Learning Foreign Languages

The study of foreign languages in this country is becoming more and more important, and rightly, as its importance increases, more and more popular. Not many years ago the only language taught in our secondary schools was English, though possibly sometimes Greek and Latin put in an appearance to add a classical touch to the atmosphere. Nowadays we find much less of the erudite but dead languages and much more of highly practical and worthwhile French, Spanish, and other foreign tongues.

Just which is the most important language on earth today is perhaps a little difficult to prove although a natural prejudice might make us say English. At least it can be said that a knowledge of English will take one comfortably through North America, the British Empire, parts of which can be found almost anywhere one happens to be, and in most countries of Europe where an English speaking waiter is sure to be found at any restaurant which boasts a good sirloin steak or roast beef.

It may be a surprise to some that even in the Orient the English language is growing in popularity. English and American missionaries, and universities, some of which have established "branch colleges" in China and Japan, have played an important part in teaching English to orientals. In most of the Chinese ports and even in some parts of the interior, almost all natives speak some form of English, usually what they call "pidgin," a degenerate form of English, but capable of being understood. English is taught in the schools of Japan as a second language. It is the second language of modern Russia. In South Africa it is understood to some extent almost everywhere.

In view of the fact that English is so universally spoken, one might be expected to ask, "Why learn French or Spanish?" One might just as sensibly ask, "My wife understands me, why should I try to understand her?" Other nationals are learning to understand Americans as they are learning to understand English. But unless Americans learn to understand Spanish, they will never learn to understand Brazilians, Argentinians, or Cubans. You would be at a material disadvantage at a conference of French bankers, for instance, all of whom could understand every word you said, but none of whom you could understand at all.

With the great increase in travel and international business relations, with the amazing improvement in transportation facilities, while it is possible to go to Havana in three or four hours when it used to take two days, while it is almost commonplace to fly to Rio in four days when it used to take three weeks by boat, it cannot be denied that the importance of understanding neighbors, whose proximity is now so close, has been vastly increased.

Courage And Confidence

Calvin Coolidge, since he relinquished the reins of government to his successor, Herbert Hoover, has turned his thoughts to fields of journalism. When he might have been president of the United States Steel Corporation, or head of Electric Bond and Share, it is amazing why he should choose newspaper work, but the fact remains that Mr. Coolidge is now a daily contributor to the New York Herald Tribune and a score or more of other newspapers. Recently, of current depression, he wrote:

"This universe into which we are born, with all its weaknesses and imperfections, yet with all its strength and progress, is the only one in which we can live, and we may as well make the best of it. The people with whom we come in contact, the business organizations which we have formed and the government we have adopted are the only ones we have and we can hope for improvement only by working with them and for them with all our ability. We cannot receive the benefits of prosperity and escape bearing the burdens of adversity.

"Every other nation looks on us with envy. When their governments are being overturned by disorder and revolution, our own country is quiet and orderly, our government is strong and responsive to the needs of the people, and our greatest city is able to contribute over $10,000 an hour for a month for charitable relief. The moral force of the country, the courage and confidence of the people, the ability to live nobly have been emphasized by our problems. The people of the United States are showing they can meet their obligations to each other and to the world."

We might well apply this sermon to Sanford. Whatever misfortunes we have endured here, whatever hardships we may be called upon to bear in the future, this is our city and we should make the best of it. Not every day can be a bright and cheery day. The rain falls everywhere sometimes. We are learning to accept adversity with prosperity, defeat with victory. Courage and confidence will see us through.

MEDICAL ASPECTS OF CRIME

Some idea of the complexity of the problem of the medical aspects of crime which a subcommittee of the national crime commission has been studying during the last two years is gained from the length of its report and recommendations. Briefly though they are outlined, they cover 24 typewritten pages. The prodigious subject of medical testimony and the proper determination of the sanity of criminals has been surveyed with a view to correcting such evils as now exist. The aim is "to assure a greater degree of justice to the individual offender, but even more important, a greater and surer degree of protection to society."

One of the most pertinent phases of the inquiry concerned so-called "expert testimony" as to the sanity of persons accused of crime. Questionnaires were addressed to 2,104 judges and 401 penal and correctional institutions. Such notorious cases as those of Leeb and Leopold in Chicago and Remus in Cincinnati, according to the committee, leave the public under a mistaken impression that the psychiatrist figures prominently in all criminal cases—for the state, the prisoner, or both. As a matter of fact, "there are many cases where the defendant is so obviously insane that there is no difference of opinion," as well as "many cases in which other kinds of experts function without attracting the same degree of public attention." The eccentricities of the law of evidence often cause the innocent to be blamed for results which really are not his fault.

The committee found as well

FEMINE FORM

NEW YORK TIMES

Gender in the English language is a tricky and unaccountable thing. Miss Isabel MacDonald has been suggesting the use of the term "bachelor girl" instead of "spinster." A group of unmarried women gave an exhibition of domestic appliances not long ago. They called it the Bachelor Girls' Exhibition, and Miss MacDonald approved the title, because "spinster has opprobrious implications." Perhaps it has, but if that is true, any other name applied to the species will soon acquire the same implications. Miss Rose Macaulay has pointed out, in a discussion of gender in The Week-end Review, that it is a futile hope to try to improve the feminine status by making nouns meaning women masculine. Languages in which gender of nouns is the rule can more easily change them from one to another. A female artist is an "artist," and "garemo" has a definite and necessary meaning in French.

Perhaps it is because the English are so much closer to Continental Europe than we are they use feminine suffixes on a number of words. They speak of an authoress or a manageress, where Americans would let the gender go. In Fowler's "Dictionary of English Usage" there is a defense of feminine designations, because "the more civilized the language, the more such words it possesses." Miss Macaulay demurs. She likes the discretion of English, which permits her to say as little as she can with the words she is compelled to use. With the Continental languages one may not say "I am going out with a friend" without revealing the sex of the friend. It seems more civilized to conceal in such instances than to tell all Americans who are amused when they hear "girl-friend" or "boy-friend" used in a seriousness well inclined to agree that it is better taste if not actually more civilized to use a word of less specific meaning.

There is another argument for the use of genderless nouns. Certain words are much stronger if they may be applied universally. Miss Macaulay cites some—humane, lover, tyrant, glutton, bore, baby and fool. It would often be inconvenient and might be extremely uncomplimentary to one sex or the other if words of this kind had gender.

uniform legislation. "Unfortunately," the report comments, "it has been found impossible to formulate a satisfactory definition of what constitutes mental disease or what the law calls 'insanity.' Yet justice makes it impossible to ignore the medical aspects of crime. There are many cases in which psychiatry is able to point the way; where there is doubt, the proper treatment may eventually provide a basis for further legal action. This is beyond such objections as those concerning so-called 'experts' who give the impression of offering their testimony to the highest bidder. A state system, such as the committee recommends, would minimize the evil. There is a well-mapped course for improvement in the report, and the country would be wise to consider it seriously.

"It's the little things that tell"

THAT'S what big sister said to her boy friend as she pulled little brother out from under the sofa. But wait till big sister and the boy friend are man and wife, with a home of their own to run. Then how much more she'll realize the truth of her observation!

For then the age old problems will come pressing hard. So much in the pocketbook. So much on the shopping list. Will it fit? Then's when the little things make the big difference. The little savings—the small economies—the slightly better values of which a good housekeeper takes advantage.

Then's when big sister will read the advertisements as she never read them before. Comparing values; learning reliable brands; watching the bargain and reduction announcements... The advertisements will help her in a thousand ways to take care of the little things, acquire the little short-cuts in time and effort—in the big job of running a home.

Read the advertisements every day. Consistently advertised goods are worthy of your confidence. ... otherwise they couldn't be consistently advertised.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"IS THE UNIVERSE, INCLUDING MAN, EVOLVED BY 'MAGIC FORCE?'" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches of Christ, Scientist, on Friday, December 21.

The Golden Text was from Luke 14:5-6, "Happy is he that feareth the God of Jacob for his seed, whose hope is in the Lord God, which made heaven, and earth, the sea, and all that therein which keepeth truth for ever."

Among the citations which composed the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods." (Psalm 24:1,2).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "We and Health with Key to Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The scientific divine creation created by God, in mind creates and governs from the mental molecule to unity. This divine Principle of expression Science and art throughout His creation, and the mortality of man and the universe" (p. 507).

KORFANTY FREED

KATOWICZ, Poland, Dec. 22. (AP)—Adelbert Korfanty, opposition leader who disagreed with Marshal Pilsudski and was imprisoned in the fortress at Brest-Litovsk, was welcomed home by hundreds of cheering friends today. He was liberated Saturday. Korfanty looked weak from imprisonment but spoke guardedly about his experiences.

Song-Writing Trio Produce Big Hit In

DeSylva, Brown and Henderson and David Butler have done it again.

Their new Fox Movietone musical comedy romance, "Just Imagine," which had its premiere performance at the Milane Theatre last night, is a worthy successor to their masterpiece of yesterday, "Sunny Side Up."

"Just Imagine" is a new theme and treatment, has a brilliant cast headed by the inimitable El Brendel and has a number of songs of the calibre which has made DeSylva, Brown and Henderson the greatest song writing team in the world.

These young men, who also wrote the story and dialog, have projected their picture fifty years into the future. The love interest, which centers about Maurice O'Sullivan and John Garrick, tells of the romance of the "Lindbergh of 1980" in a gripping and sustained fashion.

Brendel has one of the greatest roles of his career and scores repeatedly. In fact he is now our favorite comedian. Miss O'Sullivan is everything that his fantastic friends have said of her, and that is, plenty. Garrick reveals a charming singing voice and is handsome and manly in the leading male role. His acting is above reproach.

Marjorie White, who all but scampered away with the hilarious honors in "Sunny Side Up," does almost the same thing in this picture, although she has much less to do. Her vivacious personality completely dominates every scene in which she appears.

Frank Albertson, in a light comedy role, is a riot in himself. He makes a perfect team mate for Miss White, and the way they put over their song number, "Never Swat a Fly," is a revelation.

Jeyzelle is effective as the Martian queen, Igen Linow as the Martian slave, and other roles are capably handled by Kenneth Thomson, Hobart Bosworth, Wilfred Lucas and Mischa Auer.

The song numbers, of course, are outstanding and we believe that Director David Butler has scored another triumph which outshines his previous brilliant effort of "Sunny Side Up."

Mrs. M. B. Smith Fetes "Owl" Club Members

Complimenting the members of the "Owl" bridge club, Mrs. M. B. Smith entertained with a bridge party Saturday evening at her home on Palmetto Avenue.

Adorning the rooms where the guests were received was a profusion of poinsettias and fern. Tullies and other party appointments bore Christmas designs.

After five progressions of bridge, high score prize, a silhouetted, went to Mrs. W. A. Routh, while low score prize, a smaller silhouetted, was given to Mrs. W. E. Varn.

At a late hour a sweet course was served with coffee by the hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Hall. Those present were: Mrs. F. R. Adams, Mrs. J. O. Huff, Mrs. J. E. Baker, Mrs. W. E. Varn, Mrs. W. A. Routh, Mrs. E. J. Routh and Miss Chloe Routh.

Mrs. McNab Receives Certificate In Music

Despite inclement weather conditions a large audience assembled in the studio parlors of Mrs. Fannie S. Munson last Saturday evening to hear the certificate piano recital of Mrs. David Kirk McNab.

The many flower gifts for bouquets and baskets on a table in the alcove of the piano-grand.

In keeping with the Christmas reason a color scheme of red was developed. Small pine trees with colored lights were placed in the hall and in each parlor while a long brick mantel in the recital room evergreens and poinsettias, spaced with slender vases of long stem narcissi, were banked.

The entire programme was played from memory and since no strong lights were needed, all electric lights were dimmed with red or bright colored oriental shades, while prism candlesticks bearing lighted red candles, and many single and group candlesticks with red tapers, cast a soft glow about the rooms.

At the close of the recital Mrs. Munson, on presenting the certificate, outlined the required course of study which included technical exercises and studies from medium to difficult, finished to metronome speed in evenness. Selections from Bach, Sonatas from Clementi and Beethoven, pieces from various schools of composition, a full course in music history, one year theory and harmony, and a public recital make up the other requirements.

Mrs. McNab, formerly Miss Lucille Echols, is well known for her musical talent. Assisting her with the program were Mrs. Robert L. Glenn, soprano, and Miss Anna Belle Dyson, accompanist.

The program was planned to cover not over one hour and included:

- 1. Valse Brillante—Mozzkowski Mrs. McNab
- 2. Trees—Oscar Rastbach, Mrs. Glenn
- 3. (a) Scherzo Op. 10 No. 2—Mendelssohn; (b) Cradle Song—Slim Palmgren, Mrs. McNab
- 4. (a) Little White Doorway—Mary Hughes Dodge and John Wilson Dodge; (b) Philosophy—David Emmell, Mrs. Glenn

Phonoplay At Milane "Cheerful Comrades"

A progressive Christmas dinner party was given last Thursday evening by the members of the "Cheerful Comrades" Sunday School Class of the First Presbyterian Church.

The dinner was served in four courses at the homes of four different members of the class, with two or more girls as hostesses at each home.

Decorations at the place of each course were in keeping with the Christmas season.

At six o'clock the girls, with their teacher, Mrs. E. D. Brownlee, were invited to the home of Miss Betty McKinnon, Magnolia Avenue, where Miss McKinnon and Mrs. Mary Torrance were the hostesses.

The main dinner course, which proved to be Italian spaghetti, was served at the home of Miss Mary Elizabeth Tolar, Magnolia Avenue, with Miss Tolar and Miss Margaret Torrance as hostesses.

The girls were then invited to the home of Mrs. E. D. Brownlee, Palmetto Avenue, where the hostesses, Mrs. Brownlee, Miss Helen Colbert and Miss Martha Amy May, served a salad course.

The last course which proved to be plum pudding and hard sauce, was served at the home of Mrs. H. C. Dullose, Oak Avenue, with Miss Margaret Dullose and Miss Elizabeth Adams as hostesses, and Mrs. Dullose and Mrs. Adams serving music and songs were enjoyed at the conclusion of the dinner.

Miss Margaret Torrance gave a number of songs with piano accompaniment. Later in the evening each girl received an invitation Western Union telegram from her favorite movie actor.

Those attending were: Mrs. E. D. Brownlee and the Misses Betty McKinnon, Mary Frances Andrews, Mary Elizabeth Tolar, Margaret Torrance, Helen Colbert, Martha Amy May, Marjorie Dullose, and Elizabeth Adams.

Lake Mary Casino Will Be Scene Of Big Dance

The Lake Mary Casino will be the scene Wednesday night of what is expected to be one of the best attended dances held here during the holidays, according to announcement by Lewis Tate, manager of the popular dance hall.

Evening with the regular Tuesday night dance, every effort is being made to make the Christmas Eve dance a gala affair, and the hall is being especially decorated for the occasion.

Prizes will be awarded to both gentlemen and lady dancers, while favors and rose-makers will be distributed early in the evening in addition to the general merriment.

They brought home something over 100 fish, Sea-trout, Sea Bass, Whiting and nearly all known varieties of Sea fish.

Allen Chappell is Married To Harris Sims, Of Lakeland. A former Sanford resident, Miss Ellen Chappell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Chappell, was married Saturday in Jacksonville. Miss Chappell was graduated from Sanford High School in 1920 and is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Chappell, Celery Avenue. The following clipping was taken from yesterday's Tampa Tribune:

JACKSONVILLE, Dec. 22.—Miss Ellen Hammerly Chappell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Bush Chappell of this city, was married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock to Harris Gordon Sims of Lakeland, the ceremony taking place in the Riverside Park Methodist church. Dr. A. Fred Turner, presiding elder of the Jacksonville district, performed the ceremony. The ceremony was simple, there being no attendants, and only close friends and relatives were present.

The "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin" was played as the couple approached the altar, and the Mendelssohn "Recessional" as they left the church. Mrs. J. F. Robinson was organist. The church was decorated in palms, ferns, white chrysanthemums and gladioli. Lighted candles in tall candelabra stood beside the altar. The bride entered on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a traveling dress of navy blue velvet in the new style with a high collar and a long train of white silk-embroidered in harmonizing shades. Her hair was an off-the-face model of fall, in wavy-lets, with a bob to match. Her arm bouquet was of bride's roses and fern.

Mr. Sims was graduated from Sanford high school and received his bachelor of arts degree at Southern college. She has taken a leading part in business and professional life in Jacksonville and is a member of the Business and Professional Women's club. A native Floridian, Mrs. Sims is descended from the Yarn and Hammerly families, pioneers of Madison county. Her paternal ancestors were the Chappell and Cook families of South Carolina. Thomas Chappell, one of her early forebears, settled on the James river as an English emigrant in 1680. Mr. Sims has been head of the department of journalism and director of publicity at Southern college since 1923. He is widely known among members of the Florida press and was director of publicity at Station for three years in addition to his other work. After his graduation from Southern where he received his A. B. degree, he attended Stetson university and was graduated with a bachelor's degree in 1920. He is a member of the Phi Kappa Phi and Phi Alpha Delta fraternities, and is president of the student bodies of both colleges he attended, and is president of the Alumni association of Southern. Mr. Sims is also a special writer for the New York Times and a member of the Florida bar. He is a son of Mrs. Mary L. Sims, Lakeland. Mr. and Mrs. Sims will be at home after Jan. 1, at 1015 Lexington street, Lakeland.

Miss Virginia Hyman Weds Young Youth

Of interest to a number of her friends here is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Virginia Hyman, daughter of Dr. George Hyman, former pastor of the First Baptist Church of this city. The following story of her marriage was taken from the Sunday Tribune of Tampa: Miss Virginia Hyman and Edward Elbert Cose were married yesterday at high noon at the Bayshore Baptist church in a setting spring-like in its delicate coloring, with pale yellow gladioli in bowls of soft blue and white cathedral candles in tall candelabra. Against a background of palms, Dr. George Hyman, the bride's father, pastor of the church, officiated. Preceding the ceremony, an elaborate program of nuptial music was given, including several favorite wedding songs. Charles Bartlett sang "Always" (Bowers). Mrs. W. B. Myers sang "My Gift To You" (Cadmans), "To Spring" (Grieg) was played by John De Groot as a violin number, and Mrs. Myers sang a second selection, "O Promise Me" (De Koven).

Mrs. D. S. McFee, at the piano and Mr. De Groot with the violin played the "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin" (Wagner) as the bride party entered the church. The three bridesmaids, Miss Maud Cose, Miss Gertrude Price and Miss Virginia Anderson, entered first. They were dressed in similar costumes of pale green crepe with hats and accessories of a dark shade of green. They carried white lilies and nosegays of yellow roses. Following them came the junior bridesmaid, Betty Jane Green, in a dainty ruffled frock of yellow taffeta. She held the bride's bouquet during the ceremony. The bride entered with her brother, who gave her in marriage. She was gowned in a becoming costume of green crepe made with a slightly draped neckline, long bishop sleeves made of self material in an intricate cut work design and a long circular skirt. Her shoes and hat were of the same shade and she also carried a white Bible. Her bouquet was a shower nosegay of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Edward Medard attended the bridegroom as best man and ushers were Healy Albury and Seabring Short. Mrs. Cose, who was born in Brooksville, has lived in Tampa eight years and was graduated from Hillsborough high school. She was also graduated from the Florida State College for Women where she became a member of the Sigma Kappa sorority. She has been a member of the faculty of the Memorial junior high school recently. Her fiancé also was graduated from Hillsborough high school and later attended the University of Florida.

WEDDING OF TWO EAST SANFORD YOUTH

(Continued From Page One) —a catalyism will come upon the world which will engulf all that we care about in western civilization. Referring to "active but unreasoning fear" prevailing in some quarters, Henderson continued: "I would ask you boldly not to listen for a moment to those who speak of war. I am absolutely convinced there is no one who wants war, no one who is plotting for war, no one who does not realize that war would be a demoralizing disaster to all concerned." In reviewing steps made toward peace in the last year, the foreign secretary referred specifically to the London naval conference. After touching briefly on the Hague conference, which ended in the evacuation of the Rhineland, the acceptance by many nations of the optional clause regarding the permanent court of international justice, and the Indian round table conference, Henderson said as a result of recent labor in Geneva the way was now open for a world disarmament conference. "I hope," he said, "that within a year or so from now we may have agreed upon the first treaty whereby all the armies, navies and air forces in the world shall be reduced."

LAKE MARY

By Mrs. J. C. [Name]

The annual Christmas tree and entertainment will take place Christmas Eve in the Community Hall. There will be gifts for the children and candy for all. Everyone is invited. The Ladies Aid of the Community Church reported that the bazaar and supper last Friday afternoon and evening was a success and was well attended. Over $400 was realized. The music by the orchestra and the Ladies Aid play was especially enjoyed. A Christmas program of music and stories will be observed Sunday evening Dec. 27 at the Community Church by the Sunday school and church. Sunday morning will be observed as White Christmas in connection with the regular services and class sessions. Members of the church and the school and all who wish have been asked to bring a gift, either food, clothing or toys to be distributed among the needy in Lake Mary.

The Crystal Lake Social Club held its regular weekly meeting in the club room Tuesday evening. Mr. Clark Stevens, Mr. Albert Johnson and Mrs. R. D. White were hosts for the occasion. The club will have a Christmas tree and program at the next meeting. Rev. and Mrs. E. S. Greenleaf, of Jay, N. Y., are spending the winter months with his brother T. A. Greenleaf. Also Mr. E. Scott of Greenleaf, N. J. is spending the winter months with his father, Mr. T. A. Greenleaf. Mrs. Hood and Mrs. Heslop attended the funeral of Harold Duggan in Orlando last Thursday. Mr. Duggan was a cousin of Mrs. Hood. Mr. Geo. A. Jones arrived Monday from Farmington, N. H. to spend the winter months here. He was accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Turner, Mrs. M. E. Shackleton and daughter, Ruth. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carr of Orange City were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Burnes Wednesday for the day. Rev. and Mrs. Thompson and Rev. and Mrs. Booth motored to Orlando Wednesday where they spent the day, pleasantly shopping and visiting friends. Mr. and Mrs. Horace Lee of Palmetto are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sjoblom until after the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Cunningham of Allen Bay, N. H., arrived here last week and are occupying the Vornay cottage on Crystal Lake Ave. for the winter.

"A COMPLETE SERVICE STATION"
We do not need to hitch "Old Dobbin" to the shaft to go to see the folks over the holidays. We jump into our car and get there in short time and in a comfortable way. Don't spoil that holiday trip by keeping the folks anxiously waiting because of the delay and possible accident caused by poor tires. Make that trip an enjoyable one by putting on some new Firestone Tires and ride in safety. A set of new tires for the car will make a sensible and lasting present for all the family.
