Death penalty sought for Bellamy

SANFORD — The State Attorney will seek the death penalty today for a man convicted in February of first degree murder.

The penalty phase of the George Bellamy Jr. trial was scheduled to begin this morning before Circuit Court Judge Alan Dickey. Bellamy was convicted of first degree murder and armed robbery Feb. 1 in the killing of Isiah Cohen.

The jury that convicted Bellamy will hear testimony today, then decide on his penalty.

Assistant State Attorney Stewart Stone said after Bellamy was convicted he would seek the death penalty. Cohen was killed by Bellamy who planned to steal some stereo speakers from a car Cohen had borrowed from a friend.

The penalty for conviction on a first degree murder charge is death or life in prison.

'Operation Safe River'

SANFORD — Area law enforcement officers will target drunken boaters on local rivers and lakes this weekend in "Operation Safe River."

Deputies, police and state law enforcement officers will patrol Lake Monroe, the St. Johns and Wekiva Rivers in force between 1 p.m. and 9 p.m. tomorrow. The patrol area includes a stretch of the river from North Lake Harney to the Highbanks Marina in Volusia County.

Officers will stop boaters to check safety equipment and determine if they have been drinking. Mobile breath-testing locations will be established at the Port of Sanford and Osteen Bridge fishcamp. Deputies will be on hand to transport impaired boaters to jail.

Last year, more than 15 boat crashes on the St. Johns River during the spring and summer were caused by drinking or improper safety equipment, deputies report.

The operation is being conducted by the Seminole and Orange County Sheriff's Offices, Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, City, County, State Traffic Bureau and Altamonte Springs Police Department.

Winter Springs clinic may be target after ruling

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A decision Thursday by Seminole County Circuit Judge Robert D. McGregor limiting anti-abortion protests outside a Melbourne clinic could open a Winter Springs clinic to increased protest activities.

"It's possible," said Talbot "Sandy" D'Alemberte, clinic attorney. "The judge has drawn a bright line around the Aware Woman clinic. But the judge had much testimony about activities at other clinics. If they want to come over to the doctor's clinic, they ought to know now that if they try the same tactics of swarming around cars and restricting access, the judge is not going to like it."

"I would suspect if someone wanted to sidewalk counsel, which is a very effective technique, and they were prohibited from doing it at one clinic but were allowed to do it at another, they would go to the other clinic," said Chris Weiss, attorney for Rev. Ed Martin, leader of Rescue America, an anti-abortion group. "I'm real disappointed."

Weiss said he has been directed to appeal the order.

Dr. Monthree Raungsomboon, operator of Women's Medical Clinic in Winter Springs, did not participate in the complaint against anti-abortionists, although he and his employees have complained about protesters following them to their homes and elsewhere.

SANFORD — Today, Apr. 9, is the 128th anniversary of the end of the Civil War, or the War between the states. Because the date coincides with Good Friday this year, area observances are being held up until next week.

At 1:30 p.m. on this date in 1865, Gen. Robert E. Lee, commander of the Army of Northern Virginia, surrendered to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, commander-in-chief of the Union Army, ending four years of civil war.

SANFORD — Before Peter Cottontail takes one hop on the bunny trail someone has to decorate some eggs. When you are expecting hundreds of guests for an egg hunt, lots of eggs need to be decorated...500 dozen eggs.

On Thursday, five volunteers took on the task of coloring 6,000 eggs which will be snapped up by eager children Saturday at the 15th annual Easter Egg Hunt at the Central Florida Zoo. The event is co-sponsored by the Young Heroes' Club of the Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children and Women.

Three young brothers from DeBary and two other volunteer worked over five-gallon buckets filled with red, green, blue and yellow dyes, carefully putting dozens of eggs at a time into the colorful liquids. Working on a picnic table outside

Sanford mulls golf complex

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A world-class golf complex is being suggested for Sanford's site 10, near Geneva. The concept will be presented to the City Commission Monday evening.

Site 10 consists of approximately 1,000 acres of land off E. S.R. 46, used as a wastewater discharge area for the city.

"This would require a great deal of reconsideration," said City Manager Bill Simmons. "The city has already advertised the land for a hay field, and work is presently underway to get the irrigation ready and hay in place."

"When we initially advertised for hay growers," he said, "is when the original concept of a golf course was made, and that's where this whole idea started."

The golf course, which would be known as Eagles Nest Golf Course, is being suggested by Bradford Simmons, of Innovative Property Development, who is scheduled to make his presentation during the workshop meeting of the commission.

According to information already forwarded to city officials, Simmons wants to establish two

'Swap Girl' wants to divorce parents

SARASOTA — A teen-ager upset at what she considered attacks on her family wants an end to a longtime custody battle in a baby swap case.

Kimberly Mays, 14, wants to divorce her biological parents. "It's her decision," said Bob Mays, who raised the girl since birth.

Kimberly wants to terminate any parental rights of Ernest and Regina Twigg, who have been fighting for custody or at least visitation with Kimberly since they learned in 1988 she was their biological daughter.

They had raised Ariena, a daughter born to Mays and his late wife Barbara. When Ariena died of heart problems, the Twiggs learned through tissue tests she was not their biological child and a search for their natural daughter led them to Kimberly.

A book released in February called "The Baby Swap Conspiracy" by Loretta Schwartz-Nobel, implies the switch between the Mays-baby and the Twigg's baby at a rural Florida hospital in Wauchula in 1978 was intentional.

"The book has been the straw that broke the camel's back," said Mays at a news conference Thursday at the office of his lawyer Arthur Ginsburg.

Mays said Kimberly was upset by the book which paints a derogatory picture of the only family she has ever known.

Mrs. Twigg's public appearances promoting the book has been driving a wedge between herself and the teen-ager, Mays said.

Yuck! Gum's laced with pot

LARGO — Federal authorities were aiding in the investigation of how traces of marijuana got into a package of shredded grape bubble gum purchased by two boys at a neighborhood store.

"My friend said, 'Yuck. This doesn't taste right. It tastes disgusting.'" 11-year-old David Thornberg said of Wednesday's discovery. "It tasted all right to me. It tasted like regular, old grape gum. But when I smelled it, it smelled like marijuana."

Tests by Largo police showed 0.02 grams of marijuana were in the foil package of "Big League Chew," shredded bubble gum made to resemble chewing tobacco, a police spokesman said.

Officials from the Food & Drug Administration and the FBI interviewed the 8-year-old and 11-year-old boys, their families and the owner of the Save A Step Food Store.

Twenty-one packages of gum taken from the store are being tested to see if they contain marijuana or had been tampered with, Largo police Sgt. Don Holcomb said. Additional tests are being done on the package the boys purchased.

Firm questioned on sales tactics

TALLAHASSEE — A Tennessee marketing firm has agreed to buy back air and water filters from distributors and curtail questionable sales tactics, Attorney General Bob Butterworth said Thursday.

National Safety Associates of Memphis will also pay Florida $50,000 to cover investigative costs.

Florida and nine other states accused the company of enticing people into making huge up-front purchases when signing on as distributors of the firm's filters.

The company didn't admit any wrongdoing but has agreed to limit claims about potential earnings, ease of sales and product performance when recruiting new distributors, Butterworth's office said.

In Florida, some 32,000 people bought $7,000 worth of water filters. Many of them then could not resell the filters.

The state's allegations, the company agreed to buy back at 100 percent of the purchase price, filters bought by distributors after Jan. 1. Filters bought before then will be bought back at 75 percent of the purchase price.

Flotilla gets U.S. blessings

KEY WEST — The U.S. government gave its blessing to a humanitarian flotilla scheduled to leave Key West for Cuba carrying medical supplies and food.

"All we have to do now is the logistic work, collecting the medicine and food and deciding who is going," said John J. Young, who is organizing Baste's April 18 mission along with a Fort Lauderdale travel consultant. Baste is Spanish for "enough."

Approval for the controversial mission, relayed in a letter from the U.S. Treasury Department late Tuesday, is not final. But it allows the group to speed preparations for its mission of mercy, the first of its kind from South Florida.

The flotilla also hinges on the Cuban government's permission. Calls to the Cuban interests Section in Washington, D.C., went unanswered Thursday.

Many Cuban exiles in South Florida oppose the mission, saying the goods will end up in the government's hands and the project violates the spirit of the U.S. embargo on Cuba. Exiles plan a protest caravan against the flotilla on Sunday in Key West.

Family Day in the park

Free celebration planned Easter for children, families

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — After church on Easter Sunday, families traditionally gather together to eat, to have a good time and to share in activities that everyone from toddlers to grandparents can have a good time doing.

Mike Vallot and his family, who are becoming well-known in Sanford for organizing fun-for-the-whole-family celebrations in the city, have scheduled their second annual Easter Day "Children and Family Day in the Park" on Sunday in Ft. Mellon Park.

The party will get underway at about 1:30 p.m., Vallot said.

He noted that the celebration will last at least until dark.

"We're expecting it to be a lot of fun," Vallot said.

Vallot, a school bus driver for the Seminole County School District, has traditionally offered transportation for children whose parents are unable to drive them to the functions.

He has also arranged to have free food, games and prizes donated by local businesses and individuals.

"The community has stood behind us," he said.

Eugene "Mean Gene" Butler of Studio III will be providing the entertainment. Butler is an entertaining disc jockey who has a variety of records for differing tastes.

He has offered his services at Vallot's family celebrations since they began a few years ago.

In addition to Mean Gene's records and entertainment, the Bass Patrol and 102 JAMZ will be special guests.

Last year's Easter Day community party drew several hundred people, Vallot said. He hopes this year's celebration will be as successful.

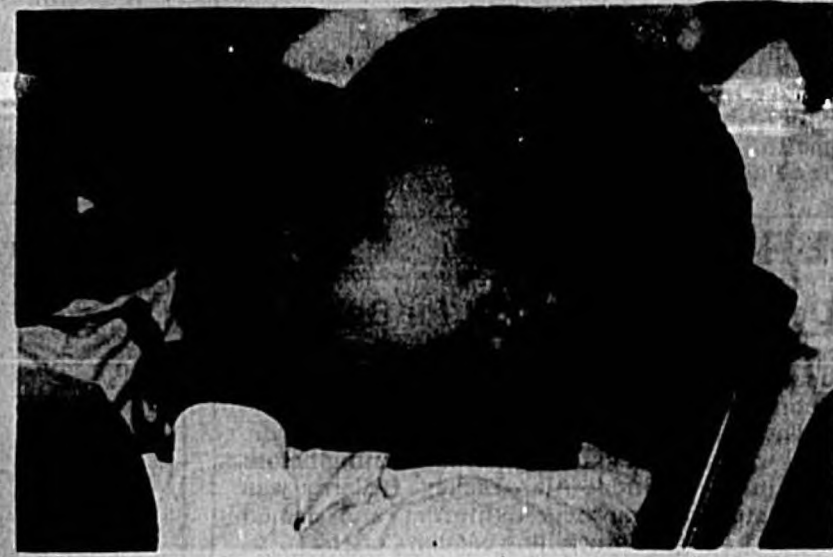

He, his family and other volunteers have been distributing flyers announcing the family party.

News of the party has also been spread by word of mouth.

"A lot of people are involved this year," Vallot said.

He said that anyone in the community who wants to attend the family day in the park is invited to join in the festivities Sunday afternoon.

He is encouraging anyone with any questions about the event to call him at 321-8208.

Encephalitis diagnosed in Broward

FORT LAUDERDALE (AP) — A Broward County man has been diagnosed with encephalitis, and officials said Thursday it may be the first case of the deadly St. Louis strain since a 1990 outbreak killed eight in Florida.

Paul Blackinton, 66, of Cooper City, was comatose and listed in serious but stable condition at Imperial Point Medical Center in Fort Lauderdale Thursday, said Patty Kohler, spokeswoman for the hospital.

A preliminary test corroborated the encephalitis diagnosis, hospital spokeswoman Susan Cwirbilla said.

"He has encephalitis, but we are testing to see if he has the St. Louis strain," Ms. Cwirbilla said.

Court rules in paternity, offender and death cases

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The state Supreme Court said a paternity test sought by the state would have violated a Bradenton man's privacy rights, and it upheld a prison inmate's challenge of a 1989 amendment to state habitual offender laws.

The court also reduced a death sentence imposed on an Orange County man for strangling a bar dancer in an order Thursday that cited his mental illness and service as a volunteer firefighter.

State Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services officials couldn't immediately tell if the paternity-test ruling would hurt efforts to pursue absent fathers for reimbursement of child-care costs the state pays, such as Aid to Families with Dependent Children, food stamps and Medicaid, spokeswoman Melanie Mowry said Thursday.

Because it was an unique case, Mowry said, "We don't anticipate that it's going to have a dramatic impact."

The Supreme Court said HRS officials must go back to Charlotte County circuit court, which ordered the test at the department's request in 1991, to prove it would be justified.

William Privette challenged the order to undergo a human leukocyte antigen test, which can determine paternity with a high degree of certainty.

Privette's attorney, Daniel David, said he hadn't seen the Supreme Court ruling, but "it's a very strong affirmation of a citizens' privacy rights in this state."

The justices said the circuit court ordered the test based on a complaint by a woman who alleged she was unmarried when her child was born, said she had sexual relations with Privette at the time of the child's conception and said he was the father.

But the woman actually was married to another man and stated when obtaining her daughter's birth certificate that her husband was the father, the Supreme Court said.

Among other things, the Supreme Court said the trial court made no attempt to notify the legal father and give him a chance to intervene.

Dealership owner Bruce Rossmeyer reported to deputies Hostetter took the money from repair payments made by customers, adjusting company books to conceal the theft. Rossmeyer reported he fired Hostetter after she told fellow employees she had taken from $1,000 to $1,500 from the company, but intended to repay it.

An independent audit revealed the company has lost $71,885 during the time Hostetter worked there, according to reports.

Crowded Florida prisons blamed

By GURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — If Florida prisons were less crowded, the two men charged in Miami with the slaying of a German tourist might have been behind bars already, state legislators and prosecutors said.

"They might have been sentenced to a longer period of time if we had more space," said Republican Sen. Gary Siegel of Alachua County, chairman of the Senate Corrections, Probation and Parole Committee.

"We're losing the war. Some people might say we've already lost the war," he said Thursday.

Both Anthony Williams, 18, and 23-year-old Leroy Rogers were previously convicted of securities felonies. Williams brought them longer prison terms if not for the restrictions of overcrowding, Siegel said.

Siegel and Gov. Lawton Chiles failed to persuade the Legislature this year to impose a 25-cents-a-pack cigarette tax increase to build at least 21,000 more prison beds over five years.

Chiles plans a special session to try again later this spring, even though lawmakers did commit to 7,000 more beds beginning next year.

"This only undercores our need for a criminal justice system that works, with adequate numbers of prison beds, to keep criminals with numerous prior arrests from preying on our citizens as well as our tourists," Chiles said.

Florida convicts, on average, serve just 22 percent of their sentences in state prisons. A system of early release credits is used to keep the prisons at court-ordered population levels.

Exceptions are habitual offenders, those on death row, and most of those given mandatory sentences for violent crimes.

Williams and Rogers, charged with first-degree murder and strong-arm robbery in the April 2 death of 39-year-old Barbara Meller Jensen, never even got to state prison.

A second way to keep prison overcrowding down is through sentencing guidelines used by judges, which can sharply reduce the penalties for criminals based on their prior records and other variables.

"The sentencing guidelines are so watered down you can't send people to jail," said St. Lucie County Sheriff Bobby Knowles, president of the Florida Sheriffs Association.

charge of the Miami bureau of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. "We have an epidemic of robberies ongoing in Dade County — robberies of tourists and robberies of our citizens."

Jourdan said the number of FDLE agents has been doubled in Dade County.

The death of Mrs. Jensen, a schoolteacher, on April 2 resulted in traveler's advisories from Germany and Great Britain this week. Seven foreign tourists, including three Germans, have been killed in Florida this tourist season. Numerous non-fatal attacks have been reported.

Mrs. Jensen, 39, of Berlin, was killed after her rental car was bumped by another vehicle. When she got out to inspect the damage, she was beaten, robbed and run over by a car while her mother and two children, ages 6 and 2, watched.

Police have identified her as Barbara Jensen Meller, but the German consulate said her married name property comes last.

Investigators said they had recovered the car with which she was run over, but released few details. Brooks said physical evidence was found in the car, but wouldn't elaborate.

However, The Miami Herald reported today that Rogers and Williams, jailed after Mrs. Jensen's death for allegedly snatching a purse, were linked to the case through fingerprints found on Mrs. Jensen's rental car.

The purse-snatching victim called detectives late Saturday to say she had found an address label of Mrs. Jensen's in her purse, recovered by police when they arrested the two men, the newspaper said in today's editions.

Another who helped was Mrs. Jensen's son, Alexander.

On Monday, the boy, accompanied by detectives, went to a store where he selected toy cars and people and reenacted the events leading to his mother's death.

"The kid helped clear up a lot of things for us," said Det. Thomas Watterson of the Miami Police Department. "He was a very sharp young man for 6 years old."

German Deputy Consul Walter Weinberger said it was "reassuring to know that those responsible for the killing of Mrs. Jensen can be brought to justice."

"I hope the quick success and the measures being envisioned will make the streets in Miami safer," he said.

The U.S. Attorney's office announced Thursday it was charging a Miami man with violation of the federal Armed Career Criminal Act after he and another individual allegedly robbed a van full of tourists. If convicted, 35-year-old Patrick Smith could face a term of no less than 15 years with no chance of parole.

Two arrested in Miami slaying of German woman; strategy planned

By PATRICK REYNA
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Two men are in jail today without bond, charged with the vicious killing of a German tourist, but authorities say further efforts must be made to combat increasing violence.

Christian Jensen thanked law enforcement officials and the public for assisting in the investigation which led Thursday to the arrest of two Liberty City men suspected of his wife's death.

"We have seen the very worst and the very best of your community," he said. "These criminals would likely not be in jail today were it not for the help of concerned and caring citizens."

Anthony Williams, 18, and Leroy Rogers, 23, who were already in custody on unrelated robbery charges, were charged early Thursday with first-degree murder and strong-arm robbery in the death of Barbara Meller Jensen, Maj. John Brooks said.

"Both admitted being involved in the homicide, and being part of the strong arm robbery," Brooks said.

Annie Williams said her son, one of 10 children, was constantly in trouble.

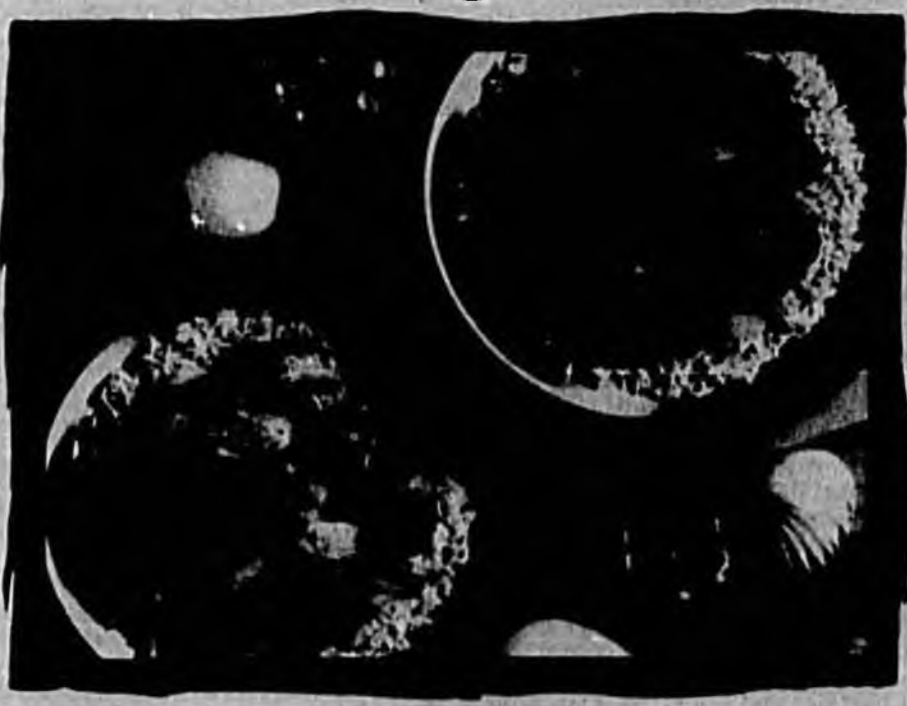

"I don't know if he did it," she said, "but I know he's bad."

Rogers is the second cousin of Police Chief Calvin Ross, who didn't know about the relationship until he made some calls after the arrest, said police spokesman David Magnuson. "It was news to him, too."

Even as the arrests were announced, local, state and federal officials promised to do more to combat crime against tourists and residents.

"The violence we have seen on tourists is the symptom of the overall problem of crime," said Doyle Jourdan, special agent in

Sanford by land, sea, rail and air

The City of Sanford and Seminole County have cooperated in the preparation of a preliminary feasibility study. The aim is to consider the city as a major transportation hub in northern Seminole County.

Under consideration are transportation by buses, trucks, trains, air, and water. In conjunction with these are studies of the highway system, aviation and water ports, regional demands, and local developments.

Whether the transportation plan for Sanford proves worthwhile will now depend on the direction the city and county will take in the future. If pursued properly, this could be an excellent beginning for combining all forms of travel into one general location.

Transportation centers connected to each other will be a great benefit to the city, especially if the area around the Seminole Towne Center Mall development becomes as giant an undertaking as planned.

With the regular passenger service of Amtrak, the new coast-to-coast Sunset Limited and AutoTrain all stopping in Sanford, rail service will be available. Greyhound has reopened its terminal at 120 S. Park Avenue. The LYNX regional bus system has routes handling a great portion of the area.

The Port of Sanford is ready for water traffic and the Central Florida Regional Airport is ready for air freight and travel.

Seminole County Expressway construction is moving along, and other major highways are being widened and improved.

The northern Seminole County and Sanford areas are in good shape to provide transportation of any type.

In many respects Sanford does not differ greatly from other cities such as Titusville, Melbourne, Jacksonville and Daytona Beach. Each is accessible by water, air, rail, and highways.

Although the study has good intentions, it could become another document that eventually ends up as only a dream, with no progress due to a lack of financing or follow-through.

Citizens as well as government leaders must consider the overall picture of mass transportation converging on Sanford.

This could very well be one of the best moves for Sanford's future.

The difference will be whether or not this new plan can be brought to fruition, and how it will place Sanford above the rest in transportation availabilities.

More on borrow pits

It's about the borrow pit off Ohio Avenue again. I'm sorry to be such a pest, but I'm just so confused! Is city government/politics really that complicated to figure out?

Of course, by now everybody knows that we lost in our attempt to stop the sixth (is that accurate? I can't keep up!) borrow pit on our side of the county. This is what I can't figure: Since we only had a week to prepare for the hearing, we quickly began contacting people and gathering information to apply for an appeal, which our official hearing notice told us how to do. In our initial contact with the commissioner's office, we were told that the commissioners had decided not to hear an appeal on this matter.

In the same week after the hearing, we received anonymous phone calls saying things like one of the partners in the dirt deal and a commissioner, are related.

Now, here's what I need help on. Is there an appeal law that is the same for everyone or can the commissioners pick and choose which cases are worthy for an appeal. If so, how do they choose (seem' as they voted against, in the first place)? Does it have something to do with who you know or to whom you're related? If so, how do you get in on these deals? Would being an ex-commissioner help? Also, since 99.99 percent of the voters are against the permit, isn't the commissioner that we voted for supposed to vote the way his constituents want?

Well, if we can't appeal to the commissioners, at least we can appeal to the public, our neighbor citizens! I smell a good mystery, (Jeez, are you reading this?) Any "wanna-be" detectives or attorneys that want to help? Give us a call, the rest of us poor middle class folks have to work for a living. (Hope my car isn't car bombed this week!)

The poverty/low-IQ connection

What this country's educational system needs is a classic textbook that replaces "The Education of Henry Adams" with "The Education of Conservatives."

"The Education of Conservatives" would begin with a just-released study that shows a strong correlation between poverty and IQ.

Why aren't we surprised? Well, we've always known that on the average (and those three words are pivotal) rich kids have higher IQs than poor kids, white kids have higher IQs than black kids, Asian kids score higher than white kids on standardized math tests and the mother's educational level has more impact on IQ than anything else.

But a just-released study by the University of Michigan challenges all of that conventional wisdom. First, however, I must take note of the high-quality educational research that consistently comes out of the University of Michigan.

Last year, the university published a study showing that children of Southeast Asian boat people were excelling in the American public school system.

Refugee families who had arrived in this country only a few years ago are surpassing the achievement levels of kids born to third-generation Americans.

I wrote about this educational paradox, and several of you either wrote or telephoned for information about getting a copy of the study.

Now, a year later, Michigan is back with another study that its researchers claim proves that "persistent poverty" is the primary cause of IQ deficits.

I say "claim," because kids from lower-income refugee Asian families are still mathematically kicking the cognitive butts of all middle-income kids — white or black — in the public schools.

"Family income," says the University of Michigan's Greg J. Duncan, "is a far more powerful correlate of a child's IQ at age 5 than maternal education, ethnicity and growing up in a single-parent family." At age 5, there is a 9.1 spread in IQ points between "persistently poor" kids and middle-income kids.

I've got a radical proposal to counteract this educational crisis.

I've got a radical proposal to counteract this educational crisis. Before presenting it, however, let me leave you with one statistic that you have never read anywhere else, because it is so inflammatorily controversial.

According to a table published by the Educational Testing Service, SAT scores correlate very highly with median family income: The higher the income, the higher the scores; the lower the income, the lower the scores.

Yet, white kids whose median family incomes are below $10,000 still score higher on the SATs than black kids whose median family incomes are above $50,000. Arthur Jensen, architect of the theory of genetic supremacy, would have a field day with that correlation.

Actually, something is radically wrong with an educational system that perpetuates such a horrible inequity. The only way to ensure that all students are on a level playing field is to abolish the secondary school level for eighth graders. The only value of a standardized test is that it enables parents to compare New York with New Mexico and New Jersey. Period.

War over ins at the White House

WASHINGTON — At a recent White House reception to honor Greek Independence Day, President Clinton was in a joking mood.

"You might argue that I could have a reverse affirmative action suit for the overrepresentation of Greeks on the White House staff," cracked the president, who counts five Greek-Americans as close advisers.

Across town at the Turkish Embassy, nobody was laughing.

The fact that White House Communications Director George Stephanopoulos, a Greek-American, has sparked a war of words between the Greek and Turkish Embassies. It's much different than any of the bloody wars that have plagued relations between the two countries for centuries, but it's a thorny issue nonetheless.

Various sources within the Greek-American community — from diplomats to lobbyists and journalists — have told us that their counterparts on the Turkish side have been spreading false rumors that Stephanopoulos is tilting the new administration toward Greece at Turkey's expense.

After being romanced by Republican presidents for the last 12 years, Turkey has reason to fear that a Democrat in the White House will be tougher on the country's sorry record of human-rights abuses. But any suggestions that Stephanopoulos is behind such a change seem groundless.

One prominent Greek-American lobbyist told us, for example, that word has spread throughout the Greek community that "the Turks have been taking shots at George" since the campaign.

One top official at the Greek Embassy traces the that proliferation of rumors to last October, when the Clinton campaign released a statement to the Greek-American community declaring that the United States "has a moral obligation as well as a national security interest to see that (Turkey's) illegal occupation of Cyprus comes to an end."

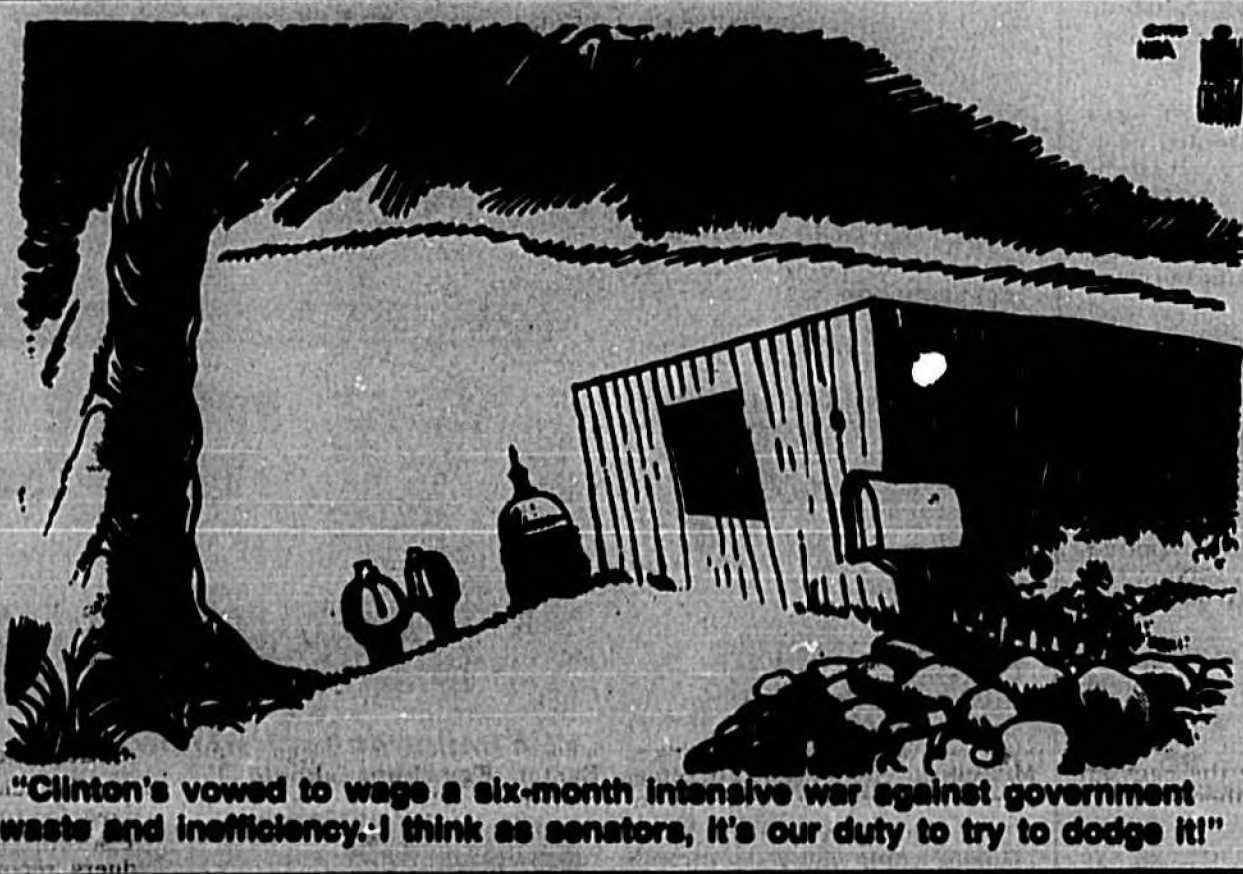

"It went downhill from there," said this Greek official. "The rumors about Stephanopoulos became intense. They (Turks) went on the offense in order to defend any turf they felt they were losing." Officially, the Turkish Embassy insists that they are not threatened by Stephanopoulos, and they "wish him all the best."

"The Greek Embassy should know that we want to promote a good relationship between Turkey and Greece," said one high official at the Turkish Embassy.

The normally stork Stephanopoulos erupted emotionally when we took the dispute to him. "Look, I'm an American," he said. Stephanopoulos added that foreign policymaking was not his job, and that he works "for the president" and not the Greek lobby.

Shortly after the election, one Turkish tabloid's lead headline consisted of a four-letter expletive directed at Clinton for his Cyprus comment. Below the profane print was a sketch of Cyprus, with a raised middle finger jutting out of the Turkish-occupied half of the island. Greek sources say that their Turkish counterparts and some Turkish media then baited Bill Clinton as "Clintonopoulos."

Greek officials also assert that the Turks threw a tantrum when Turkish President Turgut Ozal came to Washington less than a week after Clinton's inauguration for a series of engagements, including a medical checkup and meetings with Turkish-American groups. Though Turkish officials say they placed a request in December for Ozal to confer with Clinton, the visit had not been scheduled as Ozal's trip wound down.

Legal questions vex lawmakers

WASHINGTON — No matter where you look around Washington these days, unusual and vexing legal questions seem to have come to the forefront.

One example: Is Hillary Rodham Clinton simply a private citizen who happens to be married to the president of the United States or is she a quasi-government official, albeit without pay, with all the rights and responsibilities that go with high government office?

This question arose within the context of the first lady heading the presidential health-care-reform task force. The panel was doing its work behind closed doors, and several interest groups filed suit claiming this violated the federal government's open-meeting rule.

The question came down to Mrs. Clinton's precise status. If she was a government official, then meetings would not have to be open. If she was a private citizen, then the meetings would have to be open because the law says that any presidential panel containing private citizens must meet in public session except when national security is involved.

In a preliminary ruling, Judge Royce Lamberth found a middle ground. He said that Mrs. Clinton was not an "officer or an employee of the federal government" within the context of the so-called Sunshine Law. As such, any "information gathering" sessions of the task force will have to be public. But when she acts as a "presidential adviser" regardless of whether she is a private citizen, meetings could be held behind closed doors.

As Mrs. Clinton becomes increasingly active in the daily functioning of the White House this question will be raised again, as will questions about whether her role is violating the so-called Kennedy Law, which prohibits nepotism in the executive branch.

Another question vexing Washington: Can you have meaningful campaign reform without running afoul of the First Amendment?

Virtually every campaign reform plan, Democratic or Republican, centers on regulating who can give how much to political campaigns, and how much a candidate can spend. Democrats want to limit the amount of contributions and how much can be spent on Senate or House campaigns. Republicans want to eliminate contributions from political action committees while increasing personal contributions.

However, don't individuals have a right to spend whatever they want in support of a candidate? And don't candidates have a right to spend what they want on their campaign? In other words, doesn't campaign finance reform fly in the face of free speech protections?

In 1976, the Supreme Court said, effectively, yes and no. In a complex decision (Buckley vs. Valeo), it ruled that it was unconstitutional to put spending limits on campaigns, and that individuals could spend as much as they want on their own campaigns. However, it also ruled that contribution limits to a campaign were constitutional, as were disclosure requirements and the limiting of the cost of a campaign, if a candidate received public funds.

No one is happy with the results. The problem is how to change the system without violating the First Amendment and running afoul of the Supreme Court?

Finally, a question that seems almost comical: Can the U.S. Senate refuse to seat one of its duly elected members because he lied during his election campaign?

It is generally accepted that candidates on the stump tell less than the complete truth most of the time. If every word of every candidate were closely analyzed, you would have to conclude that, at one time or another during the heat of a campaign, everyone lies.

However, the question has arisen in a more serious context. It involves Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., who is fighting charges that he sexually harassed many women over a long period of years.

The Washington Post was working on the story as the campaign entered its final days last November. Three days before the election the Post sat down with Packwood to lay out the charges being leveled against him by five women.

He denied everything so forcefully, and in such detail, that the Post was forced to investigate further. It was not able to report the story by Election Day.

To make matters worse, a local Oregon reporter got wind that something was up and asked Packwood why he had broken off his campaigning to spend hours with a team from the Post. Packwood, through his staff, lied about the subject of the interview.

Packwood won the election by a narrow margin. Had the story been reported before the election Packwood would certainly have been defeated.

Now an anti-Packwood Oregon citizens group has filed a petition with the Senate Ethics Committee demanding that it unseat Packwood — which it has the power to do — on the basis that his lies were so fundamental to the outcome that they were the equivalent of election fraud.

The question came down to Mrs. Clinton's precise status.

Guongo, 42, is charged with shooting his ex-wife, Matilda Ferrer, 39, in the Lake Mary Shopping Centre Feb. 4. The suspect was visiting Florida at the time of the shooting. He allegedly fired shots into the car carrying Ferrer and Hector Rivera Ruiz as the pair stopped at a supermarket. Ferrer was shot twice in the head and died after being airlifted to a hospital. Guongo and Ferrer had been divorced 13 years. He was arrested by police in Rochester, N.Y. six days after the shooting. Local deputies flew to New York to escort Guongo back to Seminole County.

Deputies also stopped in Pennsylvania to get Ormiston. The Winter Springs resident is charged with strangling his estranged wife, Becky, and putting her body in the trunk of a car. Her body was found March 21 after a former roommate reported her missing. The Ormiston was going through a divorce. Becky had previously lived in Sanford.

Editor's note: Due to a reporting error, San Francisco Guongo's name was incorrectly spelled in a story that appeared Thursday in the Herald.

Ormiston was arrested five days later. His two young children, who were with him, were placed in the custody of welfare authorities.

Winter Springs Mayor Philip Kulbes said the police department is ready for increased protests. So far, the city has been "lucky," Kulbes said.

"I don't see any anti-abortion protesters there," said Kulbes. "All our police had to do is keep them apart. But our police told the protesters if they step on the property, they'll be arrested; if they block cars, they'll be arrested."

The Women's Medical Clinic is still protected under a Sept. 30, 1992 order prohibiting protesters from blocking access to abortion clinics and harassing employees and patients.

Thursday, McGregor amended the order against blocking access to the two abortion clinics in Seminole and Brevard County by prohibiting specific activities around Aware Woman Center for Choice in Melbourne.

The order prohibits anti-abortionists from entering a 36-foot "buffer" surrounding the clinic, although the buffer is narrowed to five feet along U.S. 1. The protesters are prohibited from approaching vehicles driving to the clinic within 300 feet unless invited by the person. The 36-foot limit still applies to personal contacts.

Protesters are also prohibited from demonstrating within 300 feet of clinic employee residences or impeding access to their streets.

McGregor granted Melbourne police the authority to paint boundary stripes around the clinic and arrest anyone who violates the order. McGregor also ordered any arrestees be transferred to the Seminole County jail and appear before him.

The order was hailed by pro-abortion activists.

"The whole order shows a much more serious, get-tough policy that we have needed for some time," Eleanor Smeal, president of the Feminist Majority, told reporters after Judge Robert McGregor issued his order Thursday.

The order came less than two days before an anticipated anti-abortion rally in front of the Melbourne clinic. A Melbourne police captain testified last month a major demonstration may be planned for tomorrow in recognition of the Easter weekend. Capt. Gary Allgeyer said Friday said police are prepared for up to 1,000 protesters.

Bruce Cadle, a defendant and leader of Operation Rescue National, did not return calls Thursday or Friday. An ORN spokesman said the order showed "utter contempt" for the First Amendment right to free speech.

But D'Alemberte said free speech is not restricted by the order.

"You may have free speech over here but you're not getting into the clinic," D'Alemberte said.

Earlier Thursday, D'Alemberte and the abortion leaders met with Gov. Lawton Chiles to discuss how to guarantee protection of women trying to get into clinics. A bill intended to consolidate existing law with some tougher penalties died in the final hours of the legislative session last week.

Chiles made no commitment about including the issue in upcoming special sessions on prison construction and workers' compensation reform, but Smeal said the meeting was just a first step.

Color

into colorful dye to plastic wrappers that shrink around the eggs. Some supermarkets sell eggs already dyed in bright colors.

Decorated eggs should begin by hard-boiling the eggs. Eggs with a greenish tint to the cooked yolk have been overcooked.

Seminole County extension agent Barbara Gregg recommends using clean crack-free eggs in a pan of water.

This water should be brought to a boil, the pan covered and removed from the heat. After 15 minutes, pour off the hot water and cover the eggs with cool water.

Aluminum and cast iron kettles are not recommended if the eggs are to be dyed because the metal reacts with the shell and may result in uneven coloring. Stainless steel, enamel or heatproof glass pans are recommended.

Patterns, names or decorations may be drawn on the eggs with a wax crayon before the eggs are dyed. No color adheres to the waxed areas.

To make homemade egg dye, Gregg said, add one teaspoon white vinegar to one cup of water and add food coloring to the desired hue. The longer an egg is left in the liquid, the more intense the color becomes. The dye should cover the egg completely and the egg should be moved around so it colors evenly. Remove the egg with a slotted spoon and air-dry.

Boxes of food coloring usually feature charts to help consumers create many colors for the eggs. Mixing different colors in separate containers is a good way to show young children how primary colors can be combined to make others, for example, blue and red make purple.

Work areas should be covered with plastic or other waterproof material to protect the table or countertop.

If glue, glitter, markers or paints are used to decorate eggs, labels should be checked to insure the products are nontoxic if the eggs are to be eaten.

Eggs should be refrigerated as soon as they are dry. Eggs for an Easter Egg hunt should be hidden shortly before the event and returned to the refrigerator immediately after they are found.

the zoo administration building, the five people quickly turned thirty-dozen boxes of white eggs into Easter treats. Pint-sized bottles of food coloring and jugs of white vinegar mixed with water created the dyeing liquid.

Thursday marked the fourth year the Pulver brothers, Todd, 10, Matt, 12 and Donnie, 13, have colored eggs for the hunt. Volunteers Gary Conley and Sherry Taylor rounded out the egg coloring team. A zoo docent, Taylor celebrated her 25th birthday dipping the hard boiled eggs into the buckets and retrieving the colorful results.

Rubber gloves were optional and the volunteers hands turned various hues and unidentified colors as layer upon layer of the primary colors soaked into their skin. Some of the workers used gloves for awhile then removed them when they became cumbersome. Then they put them on again.

"My hands are blue inside (the gloves)," Taylor said, shaking red dye from her gloved hands.

Carol Pulver, the boy's mother, said her sons liked the dyes on their hands because it distracts the pitchers when they play Little League baseball.

"They aren't allowed to wear any jewelry," she said, "but they can't take the dye off. It wears off after a while."

Conley said he uses lots of Lava soap to get rid of the multi-colored stains on his hands.

After the eggs were dyed, they were returned to the pink foam cartons and laid out like a rainbow-colored carpet under a nearby tall tree to dry.

Zoo spokesman Andrea Farmer said the eggs are refrigerated until the hunt so they are safe to eat. Also on hand to watch the egg coloring were Well Waldo Wallaby, mascot for the club and hospital spokesperson Cindy Baker. Baker tours area school promoting good health and nutrition. Members of the Young Heroes' Club receive newsletters about health issue and activities plus discount cards to local attractions.

The youngest son of the Pulver clan, two-year old Shea, occupied himself playing with Well Waldo and watching as the collection of colored eggs grew on the zoo administration building lawn.

Farmer said between 50 and 80 zoo volunteers and employees of American Pioneer Title Insurance will hide the eggs Saturday morning.

The hunt begins for toddlers under three years old at 10:30 a.m. Saturday followed by the four to six year old group at 11 a.m. The last hunt will be for seven to ten year olds at 11:30 a.m.

Admission to the Central Florida Zoo, 3755 Hwy. 17-92, which includes the Easter Egg Hunt is $5 for adults, $2 for children 3-12, $3 for those 60 years and over. There is no charge for children under two years old.

Every child at the hunt will get a free poster and specially marked eggs will be redeemed for prizes. Children are to bring a basket or bag for the eggs and it is recommended individuals arrive early in order to get a parking space.

several events are planned in Central Florida next week, including gatherings in Ormond Beach and Orlando.

Many persons who are descendants of Southern as well as Northern forces will be visiting gravesites to pay tribute to those who served in the last war on U.S. soil.

"There is more and more interest growing these days about the war skirmishes, battles and gravesites in this Central Florida area," said local historian Bob Mann. Mann is a member of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

While Mann said no civil war era gravesites have been officially verified in the Sanford area at this time, a number of markers have been located at various cemeteries in Seminole County.

"One of our big points of interest this year is in the Enterprise area," Mann said. "We have several civil war veterans buried there, and we are looking into some of the skirmishes that occurred in Volusia County, especially the battle that took place at the Enterprise Sugarmill."

"Another of the most prominent skirmishes in this area was the Battle of Braddock's Farm near Crescent City," he said. "The southern forces defeated Cavalry, under the command of Col. Wilcoxon." He added, "We have located the Wilcoxon grave site in a wooded area near there, and we plan to properly identify it with an appropriate marker."

In honor of the war-end anniversary, special events will be held next week. "A large group of us will be meeting at the Greenwood Cemetery in Ormond Beach," he said. "To honor some of the confederate graves at that location."

"We have located over 100 veteran graves in Volusia County thus far," he said. "And several interesting skirmish sites."

Mann is also president of a newly formed organization called, "Confederation". "Our new group is still in the formation stages," he said. "Basically it is being established with the purpose of becoming involved in preservation of civil war burial sites and the identification and marker placement at areas where battles or skirmishes were fought," he explained.

Preliminary plans have already been drawn.

Simms said he is presently in the final stages of negotiations with a major golf educational program in Central Florida.

Simms has indicated he would like to begin development as soon as possible. "We have always planned to catch the '93 growing season," he wrote.

Simmons said the land is presently permitted by the Department of Environmental Regulation for hay growing. "If we want to look further into the golf course proposal, Mr. Simms and his people would have to obtain a DER permit for that change first. Then, if the city goes along with it," he added, "it would become a question of whether we might have to re-advertise the land for use as a golf course and obtain additional proposals, because our original advertising was only for bids on hay fields and cattle grazing."

The proposal is scheduled for the workshop meeting of the city commission, scheduled to begin at 4:30 p.m., Monday, in the city manager's conference room at Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

With Special Thanks

Words cannot express the gratitude we feel for the countless acts of kindness shown to us during the untimely death of our beloved George.

The cheerful smiles, friendly words, fervent prayers and even the sympathetic note are "priceless little treasures" from the storehouse of GOD. You will be in our hearts from day to day, FOREVER!

May God Bless you, Patricia Redding & Family

IN MEMORY OF DARLENE RAE VEINO WILSON

Daughter, sister, wife, mother, grandmother and friend. She fought a courageous battle to her victorious end. We will miss her every day and remember her legacy of strength, faith, righteousness and unique sense of humor.

Words cannot express the gratitude we have for the people who made the past five years easier, but to mention a few, thank you Delores Thornton, Midwest Coast Transport, SHARE, Dr. Hou and the doctors and staff from Central Florida Regional Hospital, and Mayo Clinic and St. Lukes of Jacksonville.

And for their support in her final weeks, the Hospice of Volusia County, Joyce Passeck, Asalee Veino, Tina Wilson, Kristin Dettlaff and the staff of Oaklawn Park Chapel, Pastor Fred Wilson, Kenney Harvey, and for the police escorts from the cities of Lake Mary and Sanford, and the counties of Seminole and Volusia. And to everyone for their prayers and love, walk tall.

God bless,
Parker Wilson and family

"The Lord Has Risen!"

Hallelujah... Christ has risen!
As we worship this Easter, may we meditate for a moment upon the impact of the word "risen," as Christ is our "risen" Savior who died to atone for our sins. Romans 4:24-25 states this as we read, "It will be reckoned to us who believe in Him (God) who raised from the dead Jesus our Lord, who was put to death for our trespasses and raised for our justification."
Armed with the faith that Christ rose from the dead, the gravestone rolled away; likewise, we shall arise above spiritual death, our soul intact; for as God guides our spirit, the suffocating stones of despair, anxiety, and fear are rolled away and we shall be forever joyful.
Therefore, may we praise Christ, our Savior, who gave His life on the Cross, that we might have life forevermore.

Hallelujah... Christ has risen!

FROM THE PULPIT

By THELMA N. MIKE

Easter is for all God's children

What are you looking for?
What am I looking for?
Who me?

Easter is for children. Well that's good news. The best news of all is that Easter is for children, for Jesus said, "except ye become as a little child, you shall in no wise enter into the kingdom."

We must come on this Easter Sunday with the eyes, the ears, the heart and the mind of a little child; trusting, believing, loving and forgiving. For all of these things are given to us at Easter time.

Resurrection is a time of new beginning, a new life, a turning looking forward to new relationships, new fellowship, joy, peace, love and happiness. All of these can only be found in the resurrected Christ.

When we invite him to come into our lives, lead, guide and direct us every day of our lives, we can put out the sign — "We are under new management." From top to bottom, from inside out, under the management of the Holy Spirit.

Except all of us become as

-Thelma N. Mike

For truly we realize without a shadow of a doubt, that He who was to come, did come, lived on this earth, went to Calvary for our sins, was buried in a borrowed tomb, and rose on the third day morning with all power in Heaven and Earth in His hand.

Give us the assurance that if we accept Him into our lives that we too can have power. We thank you for that power. Thank you that we come now as little children.

He assures us that He is not dead, He is alive. An He will be dead, if you need joy, it's in Jesus; peace, it's in Jesus; if you need deliverance, it's in Jesus. You have to look no further to find the answer. He promised that He would be with us always, even to the ends of the Earth. That is why we know that what we are looking for is already with us.

Happy Easter.

little children, trusting and following the guidance everyday, trusting and listening for the voice of God to give us our every direction, not in some parts but in all parts of our lives.

Knowing that He and He alone is able to forgive us for all of our sins. He and He alone heals all of our diseases. He and He alone supplies the light that shines in this dark world.

Lord forgive us as we come into the Spring of 1993, for at times we feel as if we are grown and could do it on our own. We come now seeking you the more, asking for your direction as we go forth in all of our planning. Be it in our government, in our places of worship, or in our lives, we ask now for unity of spirit, the oneness in Christ, accept us as little children.

Women: Models of faith

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

When the crisis for Jesus came, his men quit him, running off scared. But the women stood firm, acting with courage, initiative and resolve. Women — not men — starred in the crucial, formative hours of Christianity.

The contrast in conduct was stark and consistent. Yet in subsequent times, after those shocking, determinative hours were past, women were shouldered aside, and men took charge of the cause.

"Women were the heroes, the models of faith" in the Easter events, says theologian Mary Connolly LaBarre of the University of Portland in Oregon, but they later were shunted to subordinate roles.

That's an irony of Easter, she said, as believers this Sunday celebrate that extraordinary, founding occasion.

Women had been an essential and substantial part of Jesus' ministry from the first, supporting it financially, says Luke 8:3, noting that many well-do-do women provided for his work.

Budget reverses course, but change takes time

By JOHN KING
An AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — From beginning to end, President Clinton's first budget is full of change, reflecting the end of the Cold War and the dawn of a new Democratic administration.

Still, it offers just a down payment on his many promises, what Clinton collectively calls "investing in people and putting people first."

Because of spending restraints, political realities and the simple truth that some change takes time — particularly in Washington — the $1.52 trillion budget released Thursday contains only seeds of the most dramatic changes the president has promised. Many of the toughest choices were left for years and budgets to come.

Exhibit No. 1 is the federal deficit. Clinton's proposal, along with some deeper cuts already endorsed by Congress, would slash $514 billion in red ink over five years. But there's only about $37 billion in deficit reduction in the first year.

That, critics say, is because Clinton didn't propose any significant, non-defense spending cuts.

"So, it's pretty much what they promised us — more taxes and more spending — but that's not what the American people voted for last November," said Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

The Pentagon budget is another area in which Clinton proposed only a down payment.

Defense cuts are the major source for the billions in social and other domestic policy initiatives Clinton has promised. But he proposed a $284.2 billion Pentagon budget for next year, down just $13 billion from this year. Even his own defense secretary calls it "treading water," with many difficult choices put off.

More significant is the first installment in Clinton's vow to cut the federal bureaucracy by 100,000 workers. Through attrition, the president proposed eliminating 10,000 fulltime positions this year and 40,000 next year, a pledge skeptics predict will be hard to keep.

Clinton's promised "administrative savings" from every federal agency also are slated for a modest beginning. His budget, which is for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, projects $681 million in such savings.

If achieved, that's significant savings. But it's just the tip of the $11.2 billion Clinton has promised to weed from the bureaucracy over five years.

"When it comes to savings in the executive branch, Clinton flunks again," said a Senate

Republican Policy Committee analyst. "Just like his other budget cuts, they are all in the far, far future."

Some of Clinton's down payments are bigger than others, reflecting the priorities he outlined during the 1992 campaign. Some of the changes are dramatic, others subtle.

There are big increases in assistance to poor mothers and their children, including Head Start, literacy programs and school lunches.

The proposal also calls for a $400 million increase for child immunization and $328 million more for women's health, primarily breast cancer research and prevention. And it includes $88 million in seed money for 25,000 slots in Clinton's proposed national service program for college students.

Preacher's picketing of AIDS victims' funerals spurs debate

By DANA FIELDS
Associated Press Writer

TOPEKA, Kan. — The Rev. Fred Phelps has posed a thorny problem for lawmakers in America's heartland: How to allow relatives of AIDS victims to bury their dead in peace. The Primitive Baptist minister and his followers began picketing the funerals of gay AIDS victims in Topeka and Wichita about two years ago, confronting mourners with posters proclaiming, "God Hates Fags: Romans 9:13."

The Legislature decided enough was enough last year and enacted a ban on such demonstrations. The City Council in Kansas City, Mo., 70 miles to the east, also adopted an ordinance, modeled on the Kansas law, to stop Phelps.

Phelps hasn't picketed a funeral in Kansas since the state law was passed, but his campaign against those he condemns as "filthy sodomites" continues with daily pickets outside churches and restaurants.

The preacher has said that the Kansas City ordinance is a "direct assault on mourners there this weekend, when relatives of Kevin Oldham, a 32-year-old composer who died of AIDS, hold a memorial service."

He even sent a flier announcing the protest to Oldham's parents two days after his death March 11.

"I'm talking about the destruction of a civilization called Sodom and Gomorrah," Phelps said last Sunday, when he spent part of a rainy Palm Sunday picketing outside two Topeka churches, one Episcopalian, the other Lutheran.

"The Lord Jesus Christ says when things get that way in any civilization it's doomed," he said. "So it's not likely that any tacky little old city ordinance or state law or act of Congress is going to stop me."

Phelps has been pastor since 1955 of the Westboro Baptist Church, where his flock of 100 includes about two dozen relatives of the Kansas City ordinance.

The 63-year-old disabled lawyer — he was disciplined in 1979 for harassing a defendant and misrepresenting testimony — said he began his high-profile crusade after the news media began glorifying those who contract the AIDS virus through gay sex.

(The biblical passage Romans 9:13 refers to Esau, the son of Isaac who sold his birthright to his twin brother Jacob: "As it is written, Jacob I loved, but Esau I hated.") Phelps said he takes the passage to mean that Esau is hated by God as a "promiscuous fornicator in the extreme.")

Rep. Darrel Webb, a Wichita Democrat, said he sponsored last year's legislation after a constituent complained that he took his two young daughters to his uncle's funeral, only to be fronted by Phelps. "I don't condone gays, but I've got seven kids of my own and if one of them was gay, I'd still love him or her," Webb said. "I'm not a gay basher, and I wouldn't want anyone to mistreat them."

Oldham's mother, Barbara, had a more visceral reaction. "I resent Phelps for getting into my business," she said. "Kevin was my son and he's dead. Who is Phelps to judge him?"

Opponents of censorship said they are troubled by the official attempt to silence Phelps. The state law and the city ordinance outlaw picketing at funerals and recognize families' right to mourn "privately and peacefully."

"You answer wrongheaded speech," Phelps said, "the kind that Mr. Phelps dishes out on a regular basis, with more speech, better speech, not with less speech," said Dick Kurtenbach, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Kansas and Western Missouri.

But Phelps' tactics have drawn the condemnation even of conservatives, including a leading member of his own denomination.

"Lord knows there's something that needs to be done, but personally I wouldn't think that adding to anyone's grief or sorrow at a funeral would be the right approach," said Elder W. H. Cayce, a Primitive Baptist pastor in Thornton, Ark., and publisher of The Primitive Baptist newsletter.

Phelps said the only reason he hasn't picketed a funeral since the Kansas law was enacted is that, except for one person who didn't have a funeral, "Kansas papers have not glorified a single fag" since then.

But he said he's eager to test the laws in court and shrugs off the suffering he may inflict on mourners.

"Do 'em a world of good, this preaching," he said.

Tribe loses finale

ZEPHYRHILLS — Despite losing just one game, the Seminole High School was denied the championship of the Zephyrhills Invitational Baseball Tournament Wednesday night.

The Tribe had advanced to the finals undefeated, knocking off state ranked teams Florida High and Maclay from Tallahassee. But Florida (15-3), ranked 6th in Class 2A, battled back to reach the finals and took advantage of a depleted SHS pitching staff to win 7-4.

Seminole junior Todd Braden took the mound despite a sore throat, but had trouble with his control as Florida High built a 6-1 lead after three innings. Matt Diemer came on to allow only one run over the final four-plus innings.

The Tribe (10-3) will return to action Monday.

Bulldogs, starting at 4 p.m.
Matt Freeman (2-for-4, double, RBI), Phillip King (2-for-3, RBI) and David Eckstein (1-for-3, RBI) did the damage for Seminole.

Greyhounds fall in 11th inning

By TONY DESORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — All season long, the Lyman High School baseball team has been looking for some solid pitching.

On Thursday, the Greyhounds got it and squandered it.

Freshman starter Jason Dickey and reliever Chad Beland combined to allow just two runs (one earned) over nine innings. The effort went for naught as the visiting Spruce Creek Hawks pulled out a 6-2 victory in 11 innings.

"We had opportunities to win the game and we didn't take advantage of them," said Lyman coach Bob McCullough. "We just couldn't get a hit when we needed one. Our pitching was adequate and our fielding was adequate. We just didn't hit."

Some of the credit for that must go to Spruce Creek starting pitcher Justin Learn, who gave up two runs on seven hits through 10 innings to earn the win. Jared Mathis pitched the 11th inning for the Hawks.

Spruce Creek took a 1-0 lead with an unearned run in the second inning. Wayne Longstreet reached on a two-base error, went to second on David Sipos' single and scored when Sipos' hit was misplayed by the Lyman outfield.

Mathis increased the lead to 2-0 when he took a Dickey pitch over the left field wall to open the fourth inning.

Lyman tied the score in the bottom of the fourth inning. Ted Koller and Kevin Stuckey started things with back-to-back singles. After Koller took third on Beland's fly ball to center field, Stuckey stole second.

An out later, Mark Thelsen sliced a drive past the Spruce Creek left fielder for a triple, scoring Koller and Stuckey.

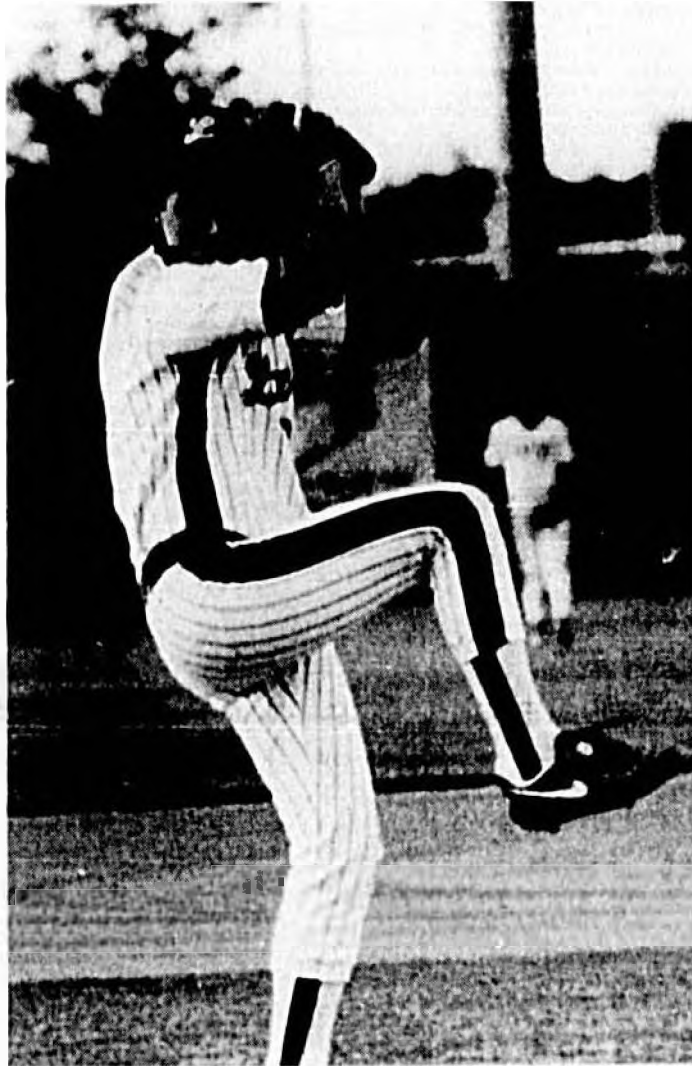

From then on, the pitchers took over.

After Thelsen's triple, Learn retired 18 of the next 21 batters. And one of the three Lyman hitters to reach base during that stretch was erased trying to steal second.

While Dickey and Beland weren't quite as dominating, they were just as effective. Dickey gave up a pair of singles following Mathis' home run, but was helped out of the inning when his teammates turned a double play.

When Dickey gave up a one-out single in the fifth inning, McCullough brought in Beland.

Normally the Greyhounds' short reliever out of the bullpen, Beland labored 4 2/3 innings. He gave up at least

Red-hot Raiders second in M-FC

From Staff Reports

GAINESVILLE — Life on the road seems to suit the Seminole Community College baseball team.

The Raiders continued to swing hot bats Thursday afternoon, collecting 13 hits in crushing homestanding Santa Fe Community College 11-1 in eight innings in a Mid-Florida Conference contest in Gainesville.

The win was the sixth straight M-FC win for SCC and the second major road victory in as many days. The Raiders ripped 22 hits in pounding Lake City Community College 15-8 on Wednesday.

The victory, coupled with conference-leading Florida Community College at Jacksonville's 9-2 triumph over Lake City, gives SCC sole possession of second place in the MFC. FCC-J is now 14-4, the Raiders 12-6, Lake City 11-7 and Santa Fe 11-8 in the conference standings.

SCC (21-14) will host Edison Community College from Fort Myers in a 3 p.m. non-conference game at Raider Field this afternoon before taking off for the Easter Holiday.

Almost lost in the excitement of the victory was the performance of Robert Franklin, who won his 10th game against only two defeats.

The sophomore righthander from Scranton, Pa. gave up the run in the first inning on a lead-off double to Brian Spivey and two ground outs, but was virtually untouchable after that.

Franklin was not his usual overpowering best, striking out only three, but he retired the Saints in order in three of the last five innings he pitched and only allowed one more runner to reach third base.

Offensively, the top part of the SCC order was outstanding. Leadoff man Rick Eckstein from Sanford was on base four times and scored three runs, while the No. 2 man in the order, Spruce Creek's Isaac Cruz, was on base all five times he came to the plate and scored four times.

The main beneficiaries of the top two hitters' heroics were Oviedo's B.J. Calapa and cleanup batter Ray Hagar, who combined for six RBI.

The Raiders scored a pair of runs in the first inning on a single by Eckstein, a triple by Cruz and a ground out and added three more in the third inning on a two-run double by Ray Hagar and a two base throwing error.

SCC added single runs in the fourth and fifth inning, before Calapa unloaded a three-run home run, his fifth of the season and third this month, in the sixth inning. The locals then ended the game by the 10-run rule with a run in the eighth.

Contributing to the Raiders' attack were Cruz (2-for-2, triple, three walks, four runs scored, RBI), Eckstein (2-for-3, double, two walks, three runs, RBI), Sanford's Demetry Beamon (two singles, run, RBI), Randy Hagar (two singles, run), Oviedo's Erik Jordan (two singles, RBI), Calapa (home run, run, four RBI), Ray Hagar (double, run, RBI) and New Smyrna's Johnny Goodrich (single).

MELBOURNE — Considering they are on their spring break, you can't really blame the Lyman High School softball team for taking it easy and enjoying a beautiful spring afternoon Thursday.

Luckily, they got away with it.

After scoring three runs on three hits in the top of the first inning, the Greyhounds put the bats away and went into cruise control, collecting just two more hits in a 3-0 win over Melbourne Central Catholic.

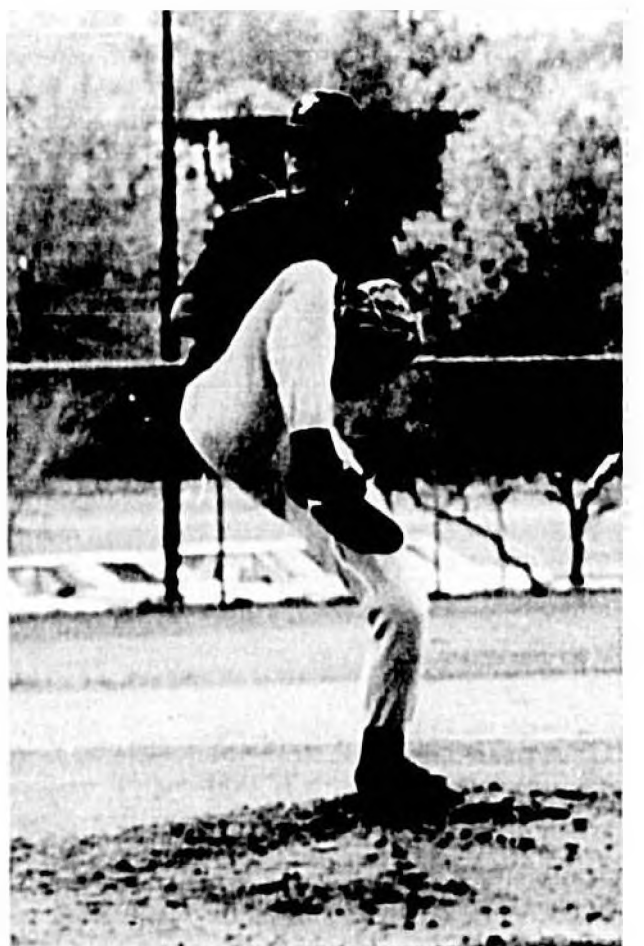

"It was ugly," summed up Tibbitts succinctly. "We scored three runs in the top of the first inning and just stopped."

While the Greyhounds did quit hitting the ball, they did a fine job of fielding it, turning in an errorless performance behind pitcher Jennifer Forston's six-hit shutout.

The bulk of Lyman's offensive support was generated by five of the first six hitters in the game. With one out, Jodi Beland and Forston singled before Jamie Beland reached on an error to load the bases.

Stacey Ritter then singled in Jodi Beland and Forston with Jamie Beland.

Spring cleaning is in the air

Beware of house dust, an enemy of good health

Spring conjures up many wonderful images in my mind. The not-so-pretty side of spring is cleaning!

Allergies and your home — keeping sneezing under control — for some people, house dust is merely an annoying reminder that it's time to do some cleaning. For others, house dust is a health enemy that can cause sneezing, a runny nose, even chronic bronchitis and asthma.

Carpets, bedding and upholstered furniture are the favorite resting places for dust mites. Insects so small that 10 of them could fit on the period at the end of this sentence. According to information compiled by The Soap and Detergent Association, approximately one man or one woman in 10 is allergic to dust mites. Dust mites are the direct cause of allergies or they can irritate the membranes, increasing the severity of other types of allergies. Keeping the dust under control will help keep allergies under control.

To survive, mites require a certain level of moisture. Lowering the relative humidity to below 50 percent will help reduce their numbers. A double-filtered ventilator or an air conditioner, particularly in pollen season, may help. Be sure the clothes dryer is vented to the outdoors. Avoid humidifiers — they add extra moisture.

Use cleaning methods that remove the dust, not scatter it around: use a dusting cloth with a grainy texture.

Leather duster: A vacuum cleaner with an enclosed bag will stir up less dust.

Vacuum upholstered furniture, cushions, pillows and rugs at least twice weekly. Wall-to-wall carpets should be vacuumed more frequently. Choose window treatments that are easy to keep clean, like washable curtains and roller shades. Mattresses should be turned and vacuumed every few months. If pillows are not washable, put them in the dryer on the air cycle to eliminate the dust and fluff the pillows. All other bedding should be washed frequently.

Blanket care — spring cleaning in the bedroom — The approach of spring means it's time to clean and store winter's warming blankets.

For all blankets, read and follow the manufacturers' care label instructions, if available. Pre-treat any heavily soiled areas for spots. For best results, wash each blanket separately. When drying it may be necessary to periodically rearrange large blankets so they dry evenly.

Electric blankets should never be dry cleaned because the heat will melt the wiring.

Instead, machine wash them using a gentle cycle to avoid damaging the wires. Disconnect the control from the blanket and pin a corner of the blanket over the plug to protect it. Add laundry detergent to the wash water and allow it to briefly agitate until it's dissolved. Then stop the washer, add the blanket and allow it to soak for about 15 minutes. After soaking, agitate the blanket for about two minutes, then start the washer and complete the wash cycle. Do not dryer dry unless the care label recommends it. Instead, hang the blanket over two lines or lay it flat to dry.

Non-woven blankets comprised of synthetic fibers that are pressed together and heat bonded should be machine washed using the gentle cycle. Use a high level and warm water setting. Air dry.

A Vellux blanket is a specific type of non-woven blanket with synthetic fibers bonded by adhesives to a foam base and requires some additional care. Use warm water, a gentle setting and a short agitation time (five to eight minutes). Tumble dry on low heat.

For wool blanket, machine wash in cold water on the gentle cycle.

Blankets made from heat-sensitive synthetic fibers, such as modacrylic, Saran and PVC, should be machine washed in cold water and tumble dried on a low temperature.

Mom dies alone for failure to carry full ID

DEAR ABBY: Several weeks ago, I lost my mother. She was the victim of a traffic accident. Her sudden death stunned our family. The worst part of it is that she lay in the trauma center — only a few miles away — and we didn't learn of the accident until she had been dead for several hours. She had a personal ID card with her, but nothing to specify whom to call in case of an emergency.

I refer to people who drive to work... to joggers, walkers, bicyclists. Mom, sew a little name tag in your son's shirt before you send him off to school. Grandpa, carry an emergency notification card in your pants pocket, even if you're only going down to the corner to pick up a newspaper. If, God forbid, something happens to you (a stroke or heart attack), the emergency room staff will be able to summon you, so you won't be alone. And those who love you won't be denied the chance to be there with you when you most need them.

MARGARET'S DAUGHTER

DEAR MARGARET: Thank you for reminding me to remind my readers to always carry the name (or names) of next of kin or a person to contact in case something happens to you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both in our mid-30s. During the last few years, as I have become aware of health-related risks, I've tried to make changes in our diets, for our sake as well as the future of our two small children.

I am genetically predisposed to heart disease, so I try to pay attention to what I eat, and I force myself to exercise regularly.

My husband, on the other hand, is predisposed to cancer. Both parents have had cancer and other relatives have either had cancer, or have died of it.

My problem is that when I try to eat only healthful foods in the house or mention that something he is eating too much of is not good for a person with cancer risks, he gets very defensive and tells me to quit nagging him.

Abby, I can't help it. I just want him around as long as possible. What can I do?

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

A CARING WIFE

DEAR CARING WIFE: I know you have your husband's best interests at heart, but please stop nagging him. He knows what's good (and bad) for him, and constantly reminding him that he's at risk for cancer won't do his health any good either.

DEAR ABBY: There seems to be a question regarding couples living together before marriage.

I am an associate professor at San Diego Mesa College, and the experience of two of my students proves that living together is no guarantee of a successful marriage.

This pair had lived happily together for several years before they got married. After the marriage, the young woman was miserable. Her husband, you see, had different expectations of her role as a wife than he had of her role as a mistress.

ROGER A. GEE

YOUR CHUCKLE FOR TODAY: A schoolteacher asked her students to name the two books that have helped them the most. One bright pupil roared, "My mother's cookbook and my father's checkbook."

Addiction to a substance comes in different forms

DEAR MARY: I'm tired of the negative slurs and joking "put downs" I'm getting about being a nicotine addict. I smoke because I like it and it helps me keep my weight down. I'm certainly not going to "graduate" onto heroin or cocaine because I smoke. I guess I don't know what an addict really is, but I have this image of a street person stumbling around begging for money which they say they need for food, but then use for drugs or alcohol. Maybe that's too extreme, but I certainly don't consider myself an addict because I smoke a pack of cigarettes a day.

Don't bother giving me the quick lecture on why I should stop smoking; just tell me what you really mean when you say someone has an addiction.

NOT AN ADDICT
DEAR NOT: No lectures, just the facts: these are some characteristics of a person who is addicted to a substance:

• The person is compelled to use more and more of the substance, even though this heavy use has serious side effects or disrupts their lifestyle and relationships.

• The person is pre-occupied with getting the substance and may give it higher priority than food, paying the rent, or other basic necessities. Perhaps they stop for a few days or even weeks, but eventually the irresistible urge draws them back to it.

Perhaps it is more accurate to describe your use of cigarettes as a chemical dependency. Simply put, you will get unpleasant physical and psychological effects from not having the drug, nicotine.

When we talk about chemical dependency, we may mean anything from a full-blown alcoholic or crack addict to the high school kid who drinks a wine cooler on the way to school. My feeling is that smoking a pack of cigarettes a day is a form of addiction, but is still within our cultural norms. It is just as correct to say that a smoker is dependent on cigarettes for feelings of well-being.

Medication controls symptoms of gout

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've suffered for several years from gout. My former doctor who passed away had me on Clinoril. My new one has me on colchicine. I also take allopurinol twice daily. In spite of the medication, for the past several months I've suffered from shooting pains about my toes, with a burning sensation up my leg. Why am I having such pain when I'm on medication?

DEAR READER: You may need some fine-tuning of your medication doses. How well your gout is controlled can be monitored by a blood test that measures uric acid. If you're being treated optimally, you should be symptom-free and the uric acid level will be normal.

If you're having pain and the uric acid level is high, you should take more allopurinol, a drug that prevents gout by interfering with the production of uric acid. Ask your doctor about this. Incidentally, colchicine is used to treat acute attacks of gout, and would be appropriate for you, if necessary.

I am sending you a free copy of my Health report "About Gout." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 27-year-old female who suffers from MS. I've recently been told that I have livedo reticularis. Please define the condition and advise any available treatment.

DEAR READER: Livedo reticularis is a discoloration of the skin, marked by a reddish-blue mottling, often caused by exposure to cold or by certain diseases, such as polyarteritis (vascular inflammation). It is not ordinarily a consequence of multiple sclerosis - unless you are bedridden, in which case the discoloration may be secondary to the pressure of lying in certain positions.

To my knowledge, there is no specific treatment for livedo. However, you should ask your doctor about treatment that would be advisable in your case.

BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

The British comedy team of Eric Morecambe and Ernie Wise used a two-liner based on the honors awarded by the queen.

"My name is Colonel Napoleon Davenport, D.S.O., M.C., O.B.E." "That's a funny way to spell 'Davenport.'"

In today's deal, as in yesterday's, a defender must play a king at the right moment to defeat three no-trump.

East's three-heart overall put South in an awkward position. He wanted to show his diamond suit, but that would carry the bidding above three no-trump. Hoping for the best, he settled for the no-trump game.

West led the heart nine: five, 10, four. East continued with the heart jack. By playing his lowest possible cards, East was trying to tell his partner that his only chance of an entry was in clubs:

the lowest-ranking of the suits. However, West was oblivious.

South played a diamond to dummy's king and a diamond to his ace, but East's spade discard killed that plan. Next South cashed the club ace. Unthinkingly, West played his eight, not the king.

Gratefully, South continued with another club, establishing dummy's suit and coming home with his contract.

If West unblocks his club king under the ace, East must get on play with the jack and cash all his heart winners. True, unblocking the king might cost a trick, but it could only be an overtrick: a small price to pay for trying to defeat a game.

Finally, note that if South leads a low club on the first round of the suit, West must play his eight, not the king. He must save the king to be guillotined by the ace.

My Bernice Bode Cool YOUR BIRTHDAY

April 10, 1993

Clarify your objectives in the year ahead, or else you might waste time achieving things that yield hollow victories. Focus on goals of significance that offer substantial rewards.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Occasionally challenging situations are stimulating, but today it might be wise to avoid competitive events. Your ego may not be able to handle second place. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If a friend tells you something in confidence today, make every effort not to reveal his or her secret. If you yield to temptation and do so, this could jeopardize the relationship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be wary today if you have to do business with a person whose reputation is suspect. Don't take verbal statements for granted. Have important commitments put in writing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is a chance today that you might be unduly influenced by someone who might not have your best interests at heart. This person has led you astray in the past.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is one of those days when you might be a better rationalizer than you are a producer. Don't make excuses for why things shouldn't be done; make things happen instead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In fun and competitive social involvements today your ego might tempt you to bend the rules in your favor a bit in order to come out on top. Don't yield.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to appease a person whom you'll be dealing with today, you might make a commitment that you'll have no intention of fulfilling. Unfortunately, this could be a bad move.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If someone is performing work or service for you today and you're displeased with his or her efforts, let this person know how you feel. Don't pretend otherwise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Involvement in expensive endeavors today is no guarantee that you'll have a good time. In fact, you might not receive equal value for what you spend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your chances for success look good today, provided you are properly motivated. In situations where you're not totally committed to what you're doing, the results could be sketchy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today, you might put more credence in your hunches and perceptions than you should. To be on the safe side, place faith in your logical, provable assessments.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The company you keep today could have a strong influence on your prudence. If your pals are big spenders there's a chance you'll match them or, worse yet, waste more than they do.

Leased car ads to change

By HILARY APPELMAN
AP Business Writer

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — The fine print on long-term car leases is about to get a little clearer. Six automobile distributors and dealer associations have agreed to stop burying the total cost of leasing a car in tiny print at the bottom of their advertisements. New York state Attorney General Robert Abrams said Thursday.

Abrams predicted the settlement will affect consumers across the country. About 20 percent of all new cars delivered in the United States last year were leased, he said at a news conference. Abrams displayed as an example of misleading advertising a Honda ad promoting a car lease at $5 a day, or $149 a month for two years. Small type at the bottom of the ad said the offer involved a down payment of $2,750. "That's not cricket," Abrams said.

Abrams said the problem was even worse in TV commercials, where the down payment is not only in small type but is flashed briefly on the screen. The auto companies have agreed to put information about the down payment in larger type, nearer to the monthly rate offer, he said. They did not admit violating any laws. Each company paid the attorney general's office $9,000 toward the cost of the investigation. Officials from auto companies did not immediately return phone calls.

SCRANTON, Pa. — The owner of the cemetery where Hilary Rodham Clinton's father will be buried offered to help volunteers spruce up the city for the first family's visit — but authorities won't let him out of jail.

John Rogan wanted to be released from the jail where he's serving time for stealing money set aside to maintain the cemetery. He also wants to meet President Clinton.

"Nobody felt it was in the interest of justice to look at that kind of deal," said J.P. McGowan, who helped prosecute Rogan through the state attorney general's consumer protection office.

"We're not going to be blackmailed," Scranton Mayor Jim Connors said. Hugh Rodham, 82, died Wednesday nearly three weeks after suffering a stroke. The retired Chicago-area businessman was raised in Scranton and bought a plot in the cemetery in 1952.

Mrs. Clinton, 45, was the eldest of three children of Rodham and his wife, Dorothy. The Washburn Street Cemetery, a six-square-block plot west of downtown, had fallen into serious disrepair under Rogan, who was convicted last year of stealing more than $200,000 committed to care for the grounds.

Tombstones had been knocked over, 12-inch ruts potted the roads, grass was unkempt and electric wires were exposed.

Rodham's father, Hugh, and mother, Hannah, are buried there. So is Willard, his brother, and Rodham is to be buried there Saturday.

"It's a shame that this guy's last wish is to be buried in the family plot and it's like this. It's a shame for all these families," said the Rev. Joseph McIntyre, a Roman Catholic priest from St. Ann's monastery, which sent over its youth group to help clean up. "I'm delighted it's being cleaned up, but not this way," said Lorayne Tallo, erecting a cross at the grave of her grandparents Friday.

Rogan "is sitting in jail instead of down here with a

"Take in his hand," she said. Rogan declined an interview request. The Associated Press submitted through Lackawanna County Jail authorities.

Connors said Rogan will reimburse the city for up to $3,500 in cleaning costs. He couldn't immediately say Thursday how much time Rogan has left on his jail sentence.

Meanwhile, the city prepared for the first family's visit. City crews patched up roads near the Court Street United Methodist Church, where Rodham was baptized and confirmed and where his funeral will take place Saturday before his burial. His three children were also baptized at the church.

"We're going to have the world's attention here," Connors said. "We want the city to look nice."

But the Rev. Jeff Hale wasn't ready to accommodate the world. "The church will seat 250 comfortably," said Hale — and he didn't mean that as an invitation.
