

OPERATOR-MINER MEETING IS CALLED IN WASHINGTON CONGRESS TO TAKE A HAND

Conference is Called for Monday, April 10th HANDS OFF POLICY

BUT GOVERNMENT DOES NOT WANT THE PRICE OF COAL RAISED

WASHINGTON, April 5.—A congressional effort at settlement of the coal strike, particularly as it involves the bituminous fields, was begun yesterday, when Chairman Nolan of the house labor committee was authorized to telegraph invitations to a number of representative operators and officers of operators' associations in the central competitive coal fields to attend a meeting with the miners' union leaders in Washington April 10, and attempt to reach an agreement.

At the same time, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, took occasion to say in the senate that "drastic public action" might be demanded, and to charge the operators with contract breaking in precipitating the strike.

A possible divergence between the views of the members of congress and those of the administration, however, was seen when Attorney General Daugherty issued a statement that the government is not undertaking to do anything in the present situation of the coal matter, declaring that "men have a right to quit work and men have a right to employ other men," that the public was not menaced with coal shortage, and that it was the duty of local authorities to maintain order.

The government would not look with favor upon coal price increases, Mr. Daugherty said, adding that he "saw no reason at this time to believe that disorder need be feared," but asserting that the government will perform whatever may be its duty in the premises "if local and state agencies cannot maintain peace."

The house committee action came after its members had spent two days listening to discussion of the strike from the miners' viewpoint, by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers. Mr. Lewis assured the committee he would advise his associates to negotiate with any representative "group" of operators from the central fields, which includes Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western Pennsylvania, even though not all of the operators could be induced to deal again with the union. The union, he insisted, would not and could not settle the dispute in other states until this basis had been established for a wage level.

The committee decided to appoint direct representative of the operators' groups in the states named, and Mr. Lewis last night declared it had put forward a proposition worth considering.

During the hearings yesterday, Mr. Lewis defended the miners' union proposal to establish a six hour day and a five day week, one of the demands originally made, scolding as "absurd" a calculation by Representative Black, Texas, that this would occasion an extra annual cost of $244,000,000 to the public for coal.

"However, if we discuss any of these demands around a council table with operators," Mr. Lewis added, "and practicability and reasonableness cannot be demonstrated for them, the demands will fail."

Discussing the possibility of wage negotiation, Mr. Lewis amplified the repeated charge that the bituminous operators of the central field had broken a contract with the miners in failing to confer with its committee for a new wage scale before the strike. The fact, he said, "really gave the strike all the aspects of a lockout."

In reply to questions from Representative Black, Mr. Norris said: "The basic day wage" in coal mining under present conditions was $7.50 a day, as compared with $2.84 in 1913, but the scale in the latter year, he added, "was a pauper standard."

PRESIDENT IS ASSAILED FOR FIRING ORDER

MAY PROBE CASE OF DEMOCRATS WHO LOST THEIR JOBS.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—President Harding's dismissal of 29 bureau of engraving executives was the center of another storm of democratic protest in congress yesterday, despite a White House explanation that the president had not intended by his action to "reflect on the character" of any of the discharged officials.

In the senate a congressional inquiry was proposed formally in a resolution by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, who declared the president's unheeded dismissal order had been "inhuman, and inexcusable," several other democratic senators joined in the attack while in the house of representatives, Byrnes, democrat, Tennessee, assailed the president's act as "nothing short of an outrage."

Taking the lead in defense of the administration, Senator New, republican, Indiana, told the senate there were "ample reasons" for the dismissal, although unfortunately there were times when the president could not take the country into his confidence.

At the White House, Secretary Christian, acting for the president, declared in a letter to one of the dismissed officials that a full explanation was not yet opportune "although the chief executive regretted that 'insinuating publicity was being given the incident. There had been no desire, the secretary wrote, to reflect on the character of any government employee."

It was also said that Mr. Harding felt he alone was responsible for the conduct of an efficient administration and that he proposed to exercise the presidential appointive power in a manner that accorded with his own judgment. There was no possibility that any of the dismissed employees would be restored to office.

FLOATING MINES SIGHTED IN PATHWAY OF LINERS IN NORTH ATLANTIC—WARNINGS SENT OUT

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, April 5.—A drifting mine was sighted yesterday in the pathway charted for liners plying between Boston and Europe. Warnings of its presence were sent out by radio broadcast by the hydrographic office of the navy department to all mariners.

The vessel which reported the mine gave its position as latitude 40 degrees 18 minutes west, longitude 62 degrees 56 minutes north. The location is south of the Grand Banks, and west of the junction at sea where ships bound from Europe to Boston leave the track of the Europe-New York liners, and bear almost due west into port.

Since January 1, 1921, eight floating mines which drifted from the remaining mine fields of the war overseas have been definitely reported to the hydrographic office in the North Atlantic area, immediately off the American coast. During the same period two mines were reported off the southern part of the American coast.

There were reported and charted by the hydrographic service from January 1, 1921, to March 29, 1922, 121 floating mines, while six additional mines were reported before the 1921 date.

An insurance company asked for detailed information as to the distribution of the mines observed and reported and was informed that 72 mines or 59.5 per cent of the total for all waters were in the European area, 69 of them being located in the region described as "north of 45 degrees north, east of 15 degrees west." "It must be remembered," the hydrographic office informed the insurance company, that this letter does not purport to cover all mines afloat, but only those actually observed, and reported to this office.

In co-operation with the international mine clearing company in London, the hydrographic service furnishes regular mine warnings and charts to all mariners leaving American ports. These show that vast mine areas of the war are still unswung and mines that break loose drift into the channels of steamship traffic, occasional destruction of vessels from this cause being reported. Navy officers believe it will be years before the danger is wholly passed or until the action of salt water has finally destroyed the mines.

CAPITOL REMOVAL MEETING

WITH 300 DELEGATES PERFECT PERMANENT ORGANIZATION AT ORLANDO

(By The Associated Press) ORLANDO, April 5.—Three hundred delegates from all sections of the state East and South of the Suwanee river met here today to permanently organize a capitol removal association with the object of moving the state capitol from Tallahassee to the central part of the state. Colonel T. J. Appleyard, state printer, appeared at the meeting and threw a bombshell by inviting the organization, in behalf of Leon County Chamber of Commerce, to attend the cornerstone laying of the new addition to capitol there May 10th.

BELGIAN TRAITOR IS CONDEMNED TO DEATH BY COURT

(By The Associated Press) MONS, Belgium, April 5.—Armand Jeanes was condemned to death in court here last night for treason and espionage against Belgium and her allies during the world war. He had boasted he was instrumental in bringing about the arrest and execution by Germans of Edith Cavell, the British war nurse, but this charge was not mentioned in the indictment against him. A burst of applause occurred in the court room when the sentence was passed and a great crowd outside jeered the prisoner as he was taken to the death cell.

BLAME ANTI-CATHOLIC PYROMANIAC FOR FIRE

MONTREAL, April 5.—Montreal police yesterday sought an anti-Catholic pyromaniac as the author of the fire which Monday destroyed the church of the Sacred Heart with a loss of $500,000. Efforts will be made to connect him, if he is found, with fires in other churches and institutions including the disastrous conflagration last week that destroyed the Basilica at the famous Shrine of Ste Anne de Beaupre.

A fireman fighting the church of the Sacred Heart fire, the police let it become known yesterday, heard a man say:

"St. Bridget's will be next and then we'll get the rest." He fled before the fireman could seize him.

The man's description, it was said, corresponded with that of a man who attempted to burn the St. Vincent De Paul refuge two weeks ago.

A man of similar description sought to gain entrance to the deaf and dumb institution in St. Dennis street a week ago but was turned away by the mother superior who became suspicious. Crossed electric wires are the pyromaniac suspect's method. Crossed wires caused the fire at Ste Anne De Beaupre and in the church of the Sacred Heart. Fire from the same cause broke out in the church of the Sacred Heart last December, but was extinguished with a slight loss.

A fire in St. Vincent De Paul's refuge was averted when an electrician discovered crossed wires shortly after a visit of a man posing as an electrician.

The man who sought admittance to the deaf and dumb institute posed as an electrician, came to inspect the wiring in the institute.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE SECURES NEW WHOLESALE CONCERN FOR THIS CITY

CHAUTAQUA YESTERDAY WAS SUCCESS

MOST POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT EVER SEEN IN THIS CITY.

The popular quartette, representing the New England states, held the closest attention of the large crowd that attended the first entertainment of the Redpath Chautauqua, which opened in this city yesterday under the auspices of the Business and Professional Woman's Club. The program varied enough to please the most critical audience and was received with much applause.

The New England Male Quartette rendered the prelude at the evening's program, and was greeted with the same hearty welcome. The lecture, "Under the Paws of the Russian Bear," by Lewis A. Convis, was a wonderful story well told by a man who is one of the best posted in America on his subject and his remarks gave people a new light on this much misunderstood country.

Tonight at 8 o'clock Gretchen Cox and Company in a program of classic music will begin one of the best entertainments of the entire Chautauqua. The program will be concluded by Thomas Brooks Fletcher, one of America's leading dramatic orators and editor of the Marion, Ohio, Tribune, competitive paper of President Harding. Mr. Fletcher has the largest return dating of any young man on the Chautauqua platform and his lecture alone is well worth the price of a season ticket. If you fail to hear him you are a big loser.

TIT FOR TAT, SAYS ENGLAND

(By The Associated Press) LONDON, April 5.—The British government has addressed a note to the Allies declaring that owing to the fact that Great Britain has to pay interest on her debts to the United States she reserves to herself the right to call upon the Allies in turn to pay interest on their war debts to Great Britain.

In this connection it is pointed out Great Britain is now fully prepared to pay interest due the United States.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Beyond the press reports of Great Britain's preparation to begin the payment of interest upon her five billion dollar war debt to this country, the treasury department is as yet without information on the subject.

PARIS, April 5.—The French reply to the British note concerning permanent interest on war loans by England is likely to be that the question is bound up with that of the inter-allied debts which must be dealt with as a whole, says the Echo De Paris.

$7,500,000 TO FINANCE WORK ON WILSON DAM

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, April 5.—The resumption of work on the gigantic Wilson dam near Muscle Shoals, under the charge of army engineers, was recommended today by the senate agricultural committee. It was voted to unanimously report the amendment to the army supply bill when presented to the senate providing for seven and one-half million dollars appropriation to finance work on the dam for one year beginning July first next.

EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS IMPROVING

Southern Drug Co. to Locate Branch Here

READY BY MAY 15

THE ENTIRE PICO HOTEL BUILDING HAS BEEN LEASED

A. N. O'Keefe, president of the Southern Drug Company, of Jacksonville, after careful inspection of various localities in South Central Florida, decided that Sanford offered greater possibilities for the establishment of a branch of his business than were to be found in other sections visited.

Shortly before leaving on a trip further south, Mr. O'Keefe announced that he had been attracted to Sanford by the many inducements it offered and which had been favorably brought to his attention in various forms of publicity originating from the Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Upon his arrival he stated that he was at first doubtful of securing a suitable location, but this difficulty had been overcome through the successful efforts of the local Chamber in negotiating his lease for the Pico Hotel Building; and which, after being remodeled and elevators installed, will be one of the most modern warehouses in Sanford. This work will be started the first of May and Mr. O'Keefe hopes to begin business not later than the fifteenth. He intends to utilize all the facilities Sanford offers as a distributing center, and the Sanford branch will operate daily truck service at first to Orlando and then to other adjacent points. In addition it will afford unusual service to local retailers.

Mr. O'Keefe was duly appreciative of the services rendered by the Chamber of Commerce in assisting him to secure a satisfactory location. He expects to return to Sanford very shortly and will spend considerable time here after the new branch begins business.

The Southern Drug Company, with headquarters in Jacksonville, is one of the oldest and largest wholesale drug concerns in the state, and until a few months ago maintained a branch in Tampa. They have recently purchased a new building in Jacksonville to take care of their increasing volume of business, and which cost them over $100,000.00. Before selling their business in Tampa they had completed a warehouse at a cost of $50,000.00, which they still own, not having been sold at the time they disposed of their business there. The Southern Drug Company can be assured of the co-operation of the financial and business interests of Sanford, and Mr. O'Keefe is to be congratulated in having selected Sanford as a location for a branch of his business. Those individuals in the Chamber of Commerce who are working to make Sanford a wholesale distributing point are elated that their continued efforts are now producing practical results. The sequence to more wholesale houses is increased river tonnage, and the latter means the quicker building of the St. Johns-Indian river canal which in turn will create a basic point at Sanford for Central and South Florida.

WOULD PRESERVE OLD HOUSE

Efforts Being Made to Raise Money to Buy Dwelling Dating From Seventeenth Century.

Some who love good things—and happily interest in the architecture of former ages is awakening more and more—are trying to preserve a remarkable old peasant's dwelling at Harveld, a lonely hamlet on the border in the province of Gelderland. It is called loos luis, dating from the seventeenth century and the last house of the loos type. Loos, in the German dialect, means open, by which it is indicated that the house consists of one room only and that there are no partitions between the places for housing and sleeping for men and beasts; cows and goats and chickens living peacefully together with the inmates. There is no chimneyplace; the wood fire burns in a hole in the floor, which to find an outlet as it pleases.

The peasants, man and wife, who are living here are beset with the extremely modern, yet most unfortunate thought of having a wall built between the stable and the dwelling room, adding a chimney and building another room, by all of which renovations the house will be irretrievably spoiled.

The managing committee of the open-air museum at Arnhem are now trying to get money together in order to buy the house and have it removed to their museum park. It is much to be hoped that they will meet with a prompt success.

ROSARIES FROM HOLY LAND

Important Bethlehem industry is the Manufacture of Rosaries From Material America Sends.

Ten to twenty tons of the pebble shell waste of American button factories—broken pieces and butt-ends of shells—are shipped monthly to the Holy land, where, in the village where Christ was born, the material is converted into beads and ornamental objects. For many centuries the manufacture of such products has been the only important industry of Bethlehem. They find a market largely in the United States. In 1920 there was shipped from Bethlehem to this country at least $60,000 worth of rosaries, made of mother-of-pearl beads, with silver chains and strung on wire of the same metal, or "white metal," for a substitute. For making larger carven or other ornamental objects Bethlehem obtains supplies of pearl-oyster shells from the Persian gulf, from India and from Australia. The chains of silver and white metal are imported from France. Hand labor is employed exclusively in the industry, and, inasmuch as it is very cheap, the idea of using machinery is regarded with disfavor.

Firemen Pull Out a Rat. Many funny requests come over the phone of the newspapers, and to the phone "information," but a new one was sprung recently in Marblehead, when the phone rang at the Franklin street fire station and a hysterical voice called for the department to come immediately to Circle street as a most peculiar crackling noise had been heard all night in one of the rooms.

The firemen rushed into their coats and boots with a vision of something doing in the smoldering fire line. On arrival no signs of fire could be detected, and the woman, much agitated, showed the men, whence the noises came. Armed with axes and picks they assaulted the dresser, from which the noises issued and after a stubborn struggle managed to subdue a good sized rat in a drawer of said dresser. The woman was grateful to the firemen, who now feel qualified to fight pests, bipeds or any walking creature, as well as the fire fiend.—Salem News.

Electric Steel Smelting.

It is claimed that an electric induction furnace which has been under trial for some time in Sheffield, England, solves the problem of making very large steel ingots demanded by modern machinery, because it is easy to make a two-ton ingot in this furnace as one of 60 pounds in a crucible. But it is admitted that at present high-grade steels can be made by the electric furnace on a commercially successful scale only in places where power can be obtained at an extremely low cost. Laboratory experiments have indicated that a high-class steel can be made by the electric process from inferior material, but for commercial purposes this is not yet possible.

Except for the clank of sabres and the rattle of arms, America might more easily hear Europe's Maccandorian cry.

Of course the world is getting better. Formerly it killed reformers; now it contributes to place them on Easy street.

J. G. Bell says it pays to advertise. He had what he thought was an abundant supply of rubber hose and tools for cleaning and fixing up the lawns and put an ad in the Herald and fixed up a show window and in a day or two had to put in a P. D. Q. order for more rubber hose as the supply he had on hand was practically exhausted. It pays to advertise, if you don't think so just ask J. G. Bell.

MEMBER THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sanford's new golf links will be ready for play by May 1. That's going some.

The beautifying of Central Park is progressing nicely and shows what can be done by systematic work.

We are informed that 116 men have signed up for stock in the Sanford Golf Club, and it is expected that at least 100 will "stick." The hustlers who have this movement in charge are to be commended.

As far back as we can remember we were taught that an Irishman and a fight were synonymous. The fracas now going on in the Emerald Isle convinces us that this precept was well founded.

What have you done for Sanford today? What did you do yesterday? What have you planned to do in the days that are still before you? Never let a day pass without boosting and doing something that will make for a greater Sanford.

The County Bond election set for Tuesday, April 11th, should receive a large vote in the affirmative. Roads like everything else, will depreciate and the Seminole county commissioners have made a wise move in planning to repair the ravages on our roads caused by increased traffic.

The announcement in another column that, through the efforts of the local Chamber of Commerce, Sanford has secured another big wholesale concern, will be mighty good reading for our people. Sanford is coming to the front, and nothing can hold it back from taking its place in the front ranks of the best towns in Florida.

A great many Florida sections will be represented at the rate conference of the Fourth Section Committee of Southern Carriers to be held in Atlanta next month when the railroads will again attempt to ignore water competition by bolstering local rates. Perhaps it might be a good thing if they succeeded for then we would probably become fighting mad and retaliate by using the river exclusively to carry our freight.

Market reports show celery prices still climbing and with them our hopes and aspirations. Already the plans are being made for the construction of a great many new houses and the business section will also come in for its share of new building. With work on street improvements, sewers, and yacht basin, provided for in the proposed city bond issue, this summer will see Sanford as busy as a one-eyed dog in a sausage store.

VOTE FOR BONDS ON THE 11TH.

Property owners of Seminole county will, on next Tuesday, April 11th, have the opportunity to decide whether they desire the county to be bonded in an amount of $100,000 for repairs to roads which, when originally built, cost them a great deal of money.

Details of the repair work contemplated and construction of the Osteen bridge have been published from time to time in this paper and the voters given sufficient opportunity to acquaint themselves with what this bond issue will cover. The county commissioners from time to time in the past have been repeatedly beseeched and petitioned to improve different sections of Seminole county roads and after a careful consideration and study of the subject this efficient body unanimously agreed on a number of improvements as most urgent, and decided on holding an election for the authorization of bonds to defray the expenses of these repairs. It is now entirely up to the people of the county as to whether they were sincere in their previous appeals for these improvements. Before reaching this decision, the county commissioners sounded the sentiment of the various civic organizations in Sanford and residents in all other parts of the county, all of whom went on record as being solidly behind this plan.

This bond issue must be carried for two very important reasons, viz.: To safeguard the original investment for good roads and to keep Seminole county roads up to as high standard as maintained by those counties which pride themselves on good roads. A great mistake made by a majority of Florida counties is that they have failed to properly maintain in repair roads, to build which, the counties bonded in large sums. As a result of this lack of foresight, these counties now find themselves as bad off for roads as they were before they bonded and if necessary, in a great many of the counties, to go through this whole program again.

The Seminole county commissioners have profited by the experience of other sections and with the support of the citizens will see that Seminole county roads will be kept in the same condition as they were when they were first laid.

If Seminole county roads are better than those in other counties, it is bound to attract those from other states who appreciate good roads. If Seminole county does not have good roads, there is nothing to hold this class of tourist here. To those who have been foremost in complaining about the condition of Seminole county roads, we say: "Put your X in favor of bonds next Tuesday or forever after hold your peace."

The county commissioners have done what the majority agreed was the proper thing to do, and have washed their hands of the situation. We are confident the vote will be almost unanimous in the affirmative.

The following paraphrase of Longfellow's poem hangs on the wall of the New York state highway commissioner's office and is very apropos to this subject:

"Hordes of autos now remind us That we should build our roads to stay,

And departing leave behind us Kind that rains don't wash away.

When our children pay the mortgage Father's made to haul their loads, They'll not have to ask the question, 'Here's the bonds but where's the roads?'"

IS BRYAN ELIGIBLE?

Ocala Star: The question has arisen, "Will Bryan run for the Senate?" and the peerless modestly says he will if he is "called." We all know what that means.

Another question, the answer to which should be more immediate and simple, is "Is Bryan eligible?"

Section 20 of Article XVI of the Constitution of Florida says:

"The governor and every state officer are hereby prohibited from giving certificates of election or other credentials to any person as having been elected to the House of Representatives of the United States Congress or the United States Senate who has not been five years a citizen of the state and ten years a citizen of the United States and a qualified voter."

Mr. Bryan has not been a citizen of Florida for two years. He was a citizen of Nebraska in the last presidential election. If he is nominated and receives a majority of the votes, our state officers cannot give him a certificate of election without breaking the law they have sworn to uphold.

"But," says Mr. Bryan's friends, "the constitution of the United States imposes no such qualifications; therefore, Mr. Bryan is not bound by it."

The United States government recognized the constitution of the state of Florida thirty-six years ago. The constitution of the state of Florida conflicts with the national constitution on one point. The state constitution says a man to obtain the office of senator must be a citizen of the United States for ten years; the national constitution says he must have been a citizen of the United States for nine years. If Mr. Bryan had been a citizen of Florida five years and a citizen of the United States nine years, he would be eligible to the senatorship, notwithstanding the ten-year requirement of the Florida constitution.

But Mr. Bryan has not been a citizen of Florida for five years.

We have seen it expressly stated by

UNCLE HANK

No matter how strongly a man believes in a hereafter, he is always careful to collect his bills in this world.

lawyers of high degree that the states possess any legal right that the constitution of the United States does not prohibit them from possessing. The constitution of the United States does not say that the state of Florida or any other state has not the right to put a five-year requirement on a citizen's being eligible to represent it in the senate; therefore, that law must be valid.

If Mr. Bryan is a Democrat, and believes in state rights, he will not try to have the constitution of the state of Florida get aside to favor his personal ambition.

Other friends of Mr. Bryan have been parading the argument, or rather making the threat that the national constitution says "Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members." Very true. But it does not seem to us that the people, least of all the people of any Southern state, want this carried to anything like an unreasonable extent. It is likely the Republicans of Florida will have this year a candidate for the senate. It is extremely unlikely that he will receive a large vote. But it will be in his power to claim a large vote, and it will be in the power of the Republican senate to seat him.

How would Mr. Bryan and his friends like that? They would denounce the senate, of course. But the senate would be no more law-breaking; no more given to setting aside principle for political expediency, than the people of Florida will be if they "call" Mr. Bryan and Mr. Bryan accepts.

Another argument of theirs is that other prominent men have practically done the same thing, and got away with it. Two or three wrongs do not make one right, and if the people expect the law that should protect all to be respected, they must discourage those who would set it aside to suit their personal or partisan convenience.

All of us, citizens of Florida, have taken a solemn oath to obey and uphold the laws of our state. William J. Bryan has taken that oath. Our governor and other officers have taken an oath to not only obey the law but enforce it. When any citizen of this state asks William J. Bryan, with the mud of Nebraska yet on his shoes, to run for the senate, he breaks his pledged word, for in his request he contemplates demanding that the governor and secretary of state of Florida break their solemn oath. If William J. Bryan becomes a candidate for senator, he will in the same manner break his word. And what sort of a man will that be to send to the senate?

Why should Florida set Park Trammell aside to favor the man who has been the most conspicuous failure in America politics? We do not consider Mr. Trammell as the highest type of a statesman, but we doubt that there is any man of his age in the United States Senate who has done more efficient and faithful public work. He has for 21 years held public office, and it is only too evident that the people he has served believe he has served well, for they have steadily raised him from the office of mayor of a little Florida town to the highest office in their gift. He has certainly made good as a senator. He hasn't tried to regulate the affairs of the world, or even of the nation, but has steadily attended to his duties as senator from Florida. His salary is not as big as that of a cabinet officer, and the cost of living in Washington has not lowered since 1914, but he has never neglected his duties to go out on a Chautauqua circuit, or do anything else to make money on the side. He hasn't been heard prating at so much per prate about patriotism, etc., but he has faithfully labored to obtain for our sick and crippled soldier boys as much as possible of what was due them. Nobody need fool themselves into thinking Bryan can better represent Florida. Wind is not at a premium in the United States Senate and Trammell has more influence in that body than Mr. Bryan ever could have.

If Mr. Bryan wanted to go to the senate, why didn't he go from Nebraska? He lived in that state more than thirty years, and it seems like his next-door neighbors should have recognized his pre-eminent ability. At present, Nebraska has a solid Republican delegation in the house. Shall Florida exalt what Nebraska wouldn't have?

BATTLING SINCE 1849.

The first strike ever staged by American coal miners was in 1849. A local union, organized in the Pennsylvania anthracite field, struck for higher pay and better working conditions. This strike failed.

It was a decade before miners again organized. Since then there have been hundreds of walkouts of various size and in various mining districts.

Among the hundreds of strikes only five were big enough to be compared with the present one, which breaks all records for number of men involved.

During the panic of 1893 miners' wages were cut. To regain this loss about 160,000 bituminous miners struck the following year. After disorders and calling out of militia in four states this strike ended in a compromise.

In 1897 there was an overproduction of coal. Anticipating a wage cut in a dull market 150,000 miners struck for three months. By then coal was scarce and wage cuts were out of the question.

The 1897 strike was the first major victory of the United Mine Workers of America. It led, in 1898, to firm establishment of collective bargaining between the union and the operators of the central competitive district, the heart of the bituminous industry.

The anthracite strike of 1900 won a wage increase of 10 to 16 per cent for the 132,000 miners involved.

Two years later the 140,000 anthracite miners walked out. After a strike of 23 weeks the Roosevelt commission raised their pay 10 per cent. They returned to work with a three years' contract.

In 1919 about 395,000 miners struck. They finally won a wage increase averaging 27 per cent.

Seventy-three years of intermittent strikes in the coal fields! It is one of the oldest of all labor controversies.

The fact that no permanent settlement has been found in nearly three-fourths of a century is due largely to a peculiar problem in the coal industry—seasonal buying.

Seasonal buying means that coal sales during certain months are dull. Miners then are laid off, for the mines do not operate long when they have no market.

This condition necessitates keeping a labor surplus in the coal fields, to handle orders when they show up, like maintaining firemen in idleness, awaiting outbreak of fire.

If you can solve this problem—find a way to induce homes and business to buy more coal during dull months—you have the key to a labor battle waged since 1849.

For, above all, what the miners always want is steady employment.—N. E. A. Editorial.

A WORD TO ELDERLY FOLKS.

Did you ever read Cicero's "Essay on Old Age?" Cicero was one of the greatest orators and writers of Rome and lived from 106 to 43 B. C. The literature concerning him is very large. He worked up to the last day when he was murdered by the soldiers of the emperor he had offended. With Cicero "Young" and "Old" were comparative terms.

When men who are physically young become self satisfied and settle down they become old early in life. On the other hand, men beyond the Psalmist's age are still mentally active and useful. In this class is Chauncey M. Depew, who is 88. He is now at St. Augustine enjoying his 30th winter in Florida. Thomas A. Edison, who for more than thirty years has spent his winters in Florida, is in the same class. He is 75. The minds of both are still keen and up-to-date. Both are no doubt familiar with Cicero's treatise on old age. It details the pleasures of life and you ought not to wait to the autumn of your life to read it.

What is more pitiful than to see a man physically old and mentally stagnant, with nothing to do but eat and sleep? They are in the class that Dr. Osler meant should be chloroformed, but really it would be a waste of chloroform. Fanny Crosby was writing hymns at 80 years old and blind her whole life. Joe Cannon, at 86, is still active in congress. Herbert Spencer and Charles Darwin dying in the 80's were busy to the last. James Bryce at 83 finished his last book. Remember that our after years are as much of life as the early years. They should be happy ones instead of being fallow and forlorn.—Florida Metropolis.

Blue Goose American Fruit Growers, Inc. Blue Goose

"The Premium Marketing Agency For Sanford Celery and Peppers"

The BLUE GOOSE went over the top last week with one hundred and five cars of celery, and advanced the price one dollar in one week

After due consideration of all of the factors involved, we concluded that the growers were entitled to higher prices than they were getting; and we took steps to remedy the situation. The plan was to arrange to ship at least 75% of the best blocks of celery in the district under the BLUE GOOSE LABEL and then advance the market.

During the week of March 20th, the necessary tonnage was secured and the campaign for higher prices was started at the end of that week.

Remember

That we have representatives in over one hundred and sixty markets, and each of these work the outlying towns in his particular district, making a total of over 2,500 markets in which BLUE GOOSE products are sold. This gives us a tremendous selling power, and explains why we are able to obtain the "HIGH DOLLAR" for Sanford Celery and Peppers.

When we were ready to go, we told the American Fruit Growers representatives what the price was to be from day to day, and they went out and got it.

On Saturday, March 25th, Celery was selling at $2.50 f. o. b.

Our schedule of prices for the week beginning, March 27th was as follows:

MONDAY .....	$2.75 F. O. B.
TUESDAY .....	2.75 F. O. B.
WEDNESDAY .....	3.00 F. O. B.
THURSDAY .....	3.25 F. O. B.
FRIDAY .....	3.50 F. O. B.
SATURDAY .....	3.50 F. O. B.

This is an advance of exactly $1.00 in one week from Saturday to Saturday, and the BLUE GOOSE did it. On Saturdaynight, April 1st every car of BLUE GOOSE Celery was sold. On Monday and Tuesday the market on BLUE GOOSE Celery was $3.75 f. o. b. but we will not attempt to forecast the market for the remainder of the week.

Don't you think it would be to your advantage to consult the American Fruit Growers before marketing your products.
