Gasoline Tax

Orange County Is Watching What Seminole And Other Counties Decide

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer
(First of a three-part gas tax series)

Orange County officials are watching with keen interest what officials in neighboring counties are doing about a local option gasoline tax.

Orange County Administrator Jim Harris said today the county commission is watching what happens in Seminole and Osceola counties to try and develop a coordinated tax in Central Florida.

"We'd like to coordinate with what is happening in Seminole, Osceola and the other counties," Harris said. "Prices already fluctuate quite a bit from station to station. We would prefer not to develop a crazy quilt on gas prices in Central Florida."

Harris said Orange County commissioners are scheduled to vote on a 4-cent gas tax proposal at a 7 p.m. Monday hearing but may delay their decision until they see the outcome in Seminole and Osceola counties.

Seminole County has passed a resolution of intent to levy a 4-cent gas tax after failing to reach an agreement with the city's seven municipalities on distribution of gas tax funds. The cities rejected a plan to give them 25 percent of the tax revenues.

If no agreement is reached with the cities by July 15, the county can pass the tax on its own and distribute the funds on a percentage basis established by the state. That plan totals the amount spent by each governing body on transportation over the past five years and would give each body its pro rata share. Under that formula, Seminole County would receive about 85 percent of the gasoline tax revenues.

A public hearing on Seminole County's gas tax proposal is scheduled for July 26.

Osceola County commissioners are expected to vote on a 4-cent gas tax plan later this month.

Volusia County's Council approved a 2-cent gas tax Thursday night. A 4-cent tax had been proposed but after a public hearing Thursday commissioners decided to levy only 2 cents.

Polk County, west of Orange County, has already approved a 4-cent gas tax.

In Seminole County, three commissioners — Sandra Glenn, Barbara Christensen and Robert Sturm — favor a 4-cent tax. But unless Robert G. "Bud" Feather, who is against the tax, or Bill Kirchhoff, who hasn't taken a public stance on the tax, votes in support, they will only be able to pass a 2-cent tax.

The state Legislature mandated that county commissions have a four-fifths majority to approve a 3 or 4-cent gas tax.

In Orange County where nine public meetings have been held on the gas tax, a similar situation exists, Harris said. Commissioner Tom Dormann has said he won't vote for any gas tax. The other four commissioners must vote in favor of the 4-cent tax to implement it.

He said gasoline dealers have lobbied hard against the tax in many counties around the state.

"They've told us that many people who live in Seminole County and work in Orlando will stop buying gas in Orange County if we pass the tax," Harris said.

In Seminole County, where no gasoline dealer association exists, Earl Higginbotham, a gasoline

GOP Votes Against Gas Tax

The Seminole County GOP Thursday night voted against a 4-cent gasoline tax being considered by the Seminole County Commission.

Dorothy Meadors, treasurer of the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee, said that Frank Joyce, a volunteer in programs for senior citizens, made a motion that the 41 members attending the meeting take a straw vote on the tax issue. The motion passed unanimously.

The straw vote was then taken, Mrs. Meadors said, and although comment was invited, no one wished to speak either for or against the proposed tax.

The vote against the tax was unanimous, she said.

The Seminole County Young Republican Club earlier voted to oppose the proposed county gas tax.

Joyce said today that he brought the issue before the executive committee because of opposition he has heard from senior citizens to the proposed tax.

"We just cannot afford any more taxes," Joyce said. "Maybe the County Commission doesn't understand that."

The County Commission has adopted a resolution setting a public hearing for July 26 on a proposed tax. The commissioners have said the resolution does not mean that they have made up their minds to levy the tax.

If the tax is approved it would go into effect on Sept. 1. — Donna Estes

Sanford Man On Florida Sub To Be Commissioned Saturday

(First of a two-part series)

ABOARD THE USS FLORIDA — Being a member of the commissioning crew of a new Navy ship is important to all the crewmen, but Saturday when the ballistic missile submarine Florida joins the active Navy fleet in Groton, Conn., will be even more special for Sanford resident Bob Lewis.

The master chief petty officer was ready to retire in 1982 when he found out the job of chief of the boat on the Florida was available.

"A month before I was supposed to leave the Navy I agreed to withhold my retirement for these orders," said the 38-year-old son of Ted and Marie Lewis, 613 Camellia Court, Sanford.

"I wanted the ship named for my home state to be the best, and I wanted to serve on a Trident submarine. I've served on every other kind of submarine there is — diesel and nuclear-powered attack submarines, ballistic missile submarines and even a bathyscaph, the Trieste II. The Tridents are the newest and the best."

U.S. Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Winter Park, will be the principal speaker at the commissioning of the Florida. The ceremony will be held at 11 a. m. Mrs. Hawkins will speak on the interrelationship of foreign policy, military preparedness and peace.

Gov. Bob Graham and U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles also are expected to participate in the ceremony.

The nuclear-powered Florida is the third Trident submarine to be built. Taller than a four-story building and almost the length of two football fields, the submarine is designed to carry 24 Trident missiles as part of the nation's deterrent force. The Trident's increased range allows the ship to operate in 10 times more ocean area than the previous Poseidon missile system. The submarine is the largest undersea craft in the free world, but its

At Lake Mary 700-Plus Home Plan Stalled

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Plans of Residential Communities of America to build more than 700 homes and townhouse units on a 223-acre tract at Rantoul Lane and State Road 46A were stalled temporarily by the Lake Mary City Commission Thursday night.

A request to rezone the parcel from agricultural use to single family and townhouse development was tabled to give City Attorney Robert Petree time to prepare a legal opinion.

The request for the opinion came after city Commissioner Ken King expressed concerns that portions of the 88.69 acres planned for townhouse development are located in a flood plain which he described as some of the highest water recharge area in the city.

It was also noted that RCA currently plans to concentrate much of the townhouse development in a corner of the section to leave the flood-prone area vacant and yet build the six units per acre which would have been allowed on the entire parcel. This is the portion of the property requested rezoned for multi-family units.

Some 136.28 acres also are requested rezoned for single family homes.

Petree said he will have an opinion for the commission by its July 7 meeting on whether the developer can still claim the right to build a total of six units per acre, concentrated in one corner of the property.

When a principal in the RCA development company, Bill Goodman, said he has no problem with limiting the development of the townhouses or villas, as he preferred calling them. Mayor Walter Sorenson said the idea of concentrating all the units in one section "doesn't give us grief, but setting of precedent does."

Michael Gray, a Sanford attorney who represents RCA, said the townhouse development will be a mix of single story villas with some two-story units. He said RCA does not have final plans completed on the development yet.

"I'm concerned about the density and eliminating land that's good for the aquifer," King said.

And Sorenson said he is concerned about how the developer will approach the recharge problem.

King, an environmental studies instructor at Seminole Community College, has become known as the environmentalist on the city commission. He reiterated his concerns about more and more plans for development concentrating in recharge areas.

"This deals with the volume and quantity of water being discharged," he said.

Two lakes, both named "Como", are located on the property.

The overall development is named "The Hills at Lake Mary."

Although it was expected that RCA would inform the commission of any plans it has to help the city with acquiring a water supply, no announcement was made.

Assaid Sentenced; Boyfriend May Try To Get Trial Moved

By Diane Petryk
Herald Staff Writer

While Susan Barrett Assaid was sentenced Thursday to 15 years in prison for manslaughter in the death of her 5-year-old daughter, sources close to trial preparations for her co-defendant, Donald Glenn McDougall, charged with first degree murder in the case, said a change of venue will be sought on grounds of excessive publicity.

McDougall's trial is scheduled to begin in Seminole County before Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize next month. Assistant State Attorney Don Marblestone said he intends to request the death penalty if McDougall is convicted.

The state has charged that while Assaid stood by and watched, McDougall abused her daughter, Ursula Sunshine Assaid, for 55 hours until she died in their Altamonte Springs home in September 1982.

In exchange for a promise to testify against McDougall, the charge against Assaid was reduced to manslaughter.

Thursday, Assaid, who gave birth to a boy May 30, cried throughout a 45-hearing in a packed Seminole County Courthouse courtroom before Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor.

McGregor sentenced her to the maximum penalty under the manslaughter charge, saying the plea compromise was the only compromise that should be due.

He said he was puzzled that Assaid could stand by and watch as her daughter was tortured.

Assaid's defense attorney, Chief Assistant Public Defender Don West, said Assaid's actions could not be

Cities Await County Double Tax Position; Casselberry Eyes Suit

Faced with the possibility that the Casselberry City Council Monday night may vote to go to court over the double taxation issue, the chairman of the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County is urging Seminole's city officials to "keep an open mind" until after a committee meeting next Wednesday.

Sanford City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles, chairman of the council's double taxation committee, has called a meeting of the group for 2 p.m. Wednesday in his conference room at Sanford City Hall with County Administrator T. Duncan Rose.

Knowles urged city officials to "keep an open mind" and to compare at Wednesday's meeting Rose's remarks with ones made by county representatives concerning double taxation last November.

"I completely agree with Knowles," Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Lee Constantine, chairman of the Council of Governments, said today.

"Let's wait and hear what the county representatives have to say." At the same time, Constantine said the county commission should be aware that the council, including the county's delegate at the time, voted for the resolution of agreement worked out by the committee.

The resolution adopted by the council last December on the committee's recommendation called for the county to notify the cities of its intent to be cooperative on the issue. The double taxation committee while meeting with then-County Administrator Roger Nelwander agreed the county would work out some tax relief for city dwellers on sheriff's department patrols and criminal investigations in exchange for the cities dropping resolutions as preliminary action to filing a joint lawsuit.

The cities spent $26,000 to hire Kelton and Associates of DeLand to conduct a double taxation study for them as a preliminary to going to court.

Among the items called for in the resolution was for the county to indicate in January that it would cooperate with the cities and keep them informed on budget matters concerning the sheriff's department.

The resolution was sent to each of the cities in timely fashion in January.

However, in the last couple weeks Rose has declared that double taxation does not exist in Seminole County. And Knowles declared, "We are back to square one."

Constantine said today, "If the county wants to play games with the cities they are asking for trouble that we don't need and don't want to give them."

He said the cities are concerned not only about double taxation but also about a proposal by County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, currently the county's delegate to the Council of Local Governments, for the county to give the city of Oviedo a special share of gas tax revenues if a county 4 cent gas tax is imposed.

Kirchhoff said he made the suggestion because Oviedo has supported the tax.

"I hope this is just another lead balloon," Constantine said.

Casselberry Council Chairman Carl Robertson Jr. said it may be impossible to get his colleagues on the city council to wait until after next Wednesday's meeting to vote to go to court.

"We are tired of waiting," Robertson said, adding that if Casselberry decides to go to court, it will invite the other county cities to join in on the lawsuit. "If they do not choose to, we will go it alone," he said.

NATION IN BRIEF

'Shoot The Burglar' Bill Called 'Legalized Murder'

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Despite warnings it was "legalizing murder," the state House approved a new law allowing citizens to kill anyone unlawfully entering their homes. "It legalizes murder," said Rep. Alphonse Jackson. "What we are going to do is start shooting without thinking." House members voted 78-13 Thursday for Sen. Ned Randolph's so-called "shoot the burglar" bill allowing the use of deadly force against anyone trying to enter a dwelling, if the resident felt the force was needed to prevent entry or to make the intruder leave.

Sirhan Turns To Kennedys

SOLEDAD, Calif. (UPI) — His hopes for freedom dashed by a parole board, Sirhan Sirhan called on the family of Robert F. Kennedy — the man he shot to death — to recommend he be released and deported from the United States. "I think that they could make a recommendation to the board — and I don't feel easy saying this — that I could be released and deported from this country never to come back to it again," Sirhan said Thursday. Sirhan, 39, made his comments to reporters after he was told by the California Board of Prison Terms that his bid for a new parole date, after 15 years in prison, had been rejected by the state parole board. Sirhan was convicted of assassinating the senator and Democratic presidential hopeful on June 6, 1968, in the pantry of the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles moments after his biggest political victory, the California primary.

Housing Leads Recovery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spurred by the economic recovery and good weather, housing construction hit a 3½-year high last month, the Commerce Department reports. The benchmark annual rate of housing starts rose to 1,791,000 units in May, 75 percent higher than the rate a year earlier, government figures showed. The statistics released Thursday were encouraging far beyond the housing industry, as factories and dealers share the rewards of an increased demand for steel, glass, appliances and other construction necessities.

Water Problems In Idyllwilde Corrected

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

Complaints about water quality in the Idyllwilde area west of Sanford have been resolved by repairs to a chlorinator, according to Don Rasmussen, manager of Utilities Inc., of Florida. The repairs were made last week and the problem should be corrected, said Rasmussen about the poor water quality which affected the Idyllwilde area. Complaints were filed with the state Department of Environmental Regulation and the Seminole County Health Department. Russ Miller, head of the health department's environmental division, said five or six complaints were received. Miller said tests on the water revealed high levels of sediments and low chlorine levels at the end of the distribution lines. He said bacteria tests revealed the water was safe for drinking despite its poor taste and odor. The state mandates that chlorine be added to the water in the proportion of at least one-half part per million. Miller said the chlorine level was less than the state-mandated level. He said low chlorine levels are not uncommon when a service company has long distribution lines. Booster stations are often needed to inject more chlorine into the water to maintain the level for customers at the end of the lines. It was a malfunctioning chlorinator in a booster station that was responsible for the problems in the Idyllwilde area, Rasmussen said. The health department's findings were sent to the DER regional office in Orlando, Miller said. He explained that the health department has an inter-agency agreement to investigate complaints for DER. Bob Sokelaski of the DER said his office has received the complaint "but I won't be able to review the problem until sometime next month." Sokelaski said he is responsible for potable water, domestic waste, industrial waste and fish kills in a 7-county region. "It's been a bad month," he said. "I don't want to downgrade your problem but I just have to get to things based on their magnitude. I can only spend 20 percent of my time on potable water." Sokelaski said he has not yet reviewed the file but didn't believe the problem was serious. If the Idyllwilde situation had been hazardous the health department would have dealt with it, he said. Such action could have ranged from a fine to mandated equipment changes or even shutting down the water plant. County health departments have the option of dealing with the problems themselves or referring them to the DER, he said. Complaints can be filed with the county health department or DER. Miller said most of the people who complained to the county about the Idyllwilde situation also contacted DER. By law, the DER has jurisdiction over private water systems. The health department has only informal power over the systems unless a health hazard has been created. Water firms are required to submit test results to DER once a month. Utility and health department officials said no complaints have been received about the service from Utilities Inc. since company officials said the chlorinator was repaired. However if problems persist, the DER will take action, Sokelaski said. "We will take action if it's warranted."

WEATHER

NATIONAL WEATHER: New York City's spring heat wave entered its sixth day today, with nothing but more heat and smog in sight. Thunderstorms soaked the Gulf Coast and triggered flash flood watches there and in southeast Nebraska. Showers and thunderstorms stretched from Texas to Alabama and were scattered across the central high Plains. The National Weather Service said a front stretching from eastern Montana to northern Arizona should moderate temperatures in the central plateau and Rockies, slowing down snowmelt. The mercury reached the mid-90s over eastern Utah Thursday, but held to the 70s and 80s elsewhere in the mountain West. A tornado in Southside, Ala. Thursday caused minor injuries to Marijane Stephens, 44, when it blew away everything but the back bedroom where she was sleeping. Thunderstorms in western Nebraska spun off tornadoes near Hemingford and Hay Springs. One storm showered Alliance with small hail, while winds gusted to 63 mph. A flash flood watch covered southeast Nebraska, where 2 to 3 inches of rain sent Turkey Creek out of its banks, flooding nearby roads. A cold front pushed through New England Thursday, alleviating the heat wave in Boston, but was too far north to do sweltering New York City any good. The National Weather Service said there was no immediate relief in sight from 90-degree temperatures. Health authorities extended an air pollution alert at least through tonight. The stagnant air is "like a lid over the city," said Robert Capp, a regional air pollution control engineer for Long Island. Storms dumped more than 2 inches of rain near the Houston airport, causing local flooding.

Tall Tale May Lead To Jail For Confessed Thief

A 23-year-old former Longwood and Apopka resident who received probation for stealing from the store where he worked when he told a judge he owed nearly $200,000 in medical bills will be resentenced, possibly to jail, because the debts did not exist. Seminole Circuit Judge Robert McGregor decided Thursday that Donald Letourneau had misled him during a May 12 sentencing and said he will hand down a new sentence July 21. Following Thursday's hearing, Letourneau was jailed under $2,500 bond. Letourneau had been sentenced to 30 months probation after pleading guilty to a charge of grand theft in connection with the theft of $1,400 from an Altamonte Springs 7-Eleven store. He was sentenced after telling McGregor that he stole to help pay his family's mounting medical bills which stemmed from the premature birth of his son who weighed only one pound, five ounces at birth. Letourneau said he had about $395,000 in medical bills and household debts when he took the money. At his sentencing, he said, insurance and a state grant had paid all but $180,000 of the debt. In fact, however, Letourneau's bills amounted to $130,000 and had been paid by the Southland Corp., which owns 7-Eleven, and a state grant for parents of premature babies. Assistant State Attorney Steve Brady recommended resentencing after learning that Letourneau had given false information.

PRINTS POINT TO SUSPECT
An 18-year-old Altamonte Springs man, already being held without bond at the Seminole County jail on six charges relating to armed robbery and burglary, was charged Wednesday morning with trafficking in stolen property after police matched his fingerprints with latent fingerprints on a pawn ticket. The pawn shop ticket was a receipt for goods stolen in a May 23 burglary in Seminole County. Robert Lee Ross, 229 Lorraine Drive, is being held in lieu of $5,000 bond on the trafficking in stolen property charge. He was arrested for armed robbery on May 26. BOOKSTORE MANAGER FREED An Altamonte Springs man accused of racketeering in the sale of sex films has been acquitted by an Orange County circuit court jury. Wayne Philpot, 33, former night manager of Fantasy World, an adult bookstore on South Orange Blossom Trail, Orlando, was charged under the state's Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization law after undercover agents purchased four hard-core sex films in May and July 1982. But a four-woman, two-man jury took only an hour and 45 minutes Thursday to acquit Philpot of the obscenity and racketeering charges despite a prosecutor's plea to send a message that Orange County residents would not tolerate adult bookstores in their community. MARIJUANA ARREST Otis Laporte Lyons, 18, of 1213 Broadway, Oviedo, was arrested at 8 p.m. Wednesday on County Road 419 on a charge of possession of marijuana. The arrest came after police received a tip that a man carrying a purple handbag with marijuana inside was in the area. Lyons was released on $500 bond.

Dow Hits Record High

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones average Thursday rocketed to an all-time high for the 23rd time this year and the stock market extended its winning streak to six in the busiest day since early May. But with money supply figures coming out later, today and interest rates creeping up, analysts think the market might pause at its lofty heights. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip stocks rose 11.02 Thursday to a record 1,248.30, topping Wednesday's mark of 1,237.28. The closely watched average has risen 62.80 the past six sessions and 471.38 since last Aug. 12. The New York Stock Exchange, Standard & Poor's, American Stock Exchange and over-the-counter indices also made record highs in the rally. Thursday's New York Stock exchange volume of 124.56 million shares, up from the 93.41 million, traded Wednesday, was the heaviest since 128.21 million changed hands on May 6. Analysts say some investors may stay on the sidelines in this session to wait for the Federal Reserve's report after the market closes on the nation's money supply growth.

No New Indictment Issued In Theft Probe

No new indictments were issued Thursday as a Seminole County grand jury concluded its investigation of an alleged theft ring involving employees of the sheriff's department. The report simply stated that the probe, headed by Alachua County State Attorney Eugene Whitworth, was comprehensive and thorough. Last week, the grand jury indicted three former sheriff's department employees, including two former deputies, one of whom subsequently headed up the Seminole state attorney's Citizens Dispute Settlement Program, and a former communications officer on charges of grand theft. The trio were accused of stealing from persons being evicted by the sheriff's department. Allegations that 40 to 50 department employees were involved in a theft ring preying on evictees were not confirmed by the grand jury report. Sheriff John Polk said the small number of indictments vindicates his department.

justified, but she is also a victim. "She has now lost two children as a result of her relationship with Mr. McDougall," he said. Assaid's nearly 3-week-old son is in temporary custody of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. A hearing will be held on the child's future July 5. West said Assaid had no prior criminal record and said there was no evidence of child abuse before the incident that caused Ursula's death. Assaid told the court she would like to help women in child abuse situations before they have to go to jail. Marblestone and McDougall's defense attorney, Leon Check of Altamonte Springs, are preparing for the McDougall trial. Marblestone said he does not know of any effort to seek a change of venue, but if one should be granted only the place of the trial will change.

"The judge and lawyers will be the same," he said. Last week, investigators who said they were working on the McDougall case, were seeking copies of all newspaper articles printed in the area on the Assaid murder. The case has been in the news since the girl's body was discovered in a burlap sack at the bottom of a muck-filled pond near the Eastmonte Civic Center in Altamonte Springs. Prosecutors charged that Assaid and McDougall placed the girl's body in the sack, tied two 8-pound barbells to the body and threw it in the pond. The body was not recovered until November 1982 when Assaid told police in Riverside, Calif., where she and McDougall were living at the time, where to find the body. She said she was confessing because McDougall said he was going to leave her.

Hazardous Waste, Water Bills Near Completion

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — House and Senate environmental leaders believe they can iron out their differences on hazardous wastes and water quality legislation in one or two days of negotiations.

The two houses passed almost identical bills Thursday reflecting agreements reached over the past two weeks. This set the stage for a conference committee.

The two measures are virtually identical in providing stepped-up groundwater monitoring, tougher restrictions on new septic tanks, underground chemical storage tank regulations and enhanced review of new pesticides.

The chief differences are in the funding of hazardous waste cleanups and sewage treatment facility grants for cities and counties. Both bills provide for a speeding up in the collection of sales taxes from large large retailing operations to net a one-time gain of an estimated $166 million.

The House proposes giving $125 million of this to localities for sewage systems. The Senate figure is $100 million.

Sinkhole Plugs Itself

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — The 12-mile stretch of the southbound lanes of Interstate 75, closed a little over eight days ago when a sinkhole sent cracks and fissures across the concrete roadway, was reopened to traffic Thursday.

The sinkhole, measuring 100-150 feet in diameter and three to five feet in depth apparently "plugged itself," according to engineers with the state Department of Transportation.

They spent several days ripping up the roadway and drilling for core samples in an unsuccessful effort to find the cavity through which the ground had fallen. Cost of repaving the highway could go as high as $80,000.

Revenge Massacre Leaves 18 People Dead In Tripoli

United Press International

Masked gunmen raked a swimming pool and restaurant with machine-gun fire in the northern Lebanese city of Tripoli in a revenge massacre that left up to 18 people dead, police said.

Conflicting reports said the gunmen were either members of the Syrian-supported Moslem Alawite sect or Syrian forces occupying Tripoli, a port city of 400,000 people north of Beirut.

News reports said the gunmen, believed to be seeking revenge for the killings of several Alawites earlier, pulled up in three Mercedes outside a restaurant, swimming pool and garage Thursday and opened fire indiscriminately with machine guns.

The reports said the bloodbath was triggered by the killing of a Syrian earlier Thursday.

Guerrillas Snub Elections

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The leftist guerrilla forces trying to overthrow the government of El Salvador are not interested in the election scheduled for that country late this year, a spokesman for the guerrillas says.

An election is just one of several issues that need to be dealt with in unconditional talks with the government, said Reuben Zamora, a member of the political-diplomatic commission of the FDR. The FDR is the Revolutionary Democratic Front, the political-diplomatic arm of the 40-odd different rebel groups.

"To call for elections under the present circumstances without any political arrangement previous to the election will be to destroy the confidence of the people in the electoral process," he said. "That is why our front has decided that we are not going to participate in the elections."

Shuttle Launch Not For Just Anyone

The crew of the space shuttle Challenger, set for launch Saturday morning, includes Sally Ride, far left, the first woman from a non-Communist nation to venture into space.

The Cape Canaveral National Seashore's Playalinda Beach, located on NASA property just north of Launch Complex 39, will be closed to the public starting Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. for the space shuttle launch and landing.

Safety considerations require closing the beach during the Challenger launch countdown, liftoff and landing. The second flight of the orbiter is scheduled for launch at 7:33 a.m. Saturday.

The beach will remain closed until 6:30 a.m. Sunday. If the liftoff is postponed, the beach will remain closed until 6:30 a.m. the day after the launch.

The Space Shuttle's landing is scheduled for 6:53 a.m. on Friday, June 24.

Playalinda Beach will close for the landing beginning at the normal close of business on June 23. The beach will reopen about one hour after the orbiter touchdown.

Because of safety and operational requirements for the shuttle landing at KSC, normal tour activities at the space center will be interrupted until approximately four hours after the orbiter's touchdown.

The Visitors Center will close and space center bus tours will cease at the normal close of business on June 23. Challenger is scheduled to land the following morning at 6:53 a.m.

A special postlanding ceremony at the Visitors Center with an appearance by the shuttle crew will be attended by space center workers, invited guests, and news media representatives. The ceremony is planned for about three hours after the landing.

KSC's Visitors Center will reopen to the public about four hours after the landing, or about 11 a.m. Bus tours of the space center will resume soon after the reopening.

Visitors wishing to see the approach of the orbiter Challenger will find the best mainland viewing sites along the Indian River shoreline in Titusville and on the Titusville Causeway (State Road 406).

The opening and closing of bridges over waterways surrounding the Kennedy Space Center will be strictly controlled during the hours immediately after the launch of the Challenger.

The same schedule used for the previous shuttle launch will be implemented for Saturday's blastoff. That schedule requires that the bridges be opened for five minutes, at 30-minute intervals, beginning 30 minutes after launch, until the traffic subsides.

No KSC controls on waterway bridge openings and closings are planned for the day Challenger is scheduled to make its first landing here.

20 Submit Applications For Lake Mary City Manager Post

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Twenty persons from throughout Florida and from three states have filed applications with the city of Lake Mary seeking the city manager's position left vacant since the city's first manager, Phil Kulbes, resigned.

Kulbes submitted his resignation in May to be effective June 30, but left the city more than a week ago and is taking accumulated compensatory and vacation time which was due to him.

Applications are being accepted until July 1, according to Acting City Manager and City Clerk Connie Major.

Salary range for the post has been set at $18,000 to $22,000 annually.

Mrs. Major said the position was advertised with the Florida League of Cities, at several universities and colleges and in local newspapers.

Applicants include persons from Ypsilanti, Mich., Middlesex, Mass., and Georgia as well as Longwood, Indian Harbour Beach, Lakeland, Groveland, Ormond Beach, Titusville and Kissimmee.

The Lake Mary City Commission adopted a job description for the city manager position Thursday night. It calls for applicants to have a background in public administration and general business practices and three years experience in the field.

Commissioner Burt Perin chief said a minimum of three years experience is a necessity. He said city staff members would resent the hiring of a "still-wet-behind-the-ears-masters-degreed kid."

The commission deleted from a recommended job description prepared by Kulbes before he left a clause calling for the manager to be building administrator, building inspector and a planner.

Florida Sub To Be Commissioned Saturday

mobility, quietness and speed make it virtually undetectable.

"The mission of this ship is to preserve peace," Lewis said. "We're strictly a defensive weapon. As long as they know we're out there, they'll think twice about coming in our direction. If any of us thought we were out there to push the button and blow up the world, this ship wouldn't be built, and it wouldn't be manned."

As a member of the commissioning crew, Lewis is a "plank owner" on the Florida, traditionally entitled to a plank from the ship's deck upon decommissioning.

"It's exciting to know I helped in the building of a new ship," the 1962 graduate of Seminole High School said. "I feel I have a hand in laying the groundwork for how it will operate in the future."

"Being on a ship named Florida is good for everyone in the crew — not just those of us from the state. It gives us something to work for. It's a reason to develop a sense of pride because when we do something right, we represent the state."

As chief of the boat for the gold crew, Lewis is the senior enlisted man in the crew and responsible for the 140 enlisted men. Ballistic missile submarines like the Florida are the only ships in the Navy with two complete crews — blue and gold — of 157 men each. While one crew takes the ship on patrol, the other prepares for its patrol. The only time the Florida will be in port is during a 30-day period when the crews switch.

"Basically my job is to maintain a high state of readiness and at the same time maintain high morale," Lewis, a machinist's mate, said. "I try to set the climate and attitude of the crew and help enforce the qualification program, training, the appearance of the crew and its performance. I work directly for the commanding and executive officers and help establish command policy."

"There's not much recognition in the job — it's self-satisfying more than anything else. I can tell if I'm doing my job right by the reaction of the crew — if they're doing their jobs and morale is high."

Lewis said being in a pre-commissioning unit is hard on a crew because of the exceptionally long hours the crew has to work to prepare the submarine for commissioning and themselves professionally.

"Besides learning new equipment, this is a new class of submarines and everyone has to re-qualify or qualify," Lewis said.

Submarine qualification takes six months to a year and entails a thorough understanding of the whole ship. Once qualified, a submariner wears the coveted "dolphins" breast insignia on his uniform.

"To qualify, a man has to be able to draw all the ship's systems and describe them," Lewis explained. "Even if he's not nuclear power trained, he has to know a lot about the reactor system. On a submarine every man has to be able to take care of everyone else."

If there is a flooding casualty or a fire, an individual has to be able to control the flood or fight the fire and isolate all the electrical components.

"Not everyone is suited for submarine life. It takes a special person with mental ability, adaptability and a desire to be there," he said.

"A lot of factors affect morale and retention. Probably the most important is family separation. The patrols are long and some wives can't accept their husbands being gone. I've seen it force a good sailor right out of the Navy. He has to make a decision — his job or his family."

"One thing we've learned is no matter where we go, if we have a positive attitude that it's going to be worthwhile, it is. Every different area of the country has new things to do and new sights to see."

Lewis and his family have lived in Connecticut, South Carolina, Washington, California and Hawaii. Lewis will serve in the Florida's crew until 1985. He is undecided about his future plans. He may stay in the Navy for another tour as a shore command master chief or seek a job in the civilian community. He does plan to return to his home state after retirement.

He'll be doing that sooner than his retirement when the Florida's crew undergoes training in Port Canaveral later this year. The Florida will eventually be homeported in Bangor, Wash.

"My family is excited about living in Washington," he said. "It's so clean, fresh and green there."

"It's funny, when I enlisted in 1962 I never planned to make the Navy a career, but I was content with it. I've been happy with my job and my ships. The Navy's always done right by me."

"I don't think there's any job for an enlisted man in the Navy more important or satisfying than being chief of the boat."

Pope Appeals For Solidarity

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Pope John Paul II met today with Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski and called on the government to honor its commitments to Solidarity and relax martial law to "spare the sufferings" of the Polish people.

Pope John Paul

In Gdansk, Lech Walesa's wife said the former Solidarity leader would leave today for Czestochowa in hopes of meeting with John Paul over the weekend.

John Paul had a historic meeting with the Communist Party leader and said his second homecoming to Poland came "at a particularly difficult moment" for the country. But he added, "I do not lose hope that this ... may become a path to social renewal, the beginning of which is established by the social agreements stipulated by the representatives of the state authorities with the representatives of the world of labor."

The pope asked Jaruzelski to live up to the agreements the Polish government reached with Solidarity in August 1980 and "spare the sufferings" caused by martial law.

The pope mourned "the severe rigors" of martial law imposed in December 1981, when more than 5,000 people were taken into custody and the Solidarity union was shut down.

"Nevertheless I do not stop hoping that social reform... will gradually be put into effect," he said.

The pope said Polish authorities should restore normal life in the country "according to the principles so painstakingly worked out in the critical days of August 1980 and contained in the agreements" signed in Gdansk.

The pope and Jaruzelski, who is both party leader and premier, met at Belvedere Palace in a formal diplomatic session welcoming the pontiff to Poland.

Communist Party officials knelt and kissed the pope's hand as he moved through a receiving line at the Belvedere palace, the official residence of Polish President Henryk Jablonski.

The military regime opposes the idea of a pope-Walesa meeting because Walesa is a symbol of the outlawed Solidarity trade union and the popular ferment squelched in Poland by martial law 18 months ago.

The pope later today was to celebrate an outdoor Mass at Warsaw's 10th Anniversary Stadium, where up to 1 million Poles were expected to attend. The meeting with Jaruzelski was expected to determine if the pope would be able to meet with Walesa this weekend.

Gas Tax Decisions Awaited

distributor from Sanford, said the county doesn't need the $855,000 each cent of gasoline tax would bring in. He said the county's problem is that too many dollars are being spent by bureaucrats. There are too many tiers of authority in government."

Higgenbotham said the county has probably overestimated the amount the gas tax would take in.

"If we raise the gas tax 4 cents a gallon we won't make any money off of it," he said. "People will all drive over to Orange and Volusia counties to buy gas."

Larry Donald of Lake Howell Amoco in Casselberry near the Seminole-Orange County line, said he thinks the tax may result in a drop in gasoline sales in the county.

"I expect we'll lose some customers if Seminole County passes a gas tax and Orange County doesn't," Donald said.

Little To Gain From A Summit

As recently as a month ago, the White House was throwing cold water all over any suggestion that President Reagan meet in a summit conference with Soviet leader Yuri Andropov.

Mr. Reagan's aides were echoing the conventional wisdom that a summit would serve no constructive purpose unless it were carefully prepared and guaranteed to yield "concrete results."

So why has West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl been authorized, reportedly by President Reagan himself, to sound out the Soviet leader on prospects for a Reagan-Andropov meeting?

The answer, apparently, is that Mr. Reagan yielded to pressure from allied leaders at the Williamsburg summit. Some Western European leaders seem to believe that direct talks between President Reagan and Andropov could ease East-West tensions or at least defuse Soviet propaganda by casting the American administration in the role of peacemaker.

Kohl especially must also be hoping that a Reagan-Andropov meeting might help to get the Geneva talks on nuclear weapons in Europe off dead center.

These are laudable objectives but they are unlikely to be served by a hurriedly arranged summit in which Ronald Reagan and Yuri Andropov simply meet and, at best, agree to continue disagreeing. The last American president to adopt such a haphazard approach to summitry was John F. Kennedy.

Kennedy's ill-advised 1961 meeting with Nikita Khrushchev in Vienna placed the new president in such a bad light that the Soviets were encouraged to challenge him by deploying nuclear missiles in Cuba.

An ill-prepared and unstructured summit would inevitably put disproportionate pressure on Mr. Reagan to make unilateral concessions in the interests of obtaining something "positive" from the meeting.

Andropov, under no comparable pressure from public opinion or anxious allies, could afford to dig in his heels and wait for President Reagan to demonstrate "flexibility" in the interests of peace.

This amounts to a stacked diplomatic deck that would yield most of the high cards to Andropov. It is not the kind of card game Mr. Reagan should want to enter.

Finally, it might be noted that any summit producing even token American concessions stands to help Andropov consolidate his power within the Kremlin.

There is good reason to believe that pockets of resistance to Andropov exist within the ruling Politburo and within the high command of the Soviet armed forces.

That resistance would diminish if Andropov could demonstrate, as his predecessor Leonid Brezhnev did repeatedly, that he was able to "deliver" the Americans.

All the better, for Andropov, if the American he delivered was the most outspokenly anti-Soviet president in decades.

It is axiomatic that the Soviet Union is less dangerous if political power in the Kremlin is divided among factions.

Historically, the Soviets have been less aggressive during periods of disunity at the top.

No American president should want to assist the former head of the Soviet KGB to achieve total power.

For all of these reasons, we see little to be gained and much to be lost by a Reagan-Andropov summit until and unless the Soviets demonstrate some willingness to meet Washington halfway.

If Andropov wants a summit, let him earn one by exhibiting some flexibility of his own on arms control, Afghanistan, Central America, Soviet violations of chemical and biological warfare agreements, or any of the other substantive issues that divide East and West.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Now, then, let's get oriented..."

By Diane Petryk

June is burglary prevention month by proclamation of Leo F. Callahan of Ft. Lauderdale, president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

How do you prevent a crime that occurs once every 20 seconds in the United States? There are ways.

According to a pamphlet being made available by the Sanford Police Department, thieves look for what police term "targets of opportunity."

You can avoid leaving your home a vulnerable target, especially when you are going away for an extended period, by:

—Arranging for local police to check your house regularly.

—Double checking second floor and basement windows, areas often forgotten in security planning. And making sure garage doors are locked.

—Making sure exterior areas will not give your absence away. Arrange to have mail and other regular deliveries stopped or picked up by a neighbor. Make it seem like you are home by such things as leaving a car in the driveway, having lights turned on and off by a home timer or arranging to have the lawn cut and bushes trimmed.

—Having several home timers attached to lights in various locations throughout the house. One home timer can be programmed to turn one light on and off several times during the evening. Several home timers performing the same function can give a home a very "lived-in" look, deterring burglars.

—Utilizing timers with television sets and radios, giving an added sound element to the lived-in look.

—Asking your neighbors to check your home regularly. Leave a number with them where you can be reached in an emergency. Ask neighbors also to use your garbage cans. Spotters for burglars sometimes work for refuse collectors. Ask neighbors to pick up any handbills or circulars. While it is advisable to notify police and a neighbor of your planned absence, don't tell everyone about your plans. Don't leave notes on the door and don't allow news of your vacation to appear in your local newspaper until after you return.

And if, upon returning from your trip, you spot evidence of a break-in, do not enter the house. Call police at once because the burglar, possibly armed, may still be inside.

For added security, police advise: —Making a list — by serial number, date purchased and price — of all your expensive items and keep the list in a safe place not in the home. While doing so, mark valuable items with an engraving pen. This will help in their recovery if stolen.

—Equipping doors and windows with deadbolt locks rather than spring bolt locks which are simple for burglars to open.

VIEWPOINT

Environment Problems In Politics

By Gregory N. Jonsson
(Editor's Note: Gregory N. Jonsson is USIC Washington Representative and a former law clerk with the Environmental Protection Agency.)

Repeated public opinion polls have shown that Americans detest hazardous waste, acid rain, smog and other forms of pollution. It is axiomatic to conclude that most Americans are environmentalists. What is more difficult to determine is the price each of us is willing to pay for the environmentalism we espouse. How much is each of us prepared to sacrifice in higher taxes, higher consumer costs, and reduced income for cleaner air and water? In the United States we have done a very poor job of answering this question. The policies we have followed have done little to resolve the conflict among contending advocates of one or another viewpoint.

What should have been the subject of a thorough benefit-cost analysis at the level of local communities has become a strident debate at the national level between environmental extremists and the Reagan administration, which is determined to bring benefit cost analysis to agencies of the federal government. Caught in the middle are the career bureaucrats of the Environmental Protection Agency, who seem incapable of providing the American people with the decentralized solutions to environmental problems.

The truth is, a central bureaucracy far removed from the parochial interests of state and local governments will never provide the practical solutions to environmental problems. Moreover, EPA is unmanageable because it is a coopted agency, in part because of the commercial interests it is charged with policing, and in large measure because special interest groups such as the National Wildlife Federation and the Natural Resources Defense Council pressure the Congress to second-guess every EPA decision. The environmental extremists have persuaded millions of Americans that corporate interests control EPA.

For example, the environmentalist pressure groups have alleged certain improprieties in the recent sale of Powder River Basin coal leases. The allegations were inaccurate, but they made the headlines and helped to undermine public confidence in the Department of Interior's coal leasing program, a well-run program in a superbly managed department of the federal government, led by an outstanding steward of the public trust, Secretary James G. Watt.

The American people must be told the truth.

War On Drugs Halfhearted Effort

By Jack Anderson
WASHINGTON — President Reagan has pronounced his war on drugs a raging success. But the truth is the war has been long on ballyhoo and short on performance.

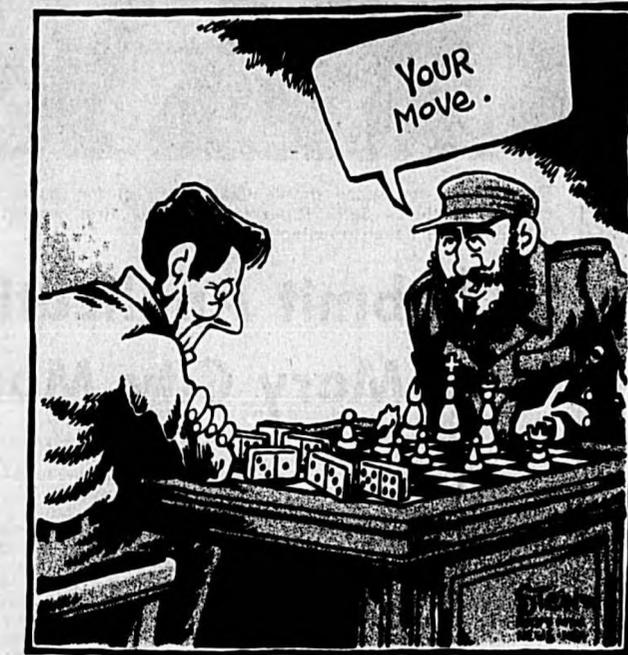

The price of illegal drugs is down across the country — a sure sign that the supply is up. Confidential Drug Enforcement Agency reports disclose that farmers in Colombia have 10 times as much acreage in cocaine production as they had two years ago, when the administration began its much-publicized crackdown. The United States is virtually the sole market for Colombian cocaine producers.

Last October, at a cost of over $120 million, 12 new task forces were created to go after smugglers and dealers, modeled after the federal-state South Florida Task Force. More recently, attempts have been made to coordinate the interdiction activities of various government agencies.

But the agencies don't seem committed to the interdiction program. For example:

— The Pentagon promised aircraft radar coverage for 17 days per month over South Florida. Yet the records show that this vital service was provided on only five days last October, nine days in November and three days in December.

— Radar surveillance out of New

WILLIAM RUSHER

European Potpourri

LONDON (NEA) — A three-week sojourn in Western Europe, concentrating on Italy and England, has resulted in some miscellaneous observations and reflections which I herewith pass along. It is still a captivating part of the world, but there have been some changes.

After sober reflection (and a little of the other kind, too), I hereby award to Rome the prize for the worst all-round traffic mess in the world. New York's isn't even a close second, despite the immense number of cars involved; its system of gridded streets and avenues is far too logical. Tokyo's drivers are more reckless than Rome's, and the slow strangulation of Tokyo's overhead expressways by heavy traffic suggests that a second layer of such arteries may soon have to be superimposed on the first; but the inescapable congestion of Rome's narrow streets, laid out as intricately as a bowl of spaghetti, sets the stage for a sort of congealed chaos that no other city can match.

To ease the congestion, the Roman authorities have shrewdly banned the parking of private cars virtually anywhere in the central city. But, since this is obviously impractical, the residents simply ignore the ban — every street in Rome is permanently lined with illegally-parked (and double-parked) cars. The coup de grace is delivered by a series of one-way streets slyly calculated to force the whole city's traffic to converge on the Piazza Venezia. Here, a group of striking taxi-drivers is usually assembled (with their obstructing cabs), producing the vehicular equivalent of a blood clot in the city's heart. It really has to be seen to be believed.

But life is far from unbearable in Italy. I am sometimes asked which, of all the places I have visited, I have enjoyed the most — an impossible question, because it must be sharply qualified before it can conceivably be answered: "For what purpose?" "For how long?" etc.

And yet, as a short-form answer, I frequently reply: "the Italian Lake District." This lovely region of Lombardy on the southern slopes of the Alps is blessed with five major lakes and numerous minor ones, all of sapphire-blue. For 2,000 years it has been the ambition of everyone with enough money to own a villa overlooking one of these exquisite lakes, with the snow peaks of the Alps sparkling in the distance. A steamboat excursion on Lake Como, or Lake Maggiore, or Lake Lugano in good weather comes close to my vision of paradise.

London, like most of Europe, had a cold, wet spring, but by the time I got here the worst was over and the sun was doing its healing work. For American admirers of this grand old city, there is both good news and bad news. First, the bad news: Those boxy, shiny-black London taxis are beginning to sprout advertising. Thus far, the ads are confined to the front door panels below the windows on both sides of the cab, but it isn't hard to see where it's all headed: Before long, every London taxi will be as heavily festooned as a newlyweds' limousine.

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Computer Supremacy Is Sought

The United States is in danger of experiencing another Sputnik-type technological shock by the end of this decade. This time around the shock will be in the computer field, not space, and the threat will come from Japan, not the Soviet Union.

Little attention has been devoted to it in the U.S., but Japan is embarked on a crash program to achieve computer supremacy. It hopes to gain world leadership in computers and information processing.

The Japanese "fifth generation computer project" aims at development of systems that approach a human level of intelligence.

Technology Review, published by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, states that the Japanese program has been under-publicized and underestimated in the United States. It asserts that "Losses to the U.S. computer industry in the 1990s could be greater and more precipitous than those already experienced by industries such as automobiles and consumer electronics."

The goals of the Japanese project conclude translation by machine from Japanese to English and the processing of information conversationally, so that data and problems can be given to the computer in speech and the computer's response can be made the same way.

Fortunately, a group of American firms have joined together in an attempt to match the Japanese effort, though one wonders whether the effort is too little and too late. Ten U.S. companies have committed $30 million — a paltry sum — to form Microelectronics and Computer Technology Corp., headed by retired Admiral Bobby Inman, former deputy director of the CIA.

MCT is a token project as compared to the Japanese crash program, which has been under way for several years. Technology Review reports that $1 billion has been earmarked for the Japanese effort, and the bulk of that will be supplied by the government of Japan. No taxpayer funds will be available to MCT. Moreover, there is a real danger that the MCT consortium will run into trouble with the anti-trust division of the Justice Department. The Japanese don't have anything like American anti-trust laws. On the contrary, Japanese business and government work as partners in selecting and funding business and technological projects.

The MCT project deserves sympathetic attention and support from American business, government officials and the public. The stakes are enormous.

being given to Customs.

Interdiction efforts — actually catching smugglers — are being given short shrift. English feels, as most of the money and man-hours are devoted to investigations. English, who will hold hearings on the drug crackdown next month, characterizes the 12 new task forces as "business as usual."

Meanwhile, the White House announced in March yet another bureaucratic weapon it was unleashing on dope traffickers: A Cabinet level executive board, headed by Vice President Bush, to coordinate and supervise the smuggler-catching operations. But White House officials admit that the board is still in the planning stage.

SICK BUILDINGS: If work makes you sick, the fault may be in the building where you work. James Repace, an air specialist at the Environmental Protection Agency, has identified pollutants in "sick buildings." These range from bad breath to deadly radioactive gases that seep up from the soil beneath the structure.

The EPA has been getting complaints from individuals across the country who claim something in their buildings is making them ill. But the agency has been concentrating its thin resources on pollution in outside air. Indoor air pollution is so under-funded there isn't even an EPA roster of buildings in which people have come down with airborne diseases.

There are powerful forces that resist any research on indoor air pollution: builders, landlords, construction material manufacturers, chemical companies, cigarette makers — even some workers' compensation officials, who fear a flood of claims.

BLACK LUNG BOO-BOOS: In a study requested by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, the General Accounting Office estimates that the Labor Department made inaccurate payments to more than one-fourth of the nation's 88,000 black lung victims. From a statistical sampling of 286 beneficiaries' claims, the GAO concluded that the amount of overpayments and underpayments totaled about $65 million as of January 1982 — roughly three percent of the $2 billion paid out to that date.

In its own review of the program, the Labor Department found only one-third as many mistakes as the GAO auditors later uncovered.

The GAO report, reviewed by my reporter Laurie Siegel, said 85 percent of the errors reflected incorrect use of information in the individual case files. Many errors were traced to the increased workloads created by amendments to black lung legislation voted by Congress in 1978 and 1981. The report predicted that Labor's improved information gathering procedures and a new automated payment system will prevent future errors.

Gardening

Pesticides, Insecticides, Herbicides Confusing

Pesticides, insecticides, herbicides and fungicides. These are words the home gardener frequently hears about in newspaper ads or at the nursery or garden center. But how do they differ, and when should you use each?

Pesticide is a general term for products that eliminate pests in all categories — from insects to unwanted vegetation like weeds.

Insecticides control insect pests. They eliminate insects in one of three ways — as a stomach poison, contact poison, or a disease that will kill the unwanted insect.

Stomach poisons are insecticides that kill insects by being eaten. They are applied to leaves or other plant parts that insects eat and kill the bugs that consume them.

Contact poisons kill by being absorbed through the shell or skin of the insect. They are most effective when drops of spray land directly on the bugs, and also through dry residues on leaves and twigs the insects crawl on.

Disease-producing organisms kill insects by affecting their internal organs. However, they do not have the quick effect of chemical pesticides, and often produce no visible effect for weeks or even months after they are applied.

Insecticides are available in several forms, which enable the home gardener to most effectively control insect pests in a variety of situations — in lawns, shrubs and vegetable gardens. A popular lawn and garden insect control product may come in liquid concentrate form, for diluting with water; an aerosol spray for control of garden, rose and houseplant insects, a fine dust, and a granular form to suit various applications.

Many gardening experts recommend multi-purpose insecticides that control many different types of insects. This way, the home gardener does not have to be a trained entomologist to recognize which insects may be harming the lawn or garden. Whatever insect pests are present should be eliminated with a multi-purpose product.

A specialized insecticide works on one or a limited number of bugs, making it necessary for the home gardener to spot and properly identify the insect.

Herbicides are chemicals that kill unwanted vegetation. For a long time, gardeners would have nothing to do with herbicides, since they killed all plants, including the ones being cultivated. Today, however, most herbicides are selective. Some kill only narrow-leaved plants, such as grass, while others, work only on plants with broad, flat leaves. Most herbicides work best on plants that are young and tender, but some — like the ones used to control poison ivy — work best when applied to mature leaves that will absorb them and transmit the chemical to all parts of the plant.

All Seminole County Agricultural Extension Services programs are open to all regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

Have Money; Want To Buy Noble Title

DEAR ABBY: My problem is rather complicated. My family is (or rather was) an old established Italian family of nobility. Because of some legal misunderstandings, we are no longer titled. I understand that it is possible to buy a title, and that is what I want to do. How do I go about it?

Although we no longer belong to the ultra-rich, we are by no means poor. Having a title is not very important to me, but it would mean a great deal to my mother, who is gravely ill, so please hurry your answer.

Dear Abby

NEEDS A TITLE

DEAR NEEDS: I contacted my Italian connection, who responded:

"Dear Abby: All Italian titles of nobility were abolished following World War II. In 1946, when the Italian people voted Umberto II out of office, he went to Portugal to live in exile. While there, from time to time, he reportedly sold titles of nobility to those of merit.

"Unfortunately for 'Needs a Title,' Umberto recently died in a Swiss clinic.

"However, if 'Needs a Title' is determined to buy one, have him get in touch with me, and for a fee I will have an appropriate 'title' and official-looking document prepared, complete with medal and ribbon.

"Meaningless? Of course! But so is the title he seeks."

LEONARD W. MOSS
WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY, DETROIT, MICH.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for four years to a handsome, successful man. He has a problem that he's so ashamed of I can't get him to try to get help. He's a bed wetter.

Sometimes a couple of months go by without a problem. Then he gets upset about something, starts drinking too much, and the bed (and I) are soaked! I've tried waterproof mattress covers, but haven't been able to find one that doesn't sound like crinkly plastic when it's sat upon.

I am constantly deodorizing with everything I can think of, but there is still an odor. He's ruined one mattress and is working on the second.

Needless to say, this has affected our love life. I would rather sleep on the couch than with him. He resents this, gets upset, and the whole thing starts over again.

How can I help him? I love him and can't believe this is happening to us, and that I am actually writing to Dear Abby.

WET NIGHTIE

DEAR WET: You must persuade him to see a urologist. If he knew how many adults suffer from bed wetting, he would be comforted and less embarrassed. If his problem is psychological, he needs to get help at the other end.

In the meantime, a urologist will tell you where to buy a comfortable, super-absorbent, diaper-type garment, complete with moisture-proof plastic bloomers for adults with this problem. It could save your mattress — and possibly your marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I hope "Lopsided and Miserable," the 18-year-old girl with one breast noticeably smaller than the other, takes your advice and seeks out a plastic surgeon. I'm 19, and up until two years ago I had the same problem, so I know how she feels.

I went into the hospital on Thursday evening, had the operation on Friday morning and was home by noon on Saturday.

I looked and felt wonderful! And the best part was that my insurance paid for 75 percent of the bill because my doctor testified that the surgery was not for cosmetic reasons — it was necessary for my mental and physical health. And it most certainly was!

Socials Wrap Up School Activities

School has been out for a whole week in Geneva (as well as other Seminole County areas), but the faculty and staff at our elementary school have been busy "wrapping it up."

Monday at noon the lunchroom was the scene of a covered dish luncheon where several invited guests were on hand including the school psychologist, social workers and several people who were involved in the Dividends School Volunteer Program.

Belinda Henson, aide at the school, entertained the group with an original song about the teacher's accomplishments.

Y Swim Classes

In response to local demand, the Seminole YMCA is expanding its Aquatic Program to serve all residents of Seminole County.

The Y will utilize pools at Trinity Prep, Lyman High School, Sharidan Aquatic Club, Sanford Holiday Inn, and Cavalier Motor Inn to conduct lessons for ages 3 months through adults.

Executive Director, Scott Washburn says that "for the first time, all residents of the county will have access to the Y program. Our goal is to make all residents of Seminole County 'water safe' through training and education."

The Y will utilize swim programs developed by the National YMCA organization. Information on specific classes may be obtained by calling the Y at 862-0444.

Miss Florida Pageant: Reunion '83

The Miss Florida Pageant, an Official State Pageant of the Miss America Pageant program, will be held this year at the Mayor Bob Carr Performing Arts Centre in Orlando, on June 22-25.

On Saturday, June 25, a new Miss Florida will be selected. She will represent the State of Florida in the Miss America Pageant in September. This is a scholarship pageant with over $2 million awarded annually throughout the United States.

Meet Deanna Pittman, the reigning Miss Florida, and the 47 contestants at the exclusive Patrons' Reception on Monday evening, June 20, at Cafe Society, French Market, downtown Orlando.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, patrons will have a choice of reserved seats for the best show in town. You will not see the same show on these three evenings. The contestants are divided into three categories each evening: evening gown, talent and swim suit.

The highlight of the show will be the performances by contestants in talent competition. A different talent show will be held each night. Miss Florida 1977, Nancy Stafford, will be this year's mistress of ceremonies.

The theme of the show is "Reunion '83" and will feature former Miss Floridas, including Ellen Meade, 1973; Delta Burke, 1974; Nancy Stafford, 1976; Wendy Cheatham, 1978; Mari Phillips 1979; Carolin Dungan, 1980; and Dean Herman, 1981.

On Saturday evening, 10 finalists are selected based on the independent votes of the judges tallied by CPAs. The 10 finalists perform all phases of competition. The judges then cast their ballots to determine who will wear the crown of Miss Florida 1983-84.

The winner will represent the State of Florida in the Miss America Pageant. Cash scholarships will be awarded to Miss Florida, the runners-up and the semi-finalists. The winners this year will receive more than $48,000 in cash and scholarships.

Following the Pageant, a Breakfast Ball will be held at the Bahia Shrine Temple on Orange and Gore. Meet Miss Florida and her court.

The Patron's Package is priced at $40 per person or $80 per couple.

You will be listed as a personal Patron, receive an invitation to the catered Patrons' Reception, get choice reserved seats to all performances. Tickets to the Breakfast Ball are $12 each, and will not be sold the night of the Ball. In addition, tickets for Wednesday, June 22, Thursday, June 23, for Senior Citizens will be $1.00 each, available only at the Auditorium.

U.S. Open — Biggest Bauble The Links Game Has To Offer

By Murray Olderman
NEA Sports Editor

Pro Golf

OAKMONT, Pa. — Arnold Palmer would be hard pressed to remember a single shot from the Pensacola Open of 1960. Which he happened to win.

But ask him to review a tournament he played that same summer, 23 years ago, at Cherry Hills in Denver, and the play-by-play sounds like an old Ted Husing broadcast.

Why the clear recall? At Cherry Hills, Arnie won his one and only U.S. Open golf tournament, with a memorable hard-charging 65 in the final round to come from seven strokes off the pace, trailing a dozen other competitors.

And here is Arnold Palmer, at the venerable golfing age of 53, playing close to his home in Latrobe, Pa., questioning again for the biggest bauble that the links game has to offer.

Crucial moments from big events remain vivid, which is why the U.S. Open is so fixed in Palmer's mind. And in the minds of others.

Who would remember Ed Furgol except that, with a withered left arm, he outshot the field at Baltusol (New Jersey) to win the Open in 1954? Or even Jack Fleck the next year, who popped from obscurity to beat Ben Hogan in a playoff at Olympic (San Francisco) and then virtually disappeared again? And how about the old army sergeant, Orville Moody, who pulled one of the all-time surprises to win at Champions (Houston) in 1969?

There was a time when victory in the U.S. Open meant a secure place in the history of golf and often led to material security because of the auxiliary benefits — endorsements, exhibitions, the like.

Sadly, with the proliferation of big money at all four stops, the impact of an Open triumph has lessened both in prestige and financially.

"I feel that you have to win an Open for acknowledgement as a player of status," says Palmer. "But you really need to win another championship to go with it."

That is the stimulus for such highly successful recent stars as Tom Kite and Ben Crenshaw, who need the prestige of an Open victory to affirm their championship class.

"It changed my life," says Bill Casper, who putted sensationally to win at Winged Foot (New York) in 1959 and then repeated by beating Arnold Palmer in a playoff at Olympic in 1966. "It opened doors for me and my family."

And yet Casper, a year younger than Palmer, now shuns the Open and hasn't even made an attempt to compete in it for the last five years.

"They don't honor their champions," he says, meaning that as an elder statesman of the game he doesn't want to go through the hassle of qualifying for it. "The Open hasn't grown. There isn't any continuity. It has an enormous field."

So Casper and some other former winners aren't at Oakmont for the second of the so-called three "majors" — the Masters, the Open and the PGA.

There is, however, no shortage of competition for the $500,000 in prize money at this 83rd renewal of the U.S. Open, with $72,000 going to the top finisher.

And there is always the promise, almost the certainty, of dramatics. At this same course a decade ago — this will be the sixth Open at Oakmont, tying Baltusol for that honor — Johnny Miller established himself as a star by firing a record 63 in the last round to win the event after having apparently shot himself out of contention with a 76 the day before.

You only have to go back to last year, at Pebble Beach, for the ultimate in histrionics. Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson, the two reigning figures in the game, came down the stretch tied for the lead after Watson bogied the 16th (Nicklaus was already at 18th green, watching on a TV monitor nearby).

Nicklaus, at 42, was trying for his fifth Open victory, which would break a tie at four with Willie Anderson, Bobby Jones and Ben Hogan. Only Ted Ray and Julius Boros, at 43, had been older when they won the title. Jack cherished the idea of another trophy. People would stop wondering if he had slipped in ability.

Tom Watson, exactly 10 years younger, desperately wanted to bury an Open flinch that was drawing comparison with Sam Snead, who finished second in the Open four times but never won it. Watson, the top money winner for four of the previous five years, had captured almost every other prize in golf.

When Tom's drive on the par-three 17th went into the deep rough beyond the green, he was on the fringe of disaster. Par seemed impossible. A bogey seemed logical and would put him a stroke down with only one hole remaining. A double bogey, quite possible in that situation, would be calamitous.

Watson planted himself confidently in the weedy grass and chipped boldly. The ball popped onto the green, streaked straight for the flag, hit the pole and dropped in for a miraculous birdie that won him the 1982 U.S. Open (he also birdied the 18th hole for a fillip).

Some time early in the 21st century, Watson will be able to recount clearly what happened back in '82 on a bluff overlooking the Pacific Ocean. He won't need to be reminded about the importance of the U.S. Open.

County Wrestlers Compete In USA Southeast Regional

Eleven members of the Lake Mary Wrestling Club will compete in the Kids & Schoolboys Southeast Regional Wrestling Championships today at Lake Mary High School and Saturday at Circus World.

The tournament is sponsored by the United States Wrestling Federation and involved four age groups for its freestyle competition. Classes are 9-10 year olds, 11-12 year olds, 13-14 year olds and 15-16 year olds. The competition started Friday morning and Lake Mary and continues all day. The finals for the two lower classes begin at 9 a.m. Saturday at Circus World. The finals for the upper two classes begin at 2 p.m. Saturday.

From Seminole High, James Morgan, Tony Brown, Troy Turner and Tracy Turner will compete. From Lake Mary are Ivan Carbia, Enrique Carbia (seventh grader), Todd Beauchamp and state champion Jack Likens. Mike Hilgar, Jerry Jordan and Brent Bradley will wrestle from Oviedo.

Marston: Unjustly Accused

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — University of Florida officials say they were unjustly accused of giving a football player credit for a class he never attended in order to maintain his athletic eligibility.

An internal investigation revealed that the student had completed the course requirement, University President Robert Marston said Thursday.

He admitted to "administrative clumsiness," but said, "no exception was made for the student in question."

The university was accused last week of awarding senior defensive tackle Roy Harris unearned credit after discovering just a few days before the first game of the 1981 season that Harris was ineligible to play.

Bowden Considering USFL?

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — A Jacksonville television station says Florida State University football coach Bobby Bowden is considering a $250,000-a-year, five-year contract offer to coach Jacksonville's new USFL team.

Earlier, the Florida Times-Union reported that the owner of the new franchise, millionaire developer Fred Bullard, met with Bowden in Tallahassee last week, but quoted Bowden as saying no concrete offer was made.

Pena Improves LA Lead With 7-Hitter; Manning's HR Tops Ex-Teammates, 2-1

United Press International

Alejandro Pena hadn't pitched in two weeks because of migraines, but he proved to be one gigantic headache for the Atlanta Braves Thursday night.

Making his first start since May 29 after being sidelined with vascular migraine headaches, Pena scattered seven hits and struck out seven over 8 2-3 innings in pitching the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 6-1 triumph over the Braves.

Pena, 6-1, allowed only two hits over the first six innings and pitched out of an eighth inning jam by striking out Claudell Washington and Dale Murphy with two runners on base.

But, in the ninth, Pena tired and the Braves pushed across an unearned run when Bruce Benedict reached base on a catcher's interference, moved to second on a walk to Glenn Hubbard and scored on a single by Randy Johnson.

"I felt real strong the whole game. I throw the ball hard," said Pena in his broken English. "I have a little control problem the first two or three innings and then I started getting some strikeouts. I threw hardest to Murphy."

"(Dodger manager Tom) Lasorda come out in the eighth inning and was going to take me out. But I told him I felt good and strong. I really wanted a shutout but I guess I lost my concentration in the ninth inning."

Pena got plenty of batting support from batterymate Steve Yeager, who drove in two runs with a double and a single and also scored once.

Padres 3, Reds 1

Steve Garvey homered and drove in two runs and Ruppert Jones scored from third on a balk in the seventh inning to lead Padres to victory and help Tim Lollar to his first triumph since Opening Day. Garvey's 10th homer of the year, which came on looper Frank Pastore's first pitch of the sixth inning, broke a scoreless duel.

victory. Cruz hit his third homer of the season in the fourth inning off looper Bill Laskey, 7-7, then tripled in two runs in the eighth when Houston scored three times.

Brewer 2, Indians 1

Rick Manning is giving the Milwaukee Brewers the power in center field they have lacked since the days of Gorman Thomas.

"The home run was the last thing I was thinking of," the normally light-hitting Manning said Thursday night after hitting a one-out homer in the 11th inning to give the Milwaukee Brewers a 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

"I was just trying to get a basehit," continued Manning. "I thought if I could get a basehit I could steal second and someone could drive me in."

Tigers 10, Red Sox 2

At Detroit, Glenn Wilson followed four consecutive infield hits with a three-run double to finish a five-run third that carried the Tigers, who have won 10 of their last 12 games and 17 of their last 22. Boston has lost six of seven to Detroit in the last two weeks.

Yankees 8, Indians 1

At Cleveland, Don Baylor drove in five runs with a single and his seventh career grand slam to support the six-hit pitching of Ron Guidry, 9-4, and pace the Yankees. Bert Blyleven fell to 4-6. Guidry struck out three and walked two in going the distance for the sixth time.

Blue Jays 0, A's 1

At Toronto, Barry Bonnell drilled a bases-loaded triple and Ernie Whitl added a two-run homer for the Blue Jays. Jim Gott, 4-5, struck out seven and walked one in going 8 1-3 innings. He was within two outs of his first shutout of the season when Wayne Gross homered. Steve McCatty, 1-1, took the loss.

Twins 4, Rangers 3

At Arlington, Texas, Gary Ward's leadoff home run in the eighth sent the Twins' fourth consecutive victory. Ward's 12th homer came on a 3-2 pitch from looper Danny Darwin, 4-6, and was his 46th RBI of the season. Rick Lyander, 2-6, was the winner and Ron Davis notched his eighth save.

Healing The Ulcers From Varicose Veins

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have varicose veins. One leg was stripped several years ago. Now I am plagued with ulcers on my ankles. I have two on one ankle. One of them has been there for six months and is finally healing. The other has been the most painful one I've ever had.

not just a cosmetic problem. One important means of prevention is the wearing of pressure stockings during pregnancy.

I am an active person and want to continue an active life. The itching skin and poor circulation from varicose veins is my main problem. What should I do?

DEAR READER - Of course you should follow your doctor's directions and stay off your feet until your ulcers are healed.

You need to ask him if you should have additional surgery. Surgery is not indicated in every case but if there are veins that could be and should be removed, you might have less trouble with ulcers.

You also need to see about the best type of pressure garment you can get and how you should use it. I often recommend support hose for mild cases or prevention, but when you really need compression you should use something stronger.

A pressure-gradient stocking with the greatest pressure at the foot and diminishing pressure upward to the thigh, such as the Jobst stocking, may give better results.

Local pressure with a sponge rubber pad over the ulcer may help and is credited by some with healing "silver dollar" sized ulcers.

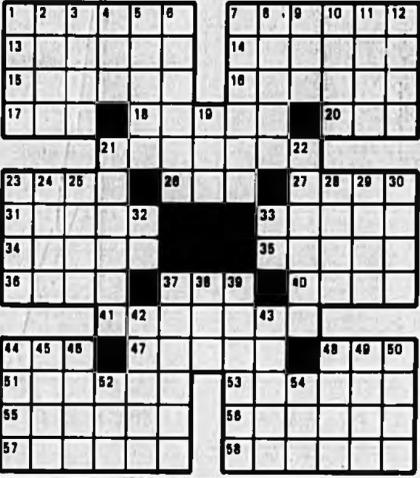

It is important to take care of varicose veins to avoid the complications you now have. They are

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am considering having a nose job. Please send me any information you have on this subject, including estimates of cost, time spent in the hospital, recovery, everything. I don't know who else to ask.

DEAR READER - You will need to ask the doctor you see about doing the surgery. Ask your family doctor to refer you to a surgeon who does these procedures. He will know which ones would be best for you to see in your area.

It will be expensive but each doctor's fees vary and so do hospital costs. You may be able to stay in the hospital for just one day. That again depends a lot on the doctor. But it will be about two weeks before you begin to look normal again and there are some continual changes over the ensuing 12 months.

I approve of cosmetic surgery when it can significantly improve a feature. If you agree that it is important to have a pleasing appearance it doesn't stop with what you wear. What you are may be even more important. And your individual reaction to your own features is important. Cosmetic surgery can be "instant psychotherapy" for some people. It can affect their self image.

Paul Lukacs, the greatest problem composer of all time, died recently. Like many bridge players, including Oswald Jacoby, Paul was an actuary. His problems were single dummy in form. You are given the bidding, opening lead, declarer's hand and dummy and are asked to find the best play.

Paul's bidding is designed to get to the problem contract and does not always meet with our approval. Anyway, you are in six no-trump and want to find the best way to play the hand.

The ordinary player will make seven since spades break 3-2, but playing at six you want to guard against a 5-0 spade break. You have two ways to do this.

A. Lead your nine of spades and let it ride if West follows.

B. Lead a diamond to dummy's jack, return a low spade and finesse the eight if East follows. Since both plays are sure-fire, Paul explains that play A is more likely to bring home seven. Take the layout as shown. If you lead the nine, West might cover with his 10. Then you would be able to make seven since you would be able to play high spades and drop the jack. With plan B East would surely play low. You would take the safety play of the eight and make just six.

Natural, No-Mow Landscapes Take Root

By Diane Petryk
Herald Staff Writer

To homeowners accustomed to neat, green lawns, trim hedges and perhaps a white picket fence, current trends in landscaping may seem a bit heretical. Yet free-spirited, no-mow landscapes are winning converts across America, and Seminole County is no exception.

In the nursery and landscaping business for 38 years, Fern Park nurserywoman Mrs. Lola Anderson says the natural look is a "sure trend."

"Most everyone talks about going in for natural growth," she says. "Especially young people. They don't want to be tied down by yard work."

Leisure is the objective.

Considering today's hectic schedules and expensive labor costs, the so-called naturalistic garden gives homeowners an almost total break from the repetitive cycles of mowing, fertilizing, watering — and worrying.

But does it look good?

It can be superb, according to nationally known landscape architect James van Sweden.

Flowering perennials and ornamental grasses, integrated with evergreens, spring bulbs, budding annuals and attractive mulches, not only broaden the range of attractiveness in both large and small settings, van Sweden says, but they provide their beauty year-round.

"Anyone can create a spring garden," he says. "That doesn't take much skill." The challenge that pays dividends, he says, is to choose all-season plantings so that each variation in temperature or moisture level brings a dramatically different but equally attractive effect.

In Florida, these differences may be less pronounced than the variation between lush summer greenery and the golden sparse dried flowers-look of a northern winter. But differences in heat and rain do affect a garden's looks and what will grow and what will not. (When in doubt, check with a nursery expert before investing.)

Naturalistic gardening, one definition goes, assimilates the horticulture of the wild and interprets it for the modern landscape. Wild shrubs, rock outcroppings and other environmental features that once would have been removed or leveled to create an orderly landscape are now highly valued for the surprise and spontaneity they provide. This, an advocate suggests, helps achieve the true purpose of outdoor space — to soothe and refresh the spirit.

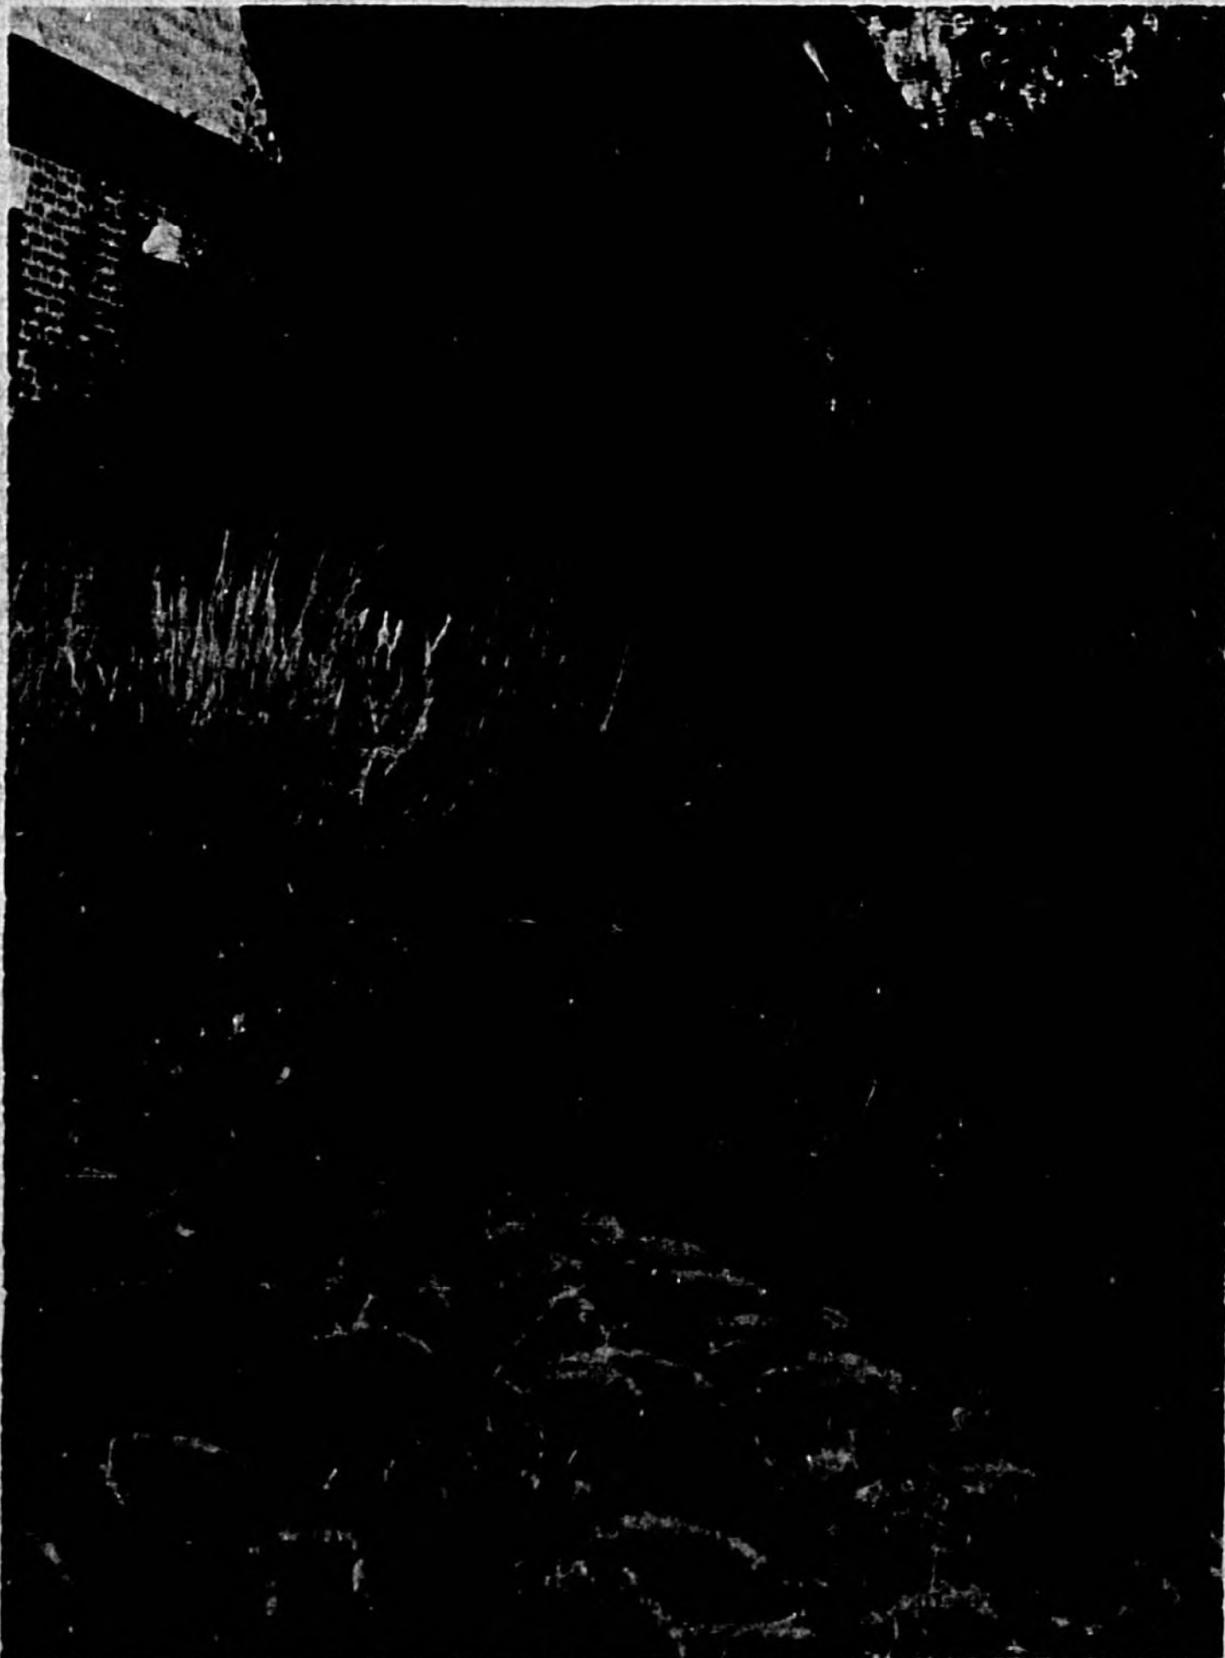

Natural landscapes work best on relatively small properties and are particularly popular with townhouse owners. The basic principles can be applied in selected areas of larger landscapes.

Naturally, the price of creating a naturalistic lawn varies depending on size, and the type and amount of greenery to be planted.

Van Sweden reports that he spends only an hour a month maintaining his townhouse garden with one six-hour session in the winter for cutting grasses, mulching and general clean up.

Although the shift away from predictable formalism, where even the slightest imperfection can produce visual blight, has been cited as something new, it actually began two centuries ago when the English landscaper Capability Brown reacted to the overly-formal gardens of his time and planted the idea of natural landscaping featuring picturesque forests and pastoral scenes on large country estates. The story of modern gardening

Not only does it look nice, but using shrubs and flowers along with other greenery and ground cover can save you the trouble of mowing the lawn. It's called natural landscaping and it's a growing trend for both homes and businesses.

Penguins Are King Of Wildlife Special GO GUIDE

By Peter Meade
It took more than a year for British wildlife photographer Cindy Buxton and her assistant, still photographer Annie Price, to get permission to begin their expedition to the antarctic island of South Georgia.

The two women wanted to film and photograph some of the island's 150,000 inhabitants, namely the King penguin, and their neighbors, the albatross and elephant seal.

While their CBS special, to air Wednesday, June 22, will show that their efforts were a success, they ended up recording much more than wildlife. In April, 1982, with just a few weeks remaining in their six-month stay, the Argentine army invaded the Falkland Islands 800 miles away. The women lost all radio contact when the British took over the radio base 15 miles from their St. Andrews Bay camp.

"King Penguin: Stranded Beyond the Falklands" is the story of these two brave women as they waited for the British marines to take them off the island. Despite the sounds of gunfire, they continued chronicling the island's wildlife.

Miss Price says penguins are among the clumsiest creatures she has ever photographed, but they certainly were "amusing and inquisitive" subjects.

The King penguin, according to Miss Buxton, is one of the species' 17 varieties. They are the second largest penguin, at just under 3 feet tall, and are distinguished by burnt orange earmarks.

"They are a photographer's dream," adds Miss Price. "There are so few humans on the island, the penguins regarded us as curiosities. They had no fear and were so naive they would sit down and stare at us. I'd play nanny while Cindy was shooting."

from that time has been one of greater and greater interest in plants and variety and correspondingly less emphasis on the design of the garden.

The attraction of unusual garden plants harks back to the 19th Century when English horticulturist Gertrude Jekyll perfected the perennial border, a massive flower bed filled with careful grading of heights and colors. One visitor to Jekyll's garden termed the work a "static rainbow."

But such a creation required endless painstaking craftsmanship and out of season there was nothing to see but bare earth. Perennials fell out of fashion.

Today, however, they're back in vogue thanks to the idea of combining them with a variety of other garden elements. They take their place alongside shrubs, trees, annuals, and early-blooming bulbs. The advantages are obvious — less work and a far longer season of flowers.

In Florida, Mrs. Anderson says, there are fewer perennials to choose from because for many it doesn't get cold enough here. Though day lilies and delphinium are a good choice.

Floridians use a good many annuals in place of perennials, she says. These include marigolds, petunias, salvia, phlox and begonia. Most people are seeking color for their gardens and these provide that quite nicely.

This time of the year, about the only flowers that will bloom despite high temperatures are portulaca, periwinkle and marigolds, she says, adding that good flowering shrubs for Central Florida are azaleas and junipers.

To integrate and unify the garden, greenery must be provided, Mrs. Anderson says. A strip of grass here and there won't be too much work, but often such plants as palms, ferns and ivy can be used to provided the needed variety.

Mrs. Anderson points out that people moving to Florida expect to be planting lots of palms, but they don't realize we're not tropical enough here in the central part of the state.

There are a few varieties that can be used, however, and its best to check with experts when in doubt.

Finally, if you don't wish to spend your weekends mowing, what do you use for groundcover?

Mrs. Anderson says there are a number of good mulches.

The idea of a mulch is to cover up the weeds and hinder their growth.

Pine bark, cypress chips, pine needles, pebbles or stones can be used for such a purpose.

"Anything that covers the ground and keeps it tidy," Mrs. Anderson says. "Whatever's the least work and most effective."

Wildly used in hotter climates as lawn alternatives, ground covers add color and texture and can be placed where grasses will not thrive or may not be maintained — in dry poor soil, on steep slopes or in dense shade, she says.

Used in combination with glossy greens and swaths of color, ground covers add serenity to a landscape. They also integrate well with paths of stone, brick, or log slices and visually link randomly planted annuals.

Mrs. Anderson recommends homeowners first consider their property's characteristics before choosing specific ground covers.

"The prickly yucca is a plant I would never have thought of treating as ground cover," she says, "but if you have a place where dogs or people cut across your property, yucca is the trick."

Then, after everything is planted in the natural garden, landscape designers advise the new convert not to worry about mistakes. The garden, unlike the patio, is not set in concrete.
