Going Well

Well-drilling at Hidden Lakes park seems to be going smoothly as a drill operator takes time out for lunch while keeping an eye on the equipment. The McCreth Corp., contractor for the city's two new wells, estimates the drilling will be completed in 20 days, but another 40 days at least will be needed thereafter to clear the new wells of bacteria. Timetable for the wells was advanced in light of the city's EDB crisis. Six city wells are shutdown due to contamination by the pesticide and a water shortage had been feared.

MADD Will Push Bill Raising Drinking Age

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Members of the newly organized, but not yet chartered Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD) of Seminole County plan to swamp Tallahassee legislators with letters supporting two major alcohol-related bills under consideration by legislative committees.

Pam Tucker, organizing chairman of the Sanford-based chapter, said today the 20-member local organization endorses measures raising the drinking age from 19 to 21 and banning the consumption of alcoholic beverages by the driver and other occupants of a motor vehicle.

And, Mrs. Tucker said at least two delegates from the new chapter here will be attending a state-wide conference of 13 MADD chapters in Orlando this coming weekend to help map strategy for pushing the proposed laws.

"We certainly favor these proposed laws and legislators will be hearing from us," Mrs. Tucker said.

The Sanford-based MADD was organized in December. So far, a $25 affiliation fee along with the names of the 20 new members, has been forwarded on to the state headquarters for a charter, said Sanford police officer Sgt. Bill Bernosky, who helped organize the local chapter.

Meanwhile, members of other MADD chapters were expected to descend on Tallahassee this week to vocally support the two proposed bills.

The drinking age bill (HB 21) by Rep. Fran Carlton, D-Orlando, will be heard by the House regulated industries committee on Tuesday.

The Senate's companion bill (SB 53) by Sen. Dick Langley, R-Clermont, a member of the Seminole County Legislative Delegation, will be debated by the judiciary-criminal committee on Tuesday. Also scheduled for consideration is alcohol abuse treatment legislation by Sen. Malcolm Beard, D-Seffner.

A House criminal justice subcommittee is considering the House version of the bill banning open containers of alcoholic beverages in vehicles today. Sanford already has an ordinance banning open containers of alcoholic beverages ages in vehicles as well as banning open containers in the public.

Mrs. Carlton had introduced legislation in the House for several years trying to raise the drinking age to 21. Langley joined her effort during the 1983 session.

House and Senate committees will meet throughout the week in preparation for the coming spring session.

The controversy over the pesticide EDB will continue to get the attention of lawmakers and Sanford, which is having a major problem with EDB contamination of 6 of its 15 wells, will be watching this legislation closely.

Lawmen Differ On Change

Seminole County lawmen are anything but united in their opinions on how and if raising the drinking age from 19 to 21 would affect the problem of drinking and driving.

"This is a political thing," Lake Mary Police Chief Harry Benson said. "It wouldn't make any difference to us. We will enforce the law whatever it is, but if they do go to 21 how are we supposed to identify these people?"

But Sgt. Bill Bernosky of the Sanford police department said, "It's of vital interest to the community for the drinking age to be raised. Our question is, what is the problem that it can't be raised? Once that's determined we will have a solution to the problem."

And the problem, according to Bernosky, is that 14-, 15- and 16-year-olds can easily pass for 19 and buy alcohol, but he said, "It isn't easy for a 16-year-old to pretend he is 21. Alcohol is the most serious drug problem in Seminole County and we want to curb its use in the younger group until they reach a more responsible age."

Sheriff's department statistics indicate that the drinking and driving problem is created not by young drinkers, but by drinkers who are over 21.

"We make most DUI (driving under the influence) arrests in the older age groups and no drunk driving fatality in Seminole County has involved an 18- to 19-year-old, or even an underage drinker," spokesman John Spolski said.

"Sheriff Polk believes if you are old enough to have the responsibility to serve in the military you are old enough to buy and drink alcohol," Spolski said.

Altamonte Springs Police Chief William Liquori said he has "no opinion on this, because the information is conflicting. Some statistics show that the younger drinkers are causing a problem and some show they aren't. We want to wait until the full story is in on this."

"I don't feel a change in the law would have any effect on the drunk driving problem," Casselberry Police Chief Win Gates said. "Most of the DUI arrests that come across my desk are 23 to 33 year olds. It might help in the prevention of sale to minors, but it won't effect the DUI problem as far as I can see."

Oviedo officers say they will enforce the law whatever it is. And Longwood Capt. Terry Baker and Winter Springs officer Wesley Dowell said that raising the drinking age would help the DUI problem tremendously because it would take alcohol out of the hands of the very young drinker.

Outlawing open alcohol beverage cans in vehicles would be a good idea, according to Bernosky, because, "You wouldn't pass the steering wheel around in the car, so why should you be able to pass a beer can. It's just as dangerous."

Other law enforcement officials, however, said they see enforcement problems with that type of law.

Fund Started To Aid Burned Out Family

Diego and Hilda Santiago, whose home was destroyed by fire Friday night, have some hope today they may recoup some of their losses with the help of friends and neighbors.

Their church, Forest City Seventh-Day Adventist Spanish Church, has established a fund to help the family rebuild.

Diego spent the past two years building his home at Lake Emma Road near Longwood, and now he will have to start all over to replace the four bedroom home which was almost complete. The couple and their three children were already living in the home.

Santiago, 61, and his wife, daughter and two sons are staying with neighbors until they can find a place to live.

The Santagos were attending services at the Forest City Seventh-day Adventist Spanish Church when a short-circuited wire connected to power tools started the blaze on the back porch of the house.

The church fund has been established in their name at Florida Federal on State Road 434 at State Road 436. An appeal has been made to the public for donations of building materials, household items and clothing.

Santiago is a retired heavy-equipment business owner who moved to Central Florida from Puerto Rico six years ago. Mrs. Santiago is a teacher's aide at Lovell Elementary School, Apopka.

Salvage Yard Ban On City Agenda

Sanford city commissioners at a 7 p.m. meeting today will be urged by their staff to continue the city's ban on locating new salvage yards in the community.

And City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles will report that a request for permission to reconstruct the United Solvents of America plant and related facilities on Airport Boulevard has been referred to the city's planning and zoning board for public hearing.

On salvage yards in the city, Knowles said a survey of other governmental units in the area shows that Altamonte Springs, Winter Park and Maitland specifically prohibit such businesses, while Seminole and Orange counties and the city of Orlando allow salvage yards, but only after compliance with stiff regulations.

Knowles listed reasons for his and Building Official Gary Winn's recommendation that salvage yards remain a prohibited use: they do not provide taxes other than on land where the same amount of taxes are paid before the use, they do not promote job opportunities and they tend to degrade the values of surrounding properties.

The city manager is proposing a list of strong regulations if the commission decides to allow additional salvage yards in the city. He says there are currently six paint and body shops in the city with three or more junk cars on site and the commission may wish to instruct the building department to enforce city ban laws on those businesses.

The United Solvent plan to reconstruct its facilities which burned to the ground last Oct. 29 will be considered by planning and zoning for a "conditional use," Knowles said.

He added that city law requires the special permission before rebuilding is allowed.

The city manager reminded that the Oct. 29th blaze was the second time the structure has burned. It also burned in June, 1968.

Man Smashes Police Department Door With Steel Bar, Threatens To Kill

A man wielding a steel bar went on a rampage at the Sanford Police Department Saturday, shattering a glass door, threatening to kill police and bystanders and striking out at an officer before he was discouraged by a spray of mace.

When hit with the mace he tried to outrun two officers and a Florida Highway Patrol trooper along French Avenue, but was finally captured.

While Sanford police officer Mark Yarborough was assisting a family in the lobby of the police department at 12:30 p.m., a man walked up to the unlocked glass front door, smashed it with a 18-inch piece of reinforcement rod, then stepped through the door into the lobby, according to Assistant Police Chief Herb Shea.

"I'll Kill everyone," the man said, waving the piece of steel in what was described as a threatening gesture, after Yarborough told him to drop the rod.

Yarborough then told the people in the lobby to take cover and drew his gun, according to the police report.

While the bystanders ran to the other end of the lobby, the man stopped advancing, then backed out the door. Yarborough holstered his weapon and followed the man into the police department's front yard where the man again threatened the officer with the steel bar, according to the report.

State Trooper Gerald Caves then arrived to assist Yarborough as did Sanford officer Gary Atkinson.

Yarborough told Atkinson to hand him his can of mace which the officer did. Atkinson then approached the man with his riot control stick at ready. When the man hit Atkinson's stick with the steel bar, Yarborough sprayed the man in the eyes with the mace, according to the arrest report.

The man fled south along French Avenue. A passing motorist got out of his vehicle and tried to stop the fleeing man. He was injured in the unsuccessful attempt. The maced man stopped in front of George's Tavern, 1011 South French Avenue where he was taken into custody.

Arrested was Stacey Dickerson, 26, of 59 Castle Brewer Court, Sanford. He was charged with resisting arrest with violence, aggravated assault, battery on a law enforcement officer, battery, and criminal mischief.

Shea said it will cost approximately $700 to replace the custom-made doors.

Former Senator Convicted In Abscam Heads For Jail

By United Press International

Harrison Williams Jr., the "Senator for life" who logged 28 years on Capital Hill, must begin serving a three-year prison term on charges stemming from the Abscam investigation, authorities say.

Williams, 64, of Bedminster, N.J., lost a bid for a new trial Friday when a federal judge in Unlondale, N.Y. denied his claims that his rights had been violated by the Justice Department.

Robot Finds Bodies

ELMIRA, N.Y. (UPI) — A police robot discovered the bodies of two parole violators who killed one officer and wounded two others during a 21-hour standoff from a low-income housing project apartment.

Officials said the two men recently had been freed from prison on burglary and robbery charges, officials said.

Sgt. John Hawley, 40, a 17-year veteran, was killed during a shootout with the gunmen early Sunday. He was the first Elmira officer killed in the line of duty in 70 years.

Police said the gunmen started their standoff Saturday night after allegedly abducting a Binghamton cab driver and robbing him of $40 Saturday night.

Lavelle Gets 6 Months

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fired EPA official Rita Lavelle was sentenced to six months in prison and fined $10,000 today for her conviction on four counts of perjury and obstructing a congressional investigation into the Superfund toxic waste cleanup program.

Eleven months after President Reagan fired her from the Environmental Protection Agency, she is the first high-level official of his administration sentenced to prison for committing a felony while in office.

Under the sentence imposed by U.S. District Judge Norma Johnson, Miss Lavelle must serve five months before she is eligible for parole.

Prenatal Classes Scheduled At CFRH

Prenatal classes for expectant mothers have been scheduled by Central Florida Regional Hospital for Tuesdays starting Jan. 17 and continuing through Feb. 21.

To be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. each Tuesday in the hospital classroom, the series is free of charge to those who plan to deliver at Central Florida Regional, Sanford, and $3 for those who plan to deliver elsewhere. Husbands or a member of the family are welcome.

Designed to promote family-centered maternity care for the community, the following topics will be covered: physical and emotional changes during pregnancy (including danger signals), fetal development, mild conditioning exercises, nutrition, smoking and drugs, CFRH policies, labor and delivery (including available medication and anesthesia) and care of the newborn.

Registration early in pregnancy is encouraged. To register, call CFRH's nursing education office, 321-4500, ext. 607.

Assassination Plot

Terrorists Reportedly Planned To Kill Reagan, Begin

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Palestinian terrorists stored enough explosives near Washington, D.C. to level a city block in an apparent plot to kill President Reagan and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin in 1981, a newspaper reports.

Terrorists secretly acquired the explosives and remote-control detonating devices in Arizona and California, the Arizona Republic reported Sunday in a copyright story.

Federal authorities refused to discuss the bombing conspiracy publicly, citing national security.

The newspaper said components for two bombs were stored in a locker near Washington by a Palestinian sympathizer the day before Begin arrived for talks with Reagan.

The plot may have been abandoned because security at the White House was increased that month after intelligence reports indicated a Libyan-trained hit squad was en route to the United States to kill Reagan.

The explosives were found eight months later by an executive of Self-Service Storage Corp. of Alexandria, Va. who opened a storage facility because the rent was overdue.

Palestinian terrorists worked through intermediaries in Phoenix and San Diego to gather bomb components, including 100 pounds of explosives, blasting caps and two-way radios, according to federal records.

Palestinian activist Abdul-Hafiz Mohammed Nassar placed the explosives in the Alexandria locker Sept. 8, 1981, the records said, and Nassar's car was cited for illegal parking that day less than two blocks from the White House.

Nassar, 31, is a Jordanian who operated an Indian jewelry store in Albuquerque, N.M. until his arrest in 1982.

In interviews at the LaTuna Federal Corrections Institute near El Paso, Texas, Nassar said he acquired the explosives and detonators for Palestinian businessmen in Beirut, Lebanon. Nassar said he was told the components would be sold in Afghanistan, and denied there was an assassination plot.

In an interview, Nassar denied being a PLO member and said Palestinians would never plot an assassination in the United States because it would generate more pro-Israel sympathy.

Is It, Or Isn't It?

Although he didn't clock it officially with radar, Herald photographer Tommy Vincent said the bird zipping around Lake Monroe in Sanford definitely was within the posted speed limit.

Vessey: U.S. To Stay In Lebanon...For Now

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Hours after Marine Cpl. Edward Gargano became the 258th U.S. serviceman killed in Beirut, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff ruled out an early withdrawal of American military forces from Lebanon.

Gargano, 21, of Quincy, Mass., was shot in the back Sunday morning when unidentified assailants tossed grenades and fired guns at a helicopter unloading Marines in West Beirut near the U.S. Embassy.

Gen. John Vessey met Sunday with President Amin Gemayel hours after the American casualty and discussed U.S. military aid and assistance to Lebanon, state-run Beirut radio reported.

"Vessey told Gemayel Washington was determined to see the government regain control of its territory and (achieve) the withdrawal of foreign forces, and that the Marines would stay until these goals were realized," a radio broadcast said.

No group claimed responsibility for the attack which occurred on the seaford 500 yards from the U.S. Embassy.

Gargano was a veteran of the Oct. 25 invasion of Grenada and was sent to Beirut immediately afterward. He was scheduled to go home in April.

Flags were flying at half-staff today in Massachusetts.

"The wound was a bullet in the right side of his back," said a nurse at the American University Hospital. "When he came in, he was dead, and we tried to resuscitate him. He had lost too much blood."

The CH-46 helicopter was delivering a work party of 12 Marines to the embassy when it "came under intense small arms and rocket-propelled grenade fire," Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks said.

The attackers opened fire at 8:30 a.m. from windows in a high-rise building facing the Lebanese officers beach club where the Marines use a parking lot to land helicopters.

Unlike Sunday's attack in a quiet middle class neighborhood, virtually all earlier assaults have been on the Marines at their fortified Beirut airport base.

The only previous Marine death off the base occurred when a guard was killed when a suicide terrorist blew up the old U.S. Embassy not far from the site of Sunday's clash.

Saudi Arabia continued its mediation efforts to implement a master security plan for Beirut and the surrounding region, held up so far by majority Moslem groups insisting on a parallel agreement giving them a fairer share of the minority Christian-dominated parliament.

In Tripoli, 42 miles north of Beirut, the pro-Syrian Alawite "Red Knights" militia was reportedly ready to lay down its arms as part of a major peace plan for the city beleaguered by factional fighting since 1979, sources said.

The truce was arranged between the "Red Knights" and the anti-Syrian Islamic Unification Party by the deputy foreign minister of Iran, Hussein Sheikholeslam, the sources said.

In Tel Aviv, Israel, the government of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir Sunday reaffirmed its demand for a Syrian withdrawal from Lebanon, signaling a possible rift between government policymakers and the military.

The government's reaffirmation of Israel's condition for withdrawal came two days after Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Moshe Levy said Israel could pull its troops out of Lebanon even if Syrian soldiers remained in the country.

Officer Loses Gun To Convenience Store Robber

Lake Mary police tracking dogs have given officers a good lead to one suspect in a convenience store robbery in which an officer was disarmed by a second bandit.

Lt. Sam Belfiore said that the suspect who was tracked by the dogs was left behind by his accomplice who drove away in their getaway car after taking patrolman Rick Gregory's gun. No arrest has been made, but Belfiore said police have an excellent lead on one suspect in the case.

The incident began about 8 p.m. Saturday as Gregory, 21, drove past the Phillip's 66 convenience store on Lake Mary Boulevard just east of Interstate 4 and spotted a man behind the counter who tried to duck out of sight. Belfiore said the suspect ran from the store and stopped when the officer ordered him to freeze.

A woman clerk then ran from the store and said there was a second suspect inside. Concerned for the safety of the clerk and the location of the second suspect, Gregory was momentarily distracted and was assaulted by the suspect who had run from the store. The suspect took Gregory's .357-caliber magnum revolver and fled in the getaway car.

In his report, Gregory said, "I saw my life flash before my eyes" when confronted by the gunman, Belfiore said.

The second suspect fled on foot and the pair got away with an undisclosed amount of cash, Belfiore said.

CRUELTY TRIAL STARTS

The civil trial of an Oviedo woman charged with nine counts of cruelty to animals began today in Seminole County Court.

Laurian Spankile, owner of Snow Hill Kennels and Plant Farm, State Road 426, has been charged with cruelty to nine animals seized at her kennel Aug. 25. If convicted, she could receive a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a $1,000 fine for each of the nine counts.

Officials of the Seminole County Humane Society, Seminole County Animal Control and the sheriff's department obtained a search warrant and seized eight dogs and a kitten after receiving a complaint from a former kennel employee.

Of the nine animals taken in the search, a Doberman pincer died the same day and a second Doberman died five days later at a veterinarian's office. A kitten named Patches, said to have been undernourished, also died.

The other animals were placed in the custody of the humane society Oct. 17 after county judge Alan Dickey ruled that Spankile was "unable or unfit due to neglect to adequately care" for the six animals.

TOOLS TAKEN

Tools valued at nearly $2,300 were taken in two separate incidents Wednesday or Thursday, according to Seminole County sheriff's reports.

Tools valued at $290 were taken from a workshop at American Auto Shippers, Winter Park, Wednesday or Thursday. The tools belong to James A. Houtenville, 48, of 503 Gilbert Road, Winter Park and Wilson Hughes of 1928 Blossom Lane, Fern Park. Deputies said they have the name of a suspect in the case.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Parliament Set To Meet For First Time Since '74

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — King Hussein called the first meeting of Jordan's Parliament in nine years today to discuss new elections that might pressure Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat into entering Middle East peace talks.

The two houses of Parliament will meet in emergency session to discuss an amendment to change the constitutional provision that says parliamentary elections must be held simultaneously on the West Bank and East Bank.

The predominantly Palestinian West Bank, Jordanian territory which lies to the west of the Jordan River, was seized by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war and has remained under its control ever since.

Israel's takeover of the West Bank prevented elections from being held there, and Hussein has not asked the Parliament to allow elections on the East Bank, fearing that Israel would formally annex the West Bank if he abandoned his claims to the territory.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

High Court To Rule On The Right To Die

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The state Supreme Court will be asked today to decide whether a hospital should have granted the wish of a comatose man who's "living will" asked that no extraordinary measures be taken to preserve his life.

Francis Landy, 81, was admitted to John F. Kennedy Hospital in Palm Beach April 10, 1981. He lapsed into a coma days later, before he could ask physicians to honor his will, which said he wanted to be allowed to die if he was terminally ill.

By April 20 he was diagnosed as terminally ill and doctors said he had suffered permanent brain damage from respiratory failure. Fearing civil and criminal liability, the hospital refused to honor the will. Landy died on April 24, still connected to the life-support machine.

His family was fighting in court for permission to disconnect the system, but Landy died before a hearing could take place.

Farmers Call EDB Fears 'Ill-Founded'

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida citrus growers have suspended shipment of EDB-sprayed fruit to California for three weeks, despite protests from farmers that fear of the pesticide is "ill-founded."

The embargo will allow time for the federal Environmental Protection Agency to set safety standards for use of ethylene dibromide in food before shipments to California resume, said Hans Van Nes, assistant director of the California Food and Agriculture Department.

At the urging of Florida Gov. Bob Graham, EPA officials promised in late December to set an EDB safety standard "shortly after" the beginning of this year.

American Farm Bureau President Robert B. Delano responded to the embargo by calling fear of the pesticide "ill-founded." In Orlando Sunday, he called for use of a scientific basis in setting acceptability levels for EDB.

"Farm people have been puzzled by the air of panic that now surrounds EDB after more than 50 years of general public use — more than 30 years of direct agricultural use," said Delano in a keynote address at the farm bureau's 65th annual meeting.

"Six full years after questions about its safety were first raised to the Environmental Protection Agency... there appears to be little recognition that about 90 percent of EDB's commercial uses have been — and continue to be — in manufacturing leaded gasoline," he said.

"Meanwhile, no human tolerance levels have been set for EDB, and calls for a total ban on its use in connection with food products remain unsupported by scientific evidence," he said.

The embargo came on the heels of a week-long ban on all fresh fruit shipments from Florida. That embargo was imposed to ensure no fresh fruit damaged by the Christmas freeze was sent out of the state. The embargo ended at 7 a.m. today.

Florida has shipped EDB-treated fruit to California in the past, despite objections by officials there that the pesticide could cause health hazards. The shipping was legal, however, because there was no federal or California standard for EDB in food.

UCF Hit With Sex Bias Suit

ORLANDO (UPI) — Women professors at the University of Central Florida are seeking back pay for hundreds of female employees, claiming the school has a history of discriminating against women in salaries and promotions.

The charges were made in two lawsuits filed against the university in U.S. District Court in Orlando. Both suits resulted from complaints that could not be settled by the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

One of the suits was filed on behalf of more than 500 women employed by the state university system, court documents said.

The amount of money sought was not available. But state officials said the university system could be forced to pay thousands of dollars if the women win both suits.

A suit filed by Mary Palmer, associate professor at UCF, claimed the nine state universities "improperly pressured female faculty members throughout the state university system to accept pay adjustments...lower than those mandated by the salary equity studies."

The studies were ordered the Legislature in 1976 to determine whether inequities existed in salary distribution. As a result, a base pay scale was developed for the entire university.

The studies also prompted UCF to require annual salary reviews to ensure equitable salaries among male and female faculty members and employees.

Mrs. Palmer's suit, filed on behalf of more than 500 women employees, seeks back pay for her and the other women.

The commission ruled Mrs. Palmer had been historically paid less than male counterparts and that inequities existed. The agency was unable to resolve the dispute with UCF and Mrs. Palmer was allowed to sue.

In a separate lawsuit filed last week, Ruth Weidenheimer, a UCF education professor, claimed the university discriminated against her in salary and promotion.

She claimed the university had failed to compensate her for seven years of discriminatory treatment.

Mrs. Weidenheimer also alleged UCF pays male faculty members in the College of Engineering more than it pays female faculty members in the College of Education.

A UCF attorney said the university had strong arguments in both cases.

Frank Juge, UCF associate vice president, said the Legislature did not plan to provide back pay when it ordered the salary equity studies in 1976.

Hawkins Appeals For Liver For Child

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Winter Park, has taken the unusual step of appealing to parents of terminally ill children to donate a liver in the event of death to save the life of a critically ill 2-year-old Florida girl.

Trine Engebretsen of Miami, who suffers from a degenerative liver disease, must have a donor liver from a 2-to-3-year-old child who has been declared brain-dead.

"Trine's need is urgent," said Mrs. Hawkins. "She must have a transplant within the next few days in order to survive. I appeal to every parent whose own child dies to telephone 800-528-2971 to offer a vital organ in hope that Trine, or some child like her, may benefit."

Trine's liver has already swelled to four times its normal size because of an enzyme deficiency which causes cirrhosis and hardens the liver until it fails, officials said.

Nationwide appeals for an organ have already been broadcast by Metro-Dade Police and the Hialeah Fire Department, Mrs. Hawkins said.

The children of Sanford

The children of Sanford are the City's future leaders, and Barnett Bank wants to keep them safe.

One year ago, Barnett Bank first opened its doors to the city of Sanford and our office has been growing ever since. Total deposits are now over $3 million and in the past 6 months commercial business has increased over 770%. Yet we never would have been able to develop so quickly without the help of the community's residents and businesses. Your support has been greatly appreciated. We would like to express our thanks for this warm reception by offering a means to help protect our city's future leaders.

We recognize that today's children will be Sanford's future leaders. Barnett wants to help protect these valuable young citizens by providing them with a safe place to play. For every new account opened at our Sanford Office during the month of January, Barnett Bank will donate $10 towards the purchase of new playground equipment for the Clifford W. McKibbin Jr. Memorial Park.

If you would like to help provide the children of Sanford with a safe place to play, open an account at our Sanford office today, and we'll donate $10 towards protecting our future leaders... It's our way of saying Thank-you Sanford, and to ensure that the city will continue to prosper.

Let's Keep Looking For An Alternative

The Pentagon commission appointed to investigate the terrorist attack that took 241 American lives last October in Beirut has pointed an accusing finger at Marine Corps officers and others in the military chain of command. But the bigger news was what the report said about a policy that is keeping the Marines in Lebanon on what looks increasingly like an impossible mission.

There were few surprises in the commission's assignment of specific blame for the disaster at the Marine barracks. The commission, appointed by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and headed by retired Adm. Robert L.J. Long, would hardly have exonerated the local commanders or their superiors.

The headquarters building destroyed that Sunday morning was inadequately protected against terrorist attack. Vital intelligence was either lacking or not sufficiently credited. And permitting hundreds of Marines to be in a single vulnerable building at one time in a zone where terrorist assaults are commonplace was a fundamental violation of sound military practice, not to mention common sense.

So, although President Reagan nobly accepted personal responsibility for the Beirut disaster and precluded any courts martial, it is clear that the careers of several military officers have been blighted. Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Paul X. Kelley may be pressured to retire. And the Marine Corps commander on the scene in Beirut last October may be reprimanded and denied further promotion, a punishment that could effectively end his career.

But in fairness to the Marine officers, it should also be said that they received precious little guidance from superiors about what the Marines were actually supposed to be accomplishing. The Marines were sent to Lebanon to act as peacekeepers in what American policy-makers originally anticipated would be a relatively tranquil environment. When sectarian fighting among the Lebanese broke out again, a Marine contingent never numbering more than 1,800 men was left with no peace to keep and no way to compel a cease-fire.

Adm. Long's commission strongly suggested that keeping the Marines in Beirut under these circumstances risked too many American lives for too little likely gain. What the commission recommended was an urgent reassessment of alternatives to the present policy. Clearly, the Pentagon wants out of Lebanon and the quicker the better. Why? Because it sees the peacekeeping mission there as a futile exercise, and thus an improper commitment of American forces.

For the moment, President Reagan is hanging tough. He holds out hope that the Lebanese can yet resolve their differences and that keeping the Marines in Beirut can hasten the day when peace returns and all foreign forces pull out of Lebanon. But there are signs that, privately, Mr. Reagan is beginning to have his own doubts about whether the current Marine mission can ever succeed. What is more, the White House is reportedly prepared to heed the commission's advice to look anew for alternatives to continued military presence in Lebanon.

Let that search proceed with all deliberate speed.

The Pope And Agca

Not everyone was pleased by Pope John II's visit the other day to an Italian prison and 21-minute meeting with the Turkish terrorist who tried to assassinate him two and a half years ago.

The pope's "personal pardon" and forgiveness of Mehmet Ali Agca was attacked by the press in Turkey, where Agca was convicted in 1979 of the murder of a left-wing Turkish newspaper editor and faces the death penalty. That the pope could call someone who attempted to murder him "a brother" shocked many Turks as well as others around the world who give more credence to the an-eye-for-an-eye rule than the one concerning turning of the other cheek.

It is doubtful that John Paul II had any intention of condoning terrorism through this act of mercy and generosity or any thought of circumventing legal justice. This historical meeting is not likely to lead to more lenient punishment for Agca, who is serving a life sentence for the shooting. In any event — except perhaps in the easing of his conscience if he was sincere in his reported expression of repentance.

Interestingly, the prison visit coincided with a series of holiday-season public prayers for peace, including one containing veiled criticisms by the pope of the Soviet Union for its ruthless war in Afghanistan.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I feel like a prostitute, curbing the death squads just so we can get American arms!"

By Diane Petryk

Tracey and Keith will never be the same. As American high school students they spent three weeks in France living with host families. They went to school with their French brothers and sisters, watched French television and had parties with their French friends. They learned French attitudes about driving (fast) and water (conserve). They each did some special things: Tracey helped her French mother make and can pate de foies gras using local truffles. Keith went with his French father to work at the family butcher shop where most of the people in town shopped everyday.

Then they returned home to the United States. With new ideas, new insights, and a broader knowledge of the world. They were less self-centered. They realized the United States is not the only place in the world where families work, strive, love and have fun. While learning there are other lifestyles in other countries not to be looked down upon, they also gained a greater appreciation for the positive aspects of American life and the American form of government.

Then their French brother and sister came to stay with them for three weeks. They learned American ways of buying (shopping malls) and eating out (fast food). They also did some special things: One went to a slumber party and learned to make chocolate chip cookies. Another used the computer at the office where his American father worked.

Then all the kids were back home. They had extended their families, their friendships and their knowledge of the world. They learned the similarities and differences of life in other countries.

Was it worth it?

They all thought so. If you think you might be interested either in being an exchange student or having your family become host to an exchange student, the President's Council for Youth Exchange offers suggestions for selecting an exchange program. A list of specific organizations and programs may be obtained by writing for a copy of Your Guide To International Youth Exchange. It's free from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 75, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

The booklet advises anyone considering studying abroad ask himself these questions: Can I stand to leave my family for up to a year? Am I willing to learn other people's customs, eat new foods and take part in different activities?

Potential host families should consider: Do we enjoy having people stay at our house? How would we react to having a non-family member, perhaps with differing habits, living in the house? Are we prepared for the additional expenses related to hosting? Do we have the time to invest in a teenager possibly struggling to learn our language and customs?

SCIENCE WORLD Boosting Patient Compliance

By Sharon Rutenberg
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — A specialist says the main reason patients don't take their medicine is because it's too difficult — and once-a-day dosages could dramatically improve compliance to 90 percent.

Dr. Allan Luskin said only 20 percent of patients with chronic diseases follow doctors' instructions for taking medication.

"The major reason for medication failure is non-compliance," said Luskin, associate professor of immunology at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center. "The major reason for non-compliance is the complexity of the drug regimen."

"If we can fix compliance, we can dramatically help people. And the best way is with once-a-day dosage."

Luskin has joined a national campaign to increase communication between physicians and patients.

"The best thing that we can do is for physicians to tailor the medication to the patient — to keep the regimen as simple as possible. The fewer the medicines they should have to take and still have symptoms controlled is ideal," he said.

"Patients who are asked to take a drug four times a day will have a compliance rate of about 10 percent. If we can get a patient to take a drug twice a day, you're talking about 50 percent compliance."

And with once-a-day dosage, compliance is about 90 percent, he said.

The American population has become older with more chronic diseases, Luskin said. Non-compliance seems to be highest among the elderly, adolescents, young adults and the poor.

"But I think everybody needs help," he said.

Luskin is a medical consultant to the pharmaceutical firm, G.D. Searle & Co. of Skokie which introduced a once-a-day dosage drug for chronic lung disease, including asthma, chronic bronchitis and emphysema.

Previously taken four times a day, the medicine now is taken once a day in a time-release capsule allowing constant slow absorption. It stays in the bloodstream overnight and decreases night attacks of asthma and bronchitis "which can be very frightening," Luskin said.

Chronic lung disease is a "controllable disease that is very common, very costly in terms of suffering, that I can fix with the right medicine if only the patients will take the medicine," he said.

In the past decade, Luskin said, pharmaceutical companies have tried to boost compliance by trying new forms of old drugs.

"I think the drug industry has recognized how important drug compliance is ... and will use technology like this to make available over the next few years other drugs on a once-a-day basis," he said.

Key Pharmaceuticals Inc. of Miami, Fla., currently has a drug for chronic lung disease taken twice a day and expects FDA approval shortly for once-a-day dosage.

JACK ANDERSON

Jesse Cleared Of 'Libya Agent' Charge

WASHINGTON — The Rev. Jesse Jackson has more than his Syrian coup and President Reagan's congratulations to be pleased about. The Justice Department has officially cleared him of any suspicion that he acted as an agent of the Libyan government four years ago.

The inquiry into Jackson's status began in September 1980, as a result of press reports that Jackson had taken money from Libya and was trying to negotiate a Libyan oil contract for a black-owned Alabama company. If Jackson had accepted money from Libya, he would have been required to register as a foreign agent.

The investigation came at a politically embarrassing time. Jackson was supporting President Carter for re-election, and charges that Jackson was a Libyan agent would have hurt Carter, particularly with Jewish voters. So Carter's people took steps to keep the lid on until after Election Day.

The Justice Department sent an initial inquiry to Jackson in September 1980, by registered mail. Jackson

JEFFREY HART

Richard Nixon A Hero?

What? Richard Nixon a hero? Yes, I think so, and these thoughts are prompted by the appearance of his latest — and in some ways his best — book, "The Real Peace: A Strategy for the West."

Throughout his public career, Nixon has had the ability to endure extreme adversity and yet come back, a series of setbacks that would psychologically destroy most of us. Nixon has come close to despair at various points in his life, but he has endured and he has prevailed.

With "The Real Peace," here he is again with a serious claim on our attention. Nixon is a comeback artist, a survivor, and a man of courage.

Nixon came out of the Pacific war, won a congressional seat and then won a Senate seat. At the Republican Convention in 1952, Nixon undercut Earl Warren in favor of Dwight Eisenhower, and that, plus the fact that he was a Californian, and was famous from the Hiss case, put him on the Eisenhower ticket.

Then came Nixon's first great public humiliation: the Fund affair. Eisenhower and his principal handlers wanted Nixon off the ticket, a Tom Eagleton-like disaster that might have thrown the election to Stevenson.

Nixon clawed his way back onto the ticket with his Checkers Speech, one of the most effective political addresses in modern times. He actually defeated the will of the great Eisenhower, and probably saved the general in the process.

He defeated attempts to remove him from the ticket in 1956, only to lose by a whisker in 1960 to Jack Kennedy in an election that was almost certainly stolen in Cook County in Illinois and by the Johnson gang in Texas.

Licking his wounds, Nixon tried to position himself for 1964 by running for governor of California. Losing to Pat Brown, a mediocrity, plus Kennedy's Cuban missile crisis, Nixon, badly hung over, gave his famous Last Press Conference: You won't have Nixon to kick around any more.

Fat chance. Nixon was coming back. He observed with interest the Goldwater campaign of 1964, and the birth of Ronald Reagan as a new political star, and he set his sights on 1968.

In the Republican primaries of that year, Nixon obliterated George Romney, Nelson Rockefeller and everyone else, including Reagan. This ascending Nixon curve included the solid win over Hubert Humphrey and George Wallace, and then the 49-state landslide over George McGovern, the biggest win in the history of presidential politics. Along the way, he went to Peking and added to the many strategic difficulties of the Soviet Union.

Then he was flattened by Watergate. On his last presidential trip abroad, to Egypt, my own feeling is that he was unconsciously trying to commit suicide. But, though afflicted by phlebitis and challenging the gods, he endured and survived.

And now we had his series of books, with "The Real Peace" the latest.

I have received from the office of former Treasury Secretary William Simon a couple of pages of comments on "Real Peace" by various luminaries, and since I have room to note here only a few, let me give some from men you would not expect to be fans of Richard Nixon.

Richard Reeves: "Nixon is our Machiavelli — and I mean that as a grudging compliment."

Harrison Salisbury: "'Real Peace' is superb. It has lean prose, muscular thinking, great vision..."

Mario Cuomo: "... found it immensely useful."

Daniel Patrick Moynihan: "I have read it with great care and enormous benefit."

Well, there you have it. Nixon keeps rising like Lazarus, and that takes courage and determination and intelligence.

A hero?

Well, for me, at least, he certainly is.

WASHINGTON WORLD Clock Is Ticking In Lebanon

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Time is running out for President Reagan in the search for peace in Lebanon. But at the same time, there is a possibility that some gains may be made soon on the diplomatic front.

Election year pressures are growing for the president to pull the Marines out of Lebanon where their peace-keeping role is viewed as increasingly vulnerable. And the support from both parties for keeping them in Beirut is fading fast.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, who previously supported an 18-month stint for the Marines in Lebanon, now warns that unless the administration steps up its diplomatic efforts in Lebanon by sending in a "first class team" of negotiators, he will support a withdrawal of the troops.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he would like the Marines "out as soon as possible."

The Pentagon report on the terrorist bombing of the Marine barracks in Beirut, killing 240 Marines, also has caused new soul searching and examination of U.S. policy in the Middle East.

Clearly, Reagan cannot tolerate the continued stalemate and attrition. At the same time, he does not want to bow to terrorism by cutting out from an area he has pronounced vital to the Western world.

But there are signs that the other nations, Italy and France, in the multinational force are reducing or transferring their troops, which will increase the pressure on Reagan to do the same.

Both Italy and France have assured the United States they will maintain their commitment to remain in the peace-keeping force. But some observers believe their latest moves are the handwriting on the wall.

Reagan sees a ray of hope in Syria's release of Navy aviator Robert Goodman through the good offices of Jesse Jackson, and believes it provides an "opportune moment" for the United States and Syria to put all the issues on the table and to try for a solution in Lebanon.

He also is hoping that the ouster of Yasser Arafat from Lebanon may persuade the PLO leader to compromise and to permit Jordan's King Hussein to represent the Palestinians at the negotiating table with the Israelis over Palestinian self rule.

Acquiescence by Arafat would be a shot in the arm for Reagan's stalemated peace plan that he proposed on Sept. 1, 1982. But the more radical elements of the PLO, backed by Syria, may block such a move.

While Reagan is fighting a rear guard action, he has dispatched special envoy Donald Rumsfeld once more to the Middle East. This time, the warring factions in Lebanon undoubtedly will be getting a message that they must step up their reconciliation efforts or all will be lost.

refused to accept the letter. A second letter was prepared in late October and was to be delivered by the FBI.

An Internal Justice Department document seen by my associate Tony Capaccio states that Carter campaign aide Jack Watson and presidential counsel Lloyd Cutler "had indeed intervened and directed that the letter be delivered no sooner than next Wednesday, Nov. 5, 1980" — the day after the election.

It then took months of legal sparring between Justice Department attorneys and Jackson's lawyer, John Bustamante, before specific questions were posed to Jackson in August 1981. Meanwhile, another newspaper story reported that Libyan diplomat Ali El-Houderi had donated $10,000 to a benefit concert for Jackson's Operation PUSH Inc. in December 1979. The government wanted to know about this, too.

In March 1982, Jackson's attorney wrote the Justice Department that Jackson had received no broker's fee, bonus or commission from either the Libyans or the Alabama oil company. He confirmed El-Houderi's $10,000 contribution, but said it went to Operation PUSH, not to Jackson.

In June, Justice wrote to ask "what percentage of Operation PUSH Inc. receipts from the fund raiser are represented by the $10,000 contribution from Ali El-Houderi?"

In July, Bustamante promised a response "within the next 10 days."

In October, a Justice Department memo noted that although the specific information had not been received, "Jackson's attorneys have indicated that (El-Houderi's $10,000) was not a significant percentage of the organization's funding for that year." The memo added: "If true, the investigation could be concluded, for there would be no indication of foreign control. Unfortunately, Jackson's attorneys have neglected to provide any corroboration for this statement, in spite of numerous promises, both oral and written, to do so."

On July 7, 1983, Justice wrote Bustamante: "Your July 19, 1982, letter indicated that information could be expected 'within the next 10 days.' Nearly one year later it is still needed to conclude this inquiry."

On Nov. 15, an internal memo repeated this message and added: "The other information provided by Jackson's attorneys is consistent with the results of the FBI investigation, which has been unable to uncover any commercial undertakings involving Jackson and Libya. The possibility of proving such commercial ties is not promising, and cannot be further explored without grand jury authorization."

Finally, on Dec. 2, 1983, Bustamante, blaming the delay on "extensive travel," gave Justice the figure it had asked for 27 months before: The Libyan diplomat's $10,000 donation was part of $93,500 in total proceeds from the fund-raiser, and amounted to 3 or 4 percent of Operation PUSH's yearly operating budget.

On Dec. 14, the Justice Department wrote Jackson's lawyer that the inquiry was closed.

Brown Pins Two Opponents, Runs Unbeaten String To 12

By Lou Stefano
Herald Sports Writer

The Sanford Seminole wrestling team, in dogged pursuit of their first win of the season, got just that as they defeated Orlando Boone in one leg of a triangle meet Saturday 42-26.

In the other leg of the meet the Seminoles dropped a 42-36 decision to Daytona Beach Mainland. Seminole's record now stands at 1-7.

For a team that hasn't won much this season, the Seminoles have their share of bright spots. Junior Tony Brown pinned both his opponents to up his record to an impressive 12-0 in the 141 pound weight class. "Tony has an excellent array of moves," says Seminole coach Roger Beathard. "He's real quick. When I try to teach him a new move, he picks it up easily."

Beathard also marvels at Brown's "...natural ability to know where he is in a match. He always knows where his body is and what to do with it to counter an opponent's move. All the great wrestlers have it. It's not something you can teach."

Beathard feels the same about freshman phenom Troy Turner who wrestles at 158 pounds. Turner won twice this past weekend to run his record to 11-1. "Troy's a very good wrestler who will be great," Beathard said.

What makes Turner's emergence all the more remarkable is the fact that he wrestles in the upper weight classes. Young wrestlers usually start off light and add weight each year they compete.

"We work out in the weight room," said Beathard, "but Troy's naturally strong. He's stocky and strong."

"He's also very coachable and anxious to learn. Sometimes I forget he's a freshman."

Prep Wrestling

Another wrestler who can be called a bright spot for the Seminoles is another freshman, Sheralton Mays. Mays went 0-3 in his first three matches while wrestling at 105 pounds. Since then he has trimmed down to 101 and has won five of his last seven matches.

So with these bright spots, why do the Seminoles sport a 1-7 record. A few bright spots do not a sunny day make.

The first problem according to Beathard is that the Seminoles forfeit three matches every meet because of lack of people. That's eighteen points right there. "We never had super numbers out for wrestling," Beathard said. "We're not like Lyman or Lake Mary. We always have enough to fill out the varsity."

"Wrestling is a hard sport. It's a one-on-one sport. You can't blame it on the offensive line or the defensive backs. You also have to be in excellent shape. I tell our wrestlers, 'You are in the best shape of any athlete at school,'" added Beathard.

Mainland's Mike Harris (above) has Seminole's David Debose in a stranglehold in Saturday's wrestling match at Seminole High. Debose was able to escape Harris' lock on him, but Seminole couldn't escape with a victory over Mainland. Below, Mainland's Rod Bell seems to have Seminole's Sheralton Mays in a sleeper hold. Mays and Seminole may not have woken up in time to beat Mainland, but the Tribe did upend Orlando Boone for its first victory of the season. Tony Brown continued to sizzle for Seminole as he claimed his 11th and 12th victories of the season.

Patriots Edge Lake Mary On 'Controversial' Goal

Up until the final 19 minutes, Saturday's matchup between Lake Mary's Rams and Lake Brantley's Patriots shaped up as a classic prep soccer dual between two of Seminole County's many talented teams. However, at the most critical time of the game, a controversial goal turned the momentum in Brantley's favor and the Patriots went on to claim a 2-1 victory at Lake Brantley High.

The goal occurred with just under 19 minutes remaining and the game deadlocked at 1-1. Lake Brantley's Ricky Williams received a pass and, according to Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle, used his hands to control it and then went on to score the deciding goal.

"After he received the ball, he used his hands to control it," McCorkle said. "It was obvious it should have been called a handed ball. It's a shame that such a good game was decided that way. I'm not taking anything away from Lake Brantley, they played a great game. But that missed call changed the whole complexion of the game."

It was an important game for both Lake Mary and Lake Brantley as the Patriots remained unbeaten in the Five Star Conference while Lake Mary suffered its second conference loss. The Rams now stand at 8-4 overall and 2-2 in the conference while the Patriots improved to 7-1 overall and 3-0 in the conference.

Lake Brantley got on the scoreboard first as Mo Moghadden booted in a direct free kick with 22 minutes gone in the first half. The Patriots maintained their 1-0 lead at halftime.

The Rams came back strong in the second half and, with 12 minutes gone in the half, Don Kelly received a cross from Durrand Richards and put the ball in the goal to tie the score at 1-1 and set up the "controversial" finish.

"We played our best match of the year," McCorkle said. "But, Lake Brantley played a great match too. Their best team we've played this season."

Lake Mary gets back into action Tuesday in a 4 p.m. match at Spruce Creek. Lake Brantley resumes play Thursday at Apopka.

Tonight

Girls basketball steps into the spotlight tonight as five of Seminole County's six teams are in action. In the only inter-county matchup, Sanford's Lady Seminoles look to keep their unbeaten conference record intact against upset-minded Lake Brantley at Seminole High. Junior varsity action tips off at 6:15 while varsity action starts at 8.

In other games, Lake Mary's Lady Rams (varsity only at 8 p.m.) look for their fifth straight victory against Apopka at Apopka. Lyman hits the road to face Five Star Conference foe DeLand (varsity only at 7:15) and Oviedo's Lady Lions host St. Cloud (JV at 6:15 and varsity at 8).

The Lady Seminoles are cruising along atop the Five Star Conference with a 7-0 conference mark and a 13-2 overall record. The Lady Tribe had better watch its step tonight though against Lake Brantley. The Lady Patriots are hungry for an upset after falling just short of knocking off DeLand last week.

Seminole's top scorers include Mona Benton, Deidre Hillery and Maxine Campbell while Catherine Anderson and Andell Smith have been performing well as of late.

Lake Mary's Andrea Fenning goes in for a layup in the Lady Rams victory over Lyman last Tuesday. Fenning has come on strong this season and helped the Lady Rams to a four-game winning streak. Lake Mary will try to make it five in a row tonight at Apopka.

Oviedo Too Strong For Lake Brantley

By Lou Stefano
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Brantley split a triangular match with Oviedo and Apopka. They defeated the Blue Darters 39-36, and lost to Oviedo 38-28.

Against Apopka, the Patriots won some of the lighter weight matches to get a lead in the match, then used pins by Joe Warsack and Andy Kraft to secure the win.

But against the Lions, it was back to the old story. The Pats dropped seven to the first matches before winning the last six to close the score.

In the meet, Warsack won both his matches to run his record to 8-1 as did junior Craft, who upped his record to 8-5. Dean Shirley, who came back from an early season ankle injury to run his record to 5-0, won both his matches.

Brantley coach Ken Carpenger was pleased with his team's weekend performance. About the Oviedo loss he said, "Hey, 38-28 isn't too bad. If we had had a few different performances by some of our wrestlers it might have been different. We had a guy at 141 who didn't make weight and if a couple of the pins had been decisions, we would have won."

In the other county action, Lake Mary defeated Orlando Colonial 35-20 and Lake Howell dropped a decision to Winter Park 46-22.

'Skins Survive Furious 49er Comeback

NFC Playoffs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Facing the grimmest of upsets after last week's playoff laughter, the Washington Redskins were forced to search inside themselves Sunday. What they found was a place in the sun — Super Bowl XVIII against the Los Angeles Raiders.

The Redskins, 16-2, strode into sold-out RFK Stadium as 10-point favorites in the NFC title game and tip-toed out looking over their shoulders for San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana following an unnerveing 24-21 triumph. Mark Moseley, who missed on four previous field goal attempts, kicked a 25-yarder for the winning points with just 40 seconds remaining after two penalties against 49er cornerbacks sustained the decisive drive.

Montana's three touchdown passes in the final quarter had forged a 21-21 tie after the Redskins' 11th straight triumph seemed ensured with Washington boasting a 21-0 advantage.

"Last year we were Cinderellas but this year we've been ogres — everyone's gunning for us," said Washington quarterback Joe Theismann, who will direct the most prolific attack in NFL history against the Raiders Jan. 22 in Tampa Stadium. "This was the most physical game we played all year and I thought our defense played spectacularly against one of the most potent, wide-open and aggressive offenses I've ever seen."

Trailing by three touchdowns entering the final period to a team which had won 30 of its last 33, the 49ers, 11-7, proved they had not left their heart in San Francisco. Operating without their best receiver, the injured Dwight Clark, the 49ers hushed a crowd of 55,363 with a spirited comeback bid that left coach Bill Walsh torn between pride and passion.

"We would like to wish the Redskins the very best in the Super Bowl," said Walsh, "but it's too bad games are decided by dramatic calls that come so late. These things are unfortunate but people in the league don't want to deal with it. I feel very positive about the San Francisco football team and organization."

The Redskins, who humiliated the Los Angeles Rams 51-7 last week, began the winning drive from their 14 with 6:52 left after Moseley had missed on field goal attempts of 45, 34, 38 and 41 yards.

"There's no question my confidence was affected by the early misses, but I have been in this game long enough (12 years) to know you have to concentrate and go back in there," said Moseley, who earned NFC Player of the Year honors last season when he set NFL records for consecutive field goals (23) and season accuracy (95.2 percent).

John Riggins, who gained 123 yards and scored twice in 36 carries, triggered the march with a 17-yard gain and Joe Theismann found Art Monk for 11 yards to the 49ers' 45 on third-and-eight.

On second-and-10, Theismann threw incomplete to Monk but cornerback Eric Wright was flagged for a 27-yard interference penalty to the 18. On third-and-five from the 13, All-Pro cornerback Ronnie Lott was whistled for a 5-yard holding penalty against Charlie Brown on an incomplete pass to give the Redskins another first down.

After three runs by Riggins — who posted a record sixth straight 100-yard game in post-season — Moseley converted from 25 yards out for the winning points. Washington coach Joe Gibbs, yet to lose in six post-season games, couldn't conceal his admiration for the 49ers' comeback bid.

"San Francisco is a worthy Super Bowl representative and would have served well had they won today," he said. "Anytime Joe Montana gets hot with the kind of diversified offense they have, they can do anything. At the end, we were kind of throwing everything we had out there and we feel very fortunate to get the win."

Montana, who completed 27-of-48 passes for 347 yards, had his desperation pass intercepted by Vernon Dean deep in Washington territory on the game's final play. Mike Wilson — Clark's replacement — caught scoring passes of 5 and 12 yards sandwiched around Montana's 76-yard TD bomb to Freddie Solomon in the final period.

Super Bowl XVIII figures to be a close, high-scoring contest. The Redskins had dropped three previous meetings against the Raiders before emerging with a 37-35 triumph at RFK in the fifth week of the 1983 season.

Raiders Roar Past Seattle, 30-14

AFC Playoffs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Coaches utilize multi-million dollar computers to analyze an opponent's tendencies. They draw X's and O's on the chalkboards until the locker room looks like the site of an international tic-tac-toe tournament.

But in the NFL, the result is usually decided on much simpler terms. The team that trashes the other physically and leaves the opposing players with train whistles blowing in their heads wins the game.

Using that formula, the Los Angeles Raiders roared into the Super Bowl with a convincing 30-14 whipping of the Seattle Seahawks Sunday in the AFC Championship game.

Los Angeles will face Washington Jan. 22 in Tampa Bay, and it couldn't be a better matchup. It appears the burly Raiders are the only team in the NFL that would have a solid shot at dethroning the defending Super Bowl champion Redskins.

For Raider defensive end Lyle Alzado, perhaps the most physical player on a team known for its bone-jarring play, the win was sweet revenge. Twice during the regular season the Seahawks had beaten the Raiders, and last week Alzado made it known he wasn't at all pleased with some of the comments drifting out of the Seattle camp.

"Today we were the aggressors," Alzado said in a frenzied dressing room. "We intimidated them physically and it took the air right out of them. We did it in the trenches and they just weren't up to it."

"We heard some of the things they were saying. One of them said, 'Let's see how tough Alzado really is.' Well, I hope we've answered some of their questions."

The game was turned into a rout early. At halftime, the Raiders had rolled up 226 total yards and held the Seahawks to a dismal 16 yards while building a 20-0 lead.

There was no question of who won the battles in the trenches.

"The first two games we didn't attack them," said Raider linebacker Rod Martin in reference to Seattle's 38-38 and 34-21 victories in October. "Today, we attacked them. We knocked them back almost every play. This was our game. They had their fun the first two times we played. Today was our turn to have some fun."

The Raiders finished with 401 yards and a berth in their fourth Super Bowl. The Seahawks had only 167 yards, a lot of aches and pains and a winter of wondering what hit them.

"I take my hat off to the Raiders," said Seattle running back Curt Warner, the AFC Player of the Year. "They shut us down."

A glance at Warner's stats gives the best indication of just how thoroughly the Raiders shut down the Seahawks. In 11 carries he gained only 28 yards as the Raiders closed off the running lanes and then awarded all over the ball carrier. Warner's longest run was for seven yards.

'Hacksaw' Puts San Fran Loss In Perfect Perspective

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I heard a lot of emotional statements in both locker rooms, ranging from the deplorable state of the officiating to the horrible state of the field, and of all the declarations, the one that covered the whole thing best, I thought, was uttered by San Francisco's Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds.

The 49ers' veteran linebacker has this well-honed faculty for being able to put things in perfect perspective, an uncommon ability to get right to the core of the matter while all around him the majority of others are taking the long way around the periphery.

There was a lot of talk among the 49ers about how they never got a thing from the officials, which they didn't, after the world champion Washington Redskins made it to the Super Bowl again by beating them 24-21 Sunday for the NFC championship on Mark Moseley's only successful field goal in five tries 40 seconds before the end.

Hacksaw never said a word about the officials. The 36-year-old 14-year NFL veteran talked about other things. "We played our hearts out," he said, putting on his street clothes in front of his locker. "We let it all hang out and didn't hold anything back. We took it to 'em until we had no more time left on the clock. Everyone had us counted out. People said the Redskins were gonna kill us, especially after what they did to the Rams last week. I don't think they killed us at all. But they had 24 and we had 21. What else is there to say?"

Nothing, really. For the Redskins, who now have won 11 in a row, it's onward and upward.

Coach Joe Gibbs has told them to forget about football and take the next few days off. They can't go too far, though. By the end of the week, they'll regroup and start getting ready for the Los Angeles Raiders, who defeated Seattle 30-14 for the AFC title, and whom they'll meet in Super Bowl XVIII in Tampa, Jan. 22.

For the 49ers, it's all over. They went into Sunday's contest 10-1/2 point underdogs and were out of sync while as the Redskins built a 21-0 lead after three quarters. Suddenly, though, the 49ers got hot. Quarterback Joe Montana, who had been overthrowing his receivers earlier in the game, put San Francisco on the board 23 seconds into the final quarter with a 5-yard scoring pass to wide receiver Mike Wilson and less than five minutes later the 49ers cut their deficit to 21-14 when Montana teamed with wide receiver Freddie Solomon on a 76-yard touchdown pass.

Montana's second payoff pass to Wilson, this one a 12-yarder, tied the score 21-21 halfway through the fourth quarter and suddenly you could hardly hear a sound from the stunned capacity crowd of 55,363 in RFK.

After the 49ers kicked off again, John Riggins gave the fans something to holler about when he picked up 17 yards to the Redskins' 31, and shortly thereafter Washington got those two big breaks from the officials. The first one came with a little more than two minutes left when 49er cornerback Eric Wright was called for pass interference even though he seemed to be nowhere near Joe Theismann's intended receiver, Art Monk.

That one cost the 49ers a 27-yard penalty and gave the Redskins a first down on the 49ers' 18. Three plays later, another one of Theismann's incomplete passes, this one to Alvin Garrett, was ruled complete on San Francisco's eight when 49er cornerback Ronnie Lott was called for holding.

"I never even touched him," Lott said afterward. Now there were only two minutes left. San Francisco's defense stopped Riggins cold three straight times. The Redskins had the ball on the 49ers' 8 with fourth down and 8 to go. Moseley had missed field goal tries from 45 and 34 yards out in the second quarter, from 38 yards in the third and from 41 yards in the fourth quarter. With 40 seconds left, he was trying for the fifth time from 25 yards and he finally made this one to wrap it up for the Redskins.

Bill Walsh, the 49ers coach, stopped short of saying the officials cost his team the game.

"I'm very proud of my team" he said. "I don't think we were cheated, but there is some question in my mind about a few of those calls. None of that matters now, though. You have to give the Redskins credit. We never had the feeling we were in awe of them, but they just were a little better than us."

Which is what Hacksaw was saying all along, wasn't it?

Lady Seminoles Roll To 13th Win

Mona Benton poured in 22 points and Cleidre Hillery tossed in 21 as Sanford's Lady Seminoles rolled to a 63-50 victory over Winter Park's Lady Wildcats in prep basketball action Saturday at Winter Park High.

The Lady Seminoles now stand at 13-2 overall and 7-0 in the Five Star Conference. Seminole resumes play in the Five Star tonight as it hosts Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots.

Benton and Hillery got the Lady Tribe off to a quick start, but Winter Park managed to stay within striking distance in the first half as Seminole took an eight-point lead, 36-28, at halftime.

Behind Benton and Hillery's fine performances, Maxine Campbell tossed in nine points and Andell Smith did a good job off the bench with eight points, the third straight game Smith came off the bench to contribute eight points.

In other girls games tonight, Lake Mary Invades Apopka while Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks look to stay within one game of Seminole in the Five Star Conference as they travel to Spruce Creek and Oviedo prepares for a key Orange Belt Conference matchup as the Lady Lions host Orlando Jones.

Out Of Sync?

Seminole High's cheerleaders may seem out of sync on this cheer, but they are just warming up for the Tribe's game against Lake Mary in the Oviedo Outlook Tournament. Pictured from left to right are; Paula Cain, Tisha Tipton, Susana Huaman, Judy White and Britney Tyre. Seminole's cheerleaders are rarely out of sync when it counts, but the Tribe's boys basketball team was from the free throw line Friday in a 48-36 loss to Spruce Creek. Seminole, which missed all five of its free tosses against Spruce Creek, will try to get back on track Tuesday night when it hosts Lake Brantley.

Do Expos Need A Rose? Raines Yes, Dawson No

MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal baseball fans are captivated by thoughts the Expos may sign veteran Pete Rose, but the club's 1983 co-players of the year have mixed feelings on the matter.

"Where are they going to play him?" asked center-fielder Andre Dawson who was in Montreal along with left-fielder Tim Lincecum Friday to accept the award presented by the Montreal chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

"Rose is at the end of his career and even though he is a leader, I don't think this team needs one guy to lead it. We have to have 25 guys going out there and doing their job."

"If we play as a team, not as individuals, we'll win," he said.

Dawson, who led the National League in hits and total bases and finished second in the voting for the NL MVP in 1983, said that if the Expos signed the 42-year-old Rose, it would likely mean first baseman Al Oliver, 38, would go.

That trade off, he said, would not benefit the team.

"Oliver is a big plus to the team because he gives us a big bat in the clean-up spot. I don't think Rose could replace him in that respect."

But Raines, who led the NL in runs scored and stolen bases, said Rose would benefit the Expos.

Baseball

"Any time you can get a seasoned veteran like him, you're helping your ball club," he said.

Raines rejected suggestions the team suffers from jealousy and personal differences among its members, but said Rose, who was pursuing Ty Cobb's all-time career hit record, would inspire the team.

"He knows how to win. And he would probably take a lot of pressure off Gary Carter," Raines laughed. "The media would spend so much time talking to him they probably wouldn't bother Carter as much."

The possibility the Expos may sign Rose has been a hot rumor around the city for about a month and a half, but Montreal management has only expressed an interest in the veteran.

Rose declared his free agency after the 1983 World Series when the Philadelphia Phillies said they could not guarantee him a starting position.

'Heels Rout 'Pack

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina State just didn't have the stamina.

The No. 12 Wolfpack — the defending NCAA champions — had hoped to use its home-court advantage Saturday night to upset No. 2 North Carolina — the 1982 NCAA champions.

Midway through the second half, however, it became apparent the Wolfpack was worn out. Forward Lorenzo Charles missed three straight one-and-one attempts at the free throw line and had to be given a rest. At another point, Ernie Meyers sat on the bench taking oxygen to help recover his energy.

"He (Charles) ran out of steam from battling on the boards with (Sam) Perkins and (Brad) Daugherty," said Wolfpack coach Jim Valvano. "Certainly the depth factor wears you out."

The 81-60 defeat was the Wolfpack's second straight loss in an Atlantic Coast Conference game and dropped North Carolina State's record to 10-4. It was the first ACC contest for the undefeated Tar Heels, 10-0.

Center Sam Perkins was a decisive factor in the Tar Heels' victory. The All-American had a game-high 22 points, 16 in the second half, and played a key defensive role. Michael Jordan and freshman point guard Kenny Smith added 18 points each for North Carolina.

North Carolina State was led by Charles' 20 points while Terry Gannon had 14 and Myers 10.

In other games Saturday, No. 1 Kentucky overpowered No. 14 LSU 96-80. No. 4 Georgetown beat Seton Hall 74-63. No. 5 Houston ripped TCU 81-67. No. 6 Maryland handed William and Mary 58-44. No. 7 Texas-El Paso stomped Air Force 72-50. No. 8 UCLA downed Arizona 61-58. Unranked Georgia Tech upset 9th-ranked Wake Forest 68-66, and No. 10 St. John's shaded Providence 57-52.

Murphy Sidelined, Jaz Loses

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Sophomore guard Keith Thomas scored a career-high 25 points to lead Old Dominion to a 79-61 Sun Belt Conference victory over Jacksonville Saturday night.

Jacksonville was without star forward Ronnie Murphy of Oviedo who missed the game with a groin injury. Murphy is also expected to miss tonight's game against Baptist College (S.C.).

Honesty Still Best Policy In Turning Down A Date

DEAR ABBY: A reader signed "Thanks, but No Thanks" asks, "When a woman does not want to date a man, how does she turn him down without hurting his feelings?"

It isn't easy to turn down a man without hurting his feelings. As a man who's been turned down a lot, I should know. Be honest. If he has BO or bad breath, tell him. You will be doing him a favor. If you think he's too short, too fat, too young or too old for you, tell him, so he'll quit asking you.

Giving a guy false hope will hurt him more in the long run than an honest truth. Tell him! He'll live. I did.

Dear Abby

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA

DEAR ABBY: I've been turned down for a date with "Sorry, I have to wash my hair." Now, if a man isn't turned off by that, he must be a masochist. I would have appreciated a lie such as, "I'm involved right now in a personal relationship where I simply don't date, but thank you anyway."

DEAR ABBY: If a girl is asked out by someone she has just met and has no desire to date, she could tell him that she has an obligation to someone who is very important to her and she wants to remain faithful to that person, so she must decline. That "person" is herself, of course, but he doesn't need to know that.

DEAR ABBY: Saying "Thanks, but no thanks" has always worked for me. But it must be said with sincerity and kindness. Don't waste his time or yours. The truth is sure to come out eventually, which will hurt his feelings much more than an up-front, honest answer.

Fake Tapes

Soviets Spreading Phony Reagan Recordings

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet KGB is causing headaches for Western officials by spreading phony documents and tapes of fake conversations between President Reagan and other world leaders, a newspaper report said.

The Sunday Times said the tapes, spliced together from public speeches, and fake "authoritative" cables and memos, have repeatedly created difficulties for U.S. and other Western officials.

"If there is a conflict we shall fire missiles at our allies to see to it that the Soviet Union stays within its borders," the voice of President Reagan said on a tape that surfaced recently in Holland, the Sunday Times said.

At the other end of the taped telephone conversation, heavy with static, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher can be heard replying, "You mean Germany?"

"Mrs. Thatcher, if any country endangers our position we can decide to bomb the problem area and so remove the instability," Reagan answered on the tape.

The voices are authentic, but the words spoken have been doctored, cut, rearranged on tape and then worked into the transcript, the Sunday Times said.

Reagan's words were taken from a presidential speech on nuclear strategy, the newspaper said.

The KGB, the Soviet spy agency, is believed to be responsible for the campaign of disinformation, the newspaper said. It quoted State Department officials as saying that some forgeries go as high as the Politburo of the Soviet Communist Party for approval.

In another incident, New York Mayor Ed Koch, reacting to a false transcript of a meeting between Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and the Saudi defense minister, assailed Weinberger for his Arab sympathies, the newspaper said.

The transcript had Weinberger offering Saudi Arabia tanks that are "not even in the hands of the American army," the newspaper said.

U.S. officials in India and Egypt were disturbed last spring by a faked story claiming that U.S. astronaut Neil Armstrong converted to Islam after landing on the moon, the Sunday Times said.

Armstrong had been led to believe that voices he had heard on the moon were an Islamic call to prayer, and had then converted, the faked news report said. The Sunday Times said a direct telephone link up between journalists and Armstrong during which the astronaut denied the story was the only way to kill it.

plants in the Midwest as the main cause of acid rain damage in both nations.

Mondale and Cranston, who delivered back-to-back speeches to some 600 conference participants Sunday, both called for a 50 percent reduction in sulfur dioxide emissions.

Glenn's plan to curb acid rain, which calls for an 8-million-ton reduction in industrial emissions, was criticized by Mondale for falling "substantially short of the 50 percent goal."

Mondale said he would set up a "self-financed trust fund" to pay for an acid rain cleanup program and would negotiate air quality treaties with Canada and Mexico. But he would not detail how he would fund the proposed trust fund.

"I do not have the specific plan, nor do I think a specific plan at this time is appropriate," Mondale said.

Cranston recommended national standards to improve the efficiency of major electrical appliances and reduce energy demands as the best course.

Hart and Hollings backed programs calling for 12-million-ton reductions.

Democratic Candidates Outline Their Positions On Acid Rain

BEDFORD, N.H. (UPI) — The top two contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination traded barbs during a weekend conference on acid rain with each claiming to have the best solution.

Former Vice President Walter Mondale, who was accused by his rival Sen. John Glenn of having "a secret plan" to solve the acid rain problem, shrugged off the criticism and in turn blasted Glenn.

"I'm not trying to be personal," Mondale said at a news conference following a 30-minute speech to the conference Sunday. "Mr. Glenn's record on acid rain has been a weak record."

Jesse Jackson and Sens. Gary Hart of Colorado, Alan Cranston of California, and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina outlined their plans at "Acid Rain '84," held seven weeks before New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation state primary.

Acid rain is blamed for damage to lakes, streams, and forests in the northeastern United States and southeastern Canada. Environmentalists argue that the scientific evidence points strongly to air pollution from power

For Sale: 118-Room Mansion For $15 Million

PALM BEACH (UPI) — The 118-room winter home of cereal heiress Marjorie Merriweather Post is expected to set a national record for the most expensive residence ever sold, with an estimated $15 million price tag.

Attorneys said a preliminary contract had been signed for the mansion, which has 58 bedrooms, 33 bathrooms, 27 servants' rooms, 12 fireplaces, three bomb shelters, two greenhouses, a wine cellar, a theater, a nine-hole golf course, a citrus grove and a two-ton marble dining table that seats 50.

The lavish mansion once held a prominent spot in the social life of this town, known as the winter playground of the ostentatiously rich.

But it has languished unsold and deteriorating for three years.

Doyle Rogers, an attorney for the Post Foundation, said Sunday a preliminary contract had been signed for the 118-room home on 17 acres fronted by the Atlantic. Rogers refused to identify the potential buyer.

Mara-a-Lago, which means "from the sea to the lake," was completed in 1927 at a cost of $8 million.

When she died in 1973, Ms. Post willed the home to the federal government. But the home was returned to the Post Foundation in 1980 because upkeep costs were too high.

Panel On Waste Won't Name Names

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A presidential commission uncovering wasteful spending of billions of dollars by members of Congress deleted the offenders' names from its final draft, a published report said today.

The President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control, commonly known as the Grace Commission, prepared a report charging members of Congress waste billions of dollars on unnecessary projects and special-interest legislation for their home districts.

However, in the third and final draft, scheduled to be released Wednesday, commission officials deleted all the names of representatives and their home states, as well as the names of most questionable spending projects, the Washington Post reported in today's editions.

The newspaper said it obtained copies of the first draft, which named the legislators, and subsequent drafts, which became less specific as they reached completion.

The Post said the first draft of the document, written before the names were deleted, cited dozens of examples of what it described as wasteful spending, including:

- When opponents tried to kill the $276 million Russell Dam and Lake between South Carolina and Georgia in 1977. "Strom Thurmond simply said, 'This dam will be built. It will be built sooner or later. Why not go ahead now, before costs go up?'"
- "Amtrak was stopped from closing a money-losing route through West Virginia because," Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia... felt that his constituents deserved the service provided by the train, even though few of them apparently used it."

— While there was no need for a federal building in Redding, Calif., former Rep. "Harold Johnson ... inserted $12.8 million for a courthouse, even though there was no federal judge assigned to sit in its chambers."

The commission's chief operating officer, J.P. Bolduc, confirmed that all names and identifying details were removed from the final report.

Randy Fitzgerald, one of two freelance journalists who wrote the study for the panel, which is headed by industrialist J. Peter Grace, said some officials seemed concerned that they might alienate members of Congress who later will consider the commission's other cost-cutting suggestions.

In the past, the commission has pointedly recommended controversial measures to save money such as cutting food stamps, slashing federal employee benefits and consolidating veterans' hospitals.

"They lost their nerve," said Fitzgerald. "The just backed away. They started out gung-ho, saying they were going to point the finger at Congress, but they were afraid to do it."

Bolduc, one of 162 private business leaders on the panel, said, "It's not really important whether it's Mr. A or Mr. B or Mr. C. We've got a problem with the system."

Hero's Homecoming Awaits Goodman

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — A hero's welcome was planned for Navy Lt. Robert Goodman at Portsmouth High School today in his first trip back to New Hampshire since his release by the Syrians.

"It's really great to be home," Goodman, 27, said in brief remarks to a crowd of about 100 people who cheered his arrival Sunday at the Manchester airport.

"Usually, it's a little bit quieter when I cross the state line," Goodman, dressed in civilian clothes, was accompanied by his wife, Terri Lynn, and their two children, Tina, 7, and Morgan, 2.

"We're real glad to have you back in New Hampshire safe and sound," Gov. John Sununu said as Goodman stepped from a small private plane onto a red carpet.

About 2,000 students, former teachers and city officials were to attend a "Welcome Back To Your High School, Bobby Goodman" celebration scheduled today in Portsmouth. A high school band was to salute Goodman with a playing of "Anchors Away."

"The kids have been making signs and presents. It's going to be real exciting," Portsmouth Mayor Ellen Foley said.

Goodman lived in coastal Portsmouth while his father was stationed at a nearby Pease Air Force Base in Newington. He married his high school sweetheart after graduating from Portsmouth High School in 1974.

Goodman's arrival came a day after Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson appeared at a rally at Portsmouth High School without the Navy flier he helped free.

Goodman originally was to appear at the rally Saturday with Jackson, who persuaded Syria to free Goodman from his month-long captivity Jan. 3. The celebration was rescheduled for today because the Navy did not want Goodman to appear at a political rally.

Asked Sunday who he would vote for in the primary, Goodman said, "It will be my decision."

At his arrival in Manchester Sunday night, members of a Manchester Cub Scout pack handed Goodman a certificate of appreciation for "your patriotic example to all Americans."

Niacin Helps Fight High Cholesterol

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 58-year-old woman, am 5 foot 3 and weigh 138 pounds. I would like your opinion regarding cholesterol. I've been under a doctor's care for the past four years and am taking 500 mg. of Atromid twice a day. My cholesterol was 355, and on treatment it dropped to 207. Then my doctor told me to take only one Atromid a day. Now it's up to 294, so it's back to two Atromid a day.

My diet consists mainly of fish, white meat, fruit and vegetables.

I have been doing a lot of walking lately. I've heard that walking is good for battling cholesterol. I have no other health problems.

DEAR READER - Walking or any exercises that help to use calories are useful in eliminating body fat; that helps to lower your cholesterol. By gradually increasing your level of activity, it's possible to lower cholesterol, or at least to increase HDL-Cholesterol.

Cholesterol determinations can vary in some individuals. That is why we often ask for three determinations before deciding what the real problem is. Young, healthy people under stress during final exams, for example, often will have a rise in their cholesterol.

Your diet is fine. However, you must limit calories to the point that you are able to eliminate or prevent the development of body fat.

Atromid has been used for years to lower cholesterol. There are other medications that might be favored now. Your doctor may want to consider giving probucol (Lorelco). Recent studies show that combinations of probucol and colestipol hydrochloride (Colestid) are very effective in lowering cholesterol levels in some people.

Niacin in large doses is popular with some physicians. The dose should be increased gradually to be effective without causing serious side effects. I don't think anyone should take large doses of niacin without being under a physician's supervision.

You may be confused by the different terms used for cholesterol, triglycerides and the different fractions of cholesterol (HDL and LDL), so I am sending you The Health Letter 15-2.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 19 and haven't had a physical examination since I was 6 or 7. Am I foolish to feel scared that I might get aroused from our doctor (a man) testing for breast cancer or whatever else he has to touch?

I'm very shy when it comes to seeing or touching my body and it scares me. What is involved in such an examination?

DEAR READER - A male doctor will or should have a female attendant present for your examination. The professional atmosphere probably will keep you from having any problems.

He should check your breasts and show you how to check yourself. The extent of his examination of other organs will depend a lot on your history. If he is a considerate physician it should not cause a problem and you will wonder afterward why you were so frightened.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY JANUARY 10, 1984 Conditions will be taking unexpected twists this coming year. Several situations which have yielded you little or nothing will turn into big gainers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There are several rainbows in the offing today and each could have a pot of gold at the end of the spectrum. Be hopeful regarding the outcome of events. Major changes are in store for Capricorns in the coming year. Send for your Capricorn Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 and your zodiac sign to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $2 for your NEW Matchmaker wheel and booklet, which reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) New projects or ventures have better chances for success today than some of your older ones do. Supporters will be more receptive to fresh ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Sudden shifts are likely to develop at this time which could be advantageous financially. Someone who likes you will pull the appropriate lever.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Self-interests can be substantially advanced today if you do what your impulses direct. Get moving on your good ideas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could be rather fortunate today in that friends are likely to feel impelled to do nice things for you, especially those of the opposite gender.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take pains today to develop stronger bonds with persons you've recently met who share similar interests. Good things could happen collectively.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Conditions look favorable at this time where your work or career is concerned. Be watchful. Breaks could come in a unique fashion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If Dan Cupid has been ignoring you lately, don't be dismayed. He might have someone special in mind, and there's a chance you may meet today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Changes now stirring could contain important benefits. There's a possibility things will work out beyond your expectations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is a good day to try to bring matters you've been negotiating to a head. Bargain from strength and stick to your terms.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Bridge hand diagram showing North, West, East, and South cards and dealer information.

Oswald: "Since I am the inventor of the weak jump overall, which is almost standard today, I like their treatment of it. Here is one example."

Jim: "If West merely overcalls with one spade, North bids two diamonds, South two no-trump, and North three clubs, after which the winning five-club contract is reached."

Oswald: "West's weak jump overall of two spades forces North to bid three diamonds. South can make no better bid than three no-trump and North will pass with his two small spades. West leads his fourth-best spade and the defense takes six tricks. Instead of being plus 600, North and South are minus 200."

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby Jim: "The 1968 revision of the Kaplan-Sheinwold bidding system is well worth reading. Not for the whole system, which both Kaplan and Sheinwold have abandoned, but rather for the fine writing and the many features that are well worthy of study."

Jim: "This book was written back in 1954 and revised in 1968 but back in those days the negative double had not reached the Kaplan-Sheinwold system. Today, over two spades an expert North would double to show the unbid aults, South would bid three clubs and the club game would be reached in spite of West's two-spade bid."
