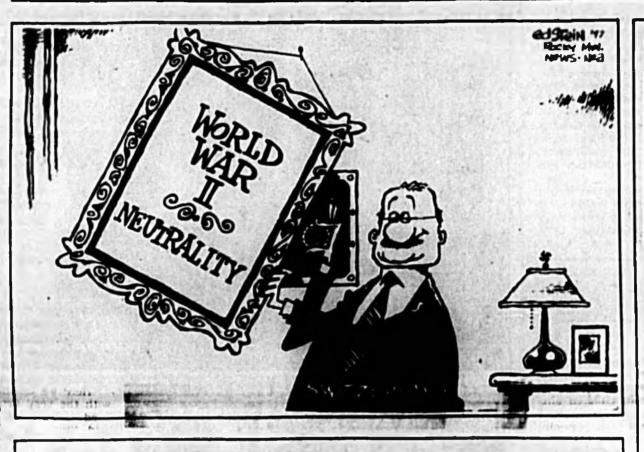

Speaker, Rep. Bill Paxon, R-N.Y., announced that he will join religious conservatives in opposing MFN status, but Oingrich's decision should weigh heavier in the balance.

Moreover, Clinton's high poll ratings and recent policy victories -- the balanced budget agreement and now a NATO-Russia pact -- put his influence as close to its senith as it is likely to be in his second term.

Announcement of the budget deal boosted President Clinton's overall approval rating from 54 percent to 57 percent in the Callup poll May 6-7, and his rating for handling the economy went from 57 percent to 50 percent.

Clinton's foreign affairs approval rating was 50 percent in the poll, and it should rise with the NATO announcement and Clinton's upcoming round of summit meetings in June and July.

Clinton's national approval ratings are in the mid-50s in every poll but one - the Zogby International poll, which won the 1906 election sweepstakes as the poll closest to the final presidential outcome.

DONNA BRITT

A thought: Basketball owes me

WASHINGTON--Recently, while sitting through my umpteenth 1997 National Basketball Association playoff game, a thought hit me: Basketball owes me.

As a girl, I served iced tea to neighborhood hoopsters on our backyard court. As a teenager, I tearfully scraped souvenir tape from the gym floor where my high school team lost the state finals. Recently, I've endured my adolescent sons scrimping to buy basketball shoes so fancy they can't play in them because "like, they might get dirty."

So I have a right to ask the game to do something for me: Bring back booty shorts.

"Booty shorts" is the snide name used by kids to describe the fitted, butt-grazing shorts once sported by ballplayers. Anyone following the playoffs--actually, anyone who's watched a recent basketball game from peewee level to pro-- hasn't seen them. Early in the '90s, the sleek shorts that were good enough for Kareem, Magic and Bird fell into disfavor. Somehow, the revealing shorts that spark women's preference for basketball uniforms over football's refrigerator-carton ensembles vanished.

Their replacement: lengthy and voluminous bloomers that I'll hereafter refer to as "zooty shorts" after the ridiculous, balloonlike manwatcher will tolerate a moment longer.

I say enough. Enough of glistening, muscular super-athletes playing a bruising game in what looks like their mother's discarded culottes. Enough of NBA players, most of whose ancestors clearly aren't Scottish, prancing around in neon colored kilts. These days, there are enough guys with shaved heads and skirts on any given basketball court to suggest a Hare Krishna convention.

Sure, baggy equals stylish. But Hakeem Olajuwon power-dunking in a frock is like "Baywatch" babe Yasmine Bleeth giving CPR in a caftan. Bloomers are not sexy. Sportsespecially basketball--is supposed to be sexy.

That's why 95 percent of the ads for the new Women's National Basketball Association focus on gorgeous model-player Lisa Leslie. It's why basketball's most popular players and pitchmen--Allen Iverson, Grant Hill, Michael Jordan--are hunks. It's why Tyra Banks, who adores basketball and could have any man on planet Earth, allegedly dates sports' huttest ticket: Tiger Woods.

Sports' sexiness and the bloomers crisis became jointly clear to me a few years ago, when I started watching the man who is now my husband play ball in citywide tourneys. Though I was never into jocks, something about watching this thoughtful guy getting physical—doing spin moves, sinking jumpers—had a definite warming effect. But season after season, I was dismayed to notice my honey's shorts getting longer and fuller.

So I have a right to ask the game to do something for me: Bring back booty shorts.

Suddenly, every man playing the game I loved--except for Utah Jazz guard John Stockton and most of the otherwise awful Vancouver Orizzlies--was wearing pedal pushers.

Two of the culprits responsible for this travesty are locals. Bullets stars Chris Webber and Juwan Howard, formally of the University of Michigan's fabled Fab Five, helped spark the trend as freshmen during the 1991-92 season. Today, the Bullets may wear the sootiest shorts in the league.

They're paying dearly. In their recent firstround playoff games, the tent-wearing Bullets looked like homeless men compared with the sleeker-outfitted Bulls. Worse, they lost three close games partly because of time wasted pulling up and slapping away extra yards of shorts fabric. No sartorially distracted team can beat the Bulls.

So what if players say zooty shorts offer "more freedom"? Did Wilt let a little tightness cramp his style? Zooty-mania is so out of control I'm doing what a concerned citizen must: starting a movement. As founder of the Bring Back Booty Shorts campaign, I'll ask like-minded humans--OK, women--to hound NBA Commissioner David Stern into establishing a league rule demanding the suspension of players whose shorts dip within three inches of their knees.

Perhaps, NBA legend and NBC analyst Julius 'Dr. J' Erving, once heaven in booty ahorts, could help out by reminding the young guns of what's truly hot. Nah, the Doctor's credibility probably slipped when he darkened his suave salt-and-paper 'do and shaved his mustache. Even kids know that real brothers over 40 wear facial hair.

Only one man can fix this. Dapper ex-booty shorts wearer Michael Jordan still favors semi-fitted shorts offering actual glimpses of thigh. One playoff appearance in true booty shorts by His Airness and stampedes of young fans will flock to malls to buy them. Overnight, shorts will again be short, and my appreciation of the game complete.

The one downside: Nike-produced booty shorts will cost 8239--and each of my sons will own three pairs that he can't wear.

Chemical weapons have been proliferating in recent years faster than nuclear weapons.

Chemical weapons ban strengthens U. S. hand

WASHINGTON. The recent ratification by the U. S. Senate of the Chemical Weapons Convention -- after months of lobbying by the Clinton administration -- was long overdue.

Chemical weapons, sometimes called "the poor man's nuclear bomb," have been proliferating in recent years feater than nuclear weapons. That's why it's so necessary for the United States to take the lead in halting this spread -- and signing the convention is a symbolic key to mounting an anti-chemical weapons campaign.

Most importantly, perhaps, it allows the United States to take part in international inspections, which will help deter rogue states from amassing lethal chemicals to use against their enemies. Of course, many of the worst offenders are not signatories to the treaty. But by bringing most of civilized world under this same regulatory umbrella, chances are that the few remaining holdouts will be far more isolated in their endeavors than before.

The Central Intelligence Agency, which tries to keep track to chemical weapons, has long been alarmed by the fairly rapid proliferation among Third World countries, in a round-up report on chemical weapons classified "Secret," the CIA offered this conclusion:

The attraction of chemical weapons for Third World forces, combined with a multiplicity of open market sources of chemical material, provide nourishment for this growth. As more nations join the chemical club, a heightened sense of vulnerability manifest(s) itself. We therefore expect a continued (Third World concentration) on chemical warfare activities."

The story of the global chemical weapons buildup is a simple one, with familiar characters.

One of the first rogue states to begin using these weapons is Iraq, which got its start from the former Soviet Union. The Soviets were quite willing to export chemical weapons technology, though they kept their nuclear technology a closely guarded secret. In 1982, the hard-pressed Iraqi's used tear gas to roll back an Iranian offense, and in 1983-84 they escalated their chemical warfare to include mustard gas and a nerve agent, which decimated Iranian attacks.

Having been on the receiving end of such chemical weapons use, Iran soon began developing its own stockpile of the material. Other outlaw Middle East countries like Syria and Libya also have chemical weapons programs. Until the Iraqi's surged weapons programs. Until the Iraqi's surged ahead of them in the late 1980's, the Syrians probably had the most developed chemical arsenal in the Middle East -courtesy of an extensive Soviet military assistance program.

Libya received Soviet chemical weapona training, but the Soviets were rejuctant to provide material. So the Libyans secretly bought their wares from other Warsaw Pact countries and illicit sources in Western Europe.

Egypt was actually the first Middle East country to get chemical weapons training, indoctrination and material -- including nerve gas -- from the Soviets. Throughout the 1960s, high-level Egyptian military officers were trained in Moscow at the Red Banner Academy of Chemical Defense. Egypt used poison gas during the 1963 and 1967 Yemen campaigns.

remove adult clubs from any major arteries yet provide "reasonable accommodation" elsewhere in industrial areas as directed by law.

If the county gets its way, no adult businesses would be "grandfathered in" or protected from the proposed revisions in its new adult-entertainment ordinances . significantly stronger and supposedly more defensible that the existing codes relative to adult clubs and sexually oriented businesses.

A fundamental concept of the ordinance drafting process and land use analysis was that the Fern Park area is inappropriate for the adult clubs and sexually oriented businesses - and that it's high time to "clean up" the U.S. Highway 17-92 corridor.

By "grandfathering." . or allowing clubs like Circus Circus, which has operated for two decades, to stay, the ordinance would have been significantly weakened. An attorney for the Sheriff's Department urged the BCC not to "grandfather."

The county's temporary ban designed to give it more time to revise the adult-entertainment law - expires June 30. In the meantime, two nude dancing clubs opened in Fern Park, and this has caused knee jerk reactions at the county services building.

County attorney Robert McMillan, under fire from Commissioner Win Adams for being "reactive rather than proactive" in the fight against the adult entertainment industry, defended the work of his office on Tuesday and also warned what may happen if the county's ordinances are not upheld when challenged in Legal fees and litigation costs "could be very substantial," McMillan said after opening the BCC meeting with the terse statement of the abilty and integrity of himself and his staff. Adams told McMillan last week that he may move to have the attorney fired. Sensing the other commissioners were not with him. Adams backed off Tuesday.

Commission Chairman Randy Morris suggested hiring Schutts and Bowen to help the county no matter what the cost. Commisstoners Darvi McLain and Adams agreed but were opposed by commissioners Grant Maloy and Dick Van Der Weide.

What astounded Maloy was why the county turned to the law firm so quickly . without considering other candidates. More confusing, too, was the fact that just one week ago attorney Ken Wright from Schutts and Bowen represented one of the area hospitals who will defy the county's time schedule to begin interfacility transfers of patients.

'Here we decide to play ball with the very firm that threatened us a week ago." Malov said. "Why the rush? Why not make sure we have the best firm available. How do we know Schutts and Bowen have experience in this issue."

McLain said the quick decision was needed because of time constraints. "I'm not willing to wait any longer to allow this industry to scoff at this County Commission," McLain said.

The first public hearings on the adult entertainment ordinances will be held June 10 with an afternoon and evening meeting to allow as many citizens as possible to attend. McLain asked for the afternoon meeting as being more appropraite for seniors.

input may rise when word gets out that the commissioners talked Tuesday about possibly zoning certain areas for the adult-entertainment businesses. Among the areas suggested -Midway Commerce Park, west of the Seminole County Port Authority, cast of Sanford-Orlando Airport and south of Oviedo on State Road 434.

How many citizens attend the . public hearings adds further mystery to the issue. The media appears far more involved than the general public - another reason for David Wasserman to be smirking.

she said, turnout is lower than expected. She added that this evening was worse than most. Lake Mary City Commisstoner Shetla Sawyer blamed the low turn out on apathy. Many people think if drugs are not affecting them directly, they don't have to worry about it. That's not true. Drug abuse affects everyone, either directly through crime or indirectly through higher taxes which are necessary to pay for more police, more prisons and medical care for indigent drug abusers." Sawyer was disappointed by the low turn out and said that all parents need the type of information this program provides. She speaks from experience, she said.

Three years ago, Sawyer realized her son had a drug problem. After two years of struggling to find an appropriate treatment facility, she managed to get him into a long term facility which met his needs. The young man is now doing very well and will be returning to Lake Mary High School next year. Sawyer admits that her son to one of the lucky ones. She says that many kids who get into drugs and up dead or in like this one been available in the early stages of her son's drug use.

Sawyer blamed peer pres-sure and "enabling" behavior by parents as two of the chief causes of teen-age drug abuse. She said parents who say to themselves. "I can't do anything are giving their children a signal that it is OK to continue using drugs. She encouraged parents not to be afraid of loaing their child's love by putting them in treatment. She said her son told her he would hate her forever if she put him in a long term facility. Now that he is no longer using drugs, he says he loves her and that he would be dead had she not intervened. She says when parents put their kids in treatment facilities, they are not shirking their responsibilities as parents. In fact, she says, not getting appropriate help is an abdication

Mary Ellen Hawkinson, the one citizen to show up at the meeting, said she was also disappointed by the low turnout. Hawkinson, who is the leader of a community watch group, also teaches at Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Lake Mary. She says she will take the information she received back to her watch group and to prison. She feels that her famen the parents of the children she

IN BRIEF

Volunteer of the year named

Ann Latham was recently named volunteer of the year by Safehouse of Seminole and the Community Initiative to Prevent Domestic Violence.

Prom night is now an occasion for discrimination, danger

DEAR ABBY: Because prejudice and discrimination are so hurtful, I think we should do away with them in our public schools.

Abby, what is more discriminatoty than the senior prom?

The poor, the frugal, the shy, the unpopular, the plain and the dateless are excluded. Many parents cannot afford all that is involved in this rite of passage: formal wear, corrages, limousines. The kid who is saving his cash for college, the student who has no "significant other," is a reject on the eve of what should be a joyous cameraderie including all members of the senior class.

Instead, this occasion has too often turned into a housterous bash with overnight parties, drugs, drunk driving and death.

The above combination has made a farce of what was once a sensible, meaningful event. One father hired a horse-drawn carriage to transport his daughter to the prom!

I'm ready for a lot of flak in response to this letter, but I feel that there are many parents (and studental out there who agree with me, but are afraid to express it.

D.B. IN OLYMPIA, WASH.

DEAR D.B.: Every year the newspapers carry pictures of handsome young men and beautiful girl graduates who have died in flery automobile crashes on prom night. Rather than completely doing away with this rite of passage, it should be rethought. Some schools have already done this by transporting the young people to and from the dance or party in buses, and keeping the celebra-tion also to the Others have turned it into a special night out (to a play, a theme park, etc.) that doesn't require a date.

I would be interested to hear what other schools and parents are doing to safeguard their young people on prom night.

DEAR ABBY: Who says what's "right" when a woman wants to have a formal second wedding? My sister has been married once before. Her wedding was very large and very formal. She is now engaged again to a young man who has never been married.

Her wedding party started out to be six, including the bride and groom. It has now been reduced to four. We will all be dressed in gowns and tuxedos.

This is the late '90s, and we're heading into a new century. My sister feels there is nothing wrong with a second formal wedding as long as it's the first for the groom, and I agree.

If it's the bride's first wedding and the groom's second, no one would comment. But when it's the bride's second and the groom's first, why must it be small and informal?

Shouldn't it be up to the bride and groom, rather than anyone else? My sister's wedding will be small, with a few friends and the immediate family, but some of the traditions will be included, such as throwing the bridal bouquet, first dance, dollar dance, photographs, father-daughter dance, etc.

What are your thoughts on this? FORMAL OR NOT, BOWDOIN, MAINE

DEAR FORMAL OR NOT: I agree with your sister. Since it is the groom's first wedding, I see no reason why he should be penalized because his bride has been previously married.

The old rules about what is appropriate have relaxed in recent years. It is perfectly acceptable for the couple to have a formal wedding with all the trimmings.

My congratulations and best wishes to the happy couple.

DEAR ABBY: Excuse me for being an old fuddy-duddy, but what has happened to basic good man-

In my day one did not indulga in kissing in public places - unless one was bidding guodhye in an airport, train or bus station.

I find it embarrassing to witness public displays of affection between my nephew and his current girlfriend at family gatherings in nice restaurants. Often they have to stop right in the middle of the restaurant on the way out to engage in a long, soulful kiss. Since the couple have been living together for several months, it would seem that they could hold off the kissing until they were alone. This has gotten to the point that it is downright embarrassing for the rest of the family to go out with them.

Don't get me wrong, Abby. I am all for hugging and kissing one's true love, but not on the way out of a nice restaurant with a room full of strangers to witness the spectacle.

Am I hopelessly outdated on

OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: Outdated? No! Jealous? Maybe!

American chicken: Fried and true

Growing up in an ethnic household (mine was Italian) there were certain foods that I learned to think of as uniquely "American," foods that my family never ate. Peanut-butterand-marshmallow-fluff sandwiches was one. Chili was another. Any kind of TV dinner. And fried chicken.

Fried chicken was the kind of dinner that Opie was always sitting down to on "Mayberry. RFD" ("thanks, Aunt Bea"), the kind of food Timmy's mom might serve on "Lessie." In TVland (a place which I equated with "America") happy families were continually tearing into large platters of fried chicken. And all I got were plates of risotto, or pasta or polenta. As my grandmother would have said: "poveretta." Poor thing.

You'd think that the first act I would have committed upon the acquiettion of my - own kitchen would have been to fry up some chicken. But I didn't. I feed my family, in fact, much as my mother fed us: There's still no fluff sandwiches or TV dinners on our table, and we eat polenta and risotto and pasta far more often than we eat chili.

But recently -- in bonor of Memortal Day, a patriotic, "American" kind of holiday that demands that most American of feasts, the picnic -- I decided to try some recipes for this clusive dish of my childhood dreams. I found out that frying chicken in a relatively simple affair, requiring not much more than some flour, salt, pepper and oil for its most basic incarnations.

The first recipe here .. from the Music City Roadhouse Restaurant in Washington, D.C. -ts tust such a simple preparation, with the preliminary step of soaking the chicken in buttermilk. The second recipe, for a classic Fried Chicken With Gravy comes from one of my favorite cookbooks, Spoonbread and Strawberry Wine," by the Dorden sisters ... Carole and Norma Jean. Extra Points... Russ White Herald Staff Writer

Y'all listen now: Hockey is in, eh?

Guess you're as excited as I am about the Stanley Cup Playoffs, eh? How about Gretzky's hat trick for the Rangers on Sunday! And can you believe those two goals by Vyacheslav Kozlov for the Red Wings on Monday night!

Okay, some of you don't understand.
You're still confused about offsides and leing calls. You're not sure what the red line and blue lines mean. You're even wondering about faceoffs.

i felt the same way myself for 27 years.

Then it happened. I married a woman from British Columbia, Canada, saw my first National Hockey League game and was chosen by the sports editor of the Washington Star to cover the town's newest professional sports franchise - the Washington Capitals.

Hockey players - then and now - are the most delightful and spirited characters in sports. They truly enjoy what they're doing. The Stanley Cup truly is something sacred to them, and it shows each time they face on their states. There is no such a thing as a dull Cup game. Every game is a beaut. Every shift crucial. Must be. They need two intermissions and a Zamboni.

Twenty years ago, outside of Canada very few production companies knew how to televise ice hockey, instead of enhancing a great game, most U.S. television crews didn't have a clue how to deal with the sport. Eventually, they learned from the Hockey Night in Canada people.

ESPN and Fox do a nice job - ESPN the better of the two when Gary Thorne and Hill Clement are on the scene. Former Rangers goalie John Davidson explains things well as the color analyst for Fox. The live picture is good on both channels, the replays exceptions!

The men playing Stanley Cup hockey need not apologize for their maybem on ice. They play hard and they play chippy. When they bend the rules and each other more than necessary they are sent off to the penalty box. As flesty as the recent Cup games have been, there has been nothing as ugly as the incident in the Knicks-

Heat playoff basketball game.

Even if it wasn't traditional that these zanies with missing teeth congratualte each other at center ice after a Cup series is complete, most of the players would do so or their own. For every hit, there's a growing respect, Hockey means never having to say you're sorry. It also means "good going, Gordie, Get you next time."

Until the 1970s most of the NHL players were Canadian. But in 1972 when the first Team Canada-Russian series was played, things began to change. The Russians kept coming and coming check the Detroit Red Wings roster and you'll get the idea. A lot of guys whose last name sounds like off.

Hockey is running pretty close to soccer as the sport of all nations, and the National Hockey League is thriving on the competition. No one would have thought it possible 20 years ago that there would be an NHL team in San Jose or two in Florida. And next season there'll be one in North Cambina.

A decade of my 40-year newspaper journey was spent in hockey rinks all over North America. It was especially exciting this time of the year at the semi-finals and finals of the Stanley Cup. Being there meant hard work but it also was a privilege.

Today. I must settle for a TV ticket, but there will be no complaint. The coverage has gotten as good as the game - and there isn't a better sport in all the world. Enjoy it before this year's ice is gone. And beware of the penquin.

Could state final be backyard brawl?

By JEFF BERLINICKE Herald Staff Writer

The two schools are only five miles apart but their backyard rivairy could take on new meaning this weekend over two hours away.

Lake Brantley and Apopka High School are practically next door neighbors and could meet in the state Class 6A baseball championship this weekend at Legends Field in Tamps.

The Blue Darters will take the field Friday morning at 10 a.m. to take on Miami-Coral Park with the winner facing the survivor of the Lake Brantley-Miami Southridge game at 1

Saturday night, the two winners will play for the championahip at 7:30 p.m., also at Legends Field, spring training home of the New York Yankees.

fronically, the championship game could still turn into a backyard brawl even if the Patriots and Blue Darters are denied a shot at the finals. Southridge and Coral Park are also within a close distance of each other in Miami. For Lake Brantley, it is their first shot at a state title since the Patriots won it all back in 1990 with a team that was voted number one in the nation and included three potential mafor leaguers including future college player of the year, Jason Veritek.

White Sox scalp Indians

First-place White Sox jump all over Indians in Babe Ruth play

By JEFF BERLINICKE Herald Staff Writer

It was over before the Indiana knew what hit them.

Actually, it was the White Son that did the hitting, pounding out three in the first and jumping out to an early 5-1 lead on the way to a 9-2 win in Sanford Babe Ruth League baseball.

The win kept the White Sox atop the league with an 11-2 record while the Indiana fell to 4-11 on the season.

The first inning started out slowly, as the White Sox' first two batters went down but Dustin Arnett and Nathan Green reached on a pair of errors, with Arnett scoring the first run, and Robert Woodward walked.

With the bases full, Keith Parrott singled in two runs to make

It got worse for the Indians in the third when Parrott and Travis Walker knocked in a pair of runs and two more accord in the fourth to put the White Sox up 7-

Meanwhile, Justin Frost was mowing down the Indians and allowed only four hits - including three by the Indians' Willie Collier - on the way to the win.

Terrance Green added a triple for the Indiana' other hit and hitters for the White Sox were: Brett Martin (single). Parrott (single). Walter (single).

In other action, the Royals pounded the A's, 12-2 as the Royals' first four batter - Robert Lowe, John Killingworth, Nick Ireland and Bud Bennett - all

Bennett led the Royals with three runs scored and Killingworth picked up the win on the mound.

Hitters for the A's were: Mike Doney (single), Joe Sondhetm (single, double), Josh Sparks (single).

Royale' hitters were: Killingworth (single), Ireland (single). Bennett (two singles), Alex Anderson (triple), Antione Anderson (single), Uriah Kimmig (single), Also, the Braves outslugged the Devil Rays, 11-6.

The Braves accred eight in the first while sending 13 hitters to the plate. Aaron Knight accred twice in the first inning alone.

The onslaught wiped out a four-run first by the Devil Rays which included five stolen bases. Hitters for the Braves included: Ramone Raines (single), Levi Raines (two singles), Bruce Carter (double), Justin Cooper (single, double), Fabion McKinney (double), Cory Murkey (single).

Honors continue for Aubrey Nelson

Athletic Club Scholar Athlete Award

last week in Orlando.

File Photo Seminole two-sport star Aubrey Nelson won the prestigious Downtown Herald Staff Writer

Most people have to wait until they graduate college and enter the work force before they begin to experience success.

Aubrey Nelson has already experienced success and she isn't even out of high school yet. In her senior year, Nelson has helped lead two teams to their first ever Seminole Athletic Conference championahips.

Seminole High School's volleyball team went all the way to regional competition thanks in part to Nelson. Also a superior tennis player, the girls tennis team clinched its first place conference finish before the season even ended.

"My teammates and I have worked very hard for this," Nelson said. "We dedicated ourselves to having a successful senior year and we stuck together. I didn't do anything on my own. I was part of a great fram. In addition to being a very talented atNete, Nelson also manages to maintain a 3.6 grade point average while practicing daily and playing two sports. Both her athletic and academic abilities and determination carned Nelson a nomination for one of the most preatigious awards offered to high school students, the Downtown Athletic Club of Orlando Scholar Athlete Award.

Stray student athletes are nominated for the award. The criteria to be nominated include playing two or more sports and maintaining a 3.0 or better GPA. From the sixty student athletes, twenty finalists consisting of 10 males and 10 females are treated to a dinner at the Downtown Athletic Club for the announcement of the winner.

When her name was called as the recipient of the award, Neleon and her father both abed a... tear as she made has way to the podium to accept.

"When Aubrey won it was a shock to us," Nelson's father. Phil said. "We were just happy that she was named as a finalist. Most of the kids were going to schools like Princeton and majoring in pre-med. It was so satisfying to see her work so hard and have it pay off for her."

The ultimate payoff for Nelson has been her full scholarship to Western Carolina University. In college. Nelson will play volleyball while majoring in some kind of sports related profession.

Juggling sports and college level work will not be a problem for Nelson. Since she was first introduced to tennis at the age of seven. Nelson has been hard working, organized, and dedicated to being the best student and athlete that she can.

"Aubrey doesn't only work hard during the season," her father said. "What makes her really good is the work she does during the off season. It's not easy for a kid to continue to work hard when there is no glory, no fans. But Aubrey always knew what she needed to do and never had to be pushed to practice and improve."

Nelson's father went on to say that when she was ready to enter high school and decided that she wanted to play volleyball in addition to tennis. Nelson and her father sat down and set goals. Each step was laid out as a means to an end and Nelson followed the goals to a tee.

Tremendous success both on and off the playing field has been the result of that dedication.

"I think the key to my success been the support of my parents." Nelson said. "And the fact that I had teammates who desired the same things out of the teams as I did. When I would start feeling like I didn't want to practice, they would pick me up and keep me going. I have no regrets because I didn't let my teammates down."

Nelson will be going off to college in a couple of months. She said that the two things she will remember most about her high school days are her great sentor seasons in volleyball and tennis and the fun that she had. Seminole High School will remember the tremendous athlete with the unfaltering work ethic who was a leader both on and off the playing field. It's a pretty safe bet that Nelson's determination will bring her success at the college level as well.

Doggone good time

The Seminole baseball team saw its season come to an end last week but one fan of theirs, three-year-old Jessica Nelson seemed to have a good time anyway as she played with her dog on the sidelines.

Is heart disorder serious?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 18-year-old can understand your frustration at not aughter was just diagnosed with being able to purchase familiar, over-nitral valve prolapse. Does she need the counter compounds, but, I guess, daughter was just diagnosed with mitral valve prolapse. Does she need to take medicine for this?

DEAR READER: For no apparent reason, up to 10 percent of women can develop a floppiness of the mitral valve, which doesn't completely shut, leading to a murmur (extra sound in the heart) and — in some cases sodes of rapid pulse.

The condition is not hazardous. Unicas it is severe --- an unusual situation — it can be safely diagnosed and monitored by a cardiac ultrasound test. (Severe cases may need reconstructive surgery.)

if a patient experiences multiple periods of rapid pulse, medication (such as beta-blockers) to slow the rate is advisable. Also, patients with MVP must take antibiotics at the time of dental cleaning or asserted types of surgery, in order to prevent the mitral valve from becoming infected.

Your daughter should follow her physician's advice about such medirines and the appropriate intervals between examinations. Otherwise, she should be able to engage freely in any normal activity she chooses.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a chronic cough — more an annoying tickie that is associated with some heartburn and worsened by consuming acid-foods, alcohol and coffee.

I went to an otolaryngologist who told me that my threat is line. My family doctor can't hear anything in my chest. (Chest X-rays are normal.) This is driving me crazy.

DEAR READER: From your brief description, I'd swear that you have reflux, the backwash of stomach acid into the esophagus, causing indigestion and cough. This condition shou be easy to diagnose with an upper GI series, a type of X-ray exam to investigate your stomach. Ask your doctor to order this test. Meanwhile, avoid edibles that seem to worsen your condition, and purchase over the counter Pepcid or Zantac. These medications may solve your problem even before you are X.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I wouldn't miss reading your daily column. For one thing, you provide a sensible bridge between old-fashioned doctors (that I grew up with) and the new breed of physician who seems to be enthralled by high-tech testing and prescription drugs.

For example, many old remedies, such as Palmer's lotion, quining, mustard plasters and various liniments aid do some good and were sale. Now they're off the market. Maybe we need some of these old time remedies. DEAR READER: The problem with these remedies is that they were not scientifically shown to be consistently effective. Consequently, they have been replaced by better products. I this could be termed medical progress of a sort.

I'm equivocating because, as you probably are aware, there is presently an immense public interest in alterna-tive medicine; heroal remedies, homeopathic compounds and a corrucopia of non-medical strategies. I don't have a problem with this.

But I do demand consistency: Alternative therapies should withstand the same rigorous testing expected of new drugs and treatments. Otherwise, we have no effec-tive way of validating such therapies.

It's been said that alternative healers attract patients because these practitioners spend more time with clients than do traditional, allogathic physicians. This is true. We doctors may be shooting ourselves in the foot when we rely exclusively on modern testing and drugs.

People often just need to talk, to be recognized as individuals. The value of a quiet "hands on" approach cannot be overestimated.

In that sense, I'd like to think that I'm a bridge between generations, and I thank you for your compliment.

Cash in on the slip

By Phillip Alder

Declarer makes a slip in this deal. So, I searched for a quotation featuring that word. The result was this observation by Virginia Woolf. "One has to secrete a jelly in which to slip quotations down people's throats, and one always secretes too much jelly." Some days one cannot win'

The deal features a good defense by Amir Levin, He was playing with Eran Mermelstein during the Swiss Teams at the 31st Israeli Festival, held in Tel Aviv last February.

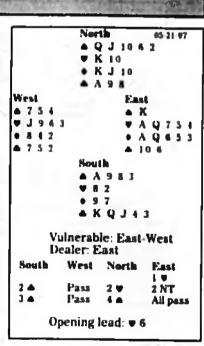

North's two heart cue bid showed a strong hand; usually at least 12 highcard points, il prefer a forcing two spades, yet this partnership plays the bid as invitational but non-forcing.) East's two no trump is called "goodbad," It announced the desire to continue bidding, but with distributional rather than high-card values. If East had bid an immediate three diamonds, it would have promised a stronger hand, Perhaps South should have passed new. This would have led to North's declaring four spades, an impregnable contract. True, four spades by South looks ironclad too, but declarer made a careless slip and was made to pay for it. West led the heart six, third highest by partnership agreement. If declarer plays the 10 from the dummy, everything is all right. With a favorable location of the trump king, South has 10 black suit tricks

However, South called for dummy's heart king. Levin didn't miss his chance. After winning with the ace, he returned a low heart to West's jack. A diamond switch gave the defenders the first four tricks.
