City Manager Scores:

Apathy On Lakefront Projects

By Dottie Austin
Lack of interest on the part of local citizens, and particularly on the part of Sanford businessmen, concerning the future of the waterfront development project, was scored by City Manager Warren E. Knowles speaking at a Kiwanis meeting.

"Since the city commission undertook the study of this matter several months ago, only five letters have been received encouraging the city to move ahead with the proposal, despite a tremendous amount of publicity," Knowles charged.

He particularly charged apathy on the part of Sanford merchants and marine goods supply firms who stand to benefit most from development of the marina-hotel, waterfront development complex.

"If you recall, the waterfront development plan was originally proposed as a support to the downtown business area, but as yet, these people who are most vitally concerned, have not come up with any concrete evidence of their support and backing," the city manager charged.

"The city commission is presently in a state of flux—they don't know whether you want this development or not, whether you are willing to pay for it, whether you are willing to support it," he added.

"Where are your letters? Is there any real public interest? How can your commissioners carry out your wishes unless you tell them you are, or are not, willing to pay for it?"

"Any way we slice it, it's still going to come out of your pocket. We can hide it from you by taking it out of your franchise money, or we can add $64.80 a year on to your real estate taxes, but the money is still going to come from the people.

"Are you willing for your city commission to spend $1 million, more or less, to develop your lakefront? You must let them know," Knowles declared.

Using drawings and renderings to illustrate his remarks, Knowles outlined the study of the waterfront development plan up to now, and described proposals that have been presented for future development along the Lake Monroe shoreline from 14 to the city.

He told of plans of the county to erect street lights at 14 intersections and all along the lakefront drive, proposals for the botanical and zoological gardens in the sanitary landfill area, the large terminal and the city waterfront marina complex.

Knowles explained that studies are now underway to find ways of building the waterfront development for less than the proposed $17 million.

Knowles also charged that "the press has not been objective in presenting the proposal to the public."

Connell has submitted a pared-down plan, as has the Raulerson Engineering firm out of Tampa, who appeared before commissioners this week to show that the marina complex can be built for less, without making the overall plan any less attractive to private investors and prospective customers.

"Every time I speak on this matter, I am accused of being 'against' the proposal—my remarks are misconstrued because I have attempted to present both sides of the story. However, I have put it in writing to the commissioners and to the newspapers that I am wholeheartedly in favor of constructing the waterfront development in a way that will make it the most outstanding recreational area in Central Florida," the city manager stated.

Knowles also charged that "the press has not been objective in presenting the proposal to the public."

Forecasting Frailties

The U.S. economy continues its steady upward course in the longest sustained growth period in our history, confounding all efforts of the experts to predict its future.

Economic forecasters have consistently underestimated the annual increase in the Gross National Product by anywhere from $7 to $12 billion. It has actually increased an average of $22 billion a year since 1953.

A study of economic forecasts issued by banks, business firms and others by Victor Zarnowitz of the University of Chicago shows that the prognosticators have usually underestimated short-term decreases in the GNP as well.

One reason cited by the economist is that forecasters must rely on estimates based on current levels of economic activity, estimates which contain many errors and are often revised months later.

To paraphrase Samuel Johnson's remark about female preachers: Economic forecasting is not done well, but you are surprised to find it done at all. And you are glad that the actual performance of the economy is not dependent upon it.

Blame Both Sides

Criticism from around the world has been leveled at West Germany—and rightly so—for its statute of limitations on crimes committed by the Nazis. Unless extended, it will run out this spring and those who have eluded justice for 20 years may safely come out from under their rocks.

Some of this indignation might well be directed to the other side of the Wall, however. The Russian-backed East Germans, who have often accused the West of sheltering Nazis, claim to have information on war crimes.

But there is a catch. Before they will cooperate with the West German government, whose first pillar of policy is the eventual reunification of the nation; considers this tantamount to recognition of the puppet half as a separate country. In trying to make political capital out of the situation, the Soviet regime is, according to West German State Secretary Karl-Gunther von Hase, "practically doing Nazi criminals a favor."

Thought For Today

Whoever is wise, let him understand these things; whoever is discerning, let him know them; for the ways of the Lord are right, and the upright walk in them, but transgressors stumble in them.—Hosea 14:9.

The pleasantest thing in the world is to have as many of them as possible.—Christian Bovee, American writer.

Dr. Crane's

Worry Clinic

Harry Yockey is typical of topnotch editors who use the daily newspaper as a vehicle for carrying helpful information to their readers. Delinquency has been increasing in America, both among teen-agers and adults, so study this psychoanalysis of vandalism. And you teachers might discuss it in your classrooms, too. Then send for the tests below to detect potential vandals!

CASE V-122 Harry Yockey is the versatile editor of the Reporter at Dover, Ohio. "Dr. Crane," he recently told me over long distance telephone, "we are having a rash of vandalism in our county. For example, the windows of 14 parked automobiles were smashed, all in a matter of a few minutes.

"Cemetery markers have also been overturned. "Windows in private homes have been broken by pieces of cement blocks hurled through them.

"Could you offer a psychoanalysis of the causes underlying such vandalism?" Since this problem is becoming widespread in America, Mr. Yockey's request may be of universal interest.

First, vandals often have not worked to create or produce constructive objects or services.

For when you have learned the joy of building anything, whether that be a scooter or a dog kennel, a kite or a hot rod car, you inevitably learn that value is based in large part on toil and calloused palms and sweat.

Such people thus will win at any wanton destruction of valuable items in their environment, even if the destroyed property doesn't belong to them.

For boys and girls who have earned their own spending money and who have labored to create any worthwhile item, are not likely to desecrate cemeteries or even church interiors, or smash windows and destroy school equipment or library books.

The members of these juvenile gangs of vandals are likely to qualify under one or more of these headings:

(1) They received an "al lowance" instead of having worked for their spending money.

(2) They come from "bad" homes — not necessarily criminal or pauper homes but those where divorce has broken the family ties or "keeping up with the Joneses" has spoiled the proper family camaraderie that should exist. Some of the worst vandals are spoiled sons of rich families, whose parents belong to ritzy Country Clubs!

(3) They feel deflated in ego because of low school grades or failure to be on an athletic team or in the school band, etc. So they try to gain a sense of quick power and prominence by joining a gang and striking back at society via destructive behavior.

(4) Such mobsters did not carry a newspaper route or belong to the Boy Scouts or have regular chores.

"Idle hands are the Devil's workshop" describes them.

(5) They may try to seek revenge on teachers or the faithful police officers or even their bosses.

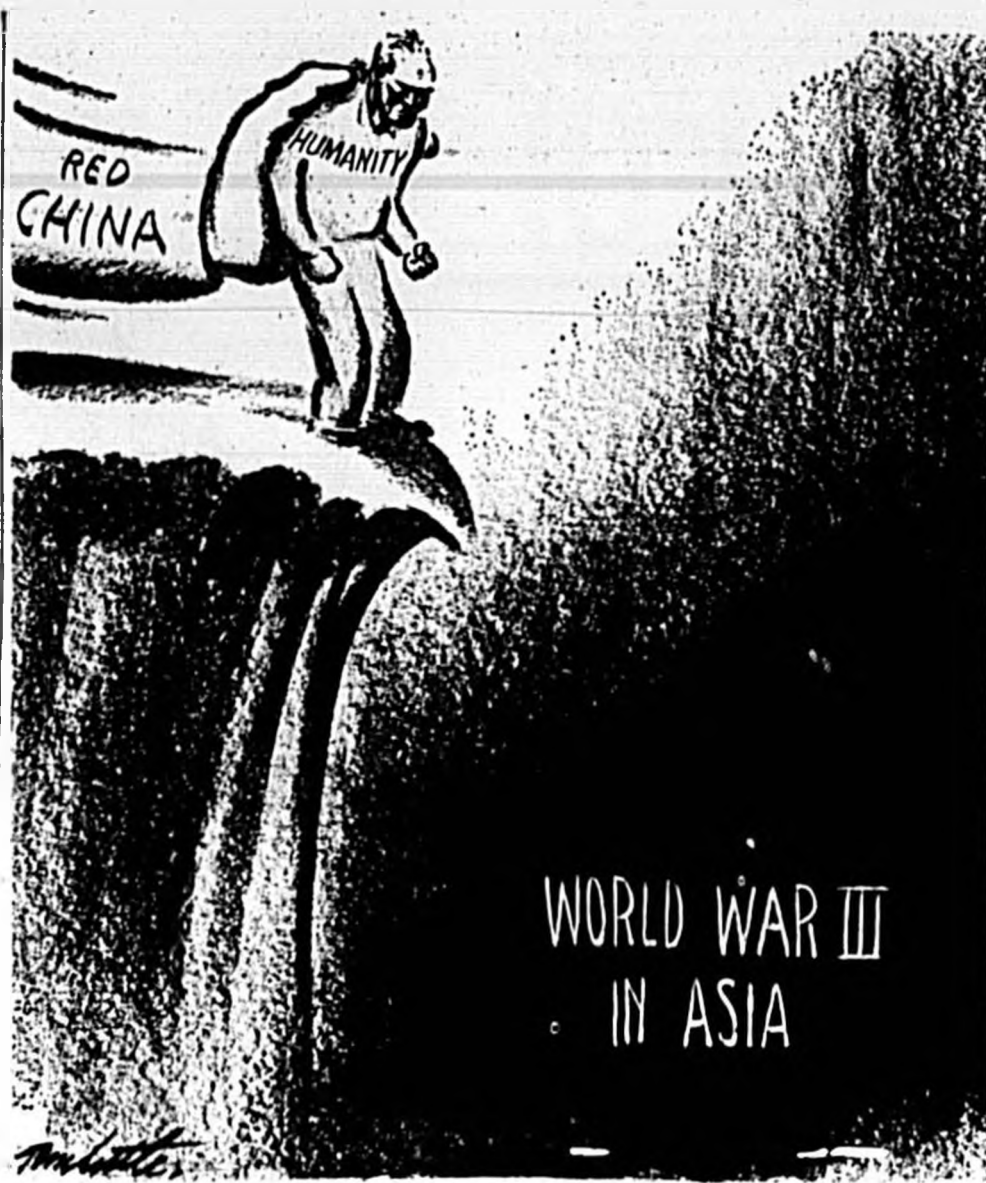

For many vandals are not teen-agers. In Indiana last fall, the RCA plant suffered a $750,000 fire loss, alleged to have been caused by arsonists who were among the strikers.

This, too, is wanton vandalism of the most juvenile and stupid sort.

(6) Vandals are usually immature in their emotional development.

"They belatedly illustrate the toddler's anger at his mother when he screams, 'I hate you,' and then tries to throw dishes on the floor to break them."

So send for my "Behavior Test for Teen-Agers," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 50c. It will "spot" potential vandals early!

Political Notebook

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Making strong impact upon this capital is the astonishing thinness of the verbal defenses being raised in Southeast Asia on behalf of the United States.

The play is going to the link throwing, jeering demonstrators who respond with mindless efficiency at the touch of a Communist button, and to those more thoughtful people who nevertheless see either nearly total error or evil purpose, or both, in the course this country is following.

In the worst of it, Americans are assassins, imperialists, neo-colonialists. In milder vein, we are stupid or misguided meddlers in other people's affairs. We are vastly over-extended in our efforts to help other nations around the world, we are blithely indifferent to the need for negotiating—insistent, instead, upon "bombing Asians" in a way sure to bring on a wider war.

Where, some men in government are asking, are the voices here and abroad to proclaim that there is another side to this story?

Our too silent defenders could begin by running up the list of real postwar imperialists, great and petty, who have been fraudulently dressing their larger-than-national designs in the language of the developing people's legitimate aspirations.

The new imperialists are, of course, dominated by the men in Moscow and Peking. Even the most glib in the emerging nations sometimes take fright when they glimpse occasionally the naked crudity of the purpose of those men.

The petty imitators who fill out the roster of today's imperialists must inevitably include Sukarno of Indonesia, Nasser of Egypt, Ben Bella of Algeria, Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam, Castro of Cuba.

Not one of these leaders confines himself to advancing the legitimate aspirations of his own people. All are engaged in one kind or another of mischief-making for which there is no warrant in international law and morality.

Even if they never uttered a word of communism's patent fakery, these small caliber imperialists would, in their callous misuse of honest human concern for betterment, stand convicted of unrivaled hypocrisy and cynicism.

To those in Asia, Africa, Latin America who wish to resist this ugly neo-imperialism, the United States is to day almost the only firm respondent.

It has thrown its men and its resources into the manifold tasks of resistance around the globe with a rough and ready nobility that is without precedent in human history.

Twenty years ago this country ended World War II as a triumphant world power almost completely uninitiated in the complexities of world leadership. Events thrust it to the free world's pinnacle.

Green at the game, being, as much a collection of imperfect human beings as any other nation, America has sometimes lost its footing at the peak of power. It has overreached a military response, or been obsessed with communism as the "only enemy," or failed to understand the people it sought to help.

Even in a stable period of history, a nation newly come to leadership would surely commit many mistakes.

But America's rise to stewardship is part of an incredible triple juncture in history. The other two forces meeting it are the revolution of the underprivileged and subject

Phil Newsom Says

British-Franco Meet

When the European Common Market came into being on Jan. 1, 1959, the goal of its six founding nations was to weld 100 million people into a powerful economic and political bloc which later would be extended to the whole of Western Europe and 200 million people.

The economic boom which spread through the six nations—West German, France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg — now is established as one of the brightest spots in post World War II history.

Other goals proved more difficult. Political unity, if it ever is to come, still is years away.

On Jan. 14, 1963, President Charles de Gaulle of France vetoed British entry into the common market and so far as the British were concerned the issue seemed dead, at least for as long as de Gaulle remained alive or in power.

It seemed doubly so after the victory last October. The Laborites had led the opposition at home to British participation in the common market without specific guarantees to British commonwealth nations.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson had said Britain could build a new economy within the frame work of the commonwealth.

It was something of a surprise then that within Britain talk of the common market suddenly revived.

At the common market headquarters in Brussels, the new British Foreign Minister Michael Stewart delivered a strong defense of Britain's right to a place in Europe, coupled with a warning against a "closed shop" among the six which eventually would accentuate Europe's economic and political differences.

A speech by conservative leader Sir Alec Douglas-Home suggested that the Conservatives may make a chief election issue out of another bid for common market entry.

The British are looking hopefully toward the scheduled de Gaulle-Wilson meeting April 1-3.

De Gaulle is said to be anxious to remove the chill from French-British relations and to regard increased technical and financial co-operation as a first step.

Putting pressure on de Gaulle is the fact that the French economic surge is losing some of its power and unemployment is rising.

Between you'n me

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

(While Murray Olderman is on vacation his column is being written by members of the staff)

NEW YORK — (NEA) — In 1951, the reaction to the first major basketball scandal was utter horror.

Then came 1951 and it was disbelief.

And now, just four years later, it has happened again, but the reaction this time (not surprising either) is one of almost complete indifference.

This time, the basketball people are closing their eyes and reciting in unison, "It's just an isolated case."

Well, at least that's different from the "rotten apple" routine so popular the last two years around.

The Seattle University basketball scandal may be isolated, and it may yet evolve into another major scandal.

But what is so bothersome is that it happened at a time when most people in college basketball have made genuine efforts to keep the undesirable element away from the players.

There are no more summer basketball leagues where contacts were made the last two times; local law enforcement personnel make annual trips to nearby colleges to warn the players of the consequences involved in accepting a bribe, and most coaches take strict precautions to shield their teams when they are traveling.

Out in Chicago, Commissioner Bill Read of the Big 14 goes to such extremes to protect his conference, that he calls a Chicago bookmaker early in the week to check the point spread on league games.

Then he does it again right before the games to be sure there is no sudden fluctuation.

Yet we have another point-shaving incident, and a U.S. commissioner in Chicago releases the accused briber on a $25,000 recognizance bond with the statement, "they're trying to put this crime in the category of bank robbery."

Actually, a bank robbery doesn't sound as bad as college kids—with a definite future—calling out their schools, their families and themselves for $130 to some gamblers can make a large score on a game like Seattle-Idaho.

The arrests of the two players, Charlie Williams and Peller Phillips, in the Seattle incident were the first under a federal law signed last June which pertains to sports gambling offenses.

Specifically, it prohibits travel in interstate commerce to influence a sporting contest by bribery.

It was a direct outgrowth of the last scandal and was supposed to be a deterrent to the gambling element.

Dogs Donate All-Time High To Charities

Charity Night and Scholarship Night totals reached an all-time season high of $12,226.52 in contributions from the Sanford Orlando Kennel Club this year, it was announced by track general manager, Jack Ledoux.

This year's donations raised the total of contributions to a figure well past the $100,000 mark in the 10-year period in which the track has been operated by Ledoux and chairman of the board Jerry Collins.

Both Charity Night and Scholarship Night programs established new records individually as $7,374.12 went out to Central Florida welfare organizations from the Jan. 28 charity event.

Checks totaling $4,427.40 was sent out to the University of Florida, Florida State and Florida A & M as a result of the Scholarship Night proceeds.

The lion's share of the donations went to Seminole County with the Seminole County United Fund receiving $334.12.

Aside from the United Fund, other Seminole County welfare and service organizations included in the contributions included: Crippled Children's Society, DAV Chapter 30 Welfare Fund, American Legion Post 53 Welfare Fund, Seminole County Hospital Auxiliary, Seminole County Cancer Fund, Seminole County Tuberculosis and Health Association, Sanford Elk's Crippled Children's Fund, Longwood Medical Center, Seminole County Heart Fund, Seminole County March of Dimes, Altamonte Legion Post 188 Welfare Fund, Casselberry Legion Memorial Post 258 Welfare Fund, VFW Post 8207 Welfare Fund, Sanford 40 & 8 Society Welfare Fund, Seventh Day Adventist Medical Welfare Service, and Seminole Child Welfare Service.

Collins, who was selected "Man of the Year" in greyhound racing three years ago primarily because of his charity work, said he was most gratified over the success of the charity program this year.

"We are having a good season," observed Collins, "and we are happy we are able to do more than ever for those in need in this area."

College basketball is in trouble again, and you can argue why for hours.

But in the end it comes to this: As long as there is major college basketball, there will be point spreads. And as long as there are bookmakers to take the money, there will be betting on college basketball.

So with no curb on betting, there always will be some guy who'll approach a college player and offer him a few hundred dollars. A scandal will erupt, then everybody will get very sanctimonious for a while before forgetting what happened.

Ford Captures Continental At Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — The blue cars flashed through the darkness, their lights piercing the darkness like spears, and in their thunder there was the death knell of a champion.

The blue cars made history here Sunday night, and marked, perhaps, the end of an era in road racing.

Never since prewar days has an American car driven by an American won a major international road race. But the mighty onslaught of Ford upon the European-dominated sport bore its greatest fruit in the fourth running of the 2,000-kilo-meter Daytona Continental.

The squat blue Ford prototype of transplanted Englishman Ken Miles and Lloyd Ruby swept across the finish line after 12 hours and 40 minutes Sunday night, the victor at 99.944 miles an hour, a second by better than one mph for this 3.81-mile road course.

Ford products — prototypes and Shelby-American Cobra touring cars—filled the first five places. It was the most crushing defeat the red cars of Ferrari have suffered in a year, but was to some degree a result of only a token effort by the Italian factory.

For a decade, with a few exceptions, the awesomely strong and fast cars of Ferrari have dominated the world of endurance motor racing. Last year, when this race was open only to grand touring cars, they finished 1-3-3.

But the first stroke of doom sounded a month later at Sebring, when Shelby's Cobra took the grand touring crown.

They went on to win the International Manufacturer's championship for grand touring cars, taking it away from what many had considered its permanent home in Italy.

Finishing record was the Shelby-American Cobra coupe of Frenchman Jo Schlesser and Hal Keck of Hallettstown, Pa., winning the grand touring crown.

'Let's Go, Mets'
NEW YORK (UPI) — If Yankee general manager Ralph Houk is reported driving around with a "Let's Go, Mets" license plate, it's only a prize he received from a drawing at the sports vacation and travel show at the New York Coliseum.

Bradley Tallies Another Honor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Bradley, of Princeton-Olympic gold medalist, two-time All America, Rhodes Scholar and all-time Ivy League scoring champion — added another honor to his list today when he was named the 1965 college basketball player of the year by United Press International.

The 21-year-old Bradley from Crystal City, Mo., was a landslide choice for the award in balloting by 840 sports writers, editors and sports broadcasters from every part of the country.

Greyhounds Advance To Regional
By Jim Bacchus
Herald Sports Writer
Lyman Greyhounds utilizing the new balanced offense succeeded in overcoming both the Kissimmee Kowboys and the Cocoa Beach Minutemen this weekend.

This enables them to advance to the regional tournament this week in New Smyrna Beach.

On Friday night the Greyhounds turned in one of their best performances of the season in defeating the Kowboys 62-40. Richard Moore's 16 points, Eddie Long's 14 points and 12 points by Joe Asher were influential in the Lyman victory.

The fine play of Mike Sterling and Steve Simpkin was outstanding. Lyman led all the way, something unusual for them, clinched the victory with a 40 point output in the second half. Moore and Simpkin combined for 11 points in the last two minutes of play to put the game out of reach.

Alan Starling was the high scorer for Kissimmee totaling 17 points.

On Saturday night Coach Dick Copeland's Lyman team faced the Cocoa Beach Minutemen, 45-49 visitors over Bishop Moore Friday and once again used a banished attack in setting the taller visitors, 34-49.

Dave Mattis was the main factor in the Lyman victory turning in his finest performance of the year. Not only did he garner 18 points but he held high scoring Vern Thornton of Cocoa Beach to only eight points.

Thorsten had scored 25 points against Bishop Moore. Mattis also controlled the backboard throughout the game. Gene Winkleman too was outstanding in the victory for the Greyhounds, scoring four points with 30 seconds to put Lyman in the lead to stay late in the last quarter.

Mike Sterling scored 15 points in the contest including 10 markers in the first period. High man for Cocoa Beach was Joe Echarte with 20 points.

Group 8 Champions

By Marshall Lingo
Herald Sports Writer
The Oviedo Lions took a 94-76 decision from Father Lopez of Daytona Beach Friday and crushed the Bulldogs of Bunnell 91-59 Saturday to become the class B, group 8 basketball champions and earn the right to compete in the regionals at Lake Butler next weekend.

In Friday night's affair the Lions took an early lead and at the end of the first quarter Oviedo had a 23-14 advantage.

Lopez came back in the second, outscoring the Lions 19-16 to give Oviedo a close 38-33 halftime lead.

Oviedo's press began to take effect in the third and the Lions chalked up 32 markers giving Oviedo a substantial 70-48 margin over the visitors.

Oviedo outscored Lopez in the last stanza 28-24 to give the Lions the win and the right to compete in the finals of the group 8 tournament.

CAPT. AND MRS. RICHARD FOWLER and family are among the newest members of the Mutual Concert Association and have returned to Sanford, where Capt. Fowler will assume the duties of Capt. James Mayo as commanding officer of SNAS Reconnaissance Attack Wing One.

Recently visited with lovely JEAN FOWLER at her Mayfair home to welcome her back to Sanford. This is the third tour of duty the Fowlers have had at the station, and Jean's comments when she heard of the transfer were, "It's just like going home."

She stated she was thrilled to death to be back where they have so many friends and is delighted with the forthcoming "Pops Concert."

"It's just wonderful to see the Sanford people show so much enthusiasm over the concert and the talk around town is stimulating. I'm so glad that we have the opportunity of being here and sharing in this performance," Jean added.

The entire Fowler family shares Jean's enthusiasm for culture and the arts. The piano is kept open at all times for the family's amusement. Although daughter, CAROLYN, is an avid "BEATLES" fan, she also plays the piano and will exhibit some of her art work at the concert.

TALENTED MARGE ECH-ELBERGER was a guest at the Fowler home on the day of my visit, with Marge revealing that she and husband, HARRY, had been concert members for "a hundred years." Actually they signed up in 1957 when the association was organized.

Marge is known all over for her superior singing voice and in a joking manner I related that the only reason Henry Mazer didn't sign her up with his solo artists was that he just didn't know about her. "I could do her own swinging version of 'Hello Dolly' as well as any of the Broadway stars."

EXCITEMENT MOUNTS daily as Sanfordites make final preparations for the Florida Symphony Orchestra with the art exhibit, the Board members of Gamma Omega Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha are going glamorous with the refreshments following the concert and the added touch of flowers will be interpreted by BOO GANAS.

The ingenious MRS. GANAS graciously volunteered to contribute a floral arrangement to greet the patrons in the entrance foyer. Boo is known throughout the state for her magnificent arrangements so this added touch of floral art will enhance the elegance of the enchanting evening of music promises.

JUNIOR ART EXHIBITORS at the concert with CAROLYN FOWLER are JUDY HALES and LINDA KILPATRICK, a winner in the recent Art Show at the Civic Center.

AMONG THE HEADLINERS will be exhibits by BETH GREGORY, GEORGIA HALL, LIZ SHIMHOISER, HELEN DEWITT, CHARLOTTE DONAHUE, BETH HODGINS, and BOO GANAS.

NAVY WIVES exhibiting their works of art will be JUNE BRODIE, BEZ RYAN, SUE KENNEDY, FRAN HOELLEH, DONICA BROWN, SUE JAMISON, JANE DAVISON, TERHY SHATTUCK and DARNELL KILCLINE.

JUDGE C. VERNON MIZE, president of the Mutual Concert Association is overwhelmed with the response of the public regarding the appearance of the Florida Symphony Orchestra. Seems it is the talk of the town.

MEMO TO MILADY—Know you don't have "a thing to wear." Have discussed this facet with many, and it's about six of one and a half dozen of the other. Some are taking advantage of the hat shows hanging in their closets with others planning on "something dressy and feminine."

Speaking of JUDGE MIZE, he was recently elected president of the Seminole Alumni Association of the University of Florida at an elaborate banquet Thursday night at the Capri when the club, which was organized last year, was granted a charter at this meeting.

All of the ladies were lovely as they dined with the man of their choice.

Had the pleasure of meeting DR. J. WAYNE RIETZ, president of the University of Florida, who was delightfully refreshing as well as a dynamo with the "brain power."

FURTHER SPEAKING OF MEN (woman's favorite subject), I gave JOHN KRIDER my permission to lash me with a wet noodle in the middle of West First Street for "goofin' off" when the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce was guest of HIBBARD CASSELBERRY at the South Seminole C of C coffee recently at Bryan's Restaurant in Casselberry.

On top of my camera "falling apart," so did I, with the presence of about 40 men and a half-dozen women. Results were a double exposure and not nary a cocktail. Consequently, I apologize to the

'Psychological Survival' Heart Of Battle Of Sexes

NEW YORK (UPI)—The battle of the sexes is a battle for "psychological survival," no matter what surface factor such as money or sex triggered the war.

The marital quarrel is only a continued, and usually concentrated, fight that those involved in have waged all their lives, said Harry Milt, a consultant in human relations and writer on social problems.

Milt sees nothing funny about quarrels — "it appears strange," he said, "that in the face of this great private misery the public generally accepts quarreling with a casual, even a light-hearted attitude."

The psychologist expressed some of his views in "what can you do about quarreling?" a publication from the Public Affairs Committee, a non-profit educational organization in New York. He talked on them further in an interview.

Milt conceded that "some marriages are a mistake from the beginning and life becomes an endurance contest."

But he said in approaching solutions for continued quarreling, "we'll have to assume that the couple loves and wants to stay together."

He suggested first examine the causes, then go to the treatment.

The battle for psychological survival is at the heart of every marital quarrel, no matter what else the quarrel is about—money, sex, children, clothing, personal habits, Milt said.

Dear Abby:

DEAR ABBY: Last Sunday my husband and I were out for the day, and when we returned we found a large sack of beautiful walnuts in our garage. A note was on the sack, which read:

"Dear Ellie, Sorry to have missed

you. Hope to catch you next time we come through. Hope you enjoy the walnuts.

Geraldine and Butch."

Well, my name is Eleanor and I am also called "Ellie." But neither my husband nor I know any Geraldine and Butch. We wonder who these people are. Could they have left the nuts at the wrong house? They are delicious and I am using them in cakes, cookies, brownies, etc. But I can't help but feel guilty if they weren't meant for us. If you print this, maybe the mystery can be solved. Thank you.

"Ellie" (Mrs. Russell Smith)
Lompoc, California

DEAR ELLIE: Go easy on the walnuts. I have a feeling you aren't the only "Ellie" on the block. P.S. Will Geraldine and Butch please contact the Russell Smiths in Lompoc and crack this nutty case?

DEAR ABBY: Would it be wrong to see an old friend of mine once in a while? We lost contact with each other 14 years ago. He was 24 and I was 23, and we liked each other a lot, but circumstances interfered and we both married other men. We accidentally ran into each other and he started calling me up. I think we still feel something for each other, but neither of us wants to hurt our families. Lately he has been parked outside of where I work, waiting to take me home. How can I break this off before it goes any further? Or would it be wrong to see each other once in a while? I want to see him so much I am ashamed of myself.

"ASHAMED"
DEAR ASHAMED: If

By Abigail Van Buren

you were sufficiently "ashamed of yourself," you wouldn't see the man or feel impelled to write me for advice. You have answered your own question. Now act on your own answer.

DEAR ABBY: Please answer this in your CONFIDENTIALS TO: I promised God at my last confession that I would write this; is sleeping naked a mortal sin?

We The Women:

The day she reaches 40—the beginning of the middle years—a woman ought to consider seriously becoming her husband's "second" wife. By that age her job as mother is less demanding than in earlier years. Homemaking should be easier for her; she should have some leisure time on her hands. She ought to use some of that leisure to take a look at her marriage.

Beauty after Forty

EDYTH THORNTON McLEOD

"My hair is always dry but in the month of March it just flies. What can I do? I shampoo my own hair at home, and use a good shampoo.—Mrs. B."

Yes, March is the difficult month for hair. I suggest you massage the scalp with cosmetic oil, and brush up and out. After every shampoo, use a bit of cosmetic oil on the finger tips and lightly stroke your hair before arranging it. This gives sheen and smoothness. Also, if you are further interested in hair, send me a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and enclose TWENTY-FIVE cents in coin for a copy of my booklet, "Your Hairline." I will enclose some gift leaflets.

"My skin is very good as I have no wrinkles yet—but it is so flushed and is very unattractive because of that. What should or can be done? I am 48.—Faye"

First, I would have a talk with my doctor, as the flushed skin may be from some cause which he will find. But for local care, I suggest you use a good cleansing cream and pat after cleansing with good quality witch hazel—no soap, no hot water. Apply cosmetic oil generously. Use a pale green face powder under a powder which is skin tone. The green powder can be bought where they have theatrical makeup. The pale green powder will tone down the flushed look.

"Would a silver brocade dress be suitable for a cruise which will start on the last day of March? I have not yet purchased the dress. — Mrs. Guy."

I would not invest in a silver brocade now; the season

By Jane Casselberry
Rock hounds or mineral collectors will be interested in an exhibit of rough and finished stones at the Arts, Crafts and Hobbies Show to be sponsored by the Woman's Club of Casselberry from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, at the Clubhouse on Overbrook Dr.

There also will be a demonstration of how to cut the stones by the exhibitor who is the owner of Cowee Ruby Mines near Franklin, N.C. Another exhibitor, who has lectured in area schools, will display an interesting collection of minerals that can be found in Florida.

One well known Casselberry citizen will display some of the fine replicas of antique chairs and other pieces which he has made.

Hand tooled aluminum trays, paintings, ceramics and art objects from other countries will be shown.

Artists and hobbyists are invited to participate without charge but are asked to have their exhibit in place by 9 a.m. on the day of the show.

The public is invited to view all the interesting displays, and demonstrations, and meet residents of the area who will be exhibiting.

Allied Bombers Plaster Two Communist Bases

Air Attacks Biggest Yet

SAIGON (UPI)—More than 160 American and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers and B57 jets hit two targets in North Viet Nam today in the biggest strike yet against the north, Moscow Radio immediately denounced what it calls a barbarous provocation.

An official American spokesman said damage at a North Vietnamese naval base and at a supply depot near the border of Laos was "between 70 and 80 per cent."

A U. S. Air Force spokesman, who disclosed today's twin attacks were larger than three previous attacks during February, said at least three of the raiding planes were downed by anti-aircraft fire from Communist positions.

Moscow claimed seven of the planes were shot down and said intense anti-aircraft fire prevented more devastating attacks against military targets in the north.

MARINES READY
The raids were announced as a battalion-sized force of U. S. Marines prepared to land in South Viet Nam to bolster American forces there.

It was understood the Marines would take over guard duties at vital U. S. installations such as the airbases where today's strikes were launched.

Informed sources estimated the Marine force at between 800 to 1,000.

SAIGON Radio reported today a surprise raid and this was followed by a joint American and Vietnamese statement.

A later U. S. Air Force statement said more than 100 planes were involved.

A joint U. S.-Vietnamese statement said American B57s and F100 fighter bombers hit a supply depot at Nam Bang, about 10 miles north of the boundary between North and South Viet Nam, and about 15 miles from the Laotian border. It was the first time the twin jet B57s have hit North Viet Nam.

AIR FORCE SHOW
A force of South Vietnamese fighter bombers attacked the naval base at Quang Khe on the coast of South China Sea 60 miles north of the border. U. S. jets supported that mission, concentrating on the Communist anti-aircraft batteries.

All indications were that today's bombing attacks were strictly an Air Force show.

It would be the first time that planes from carriers of the U. S. 7th Fleet had not participated in the strikes against North Viet Nam although they may have flown reconnaissance missions.

A statement by the U. S. Embassy and the Saigon government hinted at further air raids "to make clear to Hanoi that North Viet Nam will be held fully accountable for continuing aggression against South Viet Nam."

The statement followed publication of a U. S. white paper last week documenting Communist aggression against South Viet Nam and hinting at further retaliatory acts.

LBJ's Russia Trip Closer

Soviets Send Message Of Welcome

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson's proposed trip to the Soviet Union moved a step closer today with word that the Russians sent him a message a month ago saying they would welcome such a visit.

But there was still no indication whether the proposed visit would be a two-way affair—as Johnson first suggested—with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev coming to the United States.

Kosygin broke the news of the message to Johnson Monday in Leipzig, East Germany.

He told reporters he had written to the President two months ago that it would be "very pleasant" to receive him in Moscow. Kosygin said he was still waiting for a reply.

But White House Press Secretary George E. Reedy said later that Johnson had replied Reedy said Kosygin apparently had been referring to an "oral message"—not a letter—received a month ago in Washington.

He said it was with this message in mind that Johnson said in a speech before the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith Feb. 3, "I have reason to believe that the Soviet leadership would welcome my visit to their country—as I would be very glad to do."

Presumably, the U. S. and Soviet governments are engaged in delicate diplomatic negotiations to work out the details of any Johnson visit.

"The two governments stand in the same position," Reedy said.

"Each has expressed the fact that a visit would be welcome. There have been contacts through diplomatic channels."

At the meeting of the Sanford Merchants division, the same motion was made that the merchants follow suit, and this motion also was carried unanimously, so looks like all the civic organizations are getting in behind the plan to give it the big push.

While we're on the subject, let's don't call it "the marina" since this only refers to one phase of the project, which should be correctly titled the "lakefront development project." This takes in the marina, restaurant, night club, mall, yacht club... the whole works.

Nothing else that Sanford has ever done, or contemplated doing, has brought interested news media from around the state into our fair city, like the lakefront development project. The inquiry we get regularly from out-of-town media nearly every day is, "What's new on the marina?"

Moon Rocket Explodes On Blast-Off

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — An Atlas-Centaur moon rocket exploded in a bright orange flame on blast-off today, throwing a new kink into America's plan to put a robot surveyor spacecraft on lunar surface this fall.

The silvery, 112-foot rocket rose a few feet from its launch pad at 8:25 a.m., suffered an apparent engine failure, and crashed back to earth engulfed in flames.

Thousands of pounds of volatile kerosene, liquid oxygen, and hydrogen fed a tremendous orange-red fire on the launch complex for about 10 minutes after the explosion. Great clouds of black smoke billowed into the sky.

A space agency spokesman reported minutes after the thundering crash that all personnel in the nearby blockhouse were safe.

The 150-ton rocket was designed to shoot its 1,000-pound surveyor mock-up toward an imaginary lunar point 248,000 miles away in space that was representing the moon for flight test purposes.

It was the first of two moon shot rehearsals planned before another Atlas-Centaur was scheduled to shoot the first of seven surveyor probes to the moon this fall.

The United States was counting on Project Surveyor to clear up mysteries of the moon's surface and to find safe landing areas for Project Apollo astronauts that are scheduled to follow by 1970.

It was the fifth test flight for the high-energy Centaur. The first of the troubled plagued Atlas-Centaur rockets blew up 55 seconds after launch on May 8, 1962. Its next test, on Nov. 27, 1963, was a full success and the rocket reached orbit for the first time.

A third Atlas-Centaur failed to achieve orbit last June but most of its test objectives were met. Its last test, in December, was a success.

St. Cloud, Minn., slugged with 11 inches of snow Monday, was buried under mountainous snow drifts.

Rivers were on the rise throughout Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska because of the heavy snow and rain. Scores of families were removed from their homes.

The stormy weather did not spare the South.

Severe storms alarmed across the Texas-Louisiana border Monday, dumping 3 inches of hail at Perkins, La., and swamping Kirbyville, Tex., with 3.39 inches of rain in one hour.

Shotgun Halts Tryst

GÖWENSVILLE, S.C. (UPI) —Officers searched the hills of upper Greenville and Spartanburg counties today for two ex-convicts suspected of killing a married high school band director they found parked with a pretty blonde teacher.

A steady rain frustrated efforts to find the men with bloodhounds. Authorities declined to name the men they were seeking, but one was understood to be from Greenville County and the other from Spartanburg.

The victim, B. I. Lands, 49, was killed by a single shotgun blast in the stomach late Monday afternoon. The teacher, slender Patricia L. Parham, 27, was not hurt.

Miss Parham gave descriptions of the men to authorities. After checking sources in the area officers were understood to have concentrated on two men recently released from prison.

Miss Parham said Lands arrived at the rendezvous spot near Gowansville before dusk. She arrived a few minutes later and parked her car behind his.

The two talked in the back seat of Lands car for about 30 minutes, said Greenville County Coroner George McCoy.

Then a shotgun blast peppered the rear window of Lands' car, although it did not injure the couple.

The pretty teacher said the men, their lower faces covered with handkerchiefs, forced them out of the car and made them march into the woods with their hands on top of their heads.

She said the men took Lands' billfold, then asked for her pocketbook. She said it was in her car, some 50 yards back through the woods on the dirt road.

The older man went to the car, she told police. The younger one shut down Lands for no apparent reason, she said, while his companion was searching her car.

The men fled. Miss Parham's screams brought the hidden logger, who had watched the killing from about 350 yards away.
