PEACOCK FOUND GUILTY ON 2ND DEGREE COUNT

Young Strangler Of Wife Faces Term Of From Twenty Years To Life In Sing Sing

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 28.—(INS)—Mighty glad indeed that he escaped the electric chair, Earle F. Peacock, 22 year old radio technician and dance hall "hick" who strangled his bride, Dorothy on their first wedding anniversary, today made preparations to leave immediately for Sing Sing prison at Ossining where he must serve a sentence of from 20 years to imprisonment for life.

Peacock was found guilty of murder in the second degree by a "blue ribbon" jury of men and women last night after five hours of deliberation. He had admitted frankly enough that he had strangled his estranged wife with the butt end of his pistol on the night of April 21. Peacock had a death wish but he had pleaded extenuating circumstances.

It seemed "Dolly" had killed him beyond words when she referred to his apartment in Mount Pleasant as "the same old dump." He had hoped to effect a reconciliation. Hot words followed. They snatched each other, before you could say "Jack Robinson" he had been on the floor and was strangling the life out of her.

This correspondent stopped Peacock as he emerged from the court room, shackled to a deputy sheriff.

"What do you think of the verdict?" he was asked.

The young fellow, a pretty crazy chap indeed, replied: "I have nothing to say at this time."

Peacock had been in a motion picture court when the verdict was returned. He was visibly pale when he was led into the court room. He had a look of intense grief, his eyes were red and his face was a mass of perspiration. He was being escorted by a guard to the cell block.

Peacock, who had not been asked to stand, sat unmoved in his chair. His pale complexion seemed paler than ever, his heavy black eyes, heavy-lidded, his pallor being the result of the bright lights of the court room. His mouth tightened a bit but otherwise he gave no sign of emotion.

Justice Arthur S. Tompkins, a outward evidence he was affected. His looking, gray hair and man of about 50, stood up and immediately pronounced sentence. Instantly there was a burst of handclapping and cries of "good" in which the voices of women and girls predominated. The judge, surrounded by order and looked annoyed. Two women were promptly ejected from the court room by bailiffs.

Fall And Winter Fashion Offerings Are Seen Here In Sadye's Annual Revue

Sanford Not In Path Of Tropical Storm

A capacity house last night witnessed Sadye's semi-annual fashion revue at the Milane Theater. The latest modes in Fall and winter wear were exhibited by ten models, and the success of the affair was reflected in general approval of the season's style offerings.

Smart sports outfits in all kinds of attractive combinations lent color to the revue, and elicited general admiration. Agressive afternoon and evening costumes, in the predominant colors of the season, also came in for general commendation. The revue was brought to a climax with a presentation of fashion's latest decrees in lounging wear.

The group of models, each appearing in several creations, included Miss Helen Maronette, Miss Mary Louise Berkebile, Miss Ethel Tatterton, Mrs. C. K. Swindle, Miss Ruth Primm, Miss Camilla Puleston, Miss Helen Wiley, Mrs. J. N. Hobson, Jr., Mrs. C. P. Whidden and Miss Margaret Foster.

Supplementing the fashion show was a delightful entertainment offered by the dancing pupils of Betty Hall Brown, accompanied by George Brockhaus, who also rendered several organ selections. The varied program included two specialty numbers, a ballet and an interpretative dance. All of the numbers drew the enthusiastic plaudits of the audience, which expressed its enjoyment by recalling the thrills performed for repeated encore.

Little Miss Doris Jackson was seen in a tap dance, interpreting the "Wedding of the Painted Dolls." She was received with great applause and graciously responded with an encore.

A special dance and song number entitled "Jack and Jill" was presented by Nell Stewart, accompanied by a group composed of Doris Jackson, Wanda White, Elizabeth Cameron, Martha Telford and Dorothy Stewart. The first xmas party, Mrs. Margaret Jackson, Mrs. B. Y. Ward and Mrs. Maude Tupper.

MACDONALD IS DRIVE IS BEGUN ON WAY TO U. S. TO CURB WHITE TO TALK NAVY SLAVE TRAFFIC

Premier Of Britain Departs Aboard Berengaria With Daughter On Big Mission

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Sept. 28.—(INS)—After being delayed almost two hours by a heavy fog which came up out of the sea and enshrouded this port in a blanket of mist, the Cunard liner Berengaria, bearing Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, on his long-heralded voyage to America, set out today at 9:30 A. M. today.

The great liner was scheduled to sail at 8 A. M., but at that hour the fog was so heavy it was feared the ship might not be able to start until the afternoon tide at 4 P. M.

The mist slowly lifted, however, as Premier MacDonald slipped peacefully in the Prince of Wales suite above, the liner, which in the days before the war was the pride of the Kaiser Wilhelm line when the Berengaria was the German liner Imperator.

Premier MacDonald was unaware that the elements threatened to hold up the start of the voyage which is hailed as one of the great missions in behalf of Anglo-American friendship and unity in history. Extremely tired from the ordeal of undergoing the embarking and disembarking by the people of England, Premier MacDonald had retired, early and slept soundly through the night.

The premier appeared on deck soon after the fog had lifted and was greeted by brilliant sunshine. He appeared with the signal for a "wild" party of cheering by dock workers and a crowd of well-wishers who had gathered early at the pier to see the Premier's departure.

Premier MacDonald and his daughter, Miss Dorothy, were seen in the grandstand with friendly waves of their arms. Both looked refreshed and rested and obviously anticipated a pleasurable voyage.

Premier MacDonald was accompanied by a number of British officials and a number of news correspondents. The Premier's departure was a subject of another tradition by a group composed of Doris Jackson, Wanda White, Elizabeth Cameron, Martha Telford and Dorothy Stewart. The first xmas party, Mrs. Margaret Jackson, Mrs. B. Y. Ward and Mrs. Maude Tupper.

Hurricane Strikes Florida Coast Near Miami, Heads West

BUSINESS SHOWS EXCELLENT FORM OVER SOUTHEAST

ATLANTA, Sept. 28.—(INS)—General business in the southeast enters the windup of the third quarter of the year under full steam of the most active summer this section has enjoyed in years. With the approach of colder weather and under the power of hundreds of millions of dollars from bountiful agricultural harvests, business is bound to gain greater momentum than a year ago during the final quarter of 1929.

The report issued today by the sixth Federal reserve bank here indicates that in August there was a seasonal increase, exhibited in both retail and wholesale trade. There was also an increase in building, compared with the preceding month.

Agricultural prospects, defined somewhat from those earlier in the season, but estimated crops in most instances are greater than those produced last year.

Receipts of money shown in the report showed a gain of 25 percent over July and 22 percent over August a year ago.

Seventy-seven banks in the district reported savings deposits in August of $26,340,000. Production of coal and iron in Alabama continues greater than at the same time last year, the bank reported.

Homestead Has Winds Of Destructive Velocity; Key West Is In Path Of Twister

MIAMI, Sept. 28.—(INS)—The West Indian hurricane, which for nearly a week has been making a house-to-house canvass of the Bahama Islands, fell upon the lower East Coast early this morning with the same relentless fury with which it previously had devastated Nassau, and with which the hurricanes of 1926 and 1928 made their assaults. Miami, Palm Beach, Key West, as well as intermittent points all received winds of hurricane proportions during the day.

The general course of the storm front in the vicinity well established now, is being due west from Nassau. The island of Eleuthera was first to feel the full blast of the winds. The center then moved west to Nassau, thence to Andros Island, and finally was reported at noon today as being fifty miles north of Miami still moving westward.

Though the velocity of the hurricane exceeds 100 miles an hour, it is said to be moving at the unusually slow rate of four or five miles an hour.

Homestead and Florida City apparently were very close to the path of the hurricane and reported destructive winds early this morning. The hurricane is expected to strike Key West late this afternoon or early tomorrow. Miami is expected to be hit by a northwesterly wind of 75 to 100 miles an hour throughout the day.

At 11 o'clock this morning, the barometer at Miami registered 29.11, with the winds blowing between 90 and 100 miles an hour. The wind which for 24 hours had blown from the northeast had gradually shifted to the east. The storm center was located at that time as being approximately 50 miles east of Key West. At the same time the barometer at Key West was down to 29.21 with the wind reported as "violent."

At 2:30 this afternoon the barometer at Miami still registered 29.11 and the wind velocity had remained practically the same although wind gusts at the beach were said to have reached as high as 130 miles an hour. The wind velocity at that time had shifted toward the southeast, indicating that the storm center had moved to the southwest of Miami.

At 3:15 West Palm Beach reported that the wind which had been without shift during the day to the east and then to the southeast, had shifted to a velocity of 10 miles an hour. The barometric pressure had dropped to 29.05, having fallen three points to 29.05 and three o'clock.

At Miami the water in the bay is so even with the causeway and mountainous waves are seen frequently piling over it. Hundreds of automobiles are stranded on Broward Boulevard, and all business in that section is at a standstill. The Miami Herald failed to issue its regular morning edition until 2:30 this afternoon, and all street car service has been discontinued for the time being. Power service is spasmodic, local telephone service is practically gone, and telegraph communication is slow and unreliable.

The American Red Cross sent a relief train to Homestead about 1 o'clock today. It carried five units of workers most of whom were American Legionnaires of the Harvey Cross and Coral Gables Posts. There were also two large motor buses of food stuff and medical supplies.

When Homestead was last heard from several hours ago winds of hurricane proportion were blowing there and the barometer stood at 29.15. Miami Beach is experiencing winds of 100 miles in velocity. Windows were being smashed by the hundreds, tropical trees and shrubs were being leveled, while awnings, which had not been tied up in anticipation of the storm, were being blown to shreds.

Three buses containing passengers, were overturned in Palmetto Sea Drive, Havana, by heavy (Continued On Page Four)

Attorneys In Trial Of Gastonia Case Hold Conferences

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 28.—(INS)—Last-minute conferences between opposing counsel in the Gastonia Aderholt murder trial continued here today. Fred Erwin Beal, communist organizer of the Gastonia strike, and 15 of his aides go on trial Monday charged with murder and conspiracy in the assassination of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt.

Out of today's conferences came little information. Tom P. Jimmie, chief of defense counsel, said the defense probably would not ask for a change of venue.

The trial was first moved here from Gastonia county on a change of venue, and since that time sporadic waves of anti-communist terrorism led to the belief the defense might seek to move the trial even from Charlotte, which is in an adjoining county.

Solicitor John G. Carpentier, head of the state counsel continued to deny or confirm reports the prosecution intended to drop the charges against 13 of the defendants to second degree murder.

Sanford Colored Sch. Will Open Monday

Sanford colored school will open Monday. Twenty-one teachers have been employed and an enrollment of 900 is anticipated. J. N. Grooms, principal, has had charge of the school for 30 years.

"Very few colored school systems in the state are superior to the Sanford schools, and the patrons are justly proud of this standing," Mr. Lawton said today.

100 Believed Dead In Sudden Mexico Flood

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 28.—(INS)—Upwards of a hundred persons were believed dead in Hidalgo state today as a result of sudden flooding of the Metatlan River and the consequent destruction of four entire towns. Hundreds were reported homeless as a result of the inundation.

Seventy-five million cubic meters of water was estimated to have flooded over the banks of the turbulent stream in the 24 hours elapsed since it first went on a rampage. Torrential rains in the mountains which feed the stream were held responsible for the flood.

Court Backs Hall Contention About Papers' Ownership

MACON, Ga., Sept. 28.—(INS)—William Lavarre and Harold Holt were held by Federal Judge Deaver today to have been equal partners in the enterprise of buying four southern newspapers with $370,000 advanced by the International Paper and Toner Company.

Judge Deaver thus upheld the principal contention of Hall in his suit for a division of assets. The court then took up detailed questions involved.

The Hall-Lavarre hearing has occupied several weeks, and has brought out evidence bearing on the part of the huge paper corporation played in financing the various newspapers.

The Hall-Lavarre chain included the Spartanburg, (S. C.) Herald and Journal, the Columbia (S. C.) Record and the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

SEARCH FOR BANDITS

CLEVELAND, Va., Sept. 28.—(INS)—Wide search was under way today for three masked bandits who, it was reported, had been captured by Douglas Wilson of the Russell County Bank here and escaped with $3,000.

Diamond Ball Loop Will Be Discussed At Meeting Monday

Plans for a six-team diamond ball league will be discussed at a meeting Monday night at 7:30 p. m. in the hall of the International Paper and Toner Company.

The league will be organized, captains elected and a schedule of games made up. In addition a discussion of the rules will be held and general plans for the league will be outlined by Herman Morris, who has been appointed to supervise the games.

Between 50 and 60 persons are expected to be on hand, following the circulation of a petition to which a number of men signed their names as being willing to participate in the league.

Following the meeting, a brief conference of the Hoopers in Sanford will be held at which time plans for furnishing additional recreational facilities for tourists this season will be considered.

Sanford Baptists Complete Plans For Sunday School Promotion Day

Twelve will be promoted to the Young People's Department from the Intermediate group.

Division superintendents, who will have charge of the exercises, include Mrs. George Huff, Credit Roll; Mrs. Fred Myers, Beginners; Mrs. E. W. Lawton, Primary; Mrs. Forrest Gatchel,

Library Gets Collection Of Photos And Papers From Frank P. Forster

A rare collection of pictures and papers, depicting Sanford in the early 1800s when it was nothing but a settlement looking forward to better days, has been presented to the Municipal Library by Frank P. Forster, pioneer resident.

The collection has been assembled by Mr. Forster over a period of more than 65 years and represents what is believed to be the most complete photographic record of Sanford's earlier history. Mrs. Elsie Knight, librarian, took occasion today to express appreciation to Mr. Forster for the valuable donation.

Among the pictures is an etching of General Sanford, founder of the City, and another is a sketch of the view of the City in 1802. It shows three plans on the left, one showing the river, another showing the view from the north and a third showing the view from the south.

Collegiate Depression

Too many suicides of late among college youths, have led the Y. M. C. A. of New York City to seek a remedy for this evil. Aroused by the fact that in one particular section of the city, eleven young men had recently ended their own lives, leaving messages behind somewhat to the effect that they had experienced all and had nothing further to live for, the Y. M. C. A. has recommended that all young men spend at least ten minutes each day in active physical exertion.

Boys who get the idea that life holds nothing else for them are in all probability suffering from an overdose of morbidity likely induced by too much browsing among such pessimistic philosophers as Schopenhauer and Nietzsche. The suggestion of the Y. M. C. A. is a good one because it leads the plastic mind to something pleasant and puts fresh air in young lungs, both of which would tend to lower the suicide rate among eccentric students.

And while they are at it, why stop with ten minutes exercise? Why not spend three hours in a round of golf? If they have ever seen a thirty foot putt sink for a win, they will want to live forever hoping for another. Why not an hour's canter in the morning? If they have ever taken a hunter over the bars, or put a finely gaited animal through his paces, they will never want to die.

No more thrills for them, these youngsters, not yet through college? Have they ever planted ryegrass or cultivated nasturtiums? Have they ever, late on a moonlight night, in tropical inlets, felt the strike of a hundred pound tarpon? Have they ever felt the nibble of a brook trout on an ordinary hand line? Have they ever watched a flock of mallards come out of a marsh, right in line for a shot?

If not, they should try some of these things. They might find there is something left for them in this old world yet. They should try the simple little things which go to make life happy. They should try to broil a steak sometime and make it come out just right like the finest one they ever saw at Sherry's or the Hof Brau. And they should try reading something else, not something gloomy like Maxim Gorki's "Lower Depths" but something like "Alice In Wonderland," or Ruskin's "Sesame and Lilies."

They would find that there are thrills in watching flowers grow, in seeing birds build their nests, and in turning all the hostile elements of Nature into friendly benefits, just as there are thrills in night clubs, drunken brawls, and ladies of the evening. And they would learn that for much of the latter is apt to make them forget the fun in the former and to lead them sometimes to the almost inexplicable belief that they have already lived long enough after a brief twenty, or twenty-one years.

Chasing Wild Bears

Charles A. Dana, for many years editor of the New York Sun, in trying to show one of his reporters that it is the unusual thing which has the greatest news value, said, "If a dog bites a man, it is of no great importance, but if a man bites a dog, that's news." After reading an article in Good Housekeeping, we feel the famous editor might have added that when a man chases a bear, that's news too.

For H. L. Dillaway, for many years a government forest ranger, does that very thing, sometimes as a part of his business, and sometimes just for fun, or for the fun which visitors to his own particular reserve may get from the bear's antics as it scampers up a nearby tree. What Mr. Dillaway does, is to remove his coat, and waving it wildly over his head, he rushes at the bear shouting at the top of his voice.

He says that anyone can do the same thing if he wants to. We don't doubt the truth of Mr. Dillaway's statement, and so we are perfectly willing to take his word for it without personally making the experiment. If any of our readers want to try it sometime, we assume no responsibility in case the bear does not act in the manner prescribed by the veteran ranger, or takes it into his head to become irritated or aggressive.

For bears are strange animals. In spite of their huge bulk they have not near the ferocious appearance of a lion or a tiger, and yet we have heard experienced hunters and trainers say that in a battle between a representative lion and a good sized grizzly bear, the odds should be on the bear. Then jaws are just as powerful and they use their paws and forelegs with much more telling effect.

With this fact in mind our advice is to always treat a bear with the same eminent respect with which the king of the beasts is regarded and in case of an encounter to yield the field as rapidly as is consistent with a strategic retreat.

The bullet went through the head of one of the men in the automobile. The policeman is charged with second degree murder. Florida Fruit And Bulb Protection

FLORIDA TIMES UNION

Commenting on the United States Department of Agriculture, Senator Fletcher, for leading the fight against the adoption of the Senate Finance Committee's proposed amendment of the provision in the existing tariff act relating to plant quarantine regulations, is highly gratified. It indicates that the department of agriculture appreciates what Senator Fletcher has done to protect the interests of the plant and bulb growers of this state and of the entire United States. The amendment referred to, if it had been adopted to become a part of the tariff bill to be enacted in the special congress, or in the regular session to follow, would have been disastrous to the fruit and bulb interest of this state, as well as of all other states in the Union. It would have opened the doors to the importation of insects and diseased plants and bulbs shipped from foreign countries.

Under the present provision in the tariff law, the United States Department of Agriculture has discretionary power with reference to the admission of foreign plants and bulbs. The Senate Finance Committee's amendment would have restricted the discretionary power which the secretary of agriculture now has. Following the stand taken by Senator Fletcher and his colleagues, the danger involved in opening the doors to foreign importation of plants and bulbs, it is not likely that the proposed amendment will be incorporated in the tariff bill to be enacted. Senator Fletcher regretted the necessity of opposing the amendment, as offered by the Senate Finance Committee, but he felt that he was compelled to do so in order that Florida and other states might not be made to suffer by more or less unrestricted importation of foreign fruits and bulbs. Of course, Florida might be more seriously affected than other states if the bill were let down. But if the bill were to be kept up, that action Senator Fletcher took, giving the United States Department of Agriculture officials very good reason for expressing their approval of what he had accomplished.

In the course of his remarks on the Senate Finance Committee's amendment, Senator Fletcher explained, in very few words, what it would mean to have the committee's amendment adopted. He said: The present law makes the secretary of agriculture, when he learns that certain diseases exist in certain countries, and that certain bulbs or plants or fruits or vegetables are infected with certain kinds of destructive disease, to say that so to

SATURDAY EVENING SERMON

BY REV. W. E. PUGH

(A discussion of the International Sunday School Lesson by the Rev. W. E. Pugh, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Jacksonville, Fla.)

Devotional Reading: Isa. 61:1-9. The significance of the Exile and the Restoration sums up the meaning of the experience through which the Jews were called upon to pass between the years 586 to 400 B. C. For thirteen weeks our lessons have had to do with a period of history that has had something to say about the matter of providence, religious discipline, human leadership, co-operation, and the value of worship. In attempting a review of this period nothing better can be done than to keep in mind some of these outstanding features.

Mystery "The hand of God in history" is an inviting theme. Some have attempted to trace out a philosophy of history wherein the hand of God may always be seen. More often than otherwise, current history is mystery the true meaning of which is not revealed until the passing of many years. It was so, evidently, with the Jewish captives in Babylon. Well may these people have asked the question: What does God mean? Why has He so dealt with us, His chosen people? Will not the answers decide us all the more since we who profess a God Who is above all gods, have been brought into subjection to the heathen?

To the prophet the situation of the Jews in captivity was not such a great mystery. They saw the hand of God in it all. The nation was being brought to a sense of its responsibility in what seemed to be a most trying manner. Only after many years did the people begin to realize the meaning of these experiences. "What I do ye know not now, but afterwards." Discipline To the independent spirit discipline is not a pleasant word. More than one meaning is attached to this word. To discipline is to train, to subdue, to subject, or to correct. It may also be defined as training resulting from misfortune, troubles, and the like. It is the latter discipline through which the Jews were called upon to pass in the Babylonian captivity. In the nature of the case, because of their persistent falling away into idolatry, something

FLORIDA COMMERCIAL

The Bradenton Chamber of Commerce has started a move that bids fair to prove beneficial to the vegetable growers of that section and of the state by conducting chemical tests to determine what, if any, advantage the products of that section have over those of other sections in the way of health-giving chemical elements.

It is generally accepted as a fact in business that any possible advantage in value and quality offered when a product is being offered for sale. If one product has an advantage over a similar product, that advantage is stressed in the selling campaign. In the same line with what is accepted as good business policy for the Bradenton chamber to attempt to furnish the farmers of that region with information that will aid in disposition of the products. The tests are being made in order to determine the value of determining the value of the vegetable products produced in that area. It is believed that the tests will show this element to be plentiful, and that will cause a greater demand. In a recent article concerning the people of Florida to take stock of their assets along this line, the Tampa Tribune pointed out that South Carolina has increased the demand for its spinach, asparagus and carrots after tests showed that their products are of a higher quality than those from California. It is believed that Florida vegetables will compare favorably with those of other states and probably surpass them in food content. However, there is much work yet to be done before this fact is definitely established. Therefore others should join with the Bradenton chamber and aid in collecting the necessary data so as to lend all possible encouragement to the use of Florida products.

PROHIBITION IN WASHINGTON

BRADENTON HERALD

Charges of Senator Howell, Nebraska Republican, that the prohibition law is being flagrantly violated in Washington drew a quick reply from President Hoover which to some is indicative of the President's displeasure over the matter. Senator Howell is nothing unusual in the claims of the Senator nor does the President's reply really mean anything. Mr. Hoover wants Mr. Howell to give the Department of Justice definite information on the question which Mr. Howell doesn't possess. He admits that he was speaking in generalities. The President assumes the position that the Howell statement impugns the good faith and integrity of District of Columbia officials, but is glad that he raised the question. "If he will be good enough," the statement continues, "to furnish the authorities with definite information on the subject suitable action will be taken."

Of course, that is the duty of the Senator? What excuse is there for the employment of high priced experts in positions of this nature if they can only act after definite information has been laid before them by members of the Senate or the public? Haven't they any greater obligation in the matter than this? This newspaper regards it as a duty of these officials to ferret out the law violators and bring them to justice without requiring members of the senate to assume detective roles. Mr. Howell was speaking from hearsay and probably from observation. No one, unless it is the President, believes that the prohibition law is being enforced in the District of Columbia or in Washington proper any more actively than they are elsewhere in the country. The records indicate that members of Congress have enacted the law in the past by claiming immunity from customs search in order to bring liquor into the country. If these gentlemen were guilty of this offense isn't it reasonable to suppose that they have carried their immunity on to Washington? Figures published recently in National magazines show a steady increase in our importation of Canadian liquor while figures that are made public from time to time by the Metropolitan Life insurance company show an increase in deaths among policy holders from alcohol poisoning. These do not take into consideration the vast quantity of alcohol other than Canadian consumed in this country or the unusually larger number of people who recover from the effects of poison alcohol. Representative LaGuardia running on a wet platform was unanimously nominated by the Republican party for mayor of New York a few days ago over his dry church-supported opponent. The claim that New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and many other cities today support a greater number of speakeasies than they had harbored in the old days points to the trend of the times.

Washington in our opinion is as wet today as any other city of similar size in the country. And if the clean-up is delayed until members of the Congress voluntarily provide District officials with the evidence necessary to convict those who are engaged in this traffic any change in present conditions will be a long time in coming. MORE EFFECTIVE REMEDY FOR CONTROLLING POULTRY LICE According to experiments carried on by the University of Tennessee, sodium fluoride is cheaper and more effective than sodium borate in the treatment of poultry for the common body louse. Quoting from the Tennessee bulletin the following method is outlined: "Tinch Method; Sodium fluoride is commonly recommended for the control of lice on poultry. In our experiments sodium fluoride proved superior; the hens remained free of lice for a longer period and the expense was less. With sodium fluoride hens remained free about four months, whereas, with the sodium borate lice did not appear again for eight months or longer. There are several grades of sodium fluoride on the market. The commercial form sold by the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. was found to be very suitable. It may be obtained for eight to ten cents a pound in 100 pound lots.

The material is best applied in the dust form to the various parts of the body by the so-called "spray method." The dust may be held in one hand, or placed on a box, and a pinch of the chemical applied next to the skin on the neck, another pinch in the tuft around the vent, one under each wing and one on the breast and neck. Sodium fluoride is only slightly soluble and remains long enough on the food to destroy all the young hatched from the eggs. Care should be exercised to avoid breathing the material, as it is irritating to the nose. A sound is sufficient to treat about 100 birds.

Internal medication of poultry for the control of external parasites such as lice and mites is of no practical value. In answer to questions relative to the treatment of drinking water and food with materials to control lice, quite the opposite conclusion to U. S. D. A. Technical Bulletin number 60, "Introduction." There is a general impression among farmers, poultrymen and stockmen that certain chemicals, administered internally, will protect animals from external parasites. The prevailing idea is that the material is taken up by the blood and excreted on the surface of the body or body coverings. It is commonly believed that when parasites come in contact with such poisons they are poisoned or repelled by the chemical. As this impression has been commercialized to the extent of several million dollars during the last few years, and as survival of the proprietary remedies have been tested for foods and found ineffective, it was deemed advisable to make controlled tests of some of the chemicals most generally used. The purpose was to determine whether any control of external parasites of poultry is derived from internal administration of chemicals used for that purpose. Records were made to show the effects of such medication on hens and on the parasites infesting them.

Conclusions:—Not one of the preparations here considered when given in the food or drinking water, showed any indications of value against the parasites used in these experiments. These tests considered with the feeding experiments reported in Part I of this bulletin, show conclusively that preparations of this type, given in the food or drinking water, can not be of any practical value for the control of the common external parasites of poultry.

Commissioner L. M. Rhodes of the State Marketing Bureau will assist the growers and shippers of this section by the organization of a market system for the mixed vegetable shipments plan.
