TODAY

BRIEFS

Main Street meeting

SANFORD — Sanford Main Street will hold its annual membership meeting this afternoon beginning at 5:30 p.m. at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, 400 E. First Street. Of primary consideration will be the election of new officers and directors. Officers to be filled include: vice president/ president, outreach chairmanship, promotion chairmanship, business owner's liaison, city liaison, fund-raising chairmanship, Georgetown/Sanford Avenue liaison, Goldsboro/13th Street liaison, property owners' liaison, Sanford Historic Trust liaison, and volunteer coordinator. Bob Parsell, who has served as vice president, will become Sanford Main Street's new president. The meeting is open to the public but voting for officers will be restricted to Sanford Main Street.

SJRWMD taxes

The Governing Board of the St. Johns River Water Management District adopted a $108 million budget for the 1997 fiscal year. The budget was approved last night with the fiscal year starting today. Board members voted to keep the district's tax rate at 0.482 mills for the third year in a row. Under the millage rate, the owner of a $75,000 home with homestead exemption would pay $24.10 per year in property tax for water management. The tax level will raise $53.1 million, or 31.6 percent of the total budget's revenue.

Unattended death

FERN PARK — The Seminole County Sheriff's Major Crimes section is investigating the death of a man whose body was found inside a car early yesterday afternoon near Fern Park. The body of Gary Stephen Stover, 43, of Casselberry, was discovered slumped over the wheel of his car, parked in the driveway of a home in the 2300 block of Carleton Road, in the English Estates subdivision. The home was occupied by Glen Davis, said to have been a friend of Stover. Sheriff spokesman Ed McDonough said Davis told investigators that Stover had a history of drug and alcohol abuse, but officers reported finding no signs of foul play or drugs inside or near the victim's vehicle. An autopsy is scheduled for today to determine the cause of death.

St. Johns money

U.S. Representative John L. Mica has announced Congressional approval of money to help restore the St. Johns River Basin and acquire lands in the Wekiva-Ocala Corridor. The St. Johns River Water Management District will receive a federal grant of $500,000 for land acquisition and the U.S. Army Corps will be allocated $250,000 for water quality restoration of the St. Johns River. The land being preserved will connect the Ocala National Forest with the Wekiva State Park, establishing an environmental preserve along the St. Johns River. The federal funds combined with state money will help acquire part of 2,000 acres remaining to complete the 18,000-acre Wekiva-Ocala connector project.

LAKE MARY — From the studios of WOFL FOX 35 the first edition of the "M.E. Awards" was not broadcast but probably would have been as entertaining as most of the television fare on Friday, Sept. 27. Red Carpet Night welcomed Lake Mary Heathrow Chamber of Commerce members to a night of entertainment never seen before in Lake Mary. The stars in the studio were much brighter than the stars in the sky over the fair.

SANFORD — There has been a snag for Seminole County plans to continue pushing for the purchase of recently abandoned 14-mile U.S. transportation railroad land. The corridor is between 80 and 100 feet wide and would connect the Cady Way Trail in Orange County to Spring Hammock Preserve in Lake County in Seminole County. Trail advocates consider it an important link in the statewide Rails-to-Trails program, particularly because it cuts through highly developed areas.

Goal: Stop auto thefts

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County Sheriff's Office wants to be sure that fewer cars are stolen and that those that are are quickly recovered. With a grant from the Florida Attorney General's Office, the Sheriff's Office has created a number of prevention programs and expanded the investigative unit to help recover stolen vehicles. We are using a two-pronged approach. Under Sheriff Steve Harrell's lead, we are starting first with the prevention of auto theft and secondly we are looking at the enforcement with our expanded auto theft unit. This past weekend toll collectors on the Seminole County Greenway began distributing auto theft prevention brochures to motorists. The brochures, Harrell

Fun cruise raises money for Winterfest

SANFORD — Despite looming clouds and dancing lightning, the crew of the rivership Romaner set sail with 208 passengers on a three-hour tour of the St. Johns River which highlighted Sanford and raised money for the Main Street program's Winterfest celebration to be held the first weekend in December. Romancing Sanford, Main Street's first efforts at a fundraiser on the river cruise, was a success, organizers and participants alike said. "This is just wonderful for Sanford," said David Daniels of Mount Dora who has witnessed a renaissance in his home town over the last quarter century. "I think Sanford has a lot of potential like Mount Dora did." Jennifer Grayano, project coordinator of Sanford Main Street, which sponsored the tour and will coordinate the Winterfest events, said she was encouraged by the community support for the event. "We were hoping for 200 and got 208," she said. "I'm really pleased." As the boat set sail from the Sanford Marina into the storm, those on board barely noticed as they moved through the buffet lines collecting samples of culinary jewels from many of Sanford's finest and favorite restaurants. Between splashes of raindrops threatening the port side, the lines remained long for those wanting to sample mouth watering pastries from Cafe Jake's and Angelo's Pizzeria, delicate crab quiche from the Rose Cottage Tea Room and scrumptious crab cakes with dill sauce from Buck's catering. On the bow, partiers navigated between Santa checking his list, a golden bell and a happy bovine in a Christmas wreath created by Louis

Jodie Karas and Jackie Villeneuve helped serve tasty fare from Angelo's Pizzeria before joining in the fun.

So quiet you can hear a candidate drop

Sanford voting precincts 62 and 125 at the Sanford Civic Center were not what one would consider as packed with voters this morning. There are only two races on today's primary runoff ballot, those for County Commission Districts 1 and 5. With no Democrat in opposition, the Republican winners of today's runoff will be elected. In District 1, incumbent Pat Warren faces challenger Grant Maloy. For District 5, incumbent Daryl McLain is running against challenger Paul Lovstrand. While Election Supervisor Sandra Gourd has predicted a 15 percent voter turnout today, state officials say it will be closer to 10 or 12 percent, and candidate Pat Warren predicts an eight percent turnout.

First Lady campaigns in north Fla.

JACKSONVILLE — Hillary Rodham Clinton told Democrats here they must work hard for the next five weeks to ensure President Clinton's win in Florida and a new four-year term in the White House.

"This is a watershed election in American history," the first lady told a crowd of about 1,100 Democrats at a rally Monday at St. Paul AME Church. "In this election, we are electing the last president of the 20th century and the first president of the 21st century."

"We are going to be determining whether this country goes into this new century united, ready and able to take on the challenges that confront us," she said.

Clinton is trying to become the first Democrat since Jimmy Carter to win Florida's 25 electoral votes.

"As we look to the next five weeks, every one of you can be a bridge builder," Mrs. Clinton said. "The president really wants you on his team. America's best days are ahead of us."

"That bridge to the 21st century has to be wide enough and big enough and strong enough for everyone who is willing to be responsible to walk across together," said Mrs. Clinton, who was greeted with a standing ovation when she arrived and another at the end of her talk. "How do we build that bridge? We build it by investing in our children. We build it by growing our economy. We build it by taking care of each other."

The first lady outlined her husband's accomplishments in turning around the economy with 10 million new jobs, low unemployment, low inflation, and a hike in the minimum wage.

"We have seen a lot of progress because the president fought hard in 1993, in 1994, in 1995 to get us in place for the kind of economic position we are in now," she said.

Mrs. Clinton also spoke of her husband's health care initiatives, outlined his education goals, and talked about his crime-fighting efforts.

Kiwi International files for Chap. 11

NEWARK, N.J. — It's been a turbulent ride for Kiwi International Air Lines since its start four years ago.

Now the carrier says debt, the government's decision to ground four of its planes this summer and the effects of the ValuJet crash have forced it to cut service and file for bankruptcy protection.

Starting today, Kiwi will serve only Newark, Chicago and Atlanta, with refunds offered to travelers booked on flights to Bermuda, Las Vegas, Orlando, Tampa and West Palm Beach in Florida, spokesman Rob Kulat said.

"Kiwi has slowly bled to the point where we have to take action," Jerry Murphy, the airline's president and chief executive, said Monday.

The Newark-based discount carrier remains nearly $40 million in debt, despite three straight profitable quarters, he said.

Kiwi will reduce its staff, but Kulat declined to specify how many jobs would be cut. However, the company expects to start expanding its flight schedule in November and some staff will be recalled then, he said.

The Federal Aviation Administration grounded four of Kiwi's jets in June because of questions about pilot training and record-keeping. The airline received permission to fly all its aircraft on August 20.

Murphy blamed the May 11 ValuJet crash, which killed all 110 people aboard, for creating a "downward spiral" that led to the grounding of the four Kiwi planes.

ValuJet returns to sky

ATLANTA — Like many other passengers on ValuJet Airlines' flight to Washington and back, Tom Bailey had no need to go.

Bailey, of Hilton Head Island, S.C., drove five hours just to make Monday's round-trip flight, ValuJet's first since being grounded for 15 weeks following a deadly crash in the Everglades.

"It was so much fun to see the joy on all the faces of the employees," said Bailey, a retired United Airlines pilot whose son returns to work later this week as a ValuJet pilot. "They got a real deal in this."

Customers were joined by a giddy group of flight attendants, a beaming ValuJet president, a couple dozen reporters and photographers, and cheering airline workers.

Passengers enjoyed special $19 one-way fares. Cleared by federal regulators last week to resume limited operations, ValuJet's first flight since June 17 took off from Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport at 12:57 p.m., about 30 minutes behind schedule. It landed at Dulles International Airport near Washington at 2:20 p.m.

The airline also resumed flights Monday to three Florida cities — Fort Lauderdale, Orlando and Tampa.

ValuJet President Lewis Jordan said he hopes Monday's smooth flight will bring an end to safety questions raised after the May 11 crash in Florida that killed all 110 people aboard.

Haitian radio claims AIDS a myth

By The Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — For three years, a Haitian radio talk show host and two medical professionals have been telling listeners AIDS does not exist.

People should refuse drugs and stop using condoms because the disease is a fabrication of U.S. pharmaceutical companies seeking to increase business and curtail Haitian population growth, the trio proclaimed.

"We are not spreading lies. What we are saying are facts," said Henri-Claude Saint-Fleur, a North Miami Beach psychologist who was educated in France and initiated the program. "I'm happy to tell people the truth. I know lots of people who stopped taking their AIDS medication and are living well."

Such comments irk many AIDS counselors and physicians in Dade, Palm Beach and Broward counties, which contain one of the nation's largest concentrations of Haitian immigrants.

AIDS counselors and doctors worry that the commentators on WLOY-AM, arguably South Florida's most popular Haitian radio station, are winning converts among South Florida's estimated 155,000 Haitian immigrants, the Sun-Sentinel of Fort Lauderdale reported Monday.

"Everyone has free speech, but this has gone too far," said psychiatrist Laurinus Pierre, head of Miami's Center for Haitian Studies, which sees hundreds of AIDS patients. "People just refuse to take their medication. This is exactly what we don't need."

Counselors say Haitian patients from at least four treatment centers have stopped seeing doctors because of the show, and the commentators are reversing years of trust building among the Haitian community.

"(The show's) spreading a lot of confusion," said Saul Gelin, a counselor at Center One, an AIDS treatment center in Fort Lauderdale. "This is keeping people from seeking treatment."

Saint-Fleur began the show with Prancelot Moise of Lauderdale Lakes, a Haitian physician not licensed to practice in Florida. They now appear on the show hosted by Claude

Aubry at 7:30 a.m. weekdays.

Many Haitians keep the station turned on throughout the day.

The 1.4 million people diagnosed with Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome since 1979 really died from other illnesses, Saint-Fleur argues.

Scientists reject the trio's arguments as nonsense and point to mountains of documents about the fatal disease.

"The things they say are so unscientific. But they have medical credentials, so people believe them," said Georges Metellus, head of AIDS surveillance for the public health unit in Dade County. "It makes our job very, very difficult."

GIC fraud victims able to start filing claims today

By SHERRILL BATE
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Investors who more than a decade ago lost $20 million in a securities scam can start filing claims today for reimbursement from a new state fund.

The state comptroller's office will repay a thousand or more Floridians' lost money to GIC Securities Inc. when it was shut down in 1985 using an increase in the annual registration fees charged to securities brokers.

"We're glad that part of this nightmare is over," said Mary Jo Stonek, 40, who 11 years ago invested $120,000 from the sale of a home.

The Tampa woman said the refunds were good news for her and all those who lost money. "Now, at least after 10-plus years, they'll be able to recoup the money they lost."

A law that takes effect today doubles the annual registration fee for securities brokers in Florida from $20 to $40, generating an extra $1.7 million expected each year for the GIC victims and for 35 new fraud investigators.

Federal officials question safety of weevil treatment

By The Associated Press

MIAMI — The drive to release tree-eating bugs into the Everglades to combat the melaleuca trees draining the swamp has hit a speed bump: federal officials don't trust research saying the bugs won't hurt anything else.

For eight years, scientists at U.S. Department of Agriculture quarantine laboratories in Gainesville and Fort Lauderdale have been testing the weevil, Cryptorhynchus, to make sure it will munch only on melaleuca. Researchers concluded that would be the case.

But now, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which must approve use of the weevils, is questioning their work, calling it "misleading" with "serious information gaps," according to Ren Lohfener.

"We have to look at the big picture," he said. "We have to use the best science. We can't rush into an action that endangers other aspects of the flora and fauna that are unforeseen."

Among Lohfener's concerns are the fact that there's no contingency plan in case, for example, a jar of the bugs headed for the Everglades is accidentally released in a traffic mishap.

Welfare changes go into effect

By JACQUE MAALFAN
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Monthly welfare checks for thousands of poor families will stop two years from today because of state and federal reforms closing the era of open-ended help from the government.

An estimated 180,000 parents who get a monthly check to help make ends meet will be affected by the changes that took effect today. The parents have an estimated 850,000 children.

"Even though there's been an awful lot of publicity about welfare reform, it's going to take people some seeing that this is real to ... kind of get into it," said Don Winstead, who is in charge of welfare reform for the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

The new federal law sets a maximum lifetime cap of five years for Aid to Families with Dependent Children, the core cash welfare program for poor families.

But states are allowed to cut off assistance — which can amount to $303 a month for a mother with two children — sooner. Florida's law set a lifetime cap of four years.

Most people will be limited to two years of assistance in a five-year period. Those with few skills and little work experience may be allowed three years assistance in a six-year period.

Research has shown most people on AFDC get off welfare on their own initiative before two years go by.

"The overwhelming majority of people who are on AFDC today want to get off and they want to work," Winstead said. "And this gives us new tools to work with them."

Florida's new law, a stricter version of an experiment started in early 1994 in Escambia County, also requires people to work or undergo approved training to qualify for benefits.

But the state will need several months to call all the parents in and review their skills and experience to see if they're ready to go immediately into a job or need some training.

"As long as they cooperate with that and do the things that they're required to do then we're going to work with them to move into employment," said Doug Jamerson, secretary of the state Department of Labor and Employment Security.

The department has thousands of job listings and will have to do a better job of matching up people with work, Jamerson said.

People must live up to the new rules unless they have a baby 3 months or younger or they will lose their benefits.

If children are at risk because of sanctions, their share of the benefits may be issued to another adult to spend on behalf of the children.

Although people won't lose their AFDC checks until Oct. 1, 1998, several thousand parents will take a $50 cut under another welfare change mandated by the federal government.

Until now, parents who work with the state in seeking child support could keep the first $50 in payment each month without losing any welfare benefits as a reward for their cooperation. But that policy changes this month, according to Larry Fuchs, director of the Department of Revenue.

An estimated 18,000 parents each month will be affected by the change, Fuchs said.

But Florida's new law has carrots as well as sticks. Some employers may get incentives for hiring welfare recipients — wage subsidies, training stipends, tax breaks.

And parents on welfare will be allowed to keep more of their income and still be eligible for assistance. They will also be covered by Medicaid for a year after cash assistance stops and subsidized child care for two years.

"The welfare to work equation changes so that the rewards are on the side of work rather than welfare," Winstead said.

Check cashing

Sanford police arrested Rosetta Williams Seabron, 25, of 1800 W. 16th Street Friday. The arrest was connected with a reported theft of a checkbook at an earlier date. Police said Seabron reportedly signed and cashed nine separate checks which were proven to have been among those stolen, for a total of $1,148.01. She is said to have cashed them personally at her place of employment at Seminole Towne Center. Police have charged her with nine counts of uttering a forged instrument, nine counts of forgery, and one for grand theft.

Theft arrest

Sheriff's deputies arrested Ronald Wayne Smith Jr., 20, and Christopher Lee Rocca, 19, both of Deltona, in connection with a burglary case. According to the arrest report, a chain saw, acetylene torch, gauges and tools were reportedly stolen on Sept. 23 from a business in the 1300 block of Myrtle Avenue in Sanford. On Sept. 24, prior to knowing of the theft, a deputy reported stopping a pickup truck which had reportedly been acting suspicious, on Nolan Road. The deputy said he saw a chain saw and other items in the truck but had no reason to believe they had been stolen. The two persons in the vehicle at that time were identified as Smith and Rocca. They were not detained.

Following a further investigation, deputies found that the items seen in the truck were believed to have been those reported stolen. Following questioning of the two, they were arrested. Rocca was charged with burglary to a business and grand theft. Smith was charged with burglary to a structure/conveyance, and grand theft.

Multiple stops

Wilma L. Castro, 21, of Orlando, was spotted reportedly driving with high beam headlights on Interstate-4 near Lake Mary by a Lake Mary police officer Sunday. The officer conducted a traffic stop at I-4 and SR-434, and warned her about the lights before letting her leave. After dispatch contacted the officer regarding the license tag which was reportedly not registered in Castro's name, the officer chased and stopped Castro once again. The vehicle subsequently proved to have been stolen. This time, he charged her with grand theft auto, and possession of cocaine. After she was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, it was found she was also wanted on an active warrant for failing to appear on a charge of possession of a controlled substance.

Traffic stops

William Edward Kinnard, 45, of 2615 S. Park Avenue, was stopped by deputies on Lake Geneva Drive Saturday. He was charged with driving under the influence.

James P. Dyzeman, 29, of 301 Collins Drive, Sanford, was stopped by Sanford police in the 1800 block of W. 25th Street Saturday. He was charged with reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle with a cancelled/suspended/revoked license.

Florence M. Orahl, 38, of 105 Hazel Blvd., Sanford, was stopped by deputies on U.S. Highway 17-92 near CR-427 Sunday. She was charged with driving under the influence.

Vehicle burglaries

Booker T. Barriner, 34, of 2501 Crawford Drive, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Friday. A witness had reportedly identified him as having been involved in break-ins of six separate vehicles, at a business in the 1100 block of S. Sanford Avenue. Barriner was given six charges of burglary to a conveyance and one for possession of drug paraphernalia.

Retail thefts

Francis Lee Simpson, 41, of 1701 W. 18th Street, was arrested by Sanford police Sunday at a retail store in the 1800 block of French Avenue. Officers said he attempted to take a bottle of wine from the store without paying. He was charged with retail theft.

Police said Darren T. Sanders, 20, of Daytona Beach, and a female were found taking an estimated $450 in items from a clothing store at Seminole Towne Center Sunday. The female reportedly drove off and could not be apprehended, but Sanders was taken into custody on charges of grand theft and retail theft.

Open container

Adrian S. Williams, 26, of 1706 Mulberry Avenue, was arrested by Sanford police Friday at Third Street and Park Avenue, when an officer reported seeing Williams with a can of beer. Williams was charged with having an open container, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Business burglary

Sheriff's deputies are investigating a burglary Friday at a convenience store in the 5700 block of W. SR-48. Deputies said a $500 ATM machine and a $100 safe were both stolen from the store. They said a dolly, normally kept in a storage area, was found outside the building, and is believed to have been used in the theft. There was no immediate information regarding the amount of money which may have been in the ATM machine or the safe.

Stolen and recovered vehicles

KEOKUK, Iowa — Kimmi Hardy had told people for months she was going to have a baby, and even wore maternity clothes and held a shower after the birth.

She did, in fact, have a baby — but it wasn't hers.

Hardy had lured a new mother to her home, shot her to death with two bullets in her head, hid the body and took the woman's 6-week-old baby boy as her own, police said.

Her scheme began to unravel when one of the guests at her shower realized the baby was not a newborn and called the FBI.

Hardy, 36, was charged Monday with murdering Theresa

Lund, 34, and jailed on $2 million bond.

Hardy had already been charged with kidnapping and other counts after police, acting on the guest's tip, found the baby at her home on Sept. 18. At the time, Hardy said she had bought the child for $3,000 from someone out of state.

But her husband, Robert, eventually told police about the plot and led officers to Lund's body on Friday. He will probably be charged as an accessory, Lee County Attorney Mike Short said.

Mrs. Hardy started telling people she was pregnant in April or May, according to court papers filed Monday. She bought a .38-caliber handgun on July 31, and asked a gun dealer if it was "capable of killing someone, and if so, at what range," the papers said.

Lund and her baby, Paul, were reported missing Aug. 28 after her car was found in a store parking lot. That day, Mrs. Hardy — who police said was a casual acquaintance of Lund — told friends and family she gave birth to a boy in her trailer home.

But after police found Paul and identified him using fingerprint records, Robert Hardy told police about the slaying.

He told authorities his wife shot Lund on the morning of Aug. 28 in the basement of their home and hid the body in a crawl space off the laundry room in their home in Keokuk, a Mississippi River town of 13,800 in the southeast corner of Iowa, court papers said.

He told police he wasn't home during the slaying, but later helped his wife get rid of the body and hide evidence. Lund's body was found along railroad tracks less than 10 miles from the Hardy home.

One person interviewed by police quoted Mrs. Hardy as saying, "I did something really bad that I could never be forgiven for, and it was so bad that I had to get Bob involved," the complaint said.

Lund's mother, Velva Green, said she had feared the worst when her daughter, who had four children, disappeared.

"Her kids were her life," she said. "She put them before everyone else. She didn't believe in baby sitters and she never left her children alone."

Happy anniversary

Today is one of the biggest days of the 25th anniversary celebration at Disney World. The list of television personalities, political leaders and sports stars who are in the area for this event is long and impressive.

Included in the list are Hillary Rodham Clinton, Governor Lawton Chiles, former governors Reubin Askew, Claude Kirk, Bob Martinez, TV stars Betty White, Kathie Lee Gifford, and a host of others.

Unfortunately, there are still people in Central Florida who respond, "who cares." They see this as a mere publicity stunt through which the Disney coffers will be enriched, resulting in possible raises for such top officials as Chairman Michael Eisner.

But since when is it against the law to make money?

The point here is not whether Disney pays its employees enough or whether Michael Eisner earns more than he should. It's that this attraction, considered by many as the most popular in the entire world, has helped Central Florida to grow and prosper like nothing else before.

Admittedly, there are some who would have preferred to see this area remain as a small town/large town semi-rural community. But the benefits every one of us have received through this growth is beyond description.

For people who are still bothered by the Disney presence, we must ask questions: If there were no Disney, would we have the other major attractions? If we had no attractions would our average work salary be where it is today? Would we have support businesses such as hotels, major shopping centers and other places of employment? How high would our ad valorem tax structure be?

Not everyone works directly for Disney. But every one of us benefits, in one way or another, from the economic benefits of having this entertainment complex as a next door neighbor.

Yes, the highways are crowded, the admission prices are higher than may be affordable by low-income people, and there may be other problems, but we believe they are outweighed by the benefits.

With that in mind, we offer a round of applause for Disney World on this anniversary of its 25th year of operation.

At various times in our history, we believed it would be celery or citrus which helped improve our economy. Who ever thought it would be a mouse?

History repeats itself

Re: Jail Escape (or Escapade!)

History certainly does repeat itself, although not always in the same location!

Over seventy years ago a brand new county courthouse in Cortland, New York (some thirty miles south of Syracuse) was the scene of a similar event.

For the sake of economy the new jail was placed on the third (top) floor rear of the impressive domed courthouse, with much attention to the special steel bars, doors, locks, etc. This was well publicized and thoroughly discussed (and cussed!) at the time, especially when it was finally revealed that the total cost had exceeded the estimate by some considerable margin!

Shortly after the prisoners were transferred from the decrepit old jail (which apparently had never had a prisoner escape) the tax payers were greeted by the news that two prisoners had escaped during one night!

It developed that they had used their own ingenuity by honing the edges of their soup spoons on some rough surface and then digging their way up through the ceiling plaster! Of course they had to break through the lath and roofing material but this they managed to accomplish somehow before morning and without detection! Once on the roof they easily clambered down the exterior fire escapes.

(Believe it or not, this was the cause of much merriment and joy way down in New York City's Tammany Hall, which historically had always been pointed out by upstate Republicans as being corrupt, wasteful and generally inferior, as one might expect from that other political party.)

I was told by two of my Cortland friends that Tammany coined the phrase "Paper Mache' Jail" which really stuck, for I heard it some years later the first time I was ever in that city!

Voting for someone you don't respect

At dinner in London a couple of weeks ago I found myself seated, for reasons too complicated to explain, next to a peer of the realm. In the course of conversation he asked me why so many Americans appear to be preparing to vote for a man whom, according to the polls, they clearly don't respect.

It's a good question, and one not confined to British peers.

Polls show that most Americans don't trust Bill Clinton, and don't believe much of what he says. Yet the same polls indicate that he is somewhere around 10 percent ahead of his principal challenger, Bob Dole. To be sure, that margin is narrowing, and will in all likelihood narrow a good deal further before election day -- especially if Dole (unexpectedly) does well in their forthcoming debates. But why is Dole, who is famous all over Capitol Hill as a man who keeps his word, and whose basic morality has never been challenged, trailing at all?

One theory, which might be called the McGroarty Theory because it's championed by that noted liberal columnist, is that the American people simply don't care about morality. They know all about Mr. Clinton's morals in 1992 and they elected him anyway. Case closed.

But it just isn't true that the voters, in 1992, knew all about Bill Clinton that they know today.

True, Jennifer Flowers had told her story, but the liberal media conspired with the Clintons to make that whole thing sound like a one-night indiscretion rather than a 12-year affair. And we hadn't yet heard a peep from Paula Jones, let alone the state troopers.

Besides, sexual immorality isn't by a long shot the whole story. It is only since 1992 that we have had any way of gauging the huge gap between what this man says and what he does, or how fast he can say one thing and then its exact opposite. He is as shifty and undependable as a riverboat gambler, and the voters know it. Yet millions are preparing to vote for him. Why?

It's a good question, and one not confined to British peers.

Partly it's because of the point underlying the old joke about the man who was asked, "How's your wife?" and replied, "Compared to what?" A lot of people who would admit that Bob Dole is a more admirable person are nonetheless turned off by his braying Kansas monotone and his built-in scowl. He is the last (one hopes) of the pre-television politicians to run for president, whereas Mr. Clinton has the casual, lighthearted charm of your local TV weatherman. Give him a break or two (like his current opportunity to play peacemaker again in the Middle East) and he can seem, briefly, almost plausible in the Oval Office.

But there is a sadder reason at work here too. Not too long ago, presidents in this country were looked up to. Recently in this space I reminisced that, when I roughed up FDR verbally during his incumbency, I was often met (and chastened) by the admonition, "If you can't respect the man, at least respect the office." That continued to be pretty much the prevailing attitude, with some help from a protective press during the Kennedy years, right up until Lyndon Johnson ("Hey, hey, LBJ, how many kids did you kill today?") and, of course, Richard ("Your president is not a crook") Nixon.

Since then, perhaps only Ronald Reagan has managed to wear the kingly crown with real success.

MORTON KONDRACKE

Clinton viewed as America's CEO

Republicans are driven almost to distraction by the fact that voters say they don't trust Bill Clinton, but plan to re-elect him. My simple explanation for it: People now view the president as the nation's CEO, not as its moral icon.

The operative political rule in the country: If the firm is profitable, keep the manager. Polls indicate that Americans are satisfied with the way things are going. They also prefer Clinton's strategic plan to Bob Dole's. So Clinton is forgiven his trespasses.

There are limits, of course. If a CEO is repeatedly arrested for drunk driving or so embarrasses the company that customers don't want to use its product, the board will replace him. A president who lacked minimal dignity also would be dispatched by the voters.

Clinton might be in danger of defeat if he had persisted in discussing his underwear on MTV and playing the sax on late night television. But he learned how to act like a president, speak with authority, and avoid letting familiarity breed contempt.

Even then, acting well wouldn't save him from defeat if his various pursuers had been able to prove wrongdoing in the Whitewater, Travelgate, Filegate, or Paula Jones cases. What they've come up with falls far short of meeting the Richard Nixon smoking gun test. At this stage, the most anyone can find is a warm barrel.

Not so long ago, polls indicated that a majority of voters suspected Clinton or his wife might be guilty of illegal behavior. They couldn't be sure, though, and so the worst Clinton is suffering is a pall on his reputation.

In the NBC/Wall Street Journal poll, only 38 percent of voters said they were confident that Clinton had "the right personal characteristics to be president. Sixty percent expressed doubt. But 55 percent approved of his performance as president and 51 percent said they planned to vote for his re-election.

It may be lamentable that the presidency is no longer held in such esteem that a prospective occupant must epitomize the highest moral standards, but nearly every institution in America has been demystified over the past 30 years -- the presidency, most of all.

In fact, it's a wonder that people accord the presidency the respect they do after years of disclosures about John F. Kennedy's dalliances with a Mafia moll and Marilyn Monroe and the expletives of Watergate, topped off by the handiwork of Oliver Stone, Jay Leno and Don Imus.

Some conservative pundits like Charles Krauthammer are so distraught at the prospect of Clinton's re-election that they've started blaming the public, claiming that he's just the president a wastrel nation deserves.

But all the evidence suggests that, absent proof of some egregious case of moral turpitude, the public is judging its candidates on pragmatic grounds. What kind of job is he doing? What kind of job will he do?

The latest NBC/Wall Street Journal poll shows that 56 percent of voters say they will decide how to vote based on a candidate's position on the issues, and only 27 percent choose "personal character and values."

The poll also shows that more voters think the country is on the "right track" -- 39 percent -- than at any time in the past four years, and fewer -- 44 percent -- think it is on the wrong track.

Voters consider jobs and the economy the most important issue on which they'll base their vote, and 52 percent of voters say that they and their families are better off than they were four years ago.

The second most important issue, according to the poll, is education, and on this, they prefer Clinton's policies to Dole's by a whopping 51 percent to 28 percent. Education may be the most underrated issue in the campaign by pundits, but Clinton shows every indication of understanding that it is seen by most Americans as the key to opportunity in this society.

The only issue on which Dole registers a lead over Clinton is taxes, and that is only by 41 to 36 percent. Moreover, Clinton gets far higher marks than Dole on CEO virtues -- having a vision (45-30), understanding the problems facing the country (40-28), and having the right policies for the country (42-35).

The NBC/Wall Street Journal poll shows that by 45 to 27 percent, voters think Dole is superior on "being consistent and standing up for his beliefs," but the latest Pew Research Center poll gives Clinton a 47 to 38 percent edge on being "a strong leader" and a 51 to 34 percent lead on "would use good judgment in a crisis."

The tragedy would be if Clinton got re-elected and then it was proved that he was guilty of some grave offense. His second term could be a wreckage like that of Nixon, another chief executive who won, but wasn't trusted.

People now view the president as the nation's CEO, not as its moral icon.

Ancient tunnel underlies riots

WASHINGTON -- The violence touched off by the Israeli reopening of a tunnel near the Dome of the Rock may ultimately head off more extreme alterations of the site.

The small rectangular piece of ground in the southeast corner of the old city of Jerusalem is considered sacred to three of the world's great religions.

The Temple Mount in Jerusalem is sacred to Jews because it is where Abraham is believed to have almost sacrificed Isaac.

It is sacred to Christians because it is the spot where Herod's temple stood, at which Jesus is believed to have spoken.

And it is sacred to Muslims who believe Mohammed ascended from there into heaven. The two edifices on the site now, the Al Aqsa Mosque and the Dome of the Rock, both celebrate the Muslim religion.

The "rock" in the latter edifice is that from which Mohammed's horse is believed to have jumped with its rider into heaven. It is the third holiest Islamic shrine after Mecca and Medina.

U.S. intelligence sources told us it was hard to believe that Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu did not know what kind of reaction the reopening of the tunnel would spark.

Some say he was "testing the waters" to see just how far he could go. Others say Netanyahu miscalculated, and ignored advice from security experts regarding the automatic weapons now in the hands of the Palestinian police.

U.S. and Israeli intelligence sources say Netanyahu has been listening to pleas from minority religious sects who want to rebuild the Temple of Herod. The extremist groups hold sway over Netanyahu because they often comprise an important swing vote in the Israeli legislature.

Israeli sources told our associate Dale Van Atta during several visits to Jerusalem that an influential number of rabbis and believers among these fundamentalist groups have long felt the "call" to rebuild the temple, and have been preparing for just such an event.

A group of Levite priests, for example, has patterned ceremonial robes after those the priests used 2,000 years ago. They've also drawn detailed architectural sketches seeking to duplicate appearance of the original temple.

It had been their hope that the temple could be rebuilt without moving or altering the important Muslim sites. But the only way to find where the real temple was -- particularly its center, the Holy of Holies -- was to locate a tunnel (not the one recently excavated) which, by tradition, led from that holiest of areas out of the Temple Mount.

The search for that tunnel began in secret and earnest as soon as the Israelis conquered Jerusalem during the 1967 war. It was discovered, these sources believe, in the summer of 1981. As the workers who broke into it excitedly rushed along, they discovered that it led to a point just below the Dome of the Rock-Al Aqsa complex.

The flow of water at the mosque quickly changed, and Muslim worshippers began to hear picks against the stone below. Small-scale rioting erupted, and the Israeli officials consented to seal the new passageway and halt excavation.

As terrible as the recent events in Jerusalem are, one healthy result would be for the Israeli government to scale back the ambitions of the extremists, whose quest for a rebuilt temple is a ticket to bloody martyrdom.

The small rectangular piece of ground is considered sacred to three of the world's great religions.

The awards ceremony was hosted by well-known jazz singer Jacqueline Jones, who played Whoopi Goldberg, and chamber Executive Director Diane Parker, as Marilyn Monroe.

Awards, such as "Chamber Member Most Likely To Fall Asleep At A Breakfast Meeting," or "Chamber Member Most Likely To Pass Out Business Cards At A Funeral," were interspersed with live entertainment presented by brave volunteers impersonating famous people.

Some of the celebrity look-alikes included: Garth Brooks (James Cox, pastor of Crossings Community Church), Liza Minelli (Sandy Gambone, of WOFL FOX-35), and the Indian Chief from the Village People (Ed Thomas, director of Seminole Family YMCA).

Parker sang "Happy Birthday" to Mayor Lowry Rockett, imitating Monroe's similar breathy greetings to President John F. Kennedy.

Jones also made an appearance as the raucous Tina Turner, and belted out, in her own voice, "Proud Mary."

The highlight of the evening was a surprise appearance of the rock group KISS, played by Louis DiPaolo, of Seminole Moneytree, Frank Baker, president of the chamber, Mike McLean, of Nationwide Insurance, and Lake Mary Police Chief Richard Beary.

Dancing and a dinner buffet, catered by Galleria Ristorante Italiana, completed the evening.

Rails

oped Seminole County, where land is both scarce and expensive.

The snag came Friday in Tallahassee, when Governor Lawton Chiles and State Comptroller Bob Milligan began to question the cost of the purchase.

"It wasn't turned down," said Seminole County Planner Ben Griffith. "They apparently didn't have all of their questions answered, so the matter has been tabled until an October 8th meeting."

According to Gov. Chiles and Milligan, it's a question of paying too much. They say the land is being valued based on how much the land beside them is worth, which they say is why taxpayers have been paying premium prices — as much as $77,500 an acre — for inactive railbeds to turn them into recreation trails.

"It just doesn't make any sense to me at all," said Comptroller Milligan, arguing against a $65,700-an-acre purchase in Seminole County. "They won't think much of this down at the 7-11."

Griffith says they have apparently overlooked the fact that the cost is actually less than what was paid originally when other land was obtained for this project. "Times are changing and costs are going up," Griffith explained, "but the appraisals, conducted by us (Seminole County) as well as the DOT (Department of Transportation), were very close and right on target with the going price these days."

The issue came to a head during last week's Cabinet meeting, when Chiles and the six Cabinet members tabled a deal to spend $7.5 million on 115 acres of railbed owned by CSX Transportation Inc.

Kent Wimmer, chairman of the Florida Recreational Trails Council, said he was disappointed by the decision, but heartened that the Cabinet agreed to re-examine the matter if the Department of Environmental Protection could negotiate a better deal.

"I think we were able to convince them of the value of the project," Wimmer said.

Griffith also said he was disappointed at the decision last week, but felt confident that once further information on previous costs and land values were considered, the cabinet and governor would agree to the proposal.

CSX Transportation spokesman Andy Hollingsworth said value for the land was determined by the DEP's own appraisers, who use the "across-the-fence" method common when appraising the narrow tracts of land.

"It's exactly that method that drew strong criticism from Chiles and the others."

"How in the heck do appraisers get this kind of number?" Chiles asked.

How, explained DEP Secretary Virginia Wetherell and her staff, is by determining the value of land adjoining the railbed, and assigning that segment the same per-acre price.

So, for instance, if a mile of the railbed borders a golf course, then that portion would be valued at the same rate as the golf course, while the next segment adjoining a shopping center would get the same per-acre value as the shopping center.

Cabinet members were unimpressed with the method, which they said neglects to take into account that, realistically, an existing golf course or shopping center or housing development is unlikely to have any use for an adjoining piece of land less than 100 feet deep.

And, excepting utility companies looking for routes for power lines or underground communications cables, such a skinny parcel has almost no commercial value on its own.

"You're going to have a hell of a long strip shopping center that's only 80 feet wide," Chiles said.

In this instance, CSX did try to sell the corridor to Florida Power Corp. for $20 million but could not. Eventually, CSX lowered its price to the current $7.5 million — partly because the company supports the Rails-to-Trails concept.

"We dropped significantly our sale price to meet the needs of the community," Hollingsworth said.

Insurance Commissioner Bill Nelson, though, didn't think the price had fallen nearly enough. "It's not just a railroad bed," he said, "but an abandoned railroad bed."

Previous Rails-to-Trails purchases from CSX have varied in price from $2,300 per acre for a four-mile length of railbed in Suwanee County to $77,500 per acre for a 3.25-acre piece of the popular Pinellas Trail.

Wetherell said that while rural land is cheap, urban land is expensive and likely to get even more costly if the state misses purchase opportunities.

But Attorney General Bob Butterworth said the railroad companies really didn't have much of a market outside utility companies and local and state governments, and that the state should drive a harder bargain.

"We have, in essence, spoiled the industry," he said.

Wetherell and Hollingsworth said they would continue negotiations to see if they could agree on an acceptable deal in time for the Oct. 8 Cabinet meeting.

Milligan, meanwhile, said he would have no difficulty voting against the purchase, if that's what it takes to tell the industry that it shouldn't expect such a willing checkbook from the state in the future.

"We ought to send them a strong signal," he said.

said, detail ways in which people can keep their cars from being stolen using simple, common sense measures.

"We are heightening awareness to diminish the opportunity for theft," the undersheriff said.

In addition to the brochures, deputies assigned to the neighborhood policing details are distributing cards with similar prevention advice to homeowners associations. The cards will be placed on the windshields of cars in which keys are seen in the ignition or elsewhere in the car.

"You should never leave your keys in the car...anywhere," Harriett said. "That is just an invitation to car thieves."

He said that 21,000 cards have been printed and will be distributed over the next few months.

The Auto Theft Unit, which boasts two additional investigators and an additional investigative assistant thanks to the attorney general's grant, will be distributing about 400 copies of a 20 minute video aimed at decreasing the number of young people involved in auto thefts. The film will be distributed in all of the district schools as part of a program in which members of the unit will make presentations explaining the consequences a teen-ager faces if arrested for stealing a motor vehicle.

The Auto Theft Unit has also begun making visits to all the area repair shops, salvage yards and auto body shops to check for stolen vehicles and to discuss auto theft with the owners and managers.

Seminole County has become one of the first counties in central Florida to install the LoJack vehicle tracking devices to locate stolen vehicles quickly and before damage can be done to it.

"Prevention is the key to reducing the number of incidents of auto theft," Harriett said.

After a day of Esoscope to make their way to the starboard side where cheesecake from the Willow Tree wowed their tastebuds, Cracker Barrel's chicken and dumplings and barbecue from Mr. Bill's tempted them further.

"I didn't realize there were this many good restaurants in Sanford," said Sharon Davis who said she had been to similar functions in Orlando that couldn't offer nearly the quality and variety of the Sanford function. "I'm not going to have to go so far for the good food as I thought I did."

The sun broke through the clouds as the boat passed under the 17-92 bridge and crowds gathered in the fore section. Newcomers to the area "ooohed and aaahed" as cypress trees, colorful birds and other natural beauty passed all around.

"This is such a beautiful river," said Brent Adamson, president of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Adamson, playing at the role of a pirate with his youngest son, pointed out much of the marine life to those on deck who were searching for the hidden beauty.

"That she blows...the great grey manatee!" Not satisfied with the simple natural beauty surrounding the boat, Rick Reeves of Mr. Bill's N.C. Barbecue, wanted to make his life more beautiful, he said. So, with Louis Armstrong on the public address system, he bent on one knee with a single rose and a microphone in hand, and asked Paula Hines to marry him as friends and a roomful of strangers looked on and cheered.

Hines, shocked into silence by the request hesitated a moment before hugging him and nodding a wordless yes.

"You hesitated there a little long," he said. "I was getting a little nervous."

They don't call the boat the Romance for nothing.

Inside, more of Afferi's creations, from brightly colored Christmas balls to sparkling lights, hung from the ceiling and leaned against the walls.

The ornaments, or ones similar to them, were available for sponsorship. For amounts ranging from $75 to $300 sponsors can ensure the downtown area will sparkle with good cheer this coming Christmas season. More ornaments are available for sponsorship even now. Graviano said.

"We're very pleased with the response we've gotten," she added.

Minimum wage rises to $4.75

By JOHN D. McGLAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The minimum wage rose to $4.75 today, a 50-cent-an-hour pay raise the government estimates will lift thousands of Americans out of poverty.

"The minimum wage is not going to cure poverty in one fell swoop," Labor Secretary Robert Reich said in an interview Monday. "But clearly this is a major step forward for hard-working people at the bottom rung of our economy."

The Commerce Department reported last week the number of poor Americans had dropped 1.6 million to 36.4 million from 1994 to 1995. The poverty threshold for a family of four in 1995 was $15,560.

The 50-cent an hour raise in the minimum wage is the first of two increases that will boost it to $5.15 an hour next Sept. 1. The overall 90-cent raise means an additional $1,800 annually for a full-time worker and, the government estimates, will remove 300,000 Americans from poverty rolls.

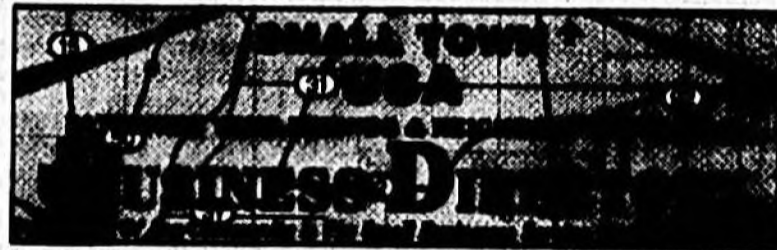

The last increase was a 45-cent boost in April 1991.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said 3.66 million hourly workers earned at or below the minimum before the new law became effective.

A sharply divided Congress enacted the increase on Aug. 2

— a rare Democratic legislative victory during 30 months of Republican control that came only with the help of GOP moderates.

IN BRIEF

Recreation Volleyball results

SANFORD — Results from the Sanford Recreation Department Fall Recreational Volleyball League at Sanford Middle School Monday night.

A League — Kathy's Baby Shop (4-0), Westview Baptist I and Cactus Bob's (both 3-3), Sanford Church of God and Park Air (both 1-3).

B League — Westview Baptist II and Hopkins Meats (both 4-1), CJ's (3-3), C.S.I. (2-3) and Why Knots and Lighthouse (both 1-4).

PDS blanks J / J True Value

WINTER SPRINGS — Juanita Johnson tossed a two-hitter and recorded her second straight shutout as the PDS-Hackers whitewashed J & J True Value 13-0 in Winter Springs Recreation Department Women's Fall Class C Slowpitch Softball League action at Central Winds Park Monday night.

The Hackers are now 3-0 on the season and will play at 8:30 p.m. next Monday against a tough CTX Mortgage club.

Former Seminole Community College players Jaudon Mariette and Bobby Osborne both hit home runs, Mariette's being a three-run blast in the fourth inning and Osborne ripping a two-run shot in the fifth inning.

Osborne finished the night 2-for-3, with two runs scored and three RBI, while Mariette was also 2-for-3, with one run scored and three RBI.

Also contributing were Christy Keesinger (2-for-4, two doubles, run, two RBI, six chances without an error in first start at shortstop), Connie Thomas (2-for-3, run), Tiffany Potter (2-for-2, two runs), Jackie Jenewich (1-for-3, run, three RBI), Tammi Chesser (1-for-2, two runs), Sanford's Laura Richards (1-for-3, run), Johnson (1-for-3, run, RBI) and Teresa Walburger (no errors in first game at first base).

Toucan Willie's cools Chillers

OVIDO — Toucan Willie's ran its record to 3-0 on the season with another laugh, pounding the Chillers 25-3 in Oviedo Recreation Department Men's Fall Class C Slowpitch Softball League action at the Oviedo Sports Complex last Wednesday night.

Toucan Willie's, who will play American Air at 8 p.m. tomorrow night, collected 23 hits.

Hitting were winning pitcher Greg Register (4-for-4, two runs, two RBI), Ryan Altira (3-for-4, double, four runs, four RBI), Joe Brandon (2-for-4, triple, two runs, three RBI), Troy Keesinger (2-for-3, two doubles, two runs, three RBI), Billy Stripes (2-for-3, three runs, three RBI), Kenny Tuttle (2-for-3, two runs, RBI), Rich Tribb (2-for-4, three runs, RBI), Ronnie Gardner (2-for-4, run, four RBI), Lance Abney (single, three runs, RBI) and Harold Hitt (two runs).

AROUND THE STATE

Erickson to start for Miami

DAVIE — Bernie Koeer had his chance. Now it's Craig Erickson's turn.

Erickson will make his first start Sunday against the Seattle Seahawks in place of Dan Marino, who is expected to miss three to five games with a fractured right ankle.

Coach Jimmy Johnson gave Erickson the nod Monday over Koeer, who played the final 3/4 quarters in last week's 10-6 loss at Indianapolis after Marino was injured. The Dolphins (3-1) generated just 120 yards and three points with Koeer in the game.

"I think we can win with either quarterback," Johnson said. "But we need to do something offensively. We scored six points last week."

The coach said he anticipated that Koeer would also play against Seattle.

Erickson, 27, signed with Miami on Sept. 2 after being released as the Colts' backup for salary cap reasons. He started three games for Indianapolis last year.

D-Day at Florida State

TALLAHASSEE — It's D-Day at Florida State and university President Sandy D'Alemberte says it's about time.

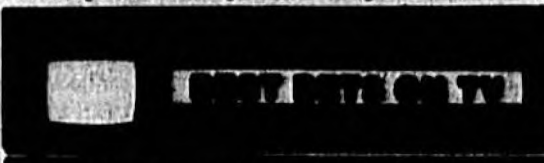

The school will find out today what the NCAA has decided on its appeal of a one-year probation handed down more than six months ago.

"I can't be optimistic," D'Alemberte said Monday. "I've lost my optimism some time ago. We'd just like to have the thing over."

NCAA spokeswoman Julie Gutheil said the chairman of the NCAA infractions appeals committee, Michael Stone, would make the announcement in a conference call.

Florida State's football program was given one year of probation March 20 for failing to properly monitor agents on campus. But the school lost no scholarships and remains eligible for bowl games and television appearances.

The NCAA also ordered the school to develop a more thorough compliance program and recertify its current policies and practices.

Henry gives girls wake up call, Rams rally

From Staff Reports

WINTER SPRINGS — Lake Mary head coach Cindy Henry sent her team a message after the first game Monday night and her forces received it loud and clear as the Rams woke up and rallied for a three-game 14-16, 15-0, 15-2 victory over Lake Howell in Seminole Athletic Conference girls' volleyball action at the new Winter Springs High School Gymnasium.

"I got a little bit angry after the first game, can you tell?" laughed Henry. "I let the team know I was upset and they responded very well. Sometimes anger works."

"It was a strange, we couldn't do anything right to start with, then we took complete control. I don't know, maybe we were in awe of the gym, it looks like a college gym. But it is also very big and there were not a lot of fans there, so it was real quiet and we seemed to be sleepwalking, then I gave them a little wake up call."

Henry had special praise for junior Elean Carvalho, who finished with 19 service points.

"We were down 15-5 in the first game and then she served us back to 14-14 before we lost it," said Henry. "Elean was the player that really got us going."

Other top performances were turned in by junior Jennie Mans and sophomore Jackie Van Louven. Mans pounded 18 kills, while Van Louven led the team in assists.

"Jennie was really hitting the ball well tonight," said Henry.

Lake Mary is now 9-7 overall and 6-2 in the SAC. Because this is nine-weeks exam week, the Rams girls will only play one more match this week, and it will have an early start.

Tomorrow (Wednesday), Boone comes to Lake Mary with the junior varsity match at 4 p.m. and the varsity set for a 5 p.m. start. The Rams will return to conference and 6A-District 4 action next Tuesday when they host Oviedo.

Competitive start In Church League

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — It doesn't get much closer than this.

Trinity Assembly of God-Majesty was within one out of pulling off the second upset of the day and throwing the Sanford Recreation Department Fall Church Slowpitch Softball League into a four-way tie for first place last Saturday morning at Chase Park.

But undefeated Sanford First Church of the Nazarene came up with two singles, a walk and a bases loaded triple and an error on the same play off the bat of Dennis McCoy to score six runs and Nazarene held on for a 12-11 victory.

Nazarene led 2-0 early, but Majesty came back to build leads of 4-2, 9-5 and 10-6 after six innings, setting the stage for the heroics.

Majesty had a chance in the bottom of the seventh inning, scoring one run and having runners on second and third with two out, but McCoy batted a hard grounder at short and threw on to first to end the game.

In the first game of the morning, Sanford Central Baptist scored four runs in the first inning and three runs in the third inning to build a 7-1 lead and Ann Evans drove in five runs, four with an inside-the-park grand slam in a five-run sixth inning, as Central Baptist dumped previously undefeated Sanford Buen Samaritano 14-5.

Buen Samaritano had closed to within 6-4 after four innings, but Evans' blast took all of the steam out of a potential comeback.

Sanford First Church of the Nazarene is now 2-0, while Sanford

Buen Samaritano	000	100	1	0	10
First Nazarene	110	001	4	10	11
Trinity Assembly	000	001	1	11	10

Central Baptist and Sanford Buen Samaritano are both 1-1 and Deltona Trinity Assembly of God-Majesty is 0-2, having suffered two one-run losses.

This Saturday, Sanford Church of the Nazarene battles Sanford Buen Samaritano at 9 a.m. and Deltona Trinity Assembly of God-Majesty challenges Sanford Central Baptist at 10 a.m.

Providing the offense were: Sanford Central Baptist: three hits — Richard Walker (three runs, two RBI); two hits — Mike Hartman (triple, two runs), Mike McCoy (three runs), Tracy Saxon (run); one hit — Ann Evans (grand slam, two runs, five RBI), Mike Schwartz (run), winning pitcher Ken Perry, Chuck Fink, Jack Doyle (one RBI each), Eddie Adams; two runs, one RBI — Robert Thacker.

Sanford Buen Samaritano: two hits — Carlos Vasquez (double, RBI), Mike Solis (two runs), Adrian Luoco (run), Raul Sagarra, Pico Castro (one RBI each); one hit — Miguel Diaz, Luis (No) Rivers (one run scored each); two RBI — Albert Solomon.

Sanford First Church of the Nazarene: three hits — Dennis McCoy (triple, double, three runs, three RBI), Joe Watson (double, two runs, RBI); two hits — Phillip Sutherland (triple, run, two RBI), Mark Bolton (two runs, RBI), Scott Johnson (run), Frank Turner; one hit — Tom Clark (home run, two runs, two RBI), Scott Wade, Mike □ See Church, Page 23

Sunniland sweeps Co-Ed doubleheader

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — Sunniland Corporation got just enough offense and plenty of defense as it swept a doubleheader and remained undefeated in the Sanford Recreation Department Co-Ed Fall Slowpitch Softball league at Pinehurst Park Monday night.

Sunniland Corporation scored two runs in each of the first two innings to take a 4-0 lead and held off BSM 6-3 in the first game.

Sunniland Corporation followed the same route in the second game, scoring single runs in each of the first and second innings, then let the defense take over in holding off Chang's Car Care/Bennett Auto Supply 2-1.

Sunniland Corporation is now 3-0 on the season, while Chang's Car Care/Bennett Auto Supply is 1-2 and BSM is 0-2.

Next week, BSM hosts the doubleheader against Chang's Car Care/Bennett Auto Supply at 7 p.m. and Sunniland Corporation at 8 p.m.

Providing the offense were: Sunniland Corporation (game one): one hit — Dennis Dunn (double, run, RBI), Bruce Sellers (RBI), Margaret Clevenger, Kim Frank, Tommy Vasina and Pam Murdock (one run each), Nathan Fahren; one run — Niece Miller.

BSM: three hits — Eric Cooper (RBI); two hits — Moe Shelton (double, run); one hit — Jason Kaiser, Kelly Richards; one run — Courtney Kalin, Don Murdock.

Leyland receives offer from Marlins

By STEVEN WINE AP Sports Writer

MIAMI — Former Pittsburgh Pirates manager Jim Leyland, looking for a team with a better chance to win, is expected to accept an offer to join the Florida Marlins.

The Marlins made the offer Monday, and a source close to team owner Wayne Huizenga described the negotiations as "a done deal." An announcement could come as early as Wednesday.

Leyland and Marlins general manager Dave Dombrowski said no agreement had been reached. Leyland, 51, bowed out as Pittsburgh's manager Sunday after 11 seasons, frustrated by the Pirates' cost-cutting measures.

Source said Leyland has talked to four teams. Each had made an offer or was prepared to make one, with the final offer expected today.

"A lot of teams are interested in Jim Leyland," said Boston Red Sox general manager Dan Duquette, whose team has a managerial opening following Monday's firing of Kevin Kennedy. "We'll have to assess his interest in coming to Boston."

Source said Leyland has talked to four teams — the Marlins, Red Sox, California Angels and Chicago White Sox. Each had made an offer or was prepared to make one, with the final offer expected today.

White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf will have dinner with Leyland in Pittsburgh tonight, source said. Chicago led in the final six weeks of the season under manager Terry Bevington, while California finished the year under interim manager John McNamara.

"I'm not going to drag this out," Leyland said. "There are a lot of people in limbo right now, a lot of coaching staffs that want to know if they've got jobs. There are a lot of people's interests at stake in this."

Leyland, who led the Pirates to three division titles, made $600,000 this season. Huizenga is expected to match any offer if necessary.

"The money that's going to be there is going to be comparable anywhere," Leyland said. "The money is not a factor. I just want to go wherever it fits best."

Pittsburgh was no longer a good fit because the Pirates hopes to trim their payroll to $18 million or less next season. Florida's payroll was nearly $30 million this year and will likely increase in 1997.

The Marlins, who went 60-83 this season, may be only two or three players from playoff contention. Leyland would replace John Boles, who would return to his former position with the Marlins as vice president of player development.

Leyland, a two-time National League manager of the year, visited with Dombrowski by telephone Monday morning from Pittsburgh.

"I didn't fly up there," Dombrowski said. "He felt with the number of people talking to him, it wasn't a necessity as of yet...."

"I don't need to interview Jim Leyland for a job. It was more just a presentation of what type of offer would be there and to talk about a couple of different philosophies."

Dombrowski and Leyland have been good friends since the early 1980s, when both worked for the White Sox.

Tim Raines is a Sanford native and Seminole High School graduate now playing for the New York Yankees. His stats are for the 1980 season in the first column, personal-best season totals in the second column and current career totals (including 1980 games) in the third column.

Raines wrapped up the regular season by going 0-for-3 on Saturday and 1-for-1 with his 10th double of the season and a run scored on the American League East Division Champions' first game of the playoffs. The Yankees will open a best-of-five series with the Texas Rangers on WBSN 2 tonight at 8 p.m.

Umpires

We're trying to concentrate on the playoffs.

A baseball management source, speaking on the condition he not be identified, said Phillips may back down if Selig issues a strong statement supporting the umpires.

Umpires went on strike for the first seven games of the 1985 playoffs in a contract dispute. They also struck during the first seven weeks of the 1979 season.

In 1991, baseball and its umpires agreed to a contract just hours before the first pitch, causing replacements to work seven of eight games on opening day.

Is follow-up necessary for cancer?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm an 88-year-old male who had a cancer removed from my bladder. My urologist wants to perform a cystoscopy every three months for the first year, every six months for the second, and once in the third. Is this necessary? Since my only symptom was the passing of blood in my urine, can't I just wait to see if it recurs and do something then?

DEAR READER: Look at bladder cancer as a form of skin cancer — with the exception that it grows on an internal skin surface and is, therefore, harder to see. Like a skin malignancy, bladder tumors can easily be removed if they are small and haven't spread. Also, like skin cancers, they tend to bleed readily.

Your urologist is correct in demanding close follow-up. If your bladder cancer recurs, he can easily remove it during cystoscopy, a technique of examining the bladder lining. As each month progresses and you remain cancer-free, the risk of a recurrence is lessened.

Thus, the doctor quite properly wants to perform cystoscopy at periodic intervals; more frequently at first, then less often. True, you could probably monitor the situation by checking your urine for blood, but the tumor may not bleed until it is quite large, making the job of removing it harder and increasing the risk that it will spread.

No sane human being looks forward to having someone shove a tube into his or her bladder. However, in this instance, such a procedure may actually save you from more extensive and expensive surgery. Especially with bladder (and skin) cancer, an ounce of prevention is, truly, worth a pound of cure. Follow your urologist's recommendations.

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from severe pain across the back of my head, down both sides of my neck and shoulders. I have been diagnosed with arthritis and bone spurs. My doctor doesn't want to operate and feels I have to put up with the pain. Well, the pain is so unbearable that I can't. Do you have any advice for me?

DEAR READER: Painful muscle contractions of the neck and shoulders caused by arthritis and bone spurs are a common complaint. Ordinarily, surgery is not an appropriate remedy for this chronic condition.

Instead, doctors usually try to reduce muscle spasm by a variety of means, including gentle exercise, physical therapy, massage, electrical stimulation, ultrasound treatment, muscle-relaxant medicines, and others.

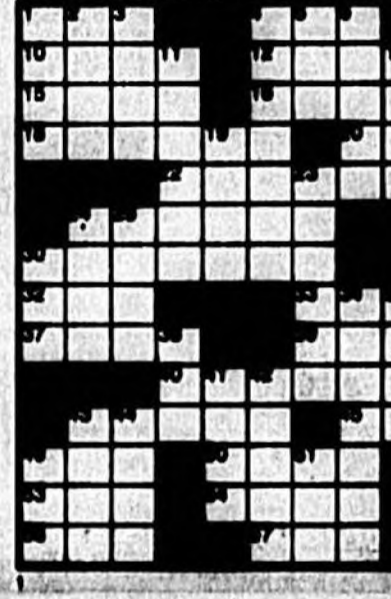

Given so many options, you shouldn't have to live with unbearable pain. Ask your doctor to refer you for a full program of physical therapy. Also, chiropractic manipulation often relieves such pain. Therefore, short of surgery, there's much you can do to obtain relief. Your physician can guide you.

Trying for a fourpeat

By Phillip Alder

The premier event at the Summer Nationals was the Spingold Knockout Teams. Nick Nichell, Richard Freeman, Jeff Meckstroth, Eric Rodwell, Bobby Wolff and Bob Hamman were trying to win for an incredible fourth year in a row.

They had reached the final against Richard Schwartz, Alan Sontag, Paul Soloway, Bobby Goldman, Steve Robinson and Ron Smith.

With five boards to go, Schwartz was in front, but Soloway and Goldman bid a grand slam on a finesse that lost. Suddenly Nichell had moved ahead.

With three boards left to play, Nichell led by 10 international match-points (IMPs). This was the antepenultimate deal.

In both rooms, the contract was three no-trump. At the other table, as neither major had been bid, Meckstroth led the spade seven. The defenders took four spade tricks followed by the heart ace for one down.

Here, Hamman couldn't open one club, as it would have been strong and artificial. So he and Wolff often open in a weak four-card major.

West, Schwartz, contemplated his lead for some time. If he led a heart, declarer would win 11 tricks and 11 IMPs, putting the match away. But judging that declarer was ready for a heart lead, Schwartz picked the spade seven! His partner, Sontag, made the excellent play of the queen. And, knowing West had only four spades, Sontag switched immediately to a heart. Trying for his contract, Hamman put up the king. Now the defenders cashed eight major-suit tricks for four down and four IMPs to Schwartz.

The lead was down to six. Tune in tomorrow for the conclusion of this gripping soap opera!

Clear Birthday

Wednesday, Oct. 2, 1988

Several important changes in your lifestyle might begin in the year ahead. These alterations could benefit you socially, as well as financially.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An acquaintance who does not have your best interest at heart might question you today regarding something you've sworn to keep secret. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $8 and BASE to Astro-Graph, c/o the newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If a friend gives you tips today, do not take them at face value. This person means well, but the information might be distorted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Associates should not be allowed to make crucial decisions for you today. What is advantageous for them might be destructive for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to be logical rather than wishful when making conclusions today. You will not get good results if your assessments are not practical or realistic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Even if you secretly feel superior to associates today, keep your thoughts to yourself, because your counterpart might feel the same way.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You could be asking for trouble if you find more to criticize than to praise in your mate's behavior today. Focus on his or her qualities instead.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If someone goes out of his or her way to help you today, make sure to acknowledge this person properly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Manage your money prudently when shopping today. A number of small extravagances can add up to a whopping total when the salesperson computes them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your ability to pay attention to detail might be sharper than usual today. Try to use this asset constructively.

CANCER (June 21-July 20) Today you might be involved with someone who made you impatient recently. Relax, you don't have to begin where you left off the last time.

LEO (July 21-Aug. 20) Associating with friends who are penny-wise and pound-foolish could make you feel ill-at-ease today. Seek companions with compatible personalities.

VIRGO (Aug. 21-Sept. 20) Let others do the talking today if you find yourself in the presence of people who can influence your career. Thoughtless remarks could be used against you.
