Accident leads to power outage

SANFORD - At about 5:50 a.m. this morning. a pick-up truck struck a high voltage transmission line at School Road and County Road 15, breaking the 65-foot pole in two places and disrupting electrical service for about 30 minutes. The driver of the vehicle was not seriously injured.

A spokesman at Central Florida Regional Hospital confirmed that the driver had been taken to their emergency room and said he had been treated and discharged.

"All of greater Sanford west of the river was effected by the outage," Wayne Bussey, Florida Power and Light spokesman, said.

Bussey said electrical service to the area was recurred in about 45 minutes, but it would not be until late this afternoon before the pole would be replaced. He said there would be no further discussions of recurs to the area. disruptions of power to the area.

The 115,000 volt power transmission line was, according to Bussey, "an integral part of the electrical service to the Sanford area."

The Florida Highway Patrol could not comment on the details of the accident.

ogs provide 'joviality'

SANFORD - The head of Seminole County's solid waste division said he's doesn't mind thatthe county has gained national tongue-incheek publicity. After two national television news services and a national wire service publicized the county's plans to have a trapper catch the 1,000 or more wild hogs at the Osceola Landfill, solid waste manager Fred Blakeley said he doesn't mind.

"We all need a little joviality around this time of year," Blakely said.

The Seminole County Commission is allowing Dan Godwin, a Myakka, Fla. hog trapper, to catch the wild hogs that have proliferated at the county's landfill east of Sanford. Godwin will pay the county $52 per hog he traps.

Blakely said he received warnings from state and federal health officials earlier this year that the hogs pose a health risk to livestock. Blakeley said the wild hogs can spread hog cholera to domestic hogs by eating the garbage.

Landscape tax issue in hands of the voters

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald staff writer

SANFORD - Voters in Seminole County voters will have the opportunity next Tuesday to approve or reject a new tax.

The so-called "Green Penny" tax would add one cent to the cost of each gallon of gasoline bought in the county. The tax, which is estimated to cost a typical driver $10 or less per year, would be levied indefinitely.

The money raised from it - more than $1.2 million per year — would be used primarily to landscape and enhance principal county roads such as Lake Mary Boulevard, Red Bug Lake Road and State Road 46. Any money left over may be used for roadway widening.

County commissioners, who will oversee the spending for the tax collected throughout the county, would develop a five year plan for use of the tax revenue, should voters approve.

It is a countywide issue but in Sanford, Winter Springs and Oviedo, it is the only item on the ballot. □See Taz, Page SA

LAKE MARY ELECTION

Four candidates battling for two commission seats

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY - Four candidates are running for two seats in the city's Nov. 7 general election.

In one race, incumbents Bill Greene and George Duryea are vying for Seat 3, which is currently held by Duryea. Greene's Seat 1 will be eliminated as of December because voters elected last year to change the charter to abolish one commission seat and allow the mayor voting privileges.

Incumbent Thomas Mahoney is challenged by former commissioner and Seminole Community College instructor Ken King for Seat 5.

There are 2.625 registered voters in the city, according to the county elections office. The population is about 5.600.

Winning candidates are sworn into office on Dec. 4.

Thomas Mahoney, 33, 616 Mourning Dove Circle, a financial manager at Demetree Builders. Orlando, said he is a "superior negotiator" which makes him the stronger candidate for this elec-

He said he gains advantages by "knowing the strengths and weaknesses" of developers and others who make requests of the commission. Mahoney is running for re-election to his second two-year term in office.

He said while in office he followed through on the development standards for the Lake Mary Boulevard Model Gateway concept. The standards apply to signage, building setbacks and landscaping to insure a uniformly developed, more beautiful roadway. An ordinance to set these standards along the boulevard as it is widened was adopted this year by the commission.

"I pulled it through for the city in face of a good deal of opposition." he said.

Mahoney said he has maintained and enhanced the high quality of life in the city by supporting various ordinances prohibiting junk cars, parking of certain vehicles in residential areas and an. ordinance to maintain lawns at a certain level. He said he also had a hand in rewriting a home occupation ordinance to restrict commercial activities in the home.

He said he led the effort to remove former city manager Bob Norris who Mahoney said was not managing the city in a professional manner. Norris resigned last year ☐ See Candidates, Page 5A

TALLAHASSEE - State officials have endorsed a Florida ower & Light Co. plan to run a 500,000-voit transc through Evergiades marshes, if the company pays $29.5 to ease environmental damage to the area.

The line, which under the plan would extend through sensitive wetlands areas, is needed to connect FPL generators in St. Lucie County with its power distribution network in Palm Beach, Broward and Dade counties.

The power company's original proposal to run the line through fast-growing suburbs drew opposition from local governments, regional planners, business owners and homeowners' associations.

Buried body found 10 miles from grave

LAKE CITY — Authorities said Tuesday a body found this weekend in a field is that of a man murdered two months ago, and that the victim's grave shows no signs of disturbance.

"I've been here over 30 years, in law enforcement, and I don't remember anything like this ever happening before," said Major Doyle Rooks of the Columbia County Sheriff's Office.

A farmer found the body of Jeffers "Buddy" Kimbrell about 6 p.m. Saturday in a field about six miles south of Lake City. The farm is located about 10 miles from where Kimbrell had been buried Sept. 5.

"Somebody's got to be real sick to do something like this." said the victim's sister, Connie Kimbrell, after learning of the grave robbery.

Kimbrell was stabbed to death Sept. 2 at a party. Witnesses told investigators that he had been arguing earlier in the evening with a friend, Edward "Mitch" Ottinger.

According to the witnesses, Ottinger had picked up a boning knife and walked outside toward Rimbrell about 12:45 a.m. Ottinger was arrested and indicted last month of charges of second-degree murder. He has been free on bond since Sept. 13.

One of American Family's limitations in visiting stores is the time-consuming and moralstesting task of reviewing each store's library, Caton said. Investigators for the group judge ratings, actors, production com-panies and movie titles, he said.

Flu inoculations up from last year's pace

from staff and wire reports

SANFORD - With cold weather and a new influenza season approaching, public health officials are urging millions of Americans to roll up their sleeves and get a flu shot.

Dr. Jorge Deju. Seminole County Health Director, said the county-HRS health unit already has administered 1,604 flu shots as of Tuesday, mostly to residents of nursing homes.

The national Centers of Disease Control in Atlanta says that, judging from past experience, most of the people at high risk of becoming severely ill or dying from an influenza infection will not heed the advice to get an annual vaccination.

The CDC hoped to immunize at least 60 percent of high-risk populations annually by 1990. But it said a survey conducted in 1985 showed that only about 20 percent of high-risk individuals had received the vaccine during the preceding year. A followup report indicates the percentage remains at the 20 percent level.

The toll from influenza is expected to increase, the CDC said. "unless control measures are used more vigorously because of the aging U.S. popu-

Deju said statistics on percentages of high-risk groups who are inoculated are not available in this area. However, he said Seminole County inoculated more than 2,000 residents last year, which was more than any other county in Central Florida

"With 1,600 shots already given this year, we are ahead of last year's pace." he said, noting that November is the month when most people get theit flu

Deju said his department contacts all nursing homes in the county each autumn to remind them that residents, and employees, should get flu shots.

"We will send a team to a location to inoculate a group, or people can call us to make an appointment," he said. The department charges $10 for each inoculation, but Deju said no one is refused a shot because they can't afford It.

Deju said all doctors in the area also have flu vaccine avail-

High-risk groups include those over 65 and people of any age with chronic or underlying health problems. Federal health officials estimate there are more than 40 million Americans in those categories.

"Vaccination of high-risk persons each year before the influence acason is the most important measure for reducing the impact of influenza," the CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices said.

Dr. Walter Gunn. an epidemiologist with the CDC's viral diseases division, said one reason for the low vaccination rate is that "people don't know how serious it is. They think that every little virus they get is the flu and they begin to think of flu as not very serious.

"When they get influenza they are really surprised by what it does, especially the elderly and the chronically III." Gunn said.

Gunn said the flu shot is 70 percent to 90 percent effective and that recent advances in virology have made it "a very safe vaccine."

Influenza and pneumonia typically kill between 8,000 and 20,000 people a year in the United States, Gunn said. In a bad flu season, such as the pandemics of 1957-58 and 1967-68, the death toll runs as high as 50,000, he said. Influenza was rampant in the winter of 1968-89, with three different strains of the virus circulating.

Gunn said flu cases aiready are being reported in the United States with the first virus solate detected in Wisconsin.

Beyond help?

The Bush administration's offer to help the failing Soviet economy serves the long-term interests of the West. But two fundamental questions arise: Is the Soviet economic system salvageable? And if so, can the Soviet leader make the fundamental changes necessary to bring this about?

To date, perestroiks has consisted more of slogans and proclaimed goals than actual reform. The morbund economy remains more inefficient than ever.

For example, the Soviet Union is now the world's largest importer of grains. Nearly 25 percent of the labor force works in percent of the labor force works in agriculture, but Soviet farmers produce only half the output per acre as do American farmers. On the rare occasion when the Soviet harvest is plentiful, 40 percent of the crop is wasted because of inadequate storage, distribution and processing facilities. Stories bound of food rotting in giant central storage bins or on loading docks.

One of Mr. Gorbachev's bolder proposals was to allow farm workers to lease land and buildings for 50 years and pass the leases on buildings for 50 years and pass the leases on to their children. This incentive for private ownership has not caught on, however, because six decades of collectivisation have virtually eliminated the peasant class. Today's Soviet farmers are more like factory workers, living in high rises and receiving huge government subsidies. Few are willing to take the entrepreneurial risk of leasing a farm of their own.

Nor has perestrolka penetrated the industrial sector. Last year, for instance, Mr. Gorbachev decreed that plant managers would have more say in what to pay their employees, how much to produce and how to five it. Their expression. But the hurcourrery illinearcain the choose at the manufacturing enterprises has been able to block most of these incentives.

No less daunting is Mr. Gorbachev's challenge to change the Soviet ruble into convertible world currency. Such a reference to the soviet ruble into convertible world currency. convertible world currency. Such a reform would permit expanded world trade with the West, encourage foreign investment in the Soviet Union and impose some degree of market discipline on Soviet enterprises. Although Moscow has authorised a pertial conversion of the ruble, beginning next year, this half measure is not enough. Frice reform and currency convertibility are needed to soak up some of the hundreds of billions of rubles that have been stashed away by Soviet consumers in what amounts to an inflationary time bomb.

Although Mr. Garbacher acknowledges the

Although Mr. Gerbachev acknowledges the Soviet economic system is in shambles, he has acarcely embraced Western-etyle capitalism. Particularly unfortunate is his decision to impose price controls on the relatively few cooperatives allowed to earn a modest profit. These enterprises have provided a subdicum of vitality to an otherwise static economy and marked a substantial step toward price reform. Andrei Sakharov was correct in calling for state enterprises and cooperatives to be placed on an equal footing so the could compete with each other.

Foreign Minister Eduard Sheverdnadse recently told U.S. officials that Moscow is open to fresh ideas to save the sconomy, and Mr. Bush has sensibly offered Western assistance. Yet, in the end, only the Soviets themselves can take the drastic steps required to save the economy from seven decades of Marxist-Leninist mismanagement.

A test on Virginian soil

WASHINGTON — Virginia, which has been my home for the last 30 years, is an old-fashioned state in many ways. It does not crave publicity, being quietly confident that in statisfying its own standards it probably exceeds most others. receds most others.

The national attention that its 1989 guber-

The national attention that its 1989 gubernatorial race is drawing is therefore viewed with bemusement — and not the lip-amacking delight that other (not to say lesser) states would feel at finding themselves on the network news. Reporters from three continents have been crowding into Richmond because of the possibility that Virginia may become the first state since Reconstruction with a black sowerner, as a result of the Nov. 7 with a black governor, as a result of the Nov. 7

Lt. Gov. L. Douglas Wilder-(D), who is black, is narrowly shead of former state Atty. Gen. J. Marshall Coleman (R) in most of the pre-

All of us in journalism twitch when a possible "first-time-ever" story comes our way. This one has the added element of "well I never" implausibility, as in, "Well I never thought that the "Capital of the Confederacy" and the 'Home of Massive Resistance' would be the first state to elect a black governor." Plattoons of TV producers are scouring the back raods, looking for some authentic Virginian agreeable enough to say on camera.
"Well. I bet old Harry Byrd must be spinning in his grave."

As a resident, it has been a fascinating experience to watch visiting journalists squeeze the complexity of this contest into their preconceived story line. It's never quite as simple as our business make it seem.

Certainly if Wolder wins — and it's no cinch — it will mark a significant milestone in the long struggle of blacks to become full stakeholders in American society. But this compaign has not been about race and it's unlikely that race will decide it.

For Virginians, the real surprise in this contest is not that a black man is running for governor and might win, but that the choice to governor and might win, but that the choice to fill the state's top job has come down to two men so heartily disliked by so many others in the leadership of their own parties. Either way. Virginia is going to have a maverick as governor — and that is what Virginians find extraordinary.

Coleman won a bitter three-way Repulican primary with only 37 percent of the votes. Four years ago, he lost to a political nobody in a two-way contest for the nomination for lieutenant-governor. Four years before that, he lost in his first try for the governorship. His only statewide victory cause in the 1977 race for attorney general, when he was 35 years old. #### Quayle failing to make inroads at White House

WASHINGTON — Dan Quayle has taken the role of a quiet vice president to a new low. When it comes to policy decisions, he is almost mute.

The value of a vice president has often been measured not by action, but by the quality of advice he gives the president. When it's crunch time in the Bush administration, it appears Quayle doesn't even weigh in.

White House sources tell us that Quayle fits into the third or fourth tier of Bush advisers. "He's not taken seriously by anyone in the White House in terms of a policy-making role," one White House official said.

Bush's top tier of advisers contains his abrusive Chief of Staff John Sununu and his polished Sec-retary of State James Baker. They are Bush's policy bodyguards. The second tier includes Housing and Urban Develop-ment Secretary Jack Kemp, Defense Secretary Dick Chency, National Security Scowcroft and Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher. If Bush still needs advice after consulting all of them, he might go to Quayle. The presence of Kemp in the upper echelons has to grate on Quayle. Kemp's name is already being whispered as a possible running mate for Bush in 1992, so he could be secreted to purple or president in 1996.

running mate for Bush in 1992, so he could be groomed to run for president in 1996.

Quayle's role model for the vice presidency is Bush himself, whose eight years in office apawned the question "Where was George?" But Quayle has been even more invisible.

Contrast that with Walter Mondale, who was assigned by President Jimmy Carter to set the administration's issues agends. Richard Moe, who was Mondale's chief of staff, told our associate Jim Lynch that Mondale focused all of his efforts on advising Carter.

told our associate Jim Lynch that Mondale focused all of his efforts on advising Carter.

One of Quayle's few apparent advisory roles to Bush is to let the president know how certain policies will fly with the conservative wing of the GOP. The vice president is kept as far away from Democrats as possible, except when he takes the lead for the White House in lambasting them. Quayle's achedule shows only one acheduled meal with a Democrat all summer — a breakfast with Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgie.

cummer — a breakfast with Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia.

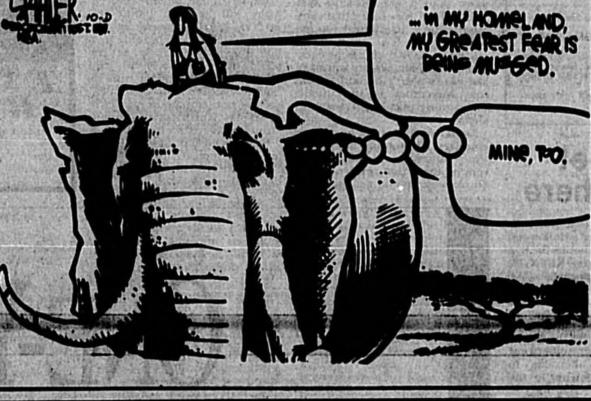

One White House official explained the vice president's light work load by saying Quayle is "still considered a potential political liability." Another source said Quayle spends most of his time at political fund raisers in backwater towns because "they don't want him to make a mistake."

One of his few defined job descriptions is head of the National Space Council, but that job appears to steal little time from his golf game. The council met once all summer, according to his schedule.

The summer itinerary indicates that Quayle dosen't "power lunch" very often with his bess. From June through August, the schedule shows only five Bush-Quayle lunches. But Quayle isn't eating alone. Almost every Tuesday he lunches with Republican sensiors who hope he will pitch their ideas to the president.

One high-level staffer for a Republican sensior said Quayle's lack of clout in the White House is no surprise. "He was a lightweight" even as a sensior.

A spokeswoman for Quayle defended her boss as a "hands-on" person who works long hours. We don't question the number of hours. We wonder how he fills them. We asked Bush's office to give us examples of Quayle's advice to the president and an example of a challenging task that Bush had an example of a challenging task that Bush had an example of a challenging task that Bush had an example of a challenging task that Bush had an example of a challenging task that Bush had emigred to Quayle. Bush's people did not respond. Maybe they're still looking.

Murder trial testimony begins today

SANFORD - Testimony in the double murder trial of Stephanic Ann Gardner of Oviedo got underway in Seminole Circuit Court today.

Assistant State Attorney Steve Plotnick delilvered his opening statement to jurors beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Gardner, 31, is charged with shooting her parents, Daniel Dinda, 55, and Carolyn Dinda, 56, in their home in Oviedo in June of 1988. Her two children, who were living with Gardner's estranged husband in Virginia, were visiting Cardner and were in the next room when the shootings occurred. Gardner told the children, ages 9 and 6, that the sound of shots came from firecrackers.

Gardner could face the death penalty if convicted. Defense attorneys claim Gardner, 31, was insane at the time of the shootings and plan to call several psychiatrists to testify at the trial, which is expected to last the remainder of the week and part of next week.

Attorneys finally settled on a jury of seven men and five women, and two men to serve as alternates, shortly before 4 p.m. Tuesday after two days of questioning prospective jurors about their views on the death penalty and insanity.

Political changes prompt summit

WASHINGTON — President Bush, looking forward to his summit next month with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, said rapid changes under way in Eastern Europe convinced him it was the right time for the meeting.

Bush announced Tuesday that he and Gorbachev will meet Dec. 2-3 aboard U.S. and Soviet warships in the Mediterranean Sea to discuss "a wide array of subjects."

The two leaders are expected to talk about ways to boister Gorbachev's perestrolka reforms in the Soviet Union, but there will be no specific agenda and no substantial agreements are expected from the meeting.

"I'm looking forward to this meeting," Bush said. "I think it's the right thing to be doing. As I say, there was a time when I wasn't sure that it was, but with this rapidity of change ... It's just that in this time of dynamic change I didn't want to miss something." something."

House votes more drug war money

WASHINGTON — The House tentatively voted to boost funding for the drug war to $8.8 billion and, in a sign of the tobacco industry's declining power, decided to ban smoking on almost all domestic airline flights.

The actions came Tuesday as the House gave initial approval to a compromise bill bearing $12 billion for the Transportation Department in fiscal 1990. The vote was $94-21:

For procedural reasons, the measure was sent back briefly to the House Rules Committee because of technicalities related to the drug initiative. Final House passage was expected later, and the Senate still must act on the measure before it goes to the White House.

The measure was used as a vehicle to add $3.2 billion in drug money sought by President Bush and Congress to the $5.6 billion contained in 12 other appropriations bills for other

Minimum wage will be raised

Bush and Democrats agree on measure to pay $4.25 by 1991

WASHINGTON — A long deadlock on proposals to raise the federal minimum wage has ended with agreement between President Bush and Democrats in Congress on a compromise plan to boost the wage to $4.25. The House tentatively sched-uled a vote Wednesday on the plan that would boost the current $3.35 wage in two installments.

Democratic leaders hailed the agreement as a victory, but they appeared to have yielded to Bush on several key points.

Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole went to Capitol Hill to announce the administration's acceptance of the plan. "I'm delighted that we do have an agreement." she

In a statement released at the White House, Bush said the package "gives relief to those with the greatest need in our work force while at the same time protects job opportunities for young workers."

The plan includes a lower training wage for new workers age 16 to 19, but the provision would be eliminated in 1993.

Bush vetoed an earlier bill because it would have raised the minimum wage by 30 cents more than the $4.25 he insisted on, and did not include his proposal for a six-month training wage for new employees.

Under the new compromise plan, the training wage — 85 percent of the full minimum wage — could be paid to new workers for just three months. It could be extended for another three months if the employer increased since 1981, Under the new bill it would rise by 45 cents next April and another 45 cents

Senate Democratic leader
George Mitchell of Maine called the plan "a victory for working Americans, those at the bottom of the economic scale who need a boost and who need it as soon as possible."

such training programs, but Dole said that was something "we will work out with the He said the compromise climi-nates "any unreasonable, extended subminimum wage structure." House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., agreed it was "a victo-ry" and was "one of the princi-ple items" on the Democrats agenda for this Congress.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D. Mass., said both sides had compromised, but the bill is less than what he wanted or "the working poor desired."

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — President Daniel Ortega, accusing President Bush of pro-moting "criminal terrorism" in Nicaragua, said today he would go ahead with plans to end a 19-month unliateral cease-fire with U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

"We are not going to extend the cease-fire.
Mr. Bush." Ortega said in a broadcast speech today, the day the pact expired.
"It seems the United States has lost its head and wants to add a state," Ortega said.

"Nicaragua is not another state of the United States. We are not slaves of the United States and we don't accept the dictates of anyone nor of any power."

"We haven't even considered a response."
White House press secretary Marlin

the options to determine our response."

Contra leader Enrique Bermudez, responding to the announcement, told United Press International from Honduras his troops were declaring "a unilateral cease-fire, the same one the Sandinista government is negating."
"If the Sandinistas continue the war, and as they are announcing the end of the cease-fire, we will seek help from the United States." Bermudez said, adding they would seek logistical as well as military aid.

He said his men would stay at their posts. Suspension of the cease-fire also was announced in a statement in the progovernment newspapers Barricada and El Nuevo Diario. The statement said the cease-fire would not be renewed in part because "in the last 20 days, the infiltration (into Nicaragua) of the mercenary forces has intensified from their bases in Honduras.

It said the government was making emergency consultations with other gov-ernments and political leaders to stabilize the peace process "altered by the escalating guerrilla warfare of the counterrevolutionary bands."

Torretta, a red-shirt freshman, started the next three games, setting a Miami passing yardage record against San Jose State, but throwing four interceptions in the first half of a 24-10 loss at Florida State.

Erickson's knuckle is still badly swollen from the calcium that formed around the break and the two metal pins that have been implanted to reinforce it.

First Hall, now Sloan: Florida hoop coach resigns

GAINESVILLE - Florida basketball coach Norm Sloan resigned Tuesday amid allegations he and other coaches at the school violated NCAA rules by paying athletes and was replaced by former Tennessee coach Don DeVoe.

Athletic Director Bill Arnaparger announced the hiring of DeVoc. who resigned from Tennesse March 21. DeVoe coached the Vols for 11 years. posting a 204-37 record.

Sloan's announcement came less than a month after the resignation of football coach Galen Hall. who left amid allegations he gave money to former Gator football player Ron Moten after he left school. Hall denied the allegations but resigned in October at the request of the university.

In a letter to University President Robert Bryan. Sloan said he will give up his coaching job in "response to the University Athletic Association's request ... that I do so because its officials have been presented evidence that certain student athletes, not now enrolled, during my tenure have received benefits above those allowed by the NCAA. "I deny any such violations have occurred, but I have nevertheless decided to honor the request that I retire now. Sloan, 63, led North Carolina State to the NCAA title in 1974. He has a career record of 627-395 and has coached 15 of his 37 college scasons at Florida.

"I leave with great sadness, but with my head held high, for in my heart of hearts I sm a 'Fightin' Gator' as I will always be.'' he said. In announcing Sloan's move. Bryan said in a statement: "I regret very much the events that have occurred today. However, I believe what has occurred is in the best interest of the university's athletic program and the university as a whole."

"I'm shocked. The whole team's shocked," said Renaldo Garcia, a junior Fiorida guard from Tampa. "We're going through some real bad times right now. People are pretty torn." DeVoe, posted a 19-11 mark last year, but was forced to resign under pressure from fans who were disappointed by the Vols' performance and by sagging attendance at games.

DeVoe led Tennessee to six NCAA and three

NIT post-season appearances. He was named the SEC Coach of the Year in 1979 and 1982. His 1982 team also tied Kentucky for the SEC championship.

Bryan said Sloan's assistants - Monte Towe, Kenny McCraney and Phil Weber - had been asked to resign. A grand jury began investigating Fjorida's basketball and football programs following a probe that began in June 1988 by the U.S. Attorney's Office in Tallahassee and the Drug Enforcement Administration. The two agencies were looking into possible drug use and sales among the school's athletes.

In September, attorneys for four sports agents who were charged with defrauding the university revealed segments of grand jury testimony that said former Florida athletes said Sloan. Towe and McCraney had given money to players.

The agents later pleaded guilty to lesser charges.

The information, contained in a motion to dismiss the charges, relied heavily on the testimony of former star basketball player Vernon Maxwell, who now plays for the San Antonio Spurs.

in the court document. Maxwell said he received $800 from Towe while still attending high school and that he used some of the money to purchase cocaine. Bee Gaters, Page 3B

Fighting Irish may not participate in a bowl

SOUTH BEND, Ind. - Notre Dame, the nation's No. 1 college football team, might not play in a bowl game because the coach says the strain of the season has worn out his players.
"I'm not sure our football team can adequately prepare for a bowl game." Coach Lou Holtz and Tuesday. "We've got to sit down and look and see if it's proper for us to play a bowl game. I don't know if we will have a chance to go to a bowl mane or not. I just want to be fair to our players. Nobody knows what they have gone through."

The Irish began practice Aug. 4 in preparation for the Aug. 51 Kickoff Classic against Virginia. The team practiced last week while most students enjoyed a week off from classes after mid-term exams.

Notre Dame players will miss Thanksgiving break to prepare for their Nov. 25 showdown with No. 6 Miami. Classes end Dec. 22 and Holtz wonders if it would be proper for players to give up their entire Christmas break to prepare for a New Year's Day bowl for the national title. "This football team arrived on campus Aug. 4 and they've not been home yet," Holtz said.

"I've looked at it on the calendar and I just don't know. Notre Dame's priority has always been No. 1, determine if we're going to a bowl game and if so, play the highest-ranked team possible."

This would not be the first time Notre Dame has bypassed the howls. After defeating Stan.

A bowl brings the school millions of delians. And a desire for money to find academic programs prompted a change in school policy in time for the Irish to face Texas in the 1970 Cotton Bowl. Notre Dame has made 13 bowl appearances in the past 20 bowl appearances in the past 20

The decision on whether to play this year will be made by Richard Rosenthal, Notre Dame's athletic director, and the Rev. E. William Beauchamp, the school's executive vice president.

Grand Canyon prepared for Breeders' Cup race

United Press International

HALLANDALE - Of the 11 horses trainer D. Wayne Lukas has in Saturday's seven Breeders' Cup races, he best likes Grand Canyon's chances for victory. He also says the Fappiano colt is the most prepared 2-year-old he has brought to the $1 million Juvenile.

Those are strong statements considering the horses Lukas has shipped to Gulfstream Park for the $10 million extravaganza as well as his record in the 6-year-old thoroughbred championships.

Among the 1989 Lukas starters is Steinlen, one of the favorites for the $1 million Mile. and Stella Madrid, early favorite for the $1 million Juvenile Fillies.

Lukas has run the winners of the three previous Juveniles: Capote (1986), Success Express (1987) and is it True (1988).

Still, Lukas insisted Tuesday, Grand Canyon is "without a question the best one we've brought over ... he's just coming into the race best."

Heat trims roster to 13

MIAMI - The Miami Heat cut Sylvester Gray, John Shasky and Kenny Drummond Tuesday get to within one of the 12-player NBA roster limit benever Friday's opener against the New Jersey Nets in the Miami Arena.

Personnel Director Stu Inman said the Heat also intends to put guard-forward Mark Planeky elther on injured reserve or on waivers by the roster-limit deadline Wednesday, Plansky, a rookie free agent, re-injured a pulled groin in the last pre-season game Sunday and will be examined Wednesday. The cuts Tuesday meant that 6-9 Pat Cummings, 33, a journeyman forward-center. would begin his 12th year in the NBA. despite speculation he would be cut. Another player on the bubble was forward Terry Davis, a free-agent rookie from Division II Virginia Union.

Davis, 6-9, was one of the most pleasant surprises of the pre-season, playing strong under the beaket and displaying an accu-rate jump shot.

Inman said the starting lineup would probably be the same one that ended last season. Rory Sparrow will be at point guard with Kevin Edwards alongside. Rony Seikaly will be at center with Grant Long at power foward and Billy Thompson at Sparrow aprained his ankle in an early workout and missed the preseason. He is expected to see limited action against New Jersey Friday night, but is likely to start.

Tellis Frank, Davis and Cummings will back up at both center and power forward.

First-round draft choice Glen

Rice will back up Thompson, second-round draft choice Sherman Douglas will see extensive action behind Sparrow at the point, and the other guards will be second-round draft choice Scott Haffner and veteran Jon Sundvold.

Gray missed several weeks last season with an injury, but started occasionally. Coach Ron Rothstein had tried to use him both at off guard and forward during the preseason, but he managed to shoot only 42 percent, making him expendable. Gray left Memphis State last year after his sophomore year.

Shasky was another project that fell short after his rookie. season. He is a 7-footer from Minnesota who saw limited action last year. The Heat worked with him this summer, but he recorded only 55 minutes during eight preseason games — the eight presesson a fewest on the club.

"Sylvester and Shasky were tough calls," Inman said. "As hard as they both worked, we didn't see that much improvement in their game."

inman said he thought Shasky might be picked up by another club as a project immediately, and Gray also had a chance to catch on.

Sweet potatoes will soon be available and plentiful, as they are in greatest supply from October through the winter months. There are two types. The drier, tan skin, pale fiesh sweet potato and the moist. sweet, deep-orange flesh Southern yam. In most recipes they can be used in-

Choose chunky medium-sized sweet possions or yams that are smooth, firm and free of decay. Keep in a dry cool place, but do not refrigerate. Yams also can be purchased frosen or canned. When a recipe calls for a canned yam, you can use fresh yams. Microwave them whole as you would white potatoes, cool, then remove the akin, and prepare as directed in recipe.

Cook keeps farm life's simplicity

By LACY DOMEN Herald correspondent

SANFORD - A nip in the evening air may make those July evenings spent eating sun-warmed tomatoes, served with salt and a napkin to dab the juicy dribbles, seem like a distant memory, but our Cook of the Week, Sanford resident Louise Taylor, preserves sum-mer in a special way. She puts it

"I love to can!" Taylor said. "Especially vegetable soup. There's nothing prettier" than rows of jars filled with the colorful concection.

Granddaughter Dixie Lee concurs, "One of my friends, who always claimed she hated vegetables, ate a bowl of Orandma's vegetable soup and swore it was better than Campbell's. She even missed Christmas with her family one year, to travel with me to Florida, to visit Grandma. She wanted more soup!"

Taylor has access to fresh roduce from her sister's farm in Astatula. "She brings me green beans, tomatoes, okra, you name it, from her garden," Taylor said. "I can it all and take her a good supply for winter."

The oldest of six children raised in a self-sufficient environment in Decauter. Ala., Taylor misses farm life, she said.
"We were in the fleids by 6 in the morning, and raised everything we needed: cows for meat and dairy products; chickens for meat and eggs; corn, some of which we'd take to a mill for which into meal; and lots of grinding into meal; and lots of vegetables. We canned over 1,000 jars a season.

"If anyone had told me then," that I'd have to buy everything I put in my mouth now, I would have laughed." Taylor said. "I loved the farm! My biggest regret in life is that I didn't raise my five girls and two boys on one."

Because her mother was often ecause her mother was often ill. Taylor remembers learning to cook at an early age. "I stood on a chair to make biscuits, and cooked on a wood-burning stove fueled with red oak and hickory.

As a matter of fact, I'd like to get another one of those adves!"

With the electricity, Taylor also remembers "ironing with cast black from and Argo starch. I'd run that fron by the fire and rub the bottom with green cedar to make it attor. make it stick.

enjoy the most are troning with starch, cooking and canning."

And cook she does, often for an army of family and friends. Self-taught, she considers "get-ting in there and doing it" the best way to learn. "Sample while you cook, and if it suits your taste, it will come out just fine!"

She claims to "cook better for 50 people than for two; the more you put in the pot, the better it

A Sanford resident since the mid 1950s, Taylor was a hard-working, single parent with seven children to feed, before ing."

Teamwork was the key to running a successful household in those early days. Taylor did "all the cooking, but not the dishes. Each child had a different job, and if someone shirked his duty, all this children were lined up until the guilty party feased up."

Tattletales were not tolerated.
Taylor prizes honesty and loyalty in her offspring, and "was hard on them from the time they were little. Teach them (about values) when they're young, and they won't forget. There's no use waiting until they're teen-agers." Taylor said. Afer disciplining a son once as a teen-ager, and telling him she was doing so because she loved him, he blurted back, "Mom, if you call that love, you can hate me for the rest of my life!" At one time, Taylor took on the responsibility of six addi-tional children, to help out a family down on their luck. She shaltes her head about that favor that was promised for a few days and lasted four months. "God only knows how I did it! We didn't est steak and sags every day, but I kept all 13 kids clean. fed, schooled, and in church on Sundays."

Her children are grown and have families now: Barbara in Ohio, Patricia in Georgia, Elaine in Lake Helen, and Mary, Delores. Herman and Joe in Sanford. Taylor says they all turned out "just fine," and visit her often for home-cooked meals.

"I never officially taught my children to cook." Taylor said. "Just like I don't use a pattern when I sew, I don't often use recipes: I taste as I go! A kitchen just isn't big enough for two Dixie Lee, almost 20, has patiently and persistently tried to persuade her grandmother to part with some culinary secrets.

"I saked my mom (Taylor's daughter, Patricia) how to make biscuits, and she said take the can, whack it in the edge of the counter, and follow the directions. I didn't even ask my Aunt Delores, because she once buried her biscuit dough in the backyard. It started bubbling up from the ground, and her husband spent his whole lunch hour trying to figure out what was wrong with the septic tank! She makes biscuits from a can.

Persistence pays. Dixie. an avid fan of her grandmother, is developing into a first-rate cook, thanks to path a tracking.

Their mutually respectful relationship "goes back to when I was 4 years old." Dixie explained. "I found a piece of bubble gum on the floor of a store, unwrapped it, and popped it in my mouth. Orandma knew i it in my mouth. Grandma knew ! didn't have any money, so she made me go back to the owner and explain. I was so embarrassed, but I never forgot the on I learned." No matter how insignificant something seems one shouldn't take it if it's not theirs, she said.

Together, Taylor and Dixie Lee baked "a banana split pie that was eaten that night," according to Taylor. "We baked four more the next day, and had to bake another one that nights just so we could get some!" As fast as ☐See Cook, Page 63

Taylor doesn't talk about a philosophy of life—she lives one. She recently chipped in money from her own pocket when a customer at Touchton's Drug Store found herself a little short. "It seemed ally to put some-thing back that she needed, or expect her to make another trip to pay the difference," Taylor said. The grateful customer remembered Taylor, who has been employed at Touchton's for 14 years, with flowers and a lovely card.

Taylor bakes special favorites for neighbors and customers she considers friends. "I never known considers friends. "I never know how many guests I'll have for a meal. Sometimes there's 50 people for Sunday breakfast. As long as my company is comfortable, I'm hanny!"

gets kindness, and Kindness be Louise Taylor hopes that thought will snowball in our society. It was the loyal support. of many friends and family members that helped her through the recent, sudden loss of Robert after 22 years of marriage. "He was one of the finest! They threw away the pattern when they made him."

As Taylor sits surrounded by a nultitude of treasured family shotos, one of her handmade quilts nearby, and the aroma of fresh peach cobbler perfuming the air, her eyes twinkle. Perhaps she's envisioning the middle of December at Touchton's Drug Store, when she may revive her holiday baking tradition. Speculation runs high among customers and friends. Will there be 25 pounds of melt-in-your-mouth home-made, chocolate fudge, and 150 dozen taste-tempting Taylor Christmas cookies? Our Cook of the Week stirs and fudges on herself, "I guess I will do it again this year?" Some of Taylor's favorite reci-
