United Front Urged On Nova Road Program

Jr. and Gordon Frederick appealed Monday night before a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce's Long-Range Planning Committee on Roads to back up the County Commission and present a united front when the board presents its budget to the State Road department in March.

"The key to this road problem is the County Commission. They turn the key in the lock and it is their responsibility. We can't usurp their authority but, must cooperate in every way possible," Frederick said.

Cleveland called for a united front behind the commission when it presents its budget to the SRD in March and suggested a "wait and see" policy on what roads are a "must" until County Commission Chairman J. C. Hutchison presents a report from Max Brew-er's Nova Committee on Roads, Cleveland earlier called for a coordinated effort with "our road hoard member to see what roads would be built berights of way."

Hutchison said the committee, which includes himself and officials from Brevard and Volusia, has recommended the four-laning of SR 46. He said the committee would meet again in a few weeks.

The long-range local committee, of some 40 members chosen from throughout the eounty, pledged its support to the commission with the consensus being that road rights of way must be acquired for tion to the Mime Bridge and SR 436 from Altamonte Springs east to the Orange

made a start in the right direction."

Stenstrom said the committen was non-political and not interested in county lines. He urged orderly growth to prepare for Nova and "if it is disorderly, just watch that millage."

The only concrete action the committee took Monday night was to appoint a committee which in cluded Cleveland. Frederick and County Engineer Carlton Bliss, It will recounty's secondary funds and how much money is available to obtain needed rights of way.

"We want to know where we atend financially," Stenstrom said after Commissioner James P. Avery reported that the county had obligated its gasoline tax funds until 1984 based on three bond issues.

Bliss also promised the committee he would attempt to find out about what rights of way are needed on SR 46 from the Interchange to the St. Johns River.

SANFORD, FLORIDA NO. 377

Other roads mentioned that would have a vital effect on the growth of the county were SR 419 through Oviedo to SR 80 and SR 426 to Goldenrod.

Stenatrom emphasized that the county must succeed in acquiring rights of way for all these roads now, especially SR 46, to avoid rising costs.

Stenstrom also asked Zoning Director Robert Brown and Bliss to report on the need to compile a record of all rights of way on primary roads so "we can start planning now."

A Wise Choice

Two men who will carry a heavy burden of Seminole County on their shoulders for many a year to come are Douglas Stenstrom and C. S. Lec.

Both were chosen by the County Commission to represent this area in a six county study of the Nova im-

The commission has chosen wise-

Former Sen. Stenstrom is extensively trained in schools, roads and legislation. He has looked out for Seminole County as an able legislator and he will do the same now.

By far, the Oviedo-Chuluota. Geneva area will grow the most from Nova impact and the Commission is to be commended for picking a man from that area to represent Seminole on the regional planning council.

Charles Lee is just the man. He knows that area and will make sure it is ably represented.

We wish these two men the best of luck and know that all sectionalism will be dumped in the waste paper basket and they will think of SEM-INOLE COUNTY and not just the east, west and south areas.

Well-Nigh Impregnable

The Defense Department, incredibly massive and complex, is usually thought of as a prime example when complaints are uttered about how unmanageable government can be.

It is interesting, therefore, that a number of high administration of-ficials think of the State Department as no less unwieldy, though in a different way.

What encumbers the ship of state, they say, are the barnacles of custom and tradition.

The criticism, obviously, does not go to the department's top officers and deputies, or to the new breed of diplomats who, one way or another, have been making their mark.

It strikes rather at middle and lower echelon personnel, and at a fair proportion of the broad array of career diplomats.

Chief arguments are that the mills grind too slowly at these levels, and that a good many operatives show signs of resenting change of

An outsider who now and then hears some of President Kennedy's personal observations quotes him as saying:

"Some of those people in the State Department think I'm interfering when I call up over there."

One administration source suggests that reasonable speed in the production of certain background papers or preliminary decisions is almost a forgotten art at these levelseven when the issue is vital.

Congressmen have always liked pinning the label "cooky pushers" on our diplomats and State Department workers. The more discerning complaint would seem to be that, at the intermediate levels here in question. they are generally not pushers at all.

Administration men think that a gradual change of faces in some key spots, plus crucial prodding, will ultimately infuse this crucial department with a more flexible spirit.

Many skeptical citizens and lawmakers, however, may be tempted to side with one of the latter who, commenting on this specific problem,

"The federal agency is an institution which outlasts all presidents. Nobody is going to cut too deep into State-or any other department." In capsule, that may be one chapter in the story of this age.

Dear Abby:

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend is away in the service and he writes me very beautiful love letters. I've always let my mother read them, but the last one was rather "personal" so when my mother asked to read it 1 told her no.

She started to sulk and I'm sure she thinks it is much worse than it really is. She went into one of her non-speaking moods, which bothered me so much I offered to show her the letter, but she says she doesn't want to see it now. What can I do about this situation? I am 24. FEELING BLUE

DEAR FEELING: You can't blame your mother for feeling hurt when, after sharing all your letters with her, you suddenly receive one you refuse to show her. Forget the incident. Your mother will get over her hurt. You're a big girl now. In the future keep ALL your letters confidential and you'll have no prob-

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR NOT ME: She may not be "kidding" anyone-or trying to. The natural oils DO tend to make the hair appear darker, hence the darkness at the roots toward shampoo time. And the sun has been known to bleach blondes blonder.

DEAR ABBY: My son is being married in two weeks and I bought a black dress especially for the wedding. Many of my friends have told me that I absolutely should not wear a black dress to my son's wedding as it would be a big insult to the bride. Why? I am a stout woman and do not feel that I look right in anything except black. I would like your advice. LIKES BLACK

DEAR LIKES: Black is appropriate for mourning. Wear beige, gray or a pastel color.
