LAKE MARY - In the near future, you may be arriving at your Lake Mary area office, be able to take a lunchtime walk along a nature trail, and shop for a few items before heading home after work.

The Lake Mary City Commission received an update report last night, on one of the largest DRI's (Development of Regional Impact) to be proposed for the city.

Heathrow International Business Center is being planned for the area west of Interstate-4, and between the AAA headquarters and W. SR-46A. The overall plan lists 218.3

acres within the Lake Mary city limits, with additional property, with approximately 144 acres on land under the Seminole County jurisdiction.

In a special presentation during yesterday's City Commission meeting, representatives from HIBC Development (Pizzuti Equities), Henderson Planning Group, and others, showed the commissioners the latest fine-tuning of the DRI plans for the property.

Scott Henderson, of Henderson Planning, explained that changes which have been made since the original plans were announced included relocating some retail areas

Reforming welfare: What next?

By JACKIE HALLIPAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Florida hasn't been just waiting for Washington to figure out how to reform welfare. The state is already working on implementing one of the key provisions of reform: making people work.

Once the agreement between Congress and President Clinton on federal changes is in place, the state will be able to start work on a second key provision: capping benefits.

"Florida is prepared," Sen. Tom Jennings, an Orlando Republican who was a key author of the state's welfare reform plan, said Thursday. "We're ready. We've hit the ground running."

The federal plan will set a lifetime limit of five years of welfare per family and require most able-bodied adults to begin working within 24 months of entering the program.

Elementary school off to a smooth start

By JEFF HUNT
Herald Staff Writer

The first day of elementary school is always tough. Lots of little children try to find their way. Lots of teachers try to help them.

But, it's always that much tougher when no one has ever been there before.

The Highlands, on Shepard Road in Winter Springs, is Seminole County's newest school. It opened Thursday in a fury of confusion and lost children. However things eventually calmed down and all 750 children found their way to their brand new classrooms.

"All things considered, things are going pretty smooth," Principal Beth Ransom said.

And in each classroom, the kids found two state-of-the-art, IBM compatible computers - all linked to the outside world for greater learning possibilities. These are complimented by an entire lab of 30 more and the Highland's television studio.

"We're hoping to bring the community in too with our technology," Ransom said. "And (the studio) looks like NBC. Real professional."

In addition, the only two story elementary school in Seminole has unique programs designed especially for visually impaired and special education students, said Ransom. The school even has color-coded hallways to help direct these students to their correct classes and

Students from Tajiri Arts School of Performing Arts and Academics in Sanford recently returned from a tour of New York City. The group of 26 students and 10 chaperones boarded a chartered bus bound for the bright lights of the Big Apple. They spent five days on a fabulous, history-making, educational and sight-seeing trip. "The tour was packed with excitement; there were things to see, learn about, and enjoy," says Kawan DeBose, who still shows signs of happiness on his face as he describes the tour.

Tour stops included the Museum for African Arts, the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture; The Harlem School for Boys; The Henry Street Settlement in the Soho District;

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Plane forced to land in Tampa

TAMPA — A Miami-bound American Airlines flight was forced to make an unscheduled landing in Tampa Thursday after running into severe turbulence, an airline official said.

Officials said the plane may have been hit by lightning. The pilot declared an emergency and made a safe landing in Tampa shortly after 2 p.m.

At least one passenger feared the worst.

"With the recent spate of airline tragedies we've been having, what else could one think, wow, here we go again," said Isidore Julien after arriving at Miami International Airport on Thursday evening.

Added passenger Shari Hymel: "We had no advance warning. There was no sign of anything going wrong. The weather didn't look bad."

One of the 169 passengers aboard Flight 472 bumped his head, but did not require hospital treatment, said John Horard, a spokesman for the Fort Worth, Texas-based airline. No one else was injured.

The Boeing 757, with a crew of five flight attendants, the pilot and co-pilot, left Chicago at 10:36 a.m. and ran into severe turbulence over Tallahassee.

The plane was inspected in Tampa for damage and passengers were reboarded for the remainder of the flight to Miami.

Florida man turns down plea bargain

GREENSBURG, Pa. — A Fayette County, Pa., man accused of killing two babies he fathered with his daughter reportedly has turned down a plea bargain that would have given him two life prison sentences.

Jury selection in the trial of Mendum Paul Corvin, 62, of Conneville is scheduled to begin Monday. Corvin is charged with killing a baby in 1970 born from an incestuous relationship between Corvin and his daughter, Sharon Corvin Moore, now 39.

He also is charged with killing a child he had with Moore in 1988 in Boynton Beach, Fla. Authorities in Florida have not ruled out seeking the death penalty in that case.

The Irwin Standard Observer reported Thursday that Corvin turned down the offer of a plea agreement, but neither his lawyers nor prosecutors in Florida or Pennsylvania would comment, citing ethical concerns.

Corvin underwent surgery in June to correct an aortic aneurysm. His lawyers say he has recovered fully.

Prisoner takes hostages at hospital

DAYTONA BEACH — A man who overpowered a police officer after being taken to the hospital following his arrest took three orderlies hostage Thursday evening.

Paul O. Stovall, 35, of Daytona Beach, surrendered following a three-hour standoff, police said. No one was hurt.

Police said Stovall was taken to Halifax Medical Center — instead of to jail — after swallowing crack cocaine during his arrest late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning.

About 5:30 p.m. Thursday, he was about to be transferred to the Volusia County Branch Jail when he overpowered Daytona Beach police Officer Janet Hawkins and took her S&W automatic handgun.

After striking the officer in the face, Stovall took the gun, pointed it at Officer Wendell Dalkow and ordered her to take him to the fourth floor, where he took three orderlies hostage, authorities said.

While doctors continued to treat patients in nearby operating rooms, police negotiators eventually persuaded Stovall to give up without a fight.

Stovall released the first two hostages after only a few minutes, trading them for some cigarettes. He released the final hostage and the gun before giving himself up.

Stovall was expected to be charged with battery on a law enforcement officer, three counts of aggravated assault and abduction charges, Al Tolley, a spokesman for Daytona Beach police, said late Thursday.

Son of Pinellas sheriff arrested

ST. PETERSBURG — The 20-year-old son of Pinellas Sheriff Everett S. Rice has been charged with passing counterfeit money to buy crack cocaine.

Everett Strouse Rice Jr. was released without bail after detectives told a judge he had cooperated in the investigation.

"I'm a human being and I'm a parent," said the sheriff. "I'm very disappointed. I'm angry. I'm shocked."

Rice was arrested Wednesday and accused of passing 10 counterfeit $10 bills. He was not accused of producing the fake money.

The elder Rice said he learned Tuesday his son was under investigation when St. Petersburg Police Chief Darrel Stephens telephoned him as a courtesy. He urged his son to go to headquarters Wednesday and cooperate with investigators.

First Lady joins panel at Florida senior center

By PATRICK REYNA
Associated Press Writer

BOCA RATON — First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton joined a panel of elderly professionals at a senior center to defend Medicare and Medicaid, though calling for improvements to the embattled public health programs.

"Medicare and Medicaid have been under attack for a couple of years," Mrs. Clinton told an enthusiastic crowd of 250 invited guests at Mae Volen Senior Center on Thursday. "There are people who would like to privatize these systems, who would like to end Medicare and Medicaid, as we know it."

But the two services, the core of federal health programs, must not be curtailed by Congress, the first lady argued.

"Medicaid and Medicare take care of problems that nobody asks for," she said, seated on a stage decorated with red bunting, a white banner for the senior center and a blue backdrop.

"You don't ask for a breast cancer," Mrs. Clinton continued. "You don't ask for a stroke in the middle of the night. You don't ask for your hips and knees — after a lifetime of work on them — to give out on you."

"So, we have an obligation to make sure these (federal health care) programs are there, and functioning."

Center members and invited guests enthused about the first lady's visit.

Bond denied for hijacking suspect

MIAMI — A Palestinian man accused of hijacking an Iberia jetliner didn't have a gun or act deranged, his attorney said in an unsuccessful attempt to get him released on bond.

"I don't seek to minimize the circumstances of this case, but my client didn't have a gun. His only weapon was a makeshift knife," said Assistant U.S. Public Defender Joaquin Mendez. "He did not act like a madman, and he didn't threaten any passengers."

Saado Mohamed Ibrahim Intissar, 27, faces a possible 20-year mandatory sentence if convicted of air piracy for using a fake bomb to hijack a Havana-bound Iberia International Airlines flight from Madrid to Miami last Friday.

"Bond is not unprecedented in an aircraft piracy case," said Mendez.

He cited the case of Woody Edouard, a Haitian security guard who said he commandeered a missionary flight from Haiti to Miami because he feared persecution while his country was under military rule in 1983.

Edouard was released on $100,000 bond after his case became a cause celebre because of the political overtones. He ended up serving a 33-month term on a plea to a lesser charge of interfering with a flight crew.

The motive in Ibrahim's case remained unclear.

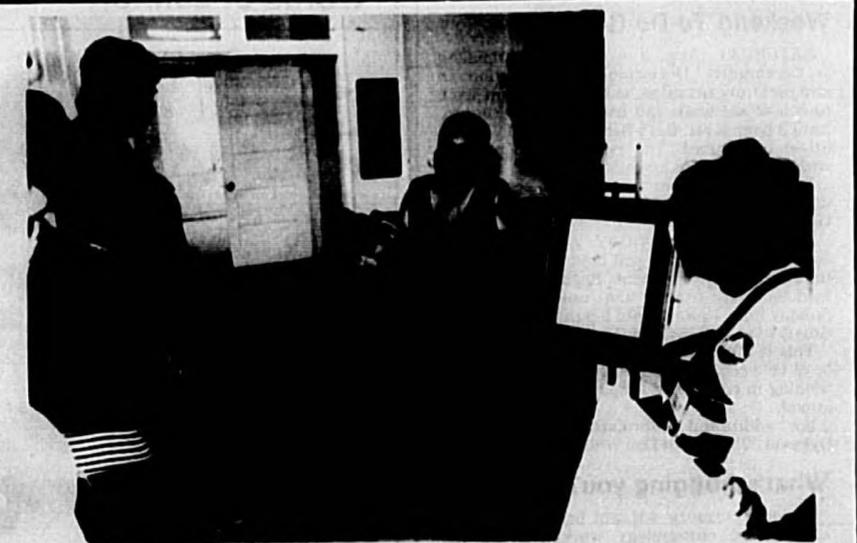

U.S. authorities have released no details, but German authorities holding two Palestinians as fellow plotters said poverty, not terrorism, was the key to the case.

Stopped for suspicious passports Sunday, the pair said they helped plot the Iberia hijacking with Ibrahim but ditched him at the Madrid airport to seek asylum in western Europe, instead.

Up a tree

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — For several days, a young black bear enchanted a southside neighborhood as it moved from one tree to another.

Suzanne Allen managed to get "nose to nose and eye to eye" with the bear on the other side of her bedroom window but wasn't frightened until the animal started climbing a utility pole.

Mrs. Allen breathed easy when the bear came down again without getting electrocuted. "I would have been heartbroken," she said Thursday.

After her encounter with the bear Wednesday evening, the animal disappeared into the woods. On Thursday, the bear reappeared on the Capital City County Club golf course.

The dog made him do it, he said

TAMPA — A man accused of marrying a comatose woman hours before her death, then running up nearly $90,000 on her credit cards, told police he knew it was wrong but his bride's dog told him to do it.

Robert Meier is charged with theft and fraudulent use of credit cards after using a forged marriage license to wed Constance Sewell.

"I thought I had seen every way to steal, scam or con people out of money, but it was hard to believe someone would do this," said Sheriff's Detective Ed Hancock.

Ma. Sewell, 49, suffered an aneurysm Jan. 8 and slipped into a coma. She was declared clinically dead at 2:50 p.m. on Jan. 10, according to a death certificate.

Her marriage to Meier also took place Jan. 10 — two to four hours before her death, investigators said.

Meier was arrested Wednesday and released on his own recognizance from the Hillsborough County Jail on Thursday.

During an interview with deputies, he reportedly admitted he knew what he did was wrong. But he gave investigators this explanation: "He said he was sitting on the couch when Ma. Sewell's dog told him she would want him to go on living, have a better life and it would be OK to use her credit cards," Hancock said Thursday.

Authorities said there was no way Sewell could have exchanged vows.

"She was deeply comatose, not capable of consenting to marriage, speaking or writing," said Hancock, a fraud investigator.

Meier's friend and notary public Lawrence Hodge officiated and has been charged with forgery and notarizing documents he knew were fraudulent.

Police said Hodge forged the marriage certificate, and Meier forged Sewell's signature on credit card documents.

Recently, Ms. Sewell's 78-year-old mother told authorities about huge credit card bills, bringing the case to light. She shared credit cards with her daughter and payments regularly were minimal or caught up.

Authorities said over the months Meier, 55, charged a bedroom set, numerous home renovation items, restaurant tabs, a $1,000 down payment on a 1997 pickup truck and trips to Detroit and Indianapolis.

Ma. Sewell and Meier, a St. Louis native with no previous record, knew each other at least five years. He divorced his previous wife in 1984. In late 1985, Meier and Ma. Sewell began living together.

Olsen said an investigation continues because apparent discrepancies in Ma. Sewell's estate are being checked.

Bus is temporary for kids who live in Monroe Meadows

SANFORD — Parents in the Monroe Meadows subdivision near the intersection of Sanford Avenue and Lake Mary Boulevard are breathing a sigh of relief this morning.

As their children headed to Pine Crest Elementary School for the first day of school Thursday, they rode a school bus through the road construction that has left Sanford Avenue in shambles for more than a year.

On Monday afternoon, residents of the newly-constructed community received letters informing them that their children were not eligible for bus transportation to the school which is approximately 1.8 miles away.

State statutes allow for districts to be reimbursed for transporting students who live more than two miles from school. It is up to the discretion of the district if they want to provide bus service to those who live inside a two-mile radius.

In an effort to save money, it has been the policy of the Seminole County schools not to provide service to those who live closer.

However, since the parents in Monroe Meadows only had a few days notice to prepare for the transportation of their youngsters, the district's Transportation Services department has agreed to provide transportation for a month.

"We'll get them started and get them into next week," Jean Crampton, director of transportation, said. "At that time we'll send home notices informing them that service will only be provided for 30 days."

Parents have complained that children as young as kindergarten age will be forced to traverse the construction site that can be alternatively dusty and muddy, that is pock-marked with potholes and mountains of broken asphalt and that is traveled by angry drivers trying to make their way through the barricaded detour path.

"It's dangerous," one parent said. "At least until the construction is completed, we want our kids to have transportation. That's all we're asking."

During that time, Crampton said, the residents will be able to petition the School Safety Advisory Committee to have the transportation services extended beyond the 30 day limit. That committee will have to determine if the route the students would have to walk meets state guidelines as "hazardous." If it does, they would make a transportation exception during the construction.

"It's up to the committee if we can transport those students after that," she noted.

The work on Sanford Avenue was expected to have been finished in July. It is unclear at this point when it will be done.

Prosecutor: Crazy Joe Spaziano shouldn't get new rape trial

By The Associated Press

ORLANDO — The recanted testimony of a 1975 rape-trial witness wasn't crucial and a judge should reject a request for a new trial for Joseph "Crazy Joe" Spaziano, a prosecutor says.

Anthony DiLisio's testimony helped convict the former motorcycle gang member of the 1974 rape and slaying of a 16-year-old girl, which resulted in a life sentence for Spaziano.

But DiLisio, now a Pensacola auto restorer, testified that he lied in the Orlando rape case as well as to a Sanford jury that convicted Spaziano of the murder of an 18-year-old woman.

Earlier this year, a judge granted a new trial in the murder case, lifting Spaziano's 20-year-old death sentence.

At the Orlando trial, the rape victim identified Spaziano as one of two men who raped her at the Outlaws motorcycle gang clubhouse and then dumped her in a field after slashing her across the eyes.

"In 1975, while her wounds were still fresh, (she) was not even sure then whether she wanted to endure the rigors of a criminal prosecution," said prosecutor Paula Coffman in her response to the request for a new trial.

"Twenty-one years later, in 1996, Spaziano has mustered the unmitigated gall to ask this court to allow him to reopen those wounds and bring her back to the courthouse again."

Coffman urged Circuit Judge Dorothy Russell in her 23-page brief to reject the appeal because DiLisio's testimony hadn't been needed for the conviction.

If the judge allows a hearing, the prosecutor said it should be limited to whether DiLisio's recantation meets the legal definition of new evidence and whether it is believable.

A professed born-again

Christian, DiLisio said he came forward to clear his conscience.

Spaziano, 50, has been removed from death row while he awaits a new trial and pending appeals in the murder case.

Florida to ask for federal help to build high-speed rail system

By The Associated Press

TAMPA — Federal help will be needed to get a high-speed rail system on track by 2004 in Florida, officials said.

Transportation Secretary Ben Watts gave approval Thursday for his department to seek federal aid in a new financing plan for the new 320-mile rail link between Tampa, Orlando and Miami.

Under an agreement with the private company picked to build the system, Watts will ask the federal government to contribute about $300 million in cash and guarantee bonds of as much as $5 billion for construction.

The agreement between the state and Florida Overland Express allows planning to proceed. The state had a set today as a deadline to reach an agreement on finances with the group.

Watts has pledged $70 million a year in state money for 30 years to help build the system on new tracks, mostly alongside existing interstates. FOX wanted a higher state contribution and as much as $1.8 billion in loans. So the DOT agreed in negotiations to increase the $70 million by 4 percent each year beginning in 2000.

That still left a huge gap that FOX couldn't fill, so the state has decided to turn to the federal government for help.

"You ask the question and then you try to sell it," said Charlie Smith, manager of the state's high-speed rail program.

DOT officials know it will be difficult to get that much federal money and the bond guarantee. They plan to lobby Congress, knowing lawmakers have virtually ignored requests to pour

Twins Days festival

By The Associated Press

TWINSBURG, Ohio — Bison don't roam the streets of Buffalo, N.Y., and tiny stones don't cover Little Rock, Ark. But beginning today, you'll find many sets of — you guessed it — twins in Twinsburg.

About 3,000 sets of twins from around the world are expected to descend on this city 30 miles southeast of Cleveland to celebrate the annual Twins Day Festival, which began in 1975. About 2,800 pairs attended last year.

Andrew Miller, the event's executive director, said people like to meet other twins and compare notes on their experiences. Twins from as far away as Greece and Romania have already arrived for the three-day festival, he said.

"I've even seen situations where twins who didn't even like each other came to the festival, and when they see a lot of people just like them, they suddenly like each other. They say, 'Hey, we're not alone.'"

Typical contests include judging who are the most — and least — alike among the twins. A parade, a fireworks display and a talent show are also scheduled.

About 15,000 people — not necessarily born at the same time — live in Twinsburg, which was named for twins Aaron and Moses Wilcox.

The Wilcoxs donated five acres and $25 to start the town in 1823. They also married sisters, died the same day and share a grave.

sizeable money into high-speed rail.

Still to be worked out is a state request that FOX assume more risk and settle for a smaller return on its investment. FOX officials have agreed to look for ways during the next three months it can meet some of the state's wishes, Smith said.

The state will use the next 90 days to draw up plans for how to accomplish the requisite studies and engineering.

Another study must make sure the trains will have enough riders. Route alignments need to be finalized and environmentalists must be satisfied the rail lines won't harm sensitive lands.

Once that is done, Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet must give final approval for construction, which officials want to start in 2000. FOX wants to start service between Miami and Orlando in 2004 charging $54 for the 1-hour, 28-mile trip.

A great time for 2 good causes

There are a couple of opportunities coming up the next few days for you to take an active role in the community that you won't want to pass up.

Some food, some music, some fun will be the focus of a pair of events in Sanford that will benefit youth programs and the needy.

Sanford and Seminole County have often lacked community focus.

We head out of the county to work and come home to rest. Many are involved in the schools our children attend. Some are involved in supporting youth sports.

On Saturday evening, we will have the chance to eat, drink and be merry at the first "A Taste of Seminole."

The event promises to be a delight for the tastebuds and a fine way to meet many of the gourmets from around the county.

But, most importantly, the event gives us the chance to support a series of programs that are vital to the needy in the county. While many of us are aware of the work done by Seminole Volunteer Enterprises, the opportunity to help out a program that helps out so many in need never seems to present itself.

No more excuses. While you're dining on some of the best Seminole County has to offer, you can be helping out those who don't always have enough to eat. Money raised from ticket sales to the event will be used to allow program organizers to buy food for the needy at times when USDA commodities are not available.

Then, on Monday American Legion Youth Athletics will benefit from a concert that will bring together Elvis and the Beatles for one evening. CBS has it's not really Elvis and the Beatles, but it's the next best thing and, after all it's for the kids.

Lake Mary's own Jack Elton (who is one of the best Elvis performers in the country, if not the world) will join Let It Be, a nationally-acclaimed Beatles impersonators group on stage at the Sanford Municipal Stadium.

The show should bring down the house (not literally) with a great performance.

We hope you'll support the community and have a great time at the same time.

Article lacks integrity

Your recent nicotine-is-guilt-by-association article, "Similarities Found Between Nicotine, Cocaine," lacks scientific integrity and may be irresponsible as well. The first sentence reveals the flawed basis for the remaining seventeen paragraphs: "a part of the brain that may be important to addiction reacts the same way to nicotine that it does to cocaine, heroin and other highly addictive drugs." Anyone should know that the word "may" is rarely followed by factual information. Headline readers probably missed the irresponsible statement buried deep in this associated press news release.

Some person named George Koob is quoted as saying, "I've often argued that smoking cigarettes is not different from smoking cocaine." I must take this to mean that smoking cigarettes is the same as smoking cocaine. I wonder how many people will now try to see if George Koob is right? Hopefully this truth challenged statement will not receive the same amount of media coverage as statements made by Bob Dole about addiction to smoking.

If the media would just publish the fact that nicotine is not addictive, cigarette smokers would lose their main excuse for not quitting their nasty, unhealthy habit. I must therefore conclude that the main goal of the media is regulation of nicotine by the FDA. What are the symptoms of withdrawal from nicotine manifested by physical problems any doctor would immediately recognize as classic withdrawal from nicotine addiction? There are none.

Looking beyond the First Amendment

Ted Koppel - the most illuminating television journalist since Ed Murrow - was being interviewed recently by Larry King about his book, "Nightline." Speaking of Koppel's new employers, the Walt Disney Co., King asked Koppel what he thought of Disney having fired Bob Grant, the inflammatory radio talk-show host at the network's New York station, WABC.

"A smart and gutsy thing to do," said Koppel without a pause. Agreeing with him is Floyd Abrams, one of the nation's leading First Amendment defenders in all sorts of courts, including the court of last resort. The Disney decision, said Abrams, "should be honored not attacked" because as a private company, Disney's ABC is not "obliged" - legally, morally or journalistically - to broadcast such speech... fomenting uncivility."

Grant, recently resurrected by New York station, WOR, has been called a racist by, among others, Jesse Jackson, who has picketed Grant at WABC. And Grant can indeed be spectacularly offensive. ("The ideal solution" to the Haitian boat crisis, he once said, would be if "they drowned.") But for years, Grant has also practically venerated Nelson Mandela and lauded such black conservatives as Thomas Sowell.

The precipitating cause of Grant's dismissal by Disney was his comment on the crash in Croatia of a plane carrying Commerce Secretary Ron Brown: "My hunch is he (Ron Brown) is the one survivor. Maybe because, at heart, I'm a pessimist."

In an editorial on the defenestration of Grant, Newsday exclaimed, "Let's hear it for Mickey Mouse."

But some of Grant's frequent targets over the years disagree. Former New York City mayor Ed Koch, now an exuberantly controversial talk-show host on WABC, said in emphatic disapproval: "Where does it stop?" Outspoken Congressman Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., - whom Grant has often described as having a "pygmy mentality" - declared, "I'm bothered by the removal of anyone from the airwaves for things they say, because I'm not sure who would be next."

Rev. Al Sharpton, a ceaseless scanner of all communications for speech hurtful to blacks, was delighted at the Disney Company's smart and gutsy move. "A multinational corporation like Disney," Sharpton says, "has to respond (to pressures) because it's more vulnerable."

What Koppel, Abrams and other celebrators of Bob Grant's dismissal forget is that free speech is indivisible. Of course, the First Amendment does not kick in unless an agency of government - from Congress to the principal of a public school - tries to punish expression. But as Judge Learned Hand said a long time ago: "Liberty lies in the hearts of men (and women); when it dies there, no constitution, no law, no court can save it."

Speaking of England - and everywhere else - George Orwell noted: "If large numbers of people believe in freedom of speech, there will be freedom of speech even if the law forbids it. But if public opinion is sluggish, inconvenient minorities will be persecuted even if laws exist to protect them." Even Al Sharpton. Law or no law.

Whining reaches Olympian heights

Somewhere in a manual called The Tenets of Journalism, there must be a rule that says you can't root for the home team.

I haven't found it, but I know it's there because every four years, some sourball in my trade says something like this:

"What was Tim Russert, an allegedly level-headed journalist, thinking at the end of 'Meet the Press' when he looked gleefully into the camera and exclaimed 'Go USA,' after urging the audience to 'enjoy the Olympics'?" That kind of jingoistic, self-promotional nonsense is bad enough coming from sportscasters, much less from a so-called newsmen."

That rebuke came from the keyboard of Baltimore Sun sports media critic Milton Ross. He is provoked in me a little shrug and a mellow thought: Kent's kind of guilt-ridden, surly, dyspeptic, politically correct nonsense is bad enough in a letter-to-the-editor, much less from a so-called columnist.

I fully concur that journalists should maintain an air of professional detachment when reporting the news about politics, government, business, religion and other matters of great moment. But the Olympics are sports, for pete's sake. It is perfectly acceptable to pull for your own country; to cheer when an American athlete earns recognition as one of the world's best; to feel a tingle when the national anthem is played.

It is also perfectly justifiable, it seems to me, to get a bit defensive when people from other countries come to these shores and complain about the amenities and conveniences.

Perhaps you did not read or hear of the impertinent cavilings of the athletes, media and nabobs who came to Atlanta. They bitched about their accommodations. They grouched about the subway and buses. They griped about the food. They even had the effrontery to whine about the toilets.

It would be one thing if the critics were speaking from the vantage point of having had superior facilities. But anyone who has traveled overseas knows the improbability of that.

The French and the Mexicans said the transportation was slow. If you have ever tried to negotiate the streets of Paris or Mexico City, you may be catching a whiff of hypocrisy here.

A Russian publication reported that "the host of the games did not pay much attention to the guests." I have not partaken of the pleasures of Russian hospitality, but from what I have heard from those who have, I am not missing a major life experience.

The Italians did not like the way the pasta was cooked. The Koreans did not like the way the cabbage was cut in their kimchee. And the Chinese blamed their poor performance in the games on - among other things - the lack of proper Chinese food.

What exactly does this mean? I did some research:

- At restaurants in the various provinces of China, you can chow down on such tasty entrees as braised bear paw, snake soup, deep-fried scorpion, peppered rat and stir-fried dog meat.

- A few years ago, a team of researchers at the Central China Agricultural University developed a strain of maggot that they said was highly nutritious. "One fly can produce billions of maggots every week, making the vermin suitable for mass production," reported the official Chinese news agency. "The finding may tap a huge new source of nourishment for the 1980s."

The Olympics are sports, for pete's sake. It is perfectly acceptable to pull for your own country.

Lamm-Perot could change race

Ross Perot has put his brand on the Reform Party - even its initials are his - but if its rank-and-file members are truly independent, they'll bolt to Dick Lamm, who could have a transforming effect on U.S. politics.

Neither Lamm nor Perot, nor the two of them running as a ticket, is going to win the presidency or even finish second in 1996, but Lamm has the chance to rivet the nation's attention on urgent tasks that have to be faced, especially Social Security reform.

Perot also can raise the issues - as he did with budget-balancing in 1992 - but if he wins the Reform Party's nomination, its appeal will be clouded by doubts about his personal quirks.

Lamm, who served for 12 years as Colorado's Democratic governor and is a public policy scholar, carries none of Perot's psychological baggage - authoritarianism and paranoia leap to mind - and none of his penchant for shooting from the hip.

A Lamm-Perot ticket, benefiting from Lamm's ideas and Perot's money, conceivably could garner up to 25 percent of the vote this year, probably drawing equally from the two major candidates.

If Lamm has a problem as a presidential candidate - besides Perot and money, of course - it is that his message of "compassionate austerity" comes across to many as dour rather than hopeful.

Balancing the budget, reducing retirement benefits, closing tax loopholes, rationing medical care, raising gasoline taxes, increasing the savings rate, reducing immigration - the Lamm program sounds like redemption through sacrifice, the politics of purgation rather than joy.

But in an interview, Lamm said, "I vigorously deny that I'm preaching gloom."

Said Lamm, "The Republicans and Democrats will avoid the problem of the baby boomers' retirement until it's a crisis. I envision a much brighter future for the country than we'll have if we let these problems go." Unfortunately, Lamm rarely describes this future in compelling terms. One good sign that he is genuinely an optimist, however, is that he admires the Democratic Leadership Council's just-issued manifesto for a "new progressive" politics. He also says that, if elected president, he'd appoint one of the manifesto's key authors, Will Marshall, president of the DLC's Progressive Policy Institute, as his top White House domestic adviser. Marshall and the DLC propose using government to stimulate individual empowerment and personal responsibility in the economy of the future as a third alternative to dismantling government, GOP-style, or maintaining direct-service bureaucracies, as traditional Democrats are wont to do.

In some respects, Lamm's agenda is even more expansive than the DLC's and certainly more than Perot's, which has an edge of resentment about it.

He is calling for a "decade of renewal and reform" that transcends budget policy and government belt-tightening, expanding to a "rebirth of values," including savings instead of consumption, delayed instead of instant gratification, and positive instead of negative politicking.

"America doesn't need just a new president," he said in a speech this month in Denver. "It needs a whole decade, ten years to balance the budget and stop borrowing from our children; ten years to reduce or eliminate the trade deficit; ten years to fix our institutions and make them work again; ten years to promote responsibility instead of indulgence as a national virtue; ten years to put American politics and government back in the hands of the people."

The "decade of renewal" idea is something serious-minded voters could rally around - not a majority, perhaps, but a significant number of moderates who are worried about their children's future. By railing against the "raw deal" this generation is wreaking on the next, Lamm also has a chance of appealing to young voters.

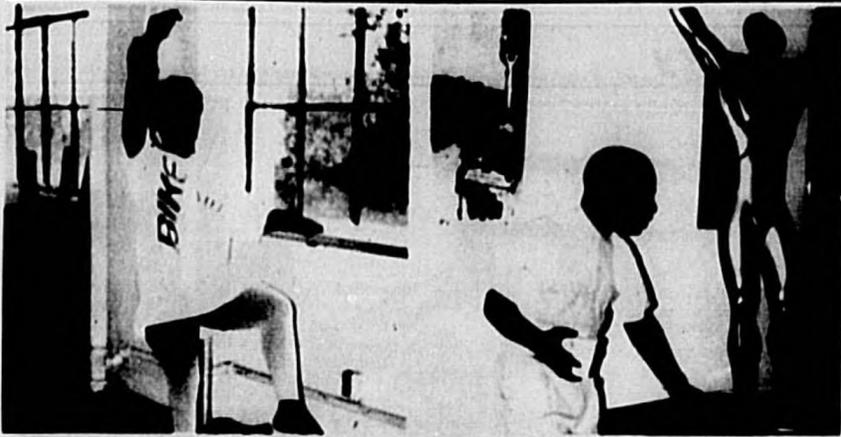

The key to Lamm's reform system is to increase the savings rate, which he says will lead to investment, economic growth and opportunity for average citizens.

And the keys to increasing the savings rate are balancing the budget and entitlement reform. As the baby boom generation reaches retirement age beginning just 17 years from now, Lamm argues that Medicare and Social Security costs will leave no room for any other government spending.

His program consists of gradually extending the retirement age to 70, means-testing entitlements so that persons with incomes over $100,000 would receive back in benefits only what they paid in, and creation of tax-exempt individual thrift accounts to induce people to finance their own retirement.

It also gives states more say about how programs are run within their boundaries. It gives them the ability, for example, to terminate benefits sooner than five years.

That's what Florida plans to do. A bill passed by the Legislature in early May and signed by Chiles sets a four-year lifetime limit on cash assistance.

The changes are to a program — Aid to Families with Dependent Children — that provides monthly cash benefits to an estimated 560,000 people in Florida at a cost of about $650 million. Most of the recipients — some 400,000 — are children.

A single mother with two children gets $303 a month, an income that is less than a third of the poverty level.

Advocates for the poor and children expressed concern about the impact of the reform measures, but Gov. Lawton Chiles said he was generally pleased by the bill.

"It's certainly so much better than what the president vetoed before," Chiles said Thursday.

But like the advocates, Chiles said he wasn't happy with the part of the bill restricting services to legal immigrants. An estimated 34,000 legal immigrants in Florida get AFDC benefits. Some 150,000 get food stamps.

"Florida will take up the burden again," he said. "That provision really gives us some heartburn."

In every four households, 600,000 people receive some kind of public assistance. Of those, one-third are non-citizens.

"You can not stop immigration by denying people benefits," said Anita Bock, administrator for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services in Dade and Monroe counties.

Jennings, slated to become Senate president next year if the GOP maintains its hold on the upper chamber, said she was enthusiastic because Washington didn't override anything Florida has done.

The U.S. House voted 328-101 for the bill shortly after Clinton's announcement Wednesday. The U.S. Senate approved the bill Thursday night with a 78-21 vote.

Advocates for children and the poor, meanwhile, were disappointed that the federal bill would make way for fuller implementation of Florida's reforms.

Florida's child population is growing faster than anywhere in the country except Nevada, according to Jack Levine, director of the Florida Center for Youth and Children. At the same time, Florida ranks 39th in child poverty.

"I think the federal bill is a very bad recipe for Florida, which could in fact become poisonous if we have any kind of economic stress or downturn in our health or economy, let alone a natural disaster like a hurricane," Levine said Thursday. Jennings, however, said the Florida law wouldn't let children go hungry because their benefits would be paid to a third party designated to provide the things needed by the children.

Look for some great new steps in Tajiri's upcoming performances.

Seeing Broadway is what every young artist looks forward to. The group highlighted their trip by taking in a Broadway show at the Ambassador Theater, "Bring in 'da Noise, Bring in 'da Funk", starring Savion Glover. This play, conceived and directed by George C. Wolfe, has won five Tony Awards.

This was an educational and fun tour of New York areas—risky downtown Park Avenue, Fifth Avenue, and yes Broadway. "This trip was a dream come true; an experience we will never forget," says Polly Haws, mother of Latressa Haws. She enjoyed the atmosphere, the people, the music, and the bright lights in Uptown Harlem on a Friday night.

The group is planning a return trip in October 1987, to continue the Sanford-New York City connection. The purpose of these trips is to exchange information and ideas and to improve the cultural arts awareness for our children in Sanford, says director Pat Whatley.

to a more northerly area, closer to SR-46A. He also announced a nine acre park is being included for the property, as well as a 9.1 acre urban park. He also reported on plans for a wide recreational trail which would run the full length of the property. He said it is part of the County Recreational Trail program, which will, in the future, run from SR-436, through the Lake Mary area, and northwest to Wekiva Springs State Park.

Regarding a few private residences in the area near some of the proposed DRI, Henderson said they had been contacted and shown the plans. "We are working with them," he said, "and we haven't encountered any difficulties."

Included in the plans for the DRI is the construction of a four-lane divided roadway which will run the full north/south distance of the DRI.

According to the latest information on land use for the total program, including property outside the Lake Mary city limits, planners have listed the following:

- Office space — A total of 2,083,750 square feet with 1,729,750 square feet within the city.

- Office support retail and commercial space — 26,250 square feet within the city.

- Campus office — 280,000 square feet in the county. (A campus office is a commercial building three stories or less in height.)

- Retail/commercial hotel — 340,000 square feet in Lake Mary, consisting of 300 rooms.

- Day care facilities — 12,000 square feet in the county.

- Multi-family residential — 313 units within the county. Additionally space is allocated for such needs as retention ponds, storm drainage, and what Henderson said would be approximately 35 percent of the overall land left as greenspace.

Regarding the commercial type buildings, plans presently call for a maximum height of 70 feet, not including elevator shafts, roof mounted equipment or possible roof atrium features. The only concern voiced by city officials was in regard to the four-lane roadway, which the developer will be financing.

"When you extend International Parkway (to the north of AAA), you'll make it four-lane/divided," said City Planner Matt West. "And it will become a county road rather than a private road as it is now. But what about having to make it even wider, say to six lanes?"

Miranda Fitzgerald, of Lowndes, Drostick, Doster, Kantor & Reed, one of the spokesmen, explained that studies indicate the road would not have to be widened based on what the DRI proposed. "That would only be necessary if there was some other development on county property by other persons," she said, "and than it wouldn't be our responsibility."

Fitzgerald told the commission the remaining county property, near SR-46A might be developed in the future, as she understood it was one of the areas considered by Seminole County, for the development of a convention center.

The matter was just presented for informational purposes during the commission meeting, with no decision expected.

Because of the Heathrow International Business Center DR report, the commission meeting began at 8:30 p.m. yesterday, rather than the usual time of 7 p.m.

At the intersection of 18th Street and Southwest Road yesterday afternoon, railroad crossing barriers came down though there was no train in sight. School buses are not allowed, by law, to cross the tracks when the barriers are down so there they sat, patiently waiting for the police to arrive and rectify the situation. Meanwhile, area residents tried to assure them it was safe to cross by repeatedly traversing the tracks on their bikes.

It's back to school in Sanford and Lake Mary

Principal Mame Bingham helped first grader Freddie Robinson and fifth graders Christopher

Hunter and Shawn Bell find their classrooms before classes began at Hamilton Elementary

Parents at Lake Mary Elementary school, above, volunteered their time to help students find to which classrooms they needed to report. Meanwhile, a few miles away at Greenwood Lakes Middle School, Kim Webb, Amanda Mosley and Anna Dang, below, were happy to be back at school so they could be with their friends.

At Lake Mary Elementary a rather reluctant Emily Loe, above, clung to her mother Debbie who tried to convince her how fun school could be. On the other hand Sarah Canupp was happy to be in kindergarten as she shared the moment with her mother Susie.

Kyle Smith, wearing cool shades, wasn't too interested in helping his mother find his sister's classroom on the first day of school at Hamilton Elementary in Sanford. While Kyle explored the world around him, his mother Patly Smith checked for daughter Keirstin's class assignment with principal Mame Bingham.

At Midway Elementary School students, including first graders Rasheena Harper, Latoya Simmons and second grader Jasmine Franklin were proud to show off their new school gear on the first day of classes.

Akers, US soccer is solid gold

By ROBERT HILLWARD
AP Sports Writer

ATHENS, Ga. — Before a record crowd in the first Olympic soccer final, the U.S. women made it to the bigtime Thursday night.

They wouldn't have settled for anything less.

A crowd of 76,481 packed Sanford Stadium as the Americans beat China 2-1 in the first women's soccer tournament in the history of the games. Nearly all of the fans came to see the U.S. team move back to the top of a sport seeking to make its mark in this country.

"Just listen to the fans," said jubilant striker Mia Hamm, the star of the American squad that went 4-0-1 in the Olympics. "That's what it means. They're excited about the game. It's electrifying to play in front of everyone out here and everyone enjoying themselves. That's what it's all about."

"We all believed in each other, we all believed in this day. We are a very confident group, but that also must be because of the talent."

The talent has been there throughout the decade. But the victory ended a year-long journey for the American women, who lost their World Cup title to Norway in 1995. They pointed toward the Olympics for their vindication, and got it by beating Norway in the semifinals, then downed the Chinese in their second meeting of the tournament.

Goals by Shannon MacMillan in the 19th minute and Tiffany Milbrett in the 82nd clinched a victory which appeared to be slipping away during the middle of the game, especially after Sun Wen scored for China in the 32nd.

But the Americans sent the fans wild by recapturing their early fire and style. In the end, it was captain Carla Overbeck and her players who collected the gold medals after dancing around the field carrying three U.S. flags.

Oviedo's Michelle Akers and the United States women's soccer team that trained in this area since last January claimed the first ever gold medal for women's Olympic soccer Thursday night with a 2-1 victory over China.

achievement, the medals were presented by IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch, who had FIFA president Joao Havelange and several of the world's major soccer officials standing alongside.

"Women's sports is on the uprise and the crowd that came out to watch this match today demonstrated this rise," MacMillan said.

The bronze medal went to Norway, which downed Brazil 2-0 in a game played earlier Thursday in the same stadium.

The huge crowd at the home of the University of Georgia football team — dwarfing the previous record 65,000 who saw the U.S. win the 1991 World Cup in Canton, China — created a party atmosphere for the American team.

Although the well-organized Chinese — who tied 0-0 with the United States in a first-round game — silenced the fans for long periods by keeping the Americans in check.

Bad start to New Smyrna racing

By DAVE WESTERMAN
Special to the Herald

SAMSULA — Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway was, to say the least, interesting!

The evening started off on a sour note with a bad wreck in the heat races in Turn 1 involving the points leader for the Sportman Class, Barbara Pierce.

After hitting the pit wall her car went "airborn" before smashing head-on into the outside wall. EVAC was called and Barbara will be spending a few days in the hospital. We all wish her well. She told the Paramedics to relay a message, as she lay on the backboard, "I will be back!"

The End of the Month Late Model Championship was good, close racing between all the drivers, but bad luck was still around as David Rogers spun coming out of Turn 4 with two laps remaining, bring out a caution.

On the restart, the Sunbelt sponsored #18 Chevrolet of Bruce Lawrence took the checkered flag, with Rogers second and Johnnie Gardacko, Jeff Rule and Ricky Wood finishing third through fifth.

The Limited Late Model headliner went to Gary Tiffany with Jeff Emery, Andy Saffotti, Mark Tracy and Darrell Frye in tow.

The No. 74 Modified of Barry Willoughby took his first victory of the season as the young driver drove a clean race to come home ahead of newcomer Ricky Miller, Joe Middleton, Ross Eldridge and Larry Everly.

The Sportsman feature went on with everyone wondering how Barbara Pierce was doing. Tim Laurent went on to collect his first Sportman class victory just one week after moving up from the Bomber Division! Rusty Edwards took second for the second straight night with Ted Head, J. Allen Smith and Dee Napier running third, fourth and fifth.

The Bomber finale was a tight race right to the end. Chad Pierce led many laps, but could not hold off Rick Clouser in the end. Trailing Clouser across the finish line were Chad Pierce, Brian Frye, Ron McAloney and Chuck Rush. The race also became a family affair as Rick Clouser was joined on the track by his son, Richard. It was the first Bomber event for Richard and the ??? for dad Rick.

Brian Bellaw did not have a good night as he had Friday. After a good race in the Mini-Stocks he was disqualified after the post-race inspection found his car to be too light. Conrad Grenier was the winner with Jared Allison, Dale Casteel, Ronnie Watson and Gary Vivian rounding out the top five.

Matt Rauscher won another Run-A-Bout race and is rumored to be moving up to the Bomber Division. Placing second through fifth were Leon Foyt, Don Bouloug, Guy Allhiser and Tab Drew.

The details of the Mystery Race was kept a mystery right up until the start of the race. Once in line the cars were made to race around the track in a counter-clockwise direction and although it doesn't seem like much, one needs to understand the Bomber plots that raced their cars all have their mounts set up to run the other direction, so it made for a challenge.

All of the drivers said it was fun and hope to do it again...maybe next time they can run it backwards in reverse! The top five finishers were Rick Clouser, Brian Frye, Chuck Rush, Joe Rush and Ron Adams.

New Smyrna Speedway is located at the corner of S.R.'s 44 and 415 West of Samsula. The 1/2-mile facility races every Saturday night at 7 p.m. Mark your calendars for August 10th as NSS will host the Coca-Cola Limited Late Model 100 Lap race. For race info call, (804) 437-4138.

Gold rush for US

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Capsules of Thursday's events at the Summer Olympics:

ARCHERY

Californian Justin Hulsh, who often practices by shooting across the street and through his garage, had consecutive 10s to open the men's gold medal match and never trailed in a 112-107 victory over Sweden's Magnus Petersson.

BASEBATTION

South Korea's Bang Soo-hyun, the 1992 silver medalist, defeated 16-year-old Min Audina of Indonesia 11-6, 11-7 to win the women's gold. Denmark's Poul-Erik Hoyer-Larsen took the men's title, beating China's Dong Jong 15-12, 15-10.

The South Korean team of Gil Young-ah and Kim Dong-moon won the gold medal in mixed doubles, defeating Ra Kyung-min and Park Joo-bong, also of South Korea, 13-15, 15-4, 15-12.

BASEBALL

Japan hit five home runs — three off Kris Benson — in an 11-2 semifinal victory over the United States. Instead of a Cuba-U.S. rematch for the gold Friday, it will be Japan trying to deny the Cubans a second Olympic gold. The United States will play Nicaragua for the bronze.

Orestes Kindelan hit his Olympic-record eighth homer as Cuba advanced to the gold-medal game with an 8-1 victory over Nicaragua. Kindelan and Juan Manrique hit three-run homers. Cuba has set an Olympic record with 30 home runs.

BASKETBALL (MEN)

Charles Barkley put the United States one win away from the gold medal in the 100th Olympic victory for an American men's team, 101-73 over Australia. The Dream Team had its worst shooting performance of the Olympics, hitting only 47 percent, but still had a relatively easy time.

The championship game will be Saturday night against Yugoslavia, and the Dream Team will enter it with an all-time record of 100-2. Barkley scored 24 points, shooting 7-for-7 from the field, and grabbed 11 rebounds.

Oscar Schmidt scored 32 points as Brazil defeated Croatia 80-74 in the consolation semifinals. Brazil will meet Greece in Saturday's fifth-place game. Greece beat China 115-75.

BASKETBALL (WOMEN)

Yelena Baranova scored 37 points, two off the Olympic record for women's basketball, and Ruzmeta finished with an 11-1 run for an 80-69 victory over Japan. Ruzmeta will play for fifth place Saturday against Cuba, which beat Italy 78-70.

BOXING

Americans Rhoahill Wells, Terrance Cauthen and Nate Jones all earned bronze medals after being decided in semifinal bouts. Wells was outpointed 17-8 by Ariel Hernandez of Cuba at 165 pounds. Cauthen lost 15-12 to Tontcho Tontchev of Bulgaria at 132 pounds. Jones lost 18-10 to Canadian David Defagbon.

Besides Hernandez, a 1992 Olympic champion, three other Cubans advanced to the finals.

The U.S. team eventually gave them something huge to celebrate, as well giving their sport a major lift. Soccer has taken a back seat in the United States for decades and women's soccer has been even less of an attraction. Now that the Americans own an Olympic title, perhaps the players will receive some of the adulation bestowed on female track, gymnastics and swimming stars.

And maybe the unprecedented success will lead to a women's league along the lines of men's Major League Soccer, which began play this year.

The Americans went ahead in the 19th minute when Kristine Lilly broke down the left and crossed into the danger area. A shot by Mia Hamm was palmed onto the post by goalkeeper Gao Hong, but MacMillan ran in to shoot the rebound home from 10 yards.

The Americans looked impressive going forward, but were caught out of position in the 32nd minute. Zhao Lihong's clearance over the head of Joy Fawcett sent in Sun Wen alone and she beat goalkeeper Britna Scurry from 20 yards, lobbing the ball into the net.

The Americans, who had played some attractive, free-flowing soccer before that, lost their poise in midfield afterward. They also had a period when they gave away the ball too often in midfield and allowed the Chinese to maintain pressure that shouldn't have been there.

But Milbrett's goal in the 62nd minute was an expertly made move.

Defender Fawcett broke down the right from MacMillan's forward pass, ran clear of the defense and had the chance to win it herself.

Instead of shooting from a tight angle, she spotted Milbrett uncovered on the left, drew the goalkeeper off her line and played a sideways pass into the open space. The forward side-footed the ball home from 8 yards with no one to beat. China rarely threatened after that.

Olympics

Arnold Mess beat world champion Kaimkul Malakhbekov of Russia 75-73 on a tiebreaker after the computer called their 119-punch contest a draw 8-8. Juan Hernandez, a silver medalist at the 1992 Olympics, outpointed Romanian Marian Simion 20-7 at 147 pounds. Felix Savon, 1992 Olympic and five-time world champion at 201 pounds, won on a walkover when Germany's Luan Kraenig couldn't compete because of an injured hand.

CANOE-KAYAK
 The U.S. canoe and kayak team had five boats competing on Lake Lanier. All five failed to advance past the semifinals.

John Mooney and Peter Newton came close to the fourth place they needed to qualify for a chance at a medal, but were edged at the finish by Australians Peter Scott and Grant Leury in the 1,000-meter two-man race.

Two-time Olympian Mike Harbold was seventh in the 1,000-meter kayak semifinal; team captain Joseph Harper finished last in the 1,000-meter canoe; the four-woman kayak team, needing a second-place finish, ended up fourth, and the four-man kayak crew came in last.

DEIVING
 Russia's Dmitry Sautin was the top qualifier with 452.82 points in the platform preliminaries. China's Xiao Hailiang qualified second with 445.86 points and Tian Liang third with 425.73.

Americans Patrick Jeffrey qualified fifth and David Pichler sixth.

BOUSTRIAN
 It came down to the last rider in the show jumping team competition. Unfortunately for the U.S. team, that rider was the world's best - Germany's Ludger Beerbaum. Led by Beerbaum, who won individual gold at the 1992 Games, Germany won the team event with only 1.75 time faults.

The United States won the silver medal with 12 faults and Brazil took the bronze with 17.25.

FIELD HOCKEY (MEN)
 The U.S. men remain 0-for-the-Olympics, still looking for their first-ever victory at the games following a final loss. Malaysia beat the Americans 4-1, leaving the U.S. team 0-7 - and 0-26-4 in Olympic history.

"We're back in training the first of September," U.S. coach Jon Clark said. "Such are the demands of modern hockey that there isn't much time for sitting around with pizza, bad lights and moping. They've just got to get on with it."

FIELD HOCKEY (WOMEN)
 Alyson Annan scored twice as the Australians beat South Korea 3-1, extending their unbeaten streak in tournament competition to 40 matches.

The Netherlands earned the bronze medal by winning a shootout from Britain 4-3.

RHYTHMIC GYMNASTICS
 Rhythmic group gymnastics made its Olympic debut, and the top six teams advanced to Friday's finals. Bulgaria, the defending world champion, finished first in the preliminary round. Italy and Germany were knocked out, along with the last-place United States. The Americans only made the Olympics because they're the hosts.

Ekaterina Serebryanskaya, who tied for first at last year's world championships, had a slight lead over Ukrainian Elena Vitrichenko in the individual event after the first two preliminary rounds.

TABLE TENNIS
 The tournament was a sweep for China. Liu Quoling took the final gold medal, winning the men's singles crown over teammate Wang Tao 2-1, 22-24, 21-19, 15-21, 21-5. The Chinese won all four gold medals and three of the silvers.

TEAM HANDBALL
 South Korea will play for its third straight women's handball gold medal when it meets Denmark on Saturday. The South Koreans (4-0), winners in their home country in 1988 and at Barcelona in 1992, beat Hungary 39-25. Denmark eliminated Norway, winner of the silver medal in 1988 and 1992, 23-19.

China edged Germany 28-26 for fifth place, and Angola defeated the United States 24-23 for seventh place.

TENNIS
 Andre Agassi advanced to the final of his first Olympics, erasing two set points in the opening set and beating Leander Paes of India 7-6 (7-5), 6-3. Agassi will go for the gold Saturday against Spaniard Sergi Bruguera, who beat Fernando Meligeni of Brazil 7-6 (11-9), 6-2.

TRACE AND FIELD
 Michael Johnson completed his historic golden double in world-record time, adding the 200-meter title to his Olympic 400 crown. Johnson won in 19.32 seconds, knocking .34 seconds off the world record he set on the Olympic Stadium track during the U.S. trials in June. Johnson is the first man to win both events at an Olympics.

France's Marie-Jose Perec beat Johnson to the golden double, winning the women's 200 meters a few minutes before Johnson completed his historic sweep. Perec caught Jamaica's Merlene Ottey in the final 10 meters to win in 22.12. The only other woman to accomplish the 200-400 double was American Valerie Brisco-Hooks in 1984.

Derrick Adkins won the men's 400-meter hurdles in 47.54 and American teammate Calvin Davis took the bronze medal.

Dan O'Brien became the first American decathlon winner since Bruce Jenner in 1976, finishing third 10-event competition with 8,824 points.

Carl Lewis moved closer to a shot at history when his friend Leroy Burrell pulled out of the U.S. 400-meter relay team with a heel injury.

Jackie Joyner-Kersey needed only one attempt to qualify for the long jump final. With her right leg heavily bandaged, she jumped 21 feet, 11 1/4 inches.

VOLLEYBALL
 The U.S. women's team beat Germany 17-16, 15-6, 5-15, 15-6 to finish seventh. Most of the players then tossed their jerseys into the appreciative crowd.

China moved within one victory of claiming its second gold medal, beating Russia 12-15, 15-5, 15-8, 15-12 in the semifinals. The Chinese will play Cuba for the gold. The Cubans beat Brazil 5-15, 15-9, 10-15, 15-13, 15-12 in the other semifinal.

WRESTLING (FREESTYLE)
 Bruce Baumgartner, seeking his third gold medal, lost 6-1 to Russia's Andrei Shumilin in a second-round 296-pound match. Baumgartner can wrestle back and win a bronze medal, but is assured of his worst finish in an Olympics. He has won two golds and a silver.

Americans Kenny Monday (163 pounds) and Tom Brands (136 1/4) won their first two matches. American Lou Roselli, still in contention for a bronze medal, was forced to drop out with a fractured right elbow. Roselli was injured in a 4-2 consolation round victory over Constantin Corduneanu of Romania at 114 1/2 pounds.

YACHTING
 Americans Kris Stoekey and Louise Van Voorhis had a chance to win a medal in the women's 470 class, but they struggled to an 11th-place finish in the final race and dropped from third to fourth with 47 points overall.

Defending gold medalists Theresa Zabell and Begona Via Dufresne of Spain won the gold with 28 points.

Ukraine captured the gold in the men's 470. Yevhen Bravlevets and Ihor Matviyenko didn't even have to race Thursday to finish with a 21-point sweep over John Merricks and Ian Walker of Britain.

Marketing hype in Candyland

"Fifty percent less fat than the average of the leading chocolate candy brands." So boasts the label of Sweet Escapes Caramel & Peanut Butter Crispy Bars, one of the three products in Hershey's new line of reduced-fat chocolate bars.

But there's a catch. The leading brands on which Hershey's bases its comparison are Snickers, Reese's Peanut Butter Cups and M&M's Peanut, the last two of which rank among the highest fat candies on the market. The fat savings are not so significant when Sweet Escapes is compared to other favorites. In fact, 3 Musketeers bars actually contain a drop less fat per ounce than any of the Sweet Escapes bars. And a Sweet Escapes Chocolate Toffee Crisp Bar, a milk chocolate bar with crunchy toffee mixed in, contains virtually the same amount of calories and fats as a Hershey's 5th Avenue bar.

Chocolate lovers who are checking their options at the candy counter should also note that regular-size Sweet Escapes bars weigh in at 1.4 ounces, about a third less than Snickers, Milky Way, 3 Musketeers, Butterfinger, and a number of other popular treats. Thus, Sweet Escapes may appear to contain significantly fewer calories and less fat than other choices; the savings are due in large part to the smaller size.

To make it easier for chocoholics to compare Sweet Escapes to traditional candy-counter items, the chart below lists the calorie and fat content of fun-size bars, the kind sold in bags, which are given out at Halloween. Like just about all the other fun-size bars on the market, the small Sweet Escapes bars weigh 18 to 20 grams each (0.7 ounce). At these sizes, the savings amount to a few grams of fat and 10 to 20 calories, nothing to get excited about.

That's especially true when you factor in taste. Our staff crunched the bars after we crunched the numbers, and we all agreed we'd rather eat the real thing than save so little fat and calories with a less satisfying product. Budget-minded consumers should also note the high price of Sweet Escapes: $1.99 for 9 bars at a local store in Boston. A 10-piece bag of Snickers, on the other hand, costs only $1.49.

Choosing a Mini-Bar For fat and calorie conscious chocolate lovers who like a regular candy "fix", fun-size candy bars are the perfect choice. Throwing one in your lunch or briefcase to have when a craving strikes can prevent trips to the vending machine for regular-size bars.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a 3-year-old boy and a 2-month-old daughter. Like any proud parent, I love the chance to show off my children and the attention we receive in supermarkets, church, the mall, etc. People constantly stop to comment on "that adorable baby." They ask her age, who she looks like, how much she weighed at birth... what-over is on their minds. I'm always happy to talk, but I dread it now because they ignore my son. Through the interviews, his little face is bright and interested, but his sweet face crumples when he realizes that, yet again, no one notices him. It breaks my heart to see him hurt like that.

Please remind your readers that children of all ages have feelings. He's so proud of being the big brother, and he would love to tell anyone about her — if only they would ask him. Even one question directed to him would make his day. It's hard for a child suddenly to go from being the only child to invisible when a baby is around.

Friends who stopped by with gifts for the baby were no different. They give him a pat on the head and say, "No, this is for your sister." I anticipated that and kept little gifts wrapped for him in case visitors forget him, but it's not the same. Anything, even a balloon meant especially for him, would have made his day.

Older children don't need anything expensive; they just want to know they are remembered. A little gesture would mean the world and might prevent some deep-rooted sibling resentment.

OLDEST SIBLING, TOO

DEAR OLDEST SIBLING: Thank you for a wonderful letter. Most people don't mean to be unkind to the older children — they just forget that big brother or big sister still needs a little attention, too. Your letter should jog their memories, but please don't leave it up to strangers or acquaintances to include the older children. Take it upon yourself to include them in your conversations and encourage them to speak up. It will help them to develop social skills.

DEAR ABBY: Many a food server has lost a tip because of the following comments:

1. Do you guys want anything else?
2. Your hair sure is pretty. Where do you have it done?
3. That's a beautiful blouse. Where did you buy it? How much was it?

This has happened to my husband and me in all types of restaurants. When we go out to dine, we do not care to carry on a personal conversation with the person who has been hired to serve us.

EX-WAITRESS

DEAR EK: This may have happened to you in "all types" of restaurants, but in first-class restaurants, food servers know better than to ask, "Do you guys want anything else?" Comments about the customer's grooming and wearing apparel are also inappropriate.

You could have given your server a tip far more valuable than money if you had spoken up.

DEAR ABBY: I have come across a problem I notice almost daily in our local newspaper.

When a person dies in his 70s, 80s or 90s, why do the newspapers print a picture of an 18- to 30-year-old person? Surely there is a more up-to-date picture than a high school picture — or a boot camp picture.

Or why print a picture at all? I would like your comments on this practice.

J.E.G. IN NAZARETH, PA.

DEAR J.E.G.: In obituaries of prominent people, newspaper editors use the most current picture they have in their files. For general obituaries, the family of the deceased provides the editors with the picture of its choice.

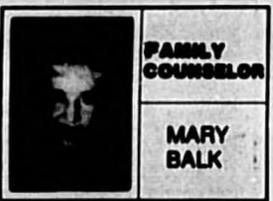

Mom having a fit over girl's tatoo

Dear Mary: I'm 16 years old, make decent grades, have a part-time job and get along pretty well with my parents. I want to get a tatoo on my right shoulder (actually, my boyfriend and I want to get matching tattoos), but my mom is having a fit! I don't think it's anybody else's business if I get a tatoo. She doesn't have to look at it and it's not like I want to get a ring in my nose or something. I can even cover it up when I'm at work or some place where it might be a problem.

We've been fighting about this for weeks and I'm thinking about just getting it done and then let her deal with it. The only problem is, I'm not sure what might happen. She's really ballistic about it; I just want her to get out of my face. I'm not hurting anyone else and if I want to get a tatoo, I figure it's my body and my life. Can you help me get this across to her?

Want a Tatoo

Dear Want a Tatoo: We tell the world what we think of ourselves and what we want others to think of us by our appearance. The problem that I have with tattoos is that the message they give will never change, even when we want to change our appearance. Get out your parents' old high school yearbooks and look at the pictures of the adults. They look pretty funny, don't they. If they haven't changed their appearance since your parents were in high school, they look really odd and out-dated now. The same thing will be true with a tatoo, should you get one. Some day you may really hate the guy that you got it to match, but the tatoo will always be there. You'll also have lots of fun explaining it to other guys you go out with the rest of your life.

FAMILY COUNSELOR

Finally, since you are still legally a minor, your mom's opinion is the final decision. If, when you're 18, assuming you become financially independent and move out of your parents' home, then you have the right to get yourself tattooed anywhere and any way you want to.

Children are blessings from God

SANFORD — "Cut those apron strings" is an expression heard often from society referring to the fact that moms should release some rein on their children. "They need to socialize with other children" is another familiar saying.

Those blessings from God, on loan from the Father, are our children. They are to be treasured and regarded as a gift.

Unlike some parents that I've heard say "I can't wait until my brats start back to school," I miss mine terribly. I wiped a tear yesterday as I dropped them off to what seems like endless hours.

I should be happy that I now get some free time to pursue my career and time to myself. Yet, after home-schooling them for several years I truly feel a loss.

We did and still do spend a considerable amount of time together. We hike, walk the lonely railroad track bed, go to the beach, cuddle, talk, worship together, read together and make up stories on the computer.

I treasure my moments with them. If things were different and my income wasn't needed I can't say that I wouldn't continue to keep our daily appointments with our former "dining room table - classroom."

Just as God hopes that we will follow Him, we as parents make an effort to instill values, morals, and good behavior in our children. We can only pray that just as the scripture tell us in Proverbs 22:6, "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old he will not depart from it."

My son's new teacher, Amy Copeland, shared a poem with me and I think it is worth repeating. It was written by Diane Loomans.

RELIGION

SUSAN WENNER

If I had my child to raise all over again,
I'd fingerprint more, and point the finger less.
I'd do less correcting, and more connecting.
I'd take my eyes off my watch, and watch with my eyes.
I would care to know less, and know to care more.
I'd take more hikes and fly more kites.
I'd stop playing serious, and seriously play.
I'd run through more fields, and gaze at more stars.
I'd do more hugging, and less tugging.
I would be firm less often, and affirm much more.
I'd build self-esteem first, and the house later.
I'd teach less about the love of power,
And more about the power of love.

Inflammation may signal cancer

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can you tell me about inflammatory breast cancer? I'm a 74-year-old female, post mastectomy for this condition. Now my other breast has gotten progressively more sensitive and sore, yet, because there is no lump, my doctor is content with a mammogram every six months. He's actually angry that I got information from the National Cancer Institute. Is his approach a good one?

DEAR READER: Some (but not all) breast cancers are associated with inflammation that can be identified in a biopsy specimen. The reason for this inflammation is unknown, but the condition is associated with a virulent type of malignancy leading to a swollen, tender breast that may not be lumpy. A mammogram may not necessarily reveal this type of cancer.

I don't want to second-guess your doctor, who is more familiar with your condition. However, given your previous inflammatory cancer, I'd be suspicious that your remaining breast might be similarly affected. If you were my patient, I'd probably push for a biopsy, all things being equal.

I'm sorry to hear that your physician was upset that you did your homework. Your actions seem reasonable to me, inasmuch as it's your life and future that are on the line.

I believe that you could be best served by obtaining a second opinion from another qualified surgeon. If the consultant agrees with your doctor, all well and good.

On the other hand, if he is suspicious — as I am — he may recommend biopsy. In either case, you will at least be able to resolve this difficult problem. Let me know what happens.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

pulmonary tests that show airway obstruction (despite intensive therapy), diminished blood-oxygen levels, and X-rays that demonstrate uneven hyper-inflation of the lungs.

Without treatment, COPD usually worsens over the years, resulting in severe disability.

Therapy includes bronchodilator drugs (Proventil and others), intermittent antibiotics, avoidance of inhaled irritants, respiratory therapy (to lessen bronchial secretions and maintain an appropriate level of physical activity), supplemental oxygen (in severe cases), aggressive treatment of heart failure (a complication of COPD), and the judicious use of surgery (to remove isolated, non-functioning portions of lung).

Most cases of COPD can be diagnosed by X-rays, pulmonary function tests and arterial blood gas analysis, under the supervision of a pulmonary specialist.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Living With Chronic Lung Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are the symptoms of COPD, and what tests are necessary to determine whether or not I might have the disease?

DEAR READER: Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease is a term that includes several related lung disorders, including emphysema, chronic bronchitis and asthma.

The common denominators are obstructed breathing in conjunction with permanent lung damage. Patients with COPD suffer from breathlessness, cough, slow forced exhalation, and over-inflation of the lungs.

The affliction is a common consequence of cigarette smoking and chronic exposure to air pollution, low-grade infection, and asthma (reversible narrowing of the bronchial passages).

Deals from the readers

By Phillip Alder

Occasionally I am sent deals by my readers. Usually these are freaks with long suits abounding, which are normally no good for the column. But last May in the same bag of mail I received two letters that contained interesting deals. Here is the first, from Allan Barclay, who lives in Mount Maunganui, which is on the north island of New Zealand.

First, just look at the South hand. After two passes, what would you bid?

The cards were dealt by hand at the Te Puke Contract Bridge Club. And, surprisingly, no one present had any experience of bidding a 3-3-point hand! Almost everyone opened six no-trump. Even if you could see your partner's hand before deciding what to bid, you would select six no-trump as it needs only a 3-2 heart break or the singleton queen, which is a combined 73.5 percent chance.

As you can see, though, with the actual distribution the contract has only a theoretical 7.7 percent chance. West has 12 opening leads that will defeat six no-trump. Only the heart 10, which would be a particularly strange choice, lets South get home.

After the safe spade lead, South should cash a second spade, two diamonds and two clubs, hoping an opponent with four hearts might make a discarding error. But East should throw a diamond on the second spade.

The strongest hand I ever held contained 33 high-card points. My rubber-bridge partner had seven of the other eight. We zoomed into seven no-trump and made it easily. The stakes? Love of the game!

HOROSCOPE

Saturday, August 3, 1988

In the year ahead, you might establish a partnership arrangement and embark on an ambitious undertaking. Your probability of success looks hopeful, provided you both aim at the same target.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Experimenting with labor-saving techniques today might turn out to be an exercise in futility. Use established methods, even if they are more tedious. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you want to do something today, but you are unsure of the outcome, do it independently. You could have them breathing down your neck if anything goes wrong.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You must be extremely selective today when asking for advice. If the individual you choose is a poor counselor, additional complications will ensue.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will be an effective salesperson today, but avoid selling anything you haven't tested yourself. Make sure the product works before trying to sell it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Discipline will be required today to suppress the urge to spend extravagantly. A lack of concern for your resources could cause you to spend foolishly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Occasionally, a bluff can succeed if you have enough bravado. Today, however, make sure to have a hand full of aces before you increase the ante.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Today if you are too laid-back and easygoing, don't expect the world to beat a path to your door, even though you might have something worthwhile to offer.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you don't stabilize and strengthen your present position in a business situation, you might lose something you have gained already.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not be more optimistic than realistic about something you want to achieve today. If your judgment is not on target, you might not succeed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You should not be too generous today. Your misguided zeal might lead you to favor the wrong people impulsively.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today your worst enemy might turn out to be a well-intentioned friend who will try to involve you in a project which will have a grossly exaggerated worth.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An associate might take it upon herself to make decisions for you today. These choices may not be in your best interest.
