APPEARANCE OF CAPITAL SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 9.—Floridians who have not seen their state capital building within the last few years soon will find it almost unrecognizable as a result of the improved appearance of both building and grounds.

Under direction of W. Austin Smith, city manager of Tallahassee the grounds have been gone over thoroughly. Beginning last fall, the city, under terms of a contract with the state, every section of the grounds was ploughed, harrowed and replanted in grass seed. The sides facing on Adams and Pensacola streets were terraced, and smoothed down, making a much more presentable appearance.

The grass has now begun to come up and the grounds are taking on a really beautiful appearance.

Cultivation of the grounds followed the laying of concrete walks from the Monroe to the Adams street side, and a concrete driveway around the East entrance.

With completion of this work and alterations which were finished several months ago, the people of Florida may well feel proud of their state house. It compares favorably with any building of its kind in the southern states, according to travelers who visit here.

Not only is the building pleasing in appearance as viewed from the outside, but it is finished on the interior in the most modern way, with white polished marble wainscoting throughout the spacious corridors, and white marble stairways leading from the main floor to the third floor where the legislative halls are located, and to the ground floor where many of the offices and departments are located.

All state departments are well provided for in the allotment of office space. The state road department is the only unit of the capital city government organization, aside from the judicial branch, that is not housed on the capital grounds. The road builders are located several blocks up-town in a building facing on Park Avenue, where they have all of the third floor and part of the second for their use.

All members of the cabinet were handsomely provided for in the plans of the building, while the executive offices were given special consideration, with the governor and his staff located in a suite of rooms equal to the best that may be found.

The governor's suite occupies the west side of the south wing on the main floor. Across the corridor are the offices of the secretary of state, Attorney-General Buford and his staff are situated in the south side of the western wing, while the superintendent of public instruction occupies the north tier of offices in this wing.

In the north wing are located the treasurer on the west side, with a part of the automobile section of the comptroller's office in the eastern tier. The comptroller and commissioner of agriculture occupy the north and south sides, respectively, of the eastern wing.

On the third floor of the building are found the senate and house of representatives chambers in the east and west wings, respectively, while in the west wing is found the attorney for the internal improvement, fund and Everglades drainage board, on the east, and more automobile license tags workers in the west side rooms.

In the southern wing of this floor the state veterinarian, hotel commissioner, and federal tick eradication workers are located on the east, and shell fish commissioner, and oil division of the agricultural department on the west.

On the ground floor are found several other important departments: In the west wing are located the state geologist and a 30 by 40 room containing exhibits of things found in the state and prepared by the geological forces, and the Everglades drainage board offices, Everglades tax office, and secretary of the internal improvement fund.

In the southern wing are the immigration and prison departments of the agricultural commissioner's varied forces, in addition to a large space devoted to storage purposes.

The east wing of the ground floor houses the tax equalizer and land offices, and the shipping department of the comptroller's office, where the automobile license tags are mailed out, while the northern wing is taken as storage rooms for state records and automobile license supplies. A section of the comptroller's tax department also is located in this wing.

MANY PRISONERS ESCAPE CONVICT CAMPS LAST YEAR

State Authorities Begin Drive To Prevent Numbers Of Escapes.

By The Associated Press. TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 9.—One hundred and thirty-six convicts and prisoners escaped from the Florida authorities during the year 1923, according to state prison records, and 72 captures were effected. The total prison roll ranges around 1,450.

One hundred and nineteen of the escapes were made from road camps, 12 from the State Farm at Ralfood, four from the state hospital at Chattahoochee, and one from the Girls' Industrial School at Ocala.

Of the 72 recaptures, all but 10 were made of prisoners who had escaped from state road camps. Fifteen of the latter were men who had escaped during years prior to 1923. Forty-seven of the 119 who got away during 1923 were recaptured during that year and returned to the various camps.

Eight prisoners were recaptured and returned to the State Farm during the year, two of whom were escapes of previous years. Six of the 12 who got away during 1923 were again taken into custody and also returned to the farm. Two of the Chattahoochee escapes were recaptured and returned.

The state authorities recently started a drive against the numerous escapes. Letters went out to the captains of road camps calling on them for greater vigilance in handling the convicts under their charge. The effects of this move have been noticeable in the last few days.

Only a few days ago two men who attempted to escape from State Road Camp No. 22, near Cottondale, were halted with bullets. One of them was Rafael Pescow, of Antwerp, Belgium, and the other, W. L. Baxey, of Springfield, Ill. Both men received flesh wounds, but physicians who attended them after the shooting reported that they were in no danger. The men ran from the presence of the guards and were fired upon only after they had failed to obey the command to halt several times, according to the report of H. L. Green, who recently was placed in charge of camp 22. Pescow was sent up from Clay County for three years for breaking and entering, and Baxey was given the same sentence in Palm Beach County on a similar charge.

Camp 22 has been the scene of numerous escapes during the last several months. Dr. E. A. Cortwell, of Springfield, Ill., and three other notorious white prisoners left in a body several weeks ago, when the camp was under different management.

ORGANIZATIONS DO BIG BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Farmer organizations are doing a big business, according to information compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture, which shows that more than $2,000,000,000 worth of business was done by farmer business organizations in 1923. The estimates are based on reports from 6,639 organizations which did a total business of $1,200,000,000. Reports have been received from 8,313 associations and additional reports are yet to come in from approximately 100 organizations. Two thousand six hundred dairy products organizations did a business of $490,000,000; 1,182 live stock shipping associations did a business of $220,000,000; 1,182 fruit and vegetable associations did a business of $280,000,000; 787 cotton co-operatives did a business of $132,000,000.

The Coral Gables Inn, Coral Gables, Miami, Florida

Another Mighty Milestone on the Path of Progress

LAUNCHING of the new Coral Gables Inn last week marks another stride forward in the stupendous development program which is now under way in Miami's Master Suburb.

The Inn was designed by Architect Martin L. Hampton of Miami, and is copied after the Summer Palace of the Moors adjoining the Alhambra in Spain. It stands out today as one of the most beautiful of hostleries in the Miami district if not in the entire state of Florida.

While Golf Course and Country Club, Venetian Pool, the Alcazar Tea House, Tennis Courts, and Playgrounds add greatly to the joy of living in Coral Gables, the opening of the Inn is of dominating importance because of its pleasurable possibilities. Nightly supper-dances will be a feature of the winter season, and a dance orchestra from Boston will provide music. Here on the terrazzo dance floor of the patio, around a Spanish fountain, and surrounded with tropical flowers and plants, one can dance to their heart's delight while the romance of Old Spain lurks in the shadows caused by the Moorish hanging lanterns.

And this evening of enjoyment at Coral Gables is yours when you come to inspect this wonderful development. All visitors to Coral Gables on the de luxe Pullman busses which run from your city and spend the night before returning home, will be taken to the Coral Gables Inn so they can better appreciate the ideal environment which awaits the home owner.

Go to the local office today and make your reservations for seats on this big free sightseeing tour. Space is limited, so do not delay or you may be disappointed.

GOVERNMENT INSPECTION OF ALL VEGETABLE PRODUCTS WOULD MEAN MUCH TO SHIPPERS, HE DECLARES

By P. D. RUPERT
(Acting Supervising Inspector)

The reputation of a community shipping perishable produce depends on the quality and standard of the produce shipped. A neat, attractive pack of quality goods means a satisfied buyer and consumer at the other end. Such a reputation is worth working and striving for. Distribution does no doubt, help in getting rid of a product, but unless that product is well standardized does not help in building up a reputation and "The Come Again" feeling that means so much to the grower of the product. Standardization is the key-note of the success or failure of a marketing system which is building up its trade and marketing channels, and anything that tends to bring about standardization in produce is well worth all the effort that can be put forth to put it across.

Let us look for a moment on some of the other sections of the country that have progressed farthest in the matter of standardization and see what has and is being accomplished. California, Oregon and Washington are now shipping produce clear across the country and competing favorably with produce grown right, as one might say, at the door of the market. How have they accomplished this? It has been done by accomplishing two things: first, by developing a marketing system which held control of a large proportion of the tonnage of individual products; second, by building up a code of law establishing definite grades and regulatory provisions which held control of the produce which is not of sufficient quality to meet their standards of grade. Enforcement of this law and provisions is being accomplished by the use of shipping point inspection under Federal supervision. This has given a standardization over the entire territory both as to quality of the produce shipped and as to the pack and package used. With this standardization these producing centers have been able to sell their produce on a F. O. B. basis with government certificates at shipping point to back up their sale.

In not only these sections, but in all sections where shipping point inspection has been developed during the past year, it has brought about better methods of production, packing and marketing. By bringing about these

POSSIBILITIES OF SEMINOLE COUNTY

By R. W. FEARMAN In The Florida Trucker

Seminole county is one of the smallest counties in area and population in the state, having an area of but 360 square miles or 230,400 acres within the confines of its borders. Of this acreage, 5,000 acres are cultivated; 3,000 devoted to the production of winter vegetables and the balance to citrus fruits.

Despite the small percentage of land under cultivation, it leads the state in the production of winter grown vegetables, having shipped over 6,290 carloads during the season 1922-23. Only two counties in the state shipped a greater number of cars during this period, which, however, consisted of citrus fruits. Seminole county, and Sanford in particular, is considered to be the most intensively developed agricultural section of the state. It has long since established its reputation as a celery center, and of the total carload shipments from this section last season, over 4,812 were celery. It produces 70 per cent of all the celery grown in Florida and approximately 20 per cent of the entire production of the United States. This enormous volume of agricultural production is made possible by the application of the sub-irrigation, sub-association and sub-drainage. Very few sections of the United States have the fundamental essentials for the successful operation of this system, which are briefly as follows:

1. An abundance of water from artesian wells.
2. A sub-soil or hard-pan found at a depth of three to five feet.
3. A top soil of coarse sand that will absorb and distribute evenly the water used in creating the artificial water table.
4. A top soil of sandy loam neither too porous nor too compact, which will convey the water freely by capillary attraction.
5. Land that admits perfect drainage, having a fall of about one inch to 100 feet.
6. Absolutely level land without depressions or raised places.

This system, according to the experts from the Department of Agriculture at Washington, is pronounced to be the best method which has ever been devised in applying moisture to plant growth. Practically every acre under cultivation in the vegetable producing sections of the county is tiled. Not less than two and often four crops a year are grown per acre. A favorable climate, a soil that responds marvelously to the application of water and fertilizer have made the names of Sanford and Seminole county the synonyme for the richest agricultural section of Florida.

With the production increasing each year, the problem of the growers of this section at the present time is one of distribution. It has been truthfully stated that the solution of this problem will eliminate the bug-bear of over-production. In other words, it is not so much the question of over-production as it is under-distribution, which is now being given the careful thought of the large independent, co-operative and distributing concerns of this section.

Although the season of 1922-23 was a record breaker from the standpoint of production, the section generally lost money. This was due to a combination of unfavorable circumstances, favor which the growers had little or no control. They were new varieties of seed, introduced here for the first time, which required a different method of cultivation than that of other varieties, poor climatic conditions, warm weather, an unusually dry season, and without doubt the most detrimental of all was the visitation of insect pests and plant diseases, a number of which had never before been experienced. The insect pests in the form of worms appeared early during the shipping season and created havoc from the start. It is believed that they were brought here by severe tropical storms, experienced during the early part of the season.

Through the efforts of the Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the County Commission, a committee was secured from the Federal and State Departments of Agriculture and experts are now engaged in determining the methods to eliminate these pests in the future.

Although this section has specialized in the production of celery and other winter-grown vegetables, there are many acres in Seminole county which will produce crops of equally as great a commercial value as the former. Strawberries are now profitably grown here, and the net far distant future will see larger acreages being planted each year in this crop. The county is also known for its unusually fertile citrus land, which before the memorable freeze of '35 gave this section the reputation of being the largest citrus section in the state. These lands are still capable of producing the same quality and quantity of citrus fruits and can be purchased for less than in other counties where citrus is a standard crop.

With the 92 miles of hard surfaced roads, spur tracks branching off from the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad giving service to the growers unexcelled in any agricultural community, Seminole county offers inducements in a variety of lines to the agriculturists from other sections, prospecting for a desirable location in Florida.

Joe Kelley, is instrumental in planning a big golf tournament at Hollywood-by-the-Sea in which only left-handed players will be allowed to participate.

Review of Weather Conditions During Past Week As Given

The need of rain continued throughout the Section, although, local showers occurred over the extreme southeast coast, Miami section, and fairly distributed showers prevailed over extreme northers prevailed over extreme northers to the Suwannee river valley. Most counties were without rain, or the amounts were of little moment. Portions of Leo county were an exception to the droughty conditions, a correspondent from Alva reporting a copious rain on the 3rd.

The outstanding temperature feature of the week was the cold wave which was first felt over the extreme western counties on the 4th, moving rapidly eastward during the following several days and resulting in temperatures of 12 degrees to 14 degrees west, and to the immediate east of the Apalachicola river. The southern portions of the peninsula were not affected, temperatures being mostly in the 40's or above; and the central portions were not subjected to unusually low temperatures, most stations reporting 30 degrees to 35 degrees with one interior point recording 23 degrees.

Mild temperature ruled up to the 6th and 7th, when a freezing temperature prevailed over interior portions of the division. Truck suffered to some extent from the cold weather, but citrus fruits were not damaged. Strawberries show some improvement; shipments increased during the week. The dry, cold weather retarded growth and germination of truck. Ranges are poor.

Four Million Cars, in 1923. Next, the Flying Machine. Mellon Does Not Worry. Fine Gasoline Team Work. Copyright, 1922.

AUTOMOBILES, passenger cars and trucks made in 1923 total four millions. Next year's output will be bigger, and all needed. It is foolish to talk of motor car extravagance. The cars pay their way, in time saving and health, and pay a big profit in pleasure.

IN CHINA they have no motor cars worth mentioning, few roads, and you can hire Chinese for a few cents a day. In many cases cars are bought here, instead of whiskey, or instead of spending money on gambling. Men must have some excitement. The best possible is driving a car.

THIS YEAR, Henry Ford, or some man younger, ought to begin the production of flying machines in quantity. A man with courage, knowledge and money could render no greater services than by making this the leading flying country.

TO MAKE the machines would create the fliers, and the country needs them for army, navy and post office. The navy reserve of fliers numbers only 200 and ought to number 3,000. The flying machines will create the fliers, as the automobiles created the drivers.

SECRETARY Mellon says the best year we have ever known is ahead of us. The people owe much to Mr. Mellon's management of national finances. One of the world's ablest business men, he was on his way to be the richest man in the nation when he dropped his own business to manage public finance.

MR. MELLON inspires confidence, and not only promises prosperity but makes it. He predicts a Coolidge election. That depends most of all on Mr. Mellon himself, more than on Coolidge. The bogey of "a bad Presidential year" does not frighten the Secretary, and it need not frighten any other able man.

STANDARD OIL Company of Indiana, announces two cents increase in gasoline price. By an interesting and puzzling coincidence, the Sinclair and White Eagle Companies announce exactly the same increase in exactly the same territory. It may be accidental, but looks like good team play. What comes down, must go up, it seems. Recently gasoline prices were tumbling everywhere. Now look for a general rise and note how harmoniously it is done.

GERMAINE Berthon, French anarchist girl of twenty, shot and killed Marius Plateau, editor of a royalist newspaper. She meant to kill Leon Daudet, head editor, but took Plateau instead. She admitted the crime, was proud of it. A jury acquitted her after 25 minutes. Now the French Legislature will refuse to give votes to women. It may be accidental, but would surely be elected to the Chamber of Deputies if made eligible.

THAT WILL seem "very French" to some of us. But the young woman's lawyer made a powerful plea, a strange hero, but convincing there. He said, "our jury agreed with him. But refusing votes to women, for fear a young female anarchist assassin might be elected to Parliament seems going a little far."

THE OLD volcano Kilauea, in Hawaii, is active again, fountains of lava spurting up here and there in the crater. The science convention at Cincinnati learns that volcanoes are not what we thought, openings, releasing the pent-up fires at the earth's center. They are local manifestations, having nothing to do with the red-hot core that the earth retains from its youth as a flaming, blazing mass.

IN FACT, OUR central heat may not be due to fire at all, but to chemical combinations, radio activity or other forces. You can buy a hot-water bag that needs no water. Chemicals, with a teaspoonful of water added, create the heat.

THAT SCIENCE convention also showed a primitive "sending of power without wires." A bulb was lighted at a distance, with no wires connecting it. When that problem is solved, and the far-away cataracts of the world send power through the air, to flying machines above and the factories in distant cities, a new age will begin. And it is coming. You see the lightning carrying its power from sky to earth with no wires.

AN ELECTRIC "ultra-audible" microphone makes it possible to hear any record sounds made by insects, hitherto supposed to utter no sound at all. This invention will be to the ear what the microscope is to the eye and will open up a world of new sounds. We may listen to the marching ants, giving their war commands, or the solemn cockroach conversing in the sink. There is a world of color above and below our eyesight—above the violet, below the red.

The fine asphalt roads of Taylor county have proven a blessing to the people during the past, excessive rainy weather, and the wonder is how people managed to get along for so many years without them.

Tomorrow every citizen of Sanford who has the welfare of the city at heart, and places that welfare above his own personal inconvenience and dislike for mixing in politics will go to the polls and declare himself for progress or decline. Tomorrow every voter will have an opportunity to show the stuff he is made of and to take his stand as opposed to the "good-enough-for-my-father-good-enough-for-me" attitude.

There may be some, who, confident in their own minds that the election will carry, place little value on their own single vote. There will be many, in case of rain or extreme cold, who will find the comfort of their homes or offices too appealing to leave. But these are not good citizens.

Many an election, when a small vote is polled fails to carry, which would have been won by large majority if all voters had turned out. Let that not be the case with this one. Remember that a small united minority can always defeat a disorganized majority.

But it is not enough that the election carry. It must carry by such overwhelming odds that financial houses will believe every Sanford citizen ready to put his personal endorsement on each bond. By popular opinion the bonds will be secured. In that way they will bring a high premium. And there is every reason to believe that the election will be carried in just such a way. In the last two editions of The Herald representative citizens, in whom all have confidence, have expressed freely their views on municipal ownership of public utilities. They have declared the passage of the bonds will be the keynote of Sanford's future growth and prosperity. They believe that under existing circumstances municipal ownership will be Sanford's salvation and the only thing that can put Sanford on the road to leadership among Florida cities.

What "existing circumstances" means Sanford people well know. The fire, which destroyed the Episcopal Church Plant and came very near razing the city, was not so long ago that it is necessary to recall the aggravating shortage of water. Everyone remembers the "garden-hose" streams that alone were available when real pressure would have put out the fire.

The high rate now paid for gas and electricity are like wise parts of the "existing circumstances" which are driving people to erect plants of their own. Whether the commissioners decide to sell the bonds or not, if voted, they will have in their hands a weapon in public opinion, that will quickly cause lower rates. There is no denying the excessive rate and the more favorable voting in the election will rectify this evil.

Water, gas and electricity will be the public utilities voted on for municipal ownership. One is quite as essential as another. But they are grouped separately. Bonds for the water works amount to $375,000, for the electric plant $310,000, and for the gas plant $160,000. Each and all are necessary to Sanford's brighter future.

In addition there are $75,000 worth of bonds to be sold for the construction of a new city hall. In the desire to register favorably for the public utilities, the matter of the city hall should not be overlooked. An up-to-date city hall will be the ear-mark of Sanford's progressive era.

Tomorrow is the day. Go to the polls and vote for the sale of the bonds. And above all, don't forget to go.

To Play Golf

At the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association in New York last Saturday, the executive committee reported that over $88,000,000 had been invested in golf courses and club houses during the year of 1923. The committee further stated that the expenditures of club members had amounted to $217,000,000.

Such figures show conclusively the fascinating appeal the game of golf has for Americans and the zeal with which this country has given itself to the furtherance of the famous Scottish pastime. There are at present in these United States three thousand golf clubs, containing a total enrolled membership of two million golfers. And the rate of growth is estimated at thirty per cent each year.

While the rest of the nation has been taking rapid strides in the construction of courses and the promotion of golf, Sanford has not been asleep. Through the foresight and energy of certain leading citizens, a club was organized and an excellent nine-hole course developed.

But there are not enough local people who avail themselves of the opportunities thus presented for an ideal form of diversion. The course is never crowded, as it properly should be, and on an average afternoon only a very few drive off the first tee.

To allow such means for mental relief and physical development to go unavailed of is a big mistake. Health and body culture are as important to a successful existence as daily work and bread. There are indeed few who can afford not to play golf.

Some do much more. On this subject the New York Tribune says: "The construction and upkeep of golf courses has grown to a considerable vocation. Golf architecture is a profession in itself; and the 'Green Section' of the U. S. G. A., working in co-operation with the Department of Agriculture, has so much to do that it is seeking an endowment fund of $1,000,000 for the prosecution of its researches. If any non-golfer doubts the fascination of the game what will he say of the devotee who intends to will his entire fortune to the 'Green Section'?"

ALWAYS WELCOME the "stranger within the gates." This city can have no greater business asset than a genuine display of hospitality. A stranger with us usually means some one who has come to take advantage of our salubrious climate, who has left his home and friends and is therefore lonesome. Few appreciate what a nod or smile means to the visitor and it costs such little effort that all can afford it. Hospitality demands that the visitor be made to feel as much at home as possible, it matters not whether he is a guest at the finest hotel in the city or a patron of the most modern rooming house.

Keep this in mind always that every tourist is a patron of Key West and on every citizen devolves the duty of treating him as a visitor and customer.—Key West Citizen.

My Favorite Stories

By Irvin S. Cobb

Thirty years ago a branch of the Farmers' Alliance was formed in the town where I lived. There were secret features about the organization—hailing signs and degree work and rituals and much general mystery. A husky young agriculturist from a lower corner of the county joined the order.

A few evenings after his initiation, he chanced to be in town. At all of a sudden he remembered that this was lodge night. So he went to Fraternity Hall, climbed two flights of stairs, passed before a certain door and, after the prescribed formula, rapped three times.

A slide opened in the paneling and a wary eye surveyed him.

THE CONVENIENT SEASON. I waited for a time when everything should be just right. The proper time convenient—maybe day or maybe night. But something always happened just to get right in the way. And I waited for the "season" that should come another day. Either it was just a little bit too warm for exercise, or it was much too cold enough you fingers to surprise; I'm quite too comfortable to be now disturbed, I vow. Or I'm feeling all too badly to be aggravated now. I'm sleepy, drowsy, lazy till I'm not inclined to work. Or so restless-full of energy the steady job I'd shirk. The War Against Lynching

New York Tribune

At the beginning of the negro migration "The Columbia (S. C.) State" remarked that when the farmers began to understand that every outburst of mob violence would be followed by the exodus of thousands of negro laborers to the north a tide of public opinion against lynchings would set in. Whether public opinion and self-interest have been aroused, or for whatever reason, the lynchings of 1923 were less than half as many as those of 1922, according to the record kept by Tuskegee Institute.

Last year twenty-eight persons (twenty-six negroes) were lynched, as against fifty-seven in 1922. The cause of this striking reduction may be related to the fact of the negro migration and perhaps also to the attempt at Federal legislation against lynching which failed through a filibuster in the Senate. The threat of Federal interference with mob law may be having a deterrent effect. But the real cure for lynching is an aroused public sentiment, of which there are hopeful indications. In forty-eight instances in 1923 officers of the law prevented lynchings; only six of these in the north. The obligation to protect prisoners by adequate guard and by force of arms, if necessary, is now fully recognized and acted upon in every state. In thirteen cases the custodians failed to safeguard their charges, but it is no longer customary to surrender victims tamely to a lynching bee. It will not be possible entirely to stamp out mob murder as an institution until punishment follows the crime. Of the fifty-two persons brought to trial last year in connection with lynchings, only two were sent to jail. It is still safe to be mixed up in a lynching affair when juries have not the courage or the will to convict and public sentiment supports them.

Editor of Herald: I note in the issue of Monday, Dec. 31, a paper which contained one of our ads, that you have obtained Brisbane's editorial column "Today." For this acquisition I wish to congratulate you. To my mind it is the best editorial work being done in America today. In the north it used to come to my desk every day and was read with delicious joy. Since being in Florida I have not seen it and frankly miss it much. Your readers will be much benefited by "Today."

The dining table was laid with a lace cloth and in the center was the large birthday cake iced in white and topped with eight tiny pink tapers in rose holders.

The afternoon was merrily spent with games of all kinds and at a late hour, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The children were given balloons as favors.

IOWA COLLEGE IS COUNTING BIG ON GATOR GRID GAME

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 10.—Drake University football warriors will travel 6,000 miles in covering the 1924 gridiron schedule, it was revealed here Thursday when Athletic Director K. L. Wilson announced the list of games the Bulldogs will play next season.

To open the season, the Drake eleven will go to Salt Lake City where they meet the University of Utah team in a game, Oct. 4.

They will wind up the season on Thanksgiving Day by making a long trip to Gainesville, Fla., where the Bulldogs will clash with the University of Florida eleven.

The Drake football schedule for 1924, as announced Thursday by Athletic Director Wilson, follows:

Oct. 4—University of Utah at Salt Lake City.

Oct. 11—Coe at Des Moines (tentative).

Oct. 18—Grinnell at Des Moines.

Oct. 25—Oklahoma at Des Moines.

Nov. 1—Open.

Nov. 8—Kansas at Des Moines (Home-coming).

Nov. 15—Kansas Aggies at Manhattan.

Nov. 22—Amees.

Nov. 27—University of Florida at Gainesville.

With five Missouri Valley and two intercollegiate contests scheduled, Coach Solum's gridblers will face the hardest schedule in 1924 that any Drake team has ever filled.

The Bulldogs will face strong opposition in the opening game against the University of Utah, which is a member of the Rocky Mountain conference and annually produces one of the strong football machines in the west. While making the trip to Salt Lake City, it is likely that the Drake gridblers will stop off in Denver, Colorado Springs and other Rocky Mountain resorts.

The University of Florida eleven has played Harvard class games in recent years. Their 1924 schedule, in addition to the game with Drake, includes battles with the Army and Georgia Tech.

In making the trip to Gainesville, the Drake team will probably leave Des Moines the Sunday before Thanksgiving, stopping off in St. Louis Monday for a practice session. From there they will take the Dixie Flyer to Chattanooga, where they will again stop for practice and visit Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge and other historic points. They will go to Jacksonville, Fla., for practice on Wednesday, and will travel the "Florida Special" to Gainesville the next day. Coming back, they probably will stop off in Cincinnati and Chicago.

In covering the record-breaking distance of 6,000 miles during the coming season, the Bulldogs will touch 14 states—Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and Utah.

Prospects for another strong football team at Drake in 1924 are bright. Coach Solum loses only two veterans from his 1923 machine—Captain Bill Fowler and Tackle Al Krueger—and he has five new material to fill these gaps. For the past two seasons, the Bulldogs have finished third in the Missouri Valley football race.

Hutchinson Breaks Course Record at Miami Golf Club

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 10.—Jack Hutchinson, former British open champion, broke the country club course records here Saturday with a 66, but the mark, six under par, will not stand since two of the greens are temporary.

Temporary greens are harder to putt on than regular ones, but despite this, Jack loses his record. He and Mike Brady hold the course record at present with a 67.

Hutchinson, paired with Dave Spittal, Toronto professional, defeated Mike Brady and Dan Healy of the Country Club, 2 to 2 in a best ball foursome. Brady was two under par with 70 Spittal one under with 71 and Healy had 75. Jack had five birdies and an eagle for his card.

STRIBLING MAY MOVE FROM HIS HOME IN MACON

(By The Associated Press)

MIAMI, Jan. 10.—As the outgrowth of barring his son from school at Macon Pa., Stribling announced Thursday that in the future training quarters for his son young Stribling, the pugilist would be located here. He said he would arrange for private tutoring scrapper.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 10.—Unless some arrangement can be made for the completion of his education here, W. L. "Young" Stribling, middleweight boxing sensation, and his family, will move to another section of the country, according to a statement by "Pa" Stribling, father of the boxer, following action of school authorities here yesterday in refusing to allow the boy to continue in school. Too many absences were given as the reason for the action.

Either Newark, N. J., or Philadelphia will be the place of his future residence if he left this city, "Pa" Stribling was quoted as saying. The school board had the matter under consideration several months ago but no definite action was taken at the time and, according to the statement of the superintendent of schools, no action of the board has been taken as yet.

G. O. P. LEADERS

Simmons Urges Repeal.

During the tax debate in the Senate, Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, advocated repeal of the telephone, telegraph and other so-called nuisance taxes and asserted that he did not want to reduce taxes "so only the very rich will get the benefit of two-thirds of the reduction and 40,000,000 the benefit of the other third."

"We took off the excess profits taxes," he continued, "and now they come here and have us take off one-half of the remainder of their surtaxes."

Senator Simmons asserted there was a "monstrous monopoly of publicity" backed by rich corporations and organizations for the Mellon tax plan. Their propaganda, he said, was misleading the public but the Democrats were prepared to discuss tax revision until the public was undeceived.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, declared the fault he found with the Mellon plan was that it did not make a proportionate reduction between the rich and the poor. He said he had been informed the treasury's plan would result in a tax saving for Secretary Mellon himself of $500,000 and added the suggestion that Henry Ford's tax reduction would be $1,600,000.

Copeland's Estimate

Another Democrat, Senator Copeland, of New York, estimated that 246 taxpayers who contributed $20,000,000 to the treasury last year would be allowed total reductions of $45,000,000 under the Mellon plan.

The Senate debate was precipitated by Senator McLean, Republican, Connecticut, when he drew comparisons between predictions made by Democrats of the disaster to follow enactment of the Fordney-McCumber tariff law and the actual results of that measure as indicated by data on the country's foreign commerce.

"History," he asserted, "does not record a more complete case of colonial ignorance of basic economic laws. Or was it ignorance entirely and not a well conceived plan to frighten voters into supporting the Democratic ticket?"
