First Retired Woman Rear Admiral Enjoys New Roles Here

Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The admiral is a lady. Statuesque, 5 feet 11 inches tall, with gray hair sprinkled with brown, the remnants of younger days, she exudes self-confidence and warmth. The U.S. Navy career of the 62-year-old Alene Duerk spanned the years from World War II times in the 1940s through the 1970s. In the 1940s, serving in the military was recognized as an experience of great pride in the ideal of sacrificing for one's country. And that's the way it was for Miss Duerk, who joined the Navy as a young nurse in 1943, some 17 months into World War II.

While advancing through the officer corps to the rank of rear admiral, times changed for women in the military and the attitude of the public went almost full circle from respect for those in service to nearly utter disdain during the Vietnam War days, when many officers were instructed to wear their uniforms only during working hours, to return to respect again in the late 1970s.

Miss Duerk saw it all before she retired as the first woman rear admiral of the Navy to do so, and chose the Markham Woods area near Longwood as her retirement home.

In mid-1945, she was aboard the hospital ship, USS Benevolence, enroute to the invasion of Japan when the atomic bomb was dropped, ending the war. While the Benevolence had been expected to be used as a ship for American casualties it was used instead for liberated prisoners of war. While she was serving as a Navy nurse, her sister was serving as an Army nurse. Six months into 1947, Miss Duerk's (pronounced Dirk) commitment of service was up and she got out of the Navy.

But things "were not so rosy" on the outside, and she decided to go to Western Reserve University in Cleveland to get a degree in nursing.

Degree in hand, she taught for a time at Highland Park General Hospital just outside Detroit. Michigan was home to the Duerk family.

When the Navy Reserve was activated during the Korean Conflict, Miss Duerk was called back to service and when her 17 months commitment was up, she couldn't bring herself to leave.

From that point, she was stationed in Portsmouth, Va., for five years as an instructor, then to Philadelphia Naval Hospital and on to Chicago for recruit duty. Then there was Subic Bay in the Philippines, Yokosuka, Japan, and Long Beach, Calif.

Her assignments took her to Washington, D.C., to the staff of the assistant Secretary of Defense for Health and Environment, then to the Bureau of Naval Personnel and as director of the Great Lakes Naval Hospital, with promotions along the way.

Her final assignment was at the Washington Bureau of Medicine and Surgery and as a director of the Navy Nurse Corp. She retired in 1975 and stayed in the Washington area until 1981.

The role of women in the service changed during those years. The jobs women perform became more varied, she said, and opportunities for promotion and advancement expanded.

"For a long time there was only one woman captain in the Navy. Women could become commanders, but that was the limit for most. But in the 1960s that changed with the signing by President Johnson of a new law permitting women to advance to flag officers and general officers.

With the opportunity for higher rank came more responsibility. And more Navy nurses were assigned to acute care units, recovery rooms, cardiac care, neo-natal care nursing and operating room duty. "Today a Navy nurse is a commanding officer of an overseas hospital," she said.

Yes, she recommends a career for young people who desire to serve in the military.

"The military life requires adjustment for the person to make his own home. A young person who perhaps has had his own room at home has to learn to share a room

SCC Netters Go In Style With 2nd J.C. Championship

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Going in style.

The Seminole Community College tennis team, in its last year of existence, won an unprecedented second consecutive National Junior College Tennis Championship this past weekend at Central Florida Community College in Ocala.

The Raiders dominated the tournament as five of its six singles players and all three doubles teams made the finals. SCC compiled 43 points compared to 35 for second place Tyler, Texas, and 26 for third place Central Florida CC.

Last year's team was considered one of the best in junior college history and, although this year's squad was powerful, the Raiders had their problems and the road to the national championship was a tough one with numerous obstacles standing in the way.

"Back during the middle of the season, we weren't even favored to win the state tournament," SCC coach Larry Castle said. "We had a couple of injuries and were struggling. At the time, we were ranked about third in the state."

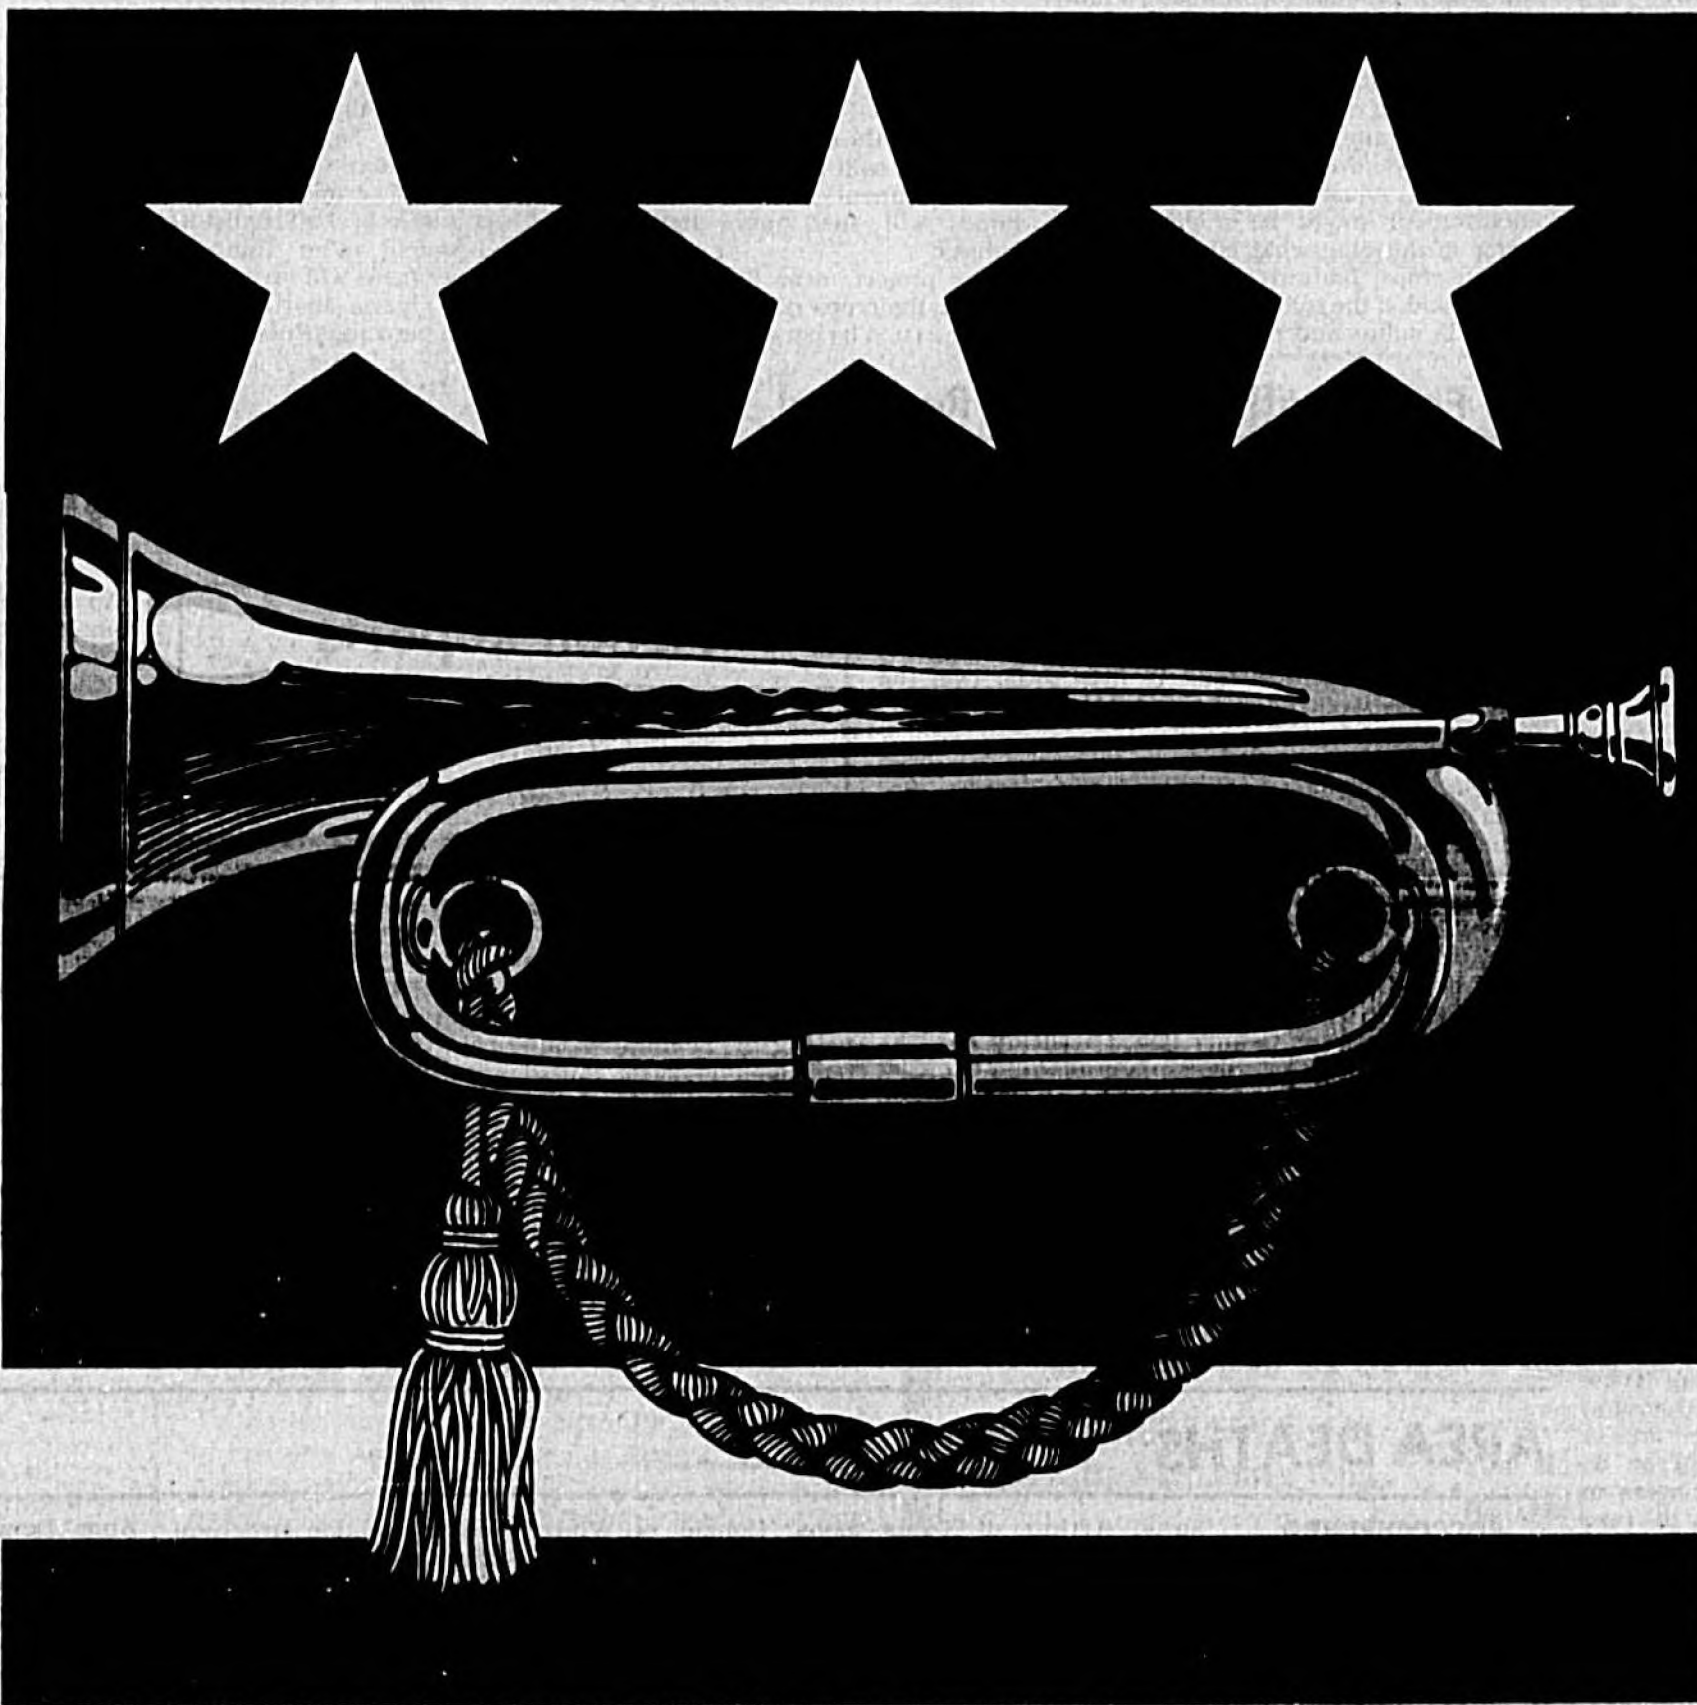

While most college students took Spring break off, the Raiders practiced from six to eight hours a day. By the time Spring break ended, SCC's injuries had healed and the Raiders won the Mid-Florida Conference Championship for the ninth straight year.

"By the state tournament, we were picked to finish third, but we went in and dominated," Castle said. "The last two weeks before nationals we practiced eight hours a day in the hot weather and that got us in better shape than anyone in the nationals."

The Raiders were seeded number one at seven of the nine positions in the national tourney. Despite being seeded so high, however, SCC didn't get the best of draws as the Raiders were forced to play some of the top players in the early going.

"With the draw we got, it looked like Tyler (Texas) was in the driver's seat," Castle said. "I thought, going in, that third place would be good enough, but the kids were just overachievers and we won it bigger than we did last year."

Sanford Driver Dead, 2nd Man Shot

By Diane Petryk
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford man who died as a result of a gunshot wound to his head Saturday night was apparently killed after a dispute over driving.

The dead man was identified as Richard John Garnsey, 24, Apartment 100, 2764 Ridgewood Ave.

A Casselberry man was reported in fair condition today at Florida Hospital, Altamonte Springs, being treated for a gunshot wound to his jaw stemming from the same incident. He was identified as Juan B. Mendoza, 47, of 924 Lake Irene Road.

While driving near U.S. Highway 17-92 and Dog Track Road, one of the victims apparently cut in front of the other after which they stopped to argue, Seminole County sheriff's deputies said.

During the fracas that followed, Mendoza was shot in the lower jaw, apparently with his own gun.

Mendoza then drove the short distance to his home on Lake Irene Road while Garnsey and a friend apparently followed, deputies said.

At the Mendoza home, Garnsey was shot in the head while standing in the living room, Seminole County Sheriff's Department spokesman John A. Spolski said.

Although several people were reportedly in the home at the time of the shooting, Spolski said police have no witnesses.

Deputies reported Janessa Lynne Burns, 19, no address listed, was a passenger in Garnsey's car prior to and during the incidents.

No Consensus Yet On County Gas Tax

The chances of Lake Mary approving a county-levied gas tax appear to be slim.

County Commission Chairman Sandra Glenn continued her municipal visits seeking a consensus on a possible county tax Friday.

All of Lake Mary's elected officials were notified of the city hall meeting. But only Mayor Walter Sorenson, City Commissioners Russ Megonegal and Charlie Lytle were on hand with City Manager Phil Kulbes. And Megonegal had to leave early for a previous commitment.

County officials with Mrs. Glenn were County Administrator T. Duncan Rose III and County Engineer Bill Bush.

Mrs. Glenn said she was in Lake Mary trying to get a consensus from city officials on whether a county gas tax should be levied.

Noting that the county commission has not taken a position on whether it will vote to levy the tax, she said the commissioners are in agreement that if a 4 cent per gallon tax is imposed, revenues from 3 of the cents would be used by the county in a countywide road improvement effort and revenues from a fourth cent would be split among the county's seven cities.

A former city official, she said that traditionally city officials are close to the people and thus would know the public attitude toward such a tax.

Bush said although the reception given the county group in making the rounds of the cities over the past few weeks has been cordial, the reaction to a gas tax has been negative. Bush added that city officials understand the full implication of the tax and the improvements that could be made on roads if it were levied.

The Florida Legislature adopted a law during its special session earlier this year giving county commissions the option of levying up to 4 cents per gallon of gasoline sold.

The imposition of the first 2 cents requires the votes of only a simple majority of the commission. The imposition of a third and fourth cent requires the concurrence of an extraordinary majority of four votes.

The law also provides that the proceeds from the tax will be distributed among the county's seven cities by inter-local agreement or, if no agreement is forwarded to the county before July 1, the proceeds will be distributed by the same formula as the state uses for the distributions of revenues from one-half cent of the sales tax.

Rose said according to the law, the county commission must make a decision by July 1 on whether it is going to levy the tax. He said some counties in the state believe that they can implement the tax at any time during the next five years. The tax, once approved, would be levied for a five year period.

Rose also said that, according to "my Sears Roebuck legal opinion," if the cities with a population equal to 50 percent of the incorporated area sign inter-local agreements with the county on a gas tax distribution formula, the cities who fail to sign similar agreements "would not get any of the funds."

When Sorenson objected, Rose asked, "If a city declined to participate, why should they be forced to take the money?"

He indicated the entire $850,000 estimated proceeds from 1 cent of the gas tax would then be distributed between those two theoretical largest cities which did sign the agreements. Seminole County's two largest cities, Sanford and Altamonte Springs, have populations of about half the incorporated area of the county.

Bush said it appears that if the proceeds from the 1 cent of gas tax were distributed among the cities on the basis of population, Lake Mary's share would be about $25,500 annually.

Speaking of critical segments of county roads which would be improved with the revenues from the other 3 cents of gas tax, Bush said County Attorney Nikki Clayton has said that a "light enough" agreement can be written by the county that priorities approved could not be changed except by mutual consent.

Bush said at this point that the roads being considered for improvements from the revenues include: County Road 427 from Charlotte Street to State Road 434; Airport Boulevard from Sanford Avenue to U.S. Highway 17-92; and Red Bug Road from State Road 436 to Eagle Circle.

Mrs. Glenn urged Sorenson to determine the will of Lake Mary's commission prior to the meeting of the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Winter Springs City Hall.

IN BRIEF

Fireworks Factory Owner Charged In 11 Deaths

BENTON, Tenn. (UPI) — The owner of an illegal fireworks factory faces 11 counts of involuntary manslaughter for the deaths of his mother, brother, uncle and eight other people in an explosion at the secret business in the southeast Tennessee mountains.

Dan Lee Webb, 30, surrendered at the Polk County Jail around midnight Saturday, 26 hours after a nationwide alert had been issued for him.

He was charged Sunday with 11 counts of involuntary manslaughter and illegally manufacturing and possessing explosives and jailed under $300,000 bond pending a June 2 court appearance.

Authorities said they may never know what caused the explosion Friday at the heavily guarded factory, tucked into a wooded hillside on Webb's worm farm, which supplied fish bait.

But they said they do know it occurred while workers were mixing highly volatile explosives that could have been set off by the scraping of shoes on the floor. The blast sent a cloud of smoke billowing 80 feet into the air and shook the ground 20 miles away.

MX Victory May Fade

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's dramatic triumph in getting Congress to approve development of the MX missile could fade rapidly when Congress takes up the Defense Department authorization bill and actual appropriations.

The House and Senate voted last week to release an estimated $65 million for MX flight testing and $560 million in 1983 funds for engineering and development.

Six months earlier it had withheld the funding, rejecting Reagan's now-abandoned "dense pack" basing plan and ordering him to develop a new one.

Effects Of Acid Rain Can Vary By Area

CHICAGO (UPI) — Potential damage from acid rain depends in large part on the physical characteristics of the area where it falls, two researchers said.

They also said research into the effects of acid rain on crops — including corn and soybeans — is contradictory and inclusive.

Doug Sisterson of Argonne National Lab and Wayne Banwart of the University of Illinois made their observations during a workshop of American Farm Bureau Federation environmental specialists.

Sisterson, a meteorologist, said some lakes in the Northeast unquestionably are becoming more acid and acid rain probably is a factor in that change. By contrast, he said, Lake Michigan is strongly alkaline "and it will be that way for all eternity" no matter how much acid rain falls into it.

The reason, he said, is that Lake Michigan is situated in an alkaline area, while most New England lakes lie in granite beds that make them naturally acidic.

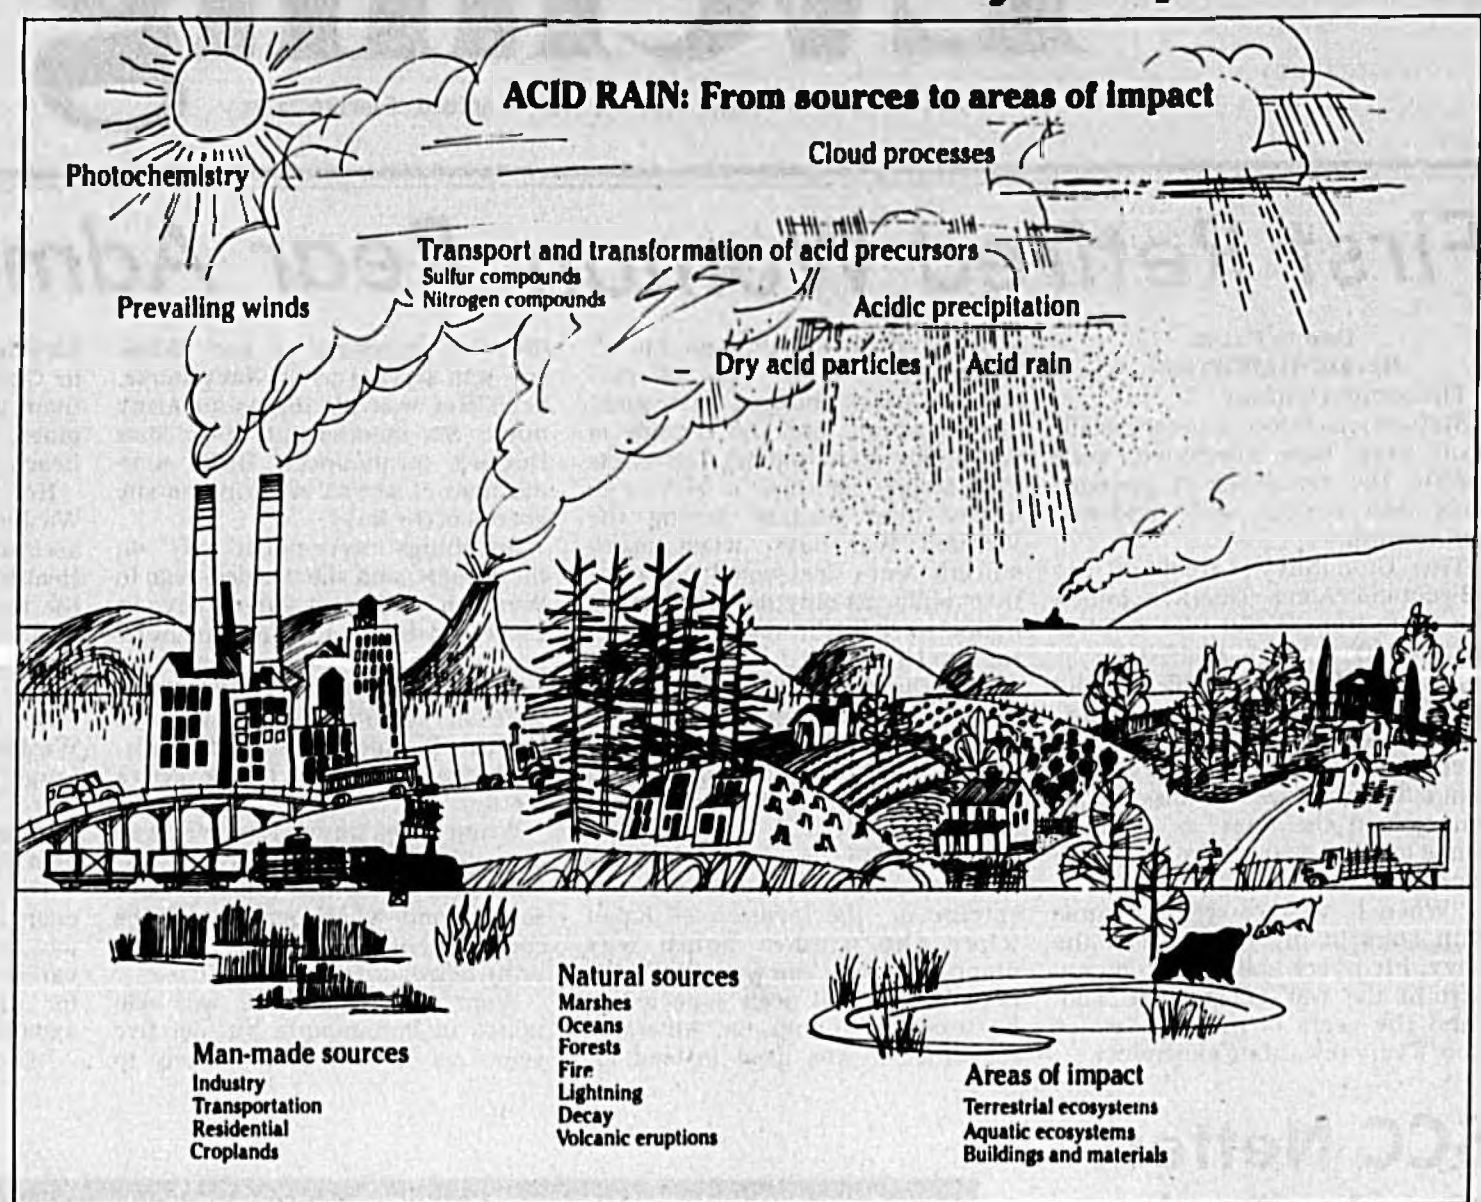

"They don't have a way to neutralize as well as we do in the Midwest," he said. "People talk about acid rain from the perspective of their own area."

The effects of acid rain on crops are virtually unknown, said Banwart, an agronomist.

He said a study conducted in Oregon in 1981 on 28 plant species found yield was reduced in five species, increased in six, unaffected in 15 and results were mixed in two.

A study on Long Island found acid rain simulation produced a dramatic reduction in yield in one variety of soybeans but similar studies in suburban Chicago and in Raleigh, N.C. found little effect and a fourth study in Yonkers, N.Y. found acid rain produced a substantial increase in yield, Banwart said.

As with aquatic effects, the local environment might be a determining factor in deciding what effect acid rain has on crops, Banwart said. For example, he said, if the soil in a particular area is low in sulfur and nitrogen needed to grow a crop, "acid rain may be supplying some of the nutrients."

Banwart said the U of I is conducting an experiment this season which he hopes will shed more light on the subject.

The project, near Flanagan, Ill., will protect the crops completely from natural rain through a system of automatically closing covers triggered by moisture. That will permit scientists to closely monitor the growth patterns and yield of crops treated with various strengths of acidic moisture.

Among other things, he said, the experiment will investigate whether acid rain causes abortion of an abnormally high percentage of soybean pods early in the pod development stage and whether the stress of acid rain has a negative effect on the viability of corn pollen.

Both said it would be premature to force industry to cut back severely — and at high cost — on the volume of pollution it emits because no one knows how much of a cutback it would take to produce measurable results.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: A heat wave today fueled forest fires and massive snowmelt in the West where mudslides shoved homes off their foundations and floods sent residents fleeing. In the South, flooding from the Mississippi River threatened a prison housing 4,500 inmates. Showers and thunderstorms spread from Florida through the Carolinas, and from northern Texas to the central high Plains. Interfering with many people's Memorial Day holiday plans. Floods or flood warnings because of snowmelt covered much of Utah, Idaho and Washington. A fifth day of extreme high temperatures — expected to reach the 90s today — saw nearly every stream in Utah out of its banks today. Volunteers already have used up half a million sandbags, lighting to control floodwaters. Another 210,000 empty sandbags were being flown and trucked in from Idaho and California. In central Utah, nearly 30 miles of Interstate 15 was under a foot of water, and another section was threatened by a breached irrigation canal. Officials in Oregon said it would be Tuesday before they could hope to contain forest fires intensified by record high temperatures that passed the 100-mark Sunday. Somewhat cooler weather was predicted today. A mudslide that damaged two homes near the Squaw Valley, Calif., ski area forced residents of 19 other houses to flee as a precaution against more slides in the unstable area, firefighters said. The slide in the picturesque Sierra Nevada likely was triggered by saturation from this year's unusually heavy snow melt. The wall of mud was about 50 yards wide and 12 feet deep and occurred near the site of a giant snow avalanche a little more than a year ago. A thousand firefighters from six states fought wind-whipped fires in the Willamette National Forest. The fires began as "slash burning" blazes, used by forest managers to destroy undergrowth. They were ignited to take advantage of ideal conditions that existed earlier last week. Firefighters in New Mexico Sunday contained nine lightning-sparked forest fires, including one that overspread more than 35 acres in the Santa Fe National Forest.

No Fatal Traffic Accidents Reported

Holiday Passing Safely In Seminole County

By United Press International
No traffic fatalities were reported in Seminole County as of 10 a.m. Monday, although traffic accidents statewide have taken at least 15 lives so far over the Memorial Day weekend and some of the heaviest travel hours are still to come.

A shooting death in Casselberry, however, has been linked to a traffic altercation between two drivers. (See story, Page 1).

The Florida Highway Patrol predicted at least 30 people would lose their lives on state highways during the long holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight today.

One of the victims was a rookie police officer who was struck down as he was helping victims of an accident. Officer Stephen O. Corbett, 21, of Miami, who graduated from the Metro-Dade County police academy Feb. 20, died as he was setting out flares around an accident scene on Interstate 95 at Hallandale Beach Boulevard to warn oncoming motorists.

Corbett was hit by a car containing six young people and his body hurled 100 feet. He died on arrival at Parkway General Hospital.

Other traffic fatalities included a 34-year-old Daytona Beach mother and her 16-month-old son, who were killed at 11 p.m. Saturday on State Road 400 in Volusia County.

Summit Nations Urge U.S. To Lower Interest Rates

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — All the other nations at the economic summit want the United States to lower its interest rates. The U.S. reply Sunday was that this is easier said than done.

The argument of the foreign leaders is that high U.S. interest rates cause investment capital to pour out of their countries into the United States — capital they would like to see invested at home. To prevent this capital flow, they are keeping their interest rates higher than they would like.

They say this threatens to slow world recovery, adds to the debt problems of developing countries and accounts for the currently overvalued U.S. dollar.

In general, the other six countries say U.S. interest rates would fall if the United States reduced its budget deficit, which without cuts is projected to exceed $200 billion for years to come.

Congress so far has been unable to agree on a budget reducing the deficit in coming years.

"We have explained to the others the situation between the administration and Congress," Treasury Secretary Donald Regan told a news conference.

Regan argues that reducing the budget deficit would not necessarily reduce U.S. interest rates.

"We've also explained to them there is very little linkage between deficits and interest rates," he told a summit news conference. "The evidence just isn't there."

Many U.S. economists say a budget deficit during a recession does not raise interest rates, but large deficits during a recovery do. The reason, they say, is that government borrowing to pay for the deficit competes with growing demand for private borrowing.

Regan says historical evidence, however, doesn't bear that out.

Many economic textbooks say interest rates could be lowered if the Federal Reserve would put more money into the economy. Regan says that in the real world this does not work.

He noted that in the last three weeks the U.S. money supply has surged up by $17 billion but interest rates have risen a half point.

"That indicates quite clearly that the more money you try to pump into the system, the higher your interest rates are going to be — not lower," he told reporters.

"So we told them we could not engage in quick fixes in the United States by putting money into the economy. If we put money into the economy we would certainly drive interest rates up, which is exactly the opposite of what they want."

The only way interest rates can be brought down, he said, is by a slow, steady growth of the money supply. Economists agree that will take time.

A European Communities Commission spokesman said its 10 members are convinced U.S. interest rates must be lowered.

"How that is going to be done," he said, "is an American affair."

IN BRIEF

The Odds Appear High For Legalized Gambling

MIAMI (UPI) — Tourists and residents may soon be rolling the dice at Florida casinos if a group of hotel owners succeeds in winning support for legalized gambling the November 1984 statewide elections.

First, the Florida Casino Gambling Associates must get the question on the ballot. That means they must collect 298,743 petition signatures from registered voters in the state.

To fund the drive, the group filed April 29 with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington to sell stock to fund a political action committee, dubbed "Citizens for Less Taxes."

Lawmakers Head Into OT

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Officially, the final five days of the legislature's current meeting starts today, but an extended session is once again a near certainty.

One of the problems is a hassle between the two houses over water conservation. A 10-member conference committee began work Sunday night attacking their differences.

Both chambers have passed proposals intended to protect Florida's underground water systems from pollution from sewage, hazardous wastes and leaks from underground storage tanks.

The two plans are similar in many respects, but there are some major differences. The House plan requires $22.5 million in taxes on chemicals and petroleum products, while the Senate package does not. And the Senate bill contains controversial language designed to help a Connecticut conglomerate convert a natural gas pipeline running into Florida into a light petroleum products pipeline.

Conferees on the budget and a package to improve the public schools huddled over the weekend, but their discussions were strictly preliminary. No substantive decisions can be made until the Legislature's leaders decide whether to raise taxes.

The Senate passed an $11.3 billion budget that doesn't require new taxes, but also contains little of Graham's $500 million program to continue Florida's drive to achieve national education excellence.

. . . Admiral Enjoys Retirement

"The military makes one grow up in a hurry. But it gives a lot of poise and a lot of confidence. It's an absolute necessity for the young person to learn to get along with other people, especially in the service," she said.

Is the volunteer service bringing quality personnel to the military?

"During hard economic times, the quality of the all-volunteer service increases," she said. "The last few years have seen all kinds of quality personnel joining the military. They are usually high school graduates who can learn and who are literate."

"When economic times are good, volunteers are sometimes dropouts who cannot read and who are untrainable," she said.

Over the years of her military service, Miss Duerk was so busy she never really thought of marriage and thus has remained single. But her sister married and Miss Duerk enjoys her sister's children.

Retirement has brought a whole new career of service. "I always wanted to do some things like volunteer work," she said, adding that she works with Meals on Wheels through her church, St. Stephen's Lutheran near Longwood.

She is also a member of the church Council Service Committee, Lutheran World Relief. She likes to sew, enjoys cooking and keeping house. She is a member of the board of directors of United Service Life Insurance Co. and attends quarterly meetings of that organization in Washington, D.C.

She visits her mother, sister and family in Michigan often and she enjoys traveling. In late summer, she plans a trip to Greece.

U.S. Marines Land In Beirut Amid Warning Of 'War Fever'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A fresh contingent of 1,200 U.S. Marines joined the multinational peace-keeping force in Beirut, with a warning from the departing commander that "war fever" has gripped eastern Lebanon.

The members of the 24th Marine Amphibious Unit from Camp Lejeune, N.C., Sunday replaced 1,200 fellow Marines who sailed home after a 3 1/2-month tour of duty in the country.

Helicopters, long-bridge barges and other craft landed at Black Beach, 2 miles south of Beirut, bringing the replacements for the 22nd Marine Amphibious Unit, which sailed out of Beirut aboard five ships.

"We're very, very pleased that we're taking everybody home that we came out with," Col. James Mead, the 22nd MAU commander, said from his Amtrak turrel.

In addition to the 1,200 land-based Marines, another 600 men stationed off-shore also were rotated home. U.S. officials said.

The new contingent's arrival coincided with Syrian charges of an Israeli troop buildup in Lebanon's eastern Bekaa Valley, while Israel Radio said tensions had eased slightly with the end of Syrian military maneuvers.

Marcos And Our Luzon Bases

President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines is displaying his iron fist and his iron rule.

In recent months he has sent police out to arrest labor leaders. He has threatened the Catholic Church by rounding up and incarcerating militant clergymen. He has closed down a dissident newspaper, charging its editors with subversion.

The heaviest blow yet came recently. Marcos announced two martial law decrees that authorize the death penalty for rebellion, sedition, publishing or broadcasting anti-government statements and organizing anti-government demonstrations.

Even though Marcos later announced he intends to relax the decrees somewhat because of the government's "present attitude of liberality," they still demand heavy punishment indeed against those who seek freedom from Marcos' dictatorial rule in the Philippine Islands.

Marcos says he signed the decrees on Jan. 1, 1981, a day before he lifted from the nation the yoke of martial law — which was established in 1972 and allowed Marcos to rule by personal decree. Marcos now is without this power, but from time to time he publishes "secret decrees" he says were enacted before martial law was lifted.

Though the pattern of government in the Philippines closely follows that of the United States, it is clear Marcos wants no democracy. He is quick to squash opponents. He has been accused by Amnesty International of widespread abuses of human rights.

Despite Marcos' dictatorial policies, the United States finds him a necessary ally. With the loss of Vietnam and the huge naval base at Cam Ranh Bay, now occupied by the Soviet Union's Pacific Fleet, our two military bases in the Philippines — Subic Naval Base and Clark Air Base — become most important to our defense posture in the Western Pacific.

They are America's largest overseas bases. The current contract permitting U.S. use of the Philippine bases expires in January 1984.

Negotiations for renewal now are being conducted by the two nations in Manila. It has been reported that the Marcos government may seek as much as $1.5 billion in exchange for continued use. The United States now pays $1 million annually to occupy the bases.

There is a large group of Filipinos who seek immediate removal of the bases on grounds they violate Philippine sovereignty and that they jeopardize the safety of their nation by storing nuclear weapons on Philippine soil. Marcos always has favored U.S. bases.

On one hand, the United States must keep Marcos at arm's length because of his poor human rights record and his misuse of power. On the other, we must accept his aid in keeping Subic Bay and Clark Air Base open to our ships and aircraft.

We must be practical and realistic about the situation in the Philippines. We cannot dictate to sovereign governments. We like to think that foreign countries we deal with will always follow our lead and model themselves on our image, but the world is not like that.

We must take Marcos as part of the deal that includes the two vital military bases.

Unwritten Memorial

Not only are they commemorated by columns and inscriptions, but there dwells also an unwritten memorial of them, graven not on stone but in the hearts of men.

Those words of tribute offered by Pericles to the fallen heroes of the Peloponnesian War could well be applied to America's 1.1 million war dead on this Memorial Day 24 centuries later.

It is not enough that we construct monuments honoring their sacrifice or even that we set aside this special day to remember as a people those among us who have heard freedom's call and paid freedom's cost from Valley Forge to Vietnam.

To honor them in the only truly meaningful way, we, the living, must bequeath untarnished and undiminished, to generations of Americans yet unborn, the priceless heritage of freedom for which they gave their lives.

And we must dedicate ourselves to perfecting in peace the society their sacrifice has preserved with an ardor at least equal to theirs.

More meaningful by far than all the flags and flowers we may display on one special day or any monument of stone we may construct for the ages, this is our everlasting, unwritten memorial.

Public Radio And Bias

Announcement that National Public Radio will run a $5 million deficit this year is causing consternation within that organization which specializes in criticism of the business system.

For months, NPR news directors on the "Morning Edition" and "All Things Considered" programs have hammered away at Reaganomics and the President's alleged coziness with the business community. Now, NPR is having business troubles of its own.

Airing their problems in a series of broadcasts, National Public Radio reporters heap blame on the outgoing management. It seems that NPR has been making large additions to its staff even as income has fallen off. Management apparently thought that foundations and corporations would bail out the operation, but the recession crimped the style of the corporations and the foundations were inundated with requests for funds from a multitude of groups.

It doesn't occur to the National Public Radio news directors and commentators that corporate sponsors and a good section of the public may be unhappy with NPR's highly political, biased coverage of the news.

The other day, I heard a program which dealt with campus protests against Dr. Jeane Kirkpatrick, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. Campus left-wingers have elected to shout her down when she appears at universities where they are strong.

At the very least, NPR should have had one guest commentator who deplored the unruly protesters who were determined not to allow Mrs. Kirkpatrick First Amendment rights. Their position is free speech for radicals; no free speech for opponents of Nicaraguan-style communism in this hemisphere.

National Public Radio doesn't offer balanced commentaries. Instead, it features talks by Noam Chomsky, the MIT leftist professor who has compared the USA with Nazi Germany, and Nat Hentoff, a radical writer for "The Village Voice," who recently signed an advertisement opposing U.S. policy towards Nicaragua. The third commentator, an official of Smith College, found excuses for the faculty and students who prevented Mrs. Kirkpatrick from speaking at that institution.

That's typical National Public Radio handling of the news. Every cat and dog on the liberal-left side is featured on NPR. There are endless psychodramas, often with background music, that tell of terror by anti-communists in this hemisphere. If there is an outside comment on British politics, one can be sure that it will be by someone from the ultra-liberal "Manchester Guardian," not the conservative "Daily Telegraph."

Computer To China Sparks Battle

WASHINGTON — Two high officials of Ronald Reagan's rigidly anti-communist administration have been enthusiastically promoting the sale to Red China of a computer system they know will be used for nuclear missile development.

The two are Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and George Keyworth, the president's science adviser. They were recently given the red carpet treatment by Chinese officials on trips to Peking.

The battle over exporting a Hyshare 700 computer system to the People's Republic of China has been kept from the public by the usual methods: stamping the relevant documents "secret." But my associate Dale Van Atta has obtained three crucial memorandums from Baldrige and Keyworth that tell the astonishing story.

A Baldrige memo dated last January 7, to National Security Adviser William Clark, gave the background of the "PRC Hybrid Computer Case."

In case you missed it, Seminole County fire departments joined with other fire departments around the state to observe Fire Fighters Appreciation Week from May 22 to May 28.

The observance is designed to increase public awareness of the dangers faced by firemen.

Sanford and Seminole County fire department officials said they had no special plans for the observance. But Seminole County did have an informal observance of the week as various news media gathered at county fire training fires in Midway to observe training firsthand.

According to statistics from the National Fire Protection Association, a firefighter has a 50 percent chance of being injured at least once each year. Heart and lung diseases are generally recognized as occupational hazards.

"The physical and psychological stress inherent in firefighting operations is one of the causal factors for the high incidence of cardiovascular disease in firefighters," said Bill Gunter in his capacity as State Fire Marshal. He said inhaling carbon monoxide and other toxic gases in fires is also a major contributor to heart and lung disease.

Gunter said 173 people died in fires of single family residences last year in Florida.

He said Florida's residents can best honor firefighters by installing smoke detectors in their homes. Those detectors would help alert people to fires sooner.

"In residential fires during the night, when most fatal fires occur, you are 2 1/2 times less likely to die if you have a properly installed smoke detector," he said.

Gunter said about half of Florida's single family dwellings have smoke detectors but most of those that don't are homes of low income rural families, where the greatest likelihood of a fire exists.

Gunter expressed his personal appreciation for firefighters, explaining that they don't spend leisure time playing cards and watching television.

Training in firefighting is ongoing and many firefighters are also receiving advanced emergency medical training.

Re-Think Gay Rights?

A new and deadly disease is afflicting and terrorizing American homosexuals and may reach epidemic proportions among them.

It is worth reflecting on, because it has a philosophical as well as a medical significance, and may well lead to skepticism about some of the assumptions that lie behind current fashionable attitudes regarding homosexuality.

As you probably know by now, AIDS is the acronym for a condition in which the body's natural immunity system fails, leaving the victim vulnerable to just about any disease, including a deadly and now no longer rare form of cancer.

Last week, at crowded hearings in New York City, a succession of medical and other scientific experts testified about the current ominous situation.

They disclosed that the incidence of the disease is doubling every six months, meaning that there could be 20,000 cases within two years. There is no known cure, and the disease is usually fatal. Half the victims live in New York City. About 75 percent of them are homosexuals, 17 percent intravenous drug users, the rest Haitians and miscellaneous. The experts believe AIDS is transmitted through sexual contact, or via blood transfusions, dirty needles, and the like, and they guess that it is caused by a virus.

Now these experts, being scientists, would not go further in their testimony than the established scientific facts. But as a layman I would like to explore here certain possibilities and their significance.

Not surprisingly the Village Voice newspaper has been much preoccupied with AIDS for the last couple of years, and is a good source of information about it. From an item in a recent issue I learn an astonishing fact. The average number of partners in the life of an active male homosexual is, hold your breath, more than 1,600. This is due to the mode of behavior of many urban homosexuals: the nightly pick-up at a homosexual bar.

That is certainly drastically different from the behavior of the average active male heterosexual, and, indeed from the much more stable behavior of female homosexuals.

It seems to me that an individual having sexual contact with more than 1,600 other men is very likely to pick up and spread some pretty unusual diseases — more infection, I would speculate, than the body's normal immunity system can tolerate. It strikes me as entirely possible that the immunity system simply throws in the towel.

This whole situation, moreover, seems to me to have the following significance. The rhetoric of "gay rights" in recent years has invited us to view homosexuality as just another form of "sexual orientation." A phrase like that has the goal of putting homosexuality on a par with ordinary heterosexuality.

But the statistics cited above suggest something entirely different. No heterosexual male has anything like 1,600 partners during his lifetime. The idea is mind-boggling. Homosexuality appears to involve an entirely different behavior pattern, and thus to imply an entirely different set of values regarding sex.

Now I know, of course, that there are stable male homosexual couples, and no one desires any sort of persecution or ridicule of gays. But the statistics and the AIDS phenomenon do call into question their claim that we are simply dealing here with another "lifestyle." It may turn out to be a deathstyle.

Throughout history, most societies have regarded homosexuality as at least peculiar. Are we now discovering that the virtually universal opinion of mankind was correct, and the premises of gay rights rhetoric entirely false? It strikes me that this is only too likely.

Back To Basics His Word

By Arnold Sawicki

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Answer Man, who tries to keep us up to date on the latest trends in town, dropped by today with word that he really has something hot from the White House.

Question: What is it, sir? The president's decision on running for reelection?

Answer Man: That's trivial, boy. What I've got is nothing less than a new underlying premise, a theme, if you will, for running the entire federal government.

Question: Sakes alive! Do go on.

Answer Man: Like any such great idea, it's simple. Three words — back to basics.

Question: You mean, like in education? The president mentioned that at his news conference. No more canoe paddling courses and so on ...

Answer Man: Education was the source of the concept, but it is just the tip of the iceberg. What we're talking about is reforming the entire government. The president, who is a man of vision, saw in the education proposal a way not only to improve performance across the board, but to cut the budget and return to conservative principles as well.

Question: It sounds like a cure-all. But how could a back to basics approach improve things in say, the defense of the country?

Answer Man: One of the best examples you could have chosen. What is the main complaint about the new weapons that the Pentagon wants? Too expensive, too complicated, right?

Well, when you think about it, those critics may have a point. Why does the Navy need nuclear carriers and submarines when John Paul Jones was able to establish the United States' mastery of the sea in a sailboat?

These Air Force generals say they need the MX and Midgetman missiles. Eddie Rickenbacker took on the whole German air force in a biplane with a couple of machine guns. The Army says it has to have the M-1 tank; George Washington whipped the British with muskets. Think of the money we can save by going back to the good old ways in defense.

Question: Well, that would save money on hardware. But how about such modern problems as welfare or criminal justice?

Answer Man: Modern problems? We've had them for centuries, boy, and we've somehow forgotten that we once knew how to deal with them.

Welfare? We've got a complicated and immensely expensive system to help people who haven't got enough money to get along. What's wrong with poorhouses? It puts all the poor in one place, which solves the housing subsidy problem, and makes feeding and clothing them more efficient. You can bet none of that surplus American cheese is going to be wasted in a well-run poorhouse.

Crime is another area where we've gotten too fancy. The Pilgrims had the system for petty criminals. You put some of these purse snatchers in the stocks for a day or two, and that'll straighten them up. For serious crimes, there is nothing that rehabilitates better than a year or two on a chain gang out on the highway. Saves you the cost of building fancy prisons

WORLD IN BRIEF

Nationalists Hunted In French Bombing Wave

PARIS (UPI) — Police investigating a wave of bombings in three French possessions focused their search today on nationalist groups believed to have coordinated the attacks.

The explosions occurred Saturday night — nine on the Caribbean island of Guadeloupe, three on nearby Martinique and three in French Guiana on the South American mainland.

The two-hour period in which the bombs went off prompted investigators to say they believe the attacks were set up by the same people.

One person, a man believed to have been trying to plant a bomb at a war memorial in French Guiana, was killed. No injuries were reported in the other blasts, although each caused considerable damage to public buildings.

Targets included police stations, local government offices, tax collection centers, customs offices and an Air France bureau. In Paris, a small bomb caused minor damage to an agency assisting overseas workers who live in metropolitan France.

Where Reds Prowl For U.S. Secrets

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It is not unusual for politicians to have strange bedfellows. But Guy Vander Jagt has one of the most curious of all. Every now and then the congressman from Michigan has lunch and other refreshments with a Russian diplomat who is widely thought to be a communist spy.

The diplomat's name is Boris Davydov. And Vander Jagt does not see anything wrong with the relationship. He agrees that Davydov is probably a spy, yet he looks on him too as a nice fellow. "I may be a dupe," he has told a reporter, "but I really believe that a friendship has developed."

And a lot of people in the capital apparently agree with the congressman. Because they are also developing friendships with Russian spies. Men and women at every level of the federal government are eating, drinking and otherwise mingling with agents of the Soviet intelligence operation.

In many cases the mingling is unavoidable. Authorities say Russian spies have become so prevalent in Washington that they are almost part of the local routine. Gone are the times here when espionage was a private occasion; today it has become part of the social and political whirl.

Russian spies prowled openly on Capitol Hill. They attend the public hearings, they do their research in the Library of Congress, and they ask questions at the press conferences. James Bond would never understand it. The communist spooks today are even going to the most elegant parties in town.

What's more, they are going to elegant parties across the nation. The FBI says the Soviet spies are making contacts from New York to San Francisco. "They are now getting invitations to speak on college campuses," complains one awed government investigator. "It's a remarkable proliferation."

It's also a somewhat confusing proliferation. The spies are multiplying so fast that no one can keep an exact count of them. The traditional mathematics are gathered by the FBI, and the best it can guess at the moment is that there are between about 1,500 Soviet Bloc spies in the nation.

But that figure deals chiefly with permanent spies. The communists may also have an army of part timers snooping about. Every year, for example, 20,000 Soviet seamen dock in the United States, and at the same time 30,000 Iron Curtain citizens visit for business or cultural purposes.

Then there are 130,000 Russians who have defected to, or immigrated to, the United States. At least some of them may be double dealing. Boris

Soviet offices in Washington where spies may lurk

Korczak, a one-time Russian spy, and later a CIA spy, says hundreds of the immigrants might be living under the best cover of all: American sanctuary.

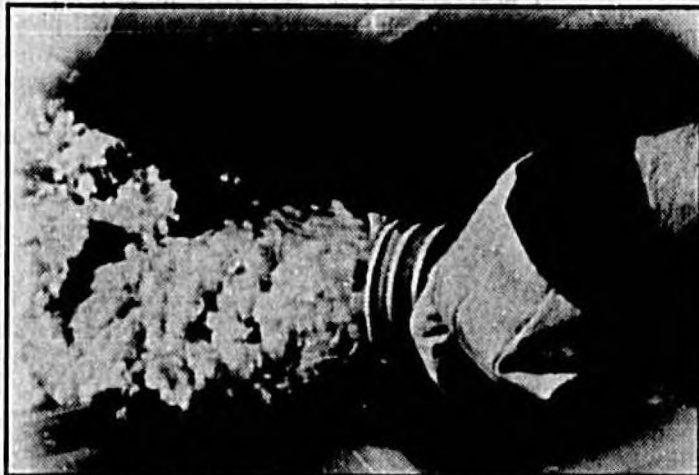

Korczak is the founder of the rigidly anti-communist group known as "Together International." He says the immigrants may be part of a force the Soviets call "Spetsnaz." He claims they are trained to go behind the lines in time of war. He adds they may now be waiting for that war here.

Korczak thinks that when the Spetsnaz agents are included, there are at least 5,000 communist spies in this country. And he disagrees with Rep. Vander Jagt about their motives. "They may be trying to make friends, all right," he says, "but that is only part of their intention."

Many government authorities concur. They say the increasing contact between Americans and spies is a cause for alarm. As it happens, some of the contacts are reported to the FBI (Vander Jagt is regularly debriefed), but officials worry about the mingling that goes on without notice.

4A—Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Monday, May 30, 1983

Seminole Community College won its second consecutive National Junior College Tennis Championship this past weekend in Ocala. The Raiders scored 43 points to top Tyler, Texas which was next with 35. The championship was a fitting end for the SCC program, which has grown to prominence under coach Larry Castle. Team members (from the left) include Mike Pernfors, Marty Bromfield, Phil Treen, Greg Miller, coach Castle, Tobias Svantesson, Dan Merritt, Thomas Lehn and Ake Svensson.

The weather didn't let up when the national tourney opened last Tuesday. In fact, it was just as hot as last year. SCC withstood the heat and its opponents as SCC advanced all six singles players and all three doubles teams into the semi-final rounds. The Raiders also got strong support from about 40 or 50 fans from Sanford, who braved the sweltering heat to cheer on the locals.

Going into the finals, SCC had already clinched a tie for the national title. And, at number one singles, defending no. 1 singles champ Mike Pernfors gave the SCC its second straight national crown when he beat Dan Eagle of Cook County, Texas, 6-2, 6-2. Pernfors, considered one of the finest athletes to ever play junior college tennis, is headed for the University of Georgia which was the eighth ranked major college team this season.

"Mike didn't lose a set in the entire tournament," Castle said. "There were 30 or 40 college scouts at the tournament, and all of them said he (Pernfors) will be an All-American at the major college level and perhaps be among the top 25 or 50 players in the world in two years."

At number three singles, Tobias Svantesson outlasted Quentin Victor of Tyler in three sets, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1. Svantesson, only a freshman, will go on a full scholarship to Oklahoma State University, the nation's 19th-ranked team, next season. Ake Svensson, SCC's number two player who didn't make the finals, will also attend Oklahoma State on a full scholarship.

Greg Miller, who was undefeated until the finals of nationals a year ago, won at number four singles, 6-1, 1-6, 6-1, over Juan Perez of Abraham Baldwin (Georgia). Miller will play at the University of Arizona next season.

National Tennis

At number five singles, SCC's Phil Treen, only a freshman, dropped a two set decision to Tyler's Henning, 6-1, 6-4. Treen will stay at the junior college level another year as he will go on to play for Palm Beach, one of the up and coming JC teams, next season. Mark Bromfield, a top notch doubles player for the Raiders, will also attend Palm Beach next year.

At number six singles, SCC's Dan Merritt dropped a close match to Kent McCauley of Central Florida, 6-4, 7-5. Merritt, who was ranked 187th in the state when he came to SCC and is now ranked 18th, will go on to the University of Tennessee-Martin next season.

The Raiders completed the national title by sweeping all three doubles titles. At number one doubles, Pernfors and Svantesson dominated Figurado and Victor of Tyler, 6-2, 6-2. Pernfors and Svantesson did not lose a set in the tournament. At number two doubles, Miller and Svensson won for the second straight year, 6-1, 6-1 over Wiley and Henning of Tyler. And, at number three doubles, Treen and Bromfield defeated Prest and Johnson of Gainesville (Georgia), 7-6, 6-2.

"It's really nice to win it all in your last year," Castle said. "We weren't invincible this year (24-3 record), and that made it even better. It was a complete and total team effort."

The Seminole Community College tennis program went out in style. And the Raiders will be remembered not only as one of the most powerful junior college tennis teams, but as one of the most successful teams in the history of junior college athletics.

Any Way You Spell It, Williams Is A Winner

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

A. Schowonda, B. Showonda, C. Schowanda, D. Shawanda.

Spell it any way you want, it comes out the same — winner. Lyman's splendid junior hurdler (A. B. C. D.) Williams wasn't the biggest, fastest or the strongest performer at the Golden South Classic Saturday at Winter Park's Showalter Field. But she may have been the most dominant.

Williams, who was favored to win the 440 intermediate hurdles, did that easily with a time of 61.3, just .1 off the meet record. And, it was the first time she had run that distance (she won the state 330 hurdles) in her career.

More impressive, however, was her victory in the 110 low hurdles where she has been a consistent placer all year, but didn't always win. In the 110s, she took the lead at the third hurdles and stretched it out to win in 14.1. It topped her personal best of 14.2.

In addition to Williams' double, the Lady Greyhounds, who finished second in the state meet, had another winner in high jumper Lori Carroll. The blonde-haired junior flopped over the bar at 5-8 to win by two inches. Angela French, a Lyman sophomore, finished fifth in the discus with a throw of 123-2 and Anjeanette Cleveland was fifth in the long jump with a leap of 18-2½. The Lyman girls also ran fourth in the 440 relay (49.2) and fifth in the mile relay (4:03.5).

In the "Golden Mile," Winter Park's Brian Jaeger reconfirmed his standing as the nation's best miler by running away from an excellent field in 4:09.2. Jaeger, who was upset by Lake Howell's Ken Cheeseman in the state meet, stayed in the middle of the pack as Cheeseman and Tulsa, Oklahoma's Mike Bilyeu set the pace during the first two laps. The first split was a bit slow (1:04.37), but things picked up a bit on the second leg (1:03.0).

Cheeseman, though, was struggling as he held the lead finishing the second lap and he fell back on the third leg. It then became a two-man race between Jaeger and 2A state champ Billy Convey from Miami Ramsom Everglades, who had run a 4:13 mile, but hadn't had the occasion of running with an elite field.

With 300 yards to go, Jaeger, taller and stronger than the rest of the field, kicked it into overdrive and pulled away from Convey to win easily. "It was something I had to prove to myself," Jaeger said after the redemption run. "People always expected me to win, and sometimes take that for granted. I needed to prove I was not finished for the season (after the loss in the state meet)."

Convey (4:10.6), Bilyeu (4:11.1), Toby Cook from Gladstone, Oregon (4:12.6) and Cheeseman (4:13.3) were next in line.

Other quality performances by county athletes included Lyman's John Fleber who finished third in the pole vault with a leap of 13-6. David Gatch, the top vaulter in the nation from River Ridge, Louisiana, jumped a career-best 16-9 to win. Lyman's Gene Allen was fourth in the 16-pound shot (41-7) and sixth in the 12-pound shot (53-34). Arnold Campbell, the top thrower in the country from Bossier City Airline,

Sixers Go Up 3-0 With Win

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — After seven consecutive playoff disappointments, after telling their fans six years ago "We owe you one" and watching the debt multiply, the Philadelphia 76ers are within a slam-dunk or two of the NBA crown.

They plan on making the first payment on the debt Tuesday night.

"I want this team to be remembered," said 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham. "I want to win it in four straight and I want to win it here, on the champions' court."

The 76ers, using a 14-0 blitz in the fourth period, moved within one victory of their first NBA title since 1967 with a convincing 111-94 triumph over the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers Sunday, taking a 3-0 lead in the series entering Tuesday night's Game 4.

NBA Final

And, as Cunningham wished, his 1982-83 76ers — who compiled a brilliant 67-15 regular-season record and have crushed everyone in the playoffs — should indeed be remembered.

The score was tied 72-72 entering the final period and the Lakers, with 15,505 fans on their feet, bolted to a four-point lead by scoring the first two baskets of the final period.

Sneva Outdistances Unser To Claim Indy

Racing

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The prize which eluded hard-driving racer Tom Sneva for so many years is finally his.

Sneva, 34, won the Indianapolis 500 Sunday, beating out three-time winner Al Unser by 11.1 seconds in the second-quietest event in the 67-year history of the greatest spectacle in racing.

Sneva, who finished second three times in his nine previous Indy races, took the lead on the 191st lap before zooming around the track on the final nine laps to easily outdistance Unser.

"It feels a lot better than being a bridesmaid," said Sneva, who became car owner George Bignotti's seventh Indianapolis winner. "I want to do this some more. I can't understand why we didn't do this before. It feels good."

The race boiled down to a battle between Sneva and Unser, who took the lead from his opponent on the 173rd lap after both pitted during a yellow-light period. Unser took only 11 seconds in his stop, while Sneva's crew conducted a full tire change and took 32 seconds.

When they returned to the track, the two contenders found themselves separated by Al Unser Jr., who was eight laps behind the leaders at the time. Al Jr., then played cat-and-mouse with Sneva, keeping the eventual winner from moving around.

Sneva said Unser passed two cars under the yellow light to get in that position, and said the youngster should get penalized. The younger Unser eventually did receive a two-lap penalty, which moved him from 10th to 12th in the standings.

"When we got behind someone, the turbulence really upset the car, but when we were in clean air it was fine," Sneva said. "With Little Al between us, Al Senior was in clean air and I had to get out of Little Al's turbulence."

When Sneva finally got past the Unsers, he was on his way to an impressive 10-lap run that saw him turn laps at 196 miles per hour.

"When he went around me, I knew there was nothing I could do," said Al Unser Sr., who finished second for the third time.

Unser said he made a mistake by not changing tires himself on the final pit stop.

"I should have put on new tires," he said. "I made totally the wrong decision on tires. I guess I had too many laps on them."

The only other driver to finish 200 laps was Rick Mears, who suffered pushing problems with his car for much of the race.

Geoff Brabham finished fourth after waiting halfway through the month to get a ride. He finally ended up in the V.D.S. entry after rookie John Paul Jr. was injured.

Kevin Cogan, who suffered greatly because of his car's malfunction at the crash-marred start of the 1982 race, redeemed himself by finishing fifth.

All of the other serious challengers for the title were not running at the race's end. Mike Mosley, who led for a single lap early in the race and ran in the top 10 most of the day, hit the wall in the first turn of the 189th lap and just missed getting clobbered by Sneva.

Defending champion Gordon Johncock lost a couple of gears early in the race and stopped running on lap 163. Bobby Rahal left the race after 110 laps because of a radiator leak and Danny Ongais stopped halfway through the race because of handling problems.

Four-time winner A.J. Foyt had his worst finish ever, halting his effort on the 24th lap because of a transmission problem.

Mario Andretti, driving the still-experimental Lola, was eliminated by an accident caused by Johnny Parsons on lap 80. The U.S. Auto Club also penalized Andretti for driving through someone else's pits, and sanctioned Bill Whittington for passing under a yellow light.

Almost forgotten was the impressive start by rookie pole-sitter Teo Fabi. Fabi led for the first 23 laps but was eliminated on the 48th lap by a faulty fuel-port gasket, which forced fuel out of the car during the Italian's second pit stop.

MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day was first observed in 1868 when General John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, issued an order designating the day as one on which the graves of soldiers would be decorated. The holiday was originally devoted to honoring the memory of those who fell in the Civil War, but is now dedicated to the memory of the dead of all wars.

In 1868 the nation was struggling to heal the wounds of the tragic rift between the states. In the last years of the century, the battle areas were San Juan Hill and Manila Bay with their heroes—Teddy Roosevelt and Admiral George Dewey.

Only 17 more years elapsed before battle casualties again claimed the nation's attention as thousands fell in such battles as Chateau-Thierry, Belleau Wood, Verdun, the Marne and the Somme. The national memorial, the battleship Arizona in Pearl Harbor, is the symbol of the next great con-flikt. Add to Arizona such names as Guadalcanal, Corregidor, the Coral Sea, Wake Island, Iwo Jima, North Africa, Anzio, Normandy, Bastogne and the bridge at Remagen where many more thousands fell before final surrender in World War II.

Only 33 years ago the Far East and Korea became the focal point of new conflict. There followed within a few years such strange places as Da Nang, Bien Hoa, Quang Tri and many other battle sites in the rice paddies and highlands of that bitter, frustrating war in Viet Nam.

As we remember them on this Memorial Day, the nation can be grateful for 11 years without a casualty list, and can honor the soldiers, sailors, and airmen who "gave their last full measure of devotion."

Be 1 Of 100

Donors Needed To Help Furnish Old Capitol

The governor and Florida Cabinet have endorsed a unique fund-raising campaign. Only the first 100 donors are eligible to take advantage of this fund raiser sponsored by the Museum of Florida History and the Florida History Associates.

The first step in the effort to furnish the Old Capitol will be the reproduction of 200 1902 legislative desks and chairs. With a donation of $1500, a desk and chair will be placed in the legislative chamber accompanied by a handsome plaque honoring the donor's contribution. In appreciation for the gift, an identical desk and chair will be presented to the donor.

"The opportunity to be a part of furnishing the Old Capitol will memorialize our continuing efforts in preserving Florida's history — as generations will pass through these doors. Your gift can help us reach the goal of making the 1902 seat of the government a cultural and historical center in which all Floridians can gather," stated Secretary of State, George Firestone.

The desks are fashioned from quarter sawn golden oak to enhance the multi-tones of the wood grain. The chair, reminiscent of the Windsor armchair, features a cane back and seat, with spindles, on a swivel base. Both will be meticulously handcrafted to match, line for line, the original detail. These beautiful reproductions will give the needed sense of warmth and life to the refurbished Chambers.

Former Governor LeRoy Collins, President of Florida History Associates, adds, "We are enthusiastic and optimistic that this fund-raising program will be successful. Working together with the Museum of Florida History, we can further enrich our heritage for all Floridians by dedicating ourselves to interpreting the governmental history of the state."

Furnishing the Old Capitol is one step in this direction. The program is coordinated by the Museum of Florida History. For more details contact the Development Office at (904) 488-1484.

Living Will Gives Peace Of Mind

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for mentioning the Living Will in your column again.

I read about it in your column five years ago and obtained two — one for myself and one for my wife. We're both 65 and in good health. We're 70 now and hope to have many good years ahead of us, but one never knows.

I am enclosing a copy of the column I clipped. Please give it another run. I am sure there are thousands of people who will benefit from it as we have.

DEAR C&L: Here it is:
DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for the most wonderful present I have ever received. Because of an item in your column last year, I sent for the Living Will. Now I have peace of mind, knowing that if my husband or I should ever become terminally ill, our loved ones will never have to watch us die slow and agonizing deaths as some we have witnessed.

I saw my handsome 6-foot, 200-pound father waste away to an 88-pound skeleton after fighting a two-year battle with cancer. The doctors told us it was hopeless, yet they kept that poor dear man alive month after month with transfusions, tubes, needles and drugs, while he prayed to God to take him.

Abby, you would do millions of readers a priceless service by acquainting them with the Living Will as you did me.

GRATEFUL IN JOLIET, ILL.

DEAR GRATEFUL: Thank you for giving me this opportunity to publicize the Living Will again. It reads as follows:

LIVING WILL

"To my family, my physician, my clergyman, my lawyer: If the time comes when I can no longer take part in decisions for my own welfare and if there is no reasonable expectation of my recovery from physical or mental disability, I request that I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by artificial means or heroic measures, as I fear the indignity of deterioration, dependence and hopeless pain more than death itself. I ask that drugs be mercifully administered to me for terminal suffering even if they hasten the moment of death. You who care for me will, I hope, feel morally bound to follow this mandate. This statement is made to relieve you of responsibility and to mitigate any feelings of guilt.

"Signed:
"Date:
"Witness:
"Copies of this request have been given to:"

The Living Will can be obtained by writing to: Society for the Right to Die, 250 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

Yes, I have signed one. I requested six copies and enclosed my check for $10 to cover cost of documents and mailing. (It is tax-deductible.)

If you send for the Living Will, please be patient. I promise your request will not be overlooked. Be sure to enclose your name and address, clearly written.

The documents are free, but this is a non-profit organization, so all donations are gratefully accepted.

One woman requested eight copies and enclosed her check for $500, saying, "This is the most marvelous thing I've ever heard of." I agree.

P.S. If you or your lawyer have any questions concerning the legality of the Living Will, please write to the above address.
