Freedom of expression wins

MIAMI BEACH — Freedom of expression won the day over grammatical correctness at a national gathering of teachers Thursday.

A t-shirt that flippantly read, "I Be A Teacher," prompted a 20-minute floor debate at the National Education Association's annual convention. The 8,100 teacher delegates finally voted resoundingly for the freedom to be ungrammatical — even when the joke is aimed at their own profession.

During discussion of a proposal to ban items promoting alcohol, tobacco or drug use at NEA convention exhibit booths, Carol Haack, an English teacher from Appleton, Wis., offered an amendment to ban the sale of any "deliberately ungrammatical" product.

"As a teacher of English and a professional, anything that is connected with us should be correct," she said.

But several teachers pointed out the irony of the NEA considering a motion to restrict freedom of expression on the very day it was celebrating the bicentennial of the Bill of Rights.

One English teacher said simply: "I don't want no such motion passed."

Man bites 21 dogs

NEW YORK — A 23-year-old engineer gobbled 21 hot dogs to break a record set in 1959 — and said he had room for more.

Frank Dellarosa matched the record of 17.5 hot dogs and buns eaten at Nathan's annual frankfurter-eating contest at Coney Island. Then he ate three and a half more.

The 6-foot-2, 270-pound, Dellarosa accomplished the feat in 12 minutes Thursday.

"I think if I'd been sitting down, I could have eaten a couple more," he said.

"I just started banging them down," he said.

Helicopter emergency

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Traffic was rerouted from Highway 17-92 near 9th Street shortly after 10 a.m. this morning.

The roadway was cleared to allow an emergency rescue helicopter to land.

According to initial reports from the Sanford Police Department, an elderly man, identified as George Seymour, 82, of Sanford, was apparently struck by a motor vehicle.

The incident occurred at 10:10 this morning, almost in front of the police station.

The rescue helicopter from the Orlando Regional Medical Center was called to airlift Seymour to the hospital.

When EMS responded to the scene it was determined that the victim injuries were serious enough to require transportation to a Level One trauma center.

According to Battalion Chief J.F. Poovey of the Sanford Fire Department, there are only two such centers in Central Florida.

Orlando Regional Medical Center in Orlando is closer than the facility at Halifax Hospital in Daytona Beach, so their Air Care Team was dispatched to the scene.

According to William Clemens, EMS coordinator in Sanford, the victim was suffering from multiple injuries, including fractures to both

Capital parade watchers hoot captured tank

By JACKIE HALLIFAX

TALLAHASSEE — Thousands of people turned out to see a pockmarked Iraqi tank paraded through the streets of Florida's capital on the Fourth of July.

The tank, which was hauled on a flatbed truck, was greeted with clapping and hooting. Gov. Lawton Chiles said he believed it was the first display of captured Iraqi hardware in the United States.

An estimated 8,000 people turned out for the event, which organizers said was Florida's biggest military parade ever with 86 military units.

The daylong "Freedom Festival" began Thursday morning with a solemn hour-long ceremony honoring the Floridians who became casualties in the Persian Gulf war.

More than two dozen relatives of Desert Storm soldiers killed or wounded in action sat in front of a wall of yellow ribbons as they listened to speeches, songs and a gun salute. A crowd of about 300 people stood or sat on bleachers nearby.

The speeches focused on the sacrifices made by Florida troops during the Persian Gulf war but mention was also made of Vietnam, Korea and the two World Wars.

SANFORD — Thousands of people turned out last night for the Second annual People's Fireworks Extravaganza at Ft. Mellon Park along the shores of Lake Monroe.

Flag-waving men, women and children lined Seminole Boulevard and crowded into Ft. Mellon Park to cheer the bombs bursting in air. "There were a lot of people out there having a blast," said Lt. Mike Rotundo of the Sanford police department.

The fireworks ended a day-long series of activities at the lakefront, including a barbecue and an antique car show.

The People's Fireworks Extravaganza, organized by Steve Alford of Sanford, was a celebration for the Fourth of July which was financed by private donations from the community.

The city decided not to finance Independence Day celebrations last year, Alford began to look for community support for the project.

While many spectators liked the display, some were less favorable in their assessment of the 17-minute show.

The intimate, community atmosphere of the celebration exemplified what promoters say Sanford is all about.

"I like that we all pulled together to get fireworks here," said Lenora Little of Sanford. "I would not have wanted to drive all the way to Orlando to see a show. It wasn't the

Two tenants may occupy deserted plaza

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — The first tenants to occupy the Zayre's Plaza on U.S. Highway 17-92 in more than a year could move in a week or so.

Members of the Seminole County Expressway Authority, which now owns the shopping center, approved two leases Tuesday. Habitat for Humanity, which builds affordable houses for low-income people, will operate their Seminole County offices and a fund-raising flea market in the space formally occupied by Walgreens.

Habitat will pay the authority $100 per month plus 10 percent of the net proceeds of the market.

The Freedom Assembly Church will hold services in the store-front that formerly housed a 50's and 60's music nightclub. The church will pay $500 per month. Expressway director Gerald Brinton said church officials told him they will move from their current location at 1515 W. Fifth St. in Sanford, but retain that building for a daycare center. Brinton said he expects both Habitat and the church to begin preparing the spaces within a week. He said construction on the expressway likely will not begin before 1995. The shopping center became the property of the authority earlier this

SANFORD — Despite the intensified construction activity both inside and outside the building officials still do not know for sure when the old Sanford Middle School will be torn down, but they expect it to be within the next two or three weeks, according to Dan Pelham, the school's principal.

The facility on French Avenue, constructed in 1926 with additions made over the next three decades, has, according to school district officials, outlived its usefulness.

Once used as Sanford High School, the campus became a junior high school in 1960 when the new Seminole High School was built on Ridgewood Avenue in Sanford.

A new school was built last year behind the old one and students will begin using the new classrooms in the fall.

"I think we're pretty much on schedule here," Pelham said, noting that the asbestos abatement project currently underway at the school should take another few weeks.

Pelham said that the majority of the asbestos is located in underground steam pipes installed in the 1920s and 1930s. Some air condi-

Hobbled horse needs help

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Humane Society of Seminole County is issuing an urgent appeal for money to provide care for a crippled horse.

The society needs $1,500 to $3,000 for medical care and a new stall for "Tommy Meadows," a former racehorse that has a broken leg. The society is too strapped for money to pay the expenses, said society director Diane Albers.

Albers said the horse's leg was broken at the "fetlock," the joint above the left front hoof between one and three years ago and was never properly set. As a result, the hoof has grown in a backwards position, preventing the horse from using it for more than support, said society animal caretaker Carol Daniels.

Daniels said the horse doesn't seem to experience pain from using the leg, but it does bother him.

Albers said the society received Tommy Meadows about three weeks ago from a Sanford woman when a caller reported a possible abuse. Society investigators found the horse was well cared for by the woman, who gave the

The drugs were found to be crack cocaine. She was placed in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Warrant arrest

Dealing in stolen property charged

Carlton Mark Johnson, 30, of 1407 W. 14th St. in Sanford, was arrested on Wednesday.

He was charged with dealing in stolen property and with possession of cocaine.

According to the arrest report, a VCR was stolen from 1309 W. 11th St. in Sanford some time between March 30 and May 25. Police were investigating the case.

Last week, Johnson allegedly tried to sell a VCR to Loretta Sims of Lake Monroe for $35, though she did not purchase the item, Johnson allegedly left it with her.

Her mother allegedly sold the VCR to a "black male on a bike" for an undisclosed amount.

Sims reported the incident to the police.

Johnson was arrested at his home and transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he is being held on $5,000 bond.

At the time of his arrest, a piece of crack cocaine was allegedly found in his pocket.

Man arrested for trespassing

Leroy Keitt Jr. of 1327 Lake Monroe in Sanford, was arrested on Wednesday.

He is charged with trespassing after warning.

He allegedly returned to the store on Wednesday and managers called police.

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $500 bond.

Loitering charged

Annette Wilcox, 25, was arrested on Wednesday.

She was charged with loitering and prowling and resisting arrest without violence.

Wilcox was allegedly walking up and down the street near 7th Street and Cypress and would allegedly run into the nearby park area when approached by police.

When she was stopped, she allegedly had to be restrained to prevent her from hurting herself.

She is allegedly on probation for an unspecified crime.

Wilcox was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where she was held in lieu of $500 bond.

Rock throwing brings arrest

The rock allegedly hit the deputy in the head and caused a cut that required five stitches to close.

Lawson was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $500 bond.

In an unrelated incident, Lawson was also charged with drug-related loitering.

He was allegedly standing on the railroad tracks on 18th Street and Southwest Rd. allegedly trying to flag cars down.

The location is allegedly known for its drug traffic. Lawson had allegedly been warned several times about loitering at that location.

He was held without bond on this charge.

Worst budget cuts in decade darken teacher gathering

By LEE STREIBER
AP Education Writer

MIAMI BEACH — For many of the 8,000 teachers living it up here at their union's annual meeting, it's a last fling before returning home to the grimmest school budget news in more than a decade.

Delegates to the National Education Association's annual convention that opened Thursday swapped depressing tales of overcrowded classrooms, no money for textbooks, salaries frozen, wages deferred and anticipated layoffs. The convention ends Sunday.

The 2.1 million-member NEA also released a report today that accuses the federal government of falling woefully short in providing an array of educational programs to qualified students.

The report said 633,000 students were served this past school year by Head Start, an early childhood program aimed at needy children. That was far short of the 2.5 million who are eligible, according to the annual report.

On the state level, tales of deep cuts this year and fears of worse to come in September were abundant among delegates from states with the biggest budget problems, including Maine, Massachusetts, California and Florida.

"There is no textbook money in our budget next year. None. Zero," said Doug Tutthill, who teaches social studies at St. Petersburg (Fla.) High School.

"We spent our mornings this year selling candy and doughnuts to kids to have enough money to buy paper and other supplies," he said.

"In our school system, which (President) Bush says is supposed to be preparing students for the year 2000, we have no school libraries. We have no computer instruction. We've eliminated instrumental music. Our supply budget is zero. In three years we're down to 102 teachers from 150, and this fall the district has issued another 28 layoff notices," said Virginia Kirby, a 28-year veteran who teaches third grade at Conroy Elementary School in Whitman, Mass.

In Maine, which had a $1.2 billion budget gap, Ann P. Antcill, president of the Maine Teachers Association said, "For sure, 858 jobs have been cut from public schools and the university system. And by September that may rise to 1,500."

Florida teachers say class sizes are exploding in many districts as the student population grows and appropriations shrink.

"We've already lost eight out of 63 teachers at our school," said Ira George, a health education teacher at Milwee Middle School in Longwood, Fla. That means there will be 35 students in each class, but only 20 books, George said.

George's health education supply budget for September is $150, down from $500.

Even in relatively prosperous states such as Washington, teachers complain that there's not enough money to reduce class sizes to manageable levels.

"In Washington, we have 30,000 new kids coming in each year, but spending hasn't kept up," said Caris M. Nuxoll, president of the Washington Education Association, whose members staged a statewide 12-day strike in April. The strike involved more than 30,000 teachers and helped gain new state funding to lower elementary class sizes.

But those classes generally exceed 30 pupils, Nuxoll said. "I know one second-grade teacher who has 42."

Training Center properly handled sex harassment

Associated Press

ORLANDO — A Defense Department report concludes the Orlando Naval Training Center properly dealt with sexual harassment and fraternization cases, but said the number of incidents is still "unacceptably high."

"The report is very favorable to the people here in Orlando who work long and hard to make sure this center operates well and effectively," said base commander Rear Adm. Len Oden.

The department's probe, which involved 168 interviews and a review of 39 sexual assault investigations, found the base was thorough in its handling of rape cases.

Base officials now must respond in writing to the report's findings, said spokeswoman Lt. Cmdr. Nettie Johnson.

"In essence we feel that women do feel safe here and they do get education and training just as well as the men," she said.

A department survey of 2,000 women at the base found that 51 percent had experienced some form of sexual harassment. That's down from 64 percent in a 1988 study.

About 32 percent of the women surveyed at the base said they had been raped or sexually assaulted. That's compared with 43 percent of those questioned three years ago.

The report also said while investigators treated victims sensitively, they should be kept informed of their cases.

Base officials must act more quickly to resolve allegations and there must be better coordination between the Naval Investigative Service and the Family Service Center, which handle the sexual assault cases, the report said.

The report released this week quells a Navy task force's criticisms last summer that the base was lax in handling rape investigations and was inconsistent in its punishments for fraternization.

The Navy investigation last July followed allegations from a former recruit instructor that sexual assault, sexual harassment and improper social conduct between the ranks were rampant at the base.

This year four petty officers were convicted for fraternization, sexual assault and sexual harassment.

Accommodation in politics

Politics rarely makes stranger bedfellows than it is making right now in the decennial battle over congressional district boundaries. Conservative white Republicans are lining up with liberal black Democrats, to the probable detriment of white Democratic candidates.

When the remapping of districts is completed, blacks may well be in position to elect more members of their race to Congress. That would be good, in itself. As the nation's largest minority, African Americans deserve more than the 26 House seats that they occupy now.

But here's the hitch. The same rejiggering that creates black districts would unseat a lot of white Democratic incumbents who have supported legislation of particular interest to black citizens. Chances are that those citizens would have fewer friends in Congress than before.

The Republicans who succeeded ousted Democrats would be answerable, in the main, to conservative white voters. More than ever, the GOP would be the white people's party. That's a disturbing prospect, despite the positive aspects of giving blacks greater representation. Polarization of the parties along racial lines is too pronounced already; it certainly does not need to be increased.

Instead of trying to create a larger number of overwhelmingly white districts by redrawing boundaries, the GOP should concentrate on more legitimate goals. For instance, it has a perfect right to attack gerrymandering that has given the Democrats an unfair advantage in many states. And the Republicans have a duty as well as an opportunity to compete for blacks' support by attending to their needs and running black candidates.

What the GOP should avoid is the cynical game of gerrymandering along racial lines. But wasn't such mischief invited, perhaps inadvertently, by the 1982 amendments to the Voting Rights Act? That's a possibility that the courts must sort out.

Even so, the party of Lincoln, as well as the party of Jefferson, should be careful not to divide the nation along racial lines.

Sales, lies and hypocrisy

A world with fewer weapons would be a safer world. Soviets and Americans have recognized the wisdom of that idea and are doing something about it. Now, President Bush wants to extend the principle to the Middle East.

If Bush had the slightest intention of putting forth a real policy of Middle East arms control, he would deserve full support. For 40 years, no region in the world has been deadlier than the Middle East. The deadliness has not been caused by an increase in enmity, but by more and better weapons.

Whose weapons? Ours, for the most part. Since 1967, U.S. administrations have had non-discriminatory weapons policy: We will sell to anybody. Arming both sides in a conflict, Arabs and Israelis for example, is good business.

True, if we didn't sell the arms, someone else would. The Soviets surpassed us for a while in the '80s, but now have dropped back. France sold arms to Israel until 1967 and then sold to Iraq, Iran and Libya. When Congress impeded U.S. sales to Arab countries, Britain steps in. When countries are blacklisted, as Libya, Iran and Iraq have been, China is ready. The big five account for about 70 percent of all arms sales to the region.

The horse having escaped, Bush wants to bolt the barn door. He has tweaked the interest of French President Francois Mitterand, who has unveiled his own Middle East disarmament plan. A meeting of the big five arms-exporting nations is being scheduled for Paris.

If anything comes of these plans, bravo. But, as outlined recently, Bush's plan is self-righteous flatulence. He has no intention of doing more damage to the U.S. arms industry. It would not be surprising to see the arms exporters focus even more attention on Middle East sales, to make up for domestic cuts.

Morally, arms sales to poor nations (Jordan), to antagonists (Israel and Syria), even to both sides in a civil war (Lebanon), is indefensible. Nations in the Middle East all believe their security lies in newer and better weapons, not in negotiated settlement of differences.

An enforceable, generalized arms embargo, not hollow posturing, is the only way to put an end to that delusion.

Which road should Democrats take?

An extremely interesting debate is being conducted among Democratic leaders over the right direction for their party to take if it is to restore its fortunes. I am watching it with considerable sympathy, for the Republican Party conducted a very similar debate itself, years ago.

On one side is the Democratic Leadership Council, consisting of relatively conservative Democrats — Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas and Sen. Charles Robb of Virginia, for example — who believe the Democratic Party must shake off the control currently exercised over it by various powerful special-interest groups and come to be identified instead with the family values that are dear to the hearts of the American middle class.

On the other side is the Coalition for Democratic Values, represented by such staunch liberals as Ohio Sen. Howard Metzenbaum and Illinois Sen. Paul Simon. They argue that it's folly for the Democrats to try to ape the Republicans: If the American people want conservative policies they will vote Republican. The Democrats' only hope, as they see it, is to distinguish themselves sharply from the Republicans, and offer policies that are recognizably different.

All this, as I say, is keenly reminiscent of the battle waged between liberal and conservative Republicans (roughly, the Rockefeller and Goldwater camps) during the late 1950s and early '60s. As a conservative, my sympathies are with Clinton, Robb and the DLC, on the same theory that prompted The New York Times to prefer Rockefeller over Goldwater: If he prevailed, the parties would be relatively similar, and The Times would be in the happy position of winning, whichever party won the general election.

But I must admit that, in purely strategic terms, I think Metzenbaum, Simon and the CDV have the better of the argument. There is little profit for any party in merely saying "Me too." As long as conservative principles continue to command strong public support, and the Republican Party continues to espouse them, the voters will keep on putting Republicans in the Oval Office.

No less on political life is eternal.

But no less on political life is eternal, as the conservative Republicans so brilliantly demonstrated in breaking liberalism's long hold on the White House. First, they did their homework on economic theory, until they could speak knowledgeably and confidently about the benefits of a free market. Then they identified themselves with the concerns of the "social conservatives," who were formerly Democrats and Independents but were prepared to vote Republican to express their support for the "family values" and related causes. The result was the great coalition that has put the Republicans in the Oval Office for five out of the last six presidential terms.

The trouble, from the standpoint of the liberal Democrats in the CDV, is that it is going to be devilishly hard for them to imitate the conservative Republican feat. The only economic theory that they might conceivably turn to as a rival of conservatism's enthusiasm for free enterprise is some form of diluted socialism (in American terms, governmental activism), and as luck would have it socialism is badly discredited, just now, as a solution for economic problems.

Nor does any substantial segment of the Republican coalition seem ready to break loose and join the Democratic Party. Republicans who favor "abortion rights" may be uneasy with their party's policy on that issue, but it is far from clear that they are ready to switch parties.

Factory farms assemble abuse

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. — The calves specially raised to produce a gastronomic delicacy deceptively named "milk-fed veal" spend their entire lives chained in pens less than 2 feet wide and 5 feet long.

Those stalls are so small the animals cannot ever groom themselves, turn around or even lie down in a natural position. They must walk in their own urine and excrement, and inhale the ammonia gases produced by their wastes.

To minimize muscle development and accelerate weight gain, they are allowed no exercise. Instead, hundreds of calves typically are confined for their entire lives to a single darkened building in which even the flow of fresh air is restricted.

They have no access to their mothers' milk, to solid food or to drinking water. Instead, they are constantly fed a milky substance laced with assorted antibiotics.

To insure that their meat will be the premium "milk-fed" light color after slaughter, they are kept in an anemic state through the withholding of adequate iron from their diets.

That depressing description, acknowledged by industry officials to be essentially accurate, is offered by the Humane Farming Association, a small but feisty organization based in the San Francisco suburb of San Rafael.

Dedicated to the elimination of "factory farming," HFA also seeks to generate public opposition to what it says are similarly abusive practices in the commercial production of other animals relied upon for food:

Of the 95 million hogs born in this country every year, 80 percent initially are placed in under-sized cement pens or wire cages. When the pigs reach a weight of 50 pounds, they are transferred to equally confining finishing pens. The hogs remain there, with only 6 square feet of space apiece, until they are fattened to a slaughter weight of slightly more than 200 pounds.

The treatment of White Leghorns, the most popular strain of egg-laying chickens, is especially disturbing because the industry has no use for male chicks. The breed cannot be raised as broilers for human consumption and only the females can lay eggs.

"So half of all chicks hatched each year, the males, are simply tossed into plastic garbage bags," says HFA. "Though some companies gas them, most simply allow them to suffocate under the weight of other chicks dumped on top. Sometimes they are ground up for animal food — while still alive."

The surviving females have their beaks scared off by hot blades when they are 1 month old. Slightly more than two months later, they are packed into wire "battery cages" to begin their work as "layers" producing more than 250 eggs apiece per year.

Four or five hens typically are crowded into a single cage whose floor dimensions are only 12-by-18 inches. As many as 250,000 birds are housed in a single building. When their egg production starts to dwindle at the age of about 1 1/2 years, they are dispatched to slaughterhouses.

Joining HFA in its concern about such unnecessarily abusive treatment are two of the nation's oldest and most reputable animal protection groups — the Humane Society of the United States and the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals — as well as the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a widely respected Washington, D.C., organization.

At a time when "animal-rights" groups and causes are proliferating at a phenomenal rate, it becomes increasingly important to examine the motives, priorities and credentials of organizations claiming to be dedicated to the protection of virtually every known species of living creature.

Indeed, the animal-rights movement seems to attract more than its share of fanatics. They, in turn, have alienated many sensible people who have no desire to become lifelong vegetarians or who cannot endorse the wrecking of scientific facilities in retaliation for the abuse of laboratory animals.

But reform of what HFA aptly characterizes as "cruel and despicable" practices in raising the animals that produce our food is a reasonable and attainable goal.

Calves are confined for their entire lives to a single darkened building.

Does Navy pay more when it could less?

WASHINGTON — Some people have trouble taking no for an answer.

Seavac International, a San Diego company that scrapes barnacles from ships for a living, has been trying for three years to win a contract to clean the hulls for the Navy. Seavac submitted a cheap bid, not realizing that money is no object at the Pentagon. The contract went to a higher bidder.

Seavac doesn't give up that easily. The company then sued its competitor who got the contract, but still hasn't received justice. After three years and more than $3 million in legal fees, an ongoing feud between the two companies refuses to die.

In 1988 and 1989, we reported the first round of Seavac's fight. The company lost out in the bidding for a five-year, $56 million contract with the Navy for hull cleaning. The contract is small change in the world of Pentagon procurement, but it can spell life or death for the handful of companies in the barnacle business.

The contract has been held since 1979 by Seaward Marine Services of Fairfax, Va. When the Seaward contract expired in 1986, Seavac and some other small companies decided to jump into the bidding. Apparently the Navy was confused by the notion of shopping around for the best price. It took the Navy 2 1/2 years to decide who got the contract, and in the meantime, Seaward continued the work on a temporary basis. Then, in 1989, the Navy picked Seaward again, the highest bidder. At the time we asked for an explanation of that decision, but Navy officials figured they didn't owe us or the taxpayers any explanations.

Seavac President Greg Dies felt his company's resources had been wasted on a torpid bidding process that he thought was a charade, and he didn't think Seaward was offering the Navy the best deal. So he availed himself of the False Claims Act of 1986. That law allows private parties to sue other private parties on behalf of the government if they don't believe the government is watching its backside well enough.

Seavac sued Seaward on behalf of the Navy, claiming that Seaward had overcharged the Navy for many of its services. For example, Seavac claimed that Seaward was billing the Navy for per diem expenses — an allowance for lodging and meals for out-of-town employees — when the employees actually lived in the area where the work was being done. Seavac also claimed that Seaward billed the Navy for per diem and "mobilization" expenses on the same day. Mobilization charges are the equivalent of per diem on a day that the company moves to a new work site. In other words, Seavac thought that the Navy was paying Seaward's people to move and to stay at the same time.

The federal jury that heard the case agreed with Seavac and in April concluded that Seaward had submitted 886 false claims to the Navy with damages totaling nearly $2.3 million. But the story doesn't end there. The judge was supposed to set the final damages for Seaward, but instead, he overturned the verdict saying that the evidence didn't support it. In spite of what the jury thought, Seavac has now appealed the judge's ruling.

Meanwhile, the Navy sits on the sidelines in silence, unwilling to dirty its hands in Seavac's lonely crusade. It wouldn't be a party to Seavac's suit despite the fact that it and the taxpayers stand to gain if Seavac wins.

There was only one issue on which the Navy was willing to answer our questions. That was the issue of Seaward President Duke Armstrong and his other ties to the Navy.

An ongoing feud between the two companies refuses to die.

best show I've ever seen, but it was ours."

"Ooh!" squealed five-year-old Tiffani Bennett of Longwood, as a collage of golden dots transformed into a burst of color. "That's so pretty."

Tiffani's mother, Seida, said she liked the fact that officials kept viewers far away from the dedication site.

"It's safer farther away," she said. "And not so noisy."

An Altamonte Springs woman complained about poor visibility.

"What we can see is OK," said Carol Conway. "I think they should have done them from a barge or something out on the water."

Families nestled together on blankets munching on hot dogs and pointing skyward in admiration of this or that burst of color in the smoky sky.

Almost every group of people gathered along Seminole Boulevard had sparklers or other personal fireworks, but most of the small pyrotechnics were put aside in deference to the larger show.

"I came to see the real show," Dot Lender of Oviedo said. "We can do the little fireworks at home."

While many had some complaints, some were truly impressed with the light show.

Laurence Bradley of Sanford said he had seen many fireworks displays over the years and thought last night's was less than spectacular.

"But I know it's expensive to do a show and the organizers were counting on us to help pay for the show," he acknowledged, admitting that he had not donated to the cause.

Joanne Klang of Lake Monroe said she had sent a dollar to Steve Alford to help pay for the celebration.

Ed Lewis climbed a fire truck ladder yesterday at Flea World, where he will spend four days in order to raise donations for Sanford resident Nancy Dukes, who needs $75,000 for a heart transplant.

There's nothing like feeling the sun on your back and biting into an ice cold slab of watermelon on a hot Fourth of July. Charlie Phillips, left, Sanford, and Keith Marrow, Osteen, did just that yesterday while participating in a variety of festivities in Sanford in honor of Independence Day.

"I don't have much money, but the community needed help to be able to do this," she said. "I got my dollar's worth."

Ronnie Cossin of Altamonte Springs, who said he'll be back next year if there is a show, said that the spectacle was an improvement over last year's show. "Last year was awful," he said. "I guess this was better."

Patriotism showers celebrations

By KAREN SCHWARTZ

The nation's 215th Independence Day was as much about the Persian Gulf War as the Revolutionary War, as troops marched and fireworks exploded in the shapes of red stars and yellow bows.

In communities large and small, July Fourth was celebrated with a fervor unseen in years.

"I've never seen so many people in a little town like this. Everybody must have turned out, plus the dogs and cats," said Ray DeArton, of Cando, N.D., population 1,500.

In Buffalo, N.Y., Army Sgt. Elaine Decker, a Gulf War medic, said "the Fourth has a new, special meaning when you've been in a war."

There were braiches and parks closed by state budget cuts, and a scattering of arrests and protests, but overall, Americans celebrated Thursday with parades and picnics, barbecues and carnivals.

The festivities included rubber duck races in Miami, Okla., arm wrestling in Willamina, Ore., and the annual hot dog-eating contest on New York's Coney Island.

President Bush and his wife, Barbara, attended festivities in Marshall, Mo., before riding in a parade in Grand Rapids, Mich., and then returning to the White House.

The driver of the vehicle, identified as Derrick Hayes, 30, 1809 W. 14th Street, said he was unable to avoid hitting Seymour. "He was running across the street," Hayes said, "and I blew my horn and slowed up."

Hayes continued, "He slowed up, then he ran in front of me. He had to have seen me but he kept on running. I have no idea of what he might have been thinking about."

Sanford Police Lt. Mike Rotundo said that Seymour was apparently breathing on his own and able to speak as he was being loaded into the emergency helicopter.

Albers said veterinary surgeons at the University of Florida in Gainesville will examine the 12-year-old stallion Wednesday. The society needs money for local medical care and for shelter. She said the society's horse stalls have been kicked down. Tommy Meadows is currently sharing a "We'd been looking at a mid-July date for the demolition all along. If we don't hit that right on, we're pretty close."

Peterson read a list of 18 Persian Gulf casualties. A couple of the relatives then called out names and the congressman walked over to them and took down their information. After returning to the podium, he apologized and read three more names.

Chiles said a "freedom flame" lit Thursday would honor not only the Floridians killed in the Gulf but all those who died for freedom in the last 200 years.

"This flame is going to remind us that there is a price to freedom," the governor said.

The flame lit Thursday was temporary, installed while design work continues on a permanent memorial. Organizers planned to extinguish the flame Thursday night and then relight it in a few months when the project is completed.

After the ceremony, clowns came out with balloons, lemonade stands opened for business and people staked out areas to watch the parade.

One parade watcher who was taking pictures of placelocthes agents from the state Division of Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco was taken away in handcuffs.

Slovenia agrees to free POWs

By SLOBODAN LEKIC

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Slovenians said today it had complied with a federal demand to lift the blockades at Yugoslav military bases in the breakaway republic and agreed to free federal army prisoners.

But the secessionist republic defied orders from Yugoslavia's collective presidency to withdraw its forces from combat positions facing the federal army led by commanders from Communist Serbia.

In Croatia, more clashes broke out Thursday between ethnic Serbs and Croatian militiamen. Two guardsmen were reported killed and five wounded.

Non-communist Croatia and Slovenia, the two northernmost republics, both declared independence June 25. Croatia has been spared army attacks, partly because it has been far more cautious in implementing independence plans.

Battles since July 27 between the lightly armed Slovenian militia and federal troops backed by tanks and warplanes have left about 90 people dead and hundreds wounded, the Slovenes claim.

A flurry of diplomatic efforts took place today to resolve the crisis.

The 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, meeting in Prague, Czechoslovakia, agreed today to support a European Community observer mission to monitor the truce.

Brenda officials said the authority's plans to extend the expressway through their property drove away existing and potential tenants. The authority settled with Brenda officials in May by purchasing the center for $3 million.

In other discussions, Brinton said Florida Power Corp. officials told him they won't be able to use the expressway route for their proposed DeBarry-to-Winter Springs powerline. He said officials told him there were too many difficulties in crossing Lake Jesup. Also, the U.S. 17-92 to Interstate 4 link of the expressway won't be built before they need their powerline in 1995.

Thomas: Advocate of self-help

By JOHN KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Raised by devout Catholic grandparents and schooled by nuns, Clarence Thomas was drawn to the seminary. But in turbulent times for black Americans, he was too troubled to stay.

"Dogs were being sicked on blacks," he recalled in 1985 of the South during the 1960s, "and the church was focusing on what songs to play at services."

So he headed to Holy Cross College. The Jesuit school in Massachusetts had only a few dozen black students, and Thomas soon found himself a leader of the Black Student Union.

Former classmates remember Thomas as a reasoned voice of activism. He helped lead a takeover of the administration building to protest the lack of black faculty and black studies, and a walkout to protest the suspension of four blacks after an anti-war protest.

"Clarence was always cool and even-headed," said Eddie Jenkins, a Boston attorney who was in the Black Student Union with Thomas. "Clarence did not believe in violence but believed in constructive tension. He knows conflict very well."

Thomas, nominated to succeed Thurgood Marshall on the Supreme Court, went on from these early experiences to become a self-help advocate with a disdain for affirmative action and other programs sought by Marshall and many in the civil rights movement.

Thomas, now a federal appeals court judge, makes no secret of his opposition to hiring quotas and timetables, or to public assistance that does not require work of able individuals.

"I don't think you could ever compensate our race for what happened," Thomas once said. "I think we are just wasting a lot of energy."

In his speeches and interviews, Thomas derides minority set-asides, enterprise zones, and the belief that government can teach family values. He argues that unless blacks help themselves climb, they will indirectly encourage racism.

King museum honors soldiers who fought civil rights battles

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — On a day when many Americans paid tribute to veterans of the Gulf War, some gathered to honor Martin Luther King Jr. and others whose blood was shed in pursuit of civil rights.

Thursday's ceremony capped five days of events dedicating The National Civil Rights Museum, on the site where King was slain in 1968.

pays tribute to the men and women of Desert Storm, so do we. But today, we also honor the veterans of the civil rights movement. Their blood was shed pursuing freedom on American soil," said D'Army Bailey, president of a citizens' group largely responsible for the museum.

The $9.2 million museum was built at the Lorraine Hotel, where King was shot to death by James Earl Ray.

Unemployment rate could rise despite growth

By KAREN BALL
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration, searching for bright economic news to confirm an end to the recession, admits there's a chance the nation's unemployment rate could rise further even though U.S. companies appear to be hiring again.

Michael Boskin, the president's chief economic adviser, has warned that the jobless rate could go up, even if businesses are adding employees. That's because payroll gains might not keep pace with the growth in the labor force, or the number of people newly hunting jobs or returning to the work force.

"So we would expect the turnaround in the unemployment rate to be later on in the year; we don't expect that to occur quickly," Boskin said recently. Still, he said it appears the recession has now ended.

The White House and private analysts will get their first look at how the U.S. economy performed in June with today's release of the unemployment report from the Labor Department.

In advance of the report, most analysts predicted the unemployment rate probably rose to 7 percent in June, up from May's rate of 6.9 percent.

However, they were expecting that a separate survey probably showed that U.S. businesses added 50,000 jobs or more in June, which would be the second consecutive month of jobs growth.

Before the May turnaround in hiring practices, U.S. companies had laid off 1.7 million workers since the recession started in July 1980 — the worst stretch of mass layoffs since the 1981-82 recession.

Marlin souvenirs to go on sale

MIAMI — The first game for Miami's new baseball team is 21 months away, but the first pitch — for souvenirs — will come much sooner. "There's going to be a huge demand for product, and we want to make sure we can satisfy it," said Rick White, president of Major League Baseball Properties. "Merchandise will be on the marketplace two or three days after formal unveiling of the team logo." The T-shirts, caps and pennants may go on sale next week: final approval of National League expansion bids by Miami and Denver is expected today. The vote was delayed more than three weeks by American League owners unhappy with plans for next year's expansion draft.

With the result a foregone conclusion, today's vote could prompt more yawns than yahoos. "Maybe the excitement peaked sometime prior to right now," said John Cordrey, who works for a group of prominent Miami civic and business leaders. "It will be a fact now, versus 'we think it's going to happen.'" Official Miami's reaction is further tempered by the prospect that the team will not be named after the city. Because prospective owner H. Wayne Huizenga wants a strong regional identity, Florida Marlins is the likely label.

Marlin on Pepsi pole position

DAYTONA BEACH — Sterling Marlin followed his dad's advice all the way to the pole for Saturday's Pepsi 400. Marlin turned in the fastest lap in Thursday's qualifying — 190.331 mph — to win a Winston Cup pole for the first time in his career. The performance at Daytona International Speedway was no surprise: Marlin's Ford had been the fastest car in practice the day before. That's when he consulted with his father, former NASCAR driver Clifton "Coo Coo" Marlin. "I talked to him (that) night and told him it was running fast," Marlin recalled. "And he said, 'Don't y'all mess it up.'" "I said, 'We ain't going to touch it. We're going to leave it like it is and go back out and qualify.'" Davey Allison will start next to Marlin in the front row; his qualifying speed was 189.909. Harry Gant was next fastest at 189.865.

Mahomes paces SunRays

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — Pat Mahomes picked up his eighth win of the season by striking out 11 and giving up four hits in eighth innings as the Orlando SunRays beat the Huntsville Stars 6-1. Orlando (41-40) opened up the scoring Thursday in the third when Carlos Capellan doubled and then scored on an error. In the sixth, the SunRays scored twice more. Cheo Garcia doubled home Shawn Gilbert and later Bob McCreary scored on a wild pitch. Huntsville (33-51) closed the gap to 3-1 in the sixth on a triple by Scott Shockey, who scored on Troy Neal's sacrifice fly. Orlando scored its final three runs in the ninth.

Knights overtake Suns

FORT MILL, S.C. — Elvin Paulino hit a two-run double in the eighth inning as the Charlotte Knights topped the Jacksonville Suns 5-3 Thursday night. Paulino broke a 3-3 tie when he knocked in Alex Arias and Kevin Roberson with his double. Arias and Roberson had both singled. Charlotte took a 1-0 lead in the third when Mike Grace singled, Fernando Ramsey walked and Arias scored Grace with a single. Jacksonville came back in the top half of the fifth. Jim Bowie doubled and moved to third on a groundout. Jim Campanis scored Bowie with a sacrifice fly. Jeff Wetherby's third homer of the year gave the Suns a 2-1 lead.

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department will hold its first Junior/Senior Girls Slowpitch Softball League Awards Ceremony on Saturday, July 20, at Ft. Mellon Park.

Jim Adams, Recreation Supervisor and league director, has set up a day of food, fun and celebration for the sponsors, coaches, players and fans of the revamped girls' softball leagues.

At the center of the celebration will be a triphibious of games at the Ft. Mellon Softball Field. The first game, scheduled to begin at 9 a.m., will feature two All-Star teams chosen from the Junior Girls League.

At 10:45 a.m. there will be a game between the Team "A" Senior Girls League All-Stars and the Team "B" Senior Girls All-Stars. That will be followed at noon by a game between a team made up of Sanford Recreation Department staff members and the league's coaches and a team consisting of the parents of the league's players.

The Team "A" Senior Girls League All-Stars will be coached by Bob Howard and Lila Cox, who led R.M. Howard & Associates to the league championship, and Teresa Walburger and Jackie Suggs, who coached Longwood Marine this season.

Named to Team "A" were Yolanda Cox, Yvonne Cosby, Elizabeth Howard, Carmen Ramos, Bambi Pate, Eureka Harkness and Angela Arnold from R.M. Howard & Associates; and Marcia Riggins, Lashunda Anderson, Angela Byrd, Lamika Harris and Shaquonda Peterson from Longwood Marine.

Leading the Team "B" Seniors Girls League All-Stars will be Willie Ingram, who guided the Kiwanis Club squad, and Willie Robinson and Pricilla Peterson, who coached the Optimist Club of Lake Mary team.

Howard & Associates in the Senior Girls and the Optimist Club of Sanford in the Junior Girls — will be awarded their trophies.

The awards ceremony will also feature the official announcement of the start of the Fall League. The Fall League will feature two leagues, one for girls 12-and-under and the other for girls 16-and-under, with a scheduled starting date of Saturday, Sept. 7.

After the awards ceremony will be a covered dish picnic in Ft. Mellon Park. Each player is encouraged to bring a covered dish to the picnic. Several local businesses will supply the main course and drinks.

Bullets lead winners into today's play

By ROBBIE STOCK

LONGWOOD — As the Bullets took the field against Daytona Beach Thursday night, many fans expected the nightcap of the July 4th Invitational baseball tournament's first round to be a blowout.

Considering that the Daytona squad had two junior college players and numerous high school graduates on its roster while the Bullets' roster consists entirely of Lyman High School underclassmen, a tight game didn't appear imminent.

And it wasn't, the contest being decided by the fifth inning.

However, it wasn't Daytona that crushed the ball around Lyman Stadium or received any sort of quality pitching. But the Bullets did as they rolled into today's second round with an 11-5 romp.

"We played well," said Bullet coach Bob McCullough, whose team improved to 12-5 with the win. "We seem to play better against better competition."

In other first-round action Thursday, Dr. Phillips shut down Lake Mary 5-1, the Sanford American Legion Post 53 Orioles crushed Lake Howell 9-0 and Lake Brantley defeated Oviedo 5-0.

Today's schedule opens with two elimination games, Lake Mary playing Lake Howell at 11 a.m. and Daytona Beach tackling Oviedo at 2 p.m. Lake Brantley and Seminole will clash at 5 p.m. before Dr. Phillips and the Bullets take the field at 8 p.m.

Against Daytona Beach Thursday night, the Bullets came through with possibly their best performance of the summer, spraying hits

Nice catch

Jeffrey Williams of Longwood had great success on a recent fishing trip in Key West, earning a citation from the Key West Fishing Tournament for catching this 46-pound sailfish. Williams, who used 50-pound tackle to land the fish, was aboard the Amorous A.J., captained by Bill Robinson. The Key West Fishing Tournament, an annual event that runs from May through November, offers trophies, citations and plaques for catches like this. There are also sportsmanship awards for releasing fish.

Little League All-Stars begin trek

By TONY DESORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

Talk about your shotgun starts. Or to be more precise, the opening of the Little League Baseball District 14 All-Star area tournaments this evening will be more like a scattergun start.

Since District 14 encompasses 22 leagues over four counties — Seminole, Orange, Volusia and Lake — and that of those 22 leagues, four have American and National divisions, resulting in a total of 26 teams, the district tournament is broken up into four area sub-tournaments to make it more manageable.

And in attempt to "spread the wealth," as it were, the 19 first-round games scheduled for tonight in the Little (11 and 12) and Senior (14 and 15) League age groups will be played at 14 different sites over those four counties.

That's not counting the Junior League (13) division, which doesn't begin play until Monday. Now for the good news.

The way that District 14 administrator Jim Hovis and his staff have it worked out, a team does not play against another team or at a field outside of its assigned area of the district until the final round of the tournament.

For family, friends, fans and supporters of Seminole County's three leagues, that means their teams will play in Areas 2 and 3 of the district tournament.

The Altamonte Springs Americans and Oviedo Americans will play in Area 2 along with Apopka-West Seminole, Pine Hills, Rolling Hills and Windermere. Area 3 includes the Altamonte Springs Nationals, Oviedo Nationals and Casselberry as well as the Deltona Nationals, Dr. Phillips Nationals, Eustis and Mount Dora.

Playing in Area 1 are Clermont-Minneola, Dr. Phillips Americans, Ocoee, South Orange, Southwest Orlando and Winter Garden. Area 4 consists of DeLand, Deltona Americans, Lake Helen, Northwest Volusia, Southwest Volusia, South Daytona and St. John's River.

Stich puts sudden end to Courier's European swing

By ROBERT MILLWARD
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England — Jim Courier's whirlwind European Tour ended Thursday when he was blown off the court by big-serving Michael Stich in the Wimbledon quarterfinals.

Having won the French Open title on the slow, red clay of Paris a month ago, Courier tried to adapt his game to the faster grass courts of Wimbledon.

The fourth-seeded American battled his way to the final eight before running into Stich, the man he beat in the French Open semifinals. But the sixth-seeded German served 15 aces and won 6-3, 7-6(7-2), 6-2.

"He was serving just monstrous and his returns were pretty effective as well," said Courier, who was born in Sanford but now lives in Dade City. "It really was just a matter of him being just more comfortable on the surface." Courier was still upbeat about his showing.

"It has been a bit of a whirlwind this past month and a half," he said. "It's really been great. I had never gotten past the fourth round in a Grand Slam."

"I couldn't be a whole lot happier with how this European swing has gone. If you'd given me the option at the beginning of the tournament and said, 'Look, you can take a quarterfinal right now, or we'll put you in the draw and see how you do,' I would have said 'I'm going to have that quarterfinal, I'm going home.'"

Switching from clay to grass in a month is probably the toughest transition in tennis. Bjorn Borg was the last man to win the French Open and Wimbledon in the same year, achieving the feat for a third time in 1981.

Courier said he was pleased with the way he made the switch.

"I'm pleased with the direction my game is heading," he said. "I feel I'm becoming a more complete player. I still have a long way to go. You will never be a complete player, but you work on perfecting all your shots."

One of five young Americans aiming to replace Stefan Edberg, Boris Becker and Ivan Lendl at the top of the world rankings, Courier sees a bright future for his countrymen.

Pete Sampras is the U.S. Open champion. Michael Chang also has won the French title. Andre Agassi has been in two Grand Slam finals and David Wheaton on Thursday moved into the semifinals with his victory over Agassi.

"I think it's a really positive thing for the tennis movement in America, to have a group of players coming up," Courier said. "And the thing that's really nice about our group is that we're five very different individuals."

"If you're a religious person, you can look at Michael and say, 'God, he's my idol.' If you like the show business side of it, you can say 'Andre, a great player.'"

"I'm your blue collar kind of guy," Courier said. "They'd love me in Pittsburgh for sure."

War memorabilia displayed

By LACY DODSON
Herald People Editor

SANFORD — It all started with a worn flag, held together with scotch tape and staples, flying in front of the Seminole County Historical Museum.

Now the museum not only has a new flag flapping in front of the building, but it has an extensive collection of war memorabilia, loaned to the museum for the summer from the private collection of F. J. "Bud" Tobin, who is the man Darale Sharf, museum aid, convinced at the American Legion in Sanford to replace the museum's flag.

"We feel very fortunate it happened this way. The collection is such an asset at this time," Sharf said.

Museum Curator Lorraine Whiting explained how Tobin visited the museum to donate the badly needed flag.

"The flag was the key that triggered the display. We began discussing his collection. It was so appropriate at this time with the emphasis on returning Desert War troops," Whiting said.

Tobin said he is pleased to loan a portion of the collection, which has never been on display to the public, to the museum.

"I came in here and saw how great this place is and how many wonderful things are on display, and I decided it would be a good idea," Tobin said.

Tobin's collection chronicles seven wars, including the Revolutionary War, Civil War, Indian War, Spanish-American War, War of 1812, World Wars I and II, Vietnam and Desert Storm, his latest target for acquisitions.

"That's what I'm searching for," he said, even though he admitted his "War Room" at home is full, right down to the bulging closet. "I'll make room," he chuckled.

Tobin pointed out some of his favorite mementos in the display he and his son, Timothy, once an assistant curator for a military museum, lovingly assembled for Whiting. They are even crafting five mannequins from wood to display military uniforms. The dressed mannequins should be in place within a month, Tobin said.

"All of these are my favorites. But I do have some special favorites," he said, pointing to the 852 check endorsed in 1946 by Sgt. Alvin C. York and made out to Curt Hatfield, who was part of the famous Hatfield and McCoy feud. York received the Congressional Medal of Honor during World War I for capturing and killing hundreds of the enemy, Tobin explained.

Tobin is fond of the signatures he has collected, including flying ace Pappy Boyington's. An original 13-star flag graces the museum's wall. Sabres, pistols and rifles are mounted on another wall. Hand grenades, razors and strops, and a hand crafted clay doll under glass fill display cases. A newspaper dated May 12, 1794, is still intact.

"There's a section in that paper that reports everything Congress did daily for a whole week. It was no different in 1794 than it is now. They talk, talk, talk, refer things to committees and no votes are taken," Tobin joked.

Tobin served in the Marine Corps during World War II. His father, a World War I veteran, joined again during World War II and served with his son. Tobin's three sons all served in Vietnam. He said he felt, with patriotism at an all-time high after victory in the Persian Gulf, it was time to share his collection.

"I would like young people to Museum Curator Lorraine Whiting and Bud Tobin discuss a beaver skin officer's hat, on display at the Seminole County Historical Museum this summer.

learn more about what their parents, grandparents and great-grandparents went through. Desert Storm was a great victory for patriotism. It was fantastic the way the government and politicians allowed the military to run the war.

Those young men and women now walk along with great pride and I feel just as patriotic as they do about my country. God bless America," he said, gesturing toward his collection that is a small glimpse of how it was kept free from its enemies.

Parents' answer may be new will

DEAR ABBY: Our son has not spoken to us in four years. He is our only child, and we live in the same city. We had a misunderstanding over a petty incident, and he has ignored us ever since. He is married and has a teen-aged son.

We are not rich, but we do have some assets that have appreciated over the years. Our son and his family are our only heirs. We are considering re-writing our wills and leaving our son out of it. As for our grandson, we hardly know him because we haven't seen him in four years.

We would appreciate any advice you can give us. We trust your judgment.

WITHHOLD OUR NAME, PLEASE

DEAR WITHHOLD: Either write to your son or call him and tell him you want to talk to him about your will — that will probably bring him to your door in a hurry. If and when he shows up, try to settle your differences peacefully, so you can be a family again.

ADVICE

I hope he agrees to bury the hatchet, but if for some reason he is not willing, you would be justified in writing him off.

Please don't punish your grandson. He's the innocent victim of his father's anger. Give him a chance to establish some kind of rapport with you, and if he is a decent, caring young man, remember him generously in your will.

Otherwise, talk with your attorney about leaving everything to your favorite charities. And don't forget your local animal shelter. Animals want nothing from you but love.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is attracted to a pretty waitress at our favorite restaurant. We eat there at least once a week. She flirts openly with him and he loves it.

I have tried not to let it bother me, but she is getting very pushy. She compliments him on his hair, his eyes, his smile, and he eats it up. As soon as we come in, she comes to our booth and says, "I have a new joke for you," then she tells a dirty joke, and he breaks up laughing.

I suppose it's my husband's fault because he could tell her to get lost, but he doesn't.

I guess what really bothers me is the way he enjoys her company. He cheated on me once and it really hurt me, and I don't want to go through that again.

How do I deal with this situation? Don't tell me that we should stop going to that restaurant. It's very convenient, the food is good and the price is right. Please help me.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Level with your husband. Tell him you are hurt when he pays so much attention to the waitress. Obviously she is trying to be entertaining, but she is out of line. If she didn't get so much encouragement, she'd back off.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman who has enjoyed your column in the Tampa Tribune for many years. I am in my mid-30s, stand 5 feet 11 inches, weigh 155 and appear to be as strong as an ox, so because of my size, I am asked to do some jobs you wouldn't ask a professional mover to do without a helper.

I clean houses for a living, and my clients ask, "Would you please move that hutch (fully loaded), or the refrigerator, or the king-size bed, or a huge dresser, and clean behind it today?" This has gone on for 10 years, and until just recently, I never had the right answer to give to these clods until one day it hit me!

Now when I am asked to move the piano or the refrigerator, I ask sweetly, "Do you have enough insurance to cover any injury I may get from moving this?" They get the picture real fast.

When I worked in an office in my early 20s, I was asked to move desks, filing cabinets and haul in boxes that had been delivered. No more! Sign me...

AIN'T NO OK

DEAR AIN'T: Thanks for a great letter as well as a valuable suggestion for big women who, because of their size, are asked to do more than their job descriptions call for.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law's behavior is sometimes very puzzling to me. She will bake (or buy) some sort of pastry or dessert to take with her when invited to a get-together for a special occasion. (Birthday, anniversary, housewarming, etc.)

When the get-together is over, she always goes to the kitchen and packs up whatever is left over from her "offering" and takes it home with her. Trying to get her to leave even a portion of it is like pulling teeth!

I'm embarrassed when she does this in front of my family, or even her own children. My husband and I feel that whatever she brings to the home of another is a gift, and she has no right to take home even a part of it.

CONFUSED

IN MARIPOSA, CALIF. DEAR CONFUSED: The leftovers should be left — unless, of course, the host or hostess insists that the donor take them home. And by the way, when one takes a "goody" to the home of another, it would be very thoughtful to bring it on a paper plate, a box, or some other type of disposable container that need not be returned.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90089. All correspondence is confidential.)

Face Forward With GOD

It appears that this young equestrian would benefit from additional riding lessons! Who ever heard of riding a horse backward? Someone should advise her to face forward if she expects to reach her destination.

Yet, how many of us make the same mistake as we journey through our lives... looking backward instead of forward. We may lose sight of our goals, if we are blinded by the fear of repetition of past hurts and regrets.

Face the future without fear, trusting in God. Psalms 37:23-24 assures us saying, "the steps of a man are established by the Lord;... when he falls, he shall not be hurled headlong because the Lord is the One who holds his hand."

Make your decision to face forward with trust, not backward with fear, as you praise God this week in your chosen house of worship.

IN BRIEF

Local leaders to be honored at PBC

SANFORD — The First Baptist Church of Sanford has notified people in key leadership positions of the upcoming events that will take place in their honor at the church during the month of July.

On July 7, law enforcement officers from the Sanford Police Department, the Sanford and Seminole County fire departments, the Seminole County Sheriff's office, the Florida Highway Patrol and the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission will be honored with certificates of appreciation at 10:15 a.m. at the church.

July 14 will be Healthcare Workers Day. Employees of hospitals and health care facilities will be honored at 10:15 a.m. on that day.

July 21 will be set aside to honor government workers. Representatives of the city commissioners, county commissioners, U.S. House of Representatives, the Florida State Senate, the State House of Representatives and Bettye Smith, mayor of Sanford, will all be honored by the church members at 10:15 a.m.

July 28 will be recognized as Sanford Merchants Day. Local business men and women will be given certificates at the church at 10:15 a.m.

Party at Holy Cross

SANFORD - Holy Cross Episcopal Church, 410 Magnolia Ave. in Sanford, will be having an Independence Day party on Sunday, July 7 beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Church members will be performing in a talent show. There will be a covered dish supper and, maybe even homemade ice cream.

Go to the zoo with the pastor

SANFORD — Youngsters who are members of the First Presbyterian Church, 301 Oak Ave. in Sanford, are being invited to spend the day with the pastor at the zoo.

The children will meet at the church at 10 a.m. and go to the Central Florida Zoological Park where they will spend several hours and have lunch.

Saturday morning mind control

LONGWOOD — Phil Phillips, a nationally-known expert on child psychology, will speak at the Wekiva Assembly, 1675 Dixon Rd. in Longwood on Sunday, July 14 at 10:30 a.m.

Phillips has written a book called "Saturday Morning Mind Control" in which he says Saturday morning cartoons reflect religious undertones from Buddhism to Satanism. He also said that advertising during Saturday morning cartoons should be carefully screened by parents.

Phillips will offer advice to parents on how to buy toys for their children.

Thank God for your freedoms

Which way America? What a profound question! Can you imagine with me for just a few moments the endless numbers of responses that you might hear on the streets of Seminole County if a survey were conducted.

Not only would the responses be numerous but they would vary.

As we celebrate this Independence Day we acknowledge the birthday of the United States of America.

The founders of the new nation considered Independence Day an important occasion for rejoicing.

John Adams said, "I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward for evermore."

Praise God John Adams wasn't afraid of acknowledging God Almighty in his historical statement.

Today, Christians are afraid of acknowledging God Almighty through Jesus Christ and the power of the Holy Ghost in public for fear of being sued.

A good modern day example would be what happened to the board of trustees, teachers, and students at SCC who were offended and took a stand at the showing of the Last Temptation of Christ. It makes one wonder if Christians have rights in America?

The last time I read the Bill of Rights they still protected a person's right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

I strongly encourage you as a Christian to read them too. The first eight amendments to the Constitution contain the fundamental rights and freedom of every citizen. Amendments 9 and 10 forbid Congress from adopting laws that would violate these rights.

But the Supreme Court of the United States has held that these rights have some limits.

For example, freedom of speech does not protect a person who shouts "Fire" in a crowded theater when there is no fire. Yet the government must respect these freedoms in all but extreme circumstances.

The Supreme Court has held that freedom of speech may be limited only when its exercise creates a "clear and present danger" to society. It would do all good to read Gibbon's book, "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire." In his book, he lists three reasons for the fall of Rome: natural calamities, the inner rot and decay of society, and the invasion of the barbarians.

As Americans we would be wise to take heed to this historical example.

You may ask why? A nation is only as strong as its people! The people are only as strong as its relationship and fellowship to God!

Which way America? What a tremendous challenge this presents for the Church today.

Psalm 80: 8-19 tells us something of the history of Israel, and it leaves the modern day church lessons for today.

Israel is here compared to a vine, and under this figure some experiences of her history are referred to. This chapter brings before us:

I. The God Almighty planting the Church. (Verse 9)
a. "Thou has brought a vine out of Egypt"

II. The Great Progress of the Church. (Verse 9)
a. "It fills the land"
III. The devastating failure of the Church. (Verse 10)
a. "It bore no fruit"
IV. The mournful devastation of the Church. (Verse 12)
a. "God withdrew His defense from them"
V. The earnest prayer of the Church. (Verses 14-18)
a. "The church begins to cry out of God"
VI. The devout promise of the Church. (Verses 19)
a. "The church takes a stand to persevere and praise"
Let individual Christians and churches take heed of this beacon.

As individuals, "do we have the fruit of holiness in our life?" In this passage we have a striking analog of the planting, privileges, and progress of the Church. Let us see to it that the analog does not become true as regards to fruitlessness; for if it should, our defense will be gone, and we shall be wasted and destroyed by our enemies.

If any have backslidden from the ways of the Lord, let them seek Him at once in repentance and prayer.

Which way America? That question depends upon the churches response to God!

The Rev. Floyd Blake Jr. is Pastor, First Baptist Church of Sanford, 510 Park Avenue.

Understanding the words in church

By GEORGE R. FLAHERTY
Associated Press Writer

It was like something out of the Old World.

When I parked in front of the little neighborhood confectionery across from the Croatian Catholic church at 9:45 on this Sunday morning, small groups of people were standing at the bottom of the church steps, talking and enjoying each other's company.

There were old people and young families with small children in tow. Everybody seemed to feel at home.

I was church editor of a large metropolitan paper at the time. I would attend a different church each Sunday and report my impressions in a Monday column called "A Stranger Goes to Church."

The service at this Croatian church was just about to begin when I realized I had come to the Croatian-language service. The English service was at 11:30. But I decided to stay.

I don't understand a word of Croatian but I didn't have to. Words can sometimes get in the way when it comes to conveying a religious, other-worldly feeling. It is the impression a worship service makes on the worshippers, rather than the words spoken, that is most important.

I may not have understood the words at this service but I was able to catch the spirit. The words didn't matter. So often they don't.

I of course had no idea what the sermon was all about, but there can be a certain fascination about listening to a language you don't understand. Its very disconnectedness with the world of all things familiar can transport the listener into another realm.

When the service was over I was curious to see that effect the same service in English would have on me. I had a cup of coffee at the confectionery across the street and returned for the 11:30 mass.

The English service, which had no music, was almost bleak. I now understood every word of the sermon. But I was dismayed to discover that what had sounded so lofty and sublime to me in Croatian was actually the priest giving a sharp scolding to the congregation (particularly the men) for not offering to help more with the coming weekend's parish bazaar and picnic.

"Some of you don't lift a finger in this parish beyond going to mass," the pastor told them. "I suppose some of you are saying,

'If you're going to talk like that, Father, don't count on me to help.' Well, if that's the way you feel, don't come."

It was a real old-fashioned dressing down.

As the parishioners were filing out when the mass was over, I noticed that three people were still sitting in the church. I wondered why they had stayed. Maybe they too were tired of words and just wanted to be with God and be quiet.

I thought of a story about a peasant who used to come into the parish church in his village in Italy and sit for hours each day just looking up at Christ on the cross.

One day the padre said to him, "What do you say to our Lord all day, my friend?"

"I say just nothing at all," replied the old soul. "I only look at him and he looks at me." Sometimes words are unnecessary.

I love to tell a story

Diet controls celiac or gluten sensitivity

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with celiac disease and have begun a gluten-free diet. Do you have any information on the disease that will help me?

DEAR READER: Celiac disease is an inherited sensitivity to gluten, a cereal protein found in wheat, rye, barley and oats.

Many patients exhibit no symptoms, other than occasional bloating and diarrhea. However, in some people, it causes chronic diarrhea, pale and malodorous stools, anemia, weight loss, rash, abdominal discomfort and malabsorption of dietary nutrients.

The diagnosis is suspected by the symptoms (and X-ray tests of the intestine), and confirmed by a biopsy of the jejunum (part of the small intestine).

Treatment consists of assiduous avoidance of gluten in any form. This may be difficult because the protein is widely used in processed foods, such as soups, sauces and hot dogs.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter has cervical dysplasia. Please explain what it is and the recommended treatment.

DEAR READER: Dysplasia means cells that are abnormal in size, shape and appearance. Apparently, your daughter had a Pap test that showed dysplasia of the cells of the cervix, the opening of the uterus.

Such cells could indicate chronic irritation or infection — or, in some cases, cervical dysplasia may be a forerunner of cancer. Therefore, when faced with this problem, most gynecologists recommend further testing, such as a cone biopsy. During this office procedure, part of the cervix is cut away and examined under a microscope in an attempt to identify deep-seated cancer cells that could be associated with dysplasia.

Fortunately for most women, the presence of dysplasia does

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

For a country of some 15 million, Australia has done remarkably well in international bridge events. One driving force in popularizing the game there was Hans Rosendorff, who died in 1983. His efforts were all the more meritorious because he lived in Perth, on the isolated west coast of the vast continent. (It is 2,694 miles from Perth to Sydney.)

He related in a 1963 issue of Bridge Magazine how he played today's hand. At all 10 tables in a Perth tournament, South ended in six diamonds. Only two declarers made the contract, Rosendorff and A.N. Other.

Rosendorff won the club lead in hand and cashed the A-K of diamonds, getting the bad news. He played off the heart ace, crossed to dummy with a club and led a low heart. He was grateful to see East's king appear, but stopped to think. There were now three winners, the club ace and the Q-J of hearts, nestling in the dummy as discards for South's spade losers, but there was no dummy entry.

Rosendorff saw the solution. He ruffed East's heart king, cashed the diamond queen and exited with a trump. East had to win and concede access to the dummy by leading away from his spade king.

Rosendorff wrote, "No doubt many British players would take this play in their stride without even thinking there was much in it, but it gave me a proud thrill and I am not ashamed of saying so."

Either this was written tongue in cheek or he greatly overrated the average standard of play in Britain.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 8, 1991

If the fruits of your labor are slow to ripen in the year ahead, don't be impatient. Time is your ally, and you will eventually harvest the crop that is due you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Under most conditions, you are a reasonably good financial manager, but this weekend you may have trouble keeping your accounts in order. Too much pay for a little bit of play could be the reason. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland OH 44101-3428.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There are no shortcuts to success today, so don't bank your hopes on wishful tactics or procedures. What you do must be done correctly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to see things from the other guy's perspective today and not just from your own. You'll be surprised by how much you may learn from a fresh outlook.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Joint ventures could be of questionable value both today and tomorrow. Be careful you're not drawn into something where the burdens disproportionately fall on you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Sometimes, what we cannot accomplish on our own can be achieved with the aid of a competent ally. Unfortunately, neither case represents optimum conditions today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you lack expertise, it's best not to instruct another in how something should be done today. Your directions could make a bad situation worse by adding new complications.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be on your best behavior in social situations today or else you may leave a poor imprint on several people you're anxious to impress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you find the majority of your friends disagree with your opinions today, take time to ask yourself, "Who is out of step? Is it I or they?"

FISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your attitude might be a trifle more negative than usual today, and it's possible you may not see too much to admire in yourself or others. Lighten up.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Economic pressures could heat up a bit for you both today and tomorrow. Buy only what is essential, and try not to assume any new financial obligations or installment payments.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Family members will have to be handled with considerable tact today in order to avoid petty confrontations. If you get off on the wrong track, it could be hard to restore order.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Weigh your words carefully today; don't unwittingly pass on harmful information about a friend that is predicated on hearsay rather than fact.
