Suspect sought

Investigators from the Seminole County sheriff's office violent crimes section are following up on leads from the robbery yesterday of the SunBank in Lake Howell Square near Casselberry.

According to investigators, the suspect walked into the bank at about 2:15 p.m. and handed the teller a note which informed her that he would kill her if she did not give him money.

Investigators said she turned over an undetermined amount of cash before he ran from the bank.

They reported he dropped the cash in a wooded area after a dye pack she had placed in the bag with the money exploded.

No one was hurt, investigators said, and the suspect never showed a gun.

The suspect is a white male, 25-years-old, six feet tall and 180 pounds. He has brown hair and brown eyes.

He was wearing a white t-shirt, light blue jeans and a red baseball cap.

Crime prevention seminar

Ron Stacey of the Seminole County sheriff's office community services section will teach a crime prevention seminar tonight at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 2504 S. Oak Ave., Sanford.

The seminar will begin at 7:30 p.m. The class will show citizens how to protect themselves and their homes and vehicles from becoming crime victims. It focuses on both personal security and property protection.

Trade talks to resume

WASHINGTON — The United States and Japan have reached a compromise agreement that will allow both sides to resume market-opening talks that had been suspended for the past three months, U.S. officials said today.

The compromise was wrapped up earlier today and was to be announced by U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor at a White House briefing, according to senior trade officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

One official said the compromise language would have Japan acknowledge that measurable results were needed in the various sectors where the United States is trying to boost sales.

In exchange, this official said, the United States would assure Japan in writing that it will not rely solely on numerical targets in judging whether Japan is living up to its commitments.

The settlement will allow the United States and Japan to resume the "framework talks" that were launched by both countries with much fanfare last July.

The framework accord was hailed by the Clinton administration as the start of a new results-oriented era in U.S.-Japanese trade relations that would make a sizable dent in America's huge trade deficit with Japan. However, from the beginning, both sides argued over exactly what had been agreed to.

Residents say they'll sue county over new program

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A new group of property owners say they'll sue the county over the new garbage program set to begin Jan. 1.

Organizers say the opposition is not so much over the imposition of mandatory collection, but over the concern residents could lose their property for refusing to pay.

Ex-cop gets new trial on sex charges

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A new trial has been granted former Sanford police officer Guy Storm Brewster who was convicted late last year of having sex with a teen-age boy in his care.

On Monday, Circuit Court Judge Alan A. Dickey granted the new trial because he erred in allowing a trial witness to testify Brewster's accuser had taken a lie detector test.

although the results of the test were not revealed.

Brewster, 37, was convicted of eight counts of sexual activity with a child in custodial care by a jury in November. He was sentenced in January to 15 years in prison and 30 years probation but has remained in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility awaiting the outcome of the new trial motion. Jury selection for the new trial has been

Sanford addresses parking problems

SANFORD — The City Commission is heading toward establishing new parking ordinances. Other parking plans are also being considered.

An ordinance covering parking and penalties for violations, was approved on first reading during last night's city commission meeting. The vote was unanimous.

The measure has been under review for a number of weeks, based on the city's original parking ordinance.

It specifies fines to be charged for illegal parking, and the chain of procedures that would follow if a motorist failed to pay the fine. Complete failure could bring about an impounding of the vehicle, and a mandatory court appearance by the owner.

Ten students earn Merit Scholarships

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

Ten Seminole County students were among only 2,600 students nationwide who were winners of Merit Scholarships financed by colleges and universities throughout the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Some 115 private and 85 public institutions of higher education are offering the scholarships for use at their schools.

The college-sponsored Merit Scholarships provide between $250 and $2,000 annually for up to four years of undergraduate study.

About 1.1 million students in more than 19,000 U.S. high schools entered the 1994 Merit program by taking the 1992 PSAT/NMSQT which served as an initial screen of the scholarship hopefuls.

In the fall of 1993, 50,000 students were honored for the academic performance and some 15,000 of them who were the top scorers in their states of residence were designated as semifinalists.

Only the semifinalists, who represented about one half of one percent of the graduating seniors in each state, had the opportunity to advance to the finalist stage and compete for the Merit Scholarships.

In order to become a finalist, a semifinalist had to meet extremely high academic standards, be endorsed and recommended by their high school principal, confirm the qualifying test performance with a second test and provide information about activities, interests and goals.

The finalists from Seminole County who were selected for scholarships were:

• Bryan K. Moffett of Lake Brantley High School in Altamonte Springs. He earned a scholarship to the University of Florida, where he will study for a career in orthopedic medicine.

• Adrian J. Sisser of Lake Mary High School in Lake Mary. He

24 acres burn in Geneva brush fire

By NICK PFEIFAU

GENEVA — A brush fire burned 24 acres of land near Geneva yesterday afternoon. Although there were a number of mobile homes in the area, there was no building damage.

"Most of these homes were down long drive-ways," said Seminole County Assistant Fire Chief Chris Johnson. "We had to practically assign one unit to protect each of the homes, which required a great number of units in all."

Johnson said the equipment included three Division of Forestry plows, seven engines, four woods trucks and three tankers, plus the State Forestry helicopter used for water drops.

"In addition to our Seminole County units," Johnson explained, "we had help from Volusia and Orange counties, as well as the cities of Sanford, Lake Mary and Winter Springs. It was an excellent showing of cooperation between the various units, and I have no doubt this could have grown to a disastrous proportion if we hadn't had such good cooperation."

Sanford firefighters said the various area units that responded are the result of the county and the eight fire departments within the county

College credit: Ask questions

Some high school seniors have already made their selections on higher education. A few however, will be waiting until this summer, or even a few years before deciding to attend college.

Seminole County is very fortunate to have Seminole Community College. Some students will go to SCC. It's close to home, and it certainly costs less than diving head on into a university for those first two years.

Whoa. Wait a minute. Look before you leap. Ask questions before you become faced with problems in the years ahead.

SCC officials admit some of its course credits may not be transferable to some colleges and universities. You could need those credits.

Your response may be, "But I don't intend to go beyond SCC. I only need an SCC associate degree."

What about that career or job you look forward to? You may get the job you seek with your AA degree, only to find advancement is limited because you don't have a bachelor's degree. You then find yourself faced with the need for more education.

Unfortunately, you may have to take some courses over again. This involves more money, and more time.

Even those who already plan to go beyond SCC should be cautious. In most cases, counselors are available at high school or during college entrance.

If the counselor does not advise you about non-transferable courses, and you don't know what questions to ask, you may be heading for a problem.

Once schedules of classes are arranged, take it upon yourself to be certain they can be transferred. If there is any question, switch to a course with credits that will be guaranteed acceptable by a full four-year college or university.

An additional word of caution. Some credits will be accepted by some universities but not others.

SCC has announced plans to simplify this transferring of credits. This is an excellent move, but one that should have been made many years ago.

For persons entering any two-year college, think about what questions to ask before meeting with a counselor. Don't be afraid to ask. You will be dealing with your future, and it's worth the time and effort.

Inept teachers

It is frustrating that year after year hundreds of students and parents complain about inept teachers, yet those teachers continue to teach.

Students should be allowed to evaluate their teachers at the end of the year or semester and schools should pay attention to those evaluations. Students know whether or not effective learning occurs.

Every teacher should be evaluated by administrators unexpectedly. Warnings should be given if the teacher is still not demonstrating effective skills, then that teacher should be asked to take extra training courses or be fired.

If someone does not initiate changes in the school system now, problems will continue, education standards will be lower, and students will continue to be the losers.

Role models?

The breakup and reconciliation and breakup of Rosanne and Tom Arnold and Madonna's dirty talk are treating TV watchers to a media circus. Do media executives believe that boring, immoral happenings in lives of public personalities are newsworthy?

Trends in tabloid TV insult the intelligence and take valuable air time away from real entertainment or news. Madonna and Rosanne have become icons. Are these women with their blatant disregard for morality and decency, representations of women or their roles as respectable citizens, mothers, or wives?

If the media continues to give such people exposure, the result will be a decline in morality. Children watch TV, and they are getting the message that immorality is acceptable.

Television should portray positive images and give better role models to children. The media should stay away from the personal lives of people like Rosanne and Madonna and focus on more positive aspects of society.

Gender politics backfire on liberals

"As women and as lawyers, we must never again shy from raising our voices against sexual harassment." So said Hillary Rodham Clinton at a 1992 American Bar Association luncheon feting Anita Hill.

Funny that the women and lawyers who raised their voices in support of Hill have uttered nary a peep about Paula Corbin Jones. Maybe it's because Hill cast aspersions on a conservative Republican while Jones has made her accusations against a liberal Democrat.

The various women's groups that were only too willing to buy Hill's highly questionable story, are all too willing now to dismiss Jones' far more plausible story as a fiction.

Take Patricia Ireland, the hypocritical president of the National Organization for Women. Even if Jones is telling the truth, she said, that former Gov. Clinton invited her up to a hotel room, dropped his pants and asked her to perform a sexual act. "It would be a stretch to say that it was sexual harassment."

Well, tell that to Bob Packwood, the Republican senator from Oregon. Ireland and other NOW officials have called for a public hearing to investigate sexual harassment charges against him that are no more or less serious than those filed by Jones.

No less hypocritical are protests from the president's liberal support groups that Jones has been put up to her lawsuit by so-called Clinton haters.

These are the same folks who conspired with Democratic staffers on the Senate Judiciary Committee to leak Hill's confidential FBI testimony to their operatives in the media in a last-ditch effort to derail Clarence Thomas' certain confirmation.

Some of the president's defenders question the timing of Jones' accusations. The incident in question is alleged to have occurred in 1991. Why did she wait three years to come forward with her complaint, after the criminal statute of limitations had expired?

That's a good question. Wonder why they never thought to ask that of Hill. She waited until 10 years had passed before accusing Judge Thomas. Yet, her charges were treated as seriously by the folks who now question Jones as if the alleged harassment had occurred only days before Thomas' confirmation hearing.

The most ironic attack on Jones is that she's some kind of golddigger. That she's pressing her case against the president in the hope of becoming rich and famous. Well maybe she is or maybe she isn't. But we know that Hill has won fame and fortune by accusing a Supreme Court nominee.

Indeed, had she not besmirched the good name and reputation of Clarence Thomas, few Americans ever would have heard of her. She would not be raking in thousands of dollars per speech. She would not be toasted at lunches by the likes of Hillary Clinton.

There is another thing about Jones that troubles Ireland and other feminist leaders. She's not their kind of sexual harassment accuser. They prefer someone like Hill - liberal, Ivy League-educated, professional, upper-middle class. Just like them Jones is almost the complete opposite. A former $12,817-a-year clerk.

The way some folks play the game

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. - It was the game before the games.

The line at the fast-food on the boardwalk at Virginia Beach on Friday was long, so long that several would-be patrons entered, took one look and left. But the youngest people in line - five boys, all 12 but for the lone 8-year-old - waited.

Finally at the counter, the first kid ordered chicken - and was told that the restaurant had just run out. His pals laughed, a lot. Then a male voice boomed behind them:

"You got 30 seconds to get the (expletive) out of my way."

The speaker was in his mid-20s, a guy with long, wavy hair and a tight red face. His male companion, and others within earshot, said nothing.

The effect on the kids was immediate - two left the line altogether; one stepped back, confused; the boy who'd ordered froze, clearly scared.

Just what Mr. Foulmouth wanted.

The youngest did what 8-year-olds do: came to Mommy. As my son, Darrell, approached - face stricken, no sandwich in sight - I asked, "What's wrong?"

"A guy over there said something bad, but please don't go over there," Darrell said, wrapping his arms tight around me. "Please, Mommy, don't go."

It wasn't the adventure I'd expected. We'd gone for dinner immediately after checking into our motel for the Virginia Beach Hoop-It-Up, part of the international 3-on-3 basketball tournament in which my husband plays each year. When Darrell approached, I was musing about the fun we'd had in Virginia Beach last spring, about how my husband's obsession results in our attending tournaments in several East Coast cities.

But I'm a true believer too. The tournament lets me watch my sons play with dozens of kids from income groups, cultures and 'hoods different from their own; see my serious journalist spouse shine in a different, macho milieu; and experience an America I still dream about, one where folks of every ethnic and economic background compete, converse and just sit in the sun, complimenting each others' kids.

But this year, even the expected didn't quite measure up. In the course of watching nine games - four with my husband's team, two with my son's group and three with strangers - our group saw:

- A gifted team of hard-working kids lose to an equally skilled group whose coach allowed them to be surly while losing and boastful while ahead. The team clinched the win only after several iffy calls. Walking over to compliment the losers on their guts and talent, I looked into the best player's eyes. His unshed tears broke my heart.

- An adult team, tied within a point of winning, emerge from a huddle to employ this "strategy": pretend to be fouled, then sink the foul shot to win. A chubby redhead on the team pulled it off - Hoop-It-Up has no refs and relies on player honesty. But in four years and dozens of games, I'd never seen anyone take advantage that way.

A talented team of black 13-year-olds from Richmond, Va., talk enough trash to a less-gifted white team that the whole crowd was against them - until a white parent hollered that the trash-talkers were "playing nigger ball."

Maybe Darrell's fear was just preparation for what was to come. I'd just gotten the story out of the kids who'd left the fast-food line when my husband, Kevin, stepped up.

Darrell shifted from frightened to frantic. "Kevin, please don't go over there," he cried, tears streaking his face. "Let's just leave, OK?" Hearing the story, Kevin walked over to the counter. I followed, Darrell clinging and too scared to look.

Mr. Foulmouth was still there - but was much less belligerent, once he saw that the kids he had dished had an adult male with them, asking pointed questions. Shrugging, he apologized to Kevin and then to Darrell, who still couldn't meet his glance. When his friend apologized too, and offered to pay for Darrell's burger, Mr. F. just stared at the floor.

With the playing field leveled, he had no desire to play.

Once there was a time, or at least it seems there was, when children who'd been bullied by somebody bigger welcomed a grown-up's intervention. That was before we all learned that anyone anywhere might have a gun, before 8-year-olds understood that even a fast-food line is a potential shooting gallery.

And although there have always been cheaters, I seem to remember when fewer adults encouraged nasty attitudes, ugly talk and dirty play among the kids in their care.

I surely can recall when adults - and not just redheaded amateurs on makeshift courts - didn't take the cheap route to a win. And I remember when NBA stars didn't routinely get ejected and suspended for fighting, cursing officials and leaving the bench to join in teamwide brawls.

Just what Mr. Foulmouth wanted.

My own journey to Memorial Day

The day was brilliantly sunny, but a lot chillier than it had looked from my window as I dressed. The forecast was for the low 70s later that day, but I hadn't listened closely enough to catch the "gusting winds" admonition. In my cotton top, I was just plain cold as I joined the people heading into our national cemetery. I was holding the potted plant I was taking to my friend Park Pennington's grave.

Park's widow, DeLores, had given me section and plot numbers, along with the direction "it's real close to the big bronze statue of the Confederate soldier." That had sounded like an explicit map when we'd talked the day before, but now it was about as clear as "turn left past the Milky Way and go six light-years past Arcturus." This park I'd driven by for 25 years seemed suddenly filled with bronze statues of soldiers, each of whom I'm sure looked like only himself to his mama but looked just like all the other statues to me.

Having given up on soldier statue identification, I began wandering from section to section, hoping to find "A." I found every section from "J" to "L," but nothing more. How could there be so many sections in such a small cemetery? Why weren't the oldest graves in "A," since that should have logically been the first section plotted out? And why should someone who died only last year have been buried in that section?

I decided that surely some of the myriad men in their veterans' caps would know where "A" was. I approached a wizened little World War II veteran who took my scrawled directions as if it were a cryptogram coded against German deciphering. He responded to the need to find Park as if it were a secret mission behind enemy lines. However, he had even less of an idea where "A" was than I did.

Over hill, over dale we wandered, until my hatted veteran stopped to ask another hatted veteran, and we formed a parade: Veteran No. 2, followed by Veteran No. 1, trailed by me and the potted plant. "There are maps of the cemetery up at the park office," Veteran No. 2 announced. Another woman overheard him, and she and her son joined us. We were beginning to look like the Pied Piper and his entourage.

The park-office map only confused us more, and we wound around the park another time without finding "A." I was growing teler by the step, the wind was tying my long hair into knots and both Veteran No. 1 and No. 2 said they were sorry, but they just had to go prepare for the impending ceremony and I was on my own. I was just about to give up - feeling that Park would understand that on a day filled with so much to do I couldn't be expected to spend another hour trekking around a cemetery - when the thought struck me: How Park would have enjoyed this!

Me all worked up in a snit, worrying about the hair he had so often caught me primping and teased me about, and winding around the cemetery in a leaderless battalion of befuddled souls. So instead of an hour spent in frustration, the time became an hour shared with Park. Since all of our remembered experiences are just fleeting realities that remain in the imagination, I thought: Was this so different from the many hilarious memories I have of actual times spent with Park, hearing him guffaw and delighting at his wisecracks?

On Memorial Day 1994, may you be lucky enough to remember a friend.

He responded to the need to find Park as if it were a secret mission behind enemy lines.

Aristide's government: Military killing more to stay in power

By MICHAEL NORTON
Associated Press Writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — While deploring the killing of four pro-democracy activists, Haiti's government-in-exile also says the killings show that the military is failing to consolidate its hold on the country. Soldiers "are irritated in front of the stubborn resistance of the people," said Jean Casimir, Haiti's Ambassador to the United States and a top aide to exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

"There's been an escalation of the already tremendous level of human rights abuses going on," he told The Associated Press by telephone from Washington following Monday's slayings in the capital's Cite Soleil slum. Soldiers and their allies wouldn't have to kill if the populace supported the military, he said.

Army-backed gunmen terrorized the Aristide stronghold before dawn Monday, hunting down and killing the four Aristide activists. Hundreds of residents stared at two of the bodies that had been left on a muddy, rock-rutted street, apparently as a warning to other activists.

The killings came as a worldwide trade embargo tightened on the country. The United Nations imposed the embargo at midnight Saturday in an attempt to force the military leaders to agree to restore democracy.

The military has been in power since overthrowing the democratically elected Aristide in September 1991. Following a previous embargo, the military last year agreed to allow Aristide's return, but army leaders reneged on that agreement last fall and a U.N.-brokered peace deal broke down.

Haiti has been under a U.N.-imposed fuel embargo since then. But diesel fuel and gasoline continue to be smuggled in from the neighboring Dominican Republic.

Military sources say the army has hundreds of thousands of gallons of fuel stockpiled in an attempt to ride out the sanctions.

President Clinton's new envoy to Haiti, Bill Gray, said Monday that Washington would take unspecified action if the situation does not improve.

being involved in a Joint Response effort, which would call out a similar outpouring of support in any similar situation.

The brush fire was reported at 1:14 yesterday afternoon. "While it's still smoldering this morning," Johnson said today, "we considered it brought under control by about 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon."

With the high temperatures and lack of rainfall in the Central Florida area in recent weeks, forestry officials have been warning about the dangers of brush and woods fires. They have issued several statements calling for extreme caution.

Johnson did not comment on what may have caused the Geneva area fire.

"The best thing about it," he said, "is that with quite a few mobile homes in that area, we were able to save every one of them, and other than smoke in the area, there won't be any difficulties for these residents."

Garbage

from unincorporated Sanford, Chuluota and Tanglewood, said Don Crabtree, another group activist and Geneva resident.

On May 10, county commissioners voted 3-2 to create a mandatory garbage collection district for all unincorporated areas. County officials convinced the majority of the commissioners the mandatory program was needed to continue waste reduction goals, reduce illegal dumping and to better manage collection. An exemption from collection was allowed for certain cases, such as low income residents.

Commissioners Carlton Henley and Larry Furlong opposed the package, saying mandatory collections weren't needed to attain those goals.

The fees for the service, which range from about $132 to $144 annually, will be billed on the November property tax bill as an assessment. Failure to pay the assessment could result in a county lien, tax certificate sale and ultimately, forced sale of the property. The county will pay private companies to collect the garbage from each household, but handle all billing.

Lee Voorhees, a group organizer and Geneva leader, says it is the risk of a forced lien sale which the group opposes the most.

"Most of us already have garbage service, so that's not really the issue," says Voorhees. "I don't think the issue of mandatory collection is really as pressing as the county putting it on the ad valorem tax bill."

County Attorney Bob McMillan says the method used by the county to create the garbage collection district and bill for it is described in state laws, which courts have upheld.

"There's no question of the county's ability to create a special assessment district and collect fees with the non-ad valorem assessment method," says McMillan. "Government is providing the service and charging people for it."

Parking

toosh, who compiled the wording of the new ordinance. Sanford can anticipate an increase in ticketing in the city once the mall is built. They recommended the city establish the proper procedures (this ordinance) so that any defects might be corrected before there is a greater and possibly overwhelming parking situation for the city.

The attorneys also reported that the city is considering using parking meters and/or placement of a parking bar at the entrance areas at such places as the Sanford City Hall and courthouse parking lots. The bar would require an amount to be paid so it would be raised for entrance into the lots.

So far there has been no specific parking meter or bar discussions during various commission work sessions dealing with the parking ordinance.

For the present parking vilations, only one change in wording was added during last night's commission work session. One stipulation says that an individual receiving a ticket for illegal parking, "may request a court hearing within five days."

With the change, the word "may" has been replaced with "must", and the ordinance now reads that the individuals must request the hearing within five days.

During last night's work session discussion of the matter, City Manager Bill Simmons explained that enforcement of the parking violation codes would be under the direction of the Sanford Police Department, but the fines for violations would be paid at the city hall.

Under the new ordinance, fines to be charged for first offenses include the following:

- $250 — parking in a handicapped space designated as such
- $35 — for unauthorized parking in a fire lane, or parking with expired or improper tag.

• $10 — for overtime parking, parking over the line, where signs prohibit, and improper parking.

• $25 — for parking along a yellow curb, in a loading zone, on a sidewalk or crosswalk.

• $25 — for making an illegal left turn in the business district into a parking space.

If the fines are not received within five working days from the date of receipt of the citation, the registered owner will be sent a notice by mail regarding the violation and fine. If it isn't paid within fifteen working days after that issuance date, an official notification of intent to issue a summons will be sent.

For each of the fines, failure to pay within certain time limits, the cost increases, depending on the violation.

The ordinance passed with hardly any discussion. It is expected to be brought up for second and final reading at the June 13 City Commission meeting.

Trial

set for July 25. Defense attorneys Bob Fisher and Jeff Deen argued when seeking a new trial no mention of the test should have been permitted because jurors might infer the results.

Assistant state attorney Meryl Allawas argued that a Florida Department of Law Enforcement agent investigator should be permitted to state a polygraph was given in Brewster's accusatory after an intensive cross-examination by a defense attorney which "opened the door" to the agent's testimony.

The defense attorneys attempted to show inadequate investigation, lack of physical evidence and that the case was based, almost solely, on the teen's allegations. They pointed out the investigators did little to find out more about the alleged victim by interviewing his teachers and employers.

After reviewing case law, Dickey said, in his written order. "The admission of this testimony (about the polygraph) was in error. Admission of evidence of the results of a polygraph are reversible error in Florida. It is similarly error when the fact of a witness taking a polygraph is presented in such a way that there is an unmistakable inference by the trier of the facts that the witness must have passed the test."

However, in his order, the judge said it was difficult to see what effect the mention of a polygraph had on the jury's decision. The jury considered 78 counts of sexual activity charged against Brewster by the youth over their three year relationship. Brewster was found guilty of eight counts relating to three specific episodes.

Brewster was serving as a school resource officer when he met the youth who was a student at Lakeview Middle School.

Allawas will decide whether to appeal the judge's decision for a new trial in two weeks.

"It's Party Time at Whiskey River North!"

Whiskey River North - Where Country Was In Before Country Was Cool!

Have you been searching for a Country Western bar with daily specials, live country music, darts, pool and monthly BBQ's? You don't need to travel half way across Orlando to find what you're looking for. Whiskey River North, located at 3730 E. State Road 40 in Sanford, has all that you're looking for and more!

Whiskey River North is a package store and lounge that has been under the ownership of Rusty Boyd since June 1st, 1992, but according to the management the business itself "has been there forever". Whiskey River North is a full service bar complete with cocktail waitresses and a carry out package store. The lounge features live country music Thursday through Saturday. There's always something to do at Whiskey River North - enjoy some friendly competition in a game of darts or pool, chow down at the monthly BBQ's, or take in the NASCAR races broadcast every Sunday.

Whiskey River North prides itself on being a cozy, friendly Country Western bar that was Country long before Country was cool and where there is never a cover charge! The advantage of having a full liquor bar is that Whiskey River North can make all the latest drinks from scratch. Reasonable drink prices and specials every day make Whiskey River North the place to party! Visit Whiskey River North for the NASCAR races on Sundays and enjoy $1.00 Bloody Marys and 8 1/2 longnecks from 9 to 5.

Rusty Boyd, owner, bought the family owned business because he wanted to put his 15 years of food retailing experience to use managing a Night Club. Rusty is assisted by Janet Kennedy, manager, and a staff of 6 people with over 20 years of experience in the industry.

Find out for yourself why Whiskey River North is the place to be. Rusty and Janet invite you to stop by 3730 E. SR 46 for drink specials every day and plenty of fun and entertainment on tap. For directions or information call 328-9096.

Walburger helps Hackers

CASSELBERRY — Theresa Walburger got home from school just in time.

Walburger, a junior year at the University of South Florida, won her third straight game since returning home for the summer as she led the P.D.S Software Hackers to a 7-2 win over the Ball Busters in the Seminole County Women's Class C Slowpitch Softball League at Red Bug Lake Park Monday night.

With the win, their fourth in a row, the Hackers (7-5) move into a tie for second place. After taking next week off for Memorial Day, the Hackers will play again June 6 at 6:30 p.m. against first-place Pretzels.

Walburger allowed two runs (one earned) and didn't walk a batter. At the plate, she hit a home run and a sacrifice fly to drive in three runs.

Heidi Greene was 4-for-4 for Hackers while Phyllis Daynes went 3-for-4. Jaudon Marlett hit two triples. Tammy Morris had two singles and two RBIs. April Stoner, Jackie Janowiak, and Connie Combs also had two hits apiece.

Senior baseball league tryouts

SANFORD — The second and final tryout session for the Sanford Recreation Senior Boys Baseball League has been set for 5:45 p.m. Tuesday, May 31, at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

The league is for players between the ages of 16 and 18 who will not be playing NABF or American Legion this summer. Boys who participated in the recently completed Sanford Recreation Babe Ruth Baseball League players and are 15 years old may play in the league.

For info, call Jim Schaefer at 330-5697.

AROUND THE STATE

Rapp, rookie lead Marlins

MIAMI — Pat Rapp allowed one earned run and Jesus Tavarez made a memorable major-league debut Monday night to help the Florida Marlins beat the Montreal Expos 3-2.

Tavarez, a 23-year-old right fielder recalled Sunday from Double-A Portland, threw out a runner at the plate, scored from first on a single and went 2-for-4 with an RBI.

Rapp (3-1) gave up seven hits and two walks in 6 2/3 innings, and has a lifetime ERA of 1.33 in five games against Montreal. Rapp also got his first two hits of the season.

Robb Nen pitched two innings for the save.

Another Seminole in trouble

TALLAHASSEE — Sean Jackson, a former Florida State running back drafted by Houston this year, is accused of exposing himself to a college student. Jackson, 23, was arrested Saturday night on a misdemeanor indecent exposure charge after a 22-year-old student reported a man approached her and "exposed his genitalia." Florida State police Lt. Jack Handley said.

Jackson was one of the players who has admitted accepting free clothing from agents last year when Florida State was headed toward its first national title.

Jackson, who denied he exposed himself, Handley said, was released on his own recognizance. His court date is set for June 7.

Throw a helmet, pay a fine

DAYTONA BEACH — NASCAR Busch Series Grand National Division driver Doug Heveron was fined $1,000 and placed on probation for three races following an incident in Sunday's Meridian Advantage 200 at Nazareth, Pa., NASCAR officials said Monday.

Heveron, of Liverpool, N.Y., was penalized for "conduct detrimental to the sport of automobile racing," NASCAR Busch Series director Ray Hill in a statement.

After being involved in an accident during the race, Heveron got out of his car, stood on the track and threw his helmet at the car driven by Ronald Cooper.

AROUND THE NATION

Timberwolves headed south

MINNEAPOLIS — The Minnesota Timberwolves are moving to New Orleans five years after joining the NBA as an expansion team, becoming the second pro franchise in 13 months to leave the state.

Club owners Harvey Ratner and Mary Wolfenson, who have a debt of $76 million on the Target Center arena, said a group led by Top Rank of Louisiana will pay $152.5 million for the team and move it to New Orleans for the 1994-95 season. The matter now goes before the NBA's franchise relocation committee.

The NHL's North Stars moved to Dallas last year after 26 seasons in the Twin Cities. The Minneapolis Lakers moved to Los Angeles in 1960.

Coaches ready for Legion, NABF diamond season

By TONY DeBORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

Now that the high school baseball season is over, it's time for high school coaches and players to turn their attention to the summer baseball season.

Once again, Seminole High School-based teams will play in an American Legion schedule while Lake Mary, Lyman, Lake Howell, Oviedo, and Lake Brantley — as well as a team representing the Chet Lemmon Baseball School — will play in the local National Amateur Baseball Federation league.

"This is a chance to give everyone some playing time and have some fun," said Lake Mary coach Allen Tuttle.

In an effort to give as many players as possible a chance to play, five of the six high schools will field two teams. While Lyman will have just one team, it will have between 25 and 30 players on its roster.

According to Tuttle, the NABF A teams are open to players with high school eligibility remaining while the B teams are strictly for players who will be sophomores or younger.

American Legion's designation of A and B teams is much different.

"American Legion 'A' baseball is for an area's best players who are 18 years old or younger," explained Seminole coach Mike Powers. "The team can include graduating seniors or players that have graduated as long as they're not older than 18."

"The A team will include our graduating seniors and our best returning players. We'll also have the graduating seniors from Lake Mary like we did last year as well as some of their better returners. That's the first time we've gotten together with Coach Tuttle to do that."

"We're going to have a bang-up American Legion A team. That's the way American Legion A ball is supposed to be, featuring the very best players from your designated enrollment area."

Sponsored by American Legion Sanford Post 53, the Cyclones will play teams representing posts from Orange Park to West Palm Beach. The Todd Braden is one of Seminole's graduating seniors who will lead Sanford Post 53 in American Legion 'A' play this summer.

A team, which will be coached by Seminole Community College assistant coach Rod Ferguson, will play in the prestigious DeLand Firecracker Tournament in July.

The Post 53 B team will be made of players similar in experience to the NABF A teams.

Coached by Larry Holbrook, the Cyclone B squad will play other Legion B teams and the county's NABF A teams. They're scheduled to participate in a tournament in Ormond Beach and the Lyman 4th of July tournament.

"To have an American Legion B team, you first must have an A team," said Powers. "The B team is only for players with high school eligibility remaining and are no older than 17."

Lake Mary: Tuttle will guide the efforts of the A team, which is scheduled to begin play on Friday, June 3, at home against Apopka in a 5:30 p.m. game. Lake Mary's B squad will be coached by Kelly Wainwright.

Lyman: Coach Bob McCullough has decided to pool his resources this summer and will work with one team that's basically the size of two teams.

"We're going to play 52 games beginning on June 5 and host our tournament over the 4th of July," said McCullough. "We're going to have 25 to 28 kids. There's a lot of doubleheaders on the schedule. The younger kids will play in the first game and the older kids in the second game."

"This will give us a chance to look at the kids for next year and find a nucleus for the junior varsity program. And by having all the coaches working together, one of you can take some time off once in a while."

Lake Howell: Varsity coach Birt Benjamin will work with the A squad this summer while assistant coach Neil Goldstein, Mr. Fox, and Mr. Niles are going to guide the B squad.

According to Benjamin, the first game for the A team will be Friday, June 10, against University.

Lake Brantley: John Ventures and Lee McDermott will coach the A squad, which is scheduled to begin play this Wednesday, May 25, against Apopka at a site to be determined. Lake Brantley freshman coach Marty Gartell will have charge of the B squad.

Oviedo: Convergent Resources will sponsor both Oviedo's A and B squads. The A team will open its season on Friday, June 10, at Edgewater while the B team, which will be coached by Eddie Norton, will open at home against Edgewater on Tuesday, June 7.

Shorecrest, Fla. Manor still perfect

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Suncrest Title and Florida Manor remained undefeated and in first place of their respective Lake Mary Recreation Men's Slowpitch Softball Leagues last week at the Lake Mary Sports Complex.

In the Thursday night league, Cheers knocked off the Thirsty Whale Pub 17-8. All State bested Thirsty Whale Too 8-5, and Suncrest Title thumped 12 After 5 14-1.

Behind Suncrest Title (3-0), there's a three-way tie for second between All State, Cheers, and Thirsty Whale Too (all 2-1). The Thirsty Whale Pub and 12 After 5 are both 0-3.

This Thursday, All State plays 12 After 5 in the 6:30 p.m. game. Thirsty Whale Too takes on Cheers at 7:30 p.m., and Suncrest Title faces Thirsty Whale Pub at 8:30 p.m.

Last Friday night, Florida Manor outslugged Sanford Paint & Body 21-13. Cumberland Farms topped the Braves 24-14, and PRISM whipped Griffin Construction 21-8.

Trailing Florida Manor (3-0) are PRISM (2-1), and Cumberland Farms, Griffin Construction, the Braves, and Sanford Paint & Body (all 1-2).

Cumberland Farms and Griffin Construction will play at 6:30 p.m. this Friday. The Braves face Florida Manor in the 7:30 p.m. game before PRISM battles Sanford Paint & Body at 8:30 p.m.

Shugart comes out on top in 'Battle of St. Augustine'

By BILL SIEBERT
Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — Wayne Shugart of St. Augustine started on the pole of the 30-lap Late Model feature last Friday, May 20, on the Volusia County Speedway dirt track and stayed there, holding off a strong challenge from St. Augustine neighbor David Showers.

In other divisions Friday night:

- Dennis Maples won the Pro Stock 20-lap feature.

- Monty Stratton was the winner in the 15-lap Mini Stock main event.

- Kathy Gainey returned to the Sportsolution winner's circle after coming out on top in the 15-lap Hobby Stock chase.

After winning his heat race, Showers drew the No. 4 pill, which allowed Shugart to start up front with Bobby Layman and Mitch Kilpatrick between them.

Layman and Kilpatrick soon fell by the wayside as Shugart and Showers waged their 30-lap battle. Following the lead pair across the finish line were Mike Cox, J.T. Peacock, and Mike Haney.

"It was a good race," said Shugart, who had Showers hammering away at his rear bumper the entire race. "I was glad to be on the rail and win the race. I was a little loose in the corner, but I'll take a win any way I can get it."

Richard Adams started out in the lead of the Pro Stocks feature, but Maples claimed the point on lap six and ran in front for the rest of the 20-lap event. Rounding out the top five were, in order of finish, Adams, Stacey Mathen, Tom Lowe, and Daniel Miller.

"I had no idea (where everyone was)," Adams said after the race. "I wish I had a rearview mirror, but they won't let us."

Stratton won his heat race, then drew the zero pill to put himself on the pole of the Mini Stock feature. He ran out in front the entire race, staying ahead of Mike Ponce, then Tom Mulligan (who got by Ponce with nine laps to go).

"I kinda just hold onto it and it runs real fast," Stratton said to track announcer Tom Tipton after the race. "Tom (Mulligan), he always runs a good race. I knew they were back there. I just knew I had to do what I had to do."

It was Stratton, Ponce, and Mulligan up front for the first six laps, but when Ponce fell off the pace, Mulligan took up the charge to run down Stratton. Coming in behind Stratton and Mulligan were Larry Miekler, Terry Cade, and Davy Cline.

Kathy Gainey started 14th in the 15-car Hobby Stock field, on the outside of the seventh row. But other cars began falling away and by the sixth lap, she had moved into second. Gainey finally took over the point on the 10th lap and stayed out in front.

Mike Buckles was second ahead of Bruce Taylor, Tom Anderson, and Donnie Bostic.

Volusia County Speedway, located 15 miles west of Daytona Beach on Highway 40, races every Friday night on dirt and every Saturday (last weekend being an exception) on asphalt. For more information, contact the race office at (904) 255-2243 or (904) 985-4402.

NCAA's 48-team field includes Miami, FSU, Florida, Jacksonville

By DOUG TUCKER AP Sports Writer, OVERLAND PARK, Kan. - They won't identify the weak teams that are in or the strong ones that are out. NCAA officials don't deny there are plenty of both, however. In a 48-team baseball tournament seemingly brimming with potential Cinderella champions...

In the East Regional starting Thursday at Tallahassee, has Ohio State (48-7) vs. Brigham Young (35-18), Florida State (48-20) vs. Central Michigan (38-19) and Kansas (39-16) vs. Jacksonville (38-22). In the Central Regional starting Friday at Austin, Texas, it's Oklahoma (42-17) vs. Arkansas State (37-23), Nevada (40-13) vs. Texas-San Antonio (39-16) and Texas, stretching its own record with its 40th tournament appearance, vs. Stanford (36-22).

Other No. 1 seeds were Ohio State, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Oklahoma State, Georgia Tech and Clemson. Ranked first in this week's Baseball America rankings. Kellitz said many teams were penalized for not playing quality non-conference opponents. Competition at the regional sites begins Thursday and Friday, with each winner advancing to the College World Series at Omaha, Neb. The championship game of the double-elimination tournament is June 11.

While Greg Williams and Ron Sides both had three singles, two runs, and three RBI, Bob Gwizdala added three singles, three runs, and an RBI. Other contributors were Jordan Reece (three singles, two RBI); Bill Holmen (two singles, three RBI); Alan Hamilton (two singles, run, RBI); Everrett Somers (single, two runs, RBI); Rick Pepin (single, four runs); and Mike Gazzakka (single, RBI). American Cancer Society honors Dr. Michael Wing

Dr. Michael K. Wing

Dr. Wing is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wing of Sanford married Ashley Estes, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Muri (Bud) Estes of Winter Park and Maitland, in 1991. Mrs. Wing is presently an executive with Travelers Insurance Company in New Jersey.

LIVINGSTON, N.J. — The state of New Jersey American Cancer Society awarded Dr. Michael K. Wing the First Place Resident Research Award in Oncology for the state of New Jersey at the annual meeting of the New Jersey Medical Society (Annual Meeting of the New Jersey Oncology Society.) The First Place Residency Award in Oncology was given with a stipend of $250. Dr. Wing's research paper, "Radiation Altered Retinoblastoma Gene Function in Human Cells," was a research paper that elucidated a possible mechanism of induction of oncogenesis (cancer) in irradiated normal human cells. Dr. Wing was the primary author in association with Dr. Eric Hall, et al., world famous author in radiation biology. "Radiobiology for Radiologists."

Dr. Wing is presently a third-year resident in radiation oncology at the New Jersey Medical College at St. Barnabas Medical Center studying under Dr. Sanfilippo. The paper was the culmination of a year's research work in cooperation with and at the Columbia University Medical School in New York City. The research was regarding the tumor suppressor gene (type of oncogene) in immunosuppressed mice (so-called nude mice). The current plans include presentation of this paper at the National Astro (Radiation Oncology) meeting in San Francisco in October 1994.

Dr. Wing was born in Sanford and is a graduate of All Souls Catholic School in Sanford and a 1983 graduate of Trinity Prep School in Winter Park. He is a 1987 Phi Beta Kappa graduate (degree in microbiology) of the University of Florida. Following graduation from Miami Memorial School in 1991, Dr. Wing interned in 1991 and 1992 at the University of Alabama, Lloyd Noland Hospital in Birmingham, Ala. From that time he has been at the St. Barnabas Medical Center at Livingston, N.J. in residency in radiation oncology.

Friendly divorce makes family enemies

DEAR ABBY: After 25 years of marriage, my husband and I are getting a divorce. This decision was not made lightly. We both gave it plenty of thought.

We have raised two lovely daughters of whom we are very proud, and while this is a sad time for them, they realized long ago that ours was not the perfect marriage outsiders thought it was.

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

We have spent hours with marriage counselors and lived in separate dwellings on more than one occasion. It hasn't all been bad or we wouldn't have stayed together for 25 years. In fact, we have enjoyed many good times, which will be locked in our hearts forever. It's just time to move on.

friends, and we intend to keep it that way if we can. We are still sleeping in the same bed, and we will until our house sells. Abby, please let your readers know that if the separating parties can make the best of it, everybody else should butt out. It's hard enough being treated like outcasts from the family before the papers are even signed.

Unfortunately, the extended family seems to think divorce has to be all the ugly things they've heard it to be, and they are already saying their "good-byes" — as if the funeral were tomorrow!
Through all of this, my husband and I have remained

NO NAME PLEASE
DEAR NO NAME: All the intimacies of one's marriage are known only to the couple, and while well-intentioned friends and relatives may want to try to "save" the marriage, I agree with you — they should butt out.

DEAR ABBY: I just read your response to "Your Friend in the Bay Area." She had asked for suggestions on where to go for affordable birth control pills. You told her to look in her local telephone book for a Planned Parenthood listing.

Planned Parenthood has made it even easier than that. It now has a nationwide toll-free telephone number. Call (800) 230-PLAN to be directed to the Planned Parenthood Clinic nearest you.

Abby, thank you for educating people about the services of Planned Parenthood. I feel so fortunate to be working for an organization that is dedicated to helping women through the United States.

TERRY MALLOZZI, PLANNED PARENTHOOD OF NORTH TEXAS IN FORTH WORTH

DEAR TERRY: Thank you for the update and congratulations to Planned Parenthood for a terrific idea.

respond to that letter from "A Gentleman in Texas," who described how men should treat women. My husband is the kind of man he describes.

I was a widow and he was a widower when we met four years ago, and we celebrated our third wedding anniversary on Valentine's Day.

He is a gentleman in every sense of the word. He helps me with the housework, and if I don't feel like cooking dinner, that's OK — he takes me out!

He just had his 60th birthday and I am 55. Every day he tells me how much he loves me.

Last year he had a brain tumor (nonmalignant, thank God) and he made a full recovery. No one knows how much time we have, so we make the most of every happy, healthy day.

MRS. WAYNE SCHOEMANN, CYPRESS, CALIF.
DEAR MRS. SCHOEMANN: Thanks for a dandy upper. May you and your adoring husband have many more happy, healthy years together.

DEAR ABBY: I laughed when I read the article in your column about people who sleep in the nude. You suggested that they keep a robe handy in case they had to make a sudden getaway. That brought back the following memory:

About 40 years ago, my basketball team was on a Canadian trip. It was late in the evening, and we had just finished eating dinner in a Montreal restaurant. As we were getting into our car to go home, the late Michael DeVlin (who later became the mayor of Paterson, N.J.) was knocked to the ground by a naked man who was being chased by a man who was fully clothed.

Mike got up and said, "Lovely day," as the naked man dashed off.

JAMES LABAGNORA, PATERSON, N.J.

WORTH SHARING: The late Norman Cousins wisely said: "People who develop the habit of thinking of themselves as world citizens are fulfilling the first requirement of sanity in our time. ...More and more, the choice for the world's people is between becoming world warriors or world citizens."

New channels fight for spot on crowded cable TV

By JEANNINE AVARSA Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS - For movie buffs, a cable channel is all set to go that offers film clips and reviews.

Stephen Greenberg, president of the Classic Sports Network, which plans to re-telecast historic sports events and offer programs on sports legends.

Greenberg says he is still undecided whether his network should be offered to cable operators as a basic service, which is regulated, or as a premium service, which is not.

The Singles Network, a 24-hour channel offering dating services and programs from personal finance to travel geared to unmarried people, is also keeping its options open.

In general, a basic cable channel gets money by charging cable operators a fee and by selling advertising. Premium channels charge fees to operators and to viewers who take the service.

Notwithstanding, the FCC is considering a number of proposals to make adding a channel more attractive to cable operators.

But despite potential regulatory and technical obstacles, executives of new channels see vast opportunities in the cable industry.

The cable industry is "not going to stand still," said Marcia Norcia, executive vice president for marketing and programming for the Popcorn Channel.

And others see a silver lining in the FCC's regulations because they make premium services more attractive by default.

Greenberg says he is still undecided whether his network should be offered to cable operators as a basic service, which is regulated, or as a premium service, which is not.

When should exams be chaperoned?

DEAR DR. GOTT: When a male gynecologist examines a patient, there is always a nurse in the room. When a female physician gives a complete examination to a male patient, is it necessary or customary to have a nurse in the room?

DEAR READER: In theory, when a male doctor examines a female patient's reproductive tract, there is a chance for banky-panky. Although in practice this type of highly unethical behavior rarely occurs, male physicians have traditionally had a female "chaperone" in the examining room to protect the patient -- and also to protect the doctor from an unjustified complaint.

In my view -- and in the opinion of others -- male patients are not as vulnerable in the hands of female doctors. Frankly, it would be a lot harder for a male patient to claim that he was raped than it would be for a woman on the examining table to be compromised by a male practitioner.

Consequently, it is not necessary or customary for female doctors to have third parties present during the examination of men.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I read a recent article about the possible connection of excess zinc and Alzheimer's disease. My husband and I have been taking Z Bec for over 20 years, and he's showing signs of mental deficiency. Could it be due to a stroke he had six years ago or Alzheimer's disease?

DEAR READER: Aluminum, not zinc, has been implicated as a factor in Alzheimer's disease. I do not believe that your husband's vitamin supplement is playing a role.

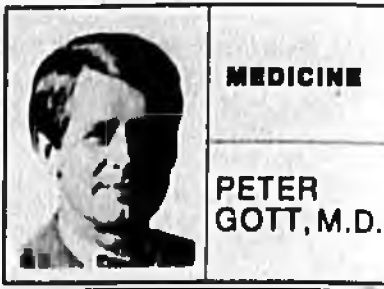

Some vagueness and forgetfulness often follow a stroke. This seems to be a logical explanation for your husband's problem.

Nonetheless, he should see a neurologist, who will order blood tests and a CT scan to establish a diagnosis. Don't delay, because many causes (such as hypothyroidism) of mental "deficiency" can be helped or cured with medication. The specialist

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Usually it is advisable for husbands and wives not to play bridge together. However, some married couples are very successful over the green baize.

H.L. Mencken claimed that husbands never become good, merely proficient. But a thoughtful wife made an excellent play on today's deal to help her husband defend correctly.

East-West were using a gadget popular in the tournament world: the mini no-trump, showing a balanced hand with 10-12 points. Players love the adrenalin shot from walking on the high wire without having to worry about acrophobia.

South should have doubled for penalties with his promising hand containing seven probable defensive tricks.

Against two spades, West led the diamond jack, three, 10, ace. Declarer cashed two top trumps before playing his club. West, who knew East had two clubs for his no-trump opening, won with the ace and led her second diamond to East's seven. When her husband cashed his diamond king, which card did West throw?

The obvious choice is the heart two. But knowing East was nervous that declarer had a club left, West wanted to set East's mind at rest on that score. She discarded the club queen.

This discard could be made only if West knew South was now void in clubs. Also, it told East that South held the heart ace, because West would have bid with 11 points.

East cashed the spade queen before exiting with a diamond. South couldn't stop from East collecting two heart tricks to defeat the contract.

A single card can be worth a thousand words. Copyright 1994. NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 25, 1994

In the year ahead you might have to take on greater responsibility where your work or career is concerned. However, impressive rewards could be in the offing, provided you do a good job.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In important developments today, especially where your career is concerned, try to rely upon yourself and not upon others. The support you're anticipating might not be forthcoming. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Negative thoughts of your own creation could contribute to uncertainties today and cause you anxiety where your work is concerned. Don't make a lot over nothing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you gamble today on situations with which you're not familiar you might wind up an "also ran" instead of a winner. The opposite could be true if you have a home field advantage.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today if you resurrect a volatile issue upon which you and your mate disagree, you could be asking for trouble. This is a very tender topic with a low kindling point.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Tedious mental tasks might not be your long suit today, so be sure to have someone double check your work. There's a possibility you could make errors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An ambitious salesperson might take advantage of you today if he/she thinks you are an impulsive buyer. Take time to truly study bargains before making a cash commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful today that you are not too stern of a disciplinarian where a child's behavior is concerned. Unguarded, minor infractions might cause you to overreact.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Guard against inclinations today to size up situations from a negative perspective. Conditions might not be optimum, yet they're not likely to be as bad as you anticipate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In your social involvements today make it a point to pick up your end of the tab. Don't give pals cause to think of you as freeloader.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may have to be more thick skinned and able to cope with obstacles than usual today if you hope to achieve your objectives. Don't expect a milk run.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your credibility will be under close scrutiny today, so be very careful how you present your opinions on issues. If they cannot be substantiated by facts, it'll be readily discerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Unless you know exactly what to expect in a financial arrangement today, you could miscalculate and let something good slip through your fingers. Copyright 1994 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
