Mother shoots drug-crazed son

NEW YORK - A Queens woman who refused to give in to her crack-crazed son's demands for money grabbed a .22-caliber revolver and shot the 30-year-old man in the chest after he allegedly threatened her life, police said Satur-

Officers arrived late Friday to find Catherine Papadakos near hysteria and weeping at the kitchen table as her son lay bleeding on the living room floor.

Clocks move ahead one hour

WASHINGTON - If you missed Sunday's church services or the start of your child's Little League game, it could be you forgot to move your clock ahead one hour to comply with Daylight

Savings Time. The time change, man-dated under the 1967 Un-iform Time Act, requires Americans to move their clocks and watches forward by one hour at 2 a.m. on the first Sunday in April. The net result is an hour of lost sleep.

But, that "lost hour" will reappear on the last Sunday in October when the nation returns to Standard Time and just about the time most people get used to late sunsets and after-work barbeques.

President Reagan moved up the start of daylight savings time July 8, 1986, to the first Sunday in April. It previously began the last Sunday in April. The new law took effect in

Martinez: No new taxes

SANFORD - Finding creative, acceptable ways of paying for the growth of Florida's population will be the major task facing lawmakers when the 1989 Florida Legislature convenes Tuesday, Sanford-area representatives

Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, and Sen. Bud Gardner, D-Titusville, said in this year when there are "Read my lips" assurances by Gov. Bob Martinez to not approve any tax increases, it will be difficult to find new sources of money to pay the increasing costs of

Secret about Pirates is out

SEATTLE - Let the word go forth: Seton Hall is a secret no longer in college basketball.

The Pirates obliterated any doubt Saturday about its legitimacy as a basketball power, defeating Duke 95-78 and drawing within one victory of an NCAA championship.

The Pirates, competing in their first Final Four, rallied from an 18-point first-half deficit in outplaying one of the nation's most poised and experienced teams

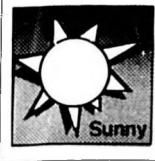

Seton Ball has long labored in the shadow of Big East powers Georgetown and Syracuse and entered the national semifinals with many still doubting the Pirates' success this season. The team from South Orange, N.J., outlasted the Hoyas and Orangemen, both of whom lost in the regional finals.

Warm weather brings thoughts of love to cold-blooded reptiles

From staff and wire reports

SANFORD — Florida's unusually warm winter has produced unusual vigor among the alligators in Lake Monroe, the St. Johns River and elsewhere around the state, and may improve their love life, a University of Florida expert says.

The mild winter may cause alligators to begin courtship a couple of weeks early this year," biologist Kent Vlict said, "Air and especially water tempera-tures in late winter and early spring affect the timing of courtship and reproduction.

Thousands of alligators are coming out of their winter mudholes in the banks of Florida lakes and rivers to bask in the sun. Alligators stop eating from December until late March because as cold-blooded creatures they don't need to generate energy to maintain body temperatures. Vliet said.

In 1987, the Florida Game Commission estimated about 700 alligators were living in Lake Monroe, according to Mike Jennings of the commission alligator research center in Gainesville.

The warm weather won't mean a population boom. he said, only that the animals will be more visibly active. The alligator population in a given lake usually doesn't change much from year to year. Jennings said.

Whale of a joke has Navy fuming

KEY WEST — The Navy, the Coast Guard and the Florida Marine Patrol were taken in by an April Fool's prank that had hundreds of islanders and tourists scanning Key West Harbor for a passing pod of whales.

Radio talk show host George Murphy launched the prank on WKIZ's "Good Morning Key West" program. The show was interrupted by calls from three charter boat captains, who were

They reported that 35 whales were circling the southern coast of the island, then pretended to track the animals, calling in regular updates on the animals' position.

Fearing the whales were lost and could become stranded, the Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Patrol sent boats to check out the sighting.

Crowds gathered at Key West Harbor and the White Street Pier, hoping to glimpse the spectacle. People sat on seawalls, scanning the harbor with binoculars.

"We sat out there like jerkies waiting to see the whales," said Julia Pischke. But it was a fabulous joke. I love to be had," Pischke said.

The Navy was less amused.

"I didn't think it was very funny," said Navy Cmdr. Tom Ligon, who orderd three patrol boats to investigate. "A lot of people mobilized and tried to contribute to this humanitarian effort that wasn't required. They were taken away from their regular work."

Governor starts new oyster project

ST. GEORGE ISLAND — Gov. Bob Martinez waded into Apalachicola Bay and planted about 35,000 baby oysters in an experiment he predicted would permanently change the economy of one of Florida's poorest regions.

Martinez put on rubber boots and waded almost knee-deep into Rattlesnake Cove on Friday to place about 35,000 tiny baby oysters, called spat, into a rubber mesh bag, one of hundreds that will be anchored beneath the water and monitored by Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institute.

"You know, there is no better oyster name in this country than Apalachicola," Martinez said.

Dr. David Vaughn, director of the project, told Martinez that under natural conditions, only one or two baby oysters out of every million produced grow into three-inch oysters, legal for harvesting. Pollution, weather, shifting silt and living predators kill the rest, he said.

It remained unclear whether Trump's purchase of the shuttle would make it easier or harder to sell the rest of the airline.

Executive retires during investigation

TARPON SPRINGS - The administrator of AMI Anclote Maffor Hospital has resigned during a criminal investigation into allegations of abuse and mistreatment of its psychiatric patients.

Joseph A. Baird Jr., 58, who had been administrator for three years, said he had planned to leave since January, before recent investigations at Anclote by the Pinellas-Pasco State's Attorney's Office and the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Baird accepted a job in January as an analyst for a hospital architectural firm in Montgomery; Ala. He will receive full retirement benefits from Anclote's owner, American Medical International Inc.

Richardson clemency hearing delayed

TALLAHASSEE - Gov. Bob Martinez has issued an executive order delaying a clemency hearing for a man convicted of poisoning members of his family 21 years ago so a trial court can hear new evidence in the case.

Martinez delayed the clemency hearing for James Richardson, 68, to give State Attorney Janet Reno an opportunity to present information she has gathered about Richardson's conviction to a circuit trial court.

"A clemency hearing wouldn't determine whether Mr. Richardson's conviction was the result of a fair trial," Martinez said. "A trial court can make that determination and I believe that is the best place to determine whether justice has prevailed in this case."

deputies Dale Wagner, Pete Kelting, A.J. Collazo, David Commodario, Sgt. John Negri, and family friend Bill Poe, bore his flaged-draped, silver metal casket to its final resting place. Honorary palibearers and youth deputies Greg Ashworth and David Morganstein also were part of that group.

Thomas received several formal salutes from fellow officers, and Taps was played.

The eight-man honor guard of Thomas' department gave him a final, 21-gun salute and dispatcher Sharon Ballou requested over the police radio system a minute of silence and prayer for Thomas.

Then she announced for the final time that Thomas, "Delta 15." and officer number 117, was 10-7, out of service.

Wagner, who was Thomas' mentor and a school resource officer who led him into the department, said after the burial that the service was perfect. As perfect as Thomas might have ordered.

And Thomas, his friends said. was well versed in the type of funeral service a police officer should have: flawless ceremony. honor and respect.

They said Thomas would have been especially pleased by the presence of about 70 motorcycle officers and about 700 marked police cars that led his funeral procession. His own car, unit 205, was part of the procession with its blue emergency light bar draped in black.

Thomas was a member of the department's honor guard during the last two years and was an official representative to funerals of police officers. "He would go to funerals on his own time, because he believed the guys deserved respect," Wagner

Kelting remembered that Thomas would share his impressions of each funeral with some of his fellow deputies. "He would bring certain things back from each. He would talk about how the funeral was, the number of cars, what the unforms were like. He would trade patches (police uniform patches) at funerals," Kelting said. "He would talk about the honor guards. How perfect a certain honor guards' uniform was. Which was the most perfect." deputy Eric Bryant said.

Wagner, who said Thomas was like a son to him, knew in advance it would be tough to be one of his pallbearers. "I know Hugh would do it for me. I have to do it for Hugh." But, he said, "It's really hard."

There had been a bit of last-minute panic when it seem Thursday that Thomas' funeral might have been mared by a tiny flaw.

No white gloves for the honor guard could be found at the department. Thomas the perfectionist had taken them all home to wash in preparation for their next use. New gloves were bought.

Saying goodbye to Thomas was hard for all who cared for him. During the funeral service at the Church of the Nativity in Lake Mary, Seminole County Sheriff John Polk, who remembered Thomas as one of the youngest deputies he ever hired at age 19, broke into sobs when eulogizing him.

As an example of Thomas' willingness to help. Polk told of him assisting an 81-year-old woman who was trying to climb a ladder to rescue her cat from her roof.

recited a poem for Thomas: 'Now he'll patrol the road in the sky. It's a terrible shame he had to die. He was doing the job he wanted to do. By doing that job he was protecting you.

Thomas' brother Stacy remembered "All he wanted to do as long as I can remember, he wanted to be a police officer. He gave up his life for somebody he didn't know. He would help anybody. The Rev. Father William

Sue Negri, left, fiance Lisa Ellenberg, and Billy Lee.

Dep. Dale Wagner, leaning, adjusts flag on casket.

Polk became tearful as he Gohring, in conducting the mass for Thomas, recognized him as a peacemaker and a young man who shared his personal good-

"He was good with people. His service to others always reflected goodness. His goodness came to him from God.

Gohring likened Thomas to Jesus by saying that, like Jesus Christ, "He gave his life so others might live and might be at peace. At the close of the graveside ceremony Polk presented the American flag, which had draped Thomas' coffin, to his mother Sissy Thomas. Thomas was buried holding a photograph of Lisa Ellenburg, who was to become his bride on Oct. 21.

Thomas is rembered as a hero because he died at the hands of an armed man who is believed to have wanted to harm his own wife and family before Thomas walked into the gunman's line of fire. The gunman committed suicide after slaving Thomas.

Nothing goes right for bungling burglar

LARGO - Nothing went right for burglary suspect Robert Elliott Burgess from the moment he dropped through the ceiling fan into the Double R bar to the moment police apprehended him snoozing among the loot.

Police are calling it "Bobby Burgess' Bungled Booze Bur-

"It's hilarious. It's unbelievable," said Dennis Crandall, Largo police spokesman. "This guy couldn't do anything right."

Burgess broke into the bar around 4 a.m. Friday with plans to take whatever valuables he could find inside, he told investigators after his arrest.

What he found was a wellstocked bar, eigarettes and a coin-operated pool table.

So the 26-year-old Clearwater man stacked several cases of beer on the bar, filled a plastic trash can with 40 to 50 bottles of whiskey, stuffed a garbage bag full of eigarettes, and broke nearly every pool cue in the bar breaking into the coin box on the pool table, said Largo Detective Mike Short.

With the loot gathered, it was time for the getaway.

"Unbeknownst to him, however, the back door had a double-bolt lock," the detective sald, "You can't get out without a key."

Burgess apparently couldn't climb back out through the exhaust fan, and was trapped.

He apparently decided to make the best of the situation and prepared himself a pizza. Just how is a mystery, because the bar owner says he doesn't serve pizza. He also tossed down a few shots of Jim Beam, he later told

"I didn't ask him how he expected to make off with all that stuff," Short said. "He didn't have a car."

About 7 a.m., Burgess heard keys jingling outside and jumped behind the door as the owner. 71-year-old Rudy Rodriguez, came in, Short said.

"The suspect's pockets were bulging with change, and when the door awung open, it hit the pocketful of quarters," Short

Burgess, cowering behind the door, was sure the clanking noise had given him away. But Rodriguez overlooked the noise and walked into the har.

Burgess decided to abandon the booze, settle for the $200 in change and make his getaway on foot, Short said.

He ran out the door that Rodriguez had opened and made his getaway. But an anonymous tipster led police to a mobile home across town where Burgess had holed

"When we got there, he was snoozing away on a rug on the living room floor," Short said.

"He was probably dreaming about all those quarters." On the floor near his head, Burgess had neatly stacked 746 quarters $186.50 worth, four to

Students inspire anti-drug bill

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald staff writer

Sen. Bud Gardner, D. Titusville, says a new bill is inspired by fifth and sixth graders from Gardendale Elementary School in Merrit Island.

Adrienne Henzmann, an aide to Gardner - who represents Seminole County, said several students approached Gardner several months ago with concerns about drug-dealing in the neighborhood surrounding their school.

In January, Gardner met with the students, teachers and parents at the school to hear their suggestions.

Henzmann said, Gardner will introduce a anti-drug bill during the upcoming state legislative session that will include three ideas from the students. They include setting higher minimum sentencing levels for dealers, a driver's license suspension for children caught using drugs or alcohol and elimination of bonding opportunities for arrested

The state attorney's office decided last week not to file any charges against her in connection with a Longwood robbery last year which resulted in the deaths of two people.

However, her husband, Arthur Douglas Mosteller, who pleaded no contest to charges of murder last month, will be sentenced tomorrow.

Mosteller and Clive Mitto, 24, of Deltona, approached the home of retired Brig. Gen Wilbur McNenny in Longwood March 2, 1988, prosecutors said. Mitto pretended to be delivering a pizza and pulled a gun on McNenny, who closed the door.

Mitto was shot twice through the door and McNenny, 76, returned fire with a .32 caliber handgun.

Mitto was hit by three of McNenny's shots and his body was found in his car the next day. McNenny died of his injuries two mouths later.

MIAMI - Scores of antiabortion protesters who blocked the entrance of an abortion clinic and refused to leave were arrested Saturday, bringing to more than 220 the number of protesters arrested in two days of demonstrations in south

Police used hospital gurneys to carry the protesters to buses that brought the anti-abortionists to the Orange Bowl, where they were booked on suspicion of trespassing and refusing to obey police officer, said Lizette J. Williams, spokeswoman for Metro-Dade County police. More than 140 protesters who sat in front of the clinic were arrested. About 80 police officers, in-cluding those who directed traffic, eight buses and one police helicopter, which hovered above the protest, were at the de-

Delay favored in gun purchases, survey shows

From staff and wire reports

TALLAHASSEE - A new Florida State University study shows 88 percent of state residents surveyed favor a waiting period before guns can be purchased, with most support-ing a week's delay.

"Among those supporting the waiting period, the largest sup-port goes to the seven-day wait-ing period, with 73 percent of the adult Floridians favoring this option," said Suzanne Parker, director of FSU's survey research laboratory.

Parker also said the survey showed that among those who would not support a waiting period for gun purchases, 50 percent probably would vote against an elected representative who voted for such a measure.

Another 43 percent said they would not consider such a vote a reason to withdraw their support but was pleased to hear the

from their local legislator. In Seminole County, county commissioners refused to adopt a so-called cooling off period as has been done in neighboring counties. However, several city commissions in the county

State official says big insurance changes due

Inited Press International

MIAMI — State Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher says lawmakers need to con-sider a catastrophic health plan for small businesses and more protection for members of financially troubled health maintenance organizations.

"There is growing evidence that the ability of Americans, of Fioridians, to obtain even basic health care is in dire jeopardy," Gallagher said in a speech to the Latin Builders' Association.

He said more than 20,000 Florida residents have had their health insurance policies canceled in the first quarter of 1989 and that state officials and lawmakers "must work to continue the availability of health insurance to cover costs of unavoidable tilness and injury."

Gallagher told the builders

it was Cubana working in Tampa cigar factories nearly 90 years ago who organized the first health maintenance organizations by organizing the "Centro Asturiano Club" and charging members a small fee to take care of medical problems.

He said the rapid increase in the number of HMOs in Florida this decade has produced severe health coverage problems because many of the organizations are not on sound financial footing. Callagher said he wants tougher legislation to protect HMO members from figuress! responsibility if their organization falls.

He also said he wants legis-lation that would enable small businesses to offer catastrophic health insu to employees, something many cannot do now because

Callagher also recommended improving the mancial status of the state Comprehensive Health Association, which provides insurance for people who cannot get it elsewhere.

Gallagher also said he wanted to see a greater emphasis on "wellness" education in Florida and that he would talk with Education

He said "one of the great ways that we can cut the cost of health care and health care insurance is not to get siel or injured."

1990s look promising for Florida neighbor

United Press International

ATHENS, Ga. - Although Georgia has been outdistanced economically in the past two years by other Florida and other southern states, the next decade promises a return to robust growth and expansion, a business educator said Friday.

Albert Niemi, dean of the University of Georgia's College of Business Administration, said the two-year slowdown in the state's economy has been caused by short-term problems that can be corrected.

'All conditions suggest that Georgia again will be a growth leader in the decade of the '90s." he said.

Niemi's remarks were based on a study that will appear in the April issue of Georgia Trend magazine.

Niemi cited several factors for the diminished growth in 1987 and 1988, particularly layoffs at both Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. in Atlanta and cutbacks at the Lockheed Corp. in Marietta.

Reduced activity in the textile and apparel industries as well as overconstruction of residential and commercial property. mostly in Atlanta, also contributed to the slackened growth, he said. Despite the two-year economic lag. Nicini projected the state would recover on the strength of record per capita income, a low jobless rate and continued migration to Georgia.

Georgia led the South in economic growth during the period 1982-86, before the two-year slowdown struck the state's economy. North Carolina, Tennessee and Florida - the states that surpassed Georgia economically in the past two years - will continue to exhibit strong economic performance in the 1990s, Niemi said.

Florida will lead the 12-state region into the next decade, based on an increasing population and strengthening tourism industry, Niemi said. Although increasing demands on service industries is the force behind the growth. Florida's industrial sector also has enlarged substantially.

North Carolina's boom also is the result of joint expansion in manufacturing and service industries, ne said. At 3.8 percent, the state's unemployment rate is the lowest in the Southeast, and the number of new manufacturing jobs created in the state in the 1980s ranks third in the nation.

Tennessee entered a relative slowdown in the second half of 1988, but the state should weather the decline by developing a more diverse economy. Niemi said. Nashville, with an improved airport, is a developing business center and will lead Tennessee's expansion, he said.

Niemi predicted further economic declines in West Virginia and Louisiana.

CDBG dollars from the federal government this year.

Last year, Balagia said the county received $1.59 million. but Sanford and Winter Springs have since dropped out of the program, making the county eligible for less CDBG entitlement dollars.

The purpose of the trip was to review streets in low-income neighborhoods that need paving and drainage and sidewalks. along with one neighborhood that needs good drinking water and a parking lot for the Casselberry Senior Center. What Kelley and several of the tour participants saw was the poor condition of many of the areas. '

In Bookertown, west of Interstate 4 near the Port of Sanford, nearly every block had what county officials said are illegal junkyards or piles of garbage in people's yards and in vacant lots. Several houses were surrounded by rusting washing machines, stacks of boards and building materials.

Jean Metts, a member of the CDBG committee and the county Code Enforcement Board, said county efforts to enforce no-junk laws in the area have been unsuccessful.

Metts, who lives near Bookertown, said the county should arrange to have a dump truck stationed in Bookertown for several days so residents can clean up the area. Kelley said a similar clean-up program is being planned for Midway and endorsed the idea for Bookertown.

The county and residents want to pave three dirt streets in Bookertown for about $409,000. During the tour, the bus rounded a corner and splashed through two large puddles on a month. Midway resident and CDBG committee member Jackie Johnson commented 'It's crazy to pave the streets when you haven't done anything about drainage." In nearby Lockhart's subdivision west of Sanford, a small pile of wood and other rubbish, overgrown with weeds stood near the Mount Sinai Missionary Baptist Church on Jerry Avenue. "So close to that church," Johnson remarked as the bus passed.

In contrast to the poor neighborhoods of mostly black residents was the Casselberry Senior Center. The Seniors for a Better Community group is seeking $255,000 for a parking lot at the center to provide more parking and better access to the center. The center is on Lake maintained in the 1980s lead to Triplet Drive, a road lined with large lakefront homes.

Largely as the result of the efforts of former commissioner Barbara Christensen, the county structure and develop the site gave the center $100,000 in into a park, Kelley said CDBG or gave the center $100,000 in CDBG funds last year to expand the building from the current used to refurbish the building. 5,280 square feet to nearly 10.000 square feet. The addi- the costs of restoring the buildtional parking is needed to ing.

Bookertown street paved last accommodate the enlarged space, center officials said.

One project not on the list but visited by the group was the Midway Community Center. Built in 1978 for nearly $100,000 with federal funds, the building has been derelict since 1984. Johnson said the structure is now used as a 'crack house" for drug users. One window has been shot out and the plumbing fixtures has been broken.

Johnson said the original agreement between the county and Midway residents was the residents would pay the annual insurance, maintenance and utility costs for the structure in return for its construction. Johnson said the center was actively used for several years, but problems in keeping it Its decline.

U.N. launches famine relief effort

United Press International

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) - United Nations officials kicked off Africa's most ambitious relief project without fanfare Saturday, setting in motion a plan to move 100,000 tons of food and supplies to famine-threatened southern Sudan.

A first 60-truck convoy was set to depart from the Sudanese capital, Khartoum, later in the day with 1,000 tons of food bound for besieged government garrisons where hundreds of thousands of people are trapped by the nation's 5-year-old civil

UNICEF executive director James Grant, mastermind of the plan, was to supervise the departure of a second convoy Monday from U.N. headquarters in Natrobi, headed for rebel-held towns and villages across southern Sudan.

U.N. officials estimate a quarter-million people died in Sudan last year because of the the war and say another 100,000 could starve in 1989 without the massive assistance program, which should move more food in less time than was achieved even during the 1984-85 famine in Ethlopia.

The government and the rebels of the Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA) both have promised free passage to the U.N.-flagged convoys.

ables in the spring. One variable is warmer weather, he said. Another is a longer light cycle.

Barden said alligators seem to said. be more abundant in warmer weather because people and animals are more active. "When midday temperatures get to about 80 degrees, that's a real comfortable temperature for the animals," he said. "Then people are getting out and about more and animals are getting out and about more."

No increase in alligator breeding activity has been noted at the zoo, Barden said.

Normally, alligators build their nests at the beginning of the wet season in June and the eggs hatch at the peak of the wet season in late August or September.

'Warm weather like we've had this year increases the chances of alligators nesting before the rain begins," he said. "If this happens, gators might, place their nests too close to the water and then as the water rises during the wet season, the nest floods and the eggs drown.'

One advantage of early nesting, though, is that it gives baby changing vari. alligators a better chance of surviving the cold winter

> If this year's warm winter is followed by an unusually cold spring as happened in 1982 and 1983, courtship isn't likely to be delayed, but would occur with less ardor. Fewer alligators courted during those years and those that did were less vigorous, he sald.

> "We don't really understand the interplay of alligator behavior and how they perceive the weather, but it obviously is very important to these animals," Vitet said.

People aren't likely to see alligators mate earlier than their usual courting season, which begins in the second week of April. "Typically, alligators are shy when it comes to doing anything social," he said. "So people never really see them interacting."

Lake dwellers, however, have a greater chance of hearing the reclusive reptiles, who mark because they have a longer courtship with frequent, deepgrowth period in the fall, he roaring bellows "Bellowing by one animal stimulates others to bellow, producing a chorus like roosters crowing at dawn,"

> Unlike other reptiles, alligators have fairly broad and complex behaviors associated with mating. "Courtship in alligators is a slow, languid process of pairs of animals coming together and nudging, pushing and pressing along the face, head and neck of one another," he said. 'Alligators will spend as much as several hours in a quiet spot just seeing and touching one

As courtable intensifies, gators will try to force each other underwater as a test of strength. "That's an important aspect of an alligator's decision whether or not to continue courtship and actually go ahead and mate,' Viict said.

, system," said Jacobsen, who noted the reports are not public record but used only to enforce insurance requirements. Beginning Oct. 1, the current requirement for $10,000 personal injury protection (PIP) will be increased to also include $10,000 in property damage liability coverage.

Insurance companies are also required to notify policyholders in writing that a cancellation or nonrenewal will be reported to the state and that fallure to have the mandated insurance could result in license plate seizure.

The increased requirements result from a high percentage of uninsured drivers in Florida, and Insurance Commissioner Bill 'Gunter before he left office.

Quoting from a recent state "report, Florida Insurance News ¹¹Service spokesman Sam Miller said up to 65 percent of the drivers in Dade County are . driving without insurance.

"That's why their rates are two or three times higher than "those in the rest of the state," Miller said. "The noncompliance grate is as low as nine percent in some north Florida counties. hThe overall state average is 35 percent."

a But enforcement of the new astandards could be delayed. Miller said the insurance industry is pushing a "glitch" bill that answers some of the questions raised by the new insurance requirements.

The new law is not specific whether the new requirements must be in place as of Oct. 1 or if they are to apply to policies sold after that date. Some companies have included automatic coverage and premium increases in their policies now being sold. Miller said. Some legislators are also talking about delaying the new insurance requirements for another year to allow for more atudy, but Miller indicated chances of that happening are

"Right now (the new requirements) are still the law, so everyone's gearing up for it," he sald.

Once a car's license is seized by police, Jacobsen said, the fee for reinstatement is now $150. That's up from only $15 before July 1 of last year. Beginning Oct. 1, police agencies that seize license plates will get a $50 rebate for each case, providing more reason to watch out for uninsured cars.

"I'm sure it's an incentive," Jacobsen said.

instructions led to the discovery of the eighth victim of an apparent serial killer.

The body of a young woman was discovered Friday along Route 68 in Westport, nine months after Bristol County investigators first began finding the bodies of women from the New Bedford area dumped alongside the region's highways.

Bristol County District Attorney Ronald Pina said his office received an anonymous letter two weeks ago from a person who said he might have witnessed one of the killings and predicting a body would be found along Route 68.

"The person who sent the letter said they had information and had seen what they believed to be a person who may have been doing these killings," Pina said. "I don't know if that is accurate, but what they did say is if we found a body on (Route) 68 then that would confirm their story."

"The letter was explicit," Pina said.
"We have never had a body on Route 88 before in these cases," he said. "It sounded very good but it didn't fit. Now it fits, and the person said if it fit, they would come forward."

"We have reason to believe, because of public comments by Northwest, that they are going take a hard-line attitude to any suitor," said Karl Cambronne, a lawyer representing the stockholders.

'The shareholders have a right to have the value of their stock maximized, and to the extent of the hard-nosed attitude expressed by Northwest ... that is inconsistent with their obligation to the shareholders."

Under the suit, if Northwest is successful in stopping a takeover, the shareholders would seek damages to be determined by the court. But if a sale goes through and the shareholders get a fair value, no damages would be sought, Cambronne said.

He said the stockholders owned a "few hundred to maybe 1,000 shares" each. "These people are the little folks," he said.

MCorp seeks Chapter 11 protection

DALLAS — MCorp. the Texas bank holding company stripped of 20 of its 25 banks by federal regulators, has filed suit against the government agencies on grounds that 10 to 14 of the banks seized were not insolvent.

The lawsuit, filed Friday against the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., added another twist to the already complicated case that may not be resolved for months and could cost the government

"The company asserts that 10 to 14 of those banks were not in fact insolvent." MCorp said in its lawsuit, which seeks $70 million that MCorp said it lost when the comptroller declared

MCorp. which was Texas' second-largest bankholding company until its collapse, also filed a motion Friday in federal bankruptcy court in New York to convert an involuntary Chapter 7 liquidation proceeding filed against it into a Chapter II petition.

U.S. oli prices fall on Merc.

U.S. oil prices fell in hectic late trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange based on an erroneous report that deliveries of Alaska oil, delayed by last week's spill from the tanker Exxon Valdes, would soon return to normal.

West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude for immediate delivery, dropped Friday 62 cents to $20.19 a barrel on the Merc, wiping out a 61-cent gain Thursday that took WTI to a 19-month high of $20.51 a barrel.

Unleaded gasoline rose 2.12 cents Friday to 64.31 cents a gallon, the highest closing price on the Merc since Jan. 27. 1986. It hit a high of 68.90 cents a gallon in early trading before falling back.

Panie buying, based on fears gas shortages would result from a continued delay in deliveries of Alaska oil from the port of Valdez, initially drove gas prices up. WTI followed.

Prices later nosedived on unconfirmed reports that normal deliveries would soon resume. But the Coast Guard said in Washington that it would be aometime next week at the earliest before deliveries could return to normal.

Family of five killed in crash

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. - A light plane that crashed onto a tennis court and exploded may have experienced trouble with an oil line before alamming to the ground, killing a Canadian family of five, the pilot's brother said Saturday.

The twin-engine, six-seat Piper Aerostar PA-60 crashed onto the court at the Newport Beach Tennis Club shortly after taking off from John Wayne Airport Friday morning.

All five aboard were killed. They were identified as Anthony

R. Deis, 34, who was piloting the craft; his wife, Marilyn A. Deis, 34, and their three daughters, Amanda, 10; Jaclyn 7, and

The family lived in Camrose, about 50 miles southeast of Edmonton.

Deis' brother, Tom, a police officer in Medicine Hat, Alberta, said Newport Beach police told him the plane was serviced earlier in the week at one of the airport's repair shops after developing an oil line problem. He said he believed that investigators with the U.S. National Transportation Safety

tion Department would look at the oil line problem as a possible cause of the accident. Jeff Rich, the chief NTSB investigator in the crash, could not be reached Saturday.

A witness to the crash told authorities the plane was "sputtering" before crashing onto the court, narrowly missing a tennis instructor and two students.

"It looks like he made quite a sacrifice," Tom Deis said of his brother in a telephone interview

Saturday from his home. According to witnesses at the straight down in an apparent attempt to miss the tennis clubhouse, where at least 125 people were eating breakfast or exercising.

No one was hurt on the ground.

Bernie Mitton, the tennis instructor, who was treated for shock at a hospital but otherwise escaped injury, said one of his students shouted, "There's a plane comingi"

"I started to run into a corner, but it seemed like the plane just kept following me," Mitton said.

In a letter to Sullivan this week, Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Orin Hatch, R-Utah, said HHS had allocated only $10 million of the $15 million in funds that Congress authorized for the AZT program.

"Without swift action by the administration, lifesaving treatments will be abruptly terminated for thousands of people with AIDS," warned the senators, reflecting the senti-ments of many AIDS activists.

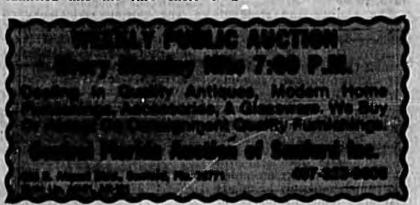

The plan covers low-income patients without private health insurance or those who do not qualify for Medicaid assistance. It also helps patients who live in states where Medicaid does not cover such drug costs.

The $5 million that Sullivan funneled into the AZT effort Friday was diverted from other government AIDS programs. such as prevention and research.

Robert Bray, a spokesman for the Human Rights Campaign Fund, said he and other AIDS activists would have preferred the $5 million to come from programs other than AIDS efforts.

But Bray added: "We believe the financial crisis faced by so many people with AIDS is urgent enough to warrant such measures."

Kennedy commended the Bush administration for "recognizing the urgency of the situation and moving so quickly to avert a gap in this lifesaving program."

Gorbachev, Castro talks could be tense

United Press International

HAVANA, Cuba - Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's visit to Cuba Sunday will ostensibly reaffirm Cuba's importance in the communist world, but behind the scenes, it may prove to be a battle of will and ideology.

Relations between the Soviet Union and Cuba, its closest ally in the Third World, have undergone subtle but significant changes in the past three years.

It is no secret that the reception Gorbachev will receive Sunday will be less exuberant than the one Leonid Brezhnev received 15 years ago, even though many Cubans profess sincere

"We have been waiting for this visit," said

Raquel Candebat, a 30-year-old physician. "It is important for a leader to come and visit a country with whom he and his people have such close relations.

The "close relations" primarily have been based on $5 billion in Soviet annual aid and subsidies - 51 percent of all Soviet aid to developing countries. This has kept the Cuban economy affoat for most of the 30 years that Castro has been in power. In return, the Soviets gained a small foothold in a geostrategic area only 90 miles from the United States.

But so far, Cuba's revolutionary experiment has been a costly one for the Soviets with virtually no return in terms of sustained Cuban economic growth.

Wilkins: I received payments

ATLANTA - In a four-year-old sworn statement, Atlanta Hawks star Dominique Wilkins said he and his mother received nearly $30,000 in secret payments from a sports agent when he played for the University of Georgia, the Atlanta Journal Constitution reported Saturday.

In the same testimony recently obtained by the newspaper, Wilkins said he signed an agent contract with Jack Manton, which he knew made him ineligible for play at the school under National Collegiate Athletic Association

Wilkins left the Uni versity of Georgia in 1982.

"There was another thing that I had algued in college that would have made me ineligible, but It was like a secret thing between me, Manton and Coach Hugh Durham," Willdins testified.

Over 200 free agents switch

NEW YORK - More than 200 NFL free agents switched teams in the past two months under a new system that management hails as a success and union officials claim is an example of unfair treatment of profootball players.

On Feb. 1, 619 NFL players became unconditional free agents under a system implemented by the owners over the union's objection. As of 3 p.m. EST Saturday — nine hours before the deadline for clubs to sign unprotected free agents from other teams — 213 free agents had switched teams.

The Green Bay Packers were the busiest team, signing 20 free agents. The Kansas City Chiefs were next with 15. Only Chicago and Cincinnati failed to sign any free agents, and all 28 clubs lost unprotected players. Fifteen players were signed from the Houston Otler' unprotected list, Kansas City lost 13 and Atlanta and the New York Jets lost 12 each.

The player who benefitted most was quarterback Gary Hogeboom, who was left unprotected by the Indianapolis Colts.

Bodine wins Country Squire 200

.DARLINGTON, S.C. - A quick restart by Geoff Bodine after the final caution period in the Country Squire 200 Saturday at Darlington Raceway helped him win his first NASCAR Busch Series race this year.

The last caution period began on lap 143 of the 147-lap race at the 1.366-mile track when Billy Standridge hit the fourth-turn wall. For three laps, the race remained under yellow. Then, on lap 146, the event returned to green with Bodine leading, Mark Martin second and Harry Gant third.

Bodine jumped out ahead of the field on the restart and held on without difficulty for a 0.37-second victory over Martin in a Ford. By placing second, Martin gave the Ford V-6 Its highest finish since it made its debut in the Busch Series.

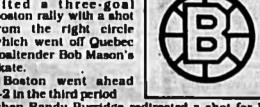

Third went to Gant in a Buick. Phil Parsons took fourth and Rick Wilson finished fifth, both in Oldsmobiles.

Rams go flat against 'Cats

By TONY DeSORMIER Herald sports editor

ORLANDO — It's been a long week for everyone and, on Friday, it showed. The Lake Mary Rams, playing their fourth baseball game in as many days, gave a listless performance while losing to the Winter Park Wildcats 6-1.

Played at Orlando-Colonial High School's Epperson Field as part of the 10th annual Colonial Classic, the game decided fifth and sixth place. But afterward, Lake Mary coach Allen Tuttle didn't appear concerned.

"We were flat the whole ball game," he agreed.
"The guys may have been a little tired.

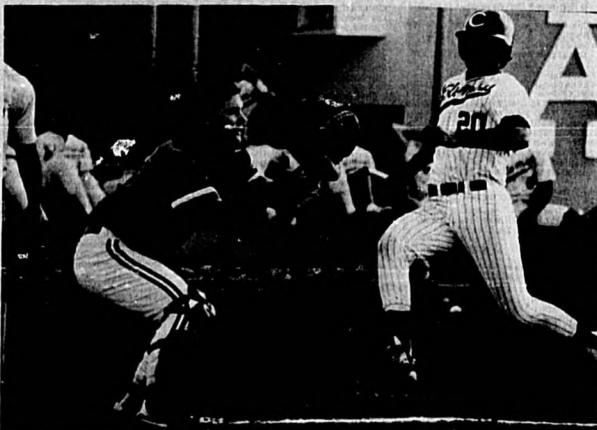

"We got four ball games in, that's the main thing. And I think we played really well all week up until today."

One consolation for Tuttle and the Rams is that they probably won't have to go through such a grueling schedule again this season. There's a possibility that the road to a district champion-ship may include four games, but that's still a month away.

For now, though, the Rams will try to build on the experience gained in the tournament and improve on their 12-7 mark, 5-2 in the Seminole Athletic Conference.

Freak accident takes out Muster

United Press International

MIAMI - Thomas Muster, who was to play Ivan Lendi Sunday in the finals of the Lipton International Players Championships, suffered torn ligaments in his left knee in a freak automobile accident and will be sidelined between six and nine months, officials said Saturday.

Muster, who upset Yannick Noah of France in a five-set match Friday night, was injured at a Miami shopping mail where he had stopped to get a sandwich on the way back to his hotel. He was standing behind a rental car, getting a bag out of the trunk, when another vehicle slammed into the car.

The car Muster had been riding in was destroyed. There was no information immediately available on the driver of the car that caused the accident, although tournament chairman Butch Buchholz acknowledged there was a rumor the driver was intoxicated.

Muster, the seventh seed at Lipton and the 14th ranked player in the world, tore the medial collateral and anterior cruciate ligaments in his left knee, said tournament physician Dr. Charles Virgin, formerly the team physician for the Miami Dolphins football team.

Muster had upset Noah 5-7, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2 in the semifinals.

Muster was in stable condition at Mercy Hospital. He also suffered a deep thigh bruise and other scrapes and bruises, none of which were severe, Virgin said.

Surgery will not be performed for at least five also scraped the skin off Muster's leg at the point where it would be cut in surgery. Muster, 21, of Austria, will return home to have the surgery, Virgin said.

"This is a fairly severe injury for a tennis player," Virgin said. "He has extensive 'road rash,' areas where the skin has been torn off. In this circumstance, it is best to delay (surgery) because of the potential infection."

In place of the final between Lendl and Muster, Lendl and Jakob Hlasek will play an exhibition match Sunday. Hlasek, who was eliminated in a five-set quarterfinal match by Noah, is ranked ninth in the world.

Lendl and Hlasek will play a best two-out-ofthree sets match. The women's doubles final will begin at 1:30 p.m., followed by a wheelchair tennis exhibition. The Hlasek-Lendl match will start at 4 p.m.

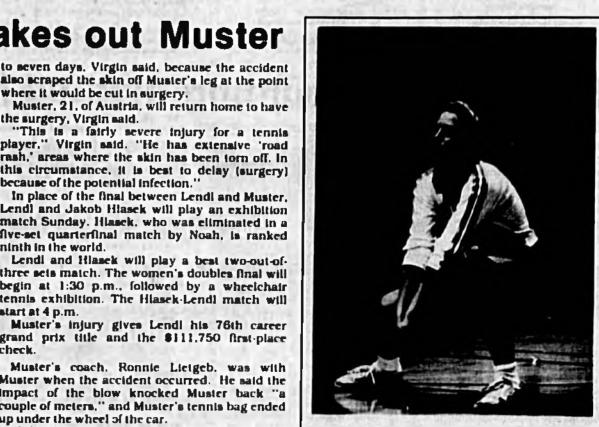

Muster's injury gives Lendi his 76th career grand prix title and the $111,750 first-place

Muster's coach. Ronnie Lietgeb, was with Muster when the accident occurred. He said the impact of the blow knocked Muster back "a couple of meters," and Muster's tennis bag ended up under the wheel of the car.

'I think he was very, very lucky," Lietgeb said of Muster. "I know he's really a big fighter. I know from the medical side, if he can do it with the knee, he'll return to the top 10."

Virgin said there was a "reasonable chance he'll be back at full recovery."

method has its pros New engine mounting outboards suspended from a Bracket drive is becoming increasingly popular on many of-fahore boats. This alternative method of mounting an out-board offers several distinct advantages, the obvious advan-tage of which is that it elimi-nates the need for a transom cut-out to hand the motor.

Those of us who spend a lot of time on the high seas are all too familiar with the scenerio of taking seas over the transom cut-out.

The noise level is also reduced a great deal because the outboard is mounted outside of the boat. Your throat will not be sore at the end of the day because you will not have to speak several octaves higher to talk about the noise of the engine.

One big advantage of bracket drive is the space gained by the outside mount. Many boats even have motor wells with transom mounts and these water retainers eat up a great deal of fishing room.

People who sell bracket mounts claim that outboards mounted by brackets gain additional propulsion because the prop blades get a better "bite" in the undistrurbed water. Bracket manufacturers claim that this results in more speed at in-creased rpm's and better fuel

The outboard can also be mounted higher on the transom because the prop meets the water back at the swell that rises up behind the hull.

Now that we have looked at the advantages, what are the disadvantages?

One of the primary complaints is that anglers find it difficult to fight a fish out of the back of a boat with bracket drive. The outboard extends so far back that it is almost impossible to pass the rod around the back of the motor if a fish is running off the stern.

Another primary gripe is that bracket drive are more succeptable to being smothered by a following sea. Waterproof baffling and improved cowlings on the newer outboards have largely eliminated this problem. Is the bracket drive for you?

Maybe not, but it certainly deserves some consideration as a viable alternative for mounting your outboard. Shupe's sceep Pay careful attention to the caulk that you use whenever you drill holes below the waterline on your boat. Purchase a quality cault that specifies below-thewaterline use on the label. Pishing forecast

Fishing is good around the bridge at state read 46 and in Pussie Lake area. Dropping water levels in Pussies have out in the main river challen and it is like shooting ducks in a barrel.

Bridge Pish Camp reports that action is hot around the new bridge with specks and catfish. Grass sheimp and missouri minnows are the two top baits.

Steve Gard at the Osteen

Bass are scattered, but fish run-offs and the points for action. Fish are holding in these areas waiting or an easy meal.

Snook are steadily improving at Sebastian Inlet with rising water temperatures. This should be a good month for some huge linesides. A few flounder and redfish are also being caught. Captain Jack at Port

Canaveral reports that the water has been dirty effshire and that catches are limited. A few cobia are being caught in buoy line and down the beach on scattered manta rays, but this is a feast or famine situation. Inside the Port, hundreds of chopper blues are being caught. Sheepshead are also providing steady action. Trout and redfish are rated as tood in the Banana and Indian

Action has been good around the New Smyrns jettles for drum, sheepshead, and bluefish. The north side of the north jetties is a good place to fish because it is out of the strong currents. Sheepshead are also biting strong around the many channel markers and bridge pilings back in the river.

Heisman winner Sanders decides to enter NFL draft

United Press International

DENVER - Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders said Saturday he wants to enter the NFL draft to case his family's financial problems, and his attorney said he will sue if the league refuses to let Sanders play.

As a junior at Oklahoma State with NCAA eligibility remaining. Sanders must receive a special exemption from NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle to enter the league.

Sanders, a record-breaking running back at OSU, told a news conference he spent the past three months in "intense discussions with my parents and coach (Pat) Jones" and decided "it is my best interest to renounce my last year of school and enter the NFL."

"My decision was based, in part, on the financial hardships facing my family," he said. "I financial pressures. If my family had said to stay in school and we had $500,000 in the bank, the decision might have been different.

Sanders said Jones was "very supportive" of his decision, and had written a letter to the NFL supporting the exemption.

Sanders said a 3-year probation levied on OSU for recruiting violations also was a factor in his decision. And he said media attention generated by winning the Heisman Trophy had made it 'virtually impossible to study.'

Attorneys for Sanders have prepared a petition asking that he be made eligible for the NFL's April 23 draft. David Ware, an Atlanta attorney representing Sanders, said he "asked the NFL to respond by Monday, and I fully expect to hear from them by Monday."

The NFL rarely lets underclassmen into the draft, but it will likely admit Sanders based on his caliber as a player and Oklahoma State's probationary status. The league also would probably want to avoid a lawsuit challenging its rule against admitting underclassmen.

Ware said the NFL rule is "legally indefensible." He said college athletes in other sports are allowed to turn pro "anytime they want."

"I hope that Mr. Rozelle allows Barry to make the same decision he (Rozelle) made by quitting to help his family." Ware said, referring to Rozelle's decision to leave the commissioner's job. "But if he says no, we are prepared to Sanders said his brother Byron, an All-America player at Northwestern, was the first to suggest that he leave college and turn pro.

"I started praying about it and talked to my father about it," Sanders said. "At first, he wanted me to stay in school. But later he told me I could go back to school anytime.

"I'm a business student, and I had to look at it from a business point of view," Sanders said.
"But I have the intention of going back someday and getting at least a bachelor's degree in business administration."

The NFL will review Sanders' application and Rozelle is expected to make a decision before the draft. Ware said it is not his intention to force Sanders' eligibility in the April draft.

"If they want to hold some sort of supplemental draft later on, that's fine," Ware said. "At this point, all we are concerned about is an NFL decision making him eligible to play pro football."

Sanders, from Wichita, Kan., set 18 NCAA records last year and topped 300 rushing yards in a game on three occasions. Among those NCAA records were 2,533 yards and 39 touchdowns.

18-point first-half deficit in outplaying one of the nation's most polsed and experienced teams.

Seton Hall has long labored in the shadow of Big East powers Georgetown and Syracuse and entered the national semifinals with many still doubting the Pirates' success this season. The team from South Orange, N.J., outlasted the Hoyas and Orangemen, both of whom lost in the regional finals.

"This is a very special group of guys." Pirates Coach P.J. Carlesimo said. "They are un-selfish and genuinely believe if they keep working hard we will win.

Andrew Gaze, an Australian and two-time Olympian, scored 20 points and made all 6 of his shots in the second half, including 4 3-pointers. Darryll Walker added 19 points and Gerald Greene 17 with 8 assists.

The Pirates, who have won their five tournament games by an average of 13.2 points. advanced to Monday night's title game against Michigan or Illinois, the Big Ten rivals who met in the later semilinal.

Seton Hall's principal concern was Danny Ferry. The All-American forward finished with 34 points and 10 rebounds, but had only 13 points after halftime with the Pirates in control.

Seton Hall capitalized on the thigh injury to Duke forward Robert Brickey early in the game. With Brickey out, the game. With Briefly offensive burden fell to Ferry.

"We came out very well and had a lot of momentum," Ferry said. "Then we lost track of what we were doing and things started falling apart."

Christian Lactiner and Phil Henderson scored 13 points each for the No. 7 Blue Devils, 28-8. For No. 11 Seton Hall, which remains unbeaten outside the Big East, John Morton had 13 points and Ramon Ramos 12

'Sugar Game' decides women's champions

United Press International

TACOMA. Wash. - For the Auburn Lady Tigers, the Final Four weekend represents an opportunity to clean up all loose ends. At the Tacoma Dome Friday night, Auburn avenged a heartbreaking loss to Louisiana Tech in last year's title game with a 76-71 victory in the national semifinal.

The Tigers, 32-1, Sunday play Southeastern Conference rival Tennessee, the team that handed them their only loss this season. Auburn can also win its first NCAA women's champion-

"Am I looking forward to playing Tennessee again?" Auburn Coach Joe Clampi said, repeating a question to him. "No."

The Lady Volunteers improved to 34-2 with a 77-65 victory over Maryland in Friday's other semifinal. They ended the Tigers' 28 game win-ning streak March 8 with a 66-51 triumph in the SEC Tournament final at Albany, Ga.

In that game, Bridgette Gordon scored 25 points, Shella Frost added 11 points and 10 rebounds and the Vols forced 23 turnovers and limited Auburn to 29.6 percent shooting.

They contolled the game with their defense," Clampi said.

However, the Tigers earlier defeated Tenr rasee 67-59 before a state record crowd of 7,150 at Auburn. Vickie Orr and Carolyn Jones each had 18 points for the

"We're even: this is the sugar game." said Tennessee Coach Pat Summitt, whose team is seeking its second NCAA title in three years. "And if you can't get motivated playing in a national championship game you don't belong."

Both teams showed Friday night that they belong in Sunday's 4:10 p.m. EDT title contest. The centers, in particular, played extremely well.

Orr, a 6-foot-3 senior, scored 18 points on 6-of-9 shooting. Reserve Linda Godby, at 6-6 the tallest player in the Final Four. contributed 10 of her 12 points in the second half.

Summitt said the Vols must contain Orr if they hope to conclude their season with a 17-game winning streak.

'(Against Maryland post player Vicky Bullett), we de-fended the bounce pass fairly well," Summitt said. "Whether we can do that with Vickie Orr is hard to say. She is a great center."

"They pound it inside very aggressively." Maryland Coach Chris Weller said after the game.

communication and a second and a

Power has shifted in American League from east to west

Suddenly, any evidence of American League East superiority is vanishing.

Not only has the West champion won the playoffs three of the last four years, but problems in New York, Boston and Detroit may weaken the East even further.

The 1985 Kansas City Royals and the 1987
Minnesota Twins won the World Series. Oakland ran away with the division last year, then swept Boston in the playoffs before running into the pitching-rich Los Angeles Dodgers. Overall, the West came within four victories (295-291) of the East in inter-divisional play.

"We won 91 games last year," Minnesota reliever Jeff Reardon noted, "which would have won the East. Yet we finished 15 games out."

From 1976 through '84, the East ruled the league. Only one West team (Kansas City) managed to represent the league in the World Series, even though four East clubs --- New York, Baltimore, Detroit and Milwaukee -- were sharing pennants. The East's big reputation has been slow to expire, but events suggest the West could enjoy similar succes

Boston lost left-hander Bruce Hurst to San Diego and is trying to deal controversy-plagued third baseman Wade Boggs. The Yankees have traded Jack Clark, lost Claudell Washington to free agency, and are hoping Dave Winfield recovers from back trouble soon. Detroit seems to have grown old, though manager Sparky Anderson laughs at those who see the Tigers as a second-division club.

By contrast, Oakland bolstered its pitching staff with right-hander Mike Moore.

Here is a closer look at the AL, with clubs listed in predicted order of finish:

West Division

Minnesota replaced righty Bert Blyleven with lefty Shane Rawley and added second baseman Wally Backman. The Twins have an excellent bullpen in Kelth Atherton.

Juan Berenguer, Reardon and possibly lefty Gary Wayne. The starters behind Frank Viola are competent with help available in the minors.

Dave Parker will get another opportunity to prove he's not over the hill. And remember he's hitting between Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire. Like the Twins, the A's receive too little credit for their de

Dodger championship defense will again depend on pitching

VERO BEACH - Even in this age of deflated batting averages and inflated egos, one baseball axiom still applies.

Pitching is king.
Sure, Kirk Gibson won the National League's
Most Valuable Player Award and Mike Marshall and Steve Sax contributed their share of clutch hits last year, but Tommy Lasorda's Dodgers ruled with pitching. The kind of day-in, day-out pitching that kept L.A. in virtually every game en route to a 94-87 mark. The kind of pitching that limited mighty Oakland to a .177 batting average in five World Series games.

The names change every few years, but the Dodgers always seem to vie for the NL lead in team ERA. Cy Young Award winner Orel Hershiser is back to outsmart the opposition while Tim Leary and Tim Belcher return to overpower hitters. Fernando Valenzuela is slowly recovering from arm problems and another left-hander, John Tudor, may not make it back from arm surgery.

"I have to say we can win our division again because Tommy would scream at me if I didn't," says Herahiser, "Realistically, it will be difficult. So many things broke right for us last season and you wonder if that can happen again."

Gibbon. who has the added protection of newcomer Eddie Murray in the lineup, is still hobbling from knee and hamstring injuries. Sax has been replaced at second base by Willie Randolph, an improvement over Sax in the field. But he nit just .230 for the Yankees in '88.

Here is a closer look at the NL, with clubs listed in predicted order of finish.

West Division

Ban Francisco Roger Craig's pitching staff was devastated by injuries last year, but San Francisco's bid for a second straight West title was derailed primarily by offensive inconsistency. Leadoff hitter Brett Butler and All-Star Will Clark were the only solid contributors as cleanup hitter Candy Maldonado drove in just 68 runs after consecutive 85-RBI seasons. Big years by Maldonado and third base project Matt Williams would help, but hard-throwing reliever Scott Garrelts remains one of baseball's great enigmas.

San Diego
With the acquisition of slugger Jack Clark and lefthander Bruce Hurst, the Padres are the pre-season darlings of the pundits. Manager Jack McKeon is still trying to swing deals to address weaknesses at third base and the outfield. Shortstop also could be a weak link if 33-year-old Carry Templeton continues his steady decline.

Los Angeles

The Dodger bullpen is overloaded with right-handers and, if Valenzuela struggles, there will be considerable pressure on young Ramon Martinez. Lasorda will miss Sax's aggressiveness on the bases and there are holes throughout the lineup.

After four straight secondplace finishes, Cincinnati is desperate to move up. The starting pitching is strong, led by 23-game winner Danny Jackson and future star Jose Rijo. John Franco is the league's premier reliever and Cincinnati boasts Impressive young talent in Eric Davis, Kai Daniels and Barry Larkin. Manager Pete Rose's relationship with management was strained even before the probe into his gambling habits.

This declining team has stockpiled veteran starters in the wake of Nolan Ryan's departure, but pitching hasn't been the problem since the division championship season of 1986. First baseman Glenn

Russ Nixon tries to bring the Braves back to respectability and the quickest path may be trading All-Star Dale Murphy. Infielders Ron Gant and Gerald Perry are talented hitters. Young arms belonging to put the Braves over the 60-win mark. East Division

The only NL team with a better record than the Dodgers was the only club with a better ERA — the Mets. Davey Johnson's East champions are so loaded on the hill that super prospect Dave West can't find a spot. The 6-foot-6 left-hander has returned to Tidewater, where he posted a 12-4 mark and 1.80 ERA last acason. The Metil, sciking their third division title in four years, must guard against bickering and the aging bats of Gary Carter and Keith Hernandes.

The Pirates boast some of baseball's best young talent in Barry Bonds, Jose Lind and Bobby Bonilla, while Andy Van Slyke and catcher Mike LaValliere enter their prime. Add a decent starting rotation and an outstanding bullpen tandem in Jim Gott and Jeff Robinson and you see why Manager Jim Leyland is smiling.

Given the Cardinals' pen-chant for following a bad season with a good one, 1969 should be pleasant for Whitey Herzog. With Pedro Guerrero and Tom Brunansky aboard for the entire year, the lineup may actually scare somebody for a change. Todd Worrell is a superb closer and Jose DeLeon and

Joe Magrane are quality starters. Danny Cox is out for the season with a bad elbow. Montreal Despite their low profile, the Expos can be a factor in the NL East race. Armed with a

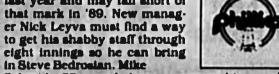

With Pascual Perez trying to dig out from drug rehabilitation, Rodgers needs a young arm to step forward. Randy Johnson, a 6-foot-10 lefty, could be that man.

Chicago The Cubs plod along with a solid lineup and a pitching staff that couldn't make the Mets' squad in Triple A. Manager Don Zimmer is still waiting for shortstop Shawon Dunston to justify his early fense. Kansas City (1984-85) is the only division team to repeat in this decade.

Kansas City will try to rush some pitchers to the majors, as it did in 1984 when Bret Saberhagen, Mark Gubicza and Danny Jackson came up. The Royals hope Steve Farr can be their closer. If not, some youngater such as Luis Aquino, Tom Gordon, Aguedo Vasquez or Hector Wagner may get a shot. Having Bob Boone to catch won't hurt. Texas

Nolan Ryan, 42, joins a staff that includes 41-year-old Charlie Hough, possibly yielding the oldest 1-2 pitching punch in baseball history. Rafael Palmeiro may help beefed-up Ruben Sierra and

Pete Incaviglia produce more runs but the Rangers still have holes. Like who is going to pitch the ninth?

California

Blyleven pitched hurt last year and could help the Angela, who were active between seasons by signing Lance Parrish and Claudell Washington. If pitching holds up, the Angels could be back in the hunt for third, which would keep new manager Doug Rader employed. A lot depends on Wally Joyner's bat.

Chicago
New manager Jeff Torborg has Melido Perez to lead a staff of young pitchers. Bobby Thigpen is emerging as a quality stopper. But the White Sox are weak at second and third and need a replacement for catcher Carlton Fisk. Ron Kittle should help with his power. This team does not catch the ball.

Two of the weirdest offseason moves took place when the Mariners signed reliever Tom Niedenfuer and outfielder Jeffrey Leonard to two-year contracts when nobody else made them an offer. Mike Moore's departure should weaken the staff, and Mark Langaton may be dealt in the heat of the pennant race.

The Blue Jays may have the deepest relief staff in baseball with Tom Henke, Duane Ward and David Wells. Fred McGriff could become a star at first and the Blue Jays should have lefty Jimmy Key all season.

Bob Brenly was signed to back up catcher Ernic Whitt and elsewhere. Detroit

A roster full of winning players makes the Tigers tougher than they look on paper. But it may not be enough to finish first, especially if Alan Trammell has another season of injuries.

Fred Lynn replaces Darrell Evans as a solid left-handed bat. Jeff Robinson may supplant Jack Morris as the staff ace.

Shortstop Gary Sheffield looms as a Rookle of the Year candidate. If Ted Higuera can come back from back surgery at the start of spring training. his left arm could propel the Brewers past everyone. This team has top to bottom pitching, but must avoid injuries to get over the nice-try syndrome.

Boston

Joe Morgan is going through his first spring as major-league manager. The Red Sox helped the builpen with Rob Murphy but switched Todd Benzinger for Nick Essaky at first. The unreliable Dennis Boyd is crucial to the rotation. Veteran Jim Rice looks good at the plate and the team should score some

New York has new manager Dallas Green but old pitching problems. A trade netted Mel Hall as a replacement for Dave Winfield. But a pitching rotation of Andy Hawkins, Richard Dotson and Dave LaPoint scares no one. Lance McCullers and Dale Mohorcic figure to get plenty of innings.

Cleveland Manager Doc Edwards' rotation is Greg Swindell, John Farrell, Tom Candiotti, Bud Black and Rich Yett. But middle relief is missing, as is a shortstop. Dave Clark may replace Hall in the outfield.

Center selder Oddibe McDowell and second baseman Jerry Browne came in a trade with Texas for Julio Franco.

Juan Bell wasn't ready to push Cal Ripken Jr. over to third so Craig Worthington will get another shot there. Sorting out candidates to re-place Eddie Murray at first were a big priority for Manager

Frank Robinson. Phil Bradley will be a new face in the outfield. Watch for young arms.

Prado broke the most strike outs in a game with 15 against Dr. Phillips. most strike outs in the tourney with 27, more than doubling the old mark and tying the most innings pitched with 14.

The Explorers gave Prado all he would need early as they came up with three runs in the bottom of the first inning. Luigi Hernandez led off the game, played in a strong wind blowing from left to right field, and reached on an error by the Oviedo right fielder allowing him to reach second.

Tony Prieto followed with a walk before Alex Miranda and Emie Yaroshuk connected on back to back singles to bring in a pair of runs. Prado then helped his own cause by lifting a sacrifice fly to right field that John Hernandez made a nice catch on to help the Lions get out of the inning.

Miami picked up another run in the bottom of the second when Tony Meilan led off with a walk and moved to second on a passed ball. Hernandez then dropped down sacrifice bunt to move Meilan to third before he scored on a wild pitch by Gregg

Oviedo came up with its single run in the top of the third with John Knutson leading off with a walk, moving to second on a passed ball. Mike Verne was then hit by a pitch, forcing him to leave the game, with B.J. Calapa coming into to take his place.

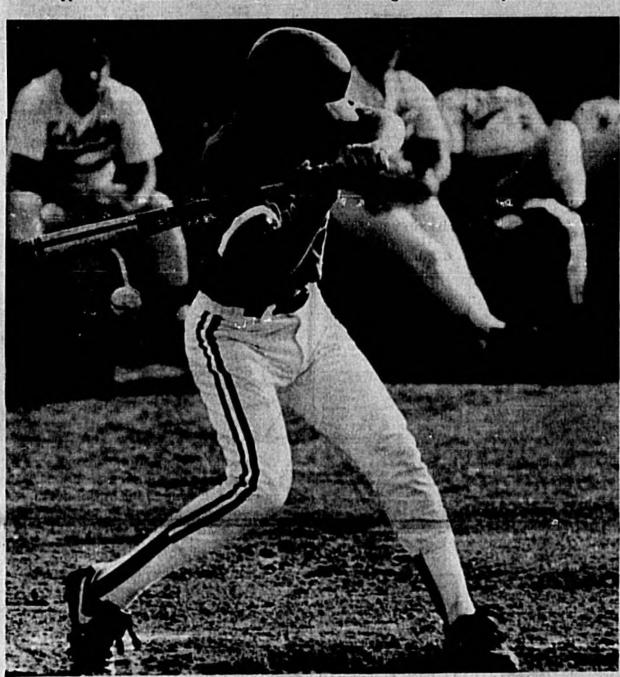

Calapa was anxious and nearly went on the first pitch with the Explorer catcher, Miranda gunning the ball down to first to get the first out of the inning. A throwing error by Miranda, though, that went to second on the next pitch allowed Knutson to score and trim the lead to 4-1.

Micah Kinnaird then came into pitch for Twiggs and shut down the strong Miami offense until the fifth inning when it came up with its final three runs of the game.

After an out Prado singled followed by a Jeff Suarez single that placed runners on first and second. Rick Menendez then reached on a beautiful bunt to load the bases.

Kinnaird managed to get the second out before an error allowed one run score and a batter was hit by a pitch before a passed ball allowed the final two runs of the game that increased the lead to 7-1.

"I'm real happy with our performance in this tournament," Ferrell said. "The other three teams in the semifinals were all top ranked teams in class 4A. We're in 3A and won't have to worry about seeing teams of that for quite a while."

Oviedo's efforts in the third place game of the Apopka Invitational weren't aided any when second baseman Mike Verne was hit by a pitch and left the game. The Lions ended up losing to Miami Columbus by a 7-1 score.

Lake Mary—

On Friday. Lake Mary fell victim to an outstanding pitching performance by Winter Park's Willy Daunic and a strong wind that blew constantly from opening pitch to final out. And the Rams played into the trap! hitting eight balls into the air that went for outs.

"You can't hit the ball in the air on a day like today," said Tuttle.

But for six innings against Daunic, that's about all the Rams could do. After centerfielder Aaron latarola opened the game with a single, the next 12 Lake Mary hitters were retired in order.

Greg James snapped the streak with a lead-off single in the fifth, but Daunic came back and recorded outs on six of the next seven batters he faced.

Finally, in the seventh inning, the Rams stirred. Derek Wolfe, who was named the Lake Mary most valuable player for the tournament, opened with a double, took third on a ground out and scored on Birle's single.

Designated hitter Danny Hendricks followed with a two-out double, but it was too little too

Legion of merit awarded

SANFORD — Commander Stephen I. Johnson of the United States Navy has been presented the Legion of Merit from the President of the United States.

Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy W. Johnson of Gulfport, Miss., and the nephew of Judge and Mrs. Harold F. Johnson of Sanford.

Johnson was cited for "exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service as commanding officer, USS City of Corpus Christi" from 1986 to 1988.

Among the crew's achievements were significant contributions to submarine research and development through a torpedo test program and winning the Submarine Squadron TWO Battle Efficiency "E" two years in a row.

Watering place hot spot for humans

By DAVINA BURCH Herald correspondent

LONGWOOD - Perhaps it was the natural spring in Longwood that Ponce de Leon had in mind on his trek through Florida in search of the Imaginary Fountain of Youth. Located Just off of U.S Highway 17-92, Longwood's spring is certainly no recent discovery. Nathan Winsteab with the Department of Transportation in Tallahassee recalls visiting it as far back as 1952. Neither is this a well-kept secret. As long as there is daylight, cars are pulling off the road. People climb out to fill their trunkload's worth of empty Jugs with the pure, free water. It sure is better than Lake Mary water," said Stanley Borak of Lake Mary, who went on to say that he could store the spring water for six months and never see any sediment settle in it. Recently from New Jersey, Mary and Nick Kuchanewski agreed that the water had to be better than the water at their Lake Mary home.

Although it was the Kuchanewskis' first visit to the spring, they trust that they will no longer have to buy bottled water. Passing the spot several times and seeing people milling around sparked their curiosity enough for them to investigate further.

People come from as far away as Daytona sometimes, and there can get to be quite a mob here on Saturdays and Sundays," said Steve Cunck, an Orlando resident who has been filling up at the watering hole for about 10 years.

The water has a sulfur taste, but these amateur bottlers suggest letting the water sit in a container for a day. This, they say, will rid it of the unusual taste and smell.

Quarterly, health department officials go to the spring and take samples. The samples are sent to a state laboratory where testing is done to ensure the safety of the water for human consumption. For the many years tests have been conducted, Public Health has not reported any problems.

Currently, the land from which the spring erupts is owned by Overstreet Investors Co.

However, Colleen Logan, from the Seminole County Services Department, stated that the Florida's Department of Natural Resources is in the process of closing on a deal to purchase the area. The acquisition will include Spring Hammock in its entire 1,500 acres.

The intent of the state is to acquire the land for See Water, Page 3C

Larilyn Swanson, new director of the county's Retired Senior Volunteer Program, has a mind to get things done.

New RSVP director already thinking big

By DORIS DIETRICH Herald columnist

SANFORD - Larilyn Swanson is a dreamer-and a doer who gets things done.

The new director of the Seminole County Retired Senior Volunteer Program gave up teaching after just a year to take on the challenge of volunteerism, which she says she "fust loves."

Swanson took over the command of the Sanfordbased RSVP program March 20. replacing Joan Madison Hansen, who held the position for nearly 10 years. Hansen left the area to February to join her new husband, Barry, in-Palm Beach.

In just two short weeks. Swanson already has established several goals, including to enhance the role of the RSVP Board of Directors in relation to the management of the organization; to expand the number of volunteers being reached, and to increase the sources of funding

For the time being, though, her target is transportation.

We are in dire need of a Swanson said, "Our van." newest one has 100,000 miles

"In order to get more volunteers, we need to transport more peopple. Transporting volunteers is the real heart of our organization it makes volunteering possible. Swanson said, explaining that many of the volunteers no longer drive while others have no means of transportation.

Calling herself a real "Florida Cracker," Swanson. of Casselberry, was born 44. See Director, Page 2C

Three musketeers: All for one camp

CASSELBERRY - Hard work. low pay, self-sacrifice and deprivation are factors experienced by every camp counselor at Easter Scals' Camp Challenge near Sorrento. The mystery is why Eddie Hanna, Lis Rice and Ken-Fruch have kept coming back to be counselors.

"It's like the Peace Corps: the hardest job you'll ever love," Fruch tried to explain.

The three comrades, who share a condominium in Casselberry, have a dogged love for the camp reserved for disabled children and adults. Hanna has worked there as a camp counselor for 11 summers. Fruch for eight summers and Rice for three

As summer counselors, they got $50 a week besides room and board. Yet they kept reworking their work schedules each year so they could spend another three- to four-month, non-stopstint as a camp counselor.

Hanna is looking forward to helping at Easter Seals' Hog Roast in May and softball tournament in late April, two fund-raisers that benefit the

This weekend. Rice is helping out at a sports camp, featuring Juniny Johnson, a nationally known wheelchair athlete. The camp is helping disabled people learn wheelchair tennis and wheelchair basketball

But it is the summer camp counseling semonty of Hanna. Rice and Fruch that most impresses their peers.

Many campers need "total care" rounselors must feed. shower, dress and move them Many more don't have control over their bowel and bladder functions. Hanna said and counselors must clean after them days at a time, and being on call 24 hours a day. Hanna lost his share of sleep.

But for all the pains of their counseling, Hanna, Rice and Fruch are hooked.

"It helps you to focus on other people than yourself. You're not the center of attention," Rice said of the camp.

"At home, they're totally ignored except for their basic needs," added Frueh about the campers. "At camp, everything revolves around them."

Hanna agreed. "In the regular world, you're just a little bit different than everybody else. At camp, people don't gawk at you and there aren't things that you can't do.

Hanna's mild case of spina bifida and years as a camper at Camp Challenge gives him a unique perspective on counseling, said Jesse Shuman, the camp's former director.

Described as sharp and intelligent. Hanna worked his way up to becoming Shuman's year-round assistant.

Rice was eventually a unit leader at the camp, with 10 staff members under her supervisionsaid Shana Stearn, the new director at Camp Challenge.

Lis is incredibly dedicated to working for the welfare of the campers and having fun with them," Steam said. "She knows the campers very well and has a special intuition for how to help campers with their individual needs.

Frueh became camp program director, and for good reason, Shuman said

One year, a camping session had ended for a "total care" camper with cerebral palsy. The camper's parents had arranged for him to fly home to Pittsburg that Friday. When staff members took him to the airport, the atrline wouldn't accept him due to his needing total care. Shuman said

The parents were furious. because that had supposedly been worked out with the airline. It was determined that someone would have to accompany the middle-aged camper, caring for hum on the flight

Though it was one of the precious lew weekends that counselors got off. Fruch volum teered to fly with the camper to Pittsburg and back alone. That was despitte a six-hour layover and no extra pay. Shuman said.

Campers may have crutches. canes, wheelchairs, braces, artificial limbs, autism or mentai relardation. But they have the time of their lives, enjoying swimming camplifes arts and crafts, nature, sports, boating, fishing, movie nights and seavenger hunts

It's really like getting together with a bunch of friends. Many of the people are my age.

Floridians Call a Halt to Abuse

Every four minutes of every day a complaint of abuse, neglect or exploitation of children, adults with disabilities or the elderly is reported to the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Now, HRS uses a new, state-ofthe-art computerized system that centralizes and standardizes reports called in from across the state to one, toll-free hotline-1-800-96-ABUSE—to handle these complaints.

The Florida Protective Services System is a coordinated statewide network for reporting and investigating abuse. Additional HRS investigators and social workers have been hired. There are new procedures in place. An automated tracking system guides investigators in completing critical steps throughout their investigations.

Help will arrive when needed. Dial 1-800-96-ABUSE whenever you suspect abuse, neglect or exploitation involving children, adults with disabilities or the elderly. As a professional, you are mandated by law to report abuse by calling the abuse hotline and to follow up the call in writing within 48 hours.

While HRS has made halting abuse, neglect and exploitation a top priority, it's everyone's job. Please help those who cannot protect themselves by calling a halt to abuse, neglect and exploitation.

A "This is Your Life" sequence was narrated by Wilson's former students Charles Long of Daytona Beach, Tracy Gordon, Beverly Barksdale, Dr. James Adams and Rusty Warren.

Wilson's hometown name is "Button," from when he attended Goldsboro Elementary. At Crooms Academy, he was a member of the Crooms Marching Band. He graduated from Florida A&M University, Tallahassee, began his teaching career at Jones in 1950, and is still band director at Jones.

He is richly deserving of his membership in the Florida Bandmasters Association, of which he is a former president. He became the 25th recipient of the prestigious Florida Music Education Association Hall of Fame Award. Chairman Reid Poole of the Hall of Fame committee made the announcement at the FMEA session in

"The Chief" is admired by his many students, and he takes pride in the success of his students, the success of his bands and the Jones High School music program. Wilson is an ardent and lovable family man, is a great worker in his church and serves on numerous boards and community organizations.

Sharing the luncheon with Wilson was his lovely wife, Virginia, From Sanford were his sisters, Olive W. Johnson and Eunice I. Wilson; his brother, Thomas Wilson and wife. Mildred: his son, Miltom Wilson: and his cousins, Theima Wilson Mike and Victoria N. Killina. The Wilsons' lovely daughters. Jamia W. and Jamiel K. of Texas, sent their dad words of love.

One of the highlights of the afternoon for Wilson was the presence of his former band teacher and director of FAMU band, the now retired 80-yearold Leander A. Kirksey, who has for many years made history throughout the music world. Also to the delight of Wilson was the presence of his old friend, David "Panama" Francis, one of jazz's greatest musicians.

On April 30, Jones High School's new auditorium will be named the James W. Wilson Auditorium. This honor has been bestowed on Wilson by the School Board of Orange County.

All family, friends and wellwishers of Sanford are invited to attend the dedication of the new auditorium. Time will be announced later.

Teaching is fun for Cannon

By VICKI DesormIER Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD - Nine years ago. Daniel Cannon, just graduated with a degree in political science from the University of Central Florida, was working at ABC Liquors and substitute teaching. He had plans to go on to law school.

Two weeks ago, the Lyman High School math teacher was named among the top three teachers in Seminole County in the Teacher of the Year competition.

"I was very excited to hear that I'd been selected in the top three," he said, adding that he'd been thrilled to be named to the top 10 the week before.

Though he'd originally had no plans to enter the teaching profession, the more hours he got in the classroom, the more he realized he liked it.

Math, always his favorite course of study, became a favored class to teach.

"Once, I got to sub in a math class, here at Lyman as a matter of fact, for a whole quarter and I loved it," Cannon explained. "I decided to go back to school and get certified."

Cannon's father had also been a math teacher in the Seminole County schools. When the younger Cannon was a senior at Seminole High School, he took his father's advanced math class and saw in his father qualities that he tries to bring to his students.

"Patience and compassion are the most important things I can bring to my students," said Cannon.

He said, however that the one of the greatest contributions he can bring to teaching is his ability to get excited about

"A teacher," he said, "should show that learning can be fun and exciting." That kind of attitude can be the greatest motivator to students who are less than thrilled about a subject in which they are not confident of their abilities.

"Many students have a poor attitude about learning." said, "I try to change this attitude. I try to show them that they can succeed." He believes that if he can make them have a winning attitude in his math class, they will be able to carry it with them into life.

Cannon spends much of his free time working with students who need extra help. If a student is willing to learn, he said he is excited to be able help.

As the head of the math department at Lyman High School, Cannon has the opportunity to help other teachers learn to teach better.

He is part of the Beginning Teacher Program, which helps rookie teachers familiarize themselves with the daily routine with the help of a peer teacher. The more experienced teacher also helps with problem solving and counseling.

years, have two children: Jeffrey, age 10 and Jennifer who is eight years old.

Keeping in mind what he wants for his own children helps Cannon heep a focus on the way he should treat his students. He wants his students to know that he cares for each of them individually.

In his classroom, there is no such thing as a stupid question. In his classroom, there hangs a sign that reads, "If you do not understand, ASK!" Cannon does not want his students to be afraid to approach him to clarify a subject.

Cannon uses an unusual teaching technique in his class which he calls the Problem of the Day. Each day he puts on the chalk board a math problem. which students are expected to begin solving as soon as the bell who have been married for 14 rings. This allows him to review old material and introduce new concepts. After students attempt to solve the problem, Cannon works through it with them. Cannon says his teaching style amounts to "doing whatever it takes to help students learn."

He said that he wants to teach students the practical applications of math. He feels that such understanding makes the subject more enjoyable and a when student is able to think through a problem it is more than just rote arithmetic, it is something that can be applied to all sublects.

In his eight years in the classroom, Cannon said, he has never had a bad class.

I've been lucky, I guess," he said. "I always get along with the kids and it's such a lov to see them develop a love for learn-

Keyettes bring Midway RIF program

by VICKI DeSCRMIER Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD - In 1980, the Lyman High School Keyettes began sponsoring Midway Elementary School in a RIF (Reading is FUNdamental) program because, according to DeDe Schaffner, the DIVIDENDS volunteer who coordinated the project, they "wanted to see the benefits of their fundraising first

The tradition of bringing the world of books to the lowerincome students at Midway is now a well established tradition that both Keyettes and Midway students look forward to.

The kids really look forward to their (the Keyettes') visits, Midway principal Leroy Hampton said.

The girls chose Midway as the beneficiary of their efforts because they saw it as a school with a concerned staff in a rural neighborhood where a large number of the parents worked long hours for little pay. They say many of the families in Midway are single parent households; others are migrant homes where children are enrolled in two or three schools around the country every year.

The RIF Newsletter, a national publication based in Washington, praised the Lyman-Midway program in their Fall 1988 issue.

VIEWPOINT

Whether we like it or not, smokers have rights too

I don't approve or disapprove of smoking.

I figure it's none of my business. If Joe Q.
Public wants to smoke, that's his business, despite what Mr. Koop might have to say about it. Nobody that I know is telling Koop he needs to drop a few pounds or he's going to eventually have a heart attack, so the way I see it, he has no right to tell everybody else what to do when it comes to health issues.

What really steams me about the issue of smoking is the total loss of all civil and human rights for those who do smoke. There are thousands of goody-two-shoes, bleeding heart liber-als out there who are determined to save all of mankind from annihilation, and I suppose they plan to start by abolishing smoking in all its

That's pretty two-faced.

The government spends millions of dollars (most of which comes from those of us who do smoke) on anti-smoking ad campaigns, they try to penalize the tobacco industry to death and they want us to quit the nasty habit.

It's almost funny. I can't help but think about the government bureaucracy involved in some-thing like this. There are so many things wrong with this country, but the top priority it seems is getting people to stop smoking.

The hypocrisy of the situation becomes very clear to me whenever I'm in a grocery store and I see an elderly man on crutches paying for lunch meat with food stamps, it makes me very angry when I see a bag lady sleeping on a park bench downtown or when I see dirty-faced kids in tattered clothes playing in the street and know they'll be going to bed hungry that night. Let's take some money and feed some kids, provide some shelter for the homeless and take care of the elderly. Maybe then we can concentrate on less important issues which draw support from banner-waving, self-righteous know-it-alls.

If I want to smoke, I'm going to smoke. You can take Mr. Koop, you can take your goofy public service ads and you can take your self-righteous do scoder covers and do were self-righteous do scoder covers and do self-righteous do self-righteou self-righteous do gooder causes and do whatever you want with them. Don't ever get in my face and tell me that my smoking a cigarette bothers'

You know why?

Because I don't care if my smoking bothers you. I'm not here on this planet to make your life as comfortable as possible. Maybe something maybe I think you dress funny, maybe I think you smell bad or don't brush your teeth as much as you should.

What am I supposed to do, go up to a guy at a bar and say, "Excuse me, but your teeth are really yellow and that bothers me. Would you mind going home and brushing them?"

I'm tired of being discriminated against because I happen to smoke. I'm tired of going into doctors' offices and public buildings and seeing those signs that read "Thank you for not smoking." That's like having a sign in your office that says "Thank you for not smelling bad or wearing dirty underwear. Now they (whoever 'they' are) have banned smoking on most airlines. Never mind that wings and engines are falling off the planes from 30,000 feet in the sky. That's not anything we need to worry about, the main thing is to keep the passengers from smoking. I suppose the airlines want you to have nice, pink healthy lungs when they drop you in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, or when the side rips off the aircraft and you get sucked out of the plane somewhere over the Hawaiian Islands. I guess it makes it easier on the coroner when he does the plane crash autopsies. I was at a baseball game the other night when a man behind me, apparently the father of four very unruly young boys, was offended when the gentleman in front of him lit a cigarette. This was a really bright guy. He was trying to impress the kids with his knowledge of the players and the game and I couldn't help but overhear him tell the kids to look at Ted Kluszewski (it was really Joe Nuxhall, Kluszewski died over a year ago) and Ted Power (it was really Tom Browning, Power was traded during the off-season). Anyway, he asked the gentleman in front of him to put out his eigarette because it "bothers my kids." This was in an open air stadium. Maybe I could have understood if it had been in a domed stadium or other confined quarters, like maybe a telephone booth. Nothing was bothering these kids. They didn't care if the guy smoked, they were too busy running up and down the steps sticking their feet in people's backs and being generally obnoxious. Nothing would have bothered those kids, except maybe a nice, heavy dose of nerve gas.

I think it's time for smokers to unite and reclaim their rights. Smokers are U.S. citizens (well, most of them are), they pay their taxes, they buy American products and eat that really healthy fast food. They have as much right to smoke as the next guy has not to smoke.

It is supposed to be a free country. Remember...life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness, all of that? Does that mean a bunch of rosy-cheeked do-gooders can set the standards for the whole world? Does that mean that non-smokers have more rights than those who do smoke?

Martinez: No new taxes

Legislators facing several funding woes

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Finding creative, acceptable ways of paying for the growth of Florida's population will be the major task facing lawmakers when the 1989 Florida Legislature convenes Tuesday, Sanford-area representatives said.

Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, and Sen. Bud Gardner, D-Titusville, said in this year when there are "Read my lips" assurances by Gov. Bob Martinez to not approve any tax increases, it will be difficult to find new sources of money to pay the increasing costs of government.

"In the Senate, there is no sentiment that I know of for any kind of tax increase," said Gardner. "I think any chance of a gas tax increase passing is slim."

Gardner has proposed a bill that gives counties and cities a shopping list of revenue options, including a 45-cent local option documentary stamp tax, earlier property assessments of new construction and removing the voter referendum requirements for the seventh-cent local option gas tax and one-cent sales tax.

"Local governments must be given the resources to make growth management work or the entire planning process will turn into an excercise in futility," Gardner said.

Gardner's bill also includes a political punch at Martinez. The bill would require the governor to descare a building moratorium in an See Funding, Page 6D

The state Department of Community Affairs has ruled local govern-ments that allow development along state roads that add congestion to those roads must pay to improve the roads to acceptable standards.

Local government officials and legislators argued that the state sets arbitrary traffic levels on state roads forcing cities and counties to either restrict growth along the roads or pay the cost of improving them.

Gardner's bill would require both the local government and the state to set traffic levels on state roads. If the state has a higher standard, it should either pay for any needed improvements, lower the standard or the governor would have to declare a building moratorium on the road until it is improved.

Gardner said his main purpose of the governor's moratorium section was to force discussion between legislators and state officials on the Grindle, who also does not favor new taxes, said user fees are the best source of new revenue for the state and local governments. User fees are fees on government-provided services, such as admission to parks, that are only paid by people who use them. Grindle doesn't propose any specific user fees.

"Users fees are not a tax," Grindle said. "I see user fees as the most acceptable of any kind of taxation. And I totally support the idea of user fees wherever they can be worked out so that any kind of need is paid for by the people who use it."

Grindle said most revenues the state receives shouldn't be limited

With Governor Martinez vowing to veto any new tax legislation, the 1989 state Legislature must find new financial sources. That issue is the primary one facing lawmakers. As for other key topics, Rep. Art Grindle and Sen. Bud Gardner:

... Oppose any changes to the current use of lottery dollars, preferring to keep close control on their use, yet being open to the changing needs in education.

...Said the state Legislature should take back some of the road-dollar spending control from the state Department of Transportation, which now faces a $1 billion projects shortfall. Both legislators said a short-term revenue boost may be needed to allow DOT to pay for currently unfunded projects.

... Are ready to do battle with south Florida legislators over a major share of Florida's Turnpike toll bonds, although Gardner prefers a more diplomatic approach.

• ...Are undecided on whether the state should give school districts impact fee authority. Gardner said the county can collect impact fees for the school board under current state laws.

... Are mixed in their views of whether the state should have a mandantory seven-day 'cooling off' period for handgun purchases. Grindle, who has sponsored a proposal for a state referendum to decide the issue, said seven days would give the gunshop owner more time to assure the purchaser does not have a criminal background.

Governor supports 'get tough' policy for dangerous criminals

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE - Gov. Bob Martinez endorsed Wednesday proposed legislation that would prevent the early release of dangerous criminals and make prisoners pay for the cost of their incarceration.

Martinez hopes to restructure the early release program corrections officials use to keep the prison population below its legal limit. Prison officials now release thousands of inmates each month to make room for new prisoners.

Inmates released early serve an average one-third of their sentences.

One of the two proposals endorsed by the governor would not change the number of inmates released, but would give the Parole Commission more authority to determine which inmates are released first. Currently, inmates who are not capital cases, sex offenders or career criminals receive early release credit at the same

"We believe this is a system by which the public is protected, that the bad guys stay in jail longer and, when we have to release people, that those who get released are the ones are arrested for lesser crimes; less violent crimes." Martinez

"The meaner you are, the longer you stay." Martinez said.

Inmates released early would remain under the jurisdiction of the Department of Corrections and would be required to attend drug or alcohol rehabilitation or other programs, if it was determined the prisoners were in need of such

Martinez said the early release revision would cost about $1.4 million to implement.

The other proposed legislation backed by Martinez would force any state prisoner who has assets to pay for the cost of his punishment. A judge would consider the prisoner's family or other dependents before setting the level of reimbursement to the state. Martinez conceded the bill could require the state to hire many new administrators to implement the program, though he could not estimate how many. He said the program would raise money for the state despite administrative costs.

The bill is similar to an old Florida law that was striken as unconstitutional. Martinez said it had been revised in accordance with a similar Arkansas law that has withstood court challenges.

Proposed cuts in social services draw criticism

United Press International

TALLAHSSEE - The governor's recommendation that the state spend less on health and social services is a political move that takes away too much from the needy, a House leader said Wednesday.

"He (Gov. Bob Martinez) has politicized the determination of need," said Rep. Mike Abrams, D-Miami, chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Abrams said the Republican governor took an "inadequate, inappropriate and tragic budget (for social services) and made it worse,"

Martinez submitted an overall budget recommendation of $2.3 billion for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services for the coming fiscal year, a cut of more than 5 percent from this year's budget. The subcommittee, however, has recommended a budget of $2.44 billion, a reduction of 3 percent, without decreasing funding for Medicald and Ald for Dependent Children programs, Abrams said. The governor has proposed cuts in both programs.

In the Martinez proposal, $7.8 million would be cut from the Aid For Dependent Children program, a move that would keep as many as 200,000 needy clients off the rolls, Abrams said. Abrams said the Martinez budget also does not provide for increased workloads in foster care, day care and mental health and drug abuse services.

"Ultimately, how we address the HRS budget (reflects) the moral conscience of the state and the moral conscience of the Legislature," Abrams said. He said Martinez' proposal to increase spending by $60 million to expanink the issue is that we're going to have to do both," increase prison facilities and spending

Myths about Bush

When President Bush took office last January, he went out of his way to tell the American people he would not try to solve all of the nation's problems withing the first 100 days. The president called for thorough and carried eviews of U.S. relations with the Soviet Union and of American defense strategy. Similar reviews were undertaken in various domestic areas,

In an age when too many politicians shoot from the hip and the lip — and soon come to regret it — one would think that Mr. Bush would be praised for taking a cautious approach to the many complex problems facing him. And recent public opinion polls show that the president is enjoying the support of an overwhelming number of Americans in the way he is handling his job.

But some both in and out of Congress and East Coast partisan pundits have undertaken a campaign to try and paint President Bush as a man who "hit the ground crawling" and is so indecisive and feeble in his approach to government that the nation has ground to a

The idea that President Bush is not moving full-speed-ahead on the nation's agenda is nothing more than a myth. And like all myths, this piece of political prattle should be dismissed.

"I think plenty of substantive things are President Bush told reporters on

Only two months into his term, Mr. Bush has appointed an ethics committee to raise the standards of conduct in government, has proposed a sweeping plan to breathe new life into the crippled savings and loan industry, has proposed major legislation to deal with the child care issue and has put his stamp on the 1968-90 federal budget that Congress will be dealing with in the coming months.

Stung by the rejection of John Tower as secretary of defense, Mr. Bush came right back with Rep. Richard Cheney who won praise from lawmakers on both sides of the political aisle, winning swift confirmation on a 92-0 vote in the Senate. Other Bush cabinet members have settled into their jobs and presidential appointees such as Bill Bennett, the drug caar, have come out swinging.

A dead-in-the-water administration?

Not on your life.

The political nit-pickers whose carping sometimes captures more headlines than the day-to-day achievement of the administration are uttering untruths, and Americans know it. Mr. Bush was elected to a four-year term, not just given a 100-day tryout. We are confident that the cautious course the president is pursuing will help Mr. Bush lay the foundation for a solid record of achievement that will perpetuate the years of peace and prosperity this nation enjoyed under President Reagan. We predict that the doomsday naysayers will continue to whine. We also predict that fewer and fewer people will listen as the accompishments of the Bush administration become more apparent.

Prescriptions for health insurance ills

WASHINGTON - "Your money - or your

That dreaded choice is usually posed by armed robbers — but Robert M. Brandon, Washington director of the public interest lobbying group Citizen Action, notes that the nation's health care system often presents the same awful alternatives.

For the 37 million people who lack insurance to protect themselves against overwhelmingly large medical bills, a major illness in the family can be financially catastrophic. In a few days, weeks or months, a lifetime of savings can be depleted and huge debts incurred.

Approximately two-thirds of the unprotected are employed (or members of workers' families) but their companies provide no insurance for their workers. Others are widowed or divorced and lost the insurance coverage provided by their spouses' employers.

In addition, 2 million people have medical conditions that preclude them from obtaining insurance. "If you happen to get cancer between jobs," notes one knowledgeable observer. "you are out of hick."

Finally, there are those too poor to pay for even minimal coverage. Fully one-third of the uninsured have family incomes of less than $10,000 per year while one-sixth have family incomes of under $5,000 annually.

"Every advanced industrial society in the world — except the United States and South Africa — guarantees health insurance to its citizens," says Brandon, whose organization is prese-ing for universal coverage in this country.

When families lack sufficient health insurance, disturbing dramas are played out at their kitchen tables," he adds. "People agonize about whether to consult a doctor for apparently minor ailments, then often delay seeking medical care until small problems become big ones."

Those conditions need not exist. As Harvey C. Sigeibaum, chief executive officer of the Amalgamated Life Insurance Co., notes, it is possible "to put all Americans into insurance systems designed to assure appropriate quality

tions need not exist

care and contain costs systematically." Cost containment is crucial. The countrywide cost of all forms of health care is now approaching $550 billion annually. It consumes 11 percent of the gross national product, up from 6 percent of GNP in 1965. But most of the universal coverage proposals now being advanced include a cost containment component. For example, Stanford University economist Alain Einthoven would require all employers to offer a variety of insurance plans to their full-time workers and to pay 80 percent of the premium costs.

Employees would have to pay 20 percent of the premiums for the basic plan and the additional cost of expanded coverage for themselves and their families — which would encourage them to seek value for their money.

Nobody ever said the solution would come cheaply, but in dealing with people's health there are only two compassionate alternatives — paying a fair amount now or paying even more later. Notes the National Health Care Campaign:

"A society which should be improving the health of its citizens is instead letting them get sicker — not only jeopardizing individual welfare but harming productivity. ... The false economies of the present system are obvious."

Looking at the future of smog

WASHINGTON - The future often moves east from the West, being foreshadowed in southern California. However, news usually travels east to west, so sufficient notice was not taken of 123 intimations of iomorrow's social issues and political choices

The South Coast Air Quality Management District's jurisdiction is the Los Angeles basin. That includes 13,350 square miles, an area larger than nine states, and five percent of the nation's population - more than the populations of 47 states. The existence of the SCAQMD may not even now be known to most of the 12 million people whose lives will be touched by implementation - if that happens - of the 123 recommendations for reducing smog. If implemented, it is possible that within ten years average visibility in the basin will be 80 miles instead of today's ten miles.

The SCAQMD operaties on the provable premise that when 12 million people live together, anything that large numbers of them do, from driving cars to painting patio furniture to firing up their barbeques, matter a lot. It matters because life is a matter of

Not long ago the problem of air pollution was considered a problem of vehicles and large stationary sources such as power plants and oll refineries. Not any more. Now the SCA-QMD's proposals range from the minor and mundane (banning aerosol hair sprays and deodorants) to the major and visionary (electric vehicles). The proposals include a ban on bias-ply (non-radial) tires because they throw on too many particles, steep increases in parking fees for cars carrying only one person and limits on the number of cars each family

The state should stay out of the bedroom? O.K., but it may soon rummage around in the bathroom: Even some non-serosol deodorants might have to be reformulated to eliminate certain reactive compounds. Gas-powered lawn mowers (think of millions of them shattering the silence of the May morning in the basin) may have to go. So, too, may lighter fluids for backyard barbeques. But, then, when millions of barbequers substitute twigs and crumpled newspapers....

The SCAQMD agenda has ignited what will be a decade of flerce debate: How much will it cost in money, jobs and freedom? Will the cost be regressive, falling heaviest on those with the least disposable income? Six days after the SCAQMD spoke, the East was heard from on the subject of air pollution. Data gathered by the Environmental Protection Agency indicates that 329 chemicals - only seven of them regulated by the EPA, 60 of them cancer-causing - are being pumped into the air from industrial plants at the alarming rate of 2.4 billion pounds a year.

The spate of news about air pollution comes while notice is being taken of the tenth anniversary of what news stories still refer to as the Three Mile Island "disaster." Some disaster: No one killed, not even any measurable health consequences. The bad environmental consequences of Three Mile Island were the multiplication of delays in the development of an environmentally sound technology for generating power. In the name of reducing risks from nuclear power, we are incurring other risks.

One of the large industries in devel-oped societies, the insurance industry. embodies the modern determination to pocialize risks. The welfare state, more properly called the social-insurance state, socializes risks of unemployment. sickness and aging. The pursuit of public health through environmental regulation is a policy of dispersing responsibility for reducing risks. Americans are intensely, sometimes unhealthily, health-conscious. But the nation's public-health priorities often are peculiar. The week that SCAQMD proposed measures that would impinge upon many freedoms, the nation was meamerized by the health hazard posed by two lightly poisoned grapes. Health is indeed first wealth.

It matters because life is a matter of cumulations

However, the SCAQMD agenda is a cold shower of costs. The costs can be calculated in money and in social supervision of what once were taken for granted as spheres of private discretion.

Philosophers of freedom have frequently had recourse to John Stuart Mili's cosay "On Liberty" and his distinction between "selfregarding" and "other-regarding" acts. Selfregarding acts are those that affect no one other than the actor. In an open society, they are generally exempt from state control.

The logic of environmental reasoning (it is scientific as well as social logic) is this: High-density urban living in the industrial age transforms many actions, such as driving and barbequing, from self-regarding into otherregarding actions. Thus does government

Whistleblowers get needed protection

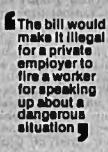

WASHINGTON - A bill that would protect courageous whistleblowers in industries af-fecting public health and safety is percolating through Congress. But it will come too late for Donald Henley. Chances are good that the Safety Whistleblower Act will pass Congress later this year, and, so far, President Bush has not registered any complaints.

Henley could have used the bill two years ago when he was fired from his job at a country ham plant in the South. He had made the mistake of trying to stop the company from processing 3,000 pounds of dangerously half-cured ham. He knew the hams would spot! and become a breeding ground for deadly The company president told Henley to keep his mouth shut. government meat inspector anyway. Like many diligent workers in private industry who watch out for the safety of the public, Henley was promptly fired.

Henley is now in a more suitable job for his skills. He is a government meat inspector.

During testimony before the Senate Labor Subcommittee, Henley said he should have known that speaking up would cost him his job. The company president had repeatedly reminded him who signed his paycheck. If something done at the plant went contrary to Agriculture Department rules, the president often said, "(expletive) on the USDA."

Workers in the meat business, or any other industry that affects public health and eafety, would be covered by the Safety Whiatleblower Protection Act sponsored by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Sen. Charles Grassley, R-lows. The bill would make it illegal for a private employer to fire a worker for speaking up about a dangerous situation.

Currently, federal protection varies widely from industry to industry. Truckers are protected from reprisals if they report a safety problem, but airline mechanics are not. Workers in the meat business are protected if they report threats to their own safety on the job, but they stand naked — or at least in their skivvies — if they blow the whistle on threats to public health and safety.

Business interests have been surprisingly mum about the bill. Sources on Capitol Hill told our associate Stewart Harris that big business may be wary about challenging a bill that protects the public health and safety.

But there are grumblings. Some industry leaders have griped privately that the bill may be used by labor unions as a bargaining chip in contract negotiations. Others say that employees who are about to be fired for good reason will blow the whistle on anything to keep their jobs.

Under the bill the Labor Department will handle whistleblower personnel complaints and either side can appeal decisions to federal

A similar bill is expected to be proposed in the House by Rep. Augustus Hawkins. D-Calif., the chairman of the Education and Labor Committee. If it passes, this will be a bonanza year for whistleblowers. Last month. Congress passed a bill to protect whistleblowers in the federal government.

Control irresponsible pet owners

It is unsettling to responsible dog owners/breeders to learn that Dade County has agreed to pass a law that would ban specific breeds of dogs in Dade County.

Many dogs could be so labeled since technically there is no breed status for the 'pit buil' which is merely a genric term used for some mixed breeds.

The ordinance will be reviewed at a public hearing set for April 4 before it becomes law, but waiting for that time may be too late for us to get "good" legislation passed.

Diane Albers, in second with the AKC, American Dog Owners

Assn., and many responsible dog owner associations, has been fighting for years to get non-specific breed bills passed that would condemn non-responsible owners and vicious dogs. As a state law rather than an individual county/city law there would be no conflict of responsibility as is happening in Orange

We know that if the leash and licensing laws were intelligently enforced, we would not need further legislation. As it is, only we who care are made liable as the authorities only know the owners of licensed animals and the owners of dogs who run at large seldom pay to retrieve them from Animal

The law, as written, would make the owner carry liability insurance which is not available in the state. Some insurance companies will not even offer home owner policies if you own a dog. Something rational must be done.

It behooves each of us to write our representatives asking for laws making irresponsible owners responsible for their dog's

The world according to Ray, Part I

I am very disappointed that the Herald chose to hide itsapparent condemnation of animal abuse and exploitation behind the irrational diatribe of Chuck Stone, who should study his personal heritage and the relationships between human slavery (racism) and non human slavery (speciesism).

His ignorance of, or insensitivity to, the natural rights of others to be free to live and love is unfortunate.

According to Webster, a "right" is something that is in accordance with fact, reason, justice, law, morality, and virtue, and is fitting, appropriate, suitable, and favorable. This brings to mind terms like moral rights, legal rights, natural right, the right to be spared undeserved pain, the right to equal consideration of interests, the right to life, etc.

Our puritanical white psuedo-Christian ancestors measured "progress" and "civilization" in terms of conquering nature and its "savagery" by destroying the civilizing wildernes. turning darkness into light, and controlling the herbivorous animals of the forest while destroying the carnivores. This quasi-macho mentality and its need to control also gave rise rise to the exploitation of women (sexism), black people and other "non-whites" (racism), and non-humans (speciesism).

Alice Walker, author of "The Colour Purple" has written (herself a decendant of slavery). "the animals of the world exist for their own reasons. They were not made for humans (to exploit) any more than black people were made for white people or women for men."

While homo sapiens emerged from the primordial chaos of evolution as omnivores, capable of eating anything to survive. even one another, some of us have continued to evolve both spiritually and physiologically while others, through their inherent freedom of choice, have chosen to mentally stagnate.

As primitive conditions were superceded by modern agriculture and the knowledge that eating meat is not healthy. many of us, having concern for the perpetuity of life, have adapted our thinking to wholistic - not individual - survival. This encompasses an ethical concern over excessive conconstruction, deforestation, environmental pollution, and the

Possibly by the time humanity recognizes its evolved responsibility as one of stewardship rather than one of domination, it may be too late to correct the excesses. The exploitation of non-human creatures is a moral shame that must be corrected if we are to survive.

Contrary to Stone's beliefs, most animal rights people have found that alternatives to eating and wearing animal parts are not only healthy and satisfying, they are essential if we wish to leave a legacy of morality and natural synergism of life for our children. Someone once said, "Virtue is spotlessness of mind, all clee is mere noise."

The world according to Ray, Part II

In her article of March 19, Sarah Overstreet realistically and unemotionally portrays physical assault and rape as two very real dangers confronting women in today's society.

A study conducted a few years ago by a California university concluded that statistically, one out of every two females inthe U.S. will be physically assaulted and/or raped within her lifetime, this includes domestic family incidents, date rape, phyusical abuse by others, and cold-blooded mass-murders and women haters like Ted Bundy, Richard Speck, Charles Whitman, Charles Starkweather. Edmund Kemper.

Unfortunately, many women refuse to face this fact of life and myopically assume that because they do not live 'downtown" or in a ghetto, it is not their problem.

have been conducting rape prevention seminars and self-defense classes for women for many years, both in this area and previously in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area. Hundreds of women have attended my presentations and I am often amazed at the naive assumption by many suburban women that the environment in which they live and commute is free from assault threats.

As Ms. Overstreet vividly alludes to, self-defense and self-preseration is largely mental attitude, development of self-confidence, and emotional conditioning; that is, knowing what to do, when to act, and preparing oneself mentally to carry through on essential survival response actions.

Any solution model to sexual assault must encompass three areas: 1) elimination of threats and treatment of offencers: 2) victim or survivor counselling services, and 3) public education and awareness to increased public sensitivity and personal skills concerning the scope of the probeim.

Unfortunately, most so-called rape prevention programs address only victim assistance after an assault or rape has

Only recently has the problem of identifying and treating assailants and potential assailants begun to be addressed by society. My programs primarily address the third area in which women are taught the traits and charactristics of assailants and rapists, methods for avoiding assault situations, methods for dealing with these situation, and - most important - they develop the mental attitude for coping with stress and fear, and successfully surviving an assault.

Those individuals who profess to community leadership owe their consituents a safe environment in which to live. But we all must do our part to make it safe.

Money: a critical school issue

As we stand at the threshold of the new century it is incumbent upon interested citizens to be aware fo the critical issues facing the Seminole County Schools. What happens at school shapes the workforce of tomorrow and the economy.

Supt. Robert Hughes, the chief school administrator for Seminole County, listed the critical issues facing the school system accordingly: growth, competitive salaries for instructional staff, and money.

Population projections envision a 1,500-1,700 annual student increase for the next five years. Concomitant with the increased student population will be the need for additional teachers, books and other instructional materials, and facilities.

Teacher salaries are competitive within the Orange, Volusia and Brevard counties region. But, Seminole County salaries lag behind Palm Beach, Dade and other counties. At the national level, Seminole County teacher salaries are not competitive; Florida ranks 32nd among the 50 states.

School financing in Seminole County reflects a dichotomy. Seminole County is a bedroom community with the highest per capita income in the state. But, Seminole

During the 1987-88 school year, about $200 million was received based upon the Florida Educational Foundation Program and Categorical State funds. This year (1988-89) $168.5 million is expected. This amounts to a decrease of $31.52 million.

I inquired about money being received from the state lottery. Many voters responded affirmatively to the proposed lottery, on the premise that money secured would be utilized for education.

$50 million of the $200 million received from the state for 1987-88 was from the

it is apparent from these figures that lottery money is used to supplant the regular state funds and that is not in consonance with voter expectation.

Among the superintendant's identified existing needs are Drop Our Prevention Programs and Pre-school programs. Although there will be an overall reduction in money from the state this fiscal year, there will be an increase for Drop-out Prevention and Head Start.

A total of 524 students dropped out of Seminole County schools. Among the reasons: expulsion, acadmic problems, financial problems, entering armed forces, entering correctional institutions, illness, marriage, pregnancy, and unsultuatable curriculum.

Supt. Hughes believes that students who are at risk of dropping out of school should be identified early enough to intervene and decrease the number of drop-outs.

League presents Legislative priorities

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Florida Legislature convenes this week. Here is the summary of what the League of Women Voters of Florida believes should be the priorities for legislation this year.

Election Laws

Support of measures to: (1) Increase voter participation, including: (a) Legislation to allow voters to register as close to election day as administratively feasible; (b) Legislation to provide for Sunday and/or holiday registration: (c) Enabling legislation and funding for pilot projects on election day registration.

(2) Increase public confidence and/or improve administrative efficiency, including: (a) The election of Supervisors of Elections on a nonpartisan basis; (b) Standardized election procedures for efficiency and uniformity (e.g., uniform ballot placement).

regulations, including (a) Continuing the present limits on campaign contributions; (b)

Maintaining strict disclosure

Maintaining strict disclosure requirements; (c) Providing that the proceedings of the Florida Elections Commission should be open to the public once probable cause has been established; (d) Providing additional funding for the Election Commission and the Division of Elections to strengthen their capability to enforce campaign finance regulations.

Family Policy Subsidized Child Care. Increased funding for subsidized child care with a goal of providing funding for one-third of the slots on the waiting list in fiscal 1989-90, two-thirds in 1990-91, and a complete funding in

Employer Child Care Grants. Continued funding of the grants authorized in 1988 under the Child Care Partnership act at a level that can be effectively administered and supervised; giving he department authority to evaluate proposals on their merit rather than on a "first-come, first-served" basis; allowing preference to employers who have not previously offered child care benefits, as an incentive to initiate them. Tecnage Pregnancy Prevention. Our focus this year is ways to decrease the number of teenage pregnancies. One way is to include basic information in public schools, starting at an early age. Providing factual information can influence the attitude about sexual participation that teenagers now get from misinformation and peer pre-

(This focus in no way minimizes the concern that local Leagues have had about the comprehensive student assistance program to identify problems and refer students for treatment. There should be a clear designation of the person (or entity) to contact for information and referral. The program should include: a statewide mechanism for early identification, screening and assessment of children and their families; timely dilivery at home and/or school of services, and/or referral to community-based or residential facilities. Front-end services such as in-home counselling and behavior management training for parents is needed. Adequate funding should be provided for prevention and early intervention.

Sentencing guidelines

Measures to affirm the original goals of the Guidelines:

(1) Legislation specifically requiring and mandating a sentencing system that allocates scarce prison beds for violent Growth Manage offenders. Changes in the Guidelines adopted by the 1988 Legislature now make it easier for judges to send the nonvoilent offenders to prison. Since Florida's prisons are overcrowded, this provision will force more violent offenders out of prison faster than if the nonviolent were not occupying scarce prison space.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

Capital afflicted by awful crime of poverty

By LEON DANIEL

WASHINGTON - Cherry blossoms have flowered here just in time to enchant the vanguard of the annual tourist migration to the nation's murder capital.

The visitors know all about Washington's explosion of drug-related violent crime. They are not intimidated by it.

You can believe Mayor Marion Barry when he goes on national television to insist the city is safe in the Washington metropolitian area agree with the mayor that the District of Columbia is a nice place to visit. That doesn't mean they want to live in it.

Just about everyone now knows Washington has the nation's highest homicide rate. But what really should shock tourists on arrival in Washington is the poverty, which is in full view of visitors. They cannot escape seeing for visitors. Most people who live homeless men sleeping on steam grates only a couple of blocks from the White House. In his inaugural address, President Bush cited homelessness as first among the most pressing domestic issues.

The president can be reminded of his pledge to do something about it simply by looking from the White House across Pennsylvania Avenue at his homeless neighbors In Washington, tourists cannot fall to see the homeless who wander in the shadows of out nation's most impressive structures and symbols.

In the early 1970s, I lived in India. On trips to Calcutta, I was stunned by the poverty. Ail affluent Indian once told me; "One gets accustomed to seeing poverty, Bush says he will support a three-year increase in the minimum wage. up to $4.25, if Congress agrees to pay all those newly hired workers a "training wage" - lower than minimum wage - for the first six months on the job. If American businesses are given this carte blanche to cheap labor, the lowest classes can kiss any hope for a kinder and gentler nation goodbye.

On March 23, the House of Represcriatives voted to raise the minimum-raise to $4.55 an hour, and included provisions for a sub-minimum training wage. The House hopes the provision will win over the president and avoid his veto. Bush argues that with a minimum wage that high, many jobs will be lost because employers will cut back and not create any new Jobs. Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole estimates that the proposed wage increase would sacrifice

SARAH OVERSTREET

650,000 Jobs They are right to try to offset the lost jobs: to not try to save them would be ridiculous. But you don't achieve balance by proposing something even more ridiculous:

Many would use the law as a steady supply of cut-rate labor. As soon as the lawful "training wage" expired, they'd boot the newly "skilled" worker for a new "trainee." They might even care enough about appearances to make up some excuse for the firing, like it took six months to discover he couldn't cut the mustard on the Coney Delaxe. There is nothing in the president's proposal to prevent it.

Proponents like Dole say the market would take care of the problem, that the cost of training a new worker would exceed the expense of promoting the "trainee" to full minimum wage-carner. Get real. If the minimum wage reaches Bush's proposed $4.25, that's $1.90 an hour more than his "training wage" of $3.35. Over a 40-hour Work week, that's $76 more for the worker than the "training wage." Over six months, that's $1,976. To save two grand, you can train a newly hired employee to spurt sauci pretty quick.

The sub-minimum wage included in the House bill would be payable for 60 days instead of six months, and only for newly hired workers with no previous employment. There's nothing wrong with training. But before we sentence workers to a neverending round of "training jobs" that end at six months, we have to formulate some reasonable guidelines to ensure that when the training ends, work - and its accompanying wage - begins. (C) INVINEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

designs Banks consider new

ORLANDO - Lobbies designed with neon signs and video information booths will be as important as interest rates to the successful bank of the future, the American Bankers Association was told.

"The bottom line is, bank branches were developed and designed when transaction processing was the most important thing they could do," consultant Mark Gibson said. "Obviously things have changed."

After learning that about half the nation's branch banks are unprofitable the bankers group commissioned Gibson's firm, Retail Planning Associates of Columbus, Ohio, to perform a yearlong study,

"I think it's about time we take off our traditional banker hats and start using some of the merchandizing techniques that can take us forward," said Terry Kors, senior executive vice president in Tampa with Citizens and Southern National Bank of

The study, released at the association's annual national conference, decries the fact most banks were designed for employees — not customers.

Another major mistake, Gibson said, is keeping most service information "locked up in employees' heads" when there is data showing customers want to make at last half their financial decisions without interference from a bank officer.

"Once they decide what they're going to stand for," Gibson said, "the bank needs to bring that to life. If it's going to be assortment, for example, then they are going to develop a financial superstore with stocks and bonds and mortgages and

"There's a colorful department with neon lights and a specialist in there so you can just walk in and take care of anything you need to."

For the bank concentrating on personal service, Gibson said, a banker would create a very exclusive alt-down environment with mahogany and leather.

"Dead space" in the lobby must be turned into displays explaining bank services with colorful charts, posters, brochures or large video monitors, Gibson said, or the bank will move to cheaper, smaller quarters. "The customer's hunger for financial answers has never been greater," Gibson said, "Particularly since the stock market crashed there's been a lot of uncertainty in the financial world, and customers don't know what to do.

"So what bankers can do is to help start answering those questions, basically with any-thing they can get their message across with, and the customer is going to view them as a much more helpful provider," he said.

"The stores and banks who do the best job of helping the customer are going to be the ones that thrive. And the other ones are going to go out of

Dr. Paul Peter Rosen, attending pathologist at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City, delivered the assessment at the annual meeting of the United States and Canadian Academy of Pathology.

Reporting on a study of more than 600 women followed for a median of 18 years, Rosen said that almost 90 percent of those with cancers less than a centimeter and no signs of spread to the lymph nodes or elsewhere were alive and free of disease almost two decades after their mastectomies.

He said 75 percent of all recurrences occur within 10 years and virtually all the rest before 15 years are out.

He said that, typically, such minute cancers are unaccompanied by the tissue changes that signal a graver prognists. These include invasion of the tumor into lymphatic or blood vessels, cells that are primitive in appearance and signs of inflammatory cells around the tumor.

The study also tracked the occurence of second cancers in the women, he said.

Trilogy ends for insufferable Talbot

The second secon

Fire Down Below By William Golding (Farrar Straus Gircux, 313 pp., 617.95)

When we last left callow Edmund Talbot in "Close Quarters." the second of William Golding's early 19th century seafaring trilogy, his unnamed ship was limping along on its seemingly interminable voyage to Australia. It had been touched by death and disaster, its topmasts damaged and nearly destroyed.

in "Fire Down Below," Golding abandons the journal framework of the earlier volumes and brings the adventure to a proper 19th century end. He finishes the voyage, ties loose strings together and completes the education of the priggish, insufferable Talbot.

While less dramatic than the preceding volume, "Fire Down Below" is not without its own kind of suspense and conflict, most notably a complex and risky operation designed to repair the masts but one that risks destroying the wooden vessel by fire.

There is also a wonderfully narrated encounter with a giant iceberg, conflict among crew members, a marriage among the passengers and, always, those two great characters of Nature - the weather and the sea - with which to contend and from which to learn.

Golding makes no bones about the fact that this is a trilogy and readers who have not read the preceding volumes will find themselves figuratively at sea in many of the references. Still. Golding manages to catch the reader up in his narrative and his mastery of the language and technical jargon of 19th century sailing plunges one into Talbot's learning experience.

A long the riverrun, Selected Essays By Richard Eliman (Knopf, 288 pp., $21.98)

Devoted readers of Anglo-Irish literature will know the late Richard Ellman from his insightful biographics of James Joyce, W.B. Yeats and Oscar Wilde.

"A long the riverrun" - the title is taken from a pivotal line in Joyce's novel "Fin-negan's Wake" — includes 20 of the English professor's finest cassys.

Aside from the necessary contributions on the Irish giants, Eliman's witty pieces touch on the lives of Ernest Hemingway, Erra Pound and T.S. Eliot, the clusive dramatist Samuel Beckett and French war poet Henri Michaux.

The essays, most published previously, also include an enlightening interpretation of Washington Irving's classic tale "Rip Van Eliman — who died in May 1987 from Lou Gehrig's disease, or amyotrophic lateral sclerosis — sometimes struggled with the legitimacy of his work as a literary biographer. In the essay, "Love in the Catakilis," the author relates a conversation with W.H. Auden in which the poet insisted that attempts to connect an author's life with his work were

"Either this relation ... was obscure and impossible to detect, or else ... it was obvious and not worth mentioning," Eliman recalled Auden's advice.

Whatever one's view, "A long the riverrun" demonstrates the enormous depth of Eliman's literary knowledge. It serves as a posthumous reminder of the author's ability to write eloquently on virtually every topic he

The Dark Tower II: The Drawing of the By Stephen King (Plume, 399 pp., $12.98 pb)

The Tower draws closer in this, the second of what may turn out to be seven volumes in a saga patterned after "Childe Roland to the Dark Tower Came."

Roland, a gunslinger, is a knight of sorts in a half-world that is both in the future and in the past. In this Stephen King novel, good and evil are constantly at battle, with Roland striving to find a world of love and light.

Here, he befriends a heroin addict through a warp-glitch whereby he can travel back in time through the eyes of a character.

The book is superb. Through King's vivid imagery the reader thirsts, cries and nearly dies with Roland as he and his friend go through withdrawal and meets the mysterious Detta, a woman child whose mind was split by a terrible accident.

"The Drawing of the Three" will make readers wish the third volume were already here. It is a masterpiece of King brilliance.

The Wild Type By Jeffrey Ivan Victoroff (Crewn, 256 pp., 817.95)

It is the sad fate of any good story idea that it will, inevitably, become the target of every cliche-spouting back armed with a typewriter.

Nowadays, the theme of human genetics appears the prey of choice among science-fiction stalkers. Witness "The Wild Type," an entry by Jeffrey Ivan Victoroff that proves that playing God can be a game for children.

in his comic-book caper, Victoroff pits two young genetic researchers drafted by the National Institutes of Health against the ever-popular bad guy: the government. A secret gang of black hats is tapping the latest genetic research in a program to create a new race of humans capable of surviving the aftermath of nuclear war.

But when our hero — naturally a brilliant, handsome martial-arts expert — and heroine. who has equal attributes, uncover the plot, they are cast into a nefarious underground jungle replete with all manner of animals genetically engineered to kill.

The only thing missing from this juvenile jaunt is the "biff, barn, pow" to accompany the punches.

U.N. ready for 'Lifeline Sudan'

NAIROBI, Kenya — U.N. officials worked feverishly Friday on final arrangements for Saturday's start of a massive "pre-emptive strike" against warinduced famine in southern Sudan, where 100,000 people are considered at risk of starva-

International experts were flooding into Nairobi from emergency sites including Afghanistan, Bangladesh, China and Zimbabwe to staff the operation dubbed "Lifeline Sudan." U.N. officials said.

The plan is the most ambitious of its kind ever attempted in Africa and would transport more food in one month than was carried at the height of the 1984-85 famine in Ethiopia, for which resources were mobilized worldwide.

Vincent O'Reilly, chief of operations in Nairobi, described the plan in a statement as "a preemptive strike against suffering in Sudan."

where a rebellion by black, Christian-led rebels against the Islamic government in Khartoum has severed transport routes and left hundreds of thousands of people stranded in garrison towns and cities.

Some 2 million people are in need of help and up to 100,000 could die without assistance, the officials said.

A key element of the plan calls for the government and the Sudan People's Liberation Army rebels to honor a one-month "period of tranquility," refrain-ing from all attacks and ambushes along eight designated supply routes.

The government of Prime Minister Sadiq al Mahdi has promised to respect the plan. The SPLA, which has had numerous recent military successes, said it cannot agree to a cease-fire without political concessions but promised a group of U.S. congressmen it would permit free passage of food and medicine through its territory. The relief plan, coordinated in Officials of the United Nationa cooperation with private agenestimate 250,000 people died cies already working in Sudan, last year in southern Sudan, calls for moving some 100,000 tons of food into the country before the end of April, when the six-month rainy season is expected to shut down dirt roads and abstrips.

The first major truck convoy was scheduled to head south from Khartoum Saturday with a similar convoy to drive north Monday from Nairobi into rebel-held areas in the south.

UNICEF executive director James Grant was to be in Nairobi for the departure of the second convoy, which will carry 1,000 tons of food in some 60 trucks.

Plans also are being completed to transport food from Uganda and Ethiopia as part of a strategy worked out at an international conference in Khartoum in early March. Officials also hope to mobilize Nile River barges and Sudan's moribund railroad in the relief effort.

A sense of urgency has been added by the early arrival of rain in parts of Sudan. Officials said roads and airstrips were still usable but it was impossible to predict how soon the weather would become an obstacle to

Controversy rages over beaver sanctuary

BEAVERSPRITE SANCTU-ARY, N.Y. - A cottage with a stone chimney is the remaining link to Dorothy Richards and her 50-year affair with the onceendangered beavers that inhabit the southwest reaches of the Adirondacks, and the legacy she left behind is threatened.

Richards was known as the "beaver woman." and before her death in 1985 beavers trundled about her cottage. Some lived inside, leaving deep gnaw marks on the doors and furniture.

During the Depression, she are incongruous with what and husband Al Richards moved Richards fervently desired for to a cottage on what was then a 30-acre tract, about 65 miles state Department of Environ- a 150-page complaint filed by mental Conservation released Friends of Beaversprite that detwo beavers on a creek that ran through her land. That's when Richards, who had no scientific training, found her calling and went on to create a 900-acre wildlife sanctuary she called Beaversprite.

Today Richards' former neighbors and colleagues charge her death. "We can pass a tax to that her legacy lies in shambles her death. An investigation by United and survive (politically) because of mismanagement, Press International showed that judgment." Abrams said.

Richards' supporters, who have formed a group called Friends of Beaversprite, say that man is Larry Watkins, 44, a tall, slim, intense man they say inspires fear. He is the sanctuary manager, an avid hunter and trapper who maintains large taxidermy and gun collections. His opponents maintain Watkins' lifestyle and actions Richards fervently desired for Watkins, author of a deer hunting guide, used the sanctuary as a base to launch hunting and poaching raids.

"Me, my dad and my brothers helped Larry load a 10-point buck he'd shot right on the sanctuary." said Charles "Sonny" Johnson, 44, a neighbor once employed by Watkins.

Affidavits claim Watkins forced workers on the sanctuary payrell to become his personal construction crew, enlisting them - under the threat of being fired - to build him a home off sanctuary property.

Former employee Jeff Davis wrote the trust about the construction work.

to a specific use, but the funds should go into the state general fund allowing the Legislature to decide where the money should be best spent.

'Most people don't remember. but a while back, we had so little use for gas taxes we used them for other purposes, education for example," Grindle said. "It is probably better, when we impose some new kind of tax, that we don't earmark that tax for a specific use. It can become abusive.

Both Grindle and Gardner support a move to charge a one-time registration fee on vehicles owned by new residents or additional autos bought by current residents. The fee would be a kind of impact fee paid by auto owners to offset the additional burden on streets and highways their new car or truck would bring.

Current residents would not pay the fee for their vehicles or if for new cars.

The fee proposal ranges between $50, favored by Senate President Bob Crawford, to $100 in proposals by Gardner and Rep. Mary Figg. D-Temple Terrace. The Pigg and Gardner proposals would also add a $1-a-day surcharge to daily car

rentals

Gardner would use the money from the registration surcharge. estimated by Figg at $52.7 million annually, to initially him: 250 more state troopers. After two years, the money would be placed in a special transportation fund to be used only for roads fully-financed by the state. The Figg hill would also add 10 cents to the gas tax, splitting the estimated $676 million in annual revenues between the state, counties and cities. Gardner and Grindle see little chances of the additional gas tax they trade their current vehicles Grindle agree the Seminole and Orange County expressways are among the most eligible projects in the state for toll bond funding. Gardner said central Florida legislators should be careful not to align themselves with Jacksonville and Tampa Bay lawmakers in fighting south Florida legislators.
