Will Speed Of Light Crack Time Barrier?

By ANTHONY ZECCA

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Most people are familiar with speeds that crack the sound barrier. But what about cracking the time barrier?

There's a scientific theory that man may some day travel fast enough in space to "get ahead of time." Another way of saying it is that if Rip Van Winkle had spent his 30 years snoozing in a trip through space aboard a hypersonic rocket ship, he might have come back younger than he started out.

It's a little silly as it sounds. Albert Einstein, in enunciating his theory of relativity a half-century ago, explained to the handful who could understand him that time almost stands still for something that's moving fast enough.

Today, Dr. J. M. Levitt, Director of the Franklin Institute's Pals Planetarium here, says the actual proof is at hand as we have satellites in orbit to radio back the story.

Levitt, who designed the world's first "space clock" to record interplanetary time variations between the earth and Mars, has developed a new series of clocks to demonstrate how time slows down for a body as it approaches the speed of light.

For example, if a space ship can be accelerated until it attains a speed of 167,700 miles a second—about 90 per cent of the speed of light—Levitt said the traveler would age but 10 years on a trip during which the stay-at-homes on earth were aging 23 years.

Levitt explained that the closer we come to limiting speed of light—186,000 miles a second—the more time is slowed down, until at the speed of light, if such were attainable, time would stop.

The slowdown—or time dilation—is normally imperceptible, but sensitive instruments can show the effect at hypersonic speeds.

"I hope to see in the next few years," said Levitt, "a satellite carrying a precise clock which will record this dilation or slowing down of time in a human body, circling the earth at a speed of five miles per second."

This is relatively slow, but it will be enough to figure accurately that in a life span of 100 years, the inhabitants of the space station would gain one second over those remaining on earth, he said.

In the distant future, however, on jaunts to the outer reaches of the solar system, the significance would be much greater, he said, and the time gain might be space travel a sort of "clair of life."

Levitt explained that the body is much like a clock with the heart taking the place of the balance wheel. As the rocket's speed increases, he said, the heart will function more slowly, and if the body's speed increases enough, the heart will beat 70 times an hour instead of 70 times a minute.

There's no one beating a path to the space ship reservation desk to book passage for the "fountain of youth," however. The issue is not without controversy.

Medical men, while not disputing the validity of the time dilation theory, take issue with those who claim the human body can be slowed down to this point and still live.

Holland Nearing Victory In Battle Against Floods

By RONALD VAN BOREN

United Press International
AMSTERDAM (UPI)—A little Dutch storybook boy once captivated romantic hearts by courageously showing his tiny fist into a leaky dike, thereby saving his country from inundation by the North Sea.

Most Dutchmen have never heard of this fictional lad who symbolizes to the world the Lowlands' heroic battle against overwhelming odds. But the story has served to focus the world's attention on the thousand-year struggle.

Now the end of Holland's fight against floods is in sight. The most ambitious flood-control dam project in the nation's history, which would hold back any known inundations (barring a seismic wave), has been approved and funds allocated by the Dutch parliament.

This is the highly-controversial Delta Plan, expected to cost a land of 10 million people between 200 and 300 million dollars over a period of 20 to 25 years.

The system of breakwater dams would extend along some 60 miles of coastline, replace antiquated dikes and protect thousands of acres of rich wheatland situated below and at sea-level.

Southwest Holland's difficulties with the North Sea actually began several centuries before the Christian Era. They started with the sub-Atlantic transgression period when the sea-level rose and inundated the extensive peat bogs of what was then Flemish-Holland. Great channels were formed and nature divided the peat soil into islands and bars.

In approximately 1000 A. D., the population began to defend itself against the ever-pressing water. Primitive dikes were thrown up and with success. Gullies were dammed up enough to allow small amounts of water to flow through and silt up, uniting small islands into larger land masses.

Centuries later, in 1604, grasses and other underwater plants were moved from England to speed up the silting process.

But the reclamation of land below sea-level brought with it the problem of periodic floods by storm water. Dutch history is filled with chapters of catastrophic floods which have cost thousands of lives and ravaged countless acres of farmland.

The most recent storm inundation hit the islands of Zeeland in late January of 1953, taking a toll of almost 2,000 lives and turning towns and farmland into marshy salt waste.

It was then that the citizenry, the government and the Dutch engineers began to consider measures which have developed into the Delta Plan.

It will mean radical changes in the lives of the Zeelanders. The dams will be topped by roads, thereby facilitating communications between the islands and making the villages of Zeeland more accessible to Dutch metropolitan centers.

Hollywood Beauty Kim Novak Says No Prospects In Sight

By VERNON SCOTT
 UPT Hollywood Correspondent
 Novak, Hollywood's reigning beauty, is the only charmer in Hollywood without a steady fellow—and with no prospects in sight.
 She's blonde, smokey-eyed, successful and so beautiful most men are tongue-tied in her presence.
 Movie queens from Theda Bara to Marilyn Monroe zoomed through romances and marriage faster than eddies could hit the streets. Not Kim. Even her headline-making dates with Gen. Trujillo weren't romantic. And the shapely star is the first to admit it.
 "I think I've been in love in my life," Kim said introspectively, "but Ramfis wasn't the right man for me. He came close to what I want in a husband—kind, considerate and intelligent—but it wasn't love."
 Barely Dates
 Kim rarely has dates. She attends parties alone, spends much of her time in the solitude of her new home.
 "It's not a question of being mysterious," she smiled. "I believe it is better to be lonely by myself than to be lonely with someone I'm married to."
 "I want a husband and family, someone to take care of. Just think, a man to cook for and to comfort and love. But I couldn't give him just part of me. I'd want to give him all of me—my heart and soul, my mind and my body."
 Unlike her sister actresses, Kim has no driving ambition to continue her career. She recently completed "Bell, Book and Candle" at Columbia. But she would drop acting altogether if "Mr. Right" appeared.
 "Sometimes I feel like a neck lace or ring in a store window waiting for someone to take me," she added wistfully.
 No Price Tag
 "And there's no price tag. More than anything else I want to be a woman, and a woman isn't a woman without a man. I have no preconceived notions of what he'll look like or how he'll behave. But I do know if I settle for less than my dreams it would destroy me."
 Hit parts: Story being told in the Hollywood about Chien Marx, excited by headlines that his brother Zeppo was being sought in a gambling ring expose, called brother Gummio to ask where he could find Zeppo. Gummio wanted to know why. "So I can turn him in for the reward," Chien answered. Joel McCrea is the latest movie star to move to television. The long-time western star will re-produce and play the lead in "Wichita Town," a horse opera scheduled to be saddled up later this year. Fred Astaire makes his first non-dancing appearance in flicks this year when he co-stars with Gregory Peck and Ava Gardner in "On The Beach."

"Half A Leaf Is Better Than None" Does Not Apply To Tax

There's an old adage that goes like this: "Half a leaf is better than none." All well and good in some instances, but when it comes to one Seminole County problem the adage must be dumped in the garbage can.

And that's when it begins to pertain to the question of reassessment or equalization. We don't have equalization now; that we know!

And with half a leaf, or just half of Seminole County property equalized, then some of our good citizens would be discriminated against. So it comes to the blank statement that "it must all be equalized so that every citizen in the county can get a fair shake and be allowed to pay his just and proportionate share of the expense of our county government and all of the services with which we are provided.

Then it is only fair that equalization or reassessment be done by fair and impartial experts who know what they are doing — in other words, only by those who have been trained to appraise property at its real value.

It has been rumored that a move is afoot to employ several additional persons in the Office of the Seminole County Tax Assessor in an effort to appease some who might look upon such a move as a program of equalization.

It is utterly senseless to think that such a tremendous job could be done and accomplished in such a manner when it takes a firm of Florida experts a year to do the complete reappraisal of Seminole County.

This "half a leaf business" is exactly why Seminole County's tax structure is in the mess that we find it in today. In order to be fair and equitable, honest and straightforward with neighbors, experts will be required to take over and accomplish the tremendous task that is ahead. The hearings held recently before the Equalization Board brought out one fact, clear and concise. And that is this: Seminole County people (with a few selfish exceptions) are willing to pay their way even though it is a burden in many instances. But, another fact came out — one that cannot be overlooked — and that's the one where a neighbor must also pay his way too.

Equalization will be before the people of Seminole County for a long, long time. Many have found that they have been discriminated against. Those who have been discriminated against by the present conditions existing in our tax structure have been named — and every single taxpayer citizen in Seminole County wants the same break, the same treatment, the very same gentle handling of property values, as those who were pointed out as examples. And you can't blame them!

This is the time for definite steps to be taken so that every citizen might be provided with the assurance that fair, equal, and impartial treatment is forthcoming.

Those who are scheming to prevent an equalization or reassessment program by experts in Seminole County are actually depriving this community of millions of dollars — multi-millions of dollars in industry and commerce.

The golden opportunity is before us right now and every right-thinking citizen should have the privilege of participating in that opportunity to pay his just and equal share of the tax burden in our community.

We are looking forward to the outcome of the investigation now being made into the complaints filed before the Equalization Board and into the practices and procedures used in the Tax Assessor's office.

Men Who Know Farming Best

Many non-farm people undoubtedly think that practically all farmers are in favor of farm subsidies and the government's other aids to agriculture.

However, as the New York Herald Tribune observes editorially: "The men who know farming best are not nearly as keen for federal subsidies as the farm-bloc congressmen are."

This view was prompted by a poll which

Prices Up In Steel Industry

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new round of price increases is in the works in the steel industry, the smallest in recent years.

Four major steel companies — Republic Steel Corp., Jones Laughlin Steel Corp., National Steel Corp. and Armco Steel Corp. — have announced hikes of about $4.50 a ton to an average price of about $30 a ton.

The increase touched off swift reaction in Washington where the administration let it be known the steel industry might be impeding recovery from a one-year recession.

Congressional leaders called for corrective action by industry, labor and government to stabilize the economy.

The Am. an authoritative steel trade magazine, predicted that by the end of the week all steel prices — except those for tin plate that goes into cans — will have been raised. The new round marked the first time in recent years that U. S. Steel Corp., which produces nearly one out of every three tons of steel in the nation, has not been the price leader.

"Big Steel" said it was "still studying" the situation. The companies said a $4.50 per ton boost was designed to offset higher wage costs that have taken effect since the last general increase in steel prices of $6 a ton on July 1, 1957.

However, they emphasized the increase would enable them to recover less than 50 per cent of the higher wage costs. They said they must absorb the balance.

The increase originally had been expected July 1 when steelworkers were given an additional 20 cents an hour under a three-year union contract. Another six cents an hour has been given in cost of living benefits since the last price boost. However, U. S. Steel, to which the other companies looked for the initiative, issued a statement saying it would not change prices until all economic and commercial factors clarified themselves.

GOP Candidates Given Impressive Material

By RAYMOND LAHR
 United Press International
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite Democratic talk of an Eisenhower-Nixon recession, Republican candidates are being supplied with rose-tinted material to convince the American voter that he never had it so good.

Some of the statistics look impressive. But they would be even more so if they did not ignore or play down the fact that unemployment is still running above five million.

A memo from the Senate Republican policy committee this week tells GOP Senate candidates that more Americans are working, earning more, producing more, buying more and enjoying a higher standard of living than in 1952, the last year of the Truman administration.

Similar material on the economic situation is going out from the Republican National Committee.

Income Held Up

The average income for a family of four is listed at $7,050 this year, up a round thousand dollars from 1952. The average weekly wage of factory workers is put at $83.10, compared with $67.97 six years ago.

In over's figures, employment in June 1958 is shown at 65 million, an increase of four million since 1952. Total personal income is put at an annual rate of almost 352 billion dollars in June, compared with 278 billion in 1952.

Total outlay for personal consumption are listed at $98 billion, on the basis of the annual rate last spring, compared with 220 billion in 1952.

The memorandum also asserts that federal spending for the fiscal year ended June 30 has been cut below President Truman's last budget. It ignores the fact that the budget for the new fiscal

Khrushchev's New Type Offensive

By E. C. THALES
 United Press International
 LONDON (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has launched a new type diplomatic offensive to win back the initiative lost by his backing-out of the summit, diplomatic sources said today.

On the eve of the United Nations General Assembly emergency session on the Middle East, he has embarked on an unprecedented all-out "vote-for-Khrushchev" campaign among small Western U.N. nations.

The essence of the new propaganda offensive is "lobbying by diplomatic note," its purpose to disrupt and undermine Western alliances, in the view of Soviet affairs experts today.

Khrushchev, personally credited with the new strategy, was held desperately anxious to obtain the widest possible support in the United Nations against the U.S. and British Middle Eastern policies.

Battle For Survival

Soviet experts believed the Soviet leader was fighting a battle for survival.

The opening shot of the Soviet diplomatic offensive came last week with the dispatch of a new-type note to the Greek government urging it bluntly to support Soviet policy in the Middle East against Anglo-American aggression.

Almost immediately afterwards, Moscow dispatched a similar letter to Stockholm as king the neutral Sweden for backing.

More notes of a similar nature were believed in preparation in the Kremlin's diplomatic workshop.

In the past, Moscow has sent notes of intimidation to smaller nations on the eve of major military developments in the West.

It had been Khrushchev's strategy to threaten smaller NATO nations on the eve of a NATO council meeting, or to warn members of the Baghdad and SEATO alli-

Pouches Under Eyes Have Various Causes

By NORMAN M. BUNDSMAN, M. D.
 BEAM age and heredity, like quite another. Frequently not disappreciated, for those bags under your eyes.

Primarily, puffing under the eyes is due to aging. The skin of the eyelids, you see, is delicate, and is attached loosely to the underlying muscle and fibrous tissue.

With the passage of years, these underlying structures weaken, permitting the lower lid to fall in folds. Fat then forces its way through the weakened muscles and fills out the folds of skin. And there you have the "bags" which give comedians so much material for jokes.

May Be Inherited

Most physicians agree that predisposition toward this particular type of condition can be inherited. In some cases this apparently is responsible for premature formation of pouches which occur among fairly young individuals.

Naturally, these bags are disappearing to a certain extent and figuring in a certain amount of cosmetic can hide those blemishes.

Electrical Purchases Computed In Trillions

NEW YORK (UPI)—American will buy one and a quarter trillion dollars worth of electrical equipment ranging from light bulbs to turbines in the next 20 years, Chairman Ralph J. Cordner of General Electric Co. predicted today.

He said that would be four times the total amount of such equipment sold in the last 80 years.

The industry also will produce and sell approximately half a trillion dollars worth of electricity in the next 20 years, five times more than it produced in the past 80 years, he added.

Cordner said the reasons for his optimism are the expected sharp increase in new family formations, the growing population, and the fact that population is trending toward "super-cities" which will open new residential and industrial markets.

He described a "super-city" as one where the suburbs of neighboring cities spread out and overlap into continuous urban areas.

"Such optimism about the industry's prospects may seem a strange paradox in the face of current headlines about the recession," Cordner added. "Yet we represent achievable goals."
