Johnson book stirs controversy

WASHINGTON — Aides to President Lyndon Johnson say they are outraged by a new book that depicts LBJ as tormented by paranoia during escalation of the Vietnam War, with one calling the claim "vicious exploitation to make a fast buck."

In the book, titled "Remembering America: A Voice from the Sixties," Richard N. Goodwin, a special assistant at the White House in 1964 and 1965, wrote that Johnson displayed irrational distrust of blacks and Sen. Robert Kennedy.

Goodwin, whose book is to be published next month, said Johnson once remarked that he thought communists were taking over America, that Kennedy had Martin Luther King on his payroll and that the New York senator was trying to cash in politically on race riots.

Lotto jackpot unclaimed

TALLAHASSEE — Nobody won the grand prize in this week's Lotto drawing, but record sales have pushed next week's jackpot to an estimated $26 million, Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said Sunday.

More than 9.3 million Lotto tickets were sold Saturday, the second highest daily total. It was also the second highest sales week, with more than 17.7 million tickets sold, Paul said.

She predicted next week's jackpot would top the record $26 million claimed Aug. 16 by Emily and Marvin Davidheiser of Titusville.

Bush addresses VFW today

CHICAGO — An upbeat Vice President George Bush is staunchly defending running mate Dan Quayle and insisting he hasn't been hurt by the flap over the senator's past.

But Bush nonetheless faces a better chance of getting his message across now that he is on the campaign trail alone.

Bush was expected to push his defense message hard today at a speech to the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Booyed by polls showing him drawing even or pulling ahead of Democratic candidate Michael Dukakis, Bush told reporters aboard Air Force Two Sunday that "I feel something positive is going on."

After two days of campaigning together in Indiana and Ohio, Bush and Quayle ended their joint appearances Sunday in Cleveland. While Quayle headed to Washington, Bush traveled to the Illinois State Fair in Springfield.

Eckersley, A's bump Sox

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox claim to have the answer to Dennis Eckersley's mastery over the American League this season, though they could not keep the Oakland bullpen ace from snuffing out their ninth-inning rally.

After Eckersley escaped a two-on, one-out jam in the ninth inning Sunday to preserve the Athletics' 5-4 victory, Mike Greenwell and Red Sox Manager Joe Morgan said the Oakland bullpen ace cheated in a key situation.

Body found in trunk

Officials await autopsy report

By SUSAN LUDER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — An autopsy is scheduled for 5 p.m. today on the body of a man found in the trunk of a car Sunday afternoon at Springs Plaza in Longwood.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies had not positively identified the badly decomposed remains this morning. The autopsy was scheduled for 5 p.m. at Central Florida Regional Hospital. Sheriff's Lt. George Hagoood said because of the condition of the body, investigators do not know the cause of the man's death. Hagoood said the body was X-rayed Sunday night and no gunshot wounds were found.

The body was found in the locked trunk of a Buick on the west side of the shopping center on State Road 434 at Weiva Springs Road. A witness reported first seeing the abandoned car there about 8 p.m. Friday. Sheriff's deputies were called to the scene at 3:36 p.m. Sunday.

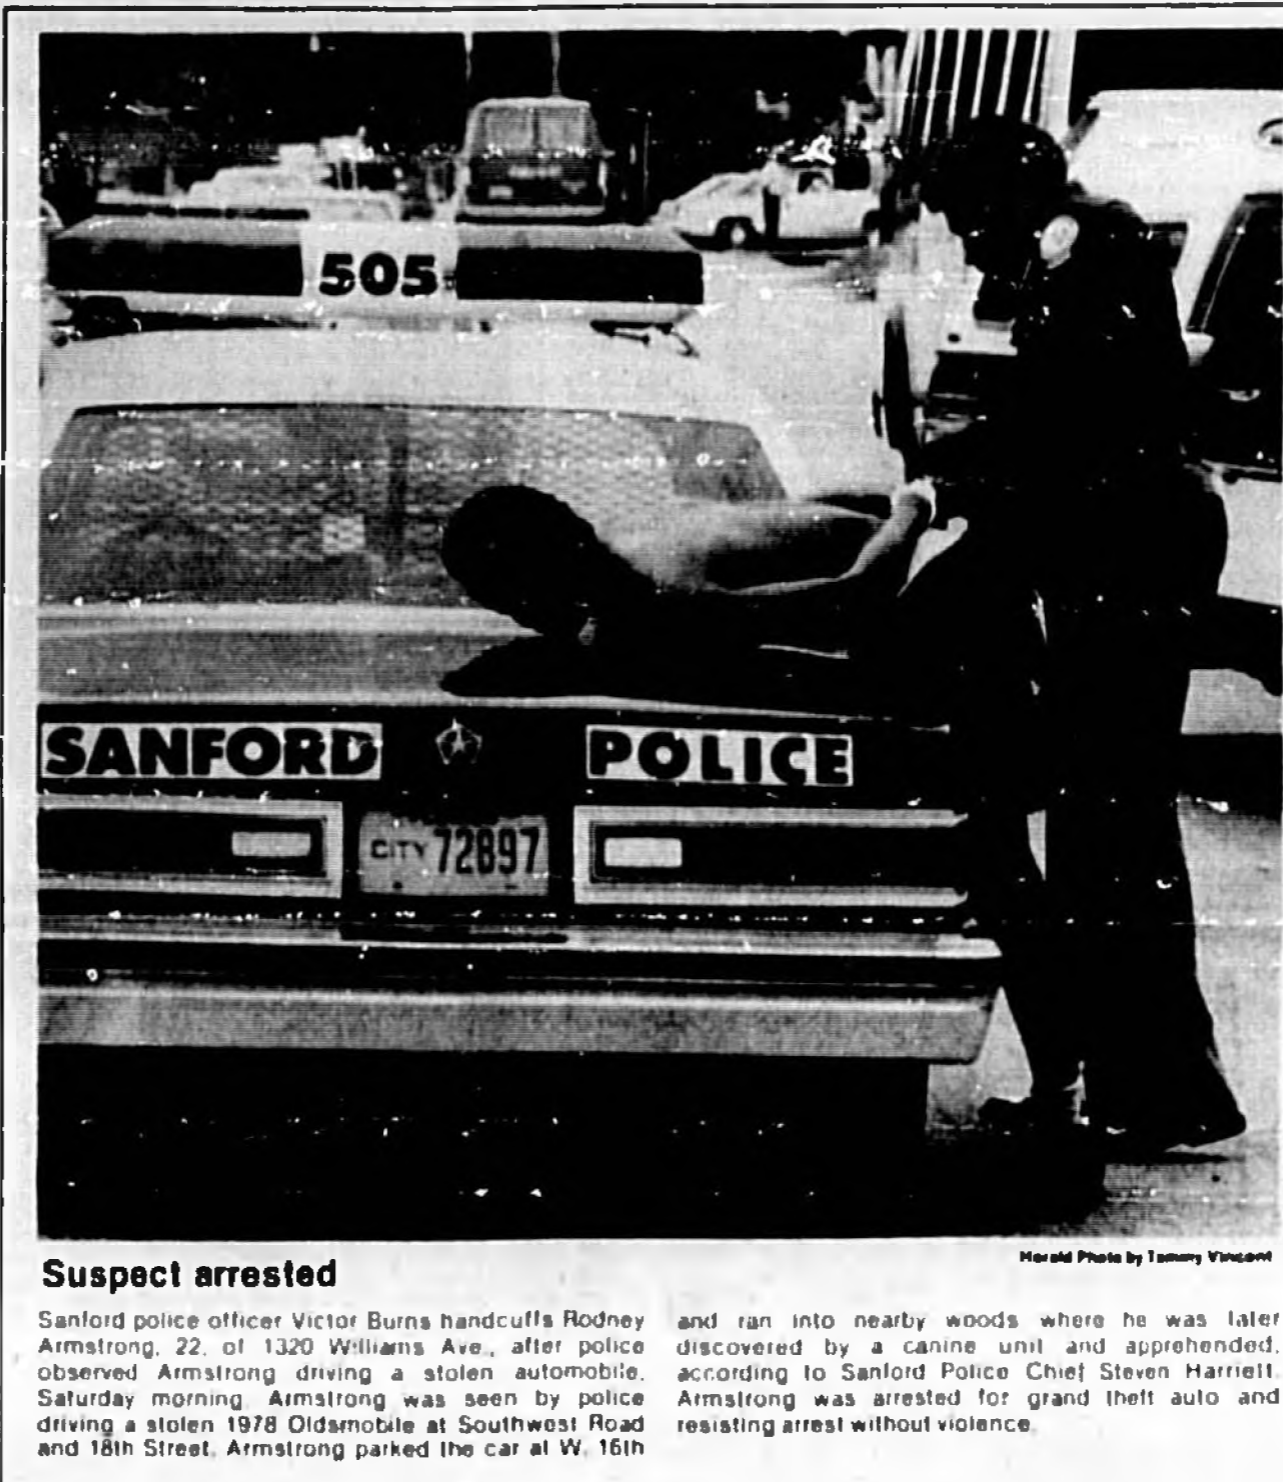

A strong odor was coming from the car and the trunk was covered with flies. There were flies inside the tail light lenses of the car, a sheriff's report said.

The report named the registered owner of that car and said he had been reported missing and had reported that his life had been threatened. Hagoood said Altamonte Springs police were working a missing persons case on the owner of the car.

Altamonte Springs police spokesman Jeff Hawkins said today the owner of the car left his house at about 4:30 a.m. Thursday. He left a note saying he was going to the airport to pick up a package, but did not return. Altamonte Springs police said he was reported missing Friday.

The car's owner had reportedly told relatives he was being threatened by two members of an organized crime family from New York because of a debt. The man owned a collection agency, Hawkins said. The missing man was described by relatives to police as being emotionally unstable and they said he had threatened suicide in the past. Hawkins said. Hawkins added that the missing man was in the process of being evicted from his home.

Suspect arrested

Sanford police officer Victor Burns handcuffs Rodney Armstrong, 22, of 1320 Williams Ave., after police observed Armstrong driving a stolen automobile. Saturday morning Armstrong was seen by police driving a stolen 1978 Oldsmobile at Southwest Road and 18th Street. Armstrong parked the car at W. 16th and ran into nearby woods where he was later discovered by a canine unit and apprehended, according to Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriell. Armstrong was arrested for grand theft auto and resisting arrest without violence.

Sylvan Lake residents oppose plan

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Paul Jenkins, Terri Stuart and dozens of other Sylvan Lake area residents moved to the quiet country area years ago to get away from the big city life.

They found bears, bald eagles and a way of life they thought would shelter them from busy urban Central Florida life.

They now fear they are losing that way of life to more and more growth surrounding and engulfing them, and one large development proposal is going to be the grand marshal of the development boom parade, they say.

"It's going to destroy our way of life," says Jenkins, a 21-year resident. "If I had wanted to live in town, I would have moved in town."

Mark Arnold and several family members are proposing to build 354 homes on 334 acres between State Road 406 and South Sylvan Lake Drive east of the lake. Because more than 50 percent of the site is either in the lake or in wetland areas, the homes are proposed to be clustered on the remaining buildable land.

The Sylvan Lake area is currently planned and zoned for one-acre homesites and the Arnold project would have nearly three homes per acre if approved.

County commissioners will give preliminary consideration of the proposal Tuesday night at a meeting beginning at 7 p.m. at the County Services Building on First Street.

Planning and zoning commissioners considered the proposal Aug. 3 and approved it 5-1. Zoning Commissioner Frank Shelton, a resident of the area, voted against it. See Development, Page 5A

Commission appointments inconsistent

By WAYNE NIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Joe Dennison does not wish to resign as a commissioner on the Sanford Planning and Zoning commission. However, an unwritten policy applied by the city commission may require him to do so even though a current city commissioner remains exempt from the same policy.

At its Aug. 8 meeting, city commissioners approved the appointment of Joe Dennison to the Sanford Airport Authority with his term scheduled to begin in October.

However, Dennison said he was told by Mayor Bettye Smith prior to the appointment that he would have to resign from the planning and zoning commission.

John Y. Mercer currently serves both as a city commissioner and is on the Sanford Airport Authority. Mercer is on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

At the Aug. 8 meeting, the commissioners made Dennison's appointment to the authority, wished him well and expressed regrets about losing him from the planning board.

Mayor Smith and Commissioner A.A. McClanahan were asked by a Herald reporter after the meeting, why Dennison would have to resign from the planning and zoning commission when Commissioner Mercer is also on the airport authority.

McClanahan said the prohibition of volunteer appointments serving on two committees was policy. "There's nothing written on it in the city," he said.

As Dennison was leaving the Aug. 8 meeting, Mayor Smith and McClanahan called him back into the commission chambers and told him not to resign from the planning commission until he heard from them.

"They told me not to do anything until I heard something," Dennison said Thursday. "To this point, no one has said anything to me."

City Attorney Bill Colbert said, "I do not believe there is any city ordinance which, per se, prohibits any one person sitting on more than one committee or board at the same time."

Colbert also said there might be some instances in which state law makes such prohibition but he did not name specific circumstances.

Colbert said no one has asked him to look into the Dennison matter concerning a possible conflict of interest by serving on both appointed boards. He said the matter would take considerable study before an opinion could be reached.

DOT official wants bus disaster plan

By CAROL RUMSEY
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A year ago five children and a bus driver were killed in a school bus accident turned circus scene in Levy County, Fla., and Seminole County Schools' Director of Transportation Benny Arnold doesn't want it to happen here, but if a tragedy should occur, he wants to be prepared.

That's why nearly 300 school bus drivers began a three-day in-service training program Friday at Seminole Community College, and it's why Arnold is in the midst of drafting a disaster preparedness plan.

Ernest Wigglesworth, public information officer for Alachua County, relayed the worst possible scenario to drivers Friday morning.

Three o'clock on Aug. 28, 1987, a school bus carrying 21 students ranging in age from kindergarten to sixth grade, 18 mentally and physically handicapped students, two teachers' aides and a bus driver were heading west at 45 miles per hour. Unfortunately, a young man traveling at identical speeds and heading north in a tractor trailer failed to break at a stop sign. The bus driver did what she could, but a crash was unavoidable.

Wigglesworth said the left front of the bus struck the semi so violently that the front axle and wheels ripped out from beneath it, sending the truck spinning out of control. There was a second hit, taking the left side of the bus and further ripping it some 8 1/2 feet from its frame. The cab of the truck curled around a power pole and the bus barreled into an embankment before stopping.

What resulted was a communication nightmare. "Everybody had a need to help," said Wigglesworth. "Everybody had to be there."

Members of the press descended on the scene, keeping valuable lines busy, and unknowingly alerting others to the site by reporting the accident.

Officer kills self in police station

ST. PETERSBURG — Funeral services are scheduled Tuesday for a policeman who shot and killed himself inside police headquarters minutes before he was scheduled to face questioning on sexual battery allegations.

Officer Robert R. Norris, 28, walked into a third-floor bathroom and shot himself in the head with his .38-caliber service revolver at 11:54 p.m. Friday, just after he was told he was the target of a departmental investigation, said St. Petersburg Police Chief Sam Lynn.

Norris, a police officer for four years, was accused of having sex with a woman he drove home from a traffic accident Thursday night. The woman, who Lynn said initiated the act, told police she had sex with Norris to avoid being charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and driving with a suspended license.

The woman, who was not identified by police, filed a complaint Friday against Norris, although she refused to press criminal charges, Lynn said.

Norris, who was married and the father of two children, did not leave a note or talk to any other officers about the accusation before he killed himself.

"Foreign-made" bad cash expected

FORT LAUDERDALE — Counterfeiters capitalizing on easy access to foreign countries are expected to pass $2 million in phony currency this year, making south Florida the nation's bad cash capital.

Jack Kippenberger, special agent for south Florida, said the region's reputation for crime and port of entry for foreign countries makes Miami, Fort Lauderdale and other cities busy places for bad bills.

"In almost every big counterfeit bust we make, narcotics are involved," Kippenberger said.

U.S. Secret Service agents, who fight counterfeiting while also protecting the president, predict they will collect more than $2 million in fake money in south Florida for the 1988 fiscal year ending Oct. 1. In the past year, the service picked up $1.8 million in bad money, most produced in other countries and smuggled into the United States.

In Fort Lauderdale last month, a federal jury convicted Henry Kleber, 27, of being the ringleader of a counterfeit gang from Coral Springs. He is awaiting sentencing.

Prosecutors said Kleber bought an $8,000 color copying machine to reproduce real bills, a process being employed by more counterfeiters.

Kleber's goal was revenge, officials said, hoping to pay off a drug dealer who swindled him using the bogus cash.

Last year, students at South Plantation High School were arrested and charged in a counterfeit scheme when agents seized about $25,000 in fake bills made using skills they learned in a graphics class.

Secret Service agents said counterfeiting is not a run-of-the-mill crime.

"The ordinary person on the street couldn't wake up and say, 'I'm going to make some counterfeit today,'" said agent Richard Foree. "It does require skill and quite a bit of knowledge about printing."

Bogus distress calls hamper Coast Guard

MIAMI — Bogus distress calls tied up the Coast Guard rescue helicopter and patrol boats three times in 15 hours this weekend, threatening the ability of the Guard to respond to an emergency, officials said.

Spokesmen said the fake distress calls left the rescue crew dangerously thin in case of an emergency, and also cost $2,200 an hour for the helicopter and $300 an hour for the patrol boats.

"It's a real pain in the neck because when we're out on a hoax case, a real call could come in and we might not be able to help them," said Petty Officer Gary Starks.

Each incident involved a vessel supposedly sinking between 8 and 18 miles from the Broward County coastline, but each search was scrapped when Coast Guard personnel were unable to spot debris or find a sinking vessel.

Times endorses MacKay, Merkle

ST. PETERSBURG — The St. Petersburg Times Sunday endorsed Democratic Rep. Kenneth "Buddy" MacKay as the man most qualified to replace retiring Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Florida.

The Times gave a backhanded endorsement to former U.S. Attorney Robert Merkle in his bid to become the Republican nominee.

But that "endorsement" contained as much criticism as praise, saying that Merkle's intelligent stance on most issues was mitigated by his tendency toward "petulance and irresponsibility."

"The U.S. Senate, like the U.S. attorney's office, is the wrong place for a person so constitutionally incapable of compromise," the Times editorial stated.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Tropical depressions gather strength

United Press International

MIAMI — A tropical depression rolling toward Jamaica remained poorly organized today but forecasters predict the system could gather strength when it reaches the western Caribbean in the next two days.

A second depression in the Atlantic near the Cape Verde Island remained poorly organized as it crawled west at 10 mph, the National Hurricane Center said.

At 6 a.m. EDT, the center of the Caribbean depression was about 525 miles east southeast of Kingston, Jamaica, moving west about 15 mph.

Highest winds are near 30 mph with higher gusts in squalls north and west of the center. Little change is expected, but gradual strengthening could occur when the depression moves into the western Caribbean.

"There is great difficulty in trying to assess what's going on in the Caribbean," the hurricane center said in a statement.

Infrared pictures from satellites show what appears to be a center aloft with a possible low-level center, and the Air Force reconnaissance plane found two centers based on wind measurements.

At 6 a.m., the Atlantic depression was about 70 miles northeast of Sao Tiago de Cape Verde Islands, moving northwest around 5 to 10 mph with highest winds near 30 mph and higher gusts in squalls. Little change in strength is expected.

Forecasters also monitored a patch of showers and thunderstorms that concentrated over the Atlantic about 850 miles east of the Lesser Antilles. The band of storms showed activity associated with a strong tropical wave and was moving westward 15 mph.

Hurricane forecaster Bob Case said the Caribbean depression, if it continued its movement, could be near Jamaica by midweek. It would be "terribly premature" to raise storm warnings for the island, he said.

"It's barely a depression. We don't even know if its going to survive the next 24 hours," Case said.

The next two tropical storms will be named Chris and Debby when their maximum winds reach 39 mph.

Prison population may double

United Press International

JACKSONVILLE — A projection that Florida's prison population may double over the next two years has state officials scrambling for answers to a growing overpopulation problem.

The Criminal Justice Estimating Conference predicts the inmate population will rise from 33,477 now to 67,145 by June 1990, the Florida Times-Union/Jacksonville Journal reported Sunday.

"There is a considerable urgency, and, of course, that urgency is in large measure a result of those projections and the experiences of the past two or three years," said Larry Polivka, a policy coordinator for Gov. Bob Martinez.

This spring, the Legislature allocated funds to construct prison space for 4,085 new inmates. House Corrections, Probation and Parole Committee chairman Rep. Everett Kelly, D-Tavares, has already called for a special session to quickly provide 6,000-7,000 additional beds.

Most officials say the state cannot afford to build enough new prisons to keep up with the demand. They say Florida must increase the use of alternative sentences, such as confining prisoners to their homes and monitoring them with electronic devices.

Overcrowding has already led to drastic cuts in many prisoners' sentences under the Department of Corrections early release program. That program awards daily release credit to prisoners nearing the end of their terms any time the population rises above 98 percent of the system's legal capacity.

Steve and Joan Hansen perform as "Esteban" and "Juana" — two 18th century Spanish actors shipwrecked on the coast of La Florida. The comedy portrays life in and about St. Augustine and was part of Seminole County

Gas prices rise slowly during summer

United Press International

MIAMI — Average gasoline prices rose less than a penny for all grades across Florida in August, suggesting an end to higher prices associated with summer travel, the AAA Clubs of Florida said.

The average price rose to a 1988 high of $1.10.5 per gallon from July, a 0.5 cent gain from month to month, with only prices at full-service regular pumps showing a decline.

"This slight rise in overall prices is believed to indicate the end of this summer's summer price increase," the motor clubs said. "It is anticipated that September's report will show the beginning of a decrease in prices."

Full-service customers paid 33.6 cents per gallon more than self-service customers.

The monthly survey of prices, made at several hundred stations in 25 Florida cities, has climbed steadily since April, when the average price was $1.04.8 per gallon. The price began the year at $1.07.

A June to July rise of 2.4 cents per gallon was the sharpest during the first eight months of the year, the report showed.

Self-service unleaded gasoline rose to 96.4 cents per gallon, an 0.2 cent rise; self-service regular sold for an average 92.6 cents per gallon, a 0.8 cent gain, and full-service unleaded climbed 0.5 cent to $1.30 per gallon. Full service regular dropped to $1.21 per gallon from $1.26 a gallon in July.

Ventec boasted the lowest prices, with self-service regular selling for an average 90.4 cents per gallon, while Tallahassee had the highest average price at $1.38 per gallon for full-service unleaded gas, the association said.

Longwood may sponsor utility company bonds

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Possible sponsorship so that a company can issue bonds for the purchase of Sanlando Utilities and proposed charter changes will be topics for discussion by the city commission at a 7 p.m. work session tonight at city hall.

City Administrator Gene DeMarie said an intermediary company known as Florida Communities Service Corporation wants to purchase Sanlando Utilities from Greater Construction Corporation and has approached Longwood about becoming a government sponsor so it can issue tax-exempt bonds.

"It's a no-cost-up-front proposition and the city would own the water and sewer facilities and lines when the bonds were paid off," DeMarie said. "I am recommending the commission take the first step. There is no commitment by the city other than sponsorship."

Sanlando Utilities serves 10,000 customers in developments west of Interstate 4, such as The Springs, Sweetwater Oaks, Wekiva, Fox Hunt, Sabal Point, Mandarin, North Ridge and Woodfield Reserve and north of State Road 434 in Longwood, such as The Woodlands, Longwood Village Shopping Center, Sleepy Hollow, Devohshire and Winsor Manor. In most areas it provides water and sewer but some areas on Markham Woods that have septic tanks are just served with water, according to a company spokesman.

The east side treatment plant, which is located in The Woodlands and the west side plant in Wekiva, as well as the infrastructure would be included in the deal, DeMarie said the facilities are in perfect condition and he will recommend a second work session later in the week so the commissioners and the press can inspect the plants.

DeMarie said the city would not be obligated to pay back the bonds. Revenue from water and sewer customers would pay back the bond issue as well as maintain and operate the system. He said the city would set utility fees and operate the system.

Earlier this month the city closed down its Skylark and Columbus Harbor sewage treatment plants, which served those two subdivisions plus some commercial development along S. R. 434 and Highway 17-92, in order to hook up to Seminole County's sewer system.

DeMarie said the numerous charter changes suggested by him and the city staff are mainly minor changes in wording to make operations smoother and that any major changes will be up to the commission to recommend.

Utility agreement proposed for Sanford Estates

By WAYNE MIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — After more than 18 months in the planning stages, General Sanford Estates is closer to becoming a reality.

A proposed water, sewer and water reuse agreement with Seminole County and developers of the single-family and commercial development is on tonight's city commission agenda.

The project, to be located on 283 acres located between County Road 46A and Old Lake Mary Road outside the Sanford city limits, is to eventually include 1,088 single-family housing units, 185,000 square feet of commercial space and 75,000 square feet of office space.

Belair Groves, Ltd. of 200 E. Commercial St., with R. Chase Lasbury as general partner, will develop the project, which is expected to take seven years to complete.

The tri-party agreement has the city selling the public services to Seminole County at wholesale prices, and the county passing the services on to the development at retail prices.

All sewer and water lines, including the lift station, will be the property of the county and will be installed by the developer, according to Bill Simmons, director of the city's engineering and planning department.

The county has tentatively agreed to pay the city all impact fees collected from the development.

Plans for the project began in 1987 and were contingent on a favorable Development of Regional Impact study, which has been completed, allowing the project to proceed.

Police investigate rape

WINTER PARK — A man being questioned by Seminole County sheriff's deputies outside his house, the scene of a reported rape, was jailed at about 4:45 a.m. Sunday after he allegedly fought with sheriff's deputies.

William Allen Crawford, 35, of 2806 Red Lion Square, rural Winter Park, is free on $1,000 bond on complaints of battery on a policeman and resisting arrest with violence.

The investigation into the rape allegations continues. The victim named a suspect in the case. She reportedly said she met the man, with whom she used to have a relationship, at the ABC Lounge in Casselberry, and gave him a ride to his apartment at about 2:30 a.m. Sunday.

The woman went into the man's home and there she said he attacked and raped her. After the alleged assault she kicked him and ran to her car to escape and report the rape, a sheriff's report said.

Deputies were questioning Crawford in connection with that reported incident when he allegedly began beating on the windows of the police car he was in. He allegedly fought deputies as they tried to handcuff him.

Burglar leaves cryptic note

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In an admonishment from someone who should know to someone who should have known better, a burglar left a note behind after breaking into an optometrist's office.

"You're pretty dumb to leave your back door open," the note left early Sunday said. "Please in the future, don't leave it open. In a world like today's, you can't trust anyone, so don't be dumb."

Police investigating the break-in of the office of an unidentified optometrist in suburban Panorama City found a ransacked room and the handwritten note presumably left by the burglar. Sgt. Jeff Sheldon said. Detectives could not reach the owner and did not know whether anything was stolen.

Riding in parade can be dangerous

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis. (UPI) — State Rep. Leo R. Hamilton never knew how dangerous politics could be until he rode in the Pure Waters Day parade in his hometown.

Hamilton fell from the back of a Corvette convertible Saturday, suffering a third-degree shoulder separation.

"I just slid off like a greased pig. I had no idea that Corvettes could be so slippery," he said Sunday. "I got me some attention. I stopped the parade for a while."

Man accused of throwing darts at son

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — A 39-year-old Lake Mary man accused of throwing darts at his son was arrested on a count of aggravated child abuse and released on $5,000 bond.

Curtis Wayne Wright of 127 E. Grandbend Ave., was arrested at home Saturday after his 16-year-old son and his wife reported to Lake Mary police that he threw six darts at the boy's legs.

Four of the darts reportedly hit the boy, with one scratching his leg and the others puncturing the skin. Curtis Wright Jr., told police he had accidentally hit his sister with a dart while they were playing Friday night.

The boy said the next morning his father asked him for the darts and told him to stand against a wall and he "would show him how it feels to be hit with a dart," the police report said. The suspect allegedly said the boy shouldn't worry about him hitting the wall. All six darts allegedly thrown by the father hit the boy's pants, with four injuring his legs.

The boy met police about 2:10 p.m. Sunday and told his story. The suspect was taken into custody at home and reportedly confirmed the boy's allegations.

Wright is scheduled to appear in court Sept. 12.

Altamonte juniors true All-Stars

The Altamonte Junior All-Stars have added another spangle to the sports banner of Seminole County. The team, representing USA-South, placed third in the Junior World Series, played this past week at Taylor, Michigan.

Since the selection of the all-stars earlier this summer, the team amassed an 18-2 tournament record. The two losses were to the two teams which met in the finals for the world championship of junior league baseball.

Coach Baird Lyons has reason to be proud of his team, and Seminole County has reason to be proud of Coach Lyons and all of the players. One of those players, Pam Davis, is believed to be the first female to start in a world series game. Miss Davis was the starting pitcher in Altamonte's winning effort against Canada. Excellent hitting and a strong defense were hallmarks of the team but, perhaps, a greater attribute was the sense of purpose and dedication of each player to the betterment of the team through teamwork and spirit.

In the closing games there were illness and injury added to the stress of constant play in the double-elimination tournament. Altamonte's game in the semifinals began a scant five minutes following their first game of that day which advanced them in the bracket.

The team has returned home now in time for the opening of school Wednesday. They can look back over an eventful summer during which their accomplishments have brought great credit to this county. And they can look forward to even greater challenges in the future.

Going for gold

Our county can also be proud of two residents who will be going for the gold in Seoul — Brandy Johnson and Showanda Martin.

The two athletes are from Altamonte Springs and have made their marks in national and international competition.

Showanda Martin, 21, will compete on the United States track team in the 400 meter hurdles. She earned her place on the team by logging the fastest qualifying time in the event during the trials in Indianapolis.

Brandy Johnson, 15, is a world class gymnast who placed fourth in the United States Olympic trials at Salt Lake City. She is considered to have an excellent chance for a medal in the individual competition.

Two other county athletes, Clifton Campbell and Ocky Clark, both products of Seminole High School, will be cheering the United States Olympians on from their homes, but with the satisfaction of knowing their athletic abilities brought them close to the team. Campbell competed with distinction in the 400 meters and Clark placed fifth in the 800 meters, leaving him only one notch away from a team slot.

The feat of having two residents on the Olympic team, and two so close, from Seminole County is but another indication of the commitment of educators, parents, coaches and the county and communities to amateur athletics, and the dedication of the young people to doing their best.

Gadgets fail to help TV news

WASHINGTON (NEA) — From frigid rural winters in Iowa and New Hampshire to steamy city summers in Atlanta and New Orleans, ponderous vehicles known as Ku trucks have become a ubiquitous feature of the nation's presidential selection process.

Owned and operated by local television stations throughout the country, the trucks are named for the large satellite uplink "dish" that folds into their rear cargo bay and transmits signals on the Ku band.

Before Ku technology became widely available in recent years, television stations relied upon smaller equipment vans for "remote," or off-site, live coverage of news events in their communities, but they could operate only within a limited area.

Ku trucks are not similarly constrained. They transmit signals to a communications satellite in geosynchronous orbit more than 22,000 miles above the earth, and those signals then are beamed back to the station. Thus, a Ku truck can provide live television coverage from almost any place on the planet.

But acquiring that capability is an expensive proposition. The basic, no-frills Ku truck sells for about $400,000. However, the more popular, fully equipped models — loaded with electronic bells, whistles and other gadgetry — can cost $800,000 to $1 million.

News departments at stations throughout the country rushed to buy them — but they now are hard pressed to figure out what to do with their new toys.

"The ultimate question in using satellite news gathering technology is whether local audiences can be better informed, not simply impressed," says

Jeffrey McCall, a member of the

Communications

Department faculty

at DePauw University in Indiana.

"Showing off satellite capabilities and flashing a 'Newstar' logo on the screen only perpetuates the whiz-bang image of television that many viewers already hold," adds McCall in citing these examples of the "inane" uses of the technology.

Too many television reporters are not qualified to cover national politics.

• A week-long "live via satellite" series on the glorious colors in one state's woodlands.

• An account of a meeting that occurred during the day and concluded hours before the evening newscast. Footage of the meeting was taped (a routine practice), but the reporter and Ku truck crew remained at the deserted site so they could claim a "live via satellite" account.

• A report on South Carolina police routinely dismantling a moonshine still — broadcast on an Indiana station hundreds of miles away.

In this presidential election year, many stations believe they finally have found a means of justifying their extravagant acquisitions — through selective coverage of the campaign.

Thus, "Newstar 8," "Satellite 12," "Skycam 3," "Skycam 7," "Spacelink 22," "Live Star 5," and scores of other Ku trucks converged on Iowa for its precinct caucuses, New Hampshire for its primary, Atlanta for the Democratic National Convention and New Orleans for the Republican National Convention.

But because they restricted their coverage to those venues, and because too many television reporters are not qualified to cover national politics, they generally offered viewers only a caricature of the campaign — not a professional account of it.

Colombia nears lawlessness

WASHINGTON — The filthy rich Medellin drug cartel is fast turning the sad country of Colombia into another Lebanon — a lawless haven for terrorists and thugs.

That is what the Central Intelligence Agency states in one of the most secret documents it produces, the National Intelligence Daily. The NID, as it is known, is a spy summary given to president Reagan and fewer than 100 top government policy makers. The NID is routinely classified higher than "Top Secret."

try to avoid raising premature alarms. They don't want to earn a reputation for predicting coups and wars that never happen, but they have been raising red flags about Colombia since January, when the cartel murdered Colombia's most prominent drug fighter, attorney general Carlos Hoyos.

The CIA regularly calls Colombia "another Lebanon." The ultra-secret NID and other intelligence documents refer to "the Lebanonization of Colombia."

What does this mean? It means a country with an impotent central government, and no real law and order, where justice is meted out by death squads and criminals of all persuasions. It also means providing a safe haven and logistical necessities for the export of terrorism and drugs.

The CIA has turned up some highly sensitive information that suggests the Medellin Cartel was behind the attempt to bomb Secretary of State George Shultz's car in Bolivia on Aug. 8.

The cartel gets most of its raw coca from Bolivia and Peru for refinement into cocaine in Colombia. Cooperation between the United States and Bolivia threatens to crimp the supply and, assuming the cartel was behind the bombing, it was sending a message to Shultz to mind his own business. Only days before, a top figure in the Bolivian drug trade, Roberto Suarez, was arrested primarily on evidence provided by the United States. He has been linked by U.S. intelligence to the Medellin Cartel.

The mafia-like Medellin Cartel was formed in late 1981 by four drug bosses who saw strength in unity. Today, 80 percent of the cocaine snorted up the noses of Americans arrives courtesy of the cartel.

Behind that cocaine is a legacy of bloodshed. The cartel specializes in assassinating anyone who gets in the way — particularly any government officials who try to stop the drug trade. The list of the dead includes 50 judges, many government officials and crusading journalists.

The cartel is sitting pretty with the help of the Colombian supreme court which, in December 1986, threw out Colombia's extradition treaty with the United States. Under that treaty, drug kingpins could be tried in the United States where their bribery, threats and assassination won't work.

Those tactics do work in other countries, however. Intelligence reports charge that Panamanian strongman Manuel Noriega was paid protection money by the cartel for shelter and laundering money.

Evidence was introduced into a U.S. court recently that the Bahamian government of Prime Minister Lynden O. Pindling was bribed to protect the cartel's drug shipments through the Bahamas. The recently convicted cartel leader, Carlos Lehder, was operating from the Bahamian island of Norman's Cay.

Halli may have been bought, too. A Miami grand jury recently indicted Col. Jean-Claude Paul, a top Haitian military commander, on narcotics counts.

Image lacks respect

NEW ORLEANS—The talk of the town this week is equally divided between the Cajun cuisine and the Bush image. The spicy cooking gets raves. The image is, well, a more complicated dish.

If politics were a kitchen art, many of these delegates would choose Paul Prudhomme for vice president. They want something to get the salivary glands going.

Image, image on the Superdome wall. The people here don't use the "wimp" word very much. They talk instead about the "stature" problem of the man who would be President. It is much more genteel.

It was bad enough in Atlanta when Jimmy Carter called the vice president kind of "effeminate." After all, Carter's a Democrat. But nearly 32 percent of the Republican delegates cited Bush's "image" and speaking style as the obstacles he needs to overcome in his race for the White House.

And Bush's wife Barbara said, "I think a good vice president goes through what a good wife goes through." However insightful that comment, it probably doesn't help to compare her husband to Ronald Reagan's wife.

George Bush's family and his supporters remain somewhat bewildered by the lingering impression of weakness that Bush is trying to shake. Talk to his people over coffee, stop them in the lobby of the Hyatt or the streets surrounding the Superdome, and sooner or later they will try to rebut the image with the biography.

How can anyone think that a guy who flew 58 missions in World War II, a war hero, the head of the CIA for gawdsakes, a Texas oil man, isn't strong enough? If Bush is the resume candidate, isn't he also the resume man? Traditional father of five. Husband of one. Tall and athletic. Successful.

This is one of the puzzles of the 1988 campaign. How has it happened that the traditionalist George Bush has a "stature" problem? How has it happened that Michael Dukakis, the T-riding, power-walking, cooking, grocery-shopping man with the 25-year-old snow blower, has no such problem?

Ten years ago, the old boys of Beacon Hill, in their charming vernacular, said the governor was "Kitty-whipped" because he went home for dinner every night. Now Bush, the man who moved his wife some two dozen times, is at pains to portray himself publicly as a family man.

In part, there has been a shift in male values, which is to say the kind of maleness we value. The warrior is not automatically lauded in peacetime America. Today's wars are less a defense of homeland as in World War II, than a destruction of other people's homelands. In contrast, a central drama of this era has been domestic: the story of men taking emotional risks at home.

So Bush's image suffers both ways. It suffers in traditional male terms among those who see him as a congenial number two, Reagan's "wife." And it suffers among those, particularly women, who judge him in non-traditional male terms.

Yet in a fundamental way, the talk of image may be as empty as a soufflé potato at Antoine's. The problem is less image than self-image.

There is nothing un-American about being a gentleman, even a New England esquire with a sprawling family that looks like a Ralph Lauren ad. His Yale-isms, his "just-a-splash-isms" could be as amusing as Dukakis' cheapness.

But Bush goes astray in his resistance to the obvious George Bush. He is defensive, fighting his own reality.

When he kicked a little ass in '84, when he pats his wife's on television in '88 when he tries to be one of the guys, it's embarrassing. It's like watching someone perform awkwardly on the stage. You want to look away. He is like the boss coming to the workingman's bar for a pop. The workers squirm until he's gone.

"The mold for me is kind of Ivy League and I resist that," said Bush, and that is obvious. It is not so obvious why. He tells the world about a country-music station to prove his down-home credentials. He adds, "I like pork rinds," and doesn't realize why everyone laughs.

The image, then, is of a misunderstood self-image. Americans were comfortable with Ronald Reagan because he was comfortable with himself. Bush is a man ill at ease in his own history, his own skin—and that unease is what makes him appear weak. He cannot be the self he is resisting.

Market slow, prices up

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher today in slow trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 21.52 last week, was up 7.47 to 2023.47 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 320-303 among the 991 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 4,840,000 shares.

Eugene Peroni Jr., chief technical analyst at Janney Montgomery Scott Inc. in Philadelphia, said "seemingly exaggerated fears" of higher inflation and interest rates had created an environment of investor caution.

But the "worst risk from here is going to be boredom," he said.

The market, Peroni said, was poised to recover to the 2080-2115 area (as measured by the Dow Industrial average) in the next couple of weeks.

"I think the market will be able to move higher. There will be some selective bargain hunting ... but I don't see any radical moves," he said.

Dollar opens higher; gold, silver lower

United Press International

The dollar was higher today in light trading on major foreign currency markets. The price of gold eased.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar strengthened marginally against the Japanese yen in light trading, closing at 133.88 yen, up 0.48 from 133.40 yen on Friday.

Dealers said market players refrained from taking large positions ahead of the release of U.S. trade figures for the second quarter due to be announced on Wednesday.

In Europe, the dollar opened the week in Frankfurt at 1.9125 West German marks, up from Friday's close of 1.8958.

In Zurich, the dollar began the day at 1.6055 Swiss francs, up from 1.591 and opened in Paris at 6.4815 French francs, up from 6.4265.

In Milan, the dollar began the week at 1,414.25 lire, up from 1,404.3, and in Brussels the dollar opened at 40.64 Belgian francs, up from 40.25.

In London, the pound opened at $1.698 compared with $1.702 on Friday.

Hunts guilty in silver case

United Press International

NEW YORK — A federal jury found Texas oilman Nelson Bunker Hunt and his two brothers guilty of illegally manipulating the world silver market and ruled they must pay more than $130 million to a Peruvian government mining company.

The Peruvian company, Minpeco, S.A., had charged in a lawsuit that it lost $150 million when the value of its silver futures contracts fell because of the scheme in which Hunt and his brothers, William Herbert and Lamar, were aided by two Arab sheiks, a Lebanese businessman and a brother-in-law of the Saudi Arabian crown prince.

The jury was stuck in the civil trial for three days only on the issue of the amount of damages to be awarded to those hurt by the conspiracy and came up with a verdict Saturday after six days of deliberations.

Originally there were 23 defendants in the case, including the Hunts.

Two killed in L.A. gang violence

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — A former gang member and a teenage girl riding through a neighborhood dominated by drug-dealing gangs were killed in a weekend of violence that included gunfire that wounded two moviegoers in a theater showing "Nightmare on Elm Street 4."

A 16-year-old girl became another innocent victim of the gang violence that has claimed nearly 200 lives in Los Angeles County during the first seven months of the year.

Sandra Maldonado had ended a night of dancing and was riding in the back of a pickup truck with friends looking for a fast-food restaurant when she was hit in the head early Saturday by a bullet from an Uzi-type submachine gun. Sgt. Richard Roach said.

She was taken to Hollywood Presbyterian Medical Center, where her family decided to take her off life-support systems about four hours after the shooting.

Police suspect the gunman was one of several gang members selling drugs in the neighborhood south of the historic Ambassador Hotel who apparently thought the truckload of young people were from a rival gang.

The gunman shouted a gang slogan before spraying the truck with about eight rounds from a submachine gun. Police say Salvadoran gang members openly sell drugs in the neighborhood.

Three people, including two sitting in their living room, were injured in gang gunfire late Sunday.

A 20-year-old man walking down a South Central street at 11 p.m. heard someone shout a gang slogan before a volley of shots were fired. Lt. Mike Schaller said.

The man was hit "numerous times" by the gunfire and taken to California Medical Center, where he was listed in stable condition.

Two people sitting in their living room on the block were hit by shots that came through the walls or windows of their home, Schaller said. They were not seriously wounded, he said.

About the same time Maldonado was shot, a man identified by sheriff's deputies as a former gang member was stabbed to death by former rivals during a fight.

Buses

Frightened parents, friends, and passers-by all stopped. Also responding were eight ambulances, four helicopters, four fire departments, and six law enforcement agencies. "It was total chaos," said Wigglesworth.

Children lay huddled, hurt and terrified inside the bus, some with their friends' dead bodies draped over them. A major problem was identification. It was nearly an hour after the accident before emergency workers realized some of the children were handicapped.

Wigglesworth told the audience to imagine the children's fright with the whirling helicopters landing and kicking up sand storms, and as many as five people crowded about them, all trying to help, but not knowing how.

"Keep your children on that bus, protect them," he said. Some onlookers tried to remove children, which if done incorrectly could have led to further injuries. Also, sometimes children who are able to walk will wander off looking for home, if not watched.

Meanwhile, workers struggled with hydraulic equipment to enter the heavy steel bus. Wigglesworth said a car door, car top or car window can be removed in 10 minutes with such equipment, but it took up to 45 minutes to impact that heavy steel without causing further injury to children.

The main problem, according to Wigglesworth, was simply an abundance of people. "Everybody wanted to help, everybody had this need to be on that bus and take care of those kids because they had kids at home," he said. "At one point, 1,000 onlookers were at the site, which was 950 too many for emergency workers to do their jobs efficiently. Everybody just hopped onto that bus, and said, 'Oh my God.'"

This is precisely the kind of scene Arnold wants to avoid.

Arnold told drivers his purpose was to shock them into believing, and make them cognizant of what could happen. He cautioned, if ever in an emergency situation to not tie up radio channels, and keep children quiet, calm and on the bus except in a case of fire or impending danger.

Seminole County bus drivers already attend a first aid-cardio pulmonary resuscitation course, and the majority of them are certified in CPR.

But Arnold says his program is aimed more at school administrators, and county fire and police personnel.

He wants a printed plan of action, in which principals of every school would be in charge of student identification. He is proposing that a card be attached to students' school photographs to include medical histories as well as the family to be contacted in case of an emergency. These cards will be kept in a book on the bus behind the driver's seat, so if a driver were badly injured and unable to help, others will be informed. Currently, each bus has a seating chart, also for identification purposes, and this practice will remain in effect.

School principals will be responsible for sending someone to the scene to identify children, and to the hospital to assist parents and other family members. In addition, a stress team would be set up with school guidance counselors to help with the fears and horror of children attending school the day after an accident.

Arnold wants to meet with police and fire personnel throughout the county to discuss coordination and effective management in an effort to prevent the frenzy which occurred in Levy County.

A communication center would be set up at the Winter Springs bus compound. According to Arnold, there are already radios on three-quarters of Seminole County buses. There would be one representative at the compound to meet and give information to the press.

Eventually, Arnold would also like to set up an intensive workshop such as the one planned for Brevard County next spring. According to Wigglesworth, the Brevard school board gave fire and rescue workers four dented buses to set up a mock emergency situation. Firefighters will be able to practice the tearing down and entering of a school bus.

Arnold said his plan should be complete within two months.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat-Magnet' Diet Pill Gives You Steady Fat Loss
BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" to help you steadily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

You Can "Eat Normally"
Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods as long as you don't increase your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire."

It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patents pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles from food that you have just eaten. Then, the trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Pills Go To Work"
The fat-magnet pills alone, "automatically" help reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat, with no exercising. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals. However, you can lose weight "faster" if you choose to follow the fat-magnet diet plan along with the pills.

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with record sales and glowing reports of weight loss. It's a "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public
If you need to lose a large or small amount of weight, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills and diet plan (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+ $2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+ $3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. Residents of the area, who turned out by the dozens, opposed the development, saying it would dump hundreds of cars on their quiet streets and pollute the clean Lake Sylvan. They said they could live with 182 homes, the number recommended by the county planners.

The county has denied Arnold proposals for the site twice before, last year and earlier this year. Judy Stewart, chief county planner, said the proposals ranged from an average of 2.5 homes per acre to 2.7 homes per acre. The current proposal is 2.9 homes per acre.

"I would need to look at the jurisdiction and duties of the planning and zoning commission and the authority," he said. "To say I have an opinion one way or the other would be premature."

Dennison said he would void himself of any possible conflict. "If the airport comes before the P&Z for whatever interest, I would have to file a conflict of interest report," said Dennison. "That's what I would do."

McClanahan said he favors Dennison staying on the commission while serving on the airport authority.

"We need people of his caliber," said McClanahan. "I don't have a problem with him serving on both boards if it's legal." Smith also said Dennison should remain on the P&Z, but said she was acting only on policy when she informed Dennison that he would have to resign.

"We need every volunteer we can get," she said.

McClanahan said the matter would be cleared up before Dennison takes his seat with the airport authority on Oct. 1. "The only thing I can tell you is that between now and Sept. 30 we'll find out," he said.

Brent Carl, chairman of the planning and zoning commission, said he also favors have complied with some county requests, such as building on only acre-sized lots on the lakefront and disturbing less of the wetlands, the density has increased in each proposal. Planning commission members recommended a minimum lot size that would allow only 220 homes on the property.

Area residents said that is still too many homes.

"You can kiss the neighborhood good-bye," says Terri Stuart, an 11-year resident of South Sylvan Lake Drive. "Fifty years ago, people moved to Seminole County to be in the nature. It's all changing. This area will become another Altamonte Springs."

Bodies of slain diplomats arrive in U.S.

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George Shultz, recognizing the contributions of two U.S. diplomats who died with Pakistan's president in a suspicious plane crash, praised the Americans' work toward peace and freedom.

The bodies of U.S. Ambassador to Pakistan Arnold Raphel and Brig. Gen. Herbert Wassom arrived in the United States Sunday at nearby Andrews Air Force Base.

Shultz, who attended the weekend funeral of Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq, and Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci led a solemn service on the tarmac at the air base.

Shultz accompanied the bodies from Pakistan. As a band played "America the Beautiful," the flag-draped coffins were taken from the secretary of state's plane. Raphel was to be buried at Arlington National Cemetery today and Wassom will be buried there Tuesday.

"They were over there because of big words. Liberty, freedom, justice, security, prosperity, peace. We hear these words all the time. Maybe sometimes we take them for granted," Shultz said in a prepared statement at the Air Force base.

Hospital workers back nurses strike

SAN FRANCISCO — Striking nurses say they appreciate the efforts of 1,700 hospital workers who are staying off their jobs as a show of support, but a spokeswoman says the nurses will understand if their colleagues go back to work.

"We don't want to keep them out," spokeswoman Maureen Anderson of the striking California Nurses Association said during the weekend after 2,200 striking registered nurses rejected a new contract offer that had been tentatively agreed to by negotiators for both sides in the 28-day walkout.

"That decision was not at our request," she said of the hospital workers' decision to stay off the job in support of the nurses. "We appreciate it, certainly, but we'd understand if they decided to go back to work."

Social club fire kills seven

NEW YORK — A raging fire that swept through a basement social club killed seven people and injured at least 32 others, and officials said they were investigating New York City's deadliest blaze of the year for evidence of arson.

Officials, citing the speed with which the blaze filled the packed club, called the fire "suspicious" and said traces of a liquid found inside were being tested to determine whether the liquid was flammable.

However, one source close to the investigation said it was possible the blaze began accidentally.

"They're leaning now toward saying it was not suspicious," said the source.

The maze-like social club, under a row of stores, turned into an underground incinerator Sunday as the fire swept through the club, called El Hoyo, or "The Hole," and blocked the only flight of stairs out.

Bush defends Quayle, addresses VFW

United Press International

CHICAGO — An upbeat Vice President George Bush is staunchly defending running mate Dan Quayle and insisting he hasn't been hurt by the flap over the senator's past.

But Bush nonetheless faces a better chance of getting his message across now that he is on the campaign trail alone.

The Republican presidential candidate and his vice presidential hopeful Sunday broke off their joint campaign appearances slightly earlier than expected and Quayle, the junior senator from Indiana, headed to Washington with Bush campaign chairman James Baker to spend time better organizing his effort.

With Quayle out of sight, Bush now continues his post-convention campaign swing on his own. That should make it easier for the vice president to avoid the furor over Quayle, and possibly allow him to better focus attention on his campaign themes of no new taxes and peace through a stronger defense.

Quayle has been plagued with questions from the media concerning whether he received special treatment to enter the National Guard in 1969 and avoid combat duty in Vietnam.

Bush was expected to push his defense message hard today at a speech to the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

But the vice president insisted Sunday he believed his message was getting through, despite the Quayle controversy.

Bouyed by polls showing him drawing even or pulling ahead of Democratic candidate Michael Dukakis, Bush told reporters aboard Air Force Two Sunday that "I feel something positive is going on."

After two days of campaigning together in Indiana and Ohio, Bush and Quayle ended their joint appearances Sunday in Cleveland. While Quayle headed to Washington, Bush traveled to the Illinois State Fair in Springfield.

It had been thought that Quayle would attend the fair with Bush.

Bush aides said the change was made for "logistical" reasons and to allow Quayle to take care of planning for things such as personal matters and security. They said there never was any plan to have Quayle attend the veterans' convention.

Bush, repeating his full confidence in Quayle, said Sunday the senator's trip to Washington was simply to help Quayle decide "where he's going to go."

Campaign '88

resent Quayle. Bush said: "There could be some of that, but the National Guard is an honorable service. Some (people) went to Canada, some in the Senate turned in their medals."

"Do we condemn an entire generation? I don't think so," Bush noted, in some of his most emotional comments on the affair.

"Those were troubled times, extremely troubled times," Bush said, asking whether people of the Vietnam generation wanted to "cast the first stone."

Bush aides said Quayle would join the vice president for more campaigning later this week or next weekend and Bush himself insisted that Quayle would be a great help to the ticket on the stump. Quayle may make solo campaign stops by mid-week.

The vice president also laughed off new questions about whether Quayle, who has conceded being at least an average student in college, received special help to be admitted to the University of Indiana's law school.

"I refuse to release by high school transcript because I failed chemistry and I don't want anyone to know that. I want to be a president that chemists can look up to."

how he's going to campaign — and he'll do very, very well."

Asked if Quayle was going to have to learn how to perform better, Bush noted, "I don't know that he has to learn anything. He's got to get his act together, get the schedule going. This put him out of a clear, blue sky."

The vice president insisted Sunday that he never gave any thought to dropping Quayle from the ticket and he added that Quayle never offered to step down "and he shouldn't have."

New York cops seize 5,000 pounds of cocaine

United Press International

NEW YORK — The seizure of nearly 5,000 pounds of cocaine and $2 million in cash "will not stop the drug flow caused by the insatiable demand by the people who use drugs," a top police official said.

Also seized in Saturday night's raid conducted by federal and local law enforcement officials was nearly $2 million in cash found in bags labeled "Just Say No to Drugs," and four Colombians described as members of one of the world's biggest cocaine trafficking groups were arrested, authorities said.

The raid of an apartment in the middle-class neighborhood of Forest Hills, Queens, ranked as one of the largest in U.S. history, the largest in New York City and second-largest in New York state after a June seizure of 6,000 pounds of cocaine on Long Island.

Chief Raymond Jones of the city police department said the nearly 5,000 pounds of cocaine seized could have been converted into "over 30 million vials of crack, and that's what we are dealing with today."

"The frustration is that this will not stop the drug flow caused by the insatiable demand by the people who use drugs," Jones said.

One of those arrested in the raid was Hernando Grajales Rizo, 39, a suspected leader of New York's most powerful drug ring, said Robert Stutman, who heads the New York City office of the federal Drug Enforcement Agency.

Worth some $400 million on the street, the cocaine was wrapped in bundles illustrated with eagles, condors, the Rolex watch logo and a cartoon dog — all signals for the producer and buyer of the shipment, Stutman said.

The confiscated drug would make more than 30 million vials of crack, the smokable form of cocaine that sells for about $10 a vial, officials said.

About 20 officers in a joint drug task force "aided the apartment where Rizo and two other Colombian men, Gerald Hernandez Franco, 20, and Jorge Echaverry Inestroza, 30, were arrested, Stutman said.

A Colombian woman, Maribel Dias Manzano, 20, was arrested at Rizo's Queens home, where $41,000 in cash and records of the operation were also seized, Stutman said. A 1988 Mercedes and a 1984 Chevrolet were confiscated.

Rizo, Franco, Inestroza and Manzano were charged with first-degree criminal possession of a controlled substance.

10,000 protest on invasion anniversary

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — In the biggest demonstration since 1969, some 10,000 people chanting "Russians go home" and "Give us back our freedom" marched through the streets of Prague on the 20th anniversary of the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The spontaneous demonstration began Sunday as a quiet protest by about 500 people on Wenceslas Square, scene of some of the heaviest fighting following the Aug. 20-21, 1968, intervention by troops from five Warsaw Pact countries to crush the reform-minded government of Communist Party leader Alexander Dubcek.

But the youthful crowd — many of them not even born in 1968 — soon swelled to 10,000 and police moved in after three hours with truncheons and dogs, beating and detaining scores of people, witnesses said.

Some curious tourists were caught up in the melee. There were no figures available on injuries or detentions.

More than 200 people demonstrated in Moscow to mark the 20th anniversary of the invasion. Plainclothes KGB agents and riot police broke up the rally and arrested 154 people, dissident sources said.

Lenin shipyard workers go on strike

GDANSK, Poland — Solidarity leaders launched a strike today in the giant Lenin shipyard, the birthplace of the independent trade union, igniting a fresh wave of strikes across Poland in the worst crisis since the imposition of martial law in December 1981.

About two hours after the day shift began, about 800 workers hung a huge "Solidarity" banner outside the shipyard's Gate No. 2 and announced, "We have begun." Then about 300 marched toward the main gate chanting, "There is no freedom without Solidarity."

Within hours, thousands of workers in several other plants across Poland joined the strike call.

Several thousand workers struck at the Cegielski ship engine plant in Poznan, scene of bloody 1956 riots in which scores of workers were killed, while 1,200 went on strike in the huge Stalowa Wola steel works in the southeast, activist sources said.

The port of Gdansk was struck and most of its 4,500 employees were said to have stopped working, while in Szczecin — where the port was already closed — 1,000 struck at an enterprise making railway equipment.

One department that struck in the huge Ursus tractor plant in Warsaw was surrounded by police, activists said, and former Ursus employee and regional Solidarity leader Zbigniew Janas was detained.

No clues found yet in plane crash

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Five days after the death of President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq in a plane crash, U.S. and Pakistani investigators are still trying to determine whether the disaster that also killed the American ambassador was sabotage or an accident.

Though several senior Pakistani officials have already concluded that sabotage was the cause of the crash, no firm evidence has yet been offered.

"Anyone who was opposed to Zia's Afghan policy may have been behind it," Information Minister Wali Bukhsh Soomro said Sunday of the disaster last Wednesday in eastern Pakistan that killed Zia, U.S. Ambassador Arnold Raphel and 29 others, including senior military officials.

Under Zia, Pakistan had been funneling U.S. arms to Moslem guerrillas fighting the Soviet-backed government in Afghanistan. Moscow and Kabul have repeatedly charged that Islamabad violated the April 14 Geneva Accords by continuing to harbor the rebels.

Soomro said in an interview that investigators were examining three possible causes of the crash of the U.S.-made C-130 Hercules transport plane.

He said the aircraft "may have been hit with something from outside, or something exploded from within, or there was a mechanical failure."

Grenade wounds 25 at pedestrian mall

JERUSALEM — A Palestinian extremist group led by Abu Nidal claimed responsibility for a hand grenade attack that wounded 25 people at a pedestrian mall in Haifa, including an 8-year-old boy who was peering through a toy shop window.

In the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, Israeli soldiers shot and killed two Palestinian youths during protests Sunday called to mark the 19th anniversary of an arson attack that damaged Al-Aqsa mosque, one of Islam's holiest sites.

The underground committee coordinating the 8 1/2-month Palestinian uprising in the occupied territories called for demonstrations and clashes Sunday to mark the Al-Aqsa attack. The committee also called for a general strike today.

The Palestine Revolutionary Council, led by Abu Nidal, said in a statement issued in Beirut that a group named after "martyr Khalil Al Wazir (Abu Jihad) carried out a bomb attack in the city of Haifa ... inflicting great losses among members of the enemy."

Wazir, an aide to PLO chairman Yasser Arafat, was widely believed to be a coordinator of the Palestinian uprising in the occupied territories. He was assassinated April 16 in Tunis, and Palestinians accused Israel of murdering him.

Earthquake death toll reaches 900

BHAKTAPUR, Nepal — The death toll from a powerful earthquake along Nepal's border with India reached at least 900 today and monsoon rains hampered rescuers trying to reach isolated Himalayan villages feared leveled by the area's worst tremor in more than 50 years.

The early-morning quake Sunday triggered waves that swamped boats and drowned dozens in neighboring Bangladesh and destroyed thousands of brick, straw and stone homes in Nepal and India, where many residents moved outdoors in fear of aftershocks.

The Red Cross of Nepal issued an urgent appeal for blood as hospitals were crowded beyond capacity.

The quake, its epicenter about 100 miles southeast of the Nepalese capital of Katmandu, was measured at 6.7 on the Richter scale by the U.S. Geological Survey, but the Nepalese Department of Mines and Minerals said it registered 5.7.

Niranjan Phapa, minister of state for home affairs, said at a news conference today that at least 450 people are confirmed dead in Nepal. He said he feared the torrential rains would cause many more deaths.

"The rains will only trigger landslides and wash villages down into rivers and valleys," he said.

In neighboring India, survivors, rescue workers and newspapers said at least 450 people died in the northern state of Bihar near the border with Nepal.

Police in Bangladesh said 50 people were feared drowned when waves generated by the quake capsized their boats.

In Katmandu, the British Embassy announced Britain would fly in a six-person medical team with about 700 pounds of medical supplies to assist the Nepalese government. And the U.S. Embassy announced an emergency grant of $25,000 to assist Nepal in its rescue operation.

At least seven people were killed and 17 injured in the ancient town of Bhaktapur, about 8 miles east of Katmandu, where at least 50 homes collapsed in the quake.

"I fled from my house, but a balcony collapsed on me," said Mott Bahadur, 50, a Bhaktapur resident, who was hospitalized with head injuries.

The streets of the town were calm several hours after the quake as doctors treated the injured and residents began cleaning up the damage. B.N.

Baidya of the Bhaktapur hospital said most victims he had treated were suffering from head and leg injuries.

In Katmandu, the Nepal Red Cross Society issued an urgent appeal for blood donors, saying hundreds of units of blood were needed in the industrial town of Biratnagar alone.

Medical teams and government officials rushed aid to the areas in Nepal that were hardest hit by the quake, and troops with bulldozers were sent to help clear rubble and recover bodies.

Prime Minister Man Singh Shrestha, who returned to Nepal Sunday after attending the funeral of Pakistani President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq in Islamabad, called an emergency Cabinet meeting to deal with the disaster and announced that money and food aid would be given to the victims.

Gulf truce holding despite charges

NAFT KHANES, Iraq — U.S. officials monitoring the 3-day old cease-fire between Iran and Iraq say the truce appears to be holding despite charges by both sides of minor violations.

In Iraq's Naft Khanes district, about 100 miles northeast of Baghdad, a Canadian U.N. observer reported Sunday that he saw troops from both sides moving freely around their border fortifications, which were festooned with white truce flags.

"Now the fighting has stopped," said Capt. Gary Yazichuck, a U.N. observer from La Tuque, Quebec, brought in to help monitor the truce along the 750-mile Iran-Iraq border.

"You can see the Iraqis standing around near the emplacement with white flags flying, both sides have their white flags out and when they move around they are unarmed," said Yazichuck, 27.

Yazichuck and Maj. Mohamed Manul, 32, of Bangladesh, both wearing blue berets marking their roles as peacekeepers, had just finished their first border patrol with Iraq liaison officers in a white truck with the U.N.'s insignia.

"We covered a distance of about 100 miles today over nine hours," Yazichuck said.

"The Iraqis and Iraqis were so near each other in some parts that they could speak to each other, I heard that when the cease-fire was announced some Iraqis came out of their trenches with flowers and the Iraqis with water and they offered them to each other," Yazichuck said.

Yazichuck said the U.N. patrol had direct radio links with frontline bases on the border, but that it would be a few more days before the patrolling became routine and they became familiar with the terrain.

"Our job is to observe and report back," he said. Asked what he would do if fired on, he laughed and said "I'd get the hell out of there." The U.N. observers, who began their mission Saturday, are unarmed.

Yazichuck said he believed the cease-fire was holding despite an exchange of accusations by Iran and Iraq of truce violations.

Moody wins Senior PGA event

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Orville Moody, despite three bogeys on the final five holes, shot a 1-under-par 70 Sunday to win the $250,000 Greater Grand Rapids Senior PGA Open by one stroke.

The 1969 U.S. Open champion finished at 203, 10-under-par for the 54 holes on the 6,453-yard Elks Country Club course. It was his fourth victory this season and his ninth since joining the PGA Senior Tour in 1984.

Gary Player shot a final 66, Chick Evans 67 and Ch. Chi Rodriguez 70 to tie for second at 204.

Harold Henning, who started the day even with Rodriguez and one shot behind Moody, missed short birdie putts on the first three holes and slipped to 71 for 205. He shared fifth place with Bruce Devlin (67), J.C. Goosie (68), Dave Hill (64) and Jim Hatfield (67).

Agassi wins 6th title of year

LIVINGSTON, N.J. — Andre Agassi captured his Grand Prix-leading sixth tournament of the year, defeating Jeff Tarango 6-2, 6-4 Sunday in the singles final of the $125,000 Mennen Cup Championships.

The 18-year-old Agassi strengthened his No. 4 world ranking, winning each of his five matches this week without losing a set. The 19-year-old Tarango, an amateur, entered the event ranked 251st and with only one Grand Prix victory.

Tarango, the No. 1 player for NCAA champion Stanford, held serve in the opening game at love before Agassi ran off five straight games.

"He was ripping the ball on every shot," Tarango said. "His level of play was different than anyone I had ever played."

NBA upends Olympic team

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Reggie Miller scored 14 of his game-high 20 points in the second half Sunday to lead an NBA All-Star team to a 90-83 victory over the U.S. Olympic men's basketball team.

The victory was the first for the National Basketball Association in five tries against the Olympians.

Miller collected 10 of his team's first 22 points of the second half as the NBA built a 21-point lead.

David Robinson and Dan Majerle led the U.S. team with 13 points apiece. Majerle and Charles Smith led a late second-half rally that cut a 63-42 NBA lead to the final seven-point margin.

Danny Manning added 12 points for the U.S. team, while Vernell Coles scored 10.

FSU No. 1 in preseason poll

NEW YORK — Two games at opposite ends of the season will determine a Jan. 2 match-up for the national championship, the United Press International Board of Coaches' preseason ratings indicate.

Florida State received 713 of a possible 750 points and 37 of 50 first-place votes to earn the No. 1 preseason ranking. Oklahoma, owner of the top spot in the previous three preseason ratings, placed second with 607 points and four first-place votes. Nebraska, Clemson and Miami rounded out the top five.

Florida State will play at Miami Sept. 3 in a rematch of last year's 26-25 thriller at Tallahassee won by the Hurricanes. Miami went on to win the national title. That one-point loss was the lone blemish on the Seminoles' record en route to a final No. 2 ranking.

The Sooners and Nebraska play at Norman, Okla., Nov. 19 in a battle that as usual should determine the Big Eight champ and host of the Jan. 2 Orange Bowl. Oklahoma has won the last four games of the rivalry.

Louganis wins, Kimball fails

United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS — The conclusion of the U.S. Olympic diving trials signaled new beginnings for Bruce Kimball, those who protested against him and the athletes who ignored the tension to qualify for the Seoul Games.

A feeling of relief settled over the Indiana University Natatorium after Greg Louganis won the 10-meter platform competition Sunday. Kimball, charged with killing two Florida teens and injuring six others while driving drunk, finished fourth and failed to make the Olympic team.

"Right now he's just relieved it's over," said Dick Kimball, Bruce's father and coach. "He's sorry not to be there (at the Olympics). Now he's going to try to go home and straighten out his life. He gave his absolute best. He did a tremendous job for a guy who has been through what he has gone through."

Kimball faces up to 45 years in prison on counts stemming from a crash near Brandon on Aug. 1. Kimball, the 1984 Olympic silver medalist in the platform competition, is free on $10,000 bond.

Kimball, who retired after Sunday's competition, placed second at last month's U.S. championships on the platform and was a favored with Louganis to earn a trip to Seoul in the event. Kimball's father said the turmoil surrounding his son's participation probably hurt the performance.

"I'm sure he was (affected). It was difficult. I'm tired. How can you possibly not be?" the elder Kimball said.

Kimball's determination to dive prompted protests and petition drives to ban him from participating. Six friends of victims, three of them teens sacrificing jobs, spent $2,000 to drive from Florida and watch the trials. They watched in silence for a fourth straight day as Kimball performed.

When the score of Kimball's final dive was not enough to earn an Olympic berth, the protesters hugged each other and smiled.

"I feel relieved," said Cherie Beck, chaplain of the group. "It's like a burden off our shoulders. People need to reevaluate the rules for making the Olympics so nothing like this ever happens again."

Kimball received three perfect scores of 10 on his second dive, an inward 1 1/2 somersault that scared the silent teens. But his eventual failure gave the protesters a sense of satisfaction.

"Mission accomplished," said Jennifer Beck. "When he hit those three 10s, I could feel the tears start. I came here 17 and now I feel like I'm 77. I'm glad it's over so we can go home and start a fund drive to help pay the expenses of the victims."

Falcons stump Bucs

United Press International

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Falcons can't win for losing.

The Falcons, who had the worst record (3-12) in the NFL last season, picked up a rare victory Saturday night, a 19-14 exhibition decision over the Tampa Bay Bucs. In the process, though, they lost starting running back Kenny Flowers and backup quarterback Scott Campbell for the season.

Flowers, a second-round draft pick in 1987, tore the medial collateral ligaments in his left knee while being tackled by Bucs rookie safety Odie Harris with 1:16 left in the first half.

Campbell, a fifth-year veteran playing behind Chris Miller, tore anterior cruciate and lateral collateral ligaments in his left knee with 3:18 left in the game.

Miller, who appeared in only three games last season after signing late, rebounded Saturday night from last week's sub-par performance when he was only 8-of-22. In that game, a 27-13 loss to Kansas City, he got off to an 0-5 start, but against the Bucs Miller hit on his first three passes and was 4-of-5 in the last two possessions before he yielded to Scott Campbell.

Bucs quarterback Vinnie Testaverde wound up with impressive yardage — 273 passing and 42 rushing for a 315 total.

Sabatini thrashes Zvereva

United Press International

MONTREAL — Even when her opponent was serving the tennis balls Sunday, it was Gabriela Sabatini serving up the punishment.

Sabatini thrashed Natalia Zvereva 6-1, 6-2 to win the $315,000 Player's Challenge.

In doubles play, Jana Novotna and Helena Sukova, both of Czechoslovakia, won the title by defeating Pam Shriver of Luthers, Md. and Zina Garrison of Houston 7-6(7-2), 7-6(8-6).

The fourth-seeded Sabatini, 18, combined powerful ground strokes from the baseline with occasional forays to the net to keep her 17-year-old Soviet opponent off balance. Her heavy top spin, combined with high winds, kept No. 6 Zvereva pinned at the baseline.

Sabatini was not kind in her assessment of Zvereva's play.

"She was just putting her serves in," Sabatini of Argentina, said. "They weren't very good. You can attack them. She didn't seem to be motivated. She didn't play well."

After breaking service twice in the first set and in the first game of the second set, Sabatini posted love scores in Games 5 and 6 of the second set.

The two love games followed a pivotal fourth game in which Zvereva came close to breaking service for the first time in the match.

But Sabatini fought back from love-40, taking the fourth game to deuce five times before holding.

Davey Allison dedicates win to dad

Allison overtakes Wallace in end

United Press International

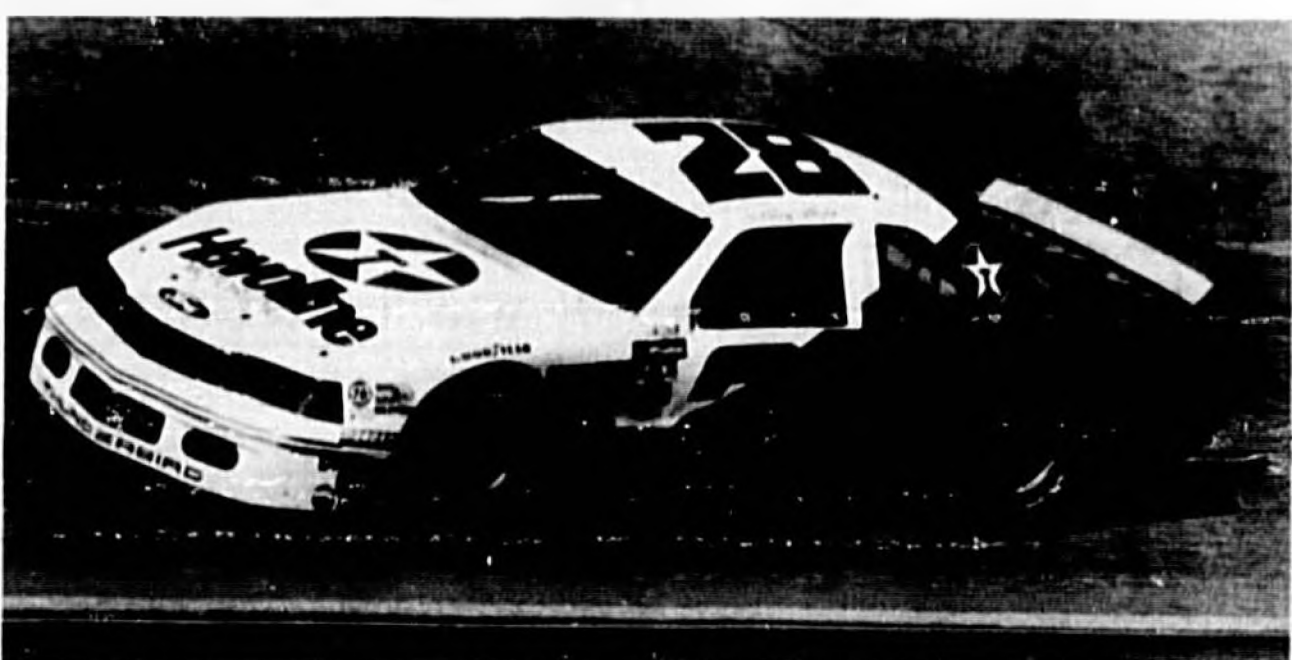

BROOKLYN, Mich. — Davey Allison dedicated the third victory of his career to his recovering dad.

Allison, who spent much of the race running second but knowing he could take the lead any time he wanted, came out of the second caution slowdown Sunday to pull away from Rusty Wallace and win the Champion 400-mile NASCAR race at Michigan International Speedway.

Allison, whose father Bobby Allison is recuperating in a Birmingham, Ala., rehabilitation center from injuries suffered in a racing accident last year, won by 4.43 seconds with a track record winning speed of 156.86 mph in the $515,585 stock car race. He won $69,475.

Wallace shaded Bill Elliott, who won the pole with a track record 174.940 mph, by slightly more than a car length with Morgan Shepherd another car length back in fourth place.

"I almost broke down in tears in victory lane," the younger Allison said. "I dedicated this race to my dad. I hope he was watching. They had a TV in the room hooked up, ready to watch. My mom and my grandparents were with him."

Davey Allison came on at the end to defeat Rusty Wallace in the Champion 400.

It was the 27-year-old Allison's first victory of the season in a campaign that has seen him get two seconds and three thirds. He is the 13th different winner on the NASCAR circuit this season, equalling the record set in 1986.

Allison, of Hueytown, Ala., spent the early part of the race trading first and second with pole-setter Elliott. He drafted behind Wallace after the first caution flag bunched the field slightly more than halfway through the race.

The final caution flag was lifted with 50 miles to go and after three trips around the two-mile MIS oval, Allison shot around Wallace and steadily built up his lead. The outcome was not in doubt after that as Allison padded his margin to more than four seconds.

"I wasn't going to take any unnecessary chances," he said. "I didn't want to punish the car. I knew I'd be strong at the end. We had a good set of tires saved just for that. We ran them in practice a couple of laps and knew they were great tires."

Allison went from 14th in the driver point standings to 12th with the win but his total of $562,240 has him fifth on the money list.

The victory was the 1987 NASCAR Rookie of the Year's third overall and put him over the $1 million mark for career earnings.

Smith, Terry shine for slumping clubs

United Press International

Pete Smith of the Braves and Scott Terry of the Cardinals, little-known right-handers, are easing the pain their teams are enduring this season by showing promise for 1989.

Smith pitched his second shutout and third complete game, helping Atlanta end a four game losing streak Sunday with a 1-0 triumph over the Chicago Cubs at Wrigley Field.

"We've got ourselves a pretty good looking young pitcher," said Russ Nixon, manager of the Braves, in last place in the West. "That's what's making this year tolerable."

Terry, making his third start of the season, went the distance to pace St. Louis to a 7-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds at Busch Stadium.

"He might pitch opening day next year," said Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog, whose team is in fifth place in the East after winning the pennant last season.

Braves 1, Cubs 0

Smith scattered five hits and improved his deceptive record to 6-12. The 22-year-old has yielded only 14 hits in 47 1/3 innings over his last seven starts. He has eight consecutive quality starts (allowing three earned runs or less in at least six innings.)

"We are in every game he pitches," Nixon said. "He and (Rick) Mahler have been our most consistent starters."

Smith had little room for error as Chicago's Mike Bielecki, 2-1, permitted only a first-inning run — on a walk, a hit-and-run single and a sacrifice fly by Gerald Perry.

"I just tried to make every pitch I wanted to," Smith said. "I would just, then it, and then go away with the slider. It was just a matter of whether I was going to make a mistake. It was nice to have the (19 mph) wind blowing in."

Cardinals 7, Reds 1

Terry limited his former team to five hits, throwing just 99 pitches. He is 4-3 on the season, 2-0 in his three starts, during which time he's allowed one run in 20 2-3 innings. The 28-year-old moved from the bullpen 11 days ago.

"I really have no preference (between starting and relieving)," he said. "If someone is versatile — can do more than one thing — he's more valuable to the club."

"We've looked at it before (starting Terry); we talked about it in spring training," Herzog said, "but he messed up his leg for four months."

Terry injured his right hamstring early in the season and was disabled from June 27-July 24.

Terry drove in the game's first run, with his first major league hit, a bases-loaded infield single in the second off Tim Lirtas, 1-3. Vince Coleman followed with a three-run double.

"Vince's hit was the big blow as far as getting a cushion for us," Herzog said. "But Terry was in the middle of the rally. He gave us the lead."

St. Louis scored three in the fourth. Two runs came home when Birtas threw Terry's sacrifice into right field.

Eckersley, A's sink Bosox, 5-4

United Press International

The Boston Red Sox claim to have the answer to Dennis Eckersley's mastery over the American League this season, though they could not keep the Oakland bullpen ace from snuffing out their ninth-inning rally.

After Eckersley escaped a two-on, one-out jam in the ninth inning Sunday to preserve the Athletics' 5-4 victory, Mike Greenwell and Red Sox Manager Joe Morgan said the Oakland bullpen ace cheated in a key situation.

Boston had runners on first and second with one out and Eckersley retired Greenwell, the major-league RBI leader, on a grounder to first. He then struck out Ellis Burks with runners on second and third to end the game and post his 35th save.

"He made a good pitch on Greenwell," Morgan said. "It was a good sinker ... of some description."

Greenwell was more direct in his explanation of Eckersley's pitch to him.

"I'd probably call it a spitball," Greenwell said. "The ball dropped off the table."

Eckersley, who was accused of scuffing balls earlier this season, only responded with a smile and a "spare me" after Greenwell's spitball claim was raised.

"That's what I would call a save situation," Don Baylor said of Eckersley's ninth inning. "When you have to pitch against the hitters he had to face and get the job done."

"I really didn't want to face Greenwell," said Eckersley. "That was the big pitch for me, getting him out."

The decision enabled the A's to maintain their lead over Minnesota to eight games in the American League West. Boston dropped to four games behind the front-running Detroit Tigers in the AL East.

Mark McGwire belted a game-tying solo home run in the eighth inning and Luis Polonia singled home the go-ahead run, lifting Oakland to its major-league leading 40th road win.

McGwire, previously 2 for 13 in the series, led off the eighth with his 25th home run of the season, tying the score 4-4 against loser Bob Stanley, 5-2. Carney Lansford followed with a single and Ron Hassey sacrificed. After Glenn Hubbard flied out, Stanley hit pinch hitter Baylor.

Mike Gallego pinch ran for Baylor and Lee Smith relieved Stanley. Polonia lined a single to right and Lansford raced around to score.

Fisk, 40, keeps rocking along

United Press International

At an age when most baseball players are in the athletic equivalent of a rocking chair, Carlton Fisk keeps rocking along.

Fisk, 40, reached two career milestones during the weekend that bring new lustre to a career that doesn't need a whole lot of gloss.

The Chicago White Sox cleanup hitter broke Hall of Famer Rick Ferrell's record for most games caught in American League history. And on the same night, Fisk rapped out five hits in a game for the first time in his 17-year career.

"I had it for 40 years," said Ferrell, still a consultant for the Detroit Tigers at twice Fisk's age — which makes him the front office equivalent of the White Sox catcher. "It's time for someone else to have it."

"I didn't realize how big he was until I was standing next to him out near home plate," Ferrell said. "Gosh, he must be 6-foot-4 and 230 pounds. I couldn't have picked somebody better to break my record."

Fisk is the kind of guy fathers would choose for a son and sons would choose for an older brother.

He doesn't run his mouth like a Dale Earnhardt runs his racing car engine. He works hard at his job. He treats his body like a mechanic treats his tools. He treats other people like he'd treat himself.

Best of all, Fisk shows the same signs of slowing down as a tightly wound grandfather clock. Which is to say none.

"Keeping your enthusiasm that's the toughest part of the game," says Fisk, who missed more than two months of the season with a broken finger. "To maintain your intensity and enthusiasm — that's the toughest part."

Fisk took up weight lifting after the 1984 season as a means of conditioning his body and adding strength. Fisk went up to a career best 37 home runs in 1985.

The training also probably did nothing to hurt his self-discipline. If you can do a strength and conditioning program regularly, it ought to reinforce the mental toughness needed for 162 baseball games a year.

"I like to do well," Fisk said. "I always have. I have never accepted a second-rate effort, a mediocre performance, from myself."

"I feel if you're 20, 30, 40 or 50, you have to do whatever it takes to be prepared. It's not easy. And it's not fun. And it's time consuming."

"But when you can go out and compete with 20-year-olds and 30-year-olds — that's where your reward is."

Fisk's ultimate reward should be the Hall of Fame. He's hit 270 for 16 years and is batting around .300 now.

He had 297 home runs as a catcher entering play Sunday and needs to reach 326 to pass John Bench for most hit by a player at that position. Fisk also has more than 1,000 RBIs.

"The amazing part about him," offers his manager on the White Sox, Jim Fregosi, "is he still catches and he still throws good. It amazes me every time I see it."

"He's just been marvelous to have around. And to hit like he has — he's missed 72 games. He was hitting when he broke his hand and he hit when he came back. He conditions himself so well. And he's still got that burning desire that it takes to play — and you're talking about at age 40."

If Fisk has one regret, it's the injuries he has had. "I've missed the equivalent of 3 1/2 years of catching. If I hadn't, everybody would be looking at me instead of Bob Boone."

Well, stick around Carlton, they still might be.

MATTINGLY DISORIENTED

NEW YORK — Don Mattingly, All-Star first baseman for the struggling New York Yankees, Sunday said team management gives players "money but no respect" and claimed "nobody" wants to play for baseball's most storied team.

Without making direct reference to club owner George Steinbrenner, with whom he has feuded in the past, Mattingly criticized management's treatment of players. Steinbrenner has become famous for his public attacks of players and regular dismissals of managers since taking over ownership of the team in 1972.

"There are definitely a lot of unhappy players here."

Lougans was the meet's oldest competitor at age 28. He has won a record 47 national diving titles and holds the two highest platform routine totals ever awarded.

CYCLING TEAM SET

HOUSTON — The U.S. cycling team, which won an unprecedented nine medals at the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics, will have a difficult time repeating that feat at the Seoul Olympics next month.

The Soviet Union and East Germany, two countries that boycotted the Los Angeles Games, are expected to dominate cycling in Seoul.

The Americans — who won four gold, three silver and two bronze medals in 1984 — would be fortunate to win medals in three events.

The strongest American medal contender is Connie Young, who won the women's 1,000-meter match sprint at the U.S. Track Cycling Olympic trials last week in Houston. The event, making its Olympic debut at Seoul, is the only track cycling event for women, who also compete in road racing, which debuted in 1984.

"We came away (from the pit stop) right on his back bumper," Allison said. "I knew I was in real good shape."

The rush to get in was so frantic there was a slight collision on the pit road. Further confusion happened when fire broke out in a gas spill near Sterling Marlin's tank.

The fire was quickly put out but pit workman Gerald Oakley, who was putting gas in Marlin's tank, suffered third degree burns above the left hand. He will be flown to a hospital in Chapel Hill, N.C.

Canned vegetables contain nutrients

DEAR DR. GOTT: Do canned vegetables contain the same nutritional value as fresh vegetables?

DEAR READER: For the most part, yes. Modern canning methods are designed to maintain the nutritional value of foods. However, canned vegetables are slightly different from the fresh variety in minor ways: for instance, they contain more water and sodium, less carbohydrate and crude fiber, and somewhat less protein and B vitamins. For the average person, these differences are inconsequential. The main advantage to fresh vegetables is taste; the primary advantages to canned vegetables are ease of storage and preparation.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Eight years ago I was told that I had gonorrhea. My partner went for treatment, but I didn't. Pap smears since then have been normal. Should I tell my doctor of my history?

DEAR READER: Absolutely. Gonorrhea is a sexually transmitted bacterial disease that can go unnoticed in women until it infects the Fallopian tubes and other pelvic organs, causing a serious condition called pelvic inflammatory disease, or PID. This can produce severe pain, arthritis and infertility.

Gonorrhea cannot be diagnosed by a Pap test; it requires bacteriological culture of secretions obtained from the reproductive tract. An infected woman can unknowingly spread gonorrhea to her partners. Once diagnosed, the disease is easily treated with antibiotics. Like all sexually transmitted diseases, gonorrhea does not simply disappear if it is ignored. It tends to become chronic and, with time, is marked by disabling consequences if untreated.

I am surprised that you did not insist on antibiotic therapy years ago. Frankly, I think that your actions are irresponsible, since gonorrhea poses an enormous risk to your health and that of any sex partner(s) you may have had. You should immediately check with your doctor for diagnosis and treatment. I should add that there are more than 30 diseases recognized as being sexually transmitted. Therefore, if you contracted gonorrhea, you are likely to have been infected with one or more other diseases as well. Your doctor is the best judge of whether you should be

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

When your partner opens the bidding and you have a terrible hand, you let him know by passing. The situation changes drastically with that same terrible hand when your partner announces opening-bid strength by making a takeout double of an opponent's bid. Now if you pass, the nasty opponents may score up some overtricks, much to your dislike. For this reason a bid in response to a takeout double shows as little as zero high-card points. That is why a jump bid by the responder shows 9-11 point and is not even forcing.

So South jumped to two spades after North doubled one heart. North wasn't sure the heart queen was worth anything, but bid game anyway.

West led K-A of hearts and then switched to a low club. Declarer won in dummy, played a spade to his king and drew trumps when the queen appeared. Had he now played without foresight, he would have led a low diamond back to his 10. West would win the jack, continue with another club and eventually take the setting trick with the diamond king. But South knew about endplays. He first played the remaining high clubs. When he finally led in his 10 of diamonds, West had to either play back into the A-Q, or lead a heart to allow declarer to trump in dummy while discarding the queen of diamonds from his hand.

HOROSCOPE

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
August 23, 1988

A great amount of energy and attention will be focused on your business interests in the year ahead. If you handle matters wisely, substantial gains are likely.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, guard against inclinations to treat matters indifferently that should be taken seriously. If you do, there's a chance the last laugh could be on you. Major changes are ahead for Virgo in the coming year. Send for your 20-Graph predictions today. $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Domestic pressures could be heavier than usual today, due to external influences. If possible, try to leave your worldly woes at the doorstep.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Acknowledge your own mistakes today. If you're in error and try to point the finger at someone else, it will put you in a bad light instead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Unless you are very careful today, something that could be profitable might slip through your fingers. Take nothing for granted where business or finances are concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Instead of sticking to the course of action you've set for yourself today, you may be talked into doing things the way someone else wants them done.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Lingering problems could result if you do things that are based on motives that are not up to your highest standards. Keep your principles intact.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Extravagant tendencies could entice you to be loose with your resources today. "Waste not, want not" is a good motto to keep in mind.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is not a day to ease up on the objectives you've established. Do not impede your progress or permit others to do so.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful you don't make casual comments today that will be difficult to smooth, just because you're temporarily annoyed with someone you like.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you are not alert in business transactions today, there is a possibility you might do something that does not serve your best interest.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your energies and dedication might not be in harmony with your ambitions today. A goal that can be achieved won't be attained if you're not willing to pay the price.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be more ingenious and adept at rationalizing why some thing shouldn't be done today than you will be at doing it.

She suspects he's not telling the whole truth

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a man for nearly a year. We are extremely attached to each other, enjoy each other's company and generally have a lot of fun. He's a great guy in most respects and has professed his love for me. We have even talked about marriage. The problem: There are discrepancies between his actions and his words. Some examples: He told me that he was dating only me, and I found out that he had been dating others. His excuse: "I was dating a lot of girls when we met, and I had to let them down easily." He told me he was going to work out at his health club one evening. I later learned that he and his old girlfriend went to her mother's house for dinner. He told me he was going to a football game with "some guys." I found out he took his old girlfriend. (He keeps telling me that the relationship with her is strictly platonic, but I'm not so sure.)

He can't understand why I don't trust him. He accuses me of being insanely jealous and in need of counseling. I'm 30 years old and have had two long relationships—one for two years, and the other for six years. Both men wanted marriage, but I wasn't ready—or in love enough. I love this man I'm dating now enough to marry him, but I'm having problems with his "platonic" friend and his propensity for half-truths. I would appreciate your advice.

DEAR WHAT: You already know what to do; you are just looking for someone to tell you to quit kidding yourself—and do it! Since I am a woman of very few words, the words are: Say goodbye. The only situation that is more miserable than dating a person who can't be trusted is being married to one.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice about something—sales clerks. I can't stand them! They aggravate me beyond belief. Sometimes I even leave the store if they really get to me. I try not to ask for their help because when I do, they stick to me like glue until I leave the store. If I go to try something on, they will be waiting for me to tell me how good I look.

Abby, when I try something on, I like to look at it alone and think about buying it, not feel like I'm pressured for time to get out of the change room. If sales clerks want to sell something, they have to give the customer space and privacy.

In the meantime, do you know of a way to tell these salespeople that their help is appreciated, but you would like to be left alone? Sign me...

TOO MUCH ATTENTION

DEAR TOO MUCH: You have answered your own question. What's wrong with saying, "I appreciate your assistance. Now I'd like to be left alone so I can make a decision?" And while we're on the subject, a first-rate salesperson will approach a prospective customer with "Please take your time, look as long as you wish, and if you need any assistance, please let me know. My name is 'Maggie.'"

CONFIDENTIAL TO TALKS TOO MUCH IN OMAHA: Commit to memory this wise advice, credited to Sen. Ed Muskie: "Do not speak unless you can improve the silence."

DEAR ABBY: You told the office worker who was subject daily to the boring details of a fellow employee's personal life that co-workers are like "family" and it's only natural to talk about their personal lives. You missed an important point, Abby. In addition to being a selfish boor, the woman is also cheating her employer—twofold. When engaged in these lengthy "conversations," not only is she failing to do the work for which she is being paid, she is keeping her co-workers from doing their work as well.

What's wrong with the listener simply saying, "You'll have to excuse me now so I can get to work and do what I am being paid to do?"

SHIRLEY IN VAN WERT, OHIO

DEAR SHIRLEY: Nothing is wrong with your suggestion. It was better than my answer.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Now for the next century. Alice Shuster, right, looks on as her daughters, Grace Gulheil (left) and Edith Liebert cut a cake commemorating her 100th birthday. That means Shuster was born Aug. 16, 1888. The celebration took place Tuesday at the Longwood Healthcare Center.

Casualty of non-war found on icy island

By JEFF BERLINER
United Press Intern

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Clues to the mysterious disappearance 43 years ago of Cpl. Carl E. Houston from his World War II post on a remote Alaska island have appeared out of the island's mist with the discovery of remains — astonishing old war buddies and surviving family members.

"Oh my God! Where in the world did they find him?" exclaimed Joseph C. Nichols Jr., leader of the five-man station on Buldir Island who led the search for Houston when he vanished after a short hike and who had to explain the disappearance to military officials and to Houston's parents.

Buldir has finally relinquished its missing soldier but the desolate island holds onto the secret of how the 21-year-old Manitowoc, Wis., man died.

"We're calling him the unknown soldier of Buldir — the forgotten soldier from a forgotten island in a forgotten war," said Mike Boylan, federal wildlife refuge manager on Adak Island.

Military archives, official correspondence, private wartime letters, and interviews with Buldir veterans confirm Houston was the island's lone war casualty.

But military officials will not disclose the identity of the "unknown soldier" until work under way at the Army identification lab in Hawaii conclusively identifies the remains found in July.

Wildlife biologists stumbled upon the remains hidden for 43 years amongst mossy boulders on the 4.915-acre volcanic island of treeless rock and tundra, uninhabited except by birds and sea lions, at the distant western end of the 1,100-mile-long Aleutian Island chain — where Houston considered himself lucky to be assigned, according to his letters home.

Discovery of the remains transformed wildlife biologist Elaine Rhode, of Anchorage, into a detective who turned up the nearly conclusive evidence that the remains are that of Houston.

Rhode, who spent several summers on Buldir, said biologists sitting around camp at night often wondered about "island ghosts." Her quest to learn Buldir's untold history now may put the island's ghost to rest.

Few Americans remember — or even know — that World War II reached Alaskan soil six months after the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. Japan invaded two islands, Kiska and Attu on either side of Buldir.

Perhaps even fewer realize a deadly battle was fought on Attu, where snow and tundra soaked up the blood of several thousand Japanese and American soldiers.

now dead, had a difficult time accepting the disappearance. "They thought he'd turn up there on that island, that he just got lost and if (the military) looked enough they'd find him," said Wayne Gitchel, Houston's brother-in-law.

"We just assumed he had fallen (off a cliff) and washed out to sea," Nichols said. "We hunted as much as we could in all the nooks and crannies." Found inland, some distance from Buldir's formidable cliffs, in the shadow of Mt. Eccentric, a 2,150-foot volcano, lay skeletal remains of a soldier — his boots still on, his M-1 Army rifle still at his side along with numerous spent shells, perhaps fired to attract attention to his location.

There was a comb, the word "Victory" on it. Biologists recovered uniform fabric, a belt buckle, a knife, an Army pocket watch, a quarter, a wallet with indecipherable identification, and a few other items, said Boylan, who helped retrieve things from between boulders too big to budge.

Speculation, then and now, is that Houston, out hiking, became lost or injured and was unable to make it back to camp. Even a short hike on rugged Buldir is tough going, according to the few who have been there.

The Army established Buldir as a five-man station — three weather observers and two radio operators — and began sending groups there in September 1943 for six-month stints.

Houston arrived on Buldir in October 1944, after the Japanese had been routed from Attu and had slipped off Kiska. He was in the third duty rotation.

Houston volunteered for Buldir and said "old Lady Luck" won him the duty. In a letter home just before slipping out to Buldir, Houston wrote, "I really think this new place (name, at the time, a military secret) will be a good deal."

Adventure tured

Houston to Buldir, said Kenneth Jenkins, a weather squadron buddy on Amchitka Island when Houston volunteered for Buldir.

Buldir, ironically, promised an excellent chance of survival, unlike duty on the South Pacific war front, said Nichols, 65, now a veterinarian living in Beverly Farms, Mass.

Life on Buldir was marked by awful weather, food shortages with infrequent parachute supply drops, secrecy and only rare occasions when mail could go out.

A soldier there before Houston had to be taken off Buldir because he "went a bit barmy and we were afraid that he was going to take a gun to us," said a 1977 letter to wildlife biologists at the refuge from Paul Grehl, a professor in Williamsburg, Va. who served there.

The Buldir camp was nicknamed "Paradise Valley," Nichols wrote in a letter describing life there. He used a machine gun to cut a barrel in half to make a shower. He wrote of hunting seabirds to eat. And he mourned the death of a pet dog but gave a replacement, Scout, to Houston.

Buldir, he said, was always "wind, rain and snow. Or wind, rain and fog."

Buldir was viewed as hardship duty, and its soldiers were welcomed as heroes when they left, Nichols said.

"In our spare time we usually go out hiking, skiing or target practicing," Houston wrote seven weeks before he disappeared. Jenkins, 67, a retired weatherman who took arctic survival training with Houston, said they learned not to go walking alone.

But Nichols said men hiked and skied alone when not making hourly weather reports or doing camp chores. It passed the time and fought cabin fever.

No trace was ever found of Cpl. Houston. Information from the station indicated that his disappearance was in the line of duty.
