For about 30 years Jimmy Boston of Lake Monroe has made his living fishing the St. Johns. River and area lakes. Commercial fishing was the occupation of Boston's grandfather, and it's also the chosen career of his son, Randy Boston,

But, Boston, 47, said his own father warned him that he couldn't make a living working the water, "So, I had to try," he said. A burley man with a full grey beard, his head covered with a hilled cap in camouflage design and dressed in a green, rubber ramsuit. Boston goes out for the catch of the day, everyday,

But in recent years Boston's try in man his fish lines, traps and nets, and cel traps, has become a greater challenge than even his father's cantions foretold.

Boston said in addition to tending his nets and traps, every day he spends several hours cleaning "pollution," off his skip Jack boat and gear.

But, the ever increasing number of boaters who are drawn to the floats that mark the lines and nets of Boston and the 30 or so other full-time commercial fishermen in the area are creating a second serious threat to their livelihood.

The Seminole County State Attorney's Office has initiated an investigation of a Longwood bingo parlor to find out if the husiness is conforming to Florida statutes in its opera-

The probe of the bustness. Longwood Bingo, was confirmed Friday by both the Longwood Police Department and Ralph Ericksson, a Seminole County assistant state attorney. The business is located in the Fairmont Plaza at 600 N. U.S. Highway 17-92.

The investigation is into complaints the Longwood parlor is violating state statutes regulating several areas of bingo operations, but the exact nature of those complaints were not revealed.

The LPD is not taking an active part in the probe, according to officer Steve Walk. He said his department is only gathering information for the state attorney's office.

The complaints against the Longwood parlor were made to the SAO by Tony Triano, the commander of the Semtnole County chapter of the Disabled American Veterans.

The DAV runs its own bingo operation for the benefit of the local chapter of the Deborah Hospital. Deborali is a free heart hospital in New Jersy that gets some funds from its chapters. such as the one in Seminole County, according to Triano.

The hospital earned $16,000 from bingo revenues at the DAV last year, Tirano said. At least 20. Seminole County residents used the services of Deborah last year as well, he said.

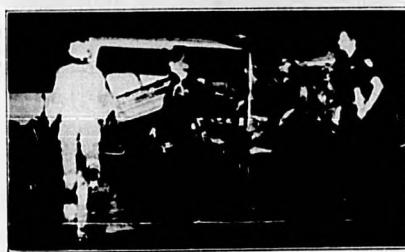

Deborah and other charities in the area that benefit from bingo, are suffering as a result of Longwood Bingo's methods. according to Triano. He added that the money being earned by the business isn't even staying in the community

Triano said he feels Longwood Bingo isn't operating within the guidelines of the state statutes because they've offered additional incentives to bingo players in an effort to lure them away from other local bingo games. One of the prizes given away by the parlor was a Color TV, he snid.

'Anytime you give away prizes it's aginst the law," Tratno clatius.

Longwood Bingo did not give way a free color TV, according to manager Rosa Vogel. She said

By Nancy Simmons Herald Staff Writer

The Crisis Pregnancy Center at 605 E. 25th St. gained the full support of the Sanford planning and zoning commission Thursday night as that commission voted unanimously to approve the center's site plan. The meeting began at 7 p.m. in the Sanford city commission

The center's purpose is to provide free pregnancy tests and counseling to young women, as well as to provide for the needs of pregnant young women. excluding abortion, according to Barbara Greanya, director. The center is sponsored by New Life Assembly, 100 Kennel Road.

David Bohannon, pastor of the New Life Assembly, told the commissioners the church is asking for the conditional use request and that although the center is sponsored by his church, other churches in the area also are supporting it.

He said the center is open four nights each week. Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and that three or four volunteer counselors are on call at the center during those times.

Bohannon told board members that the center, which is offered as an alternative to abortion, has been in operation for three years. However, it has been located at 25th Street and Princeton Avenue since June. He explained that the property is leased to the church for the first 18 months on the condition that the ministry officials refurbish the place.

Commissioners approved the site plan on the condition that the center's overseers provide an adequately defined parking area by the use of landscaping timbers and mulch, and that they would provide ramp access into the center for potential clients who happen to be hand(capped. They also stipulated that at the time the first lease expires ofand zoning to show what improvements had been completed on the property. Greanya told commissioners that she and other workers at the center had not been aware they needed to bring a site plan to the city until a neighbor complained to the city early last fall about trash the center had collected. Greanya said the neighbor had not realized arrangements had been made with the city to have the trash picked up in two days.

Brent Carlt asked Greanya if she had asked the neighbors how they feel about having the crisis pregnancy center in their neighborhood.

Greanya said the neighbors are supportive and are glad the property is being cleaned up and rennovated. She told Carli and the other commissioners that the center is a quiet place except during past cleanup days.

She explained to the planning ficials should return to planning and zoning commissioners that the house was donated to the church by Carl Wood on the condition that the property be Improved.

Carli also noted that handicapped access should be provided into the center.

He made the motion that the commission approve the site plan, on the condition that the parking area be properly defined and that handicapped access be provided. Commissioner John Leroy seconded the motion.

Marder pointed out that the city staff recommended that curbing be provided at the driveway entrance. The commissioners wanted to know if other houses in the area had curbing. Sonnenberg said no. but that the other houses were private residences.

IN BRIEF

Man Claims Wife Threatened His Life With Knife, Locks Self Up

A Longwood man locked himself in a bathroom at his home at about 9:30 a.m. Thursday, when his wife allegedly threatened to cut his throat with a knife and "leave him bleeding," a Longwood police report said.

The lockup ended at about 11:45 a.m. after the victim's sister arrived at the home and he came out of the bathroom to call police. When police arrived, the suspect had gone, but the victim stated what had happened. Police left to return at about 2:15 p.m. when the man called them to report his wife had come home.

Yoland C. Truong, 25, of 301 E. Palmetton Ave., was arrested at her home on charges of aggravated assault. She remained jailed in lieu of bond early Friday.

Mental Health Patient Escapes

A 25-year-old man who was being treated at the Seminole Mental Health Center's Bay Avenue Crisis Center, on Bay Avenue, Sanford, fled from there at about 1 p.m. Thursday.

The man went to his home on Raven Rock Lane. Longwood, where he hid in the attic until Seminole County sheriff's deputies and a Longwood policeman convinced him to come out and return to the center, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

Bright Lights Bring Cocoine Find

Sanford police who stopped a car on Hardy Avenue at about 2:20 a.m. Friday because the driver would not dim the bright lights of his vehicle, reported finding cocaine in

Pieces of cocaine were reportedly seen on the car's seat by police. They also said they found a matchbox containing about 15 pieces of crack cocaine in one of the man's socks

Regenald Donald Conquest, 28, of 107 McKay Blvd., Sanford, has been charged with possession of cocaine, failure to dim headlights and failure to exhibit a driver's license. He was being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

House Search Turns Up More Pot

A 32-year-old Sanford man who allegedly sold $30 worth of marijuana Feb. 5 to an agent for Sanford police was arrested on charges of possession of and sale and delivery of less than 20 grams of cocaine in connection with that

The arrest was made at about 6 p.m. Thursday at the home of George Harold Alford, by police who also had a warrant and searched Alford's home. The search turned up additional marijuana, and charges of possession of more than 20 grams of pot and drug paraphernalia were added against Alford. He has been released on $2,000 bond to appear in court March 7.

Stolen Sax Hocked, Men Nebbed

A man who allegedly pawned a $750 stolen assophone at Sanford Pawn Shop on Jan. 27, has been charged with dealing in stolen property. Sanford police, who made the arrest, reported the saxophone had been stolen from a Sanford home.

Pawn thep worker reported giving the suspect $40 for the saxophone, and they reportedly identified him in a police photo lineup. Rodell Roberts, $1, of $11 Park Ave., Sanford, was arrested at the Seminole County jail at $10:45 a.m. Thursday. He was being held without bond.

Burglaries And Thefts Reported

Donald R. Ralwins, of 110 Ruby Court, Maitland, reported to sheriff's deputies a $900 air compressor, a $320 paint sprayer and another sprayer valued at $500 were stolen from his van Wednesday or Thursday.

Stereo gear valued at more than $400 was stolen Wednesday or Thursday from the car of Lam Kitterman, of 525 Eagle Circle, Casselberry, a sheriff's report said.

Hit, Run Suspects Arrested

Within about 30 minutes of a hit-and-run accident in which a bicyclist was injured on Airport Boulevard, Sanford, at about 8:30 p.m. Friday, Sanford police had traced the van that reportedly hit the man and arrested its owner and the man who was allegedly driving the van at the time of the accident.

The victim, Douglas Heinecker of Sanford, told police the van hit him and then turned and passed by him again as he tried to get up from the shoulder of the road. Heinecker was traveling south when he was hit and the van fled north on Airport Boulevard. Witnesses got its license tag number and police traced the owner of the van. Heinecker was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, and released from the

At the van owner's home police found the owner, Claire B. Winelow, 35, of 120 Garrison St., Sanford, sitting in the driver's seat of the van. Beside her was Bernard P. Haskell. 45, of the same address. Haskell was reportedly identified by the victim and witnesses as the driver of the van at the time of the accident.

At 9:06 p.m. Haskell was arrested on charges of leaving the scene of an accident with injuries, careless driving, driving with a suspended license and possession of a controlled substance.

Winslow was charged with possession of marijuana, driving under the influence and failure to report an accident with injuries. Both were being held in lieu of $5,000 bond each.

While He Opens Gate, His Truck Is Stolen

By Nancy Simmons Herald Staff Writer

While a 74-year-old Sanford man was opening the gate into his driveway to bring his truck inside the gate, an unidentified thief allegedly slipped into the vehicle and drove away, according to Sanford City police. However, the vehicle was later recovered.

Sanford police officers are also investigating four burglaries.

Louie Wright told police that at about 11:45 a.m. Thursday he drove his 1979 pickup truck up to the gate behind his house. He said he had gotten out of the vehicle to open the gate and during those few moments, an unidentified person climbed into the truck and drove away. Wright said he did not get a good look at the alleged thief.

The theif drove the vehicle west on East Eighth Street, then turned south onto Pine Avenue, Wright said. Police said the truck was recovered later that day in Longwood, and was returned to its owner there.

Other Sanford burglaries in-

• Howard Smith, 43, of 1304 W. Seventh St., told police that between early January and 2 p.m. Wednesday, someone broke into his residence and took several items estimated to be worth $525. Smith has been in Virginia during the past month and a half, he told police.

The missing items include two telephones, one space heater, one answering machine and one portable radio.

Police said the unidentified burglar entered the house through a living room window.

• A portable TV, a CB radio. and suiteases of clothing and jewelry were stolen out of a motor home belonging to Peter G. Duquet, 74, of New Baltimore. Mich. The exact worth of those items is not known, police said. The drawers and cabinets in the motor home were ransacked, according to police.

A door on the motor home was pried open, police said. The incident happened between 9 p.m. Wednesday and 7:30 a.m. Thursday, while the vehicle was parked at 1104 Elm Ave., where Duquet is visiting, he told investigators.

invesigation showed that the burglar had used matches in order to see inside the motor home, police said.

 A gold herringbone chain with a locket is missing from the residence of Kimberly P. Byrd. 25, of 812 Magnolia Ave., she told police. She said the incident occurred between 1 p.m. Wedneeday and 9:45 a.m. Thursday.

She said the necklace, which had been taken from an upstairs bedroom, was a 24-inch herringbone chain with a boxshaped locket. Its value is estimated at $300.

 Finally, a Ford ranger truck at Hunt's Used Cars, at 1215 W. First St., was broken into between 7 p.m. Wednesday and 8:30 a.m. Thursday, according to Henry Case, 37, an employee at the business who reported the incident. He said an AM/FM caseette player had been taken out of the dash.

Off-Duty Deputy Gets Diamond Offer

Seminole County sheriff's deputy Charles Coyne and another man in the lobby of McDonalds, Hickman Road, west Sanford, and offered them a deal on a diamond ring for $50.

Coyne, who was not in uniform, and his companion went outside with the man. There, Covne identified himself as a sheriff's deputy. The man at that point allegedly said he had only been kidding about the ring and said it was a cheap ring.

Coyne ordered the man to put his hands against a car. The man complied and Coyne reported finding a ring

A man approached off-duty in the man's pocket. The suspect allegedly grabbed the ring from Coyne and pushed Coyne's chest. Coyne fell against the car and the suspect ran. Coyne's companion grabbed the man, and he and Coyne struggled to subdue the man.

In the scuffle Coyne's elbow was cut and his pants were torn. Johnny Johnson. 20, address unknown, was arrested at the restaurant at 12:36 p.m. Thursday on charges of battery on a policeman and resisting arrest with violence.

He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

oking Out pall Players By Fred M. Cooper gale-force Santa Ana winds

Herald Staff Writer

These days prove the oft repeated rumor that the good Lord loves baseballi Note, major leaguers arriving for practice (pitchers and catchers Friday and Saturday - balance this coming week) have scheduled workouts from late morning until early afternoon. They're finished by 2 p.m. The, as if on signal, the rains come. Just a trace in some places, harder at others, but none to hamper the baseball players. They need, and value, every moment. The weather is cooperating. However, face it. The system which has produced the torrential downpours up in the Panhandle seem to be slowing creeping towards us. No, it's not likely we'll get any 4 or 5 inch dousings but thundershowers are possible during the late afternoons. Temperatures? They're really great. You can't beat mid-80s in February. How about those lows in the 60s. It's wonderful.

Our neighbors slightly to the south, in Lakeland, basked in the warmth of the nation's highest high yesterday with an 86 degree reading. Lowest low? Those poor cousins out at Alamosa, Colorado, which records that mark regularly.

The folks to worry about right now are the people in California. Don't wish to refer to them as kooks when they're undergoing such misery. Windstorms demolishing the southern part of the state, and an earthquake doing minor damage in the Bay area.

A violent windstorm that ripped through central and Southern California toppled a tree that killed a girl. injured at least 12 people, routed dozens of residents from their homes and caused more than $1.5 million damage before dissipating.

The National Weather Service said the second bout of this week would taper off to less than 30 mph. The desert-born winds clocking up to 60 mph created a holiday Friday for 20,000 students of the Fontana Unified School District in San Bernardino County by damaging several buildings and forcing officials to cancel classes.

Near the Mexican border. the winds forced closure of Interstate 8 at Monument Peak in eastern San Diego County.

The gales also downed power lines, sparking several fires and cutting electricity to more than 112,000 Southern Californians before subsiding Priday evening.

Then a strong earthquake jarred California's central valley and coast carly Saturday but caused no damage or injuries, authorities reported.

The University of California seismographic station in Berkeley said the temblor struck at 12:40 a.m. PST and measured 5.1 on the Richter scale. The state Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento said the Richter reading was 4.3.

UC seismologists said the epicenter was 7 miles southeast of Hollister and 90 miles southeast of Berkeley. The shaker was feit in the central valley and in the San Francisco Bay area, state officials said. Wet weather hung over the Atlantic Coast today and aviation officials in North Carolina and New Jersey investigated the crashes of two planes that went down in fog, while a California windstorm that killed a child and caused more than $1.5 million in damage began to weaken.

(Reports by United Press International and data provided by the National Weather Service were used in compiling this report.)

Lottery Department Gearing Up For Computerized 'Letto'

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Lottery Department officials said Friday they will begin preparing next week for the "Lotto" computerized wagering scheduled to start by May Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said two consultants hired by the Lottery Department will begin acreening potential retailers who will sell computerised tickets in addition to the instant winner tickets being marketed now.

There are about 15,000 scratch-card ticket outlets. Paul wants to have 3,000 to 4,000 so-called "online" retailers by May 1.

Online games allow players to select their own numbers. A store clerk then enters the numbers into a computer terminal linked to the lottery's central computers. A ticket is printed by the terminal and sold to the player. Later, a set of numbers is selected at a televised drawing.

Court Asks Added Seminole Judge

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court is asking the Legislature for 17 additional lower court judges. including the first new appeals court seats in six years. The request includes adding one judge in the 18th Circuit. Seminole and Brevard counties.

"These requests are a bare bones minimum," the court said Friday in the annual report on judicial needs it submits to the Legislature. "In our judgment, it is essential that these positions be authorized and funded to enable the judiciary to fulfill its responsibilities."

Gov. Bob Martinez disagrees with the court. He did not recommend any additional judges and proposed a slight decrease in overall court system funding.

The Supreme Court proposed funding for six new seats on the five district appeals courts, 10 new circuit judges and one new county judge, for Lee County.

Truce Would Offer Amnesty, Freedom Of Expression

Cease-Fire Talks Drag On

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) —
Cardinal Miguel Obando y Brave enapped an impasse in cease-fire talks between the Contra rebels and the Nicaraguan government, offering a new truce proposal requiring Managua to five all political prisoners and reconsider compulsory military service.

The talks, which lasted for several hours Thursday, resumed shortly before 11 a.m. Friday.

Negotiators for both the Contras and the Sandinistas praised the proposal made Thursday by the Roman Catholic lander who is mediating the talks, with rebel officials saying they embraced the plan "in more than principle" and Sandinista representatives calling it a "constructive step."

The plan sets four conditions the government would have to meet "as a gesture of good will"—a total amnesty for all political prisoners, unrestricted fruedom of expression, a political dislogue with opposition political parties and a reconsideration of the obligatory dilitary service law.

The plan, aimed at ending

The plan, aimed at ending Nicaragua's 7-year-old civil war, calls for a 30-day truce, during which the 8,000 to 15,000 Contras who roam Nicaragua would gather inside still-to-be-defined

Jaime Morales Caraso, leader of the Contra negotiators, said, "We have accepted the proposal in principle, in more than principle."

"We consider the cardinal's proposal an interesting and constructive step," said Victor Hugo Tinoco, Nicaragua's deputy foreign minister and head of the flandinists delegation.

Obsardo y Bravo, speaking at a news conservace after the two sides wet for more than four hours at the architektop's residence in the second round of direct couse-fire talks, said the new proposal could go into effect "noon."

"But Tinoco said the government needed more information about what kind of truce the Contras would be required to accept before it could consider accepting the four conditions imposed on Managus.

"The four requirements for the Nicaraguan government are very clear but the single requirement for the other side is very vague. It does not say when the cessefire would begin, how it would work, or who would verify the truce," Tinoco said."

He said as agreement on the details of a conce-fire "would certainly pave the way for discussion" of the requirements for the Bandinietae, but stepped short of saying whether his government would accept them.

Chande y Brave said the two sides had agreed to study his proposal overnight and meet again Friday to discuss how the cease-fire zones would work. Participants on both sides said the talks were polite and restrained.

Marine Found innocent in Repe Case After Serving 5 Years

QUANTICO, Va. (UPI) — Marine Cpi. Lindacy Scott, who served nearly four years in prison on charges he raped and nearly killed a fellow Marine's wife five years ago, is free today after a military jury acquitted him in his second court-martial on identical charges.

Scott, 32, of Louisville, Ky., was found innocent Friday on charges of kidnapping, sodomy, rape and attempted murder after the jury deliberated for 10 ¼ hours over two days.

After the verdict was read, Scott hugged defense attorney John Leino, shook hands with jury president Col. Donald Fests and said, "Thank you sir."

Festa and said, "Thank you sir."

Mildred Scott, the defendant's mother, acreamed cries of joy in the courtroom and said, "Thank you Jesus for giving me back my innocent child."

That conviction, however, was overturned six months ago by the U.S. Court of Military Appeals on grounds that Scott did not receive an adequate defense.

At a news conference following the verdict Friday, Scott told reporters his positive feelings about the Marine Corps had not changed.

"They're the best fighting force, the best branch of service," said Scott. "I still feel that way.

Swaggart Faces Sex Charges

SPRINGFIELD. Mo. (UPI) — The Assemblies of God Church has begun an investigation of television preacher Jimmy Swaggart, whose disclosures about the sexual misconduct of PTL founder Jim Bakker rocked broadcast evangelism last year, a church official said.

The members of the Executive Presbytery of the Assemblies of God met with Swaggart in a 10-hour special session at the national headquarters in Springfield, said Juleen Turnage, secretary of information for the Assemblies of God.

The meeting was "to discuss matters that could affect his credentials with the church," Turnage said, reading from a release.

"These matters are under investigation by officials of the Louisiana District Council of the Assemblies of God," Turnage said. "Jimmy Swaggari is fully cooperating with the investigation."

ABC News reported that the probe centers on allegations by former TV evangelist Marvin Gorman that he has pictures showing that Swaggart visited a prostitute.

the image of the big-time commercial operations that run in salt water. Baker said. The smalltime commercial fishermen, he said, contrary to the opinion of some sport fishermen, are not competing for the sportsman's catch.

Commercial fishermen are required by law to immediately return to the water certain "aports" fish they accidentally eatch. In a catch of about 100 catfish from two traps, Boston, had to throw back just four game fish on a recent outing.

He and other commercial flahermen pay a $26 annual fee to be licensed as commercial flahermen. Boston said he thinks that fee should possibly be increased to about $200, to keep the "weekend" fisherman who thinks he might want to flah using commercial gear, from setting out lines and traps and then abandoning them when they find how much work is involved in catching flah by commercial methods.

Baker said the length of a trotline put out by a commercial fisherman depends on how much work they want to do in hauling in the line and catch and rebaiting the hooks. Such lines typically hold about 500 hooks each, with about 4-fect of space between each hook.

"Commercial fishermen let their backs be their guide on how long they want to run their lines," Baker said. And he illustrated the point that 500 hooks doesn't mean a 500-fish catch. Baker pulled in a commercial fisherman's trotline from Lake Monroe. About 1,500 hooks were passed, and only 15 fish found on the line before Baker gave up without reaching the end of the line, which was unusually long, he said.

"Being out here is like doing yard work," Boston said. "If you don't work, you don't make money. In sait water, commercial fishing has been taken over by his business."

by big business."

But small time commercial fishermen like Boston are severly hurt by the loss of a catch and, perhaps more importantly, by the loss of stolen or vandalized gear, he said. Last year he lost 40 cel pots with a total value of about $800.

Boston is on the water tending his gear — baiting traps and hooks, and hauling in his catches of cel and catfish for three to five hours every day, rain or shine. The rest of his day is spent cleaning and repairing his gear or making new traps and lines and cleaning and seiling his catch.

Last year, he said, many weeks he carned less than $200 a week. The weather, the season and the market all play roles in his success, in addition to the threats from pollution, theft and vandalism.

Once a novice pulls up an cel pot, or fish trotline or fishnet the chances are he will not know how to properly place it back into the water. Or he may even cut it free, thus costing the fisherman not only his catch but his gear as well.

Once a fish trap is cut free, Baker said, it may continue to catch fish for years before it rots away. The trapped fish die without being retrieved by a fisherman, and that Baker said is a loss of valuable resources.

Some boaters take to the waterway with the intent of robbing the commercial fishermen of their catch, Baker said. Others do it as a lark or on the spur of the moment — out of ignorance, curiosity or resentment of the commercial effort.

In recent weeks Baker arrested two men on charges of theft who are accused of stealing catfish from two or three trotlines belonging to Rusty Dunning, a commercial fisherman from Sanford. The thefts, which occurred in Lake Jesup, were reported to Baker by other commercial fishermen, who reportedly saw the suspect near the lines.

Baker said it is almost impossible to catch someone in the act of tampering with the commercial fishing gear, because of the size of the waterways. But commercial fishermen as well as game wardens are trying to guard this business.

In investigating the incident, Baker reported finding on Feb. 4 (Ish hooks apparently taken from one of Dunning's trotlines inside the boat of one suspect, Terry Twitchell, 42, of 166 Twin Coach Court, Banford.

Baker also has statements

Baker also has statements from witnesses who allege they saw Twitchell and Ronald Lee Smith, 36, of 47 Downing St., Sanford, on the lake with a catch of fish, but without any fishing gear. Another witness also reportedly said she was given some catfish by the suspects. They were charged with theft.

In another case, Baker re-

In another case, Baker reported arresting two DeBary boys, who on Dec. 6 and 10 allegedly stole eel pots from Lake Monroe. Those traps belong to Boston's son, Randy Boston, and a witness who reportedly saw the second their stopped the boys and reported their activity to Baker. Three of Boston's eel pots had been stolen. The boys also were charged with their.

Boston said the life and profits

Boston said the life and profits of the small-time commercial fishermen has declined over the last decade. But he and his white, part pitbull dog Mack, who serves as a living figurehead always stationed at the how of his boat when on the water, take to the St. Johns River with

"I love it, but not as much as I use to. It's different now. Too many people. I wouldn't give it up," Boston said. However, he added, if things get worse, which is what he expects, he might just find himself another river or lakes to fish.

Immigration Boom

America Still Land Of Promise

By Tom Tiede Newspaper Enterprise Association

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The U.S. government is currently proceeding apace in an effort to review the immigration status of the Cuban refugees who took part in last year's riots at two federal penal institutions. The Cubans demanded the reviews as a condition for ending the November revolts.

The hearings are not the only difficult legacy of the riots, of course. The rampaging also left a lingering stench of bloody destruction. An immate died at the Oakdale, La., detention center, and the Cubans wreaked several million dollars worth of damage at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Yet federal authorities say there is at least one positive memory the nation might salvage from the frightening affair. That is the refugees were lighting against orders of de-portation. The men said plainly that they would rather be killed in riots in America than be sent ck to live in Cuba.

Thus it seems the United States remains the shining hope for many people of other places. In fact it is setting whole new precedents in this regard. The country is often vilified for its rying to move here, than ever before in history. The Immigra-tion and Naturalization Service believes that up to 9 million aliens will legally settle in the country during the present decade, 1961 through 1990. And that will break a record established at the start of the century, when 8,795,386 foreign borns took residence between 1901 and 1910.

The new numbers are calculated with the help of extrapolation. In other words, they are projections of present trends. The INS says 7 million people will immigrate naturally by the end of the decade, and 2 million others will be welcomed as refugees or as part of the program to give amnesty to illegal aliens.

The amnesty program began in the spring of 1967, it was devised to ease the burdens of undocumented aliens who have been living in the country per-manently, typically from Mexico. manently, typically from Mexico. The INS says 1.2 million illegals have registered under the program, most of whom are likely to be given immigration papers.

The figures do not include illegals who will not get the papers. If they did the 10-year total would increase by several politics and customs, yet more million. The INS says most than 600,000 people are now people are moving here, or illegals are apprehended and coming to the United States sent home, or go back on their own accord; but it's estimated that an average of 500,000 aliens sneak across the borders aliens sneak across the borders each year and stay.

The INS says the illegals come for better jobs. And that is largely true for the legal immigrants as well. Duke Austin, an INS publicist, says immigration is historically a process of people leaving some kind of oppression for opportunity, which is to say they are seeking financial or political stability. political stability.

In 1986, for example, 66,533 legal immigrants came from economically underprivileged Mexico. There were also 52,558 from the Philippines, 35,776 from Korea, 33,114 from Cuba. and 29,993 from Vietnam. The only wealthy country of the first 15 represented that year was England — there were 13,657 British immigrants. As for the politics involved, the category includes both immi-grants and refugees. Mexico aside, Austin says the top 10 countries on the INS immigra-tion list have all had serious governmental difficulties this decade; and some, such as Iran (16,505 immigrants in 1985) are politically repressive.

Whatever their reasons, more legally each year. And there are some concerns that if it weren't for the honor of the matter, the country would be better off without them. Critics charge that this kind of immigration tests the limits of U.S. resources.

The INS does not take a direct position on the complaint. Austin says the service worries about "saturation," but does not couple the concern with specific statistics. "We never say any immigration is bad," he explains. "We never say any numbers are bad. We do say the influx must be regulated, so that we know what we get."

Austin adds that other nations are not so circumspect. In fact most countries draw hard lines regarding immigration. No na-tion comes even close to the U.S. totals; Canada, for example, has a generous immigration policy. but it says it can only accept an average of 100,000 new settlers per annum.

So, this is another reason people come to the United States. There aren't a lot of very good alternatives. The United States has restrictions of its own. but they are regularly subject to extenuating circumstances:

Cut Your Own Taxes And Save

By Robert Mets and Sidney Ecos

Taxpayers will be blessing and cursing) Congress for years to come — beginning this year when they file their 1986 tax returns. This filing is the first one to be affected by the momentous Tax Reform Act of 1986. Some of the changes are being phased in gradually, beginning this year; others are already full-blown. Here are the most important hifts in the tax law: Tax rates — For 1987, the tax rates reflect a blending of the old utes in effect until March 15, 1987, and the new, reduced rates that took effect on that tate. The top rate for individuals a 1987 is 28.8 procests in 1988, the tax rate reductions are acheduled to become fully effective.

Capital gains - Long-term capital gains are now subject to the same tax rates as ordinary tion rule, the top rate on long-term capital gains for 1967 to set at 26 percent.

Income averaging — You may no longer reduce your tax by ncome averaging. Personal exemptions — Personal and dependency exemptions have been increased to $1,500 this year. Individuals rho are blind or over age 65 are to longer able to claim an padditional exemption, but are permitted a larger standard de-duction if they don't itemise seductions. Also, children and others who can be claimed as a dependent on another taxpayer's return may no longer claim a personal exemption on their own return.

Standard deductions — New higher amounts replace the standard deductions as follows: for singles, $2,540; heads of households $2,540; on joint returns, the deduction is $3,780. Special rules apply for those age $5 and over or blind. The increase in the standard deductions n means that many in U.S. government revenues totalled $769 billion in 1986. Of that, 45 percent came from income taxes on individuals.

Only medical expenses exceeding 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income are deductible; the old floor was 5 percent. Self-employed individuals may deduct 25 percent of health insur-ance costs whether or not other deductions are itemized.

Interest expense deduction

Mortgage interest on a principal residence and on a second home is deductible in full, provided that, in the case of a mortgage made after Aug. 16, 1986, the loan does not exceed the purchase price of the home plus improvements, plus the cost of certain educational and medical expenses. Interest on other personal loans, such as car icans, student loans, credit cards and tax deficiencies, is only 65 als no longer have to itemize deductions. This change simplifies record keeping and tax return preparation.

IRAs — Individuals who are active participants in qualified retirement plans may not deduct contributions to individual retirement accounts if their adjusted gross income exceeds $35,000 for singles or $60,000 on a joint return. Partial IRA deductions are allowed for singles with adjusted gross income between $25,000 and $35,000 and for those filing joint returns with adjusted gross incomes between $40,000 and $50,000. Note: Non-deductible contributions are permitted, and income several on such conome earned on such contributions accrues tax-free.

Sales tax — State and local sales taxes are no longer de-percent deductible in 1967. In succeeding years, that deduction will be phased out altogether.

Other deductions — Moving expenses continue to be de-ductible, but only by those who itemize deductions. Unreimbursed employee business expenses are no longer deductible as adjustments to income. instead, such expenses are lumped together with miscellaneous itemized deductions, and the total is deductible only to the extent that it exceeds 2 percent of adjusted gross income.

The $100 ($200 on a joint return) exclusion for dividend income is no longer allowed. Also, interest on certain municipal bondeds, is no longer tax-exempt (check with your broker about the tax status of your bonds).

The so-called "marriage penalty" deduction of 10 percent of earnings up to $30,000 has been eliminated. The charitable contribution deduction for nonitemizers, which expired at the end of 1986, was not extended: therefore, only those who itemise may deduct such contributions. The partial credit for political contributions of up to $50 ($100 on a joint return) has been eliminated.

"Kiddle tax" - Children un-der age 14 who have uncarned income such as interest, dividends and gains from stock sales may find their taxes greatly increased. This is because new tax rules apply to unearned income over $1,000. The first $500 of unearned income is not taxed. The second $500 of unearned income is taxed to the child at the child's marginal rate. Thus, if the child has $1,000 in unearned income and no other income. $500 is taxed at 11 percent in 1987.

the parlor gave away a small black and white television worth about $39, and that isn't against the law. "You can give away a prize not worth more than $50. she said.

"The DAV gives away coffee and doughnuts, so what's the difference as long as it's not breaking the law." Vogel said.

Vogel feels Triano is out to close down Longwood Bingo because he's afraid of losing money for his charity. "Other charities need money too." she said.

Under state statutes a charity may not run more than two days of bingo in a individual location per week. Vogel said Longwood Bingo rents its facilities to four different groups including: The American Association of Kidney Patients: The Florida Council of Handicapped: The local chapter of the March of Dimes and the Lupus Foundation.

Each of those charities rents the use of the bingo facilites and the equipment to run the game. and each one of them must have an actual member of their organigation on site when bingo games for their benefit are being

One of the problems with that statute as it relates to full-profit bingo businesses is that anyone working for the parior can join an organization just to comply with the rule, according to Walk. He said there's no way to really enforce the statute for that reason.

Another problem Triano said he has with Longwood Bingo is the amount of rent they charge each charity for running the bingo games for them.

The four charities that rent bingo facilities from Longwood Bingo are charged $375 for a matinee session and $650 for an evening session. Traino said it would be difficult to believe a charity could make much of a profit having to pay that much

Under the terms of the lease Longwood Bingo makes its renters sign, if the charity doesn't earn the money to cover the rent for a particualr session, the difference is carried over to the next session. For instance, if one of the charities only makes $400 during an evening session the $200 it still owes Longwood Bingo would be taken out of the organization's profit form the next session.

The lease does coincide with state regulations in that it says Longwood Bingo will not collect rent from a charity from any revenue but bingo proceeds.

Vogel said Triano was just being vindictive about the whole situation and that she's tired of his accusations. "If he starts this stuff again. I'll sue him." she

Thus far the investigation is only concerned with possible statute violations by Longwood Bingo and not criminal charges, according to Walk. He said if the SAO should find criminal activities in the future the LPD will act accordingly, and as directed by the state attorney.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) - A mammoth boulder. loosened from its moorings by two days of torrential rains, careened down a hill and into a hospital, burying as many as 100 patients and medical staff under tons of rubble. officials said Saturday.

The disaster late Friday raised Rio's unofficial citywide toll of missing and dead in two days of heavy rains and floods to about 150, according to Radio Jornal do Brasil.

The Santa Genoveva Hospital was struck as the rains undermined a giant boulder high on the hillside and sent it crashing through part of the building. One wing of the hospital was demolished.

Bank Bomb Kills At Least 15

OSHAKATI, Namibia (UPI) - Police Saturday investigated the explosion of a suspected terrorist bomb in a crowded bank at lunchtime that killed at least 15 people and injured 40, with the death toll expected to rise.

Police Sgt. Leon Rust said the bomb exploded about 12:45 p.m. Friday in the lobby of the First National Bank in Oshakati, an administrative and military center in the north of the South African-controlled territory.

Police sealed off the burning building as hospital personnel removed bodies from the site where at least 15 people died and 40 others were injured. It was the worst blast in the 22-year guerrilla war waged by the Southwest Africa People's Organization against South African administration of Namibia.

Palestinian Protester Killed

JERUSALEM - Israeli troops opened fire on a protest that turned violent outside a West Bank municipal building in Ramallah today, killing a young Arab man, Palestininan and hospital sources said.

The army could not immediately confirm the death, which would raise to at least 56 the number of Arabs killed since violent anti-Israeli unrest erupted in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip on Dec. 9.

But a Ramallah Municipal Hospital employee identiifed the dead man as Abdullah Atta Abdullah, 20, who was shot in the head, just before noon.

He said Abdullah was dead on arrival at the hospital.

Tire Store May Open Doors; Request OK'd

By Nancy Simmons Herald Staff Writer

Discount Tire Company may open a new store at the intersection of U.S. Highway 17-92 and Americana Boulevard now that Sanford Planning and Zoning Commissioners have approved a conditional use request for the business to operate at that location. The approval was given by a 7 to 1 vote during a regular planning and zoning meeting Thursday in city commission chambers at Sanford City Hall.

The city staff had recommended denial of the request, saving that a retail tire store would not be in character with the rest of the business community in that area.

Also approved by the commissioners was a conditional request for a used car lot to be opened at the corner of Seventh Street and French Avenue. That request received unanimous approval.

The owners of the property where Discount Tire Company plans to open a retail store are Sam and Nadim Aboulhosn, Maria and Angel Compain and Conchita Compain-Zabala. They were represented at the meeting by Becky Courson, Sanford, and John Sikes, of Blount Sikes and Associates, Orlando.

Planning and Zoning Chairman John Morris asked Sikes if he had talked to the Department of Transportation about curb cuts. Courson said she had discussed the matter and that they also recommended one access into the business from U.S. Hwy. 17-92 and one egress-ingress on Americana Boulevard.

Sikes also explained to commissioners that the drawing he had given them of the property contained a discrepancy. He said a 24-foot section next to property owned by Dr. Robert J. Smith is being disputed. He said two different surveyors have surveyed the property. One survey-or shows the 24-foot section belonging to Smith. The other surveyor claims the property belongs to the owners of the property where the tire store is planned. Sikes told the commissioners that the 24-foot section is not included in the conditional use request, since it is being disputed. Smith was present and told the commission that he did not object to the tire store, but he did want to make sure the 24-foot section was not part of the conditional use request.

Lake Mary Commissioners May Become TV Anchors

Herald Staff Writer

The Lake Mary City Comminsion has agreed to let a local cable television comapany video tape its March 17 meeting to test the idea of broadcasting commission meetings in the future.

The commission unanomously agreed to the experiment, which could even lead to Storer Cable. Altamonte Springs, a broadcasting commission meetings live in the future.

If the commission likes the initial tape. Storer could begin taping commission meetings immediately after that. The meetings would be broadcast at a later time to start out with, but hopefully be done live at a later date, according to Storer spokesman Tony Pupo.

The meetings would be seen on a public access channel offered by Storer. Pupo said the company's contract mandates they broadcast meetings like these to the public.

The Altamonte Springs City Commission already has its meetings presented live, according to Lake Mary Commis-sioner Randy Morris. He encouraged the rest of the Lake Mary commissioners to get feedback from Altamonte Springs about the benefits of having meetings broadcast.

Morris gave several benefits for having commission meetings on TV. They include: Giving viewers the sense of a small town meeting: the meetings could potentially become a civics lesson to young students; the elderly and infirmed would have a better chance to participate in Lake Mary govenment.

Another positive aspect of broadcasting the meetings is that the video tapes could be used by city staff members to review technical presentations at a later date, Morris said. He told the commission that would be a great help to staff needing to go back and look at information and being able to see it, instead of just hearing it on audio tapes the city now uses.

Morris said the city could eventually start its own video library of all its commission meetings if the they were Pupo told the commission that Storer would pay for the necessary lighting, but asked the city pick up the tab for the pipe, and chain with which to hang them. The price for both items would be under $150, according to

The lights would weigh about 12-15 lbs. each and be attached to the pipe, which would be hung from the ceiling of the city

Pupo said the technical aspect of recording the meetings shouldn't interfere with city business.

Morris said the city can always cancel broadcasting the meetings anytime it wants if they don't like it.

Spring Hill Springstead leads in the team standings with 42½ points followed by Bishop Moore at 39. Seminole is in fifth place with 20 points.

CCC Back In Playoffs, Upends Tampa Jesuit

Only three days after being forced to forfeit all its victories due to an incligible player. Clearwater Central Catholic was allowed to return to the Class 3A playoffs and defeated Tampa Jesuit, 4-0, in regional action.

CCC, ranked second in the state in Class 3A, will now play Naples Collier Saturday night in the Section 3 playoff. Should the Marauders win for the second night in a row, they would advance to the State Tournament, Tallahassee Leon (No. 1 in the state). Daytona Scabreeze and Miami Curley have already qualified for state.

On this past Monday, Clewater Catholic was ruled to have an incligible player and at first was forced to forfelt the region game with Jesuit, CCC challenged the ruling, though, and was allowed to return to the playoffs by the Florida High School Activities Association.

Trump To Decide On Tyson-Spinks

Trump said Friday he will announce next week his decision on whether to host the Mike Tyson-Michael Spinks June heavyweight title bout at his Atlantic City, N.J., casino.

Tyson's managers Bill Cayton and Jim Jacobs and promoter Don King notified Trump in writing the record price they want to stage the 12-round bout at Trump Plasa. The asking price was undisclosed but sources confirmed it was more than the $7 million record Cassars Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., paid for the April 6 Marvin Hagler-Ray Leonard bout. The site fee for Tyeon-Spinks may run as high as $10 million.

"It's definitely the new re-cord," anid Spinks' promoter, Butch Lewis.

Trump Plaza had a written agreement with both fighters' camps that the casino would receive the first shot at the bout. If Trump finds the opening price too high, the Las Vegas Hilton and Caesars Palace are expected to bid for the fight.

"It's a risk." Lewis said. "If Trump doesn't meet the number, he puts it back out there for the others to bid for."

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) -Jackie Joyner-Kersee and Marcus O'Sullivan entered the 29th annual Los Angeles Times/GTE Indoor Games with what appeared to be the best chances at beating world records.

Yet it was the leapers — Soviet pole vaulter Rodion Gataullin and American high jumper

Jimmy Howard — that came the closest to toppling marks.

Gataullin, seeking to top the world record held by Soviet countryman Sergey Bubka. failed on three tries to become the first to vault six meters (19 feet, 8 1-4 inches).

Meanwhile, a few feet away. Howard narrowly missed bettering his American high-jump mark of 7-8 3-4, knocking over the bar three times at 7-9.

Joyner set a meet record with a jump of 22-10 1-2, but failed to better her American record of 23-0 1-2. O'Sullivan outlasted Britain's Peter Elliott at the wire but was timed in 4:01.33, well off his personal best of 3:50.94 and the world record of 3:49.78 by Irish countryman Eamonn

Martin Stays Silent As Yanks Open Spring Training

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) -The bats cracked and the gloves popped when the New York Yankees' pitchers and catchers went through their first workout of the year Friday, but Billy Martin's voice stayed silent.

Martin, back for a fifth term as manager of the Yankees, declined to speak to reporters Friday after 31 Yankees worked out at Fort Lauderdale Stadium. The workout featured pitchers throwing batting practice, as well as running and working on covering first base. The first full-squad workout comes Wednesday.

Martin likely will concentrate on pitching during spring training. The addition of slugger Jack Clark gives the Yankees one of the most imposing lineups in the league, but pitching remains a potential weakness.

Yankee starters went 62-54 with a 4.37 ERA last season as New York finished at 89-73. good for fourth place in the American League East. Picked up in the off-season to shore up the starting pitching were Rich Dotson and John Candelaria.

Some of the newer acquisi-tions have joined the Yankees since Martin was fired following the 1965 season. They are meeting him for the first time. Starting pitcher Rick Rhoden said the team was trying to svoid getting caught up in the "Billy returns" hoopia.

"I don't concern myself with his managing," said Rhoden, who was 16-10 last year with a 3.86 ERA. "My job is to pitch, not to manage or worry about it. I think that's the way most guys feel about it."

As the leader of a starting staff with several questions marks. Rhoden said he feels no more pressure than he did in other years. Among the questions the Yankee face this year is whether Tommy John can continue to defy his age (44), whether Can-delaria at 34 has anything left. and whether Charlie Hudson will pitch like he did at the start of last year, when he won his first six decisions.

Most Yankees said Friday they believed their pitching was stronger than perceived.

"Truthfully, our pitching is better than people want to give us credit for," said John, who was 13-6 last year. "Granted, we don't have any young studs that throw the ball 90 mph, but few teams do. The two guys that have got to carry the load are Rhoden and Dotson."

Rhoden was bothered last year by a shoulder injury, and Dotson was 11-12 with the Chicago White Sox, and has not approached the 22.7 mark he had in 1983.

"I don't think there's any more pressure than there is every year." Rhoden said. "You've got to prove yourself every year. If I'm healthy. I'll pitch well. I always have."

Dotson, acquired in an offseason trade, said he is relaxed as spring training begins.

"I want to prove I can do what they expect of me," he said. "I just want to fit in and help win a pennant. I want to help us win a World Series. If I can stay healthy, I'll do what they expect Outfielder Bo Jackson, who split his time last year between the Royals and the Los Angeles Raiders of the NFL, reported to camp early and worked out.

The Royals also announced they signed outfielder Jim Eisenreich, who hit .238 in 44 games last season, to a one-year non-guaranteed contract.

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) - The world champion Minnesota Twins said Friday they have invited former Baltimore Orioles lefthander Tippy Martinez to try out for the club.

Martinez. a 37-year-old free agent, is one of five non-roster pitchers the Twins have invited to spring training in an attempt to bolster their pitching staff.

Martinez missed the 1987 season with shoulder problems. He last pitched in the majors on July 13, 1986. He has 115 career wins, a 55-42 career record and 3.38 earned run average. He played with the New York Yankees before the Orioles.

All Twins pitchers and catchers were in attendance at the team's spring training facility in Orlando Friday for their first workout. Non-battery players Dan Gladden and Julius McDougal, who had injuries from the previous season, also were allowed to participate in the early workouts.

CALGARY, Alberta (UPI) -Brian Boltano carries the hopes of a downcast U.S. team into the finals of Olympic figure skating tonight with a strong chance to win his nation's first gold medal. But we know something will

You can feel it, can't you? Fletcher spoke the fitting motto for the entire U.S. team at these Games after breaking her leg in the skiing accident: "It's like the Amityville Horror.'

The Americans completed the first full week of the Games Friday with one unonze medal, sad memories of Dan Jansen's speedskating falls, the sting from Fletcher's bigarre accident and an array squabbles ... and more squabbles. ALTAMONTE SPRINGS Playing what head coach Greg Robinson called a "superb" first half, Seminole High School cruised to an 82-61 triumph at Lake Brantley High School Friday night before 501 fans.

With the victory, combined with DeLand's loss to Oviedo, Seminole wins the Seminole Athletic Conference championship. The 'Noles ended the regular season at 17-7 overall and 10-2 in the SAC, while Lake Brantley falls to 9-15 overall and 3-9 in the SAC. Seminole opens District play next Thursday at Kissimmee Gateway High School where they will take on perentally tough Kissimee Osceola High School.

Seminole jumped out to an 8-0 lead after three minutes of play on two baskets by Andre Whitney and one each by Craig Walker and Walter Hopson. Trey White finally scored Lake Brantley's first points on a five foot jumper with 4:50 left in the quarter before Whitney hit a long three-pointer and Freddie Gadson and Hopson added two pointers to make it 15-2.

Pete Lingard took a pass from Brian Wilson and converted the shot with two seconds left to give Oviedo's Lions a 65-63 victory over DeLand's Buildogs in Seminole Athletic Conference action Friday night at DeLand.

Oviedo's victory, coupled with Seminole's win over Brantley. gives Seminole the SAC title. It was DeLand's only conference home loss of the season. Oviedo improved to 16-6 overall and finished at 8-4 in the conference. DeLand now stands at 15-11 overall and 9-3 in the league.

"To go to DeLand and win was quite an accomplishment for us." Oviedo coach Dale Phillips said. "It gives us a solid finish in the SAC and a little momentum soins into the district."

Deland, behind the sharpshooting of Robbie Wilkes and Mike Bruten, took a 15-point lead midway through the second quarter but Oviedo bounced back behind the free throw shooting of Steve Kandell and Brad Bolton to pull within six, 37-31, at halftime, Kandell was 4 of 4 from the line in the quarter while Bolton was 3 of 4.

"Foul shooting kept us in in the second quarter." Phillips said. "And we also got good efforts off the bench from Danny Phillips at the point and Matt Blanton on the wing. We were able to rest some kids for the second half and that helped us in the end.

Oviedo came back to outscore DeLand, 19-16. In the third quarter and DeLand took a 53-50 lead into the final eight minutes.

BASKETBALL

GVIEDO (46) — Wilson P. G. Botton Ic. B. Batton 7, Everett 7, Kandelt Ic. Lingard 13, Tolois: 25 13-21 45.

DELAND (45) — Willion IS, Lone 7, Educada 4, Gruton 20, Biotcher 2, Williams 4, Brushapt B. Boo Wel 3, Tolois: 24 9-1343.

Halfilmo — DoLand 17, Oviedo 21, Fouls—Oviedo 11, DoLand 19, Fouled set — News. Three-pointers — Wilson 6, Lone 1, G. Berten

The game was back and forth throughout the final period and Wilson gave the Lions the lead as he hit the front end of a one-plus-one with 50 seconds remaining. DeLand's Sean See-Wai then hit one of two free throws to tie it at 63-63. With 11 seconds left, Oviedo rebounded a missed DeLand shot and called time to set up a last play. Wilson then drove the di down court and quante on to Lingard who hit the winning basket with two seconds remaining.

"The 1-3-1 zone defense did it for us again." Phillips said. "We were able to trap out of it and got some key turnovers in the fourth quarter.

Garth Bolton was high point man for Oviedo with 16 while Kandell had a good game with 14 and Lingard pumped in 12. Wilson added nine points with Brad Bolton and Dwight Everett contributing seven apiece.

"It was a very good team effort," Phillips said. "Lingard had a real strong game and Kandell played one of his most solid games of the year."

Bruten led the Bulldogs with a game-high 20 points and Wilkes canned six shots from threepoint range to finish with 16.

shot and connected on both free throws to give Seminole a 75-69 edge with 2:36 to play.

"We were all right once we got back and started to play de-fense," Hilleman said. "We were able to front the big girl (Williams) late and not let her get the ball inside."

Williams did manage to score the Lady Jackets final two points with 2:21 remaining to narrow the lead to 75-71. Riggins, though, found Reddicks underneath for another layup and Hillaman sank a pair of free throws with 46 seconds remaining to put the game out of reach. Reddicks added another layup with 25 seconds to play to close out the games scoring.

"We played solid defense tonight," Riggins, who handed out eight assists and came up with four steals, said. "All they had was the big girl and when we stopped her they couldn't score.

In the other semifinal matchup the Lady Lions of Oviedo were literally battered by Jones in their physical confrontation with the Orlando school.

Oviedo was leading, 18-17, at the intermission and was playing its game. Suzanne Hughes scored 10 of her team-high 14 points in the opening half to lead the way. Jones scored 10 consecutive points to open the second half and took control of the game. The Lady Lions managed to recover and keep the game close as they were down, 31-24, entering the final quarter.

Heather Jennerette narrowed the lead to five, 31-26, with a driving jumper to open the final period. NeCole Franklin, who finished with a game-high 28 points, scored the games next seven points as the Lady Tigers took a 38-26 lead with 5:51 remaining. Adrienne Wood then drilled a three-pointer for Oviedo to cut the lead to 38-29 with 5:35 to play. Franklin added another layup for Jones to up the lead to 40-29. Bobbie Kelley and Betsy Hughes then hit consecutive hoops for Oviedo to pull It to within seven, 40-33, with 4:39 remaining.

Jones managed to pull away a little and led 46-35 with 2:45 to play. Wood then brought the ball just past mid-court and was hit neveral times before losing control of the ball with Jones picking up the loose ball and converting a bucket.

That was by far the worse officiated game I've ever seen." Oviedo coach John Thomas said. "It's unfortunate we had these officials in a district game. I felt we played well other than the fact we were frustrated because there were no calls being made." Oviedo managed to come up with some late points but they were too little too late as Jones hung on to reach tonight's finals.

"I was proud of our girls effort tonight," Thomas said. "They never quit and they never complained, they were a nice bunch to work with and we're young and hope to be competitive next

Singing The 'Florida Lottery Blues'

Songwriter Gambling Big On Tune That May Make Him A Millionaire

By Guean Loden Herald Staff Writer

Casselberry's Don Acuff is gambling big on the Florida Lottery, but he's playing the game a bit differently than most.

Sure. Acuff buys an occassional lottery ticket, and he said it would be great to scratch a ticket and win a million bucks. But he's not obsessed with the game and so far he's come up with only a $2 lottery win.

Acuff's big gamble is on the "Florida Lottery Blues," the novelty song he has written. produced and recorded, with the hope of a chance at fame and fortune.

Acuff, who has created a ballad of hopes pinned on a big pink bird (the lottery's flamingo logo), has penned and sings the dreams and laments of the common man.

Acust, a Tennesec native who moved to Florida in 1972. speaks with a soft. Southern twang. He has been a songwriter and performer in the country music field for many more than half his 50 years. He's recorded songs before with some success. but said that this time he thinks he's struck a chord that will cross over from country into rock-n-roll and other markets.

Within 15 minutes of running out on the first day of lottery ticket sales in the state and buying a losing ticket Acuff sat down and wrote:

"I woke up this morning and Lawd what did I see? I saw this big pink bird, Lawd, and he's coming after me.

T've got the Florida Lottery blues, from the top of my head right down to my working shoes.

Don Acuff ponders his fate.

that pink bird. I've got the winthat Florida Lotterece. Florida Lottery blues.

And I get the urge when I see my truck for just a little luck to

"I'll be a millionaire. You wait "Lawd, it makes me do crazy and see, when they call my things, I even went and sold my numbers on TV. And I'll have wedding ring. And I'd give up lots of fun when I spend all that mon and I win the Florida Lottery.

"Here's 10 bucks. Just give me a batch. I've got the itch and I need to scratch. Two, five or 10, Lawd, I've got to win. Can't lose these Florida Lottery blues. "Well I' be darn, there' that pink bird again. I guess I'll be broke for the rest of the week."

Acuff, who doesn't write or read music, put a few finishing touches on his song and within five days was in a Lake Mary recording studio recording the "Florida Lottery Blues," with backup from "Big Red and the Country Cruiners."

The day Acuff took delivery of 500 cuts of the 45 rpm recording of his lottery song he said. "People can relate to it. If you really listen to the words. I relate to it. I envision it actually happening. I've written a lot of songs. Few have come so quickly." He also envisions success with his song.

Even before he received his shipment of records, along with an order of T-shirts featuring a tearful pink flamingo standing in a pile of money. Acuft's lottery blues could be heard on Central Florida Radio stations and had been featured on local television

Acuff rushed tapes of the song to K-92 FM, WDBO, and WUCF, all of which have played the song. Feedback has been posttive, Acuff said, as he prepared to send out samples of his song to other Florida radio stations. He is also working on a revised version of the song, which would include the lotteries of other states, and which could gain national attention, he said.

He's Not Too Old To Dream

• Who: Don Acuff, age 50. O Profession: Songwriter, performer, antiques dealer, auctioneer. OHome: Casselberry, from Tennessee in 1972. ODream: To win Florida

• Bid for fame: Original song "Florida Lottery Blues."

• Words to live by: "I'll always be a country boy. I'm too old to change.'

"Technically, I'm a country artist, but the comments I've heard, this isn't just country, it's blues, a little rock and country. It covers all facets. I didn't plan for it to be anything but a song. It turned out to be crossover (into other than country markets), he said.

He produced his recording independently, and said that it's hard for independent performers to get air time on all but the smallest radio station. Acuff's song has already broken that barrier as a novelty offering on K-92 FM, which is the Orlando area's top rated radio station, and WDBO.

Acuff, an antiques dealer and auctioneer whose true country sound is reminiscent of the songs of Hank Williams Sr., said that his lottery song has the potential of universal appeal as a novelty song.

"I think the song is good. I think it will establish me as a writer. It came together and is getting good response. I feel good about the whole thing," he

But the greatest challenge. Acuff said, is the marketing of himself and his record, which is a job he is doing himself. Part of his plan includes making the record available for jukebox play and for sale as a consignment item at record outlets. Acuff is also planning live performances which he said is the most profitable forum for him.

He said he couldn't do it without the support of his wife of 25-years, Sandie, who operates a thrift shop in Fern Park. Acuff said he put his music career on a back burner when he married and especially after his 16-year old daughter, Donna, was born with a spinal defect. Donna, a Lyman High School student, continues to receive treatment related to her illness at Harry-Anna Crippled Children's Hospital in Umatilla. That, Acuff said, is one reason he is based in Florida and not in Nashville, Tenn., the heart of country music production.

"Since I came up with this song, I decided maybe I can do something from this base. You've got to make waves somewhere. It's easier to make them here, I like Florida.

"There's no doubt about it," Acuff said, this is his big bid for See BLUES, 2C

When a parent causes his child to feel inadequate and unimportant, he may crush the child's spirit for a lifetime. Negative response from parents becomes particularly damaging in early childhood when a child depends almost entirely upon his parents for love and acceptance, although it certainly does not end there.

Erik Erikson's theory of social development portrays life in stages, where one stage must be resolved before progressing to the next. In his first year, a child's central concern becomes how much he can trust others. When parents act uncaring, a child will become mistrustful and insecure. Between the ages of one to three, a child's ability to satisfy others' expectations becomes paramount. If his parents treat him as a failure, he will doubt his competence. When a child emerges from one stage, he has developed (either positive or negative) a new sense of himself. Excessive negative feedback directed toward a child shatters his self-image. When a child's needs are not met, he will have problems being acciable

DAR Presents Awards To Good Citizens, History Essay Winners

Nine outstanding seniors representing Seminole County high schools were honored Feb. 12 at the monthly meeting of Sallie Harrison Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. The students and their parents were invited to join chapter members at Page School auditorium where the meeting was held.

The students were selected by their respective schools as the Good Citizen winner of the year. Selection was based on leadership, dependability, service and Grace Parks, Good Citizens chairman, presented pins to Lora Splatt, Lake Mary High School, daughter of Mr.and Mrs. Clifford Splatt, Longwood; Tell White, Northside Christian School, son of Mr. and Mrs. George White, Casselberry: Sakura Therrien, Oviedo High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francois Therrien, Winter Springs; and Penny Siqueiros. Altamonte Christian School, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Emory, Longwood; and Jennifer McKibbin, Seminole High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McKibbin, Sanford.

Lora Splatt, Lake Mary High School, was selected the Seminole County winner. She will represent the county in state competition. State winners are given a $100 educational award: national winners receive a $1,000 scholarship and a silver engraved bowl; second and third place winners, $750 and $500 respectively; and eight division winners are given $250 cash

Awards were also presented to the students who won the American History Essay Contest for the year. The DAR recognizes February as American History month nationwide. Local chapters send information to the achools, and students in the 5th. 6th, 7th and 6th grades in the county's schools are encouraged to enter. The lower grades have 300-600 word essays and the older students 600-1000 word

Cocktail Party, Golf Tourney To Benefit Children's Village

A cocktail party and golf tournament, to be held for charity are in the final stages of preparation.

The events, to support the Seminole Children's Village, will be at Heathrow on Sunday evening, March 6 and on Monday, March 7. These functions promise to be the beginning of the social schedule for the spring season in our area.

With over 2,500 reports of child abuse and neglect in Seminole County last year, and with approximately 150 of these referrals resulting in children being removed from their homes, there is a definite need for these kids to have somewhere to go. The age group, 6 to 12, is most affected, because younger children get placed into individual families while these others must be placed outside the county, away from familiar surroundings. Therefore, this shelter will provide the facility required to keep this age group in the county from which they originate and closer to their families, friends and schoolmates

Sharing Concern for Seminole County Shelter Children, Inc. (SC3) was formed in 1985 by a group of concerned citizens and community leaders, led by Circuit Judge

Fousnight Longwood/ Lake Mary Correspondent 321-2239

Kenneth Leffler. This was in response to a growing awareness of the critical need for emergency shelter homes for the abused. neglected and abandoned children of Seminole County.

Some monies have already been raised and pledges from builders and contractors to assist with this effort, have been received without any formal notice. But, there is still much outstanding and this is the reason that March 6.7 should be marked on calendars all over Seminole County.

Please contact Robby Robertson at 322-5854 for more information.

Fourth grade teacher Ruthle Eichert has been named teacher of the year for Longwood Elementary School. She was chosen for this honor by a vote of her peers who recognize her outstanding teaching talent and contributions to the school.

In addition to her regular classroom duties, Ms. Eichert plans and organizes the Longwood Writers Tea, an evening event to honor students for their creative writings.

Ms. Eichert is a graduate of the University of Florida, and has taught in Seminole County Schools for nine years in addition to nine years teaching experience in other Florida counties.

The regular meeting for the Community Improvement Association will be held Monday, Feb. 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the C.I.A. building on Country Club Road. The scheduled speaker is George Duryea who will be discussing the new federal income taxes. As always, the public is invited. For more information, call 322-7351.

The February meeting for the Lake Mary Women's Club will be held at 10 a.m. Thurday, Feb. 25 at the C.I.A. building in Lake Mary. The topic for this meeting will be banking, presented by member, Karen Beal. All members are encouraged to attend.

Parents Must Learn Difference Between Discipline And Abuse

DEAR ABBY: I am the grandmother of two very active. mischievious children under 5 years old. They light with each other constantly, and are really a handful because they have not been properly disciplined. It's not their fault-it's the fault of their parents.

Four days ago while I was visiting, my son-in-law, who is a big, husky man with a violent temper, beat both children with his belt. I was there today, and the bruises are still visible!

If the situation does not improve and the child abuse continues, call your local child protective services. Those children need to be protected and possibly placed in a safer environment, and the parents need counseling.

DEAR ABBY: Next month I am marrying a wonderful man. Unfortunately, he just announced that he doesn't plan to jewelry. wear his wedding ring after the ceremony. Why? Because he doesn't like to wear jewelry. I was shocked and very hurt. A ring shows the world you're married. When he saw how hurt I was, he said he would try to wear it for a while to see if he could get used to it, but he was making no promises.

pageantry of Fifth Avenue wowed patrons attending a fashton show and luncheon last Friday at the Sanford Civic Center."This is like New York." un excited supporter said.

The American Heart Association benefit. "Have a Heart and Swing Into Spring." was sponsored by Central Florida Regional Hospital and the Seminole County Division of the "Dynasty," a vocal group from Seintnole High School, got the show off to a rousing start. Under the direction of Bob Macguire, the singers put their hearts into the heart benefit.

Vivacious Lisa Maile of Lisa Matte Professional Image and Modeling School, Winter Park, coordinated the fashion show and was the commentator...adding a classy, cosmopolilan flatr to the benefit.

In the first segment, The American Patrol, shapely models strutted their stuff down the burgundy-skirted runway. wearing saucy sailor hats with their brief swimwear in the lingerie division, models casually sashaved around the stage and down the runway in their unmentionables concentrating mostly on the cute little doggies they carried.

The spirited models bounced

jumpsuits while carrying large arrangements of balloons. In the formal finale models showed glittering after five fashions complete with cocktail hats, furs and jewelry. Elegant daywear went uptown enhanced with with hats and gloves

Adding a comical note to the "swing" event while showing off their fashions were Martha Lyle, Sheriff John Polk, Dr. Frank Clontz, James B. Tesar and Owen Frakes cutting some fancy legwork and singing (pantomine) to "Chattanooga Choo-Choo."

Sanford's own Tim Raines. outfielder for the Montreal Expos, assisted the models down the runway steps. His wife, Virginia, modeled a gold gown complete with a glamorous furstroller and diamonds and gold from Kader Jewelers who also supplied other jewelry for the

One of the hottest numbers for the funior set was Jenny Gruby modeling a mini-skirted formal fashioned with a strapless stone-washed denim fitted bodtee and a short, short white skirt caught in the back with a huge bow. Pearls from Kaders complemented Jenny's outfit.

Allyson Cahill also modeled a short, strapless formal, in blue tones, with which she wore thousands of dollars worth of

Greg Gay was resplendent in a casual outfit enhanced with a for-

Jacket. Highlighting the event was State Rep. Art Grindle, in tails, top hat and mask, dancing and prancing while escorting the models including his wife, Phyllis, in the "Let's Dance" segment. The Mystery VIP unmasked as the show ended.

Shanan Stewart, Miss Florida U.S. Teen 1988, and Melody Sorvas modeled prom gowns from Forever Fashion, Sanford, that also provided the men's formalwear, two hats and gloves for the show

The remainder of the women's fashions and men's fashions were from Lois' Place and The Store for HIM, both in Sanford. La Belle Furs, Orlando, furnished the furs. Following the luncheon and

On Racial Justice

World Council Challenges Churches

By David B. Anderson
UP1 Religion Writer
An international consultation on racism. sponsored by the World Council of Churches and meeting for the first time in the United States, has called on U.S. churches to begin "a new and deliberate journey" to racial justice in their church and society.

The consultation brought together some 175 commissioners and staff of the Programme to Combat Racism, denominational officials and representatives of civil rights and liberation groups around the world.

In the United States, the Programme to Combat Racism has been one of the World Council's most controversial projects. Its support for anti-apartheid groups and anti-colonial groups in Africa has resulted in charges that the agency finances Marxist guerrilla organizations.

Contributions by U.S. denominations to the PCR amount to less than $10,000. The recent consultation, held in Los Angeles, is certain to add to the controversy. We came in pain, knowing our churches no longer play the role they once did in securing racial justice," said the Rev. Joan Campbell, a Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) cleric who heads the World Council's U.S. office. And she took white Christians to tank, saying that "people of color have continued to press the churches on the issue" of racial justice but "it is the whites who have stopped."

In statement issued at the end of the consultation, participants concluded that racism is on the increase throughout the United States, including in the churches and at the highest level of government.

The statement deplored what it found to be the erosion over the last decade of gains made by the civil rights movement and said it appeared that racially motivated violence against all racial ethnic groups is rising rapidly.

It also cited concern about the "English as the official language campaign," what it described as "unfair" immigration legislation, breaking of treaties with American Indian tribes, the low number of blacks in colleges and the high unemployment rate in some ethnic communities."

During the five-day meeting, the commissioners - from World Council member churches around the world - heard testimony from American blacks, Indians, Hispanies and Asians contending there has been a resurgence of racism in the United States in recent years.

"In 1988 there is a resurgence of racism," said Yvonne Delk, a PCR commissioner from the United States. "Suddenly it seems to be permitted to be openly hostile."

The statement adopted by the participants makes a number of recommendations to U.S. churches, calling for changes in church curriculums dealing with Christian education, leadership development and theological training to make such material more ethnically inclusive; to use racial justice criteria in making evaluations and to provide "retooling training" to staff to make them more sensitive to racial justice issues and to increase cross-cultural communications both within denominations and across denominational houndaries.

New Meeting Place For Church

now meeting in the library of Oviedo High School at 10:30 a.m. each Sunday. The new congregation, started by the Rev. Bill Koch in December, formerly met at Wedgewood Tennis Villa in Tuscawilla. The first group of new members will be received into the church on Easter Sunday. Those interested in joining are saked to state their intentions at this Sunday's service so that they may attend membership classes at 9:30 a.m. each Sunday until Easter.

Music is led by Clark McClelland, a University of Central Florida graduate who majored in piano.

Some anthropologists say that if the birthplace of Christianity Saints And had been arctic Alaska or frigid Lapland instead of the hot. parched Middle East, hell would Sinners not have been pictured as a place of eternal fire, but as a wasteland of unbearable cold. To the Eskimo or Laplander. fire would present a welcome prospect, to be anticipated with easurness, not to be regarded with excessive terror and fear. At last he would be warm. But when you have been freezing all your life, the last thing you want to look forward to in an eternity of frostbite and chilbiains. Now that would be hell.

Although fire remains the element of record in the church as far as hell is concerned, a Swiss clergyman who had a near-death experience on the operating ta-ble came back after a 12-minute tour of hell to say that it is "an endless frozen expanse where the damned are reientlessly pursued by their victims pursued by their victims through eternity."

As Rev. Hans Gerber told the Weekly World News, he found himself, while he was hovering between the two worlds, at the edge of a frozen lake where he new Hitler, blue from the cold, being pursued by an angry mob. He also new Lee Harvey Owerald, Josef Stalin, Billy the Kid, Attila the Hun — and Errol Flynn!

For most Christians, hell is no

For most Christians, hell is no longer the burning issue it once was. There are, of course, many fundamentalists who believe in a Revelation describes as a "lake that burns with sulphurous flames" — translated "fire and brimstone" in the King James version of the Bible.

In the parable of the sheep and the geats. Jeous himself speaks prepared for the devil and his angels." of a place of "everlasting fire, angels."

The Roman Catholic Church

also has kept hell on the books. One modern view of hell, held by some, is that, while there is indeed a hell as the Bible says. there is nobody in it. This does not necessarily mean that everybody goes to heaven. Those who don't go to heaven will merely cease to exist. Their "eternal punishment" will be eternal death - that is, nonexistence.

This strikes some nonreligious persons, who are not too thrilled with the calendar of

Will It Be A Cold Day In Hell? a bad prospect.

Among Bible references cited in support of this position is one in which Jesus says, "For the man who has will be given more and the man who has not will forfeit even what he has.'

While heaven and hell traditionally have referred to the two options offered souls in the next world, a growing number of people today who believe in life after death find the terms "heaven" and "hell" unserviceable.

These people contend that you will be the same person in the next world as you are when you leave this world. At death you will go neither to heaven or hell but will take up an existence similar to the one you had here. The big difference is that "over there" all is spiritual and mental.

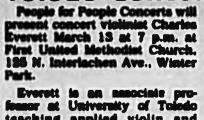

This can, of course, turn out to be a form of hell for some people. The sensual person, for example, would find no gratification of physical cravings in the spiritual world.

"The best analogy of what it will be like for such a person." says a writer on the subject. 'can be found in the frustration dream we are all familiar with. In such dreams our carnal desires are still with us, but they find no fulfillment."

"The earth is but one country, and mankind its citizens."

Shoot To Kill' Leaves No Imprint Whatsoever

SHOOT TO KILL (R) Touchstone Pictures has what amounts to a line of "products" - machine-tooled movies (including the witty "Outrageous Fortune," the romantic 'Stakeout" and the cute "Three Men and a Baby") that reactivate well-tested formulas.

The latest Touchstone release continues to play it safe: a slam-bang thriller that pivots on the racially mixed buddy formula familiar from movies like "The Defiant Ones" and the recent "Lethal Weapon." This time we get Sidney Politier (in his first film role in a decade) as a street-smart FBI agent tracking a murderer in the Pacific Northwest. His helper is Tom Berenger, a woods-smart trail guide whose girlfriend (Kiratie Alley) is the murderer's latest hostage.

The movie smells like another hit for Touchstone, and it passes the time painlessly enough. But this goes-down-easy-with-popcor n sort of flick is not to be mistaken for a good movie. "Shoot to Kill" leaves no imprint whatsoever: You can barely remember what you just saw

FILMETER What's new in movies and video lebert DiMattee even as you're filing out of the theater. The talents involved could have done a lot more. The movie's director, Roger Spottiswoode ("Under Fire"), is a man of skill and intelligence. And Sidney Poitier remains an authoritative actor - even in the kind of patented super-black role he did to death in the '60s. So why couldn't the three writers who received screen credit have come up with a real script? They've settled for a schematic situation stretched as far as possible, with synthetic calamities befalling the protagonists on schedule.

Some of the outdoors adventure stuff is vivid (particularly a stomach-churning fall that Berenger - or his stunt man takes from a mountain). And the wary relationship between black the child, remains obscure in its definition and punishment. Aland white protagonists has its amusing elements. But that's it. Kirstic Alley is emblematic of the movie's waste: Alley's mountain-girl get-up amounts to virtually her whole character: GRADE: 2 stars.

NEW HOME VIDEO THE SQUEEZE (PG-13) A far-fetched comedy/action caper that also wants to be taken as a sobering statement about the desire to get something for nothing. Michael Keaton stars as down-on-his-luck New York artist and gambler who uncovers a scheme to fix a multimilliondollar national lottery. Meat Loaf is the vicious baddle, and Rae Dawn Chong is a bill collector-cum-love interest. GRADE: 2 stars.

THE LIVING DAYLIGHTS (PG) A big hit, this 1987 James Bond movie offered Timothy Dalton as a less facetious 007 than before But the basic Bond film recipe is intact - that ineffable blend of fashion show, travelogue, stunts. gadgetry, glossy sex, campy sadism, Cold War rabble-rousing and haute-bourgeois consumerism, GRADE: 21/2 stars.

and generally feeling happy. If a parent will not or cannot meet those needs, he emotionally abuses his child.

One reason for the prevalence of emotional abuse is that many people long to believe that they are good parents. Parents rarely dislike their children. More commonly, they become frustrated with the imperfections of their children and themselves, causing them to lash out with too-harsh criticisms. Rationalization ensues: "After all, I only said that I hated him once or twice in the heat of anger. He knows I don't hate him!" or, "I've just had a hard day. Everyone says hateful things at times. I'll make it up to her tomorrow." The point is that it only takes harsh, hasty words a few times to constitute an emotional attack on defenseless children. Are the hurtful words such as, "I don't want you in my home" ever justified because a parent is dissatisfied or frustrated? Parents must care more for their child's development than that. No matter how imperfect a child may be, an angry parent owes it to his child to think rationally before apeaking or to learn to apologise. Unfortunately, emotional abuse, as much as it damages gaining attention.

Our society is becoming more sensitive to the needs and plight though it is illegal in most states, the privacy of the home and the of children. Addressing emotional abuse is not insurmounrejuctance of friends, neighbors, table. The National Committee family, and professionals for Prevention of Child Abuse suggests community education (though required by law) to report and recognize cases makes it difficult for authorities as an effective aid in prevention. As parents become more educated about how they may guide to investigate. More severe abuses such as the recent case of their children with love and the parent who profited from her affection, less children will be daughter's nude dancing are victims of emotional abuse.

Fed Leaves You To Wonder(land)

After the Great Crash in the stock market last October. Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan was quick to assure the public that the Fed would provide the economy with enough new money to prevent a recession.

Since then, not a day goes by that some wizened commentator does not comment on the fact that the Fed is "easing" monetary policy in an effort to prevent a recession.

Never mind that the Fed has actually slammed on the monetary brakes since the crash. The money supply has fallen. Growth in the reserves the Fed provides the system has come almost to a halt. The Fed's ability to do one thing while everyone thinks it is doing another is the work of its new director of public relations, Alice Wonderlander. I visited with Ms. Wonderlander to find out how she manages to hoodwink the whole world. "Welcome to Fed Public Relations," she bubbled. "It's so nice that you could come on such a nice day.

I pointed out that there was a blizzard going on outside. "Yes, New York does have ita days. Good morning,

"HI, folks. How do you like this weather?

"I think I'll take It, Ma. Wonderlander. Who needs Bermuda when we can get this much sun here?" said the oldest of the three.

"Oh, I do love a sunny day," Ms. Wonderlander sighed. I started to point out that the blizzard was getting worse. but thought better of it. I asked Wonderlander about the Fed's policies.

"Weil, as you know Chairman Greenspan has already issued his assurance on that."

I asked how his assurance equared with the fact that. since October, the Fed has reduced growth in the monetary base by two-thirds. The basic money supply has actually fallen.

"The Fed is acting to assure the markets that there is plenty of liquidity."

But the Fed is doing nothing of the nort. It is engaging in a policy that seems intended to bring the economy to its knees. After increasing the money supply at high double-digit rates through the end of 1986, the Fed has allowed almost no growth in the money supply since.

Excuse me," Ms. Wonderlander said, obviously bored by my tirade. "I have a call from one of the network

For Communication Between Agencies

Association Allows Lawmen To Dialogue

By Guean Loden Herald Staff Writer Sanford Police Chief Steven D. Harriett, who in January was installed as president of the Central Florida Law Enforcement Association, said this group of law enforcement executives from Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties has many objectives.

One of the primary goals of the group, which was formed as a loose association of police chiefs more than a decade ago, is to promote communication between the various law enforcement agencies that participate in the group.

"It's an informal means of communication between all levels of law enforcement—federal, state and local. Through communication and discussion we hopefully solve some issues and problems that we may have in common," Harriett said.

'The bottom line is we're all doing the same job, just in different locations and at different levels. The only difference sometimes is frequency of a problem. We all have the same kinds of crime, perhaps just not as much of it.

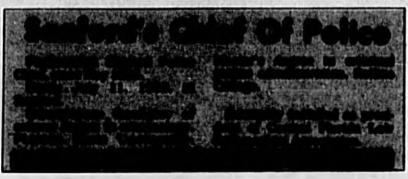

"We may learn from another agency, get ideas. We have a regular program each month. Each year 12 agencies present a program," he said.

Program topic include such subjects as the area crime lab. an annual report from the Metropolitan Bureau of Investigation, and legislative issues that impact on law enforcement—a program in which local lawmakers are invited to participate.

Steven D. Harriett Association President, Police Chief

The discussion of Florida laws and lawmen's views on those laws is usually a hot topic within the group, Harriett said.

A top concern now is the desire by law enforcement officials to have state sentencing guidelines changed. Harriett said lawmen want support from the state which will ensure that repeat criminal offenders are sentenced to serve time in jail or

"One of our major thrusts this year is trying to get sentencing guidelines repealed. (Sentencing guidelines set standard possible punishment for specific crimes). don't think I could find a law enforcement officer in this state that would argue for the senteneing guidelines. Sentencing guidelines tie judges' hands. We're pressing for mandatory sentencing for the sale of crack cocaine to bring the trafficking threshold lower and to make arrests have a meaningful impact. The repeat offender is our most serious problem." Harriett

The CFLEA is modeled after the Florids Police Chief's Association, of which Harriett is also a member.

A difference between the state group, which is limited to police chiefs, and the local association. is Harriett said, the inclusion in the CFLEA of other law enforcement executives, such as: sheriffs; FBI; Florida Department of Law Enforcement, and Drug Enforcement Agency agents; Florida Highway Patrol: state attorney's office representatives; juvenile justice arbitators and criminal justice educators.

Supporting Harriett as president this year are Vice President Winter Park Police Chief Jim Younger, and Secretary. Treasurer Altamonte Springe Police Service Bureau Commander Jim Murphey.

Typically, 40 to 50 association members show up for monthly meetings. The meetings feature a scheduled speaker, as well as an informal exchange of ideas by the members.

"For example," Harriett said.
"the chief of police of Winter
Springs would have the opportunity to talk over a problem with a major of the Highway Patrol.

We don't have formal discussion of internal issues of departments. This is not an appropriate forum for that. We learn about each departments resources, expertise, personnel and equipment. We've learned to share. To borrow and to trade personnel or equipment, which is very beneficial. The association has opened doors to some of this," Harriett said.

An important factor in the association, Harriett said, in 'fellowship with peers. That makes you feel more comfortable asking for help if needed."

Harriett said that in addition to making an effort to improve communication with other police agencies area lawmen in recent years have made more effort "to acquaint the people we serve with some of our needs and the reason certain thing are done certain ways.

"Most departments place a lot of emphasis on community relations, which is vital to the success of a law enforcement agency. Law enforcement agencies exist because the public says they need to exist. They exist for the community. The community does not exist for law enforcement," he said.

Like a ghostly high-tech player piano, the keys of the Bosendorfer begin to move despite its empty bench, breaking the stlence and filling the room with the clear, crisp notes of Bach's Toccata in C Minor for solo piano.

The Cube, as the room is known, is a 64-foot-square custom-designed research and performance area built in the heart of an unusual scientific center at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology - the Media Laboratory.

The three-year-old laboratory is home to 120 researchers and students in a wide variety of fields, including computer science, animation, film, music, television, graphics and publishing.

Among the researchers are some of the most well-known in their fields, including artificial intelligence guru Marvin Minsky. computer designer Alan Kay and hip of an elderly patient or computerized education advocate Seymour Papert.

"Somebody said one day, 'What's the best way to predict the future," said Nicholas P. Negroponte, the architect turned lab director. "And I said. 'The best way to predict the future is to invent it.' I don't know if we invent the future. But we certainly invent things that have to do with the future."

One example of advances hatched at the lab is the world's first freestanding hologram: an image of a Camaro floating in midair produced with lasers and computers.

Such holograms may one day enable doctors to visualize the

Perhaps because researchers at the lab tend to concentrate more on producing often dazziing demonstrations of their work than on publishing papers in academic and acientific journals. the lab has been met with some criticism that the work lacks substance.

But Negroponte and others connected with the lab dismiss such suggestions, saying such skepticism may be the result of the often easteric nature of the work or jealousy generated by the inordinate media attention the lab has received and its success in raising money.

'I am completely insensitive to the kind of jealousies and criticisms when people say we're all icing and no cake," said Negroponte during an interview in his office. "I know damn well that's not the case. I think history will speak for itself."

Even the lab's building is distinctive at MIT, where many buildings are drab, nondescript structures that have numbers structure named after former morning and what they are former achool president who co-founded the lab with Negroponte.

During a tour, a visitor leaves The Cube and climbs a stairwell up one flight to a second floor to find a series of labs nicknamed "gardens" by the students and graduate students who stalk them all hours of the day and in "The Terminal Garden," a plushly appointed room filled with computer terminals, students tinker with "Newspeek" on a screen or fidget with a new high-resolution color monitor on loan from Sony. A smiling blond woman surrounded by brightly colored objects who stares atlently from the acreen could easily be mistaken for a real person at first glance.

Down the hall, in work related to the research with the Bosendorfer in The Cube, computers are used with every imaginable instrument to analyze how muccians interpret music and allow composers to hear and even edit their scores and performances as they work.

Family Issues Have Support

A battle is building in Washington these days over the so-called "family issues." Predictably, lines are drawn between Republicans and Democrats, conservatives and liberals, but they do not divide two sides of the issue. The battle is more of a genteel shoving match over who will get credit for a range of initiatives under the "children and family" label.

"This is the issue of the '90s," Marian Wright Edelman, president of the Washington-based Children's Defense Fund, has said. "For the first time, decency and self-interest have merged."

Edelman's group, the nation's pre-eminent lobbying group for children, recently released the latest in a long line of reports that persuasively documents the need. It addresses the deteriorating infant mortality rates in this country.

The report notes that between 1984 and 1985, the United States experienced a rise in infant mortality for black and other non-white babies in the first 28 days of life—the first such increase in 20 years. White infant mortality rates for babies in the first year of life increased in 19 states. These increases were accompanied by national rises in rates of low-birthweight babies, premature births, women receiving late or no prenatal care and black maternal mortality.

The overall U.S. infant mortality rate placed It 19th in the world, behind such countries as Spain and Singapore. The white infant mortality rate alone placed the United States 14th worldwide, behind Hong Kong and Jepan.

When this country's black infant mortality rank 28th. rate is considered alone, we rank 28th, behind Cube and Bulgaria and equal to Costa Rica. (Three nations tied for the best infant mortality rates: Finland, Japan, Sweden.)
Solutions to the problem are not all that difficult to identify. Congress, for example, could provide immediate cost-enective preventive health coverage for every uninsured low-income pregnant woman and child under Medicaid. Comprehensive prenatal care costs 8600 a mother; neonatal intensive care for a low-birthweight baby averages more than $1.000 a day.

We also could make sure that every eligible mother and child is assured the nutritional supplements provided by the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children. Despite WIC's demonstrated effectiveness in improving pregnancy outcome and the health of children, only 40 percent of the eligible women, infants and children are served by the program.

To prevent the rising incidence of infectious childhood diseases and declining immunisation rates, we could spend $126 million for immunisation grants. That's a significant amount of money, of course, but it has been estimated that $10 in health-care costs are eaved for every $1 spent to immunise.

Therein lies one of the reasons for the bipartisan popularity of children's issues. They have more in the long run than they cost in the short term. The National Academy of Science's Institute of Medicine, for example, notes that pregnant women can save $3.36 for low-birthweight infants for every $1 speat. Long-term follow-up studies of Head Start have documented a reduction in participants' rates of teen pregnancy, crimi-nal activity and welfare dependency. George Miller, the California Democrat who chairs the House Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families, puts it this way:

"This is hardball economics now. The failure to make this investment will just increase the number of children ,who can't participate in society."

The Real South African Truth At Last

Every so often the strain of maintaining and propagating a totally false view of the situation in South Africa becomes too much for the New York Times. No doubt, if questioned, its editors would insist that the grotesque caricature of that country that is adumbrated week by week in its news columns and on its editorial page—the familiar picture of a rabidly racist white minority regime holding down a far larger black majority by brute force and intending to do so in perpetuity—is "subjectively true": i.e., that it conforms to the larger and more enduring realities of life in South Arrica, however much it may depart from strict objectivity in regard to

But the Times, like Antaeus in Greek mythology, who drew his strength from the earth and had to make contact with it anew from time to time for that purpose, cannot disregard objective reality altogether. And recently its current correspondent in South Africa, John F. Burns, delivered himself fon the caned made to be surely of a parties of attenuant. op-ed page, to be sure) of a series of statements on the situation there so accurate, and so wildly acrved up by the Times, that I am taking the liberty of quoting selected passages for your delectation. You may have seen similar state-whose consent? The Times's editors? You could have fooled me.

But Burns goes on: "Major pillars of the racial system, such as the 'influx control' laws that denied blacks the right to move freely around the country, have been acrapped, or at least substantially cased.... Representatives of the Indian and mixed-race cummunities, known here as 'coloreds', have (been given) their own chambers in Parliament, and the government has invited black leasters to jotn a 'national council' to discuss breader political rights."

If all that is true (and it is—along with much more), why, do you suppose, has Congress cracked down so mercileasly through economic sanctions enacted over a Reagan veto, on the Botha government?

It ion't an easy question to answer. Sometimes I have speculated that the liberals are actually trying to make South Africa's blacks suffer a bit (since sanctions hit them hardest), in an effort to induce a mood of rebellion that could then be used to "liberate" them. Sometimes I have suspected that South Africa's critics are privately dismayed at the progress the Both administration is making on the desegregation front, and want to "destabilise" the situation before R clanges beyond recognition for the better.

But most of the time I manage to remember that the attitude of American liberals toward South Africa has, in fact, almost nothing to do with that country. It is a purely American phenomenon, serving strictly domestic

Small Firms Thriving

WASHINGTON-While large corporations face many problems these days, small business is thriving. Entrepreneurship is alive and well in the United States.

That good news comes from Inc., the business magazine, which re-ports that 700,000 new incorporations and 300,000 new partnerships are expected in 1988. That represents a tremendous increase over a generation ago. In addition, significant numbers of Americans are working at home in small service businesses they have created. Another healthy sign is that small-scale manufacturing to showing an excellent record of

The current emphasis on entrepreneurship comes at an important time. Foreign competition has forced many large companies to shut plants in American communities. As a result, towns and cities can't pin their economic hopes on the opening of new factories. Many of the factories which, in the past, would have been built in American communities are today being constructed in Mexico, Talwan and elsewhere in order to take advantage of the low wage scales. Community economic developers in this country, therefore, are emphasising the start-up of small businesses that can be financed at the local level.

To be sure. It's difficult to launch a successful small business. While the financial requirements may not be excessive, the need for careful planning and market surveys is

Anyone who wants to start a small business has to carefully survey the community situation. In some areas of business, such as fast food, there is a huge glut. But other fields-from the home delivery of laundry and dry-cleaning to the manufacture of paper itemscontain real opportunities. Success stories abound. With changing patterns of work and living, there is need for a variety of new services. Most of the new businesses are low-tech enterprises, though amail-scale data processing is doing well, according to Inc. Too often people imagine that the real economic opportunities are in hightech businesses. But it's low-tech business that is largely exempt from foreign competition or competition by American giants. Low-tech business provides opportunities here and now. And communities depend on the immediate provision of jobs.

In the past, young Americans dreamed of lifetime careers with a large company. They no longer can count on such career opportunities, though many may still find employment with big companies. Large corporations are in transition. They have been forced to trim their workforces to become more competttive. More than 600,000 middle managers have lost their jobs in the process. Major corporations also have had to turn to part-time or so-called disposable workers.

Given this situation, young Americans leaving high school and college have to look for work with small companies-perhaps with companies having 20 or fewer workers. Happily, many of the most energetic young people have decided to start their own companies and work for themselves.

The adjustment involved in this process isn't necessarily an easy one. Work in a small business may mean long hours and a high degree of flexibility. But there also is a higher degree of personal freedo involved and more active involvement in decision-making about products and services. Entrepreneurship offers its own. special rewards.

For communities, the new emphasis on small business also is difficult. It's easy to depend on a amail number of large payrolls and industrial tax-providers. However, this dependence ion't feasible today.

Psychosis Linked To Thirst

Dy Rob Stein UPI Science Writer

BOSTON (UPI)—Many psychiatric patients apparently have a physiological defect that makes them unusually thirsty and therefore highly susceptible to literally drinking themselves to death.

The defect seems to explain why at least some psychotic people are at increased risk for so-called water intoxication, and may give researchers new insights into the biological basis of mental illness, researchers say.

"One of the major issues in psychiatry is tracking down the neurochemical basis of psychosis," said Dr. Morris B. Goldman of the University of Chicago Medical Center.

"If you can start to get a handle on one of these associated phenomena then we may get a better understanding of the neurophysiological basis of the psychosis," said Goldman.

Between 5 percent and 10 percent of chronic psychiatric patients are believed to experience episodes of water intoxication, which results from the consumption of unusual amounts of water that the kidney can't get rid of.

Excess amounts of water in the body dilutes salt levels, which can and cause confusion, seizures and even comas and death in some

About 30 percent of chronic psychiatric patients drink excess amounts of water. The reason had been unclear but it was believed it may be related to drugs they take. About one-third of those suffer episodes of water intoxication.

To determine whether there is a physiological basis for the phenomena. Goldman and his colleagues studied eight psychiatric patients who had experienced intoxication and compared them with seven who had not.

In a study published recently in The New England Journal of Modi-cine, the researchers found that the patients who had experienced intesication apparently had a defect in their kidney that prevented them from expelling enough of the excess

The eight patients who experienced intextestion could excrete about half as much water as the other seven patients, Goldman said. In addition, measurements of a hormone that regulates thirst known as vasspreasin found that the eight patients who experienced intoxication also became thirutier earlier, accounting for why they drank so much water.

next president must revive and strengthen the relationship between the federal sector and American colleges and universities that existed in the 1980s and 1970s. This partnership is vital to the future strength and vitality of our country.

The next administration will confront, among others, five major challenges; securing peace and international order, revitalizing our economy. expanding educational and other opportunities, improving our quality of life, and sustaining our values and ethical standards. In each area, our nation's colleges and universities have a long and rich tradition of helping not just the president, but the American people, satisfy the nation's

In the area of international affairs, America's colleges and universities have long resisted our national tradition of isolationism. emphasizing the study of foreign cultures, deepening the public's understanding of defense and foreign policy issues, training diplomats and providing critical analysis for decision makers. Yet today, too many Americans are uneducated in foreign languages, and remain unaware of the basic elements of military and strategic policy.

With respect to our economy, universities have always been the source of discoveries, innovations and new ideas-from agriculture to semiconductors, in both basic and applied research. Universities train our managers, engineers and designers. But in recent years, while other countries, particularly our international competitors, have renewed their research and training commitments, our laboratories, libraries, acientific facilities and academic equipment have become outmoded, or simply worn out.

Our higher education system has also been an integral part of the effort to sweep away centuries of racial inequality. In the 1960s, federal programs opened the doors of higher education to minority and economically disadvantaged stu-

Today, cuts in aid, rising tuitions, growing student debts, declining minority enrollments, and deteriorating public schools have reduced both access and equity in education, at the very time when new jobs and professions demand higher skills and more education than ever.

So, too, have universities played a key role in improving the quality of American life. In the past, discoveries at American universities produced dramatic improvements in our standard of living by helping us to increae food production. control pests, protect the environment, and cure or control disease. President Eisenhower and the Congress decided to address the challenge of Sputnik with the National Defense Education Act of 1958, which helped meet the national need for scientific and engineering talent.

Today, new threats to the environment, the high cost of health care, the uncertainty of energy supplies, the rise in illiteracy and the persistance of poverty threaten to erode the quality of American life, while research and study of these problems has been curtailed or in some cases. even abandoned.

American higher education has also played a role in sustaining our values and ethical standards. The campus has not been immune from these troubling developments, but colleges and universities can do much to strengthen the values and character of their students by conveying the message that ethical awareness and personal integrity are essential goals of education. Institutions can do this through the curriculum, through day-to-day administration and through encouragement of community

These challenges frame the higher education agenda for the next administration. To meet them, the next president will need to reinforce the partnership between government and the higher education community that has benefitted our educational institutions, but more importantly than severe expects in the next.

Reviving that partnership will require presi-dential leadership to educate Americans for an increasingly interdependent world, to support education and scientific research, to revitalise the economy, to reflect the national commitment to expanding educational opportunity, to foster educational activities that address human needs and the quality of life, and to rekindle the spirit of public service within our society and among our

While every presidential candidate recognises and is committed to facing these challenges, the most revealing test of their leadership is how they would propose to enlist America's colleges and universities, and bring public and private resources to bear in a larger, common enterprise.

OUR READERS WRITE Geneva's Water Supply Needs As Much Protection As The Wekiva

In response to Art Davis' letter about the Yankee Lake project (Jan. 24): Mr. Davis is livid over the proposed effluent dumping near the Wekiva River basin, as well he should be. So am I. The Wekiva River is beautiful and should certainly be protected.

However, it seems that it's quite accetable for the city of Sanford to do the very same thing out here in Geneva. As residents of Geneva, we are also concerned about a river. We are seriously concerned about the St. Johns River basin and Lake Jesup. but we have much deeper concern that few people in Sanford seem to take us seriously.

We are absolutely sick about the potential pollution of our ground water supply by this same effluent. One engineer of the highly-touted St. Petersburg project told me that there are no water wells under the St. Petersburg area and all their tap water is piped in from another county and always has been. He also said the effluent is loaded with nitrates and other chemicals that would most assuredly pollute a water supply.

American Legion Defaults School Board

I would like to take this opportunity to commend the Seminole County Superintendent of Schools, Robert Hughes, and the Seminole County School Board; however, I can think of no legitimate reason to do so.

The illogical circular reasoning expressed by Supt. Hughes, as reported in The Sanford Herald on Feb. 12. defied logic. To wit: Veterans Day does not receive communal support, activity and emphasis as does Memorial Day: ergo, Veterans Day will not be a holiday within the Seminole County School System. Additionally. and specifically noted in "School Days 1988-89" caption, Memorial Day is not to be recognized. Unless reasoning has departed, neither Supt. Hughes nor his cohorts composing the school board consider either day worthy of note.

I find it incomprehensible that these two established national days of commemoration, particularly responsible for citizens of the United

Geve Tells Holocaust Through Child's Eyes

Guns & Barbod Wire: A Child Survives the Molocaust, by Thomas Gave

(Academy Chicago, 320 pp., $12.95)

Not often have the horrors of the Holocaust been told from the viewpoint of a child, but Thomas Geve's story recounts his terrifying experiences from the time he was imprisoned in a Nazi concentration camp in June 1943 at age 13 until his liberation in April 1945.

Geve, a German Jew, spent the war years in the infamous camps of Auschwitz, Gross-Rosen and Buchenwald. scrambling daily to stay alive on bread and foul-tasting watery soup while jammed in crowded and filthy barracks.

Geve and his mother were shipped from Berlin to a town near Auschwitz after his father had fled to England in hopes of later bringing his family out of Germany. Separated from his mother and under the direction of harsh SS guards, Gevewas forced — along with thousands of other children - to perform backbreaking labor, such as brick-laying and ditch-digging.

Geve's book relates the usual stories of prison life, such as violence and homosexuality among inmates, the conning and bribing of guards and black marketeering.

While he was able to avoid the Nazi gas chambers. Geve says the "thin gray smoke" exuding from the chimneys of the nearby crematoriums was always a constant reminder of the extermination of Jews and others deemed "undestrable" by the Nazia.

Geve's writing is rather dry, considering the topic, minus the gory details in previous accounts of concentration camp life. But it does provides a unique view of that life through a child's eyes. Bob Lowry (UPI)

The theft of an Audubon "doubleelephant" folio from its resting place in a museum of doubtful authenticity in Key West brings together a truly spoiled and highly neurotic - ringleader and his gang of despicable and sometimes frightening cohorts.

There to observe the tangled plot are a failed journalist and a woman accompanying one of the thieves, who turns out to be a slumming poet searching for real life.

The book of bird paintings mingles beauty with horror. Audubon's gorgeous renderings are set against the hard-edged reality of death and decay - they include graphic details such as remains of the birds' prey - and O'Rourke reminds us that the artist killed and stuffed the specimens he painted.

O'Rourke is a smooth writer, but he fails to make these characters convincing. And there is a casualness to the events that. while perhaps intended to be a reflection. of life, has the effect of reducing their

The plot seems grotesquely improbable. its convolutions too many and the bodies strewn about are too numerous to count.

Does Granger really believe that the carefully constructed and watchfully monitored apparatus of the staunchly communist regime in Prague would for one minute allow the kind of hanky-panky that is the premise of his plot?

Does he really think an agent on the other side of the Iron Curtain would have such a terribly grammatically mangled name as Gorkeho? # Americans Healthier, But Don't Feel As Well

BOSTON (UPI) - Americans are healthier than ever before but fewer people say they feel well because of higher expectations and longer lives that lead to more chronic iliness, a Harvard psychiatrist says.

Studies show a steady decline in the nation's sense of physical well-being, with the proportion of Americans who are satisfied with their health and physical condition falling from 61 percent in the 1970s to 55 percent in the mid-1980s, said Dr. Arthur J. Barsky, a professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School.

"Our society currently devotes enormous amounts of time. money and effort to preserving our health and obtaining medi-cal care." Barsky said in an article in Wednesday's New England Journal of Medicine.

But in one sense that pursuit is proving paradoxical: The aubstantial improvements in health status have not been accompanied by improvements in the subjective feeling of healthiness and physical wellbeing. Instead people now report higher rates of disability. symptoms and general dissatis-faction with their health."

As evidence of the nation's health, Baraky cited studies that show the life expectancy of a child born in the United States in 1964 was 74.7 years - up 6.5 years from 1950.

"Modern biomedicine has enhanced our ability to predict, detect, diagnose and treat the array of diseases to which human beings are heir," he said.

Surveys found most people reported less than one serious. acute or disabling illness per year in the 1930s, but that figure more than doubled by the early 1980s, Baraky said.

While those figures would indicate that people were sicker, it's more likely that people's perceptions have changed, he

'There is a consensus that one of the salient factors is a progressive decline in our three and tolerance for mild disorders and isolated symptoms, along with a greater inclination to view uncomfortable symptoms ... as signs of disease," Baraky said.

"The standard we use for judging our health appears to have been raised, so that we are more aware of - and more disturbed by — symptoms and impairments that previously we deemed less important," he said.
Part of the problem also probably stems from advances made in the treatment of acute ill-nesses. People who previously would have died from diseases like pneumonia, tuberculosis and infections now live into old age, where they face long-term illnesses such as diabetes and arthritis, he said.

"Thus we have in effect exchanged acute, life. threatening illnesses that arise early in life for chronic and es that arise disabling ones later on," he said.

This means although people live longer, they also live more of their lives in poor health. Barsky did not offer figures to back up the statement.

Commercialisation and other factors have combined to make people much more aware of their health, he said. This is indicated by the popularity of cuercies. cating well, dieting and

People also are much more involved with the health-care than ever before, he said.
