After a football season in which everybody who happened to be anybody happened to be a backfield man, the possibilities for going wrong in the selection of an All-American team may be said to be excellent. It is the presumption of Mrs. Walsh's boy today that undoubtedly he has gone wrong, reading from left to right and from front to rear. As a matter of fact, the man doesn't live who can name the 12 best backs of the year from the staggering list at hand and make everybody like his work.

There has been no attempt, however, to apportion backfield stars by the positions they occupied during the year. Both Cagle and Strong ran to their right but don't see what that has to do with it. They were the best runners of the season and what we are trying to do is arrive at a selection of the four leaders and place them in one backfield. It happens to think they were Cagle, Strong, Mizell and Seull.

This alignment shunts Harper to the second team where, possibly he doesn't belong. However, some one must suffer from the extreme prodigality of backs this year and Harper's position in this respect is no worse than that of scores of fine ball players who don't make the raffle anywhere long as the following list may be, in any complete, at all: California; Wisconsin; Braul; Detroit; Glasgow, Iowa; Holmer, North-western; Bennett, Indiana; Welch, Purdue; Gillespie, Villanova; Thompson, Georgia Tech; Banker, Tulane; McEwen, Tennessee; Weston, Boston College; Nagasaki, Pennsylvania; McLain, Iowa; Wilson, Princeton; Scholer, Pennsylvania; Nlemie and Chevray, Notre Dame; French and Guarnacchi, Harvard; Miles, Princeton;
Hess, Nebraska; Maple, Oregon;
Kemper, Fieldhacker and any one of the other standard backs: Hart, Colorado; Follet, N. Y. U.;
Hess, Carnegie Tech; Williams,
Southern California; Trauger, Iowa;
Haysinger, Syracuse; Couch,
Ohio; Thomas, Southern California; Robert, Marquette; and Peak, of the best in the South.

Somebody obviously must take charge here and Harper, dropped behind the first flight, simply is not the way before what appears to be the natural superiority of the others. He cannot run with anybody. He cannot punt. He cannot do anything but support and kick goals with the exception of the fact that he can punt. He cannot do anything but support and kick goals with the exception of the fact that he can punt. He cannot do anything but support and kick goals with the exception of the fact that he can punt.

As a result of its 60-0 victory over Washington and Lee on Saturday, Florida has captured high scoring honors for the year among the country's football teams. With 10 touchdowns the All-American lead, New York University, the runner up by eight points. Other leaders are: Georgetown, 39; Stanford, 34; Pennsylvania, 28; Detroit, 27; and Southern California, 27.

GRID SCHEDULES OF 1929 TO HAVE UNUSUAL APPEAL

Varied Intersectional Contests Will Dominate Next Season

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—(INS)—If anyone entertains suspicions that the recent football season was about the best we could possibly have, just let him wait a moment before committing himself irrevocably to that belief. A glance at the 1929 Big Ten schedule, and a quick perusal of the dates to reveal big games, more big games and then some more of them.

Intersectional clashes galore are listed for the conference eleven. Harvard, Pittsburg, Navy, Army, Colgate and Princeton are some of the Eastern clubs scheduled to match skill with Big Ten outfits this coming fall, just by way of a starter. The University of Washington Huskies, never before seen in these parts, are dug to come here for a contest with Chicago while the South sends Vanderbilt northward to oppose Minnesota as another addition to intersectional play.

Here, briefly, are some of the outstanding dates on next year's card, to be announced officially this Friday and Saturday at the annual Big Ten meetings: Chicago at Princeton, Nov. 2; Washington at Chicago, Nov. 23; Army at Illinois, Nov. 9; Colgate at Wisconsin, Oct. 5; Harvard at Michigan, Nov. 9; Vanderbilt at Minnesota, Oct. 12; Ohio at Pittsburg, Nov. 2; Navy at Ohio, Nov. 16.

Intersectional games alone, however, are not all that add glamour to the conference list. Notre Dame perennial rival of the Big Ten teams, makes three appearances against eleven from Major Grif-fith's circuit—Indiana, Wisconsin and Northwestern.

The Northwestern clash is the first of a three-game series arranged several years ago, and will wind up the season at Pyle's Stadium Nov. 23. Rockne's ramblers are booked to meet Indiana at Bloomington, Oct. 5; and Wisconsin at Southbend, Oct. 19. There are reports that the latter may be transferred to Soldiers' Field, but it is our understanding that the contract with Northwestern provides that no other games are to be played locally except the one with the Wildcats.

The coming season will also be marked by the renewal of the Chicago-Princeton series, a series that has brought out some of football's greatest thrills in recent years.

Ball Club Owners Gather For Annual Minor League Meet

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 3.—(INS)—Owners and managers of baseball clubs in all parts of the United States began to assemble here today for the annual Minor League meetings, which will be continued through most of the week. Meetings of the International League and the American Association will start the program.

An effort probably will be made during the week to clarify the draft problem. At present the Major can draft only former big leaguers from the American Association. The International League, the Pacific Coast League and the Three-Eye Circuit and the Western League. The Major Leagues want all players in these leagues made subject to the draft.

With the arrival of the big league magnates and managers, trades are in the air. The New York Yankees can get Dale Alexander, the first baseman who hung up several batting records last season for $100,000. But that is considerable more than the Yankees are willing to pay for Alexander, who if purchased would be used only as an understudy to Lou Gehrig.

GATORS HIGH SCORERS

THE AMERICANS NEW FIGHTING BLOOD By Burriss Jenkins Jr.

MR. COOLIDGE TO GET BID TO HEAD BIG OIL COMPANY

Petroleum Institute To Tell President To Fix Own Salary

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—A move to offer the presidency of the American Petroleum Institute to President Coolidge at the institute's annual meeting in Chicago, December 20, has been started by officials favoring the industry.

Those favoring Mr. Coolidge for the position have been sounding out the opinion of other members of the institute and have received such an enthusiastic response that his election now hinges only on his willingness to accept.

Pending a more complete canvass of members, Mr. Coolidge has not yet been asked to indicate whether he would be receptive to the offer, but his name will be presented to the meeting and all possible pressure will be brought to bear on him to accept. Mr. Coolidge will be allowed to name his own salary.

Mr. Coolidge is being advocated as head of the institute, which includes in its membership practically all of the important factors in the oil trade, because of the prestige he would bring to that body. Many members feel that the institute is greatly in need of being restored to an influential place in the nation's affairs because of the attempt that will soon be made to obtain legal authority from the Federal government to overcome the crisis of overproduction by allowing companies to enter into agreements to restrict output to an economic level.

Should Mr. Coolidge decline to accept the position, attempts will then be made to revere Charles Evans Hughes, president. General John J. Pershing also has been suggested.

Men in the oil industry backing the election of Mr. Coolidge hold that the industry as a whole has not yet been cleared of the blame attaching to it from the Sinclair and Doherty scandals. Both Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Doherty were elected to the board of directors of the Institute at its annual meeting last December, although many members expressed their resolution before the convention. Also, it is understood that Colonel Robert W. Stewart will again be shown in the Directorate at the next meeting.

WOMAN ATTACKS CELIBACY AMONG ENGLISH CLERGY

Novelist Claims Bachelorhood Practice Is Setting Bad Example

LONDON, Dec. 4. — Celibacy in the ranks of the Church of England Divinity has been made the target for attack from lay quarters...

Mrs. Theodora Cory in private life is one of the leading figures among the younger British novelists. Her latest book "After Hell" is scheduled for publication in the autumn.

Asserting that there are too many bachelors in Holy Orders, Miss Graham declared:

"I feel some protest ought to be made about the increasing celibacy in the church. The appointment of the bachelor Dr. Lang to the Archbishopric of Canterbury has drawn attention to the fact that there are nine bachelor bishops."

"Why are they bachelors? If they think married life handicaps a man in his career or his intellectual development, why is it that the bishops are always the first to cry 'Hands off the home' and talk about the sanctity of home life and advocate large families."

"In my opinion the reason is usually selfishness. I really believe that some of them think no woman is good enough for them, and that the woman would spoil their intellectuality."

"What foolish creatures they are. No man is complete without a woman and the church should draw the best kind of men."

"A bachelor has no one to point out his faults. No one but a wife would dare to tell him that his sermons are too long or that he is vain or pompous. Nobody tells him and so his faults and weaknesses increase as he grows older."

"Marriage—I am assuming it is a happy marriage, of course—melts and improves every man. Marriage is one of the 'worth whiles' of living. A married man has a greater influence socially and spiritually. We do not want the lives of the unmarried male to enter into diocesan work. A happily married man carries more weight than a dozen bachelors. I am not alluding to the weight of character, but the weight of power. A priest has to be the father of his flock. How can he fill this role unless he knows something of the dignity of fatherhood."

"Neither a man nor a woman in distress is going to seek out a bachelor to confide in him or to turn to him for guidance. Married people however ignorant they are know more about love than any bachelor."

It was suggested: "Then you would not advocate celibacy—single women being allowed responsible positions in the church."

To which Miss Graham replied: "Yes, I would. I think the church is badly in need of women, and that it would attract the best type of woman. Young men frequently go into the ministry because they have to make a living. Women would never do that. They would go into it with their whole heart and soul and they would make good preachers."

"I think, as a beginning, the church might humanize its services by allowing women in the 'Angelic choir.' Then it could start letting women read the lessons and become choir masters and church maidens."

Hindenburg Lauds School Girl Who Won World Fencing Title

BERLIN, Dec. 4. —(INS)—Friedrich Helms Mayer, Olympic fencing champion, is proud of the best scores for staying away from school that a German girl could possibly produce.

She was excused from school for one day only to attend to recreation given by President von Hindenburg to the German Olympic victors. When Hindenburg heard of the brightness of her vacation he immediately set down instructions to the director of the school as follows:

"Please inform Frau Helms Mayer that school for another day. After an hour she is to have a lesson in fencing and she would like to show her the Berlin school."

ENGLISH WHISKEY TRADE HOLDS ITS 45TH EXHIBITION

Is Not Disturbed Over Threats Of Biggest Prohibition Attack

LONDON, Dec. 4 (INS) In no way perturbed by Prohibitionist threats of the biggest "dry" offensive in the country's history, the British liquor trade is holding its forty-fifth annual exhibition at the Royal Agricultural Hall here.

Millions of bottles of beer, ale, spirits, wines and liqueurs, mounted upon mile on mile of stands, bore mute testimony to the strength of "the trade," with its unlimited millions of capital and multi-millionaire heads.

Highly efficient machinery for the rapid filling, corking and waxing of barrels and bottles clanked for ten hours daily during the run of the exhibition, sounding what must have appeared to be a note of defiance to any "dry" visiting the hall.

Red faced salesmen, morning coated and bearing other outward signs of the unparalyzed prosperity now being enjoyed by the liquor trade here, were active in telling visitors of the means the breweries are now employing to ensure that the Briton get his liquor as near perfect as possible.

Even the hops, malt and barley, it would seem, are subjected to keen analytical tests for purity, while up to date machinery has displaced the human element in the washing, bottling and filling of the various types of alcohol. Even the labelling and crating of bottles is performed by machinery to satisfy the desire of the present day "jargon-keeper" that his wares be untouched by human hand.

The idea, reminiscent of the old American saloon days of stimulating the drinker's thirst by persuading him to eat salty nibbles, is now being widely employed by British saloons. Half a dozen stalls at the exhibition were devoted entirely to the display of roasted and nuttily salted peanuts, hot dogs, potato crisps, and the like, giving the visitor the impression that the task of saloon keepers nowadays is not so much the awaiving of thirst, but creating it.

Similarly, the saloon-keeper is making a big bid to have his customers drink their liquor in the saloon instead of at home. To this end he is installing on his premises "above bar" penny boards, checkers, bowling alleys, billiard tables, piano and piano mandolin and even violin "effects."

According to exhibitors, many saloons, especially in the poorer districts of the big cities, are losing trade through the present day fad for consuming liquor at home and the breweries are cooperating with the saloons to win back this lost trade by making the saloons more "home like."

The customary beer making competitions proved a popular feature of the exhibition. Some two score ruddy but solemn-visaged men, looking more like clergymen than beer-tasters, daily drew off glasses of sparkling beer from hundreds of barrels, sipped a little expectorated, and then made notes upon the color, density, ability to produce foam, and other points of the liquor.

Practically every big brewer in the country annually enters for this competition, the winning of which is the hall-mark of brewing fame. Seven hundred samples constituted this year's entry and provided the taster with a full week's work.

Army Attracts 252 Sets Of Brothers, 20 Of Them At Benning

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. —(INS)—"Will you take me brudder too?" is not an unusual question asked army recruiting officers. A survey by the War Department has disclosed that there are 252 sets of brothers "who are in the army now" and in the same regiment. In 10 sets there are three brothers serving together while the remainder are of two of the same family.

There are 20 sets of brothers quartered at Fort Benning, Ga., with the Twenty-ninth Infantry. One includes a "party" of three brothers. The Eighth Infantry, stationed at Fort Stevens, Ga., has a trio of "three-brother-sets."

The foregoing figures do not include brothers who are serving in the Army with different units. The list includes only those who found the recruiting officer "sold the truth" when he pledged they would not be separated.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

John 11:14 For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

BETHROTHAL Forty stalwart men-at-arms in shining cloth of gold; One out of forty-one, Free and bold.

Forty sturdy, men-at-arms With cheeks of apple red, One with a scornful mouth And a proud head.

Forty blowing buglers, Forty men astride, Heralding the King's son Coming for his bride.

Caskets spilling amethysts Chests of silk and fur, And a careless guardsman To yank his eyes to her.

Bleaten gold and perfume Coins and fillings, And a mocking guardsman For her heard to see.

Here is the King's son With loud fanfare; Why should a man-at-arms Stand and stare?

Here is the King's son, Brave and wise; Why has a man-at-arms Laughing eyes?

"We Won't Obey!" New Bride; "Headline, As if they ever did."

Judging from the newspaper headlines, together that the age of the tomahawk is about to return.

Thank goodness the football season will be over Saturday and we won't have to pick any more losers again this year.

It looks like the Tampa Tribune columnist as if the Miami dog man may prove to have a "white hamper" for their hands.

In 1922, according to statistics compiled recently, nearly a billion chickens were raised in Florida, but there are several that haven't been caught yet.

The Literary Digest has been crowing so much about the accuracy of its straw vote that we can't resist the temptation of saying that The Herald's straw vote was as far off either.

The Mayflies are said to have spent seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars on the recent wedding of Estelle Manville to King Bernadotte, a nephew of King Gustav of Sweden. These doted marriages certainly come high.

William Lawson, who ran against Mrs. Owen, and has since been reported as about to contest her right to being seated in the House on grounds of citizenship indignities, denies that he will take any such step. The Orlando News has apparently decided it to be the better part of valor to be good loser.

The Daytona Beach News-Journal has again changed hands. The new owners are Herbert Davison and his father, Julius Davison. We hope that they will bring to the News-Journal a certain stability which has been noticeably lacking in it since it separates newspapers then, passed from the control of Spearman and Fitzgerald.

It is all right to refer to Mrs. Owen as the president-elect. We really don't know, for she hasn't been elected until after the inauguration of the Senate and the House have been announced by the President-elect.

The members of the band have been rehearsing two and three times each week for some time and

Paying Doctors' Bills

It has recently been brought to our attention that the Seminole County Medical Society has adopted resolutions which have the effect of putting all accounts on a sixty day credit basis. This move is explained as having been made necessary by the delinquency of a large number of persons in paying their doctors' bills.

Such stringent action has been made necessary not particularly a reflection upon this community. Rather, it is an unfortunate commentary on a peculiar characteristic of human nature the world over.

We have often wondered why it is that the doctor is not the first to be paid. It would seem that a person who has gone through a severe illness or suffered from the pain of a broken arm or operation, would be so grateful to the physician who has relieved his suffering and perhaps saved his life that he would be actually eager to receive his bill and repay, so far as he can with money, the services rendered.

But that does not seem to be the case. We wonder if the psychological reaction is not something like this: A man suddenly taken ill and is forced to remain in bed for several weeks. The doctor fixes him up, but he feels that he has received rather a raw deal from the world in general or ever having been sick at all.

Or perhaps he just figures that lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place and that he won't get sick again. Hence he will have no further need for doctor's services; but he will have to buy food, clothes, and that little sport roadster; so he'll just let the doctor's bill go a-while.

In the meantime the doctors struggle along on what their more considerate patients give them. Doctors have to pay cash, just as anybody else does, when they go to the movies, to a restaurant, and when they do lots of other things.

What is, of course, most to be desired, is that all bills be paid promptly, but when this is not possible, it is hardly right to always make the doctor wait until the last.

Florida Facts

Every day we are running into facts regarding Florida's natural wealth and resources with which we had heretofore been unfamiliar. For instance, we knew that phosphate is mined here than in all the rest of the United States put together.

Florida leads the nation in the production of: Grape fruit, celery, fuller's earth and phosphate (84 per cent of the United States production) and in the following winter-crop products: Tomatoes, snap beans, egg plants, cucumbers, peppers and Irish potatoes.

Farm income of Florida for 1921: Field crops, $16,036,900; truck crops $13,967,000; fruits and nuts, $50,692,000; live stock, $5,885,594; poultry and eggs, $11,720,087; dairy products, $12,619,319; miscellaneous crops, $6,427,019; Total $135,347,010.

The fruit and truck, grown on 237,501 acres, realized $1,834,216, or the equivalent of $235 per acre. Total federal taxes, 1927, $44,483,095.42, or $32.664 per capita. Average rainfall, 51.9 inches (93 stations); average temperature, 72 degrees.

Exports from Florida, 1926, $50,860,904; imports to Florida, $27,306,991. Population, estimate, September 30, 1928, 1,300,000; assessed valuation, 1917, $322,216,072; 1927, $727,821,318, or over 125 per cent increase.

Resources of banks, 1927, $518,438,829; value of manufacturers, 1925, $267,009,159; value of minerals, 1926, $20,274,489.

BAND SEASON OPENS

This afternoon the first winter season band concert will be given at Recreation park bandshell, by Bradenton's own concert band, an organization composed of Bradenton musicians and directed by a home town leader.

Two seasons ago Bradenton employed Bobbie Bruller, noted Scotch tenor who organized a band and played throughout the season. Again last season the Bruller organization was employed by the city. There was considerable agitation among many of the people regarding the employment of musicians who did not reside in Bradenton with the result that this season a band composed almost entirely of Bradenton residents has been employed.

Because of the existence of this feeling that city money should be spent at home, The Herald joined in urging council to employ the Bradenton Concert band and today this band will play its first concert as a professional organization, in the strictest sense of the word.

The members of the band have been rehearsing two and three times each week for some time and

This Afternoon

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II

"Until a man might travel twelve about miles. Or treat an acre of his neighbors' corn."

The St. Petersburg Times complains that its Pinellas county district received less direct aid in state road construction as much as it has paid into the state treasury in gasoline taxes.

The theory of Florida's state road construction program and of the gasoline tax that makes it possible is that Florida is a unit and that what helps the unit helps all of the parts.

If every dollar drawn by the state in taxation is to be expended to return directly to the exact square mile from which it came there is no use drawing it at all.

The Parent-Teachers associations of Duval county have been advised that the orchestra at the Florida Theatre in Jacksonville which was ousted in favor of a novelties music will be reinstated.

If the radio, the phonograph, the motion picture and the sound picture are permitted to centralize the sources of entertainment in the hands of a few artists, they will eventually destroy their own natural resources of talent by eliminating the incentive to development of the amateur in the thousand and one communities of the country.

It probably isn't possible but a post season football game between Florida and Georgia Tech (in the event that both win next Saturday) would draw somewhere near the biggest crowd ever assembled in the South and would rival in competitive interest any event ever staged in this section.

And if Florida instead of Tech were invited to play the University of California at Pasadena on New Year's Day, that would be a competition approaching downright civil war.

In the order of the day (which the Gators have made football) Bill Pepper of the Gainesville Sun is sitting prattler than any of his fellow Florida editors since he is located at the core of the excitement and is as great an authority on football as he is on politics or economics.

For civic pride we nominate Col. Herbert Felkel of the St. Augustine Record. Asked to decide a debate on the proper syllable to be accented in pronouncing "St. Augustine," he has handed down an opinion that all of the syllables should be accented. He would even throw in a few exclamation points too, we imagine.

number, but has overcome them and now his dream is to come true, and more even than this, he is the director of that band.

The Herald is confident that his faith in the success of this band will be borne out during the season and that which the present contract has been completed, the people will be satisfied with the calibre of the entertainment. Under their present contract, taking into consideration the heavy expense which the band has been forced to meet in preparing to present their programs, the members are not going to make much for themselves but they were anxious to be given a chance, they have it and we are certain that they will be equal to the demands of their audience.

SELLING A GOOD POLICY

ELIGIBILITY OF MRS. OWEN

ORLANDO REPORTER STAR

The question that has been made toward presenting the seating of Mrs. Ruth Owen as representative in congress from the fourth Florida district will find little sympathy either in or out of congress.

Congress under the constitution is a body of the eligibility of its membership. That body has several times had to pass upon the right to a seat where there was a contest as to which candidate was actually elected, or where fraud was charged. But the eligibility of a representative about whose election there is no question, is quite a different question and congress would be slow to disturb the will of the people.

Congress possesses no power to elect members or to fill vacancies. It can seat congressmen where there is a dispute as to which is entitled to the seat, but if a congressman who has been elected cannot qualify under the constitution then there is a vacancy that would have to be filled by a special election.

In this particular case the question is so peculiarly technical and so far afield from the intent and purpose of the constitution as to be a very questionable procedure. Nobody questions the actual citizenship of this eminent American-born woman whose citizenship is only questioned for political purposes and grows out of her absence from this country while she was engaged in a great humanitarian service.

It may be doubted if Mr. Lawson has any serious notion of contesting the eligibility of Mrs. Owen. Indeed, his friends say he is not how could he be? Here would be the question he would have to answer to congress and to his countrymen: "If you knew all these facts which you now claim and had affidavits you propose to submit, why did you not present them to the voters of your district before the election so that they might avoid voting for a person disqualified under the constitution? Don't you know, Mr. Lawson, that by your silence then you now put yourself in a position whereby you would rob your district of representation in the closing session of this congress when it most needs representation? This is exactly the situation.

As to Mr. Sears, he is even in a worse situation for challenging the eligibility of Mrs. Owen than is Mr. Lawson. When he arises and asserts that he knew of her ineligibility and that he went so far as to get the opinion of go-constituted lawyers on the question of her ineligibility before the June primary will not congress say, Mr. Sears, if you possessed that information and honestly believed that she was disqualified under the constitution, it was your duty to over this land, Mrs. Owen regarded as one of our most prominent American women. Her will be adjudged on a unanimous vote when the play is staged. The majority of congressmen are broadminded and fair play will be a part of such a method of settling the choice of the people's representative.
