Lake Mary Thumbs Nose At Sanford

By Donna Estes Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary City Commissioners voted 2-1 Thursday night to ignore a Sanford imposed restriction on the number of homes it can connect to the city's water

Lake Mary currently is dependent on the city of Sanford for its water supply.

City Commissioner Ray Fox was obviously angry at the Sanford City Commission's action 10 days ago attempting to limit the water supply to Lake Mary at its number of connections permitted as of July 1 plus 10 percent for growth. He first made a motion instructing preparation of a resolution directed to the St. Johns River Water Management District and the state Department of the service and the city will Environmental Regulation noting that Lake Mary "stands foursquare against the continued pumping of effluent into Lake Monroe, thus polluting Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River and its tributaries to the north." ble water supply. "In the interim, (Lake Mary will) continue to provide water hookups to residences desiring establish an impact fee immediately," Fox's motion said.

Fox continued, "The city of Lake Mary entered into a contract with the city of Sanford to supply water. This contract has no expiration date and no restrictions limiting hook-ups. If the Sanford City Commission chooses to be led by the nose by a hired employee, that is certainly their perogative. However, the Lake Mary City Commission will not be intimidated by sabrerattling. 'No Love Lost' Sanford Mayor Says Couldn't Care Less If SCA Group Folds

There is no love lost between the city of Sanford and Seminole Community Action," Knowles said. Knowles asked to speak when Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Lee Constantine, council chairman and a past president of the anti-poverty agency, urged city officials throughout Seminole to consider naming either elected or appointed officials to the SCA board of directors.

Constantine said that the agency must have six representatives from mental units on the board and currently only two of the 18-member board fill this category. Those are the School Board represented by Eddle Tossic, a long time board member, and Casselberry Councilman John Leighty.

Constantine said SCA has many programs that benefit the poor and underprivileged in the county including the Head Start program, food bank, community cannery, home modernization and

The Altamonte commissioner noted that he served three years on the SCA board including one year as president of the organization.

Knowles said that 12 civil rights actions have been lodged against the city of Sanford over the years and 11 of those were filed by SCA. All 11 have been dismissed as unfounded or for a variety of reasons and most were filed to harass the city, he charged.

"Mayor Moore wanted it known that he feels it is not right for a representative of government to serve on the board of an agency that brings actions against that government," Knowles said.

He urged the members of the council to read auditors comments about SCA. "That could be very enlightening." he SCA has been under fire for some time by federal authorities and now by state authorities over various charges ranging from complaints about discrimination by white teachers in the Head Start program to its record keeping.

Funding approval for the program has been shifted among other social programs from the federal government to the state government.

Rev. Amos Jones, SCA's executive director, has said he believes that the problems with state officials can be worked out when a full explanation is given and when it is shown that record keeping problems have been corrected.

Constantine, responding to Knowles' statements, said he could not disagree that a person at SCA seemed to have a personal vendetta against the city of Sanford, but that person is no longer employed by SCA.

Constantine said that the public sector might have a better relationship with SCA if the agency had the required six representatives on its board of directors.

Knowles said to the contrary, one will find that board members from the public sector have little to do with decisions

Constantine said he promised Jones that he would encourage appointments by the citles to the SCA board of directors, except for the city of Sanford and from county government. He said he told Jones to look to the governing bodies there himself for appointees.

Longwood Mayor June Lormann said It is difficult to get elected or appointed officials to go to an additional evening meeting and perhaps if the SCA meetings were held during the daytime and at a location other than the SCA office on Pine Street in Sanford, it would be easier to find someone with the time to serve. Constantine noted that the majority of those served by SCA live in the Sanford area, the Oviedo area and the Winwood area just outside Altamonte Springs.

He said that the SCA board is supposed to be composed of six representatives from the public section, six from the business or civic community and six from the areas served.

Ultimatum Water Woes Plague Idyllwilde After Years Of State Warnings

By Micheal Boha Herald Staff Writer

A state inspection of water lines in the Idyliwilde area near Sanford reveals that a seven-year-old problem with low levels of chlorine and high levels of hydrogen sulfide in the water still exists.

The chemicals pose no health threat to water users, according to the Department of Environmental Regulation, which did the study. They can, however, affect the water's taste and odor, said Frank Hottner of the DER's Orlando office. Bacteria tests show the water meets state and federal health standards in that regard.

The water lines are owned by Utilities Inc. of Plorida, Altamonte Springs. The company has been given until July 20 to respond to the DER Andings.

Hottner said a June 24 inspection at two houses served by Utilities inc., which has about 200 water connections in Ravena Park, west of Sanford, revealed the low chlorine and high hydrogen sulfide levels. Hottner said a letter has been sent to the utility providing 15 days for a Hottner said the low chlorine levels could be corrected by more frequent flushing of the system.

The DER inspection came about in response to complaints from several users of the system.

Utility officials initially felt a faulty chlorinator at a booster station was responsible for the low levels of chlorine found in the lines. But the problem continued after the chlorinator was repaired.

DER officials said last week that several of the complaints came from residents who were served by dead-end lines. Because of the dead-end lines chemicals weren't able to circulate properly in the system, they said.

Hottner said the lines have not been flushed frequently enough to ensure proper chlorination.

Tests at 200 Idyllwilde Ave., and 308 idyliwilde, revealed a chlorine level of .5 parts chlorine per million parts of water, lower than normal but higher than the state minimum of .2 parts per million.

Hottner said DER officials will continue to monitor the water quality in the Utilities Inc. service area. If no progress is made toward correcting the problems within 60 days, he said, the case will be turned over to DER's enforcement

IN BRIEF

Weinberger Wants Missile Based On Federal Land

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has told the Air Force he prefers basing a new single-warhead nuclear missile aboard blast-hardened trucks that could stay on government-owned land, an Air Force official says.

The cost: $70 billion over the next 10 years. Together with the MX missile currently under development, it would mean expenditures of 890 billion for the two intercontinental range weapons - about a third of the entire present defense budget.

Brig. Gen. Gordon Fornell indicated Thursday Weinberger prefers keeping the missile, dubbed Midgetman, on Pentagon-owned land to avoid the kind of political problems encountered during the drawn-out controversy over where to base the MX missile.

Gas To Hit $1.75 A Gallon

DETROIT (UPI) - A major survey of auto industry leaders predicts unleaded gasoline in 1990 will cost $1.75 a gallon — far less than the $3 a gallon price they had forecast just two vears ago.

The Delphi III study unveiled Thursdy by Arthur Andersen and Co., an international consulting firm. The study predicted gasoline prices will increase about 5 cents a gallon annually to a high of $1.75 for unleaded fuel by 1990 - far lower than the $3 per gallon prediction they made in the 1981 study.

Participants said auto fuel economy will increase to about 35 miles per gallon in 1992. In the 1981 survey, they predicted the companies would reach that mark by 1990.

NATIONAL-REPORT: Lightning-sparked brush fires plagued the West and Northwest today while warmer air moved into the East after days of Canadian chill that set record lows from St. Louis to Atlantic City. Another hot, windy day with more lightning was expected for the areas hit by brush fires. "Hot and windy would be a good description for the mountains," said Rick Cundy of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo. "Probably what you'll see overall is an instant replay of Thursday - fairly windy and hot conditions and scattered thundershowers in the afternoon producing as many fires as they help to put out. "What makes it especialy bad is how wet it was last winter. A lot of grass developed" and helped spread the fires over more than 200,000 acres. Cundy said. A combined dust storm and thunderstorm in Arizona Thursday evening caused brief power outages around Phoenix and forced the pilot of a small plane to land in a Scottsdale field. A tornado touched down southwest of Loveland in northern Colorado, and a funnel cloud was sighted southeast of Portland, Ore. Thunderstorm winds reached early 60 mph at Bozeman, Mont. Thunderstorms in Florida spun off a small tornado at Laurel, about 20 miles south of Sarasota. Eight brush fires in Utah blackened more than 160,000 acres Thursday, and lightning-sparked fires burned over about 55,000 acres of sagebrush in southern Idaho. Other fires burned over 1,000 acres in Montana, 900 acres of sagebrush and juniper trees in Oregon, and 800 acres of privately owned timber in Wyoming near the South Dakota line.

Jobless Rate Slips Again

By Drew Von Bergen UPI Labor Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The nation's unemployment rate dropped for the fourth straight month in June to 10 percent, the lowest point since last August, the Labor Department reported today.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said the June survev reflected a decline of one-tenth of 1 percent in the Jobless rate from May's 10.1 percent level in data adjusted for seasonal factors.

It was the fourth consecutive month that the rate has dropped by one-tenth of 1 percent.

The bureau attributed the continuing decline primarily to a substantial drop in the jobless rate for adult men, especially those in the mining, construction and durable goods manufacturing fields. The rate for adult men fell from 9.6 percent in May to 9 percent in June.

An alternative unemployment rate that includes 1.7 million members of the Armed Forces as part of the work force, dropped from May's 10 percent level to 9.8 percent in June. The number of unemployed people fell by only 45,000 over the month to 11,146,000 in June.

The department said that along with the declining unemployment. there was also a continued decrease in the number of persons working part time because of reduced hours or inability to find a full-time lob.

The number of people working part time for economic reasons fell by 200,000 to 5.7 million, and was 700,000 below last December's

Total employment increased by 1.2 million during June to 100,786,000, as the civilian labor force was swelled by a large number of youths who finished school for the year.

Schools Focus On Training Teachers

By Donna Estes Herald Staff Writer

A Seminole County educator is complaining that the public school system has been turned into a training ground for new teachers because of one state law and the repeal of another which has the effect of keeping poor teachers in the classroom longer.

Lyman High School Principal Carlton Henley told county legislative delegation members Sen. Toni Jennings and Rep. Carl Selph earlier this week that state law requires graduate teachers to be trained for one year in the classroom before they are state certified.

"Now our main emphasis is training teachers rather than teaching children," Henley groused, adding that this should not be the school system's job. He also complained about the repeal of the Florida teacher tenure law. He said under the old tenure law, he could get rid of a poor teacher with six weeks notice. Now, notice plus the six weeks. And years and they are going to school during that time he must determine how a teacher can improve and advise him or her of the needed changes. All the while, however, a deficient teacher remains in the classroom and the information that the teacher may be fired cannot be shared with parents whose children he is instructing.

Henley, School Superintendent Bob Hughes, and assistant superintendents Dan Dagg and Roger Harris met with the legislators at their request to discuss needs of the Seminole County public school system.

The legislators were told that more students than ever are taking advantage of summer school. Dagg sald some 5,000 of the county's 37,000 teachers are registered for classes at various schools in the county.

Asked if students are attending summer school because it is easier, Henley said he feels one reason is that summer jobs are not as readily he said, the law requires a year's available for students as in past to combat boredom in some cases and in others to make up classes or to get ahead.

Miss Jennings asked for the administrators' views on merit pay raises and Hughes said he feels the local school board is open-minded on the concept as long as it is not an idea that is pushed in heu of pay raises for teachers.

When Selph and Jennings pointed to test scores on graduate record exams as one method of determining which teachers should be given merit pay raises. Henley said GRE scores do not correlate necessarily to excellence in the classroom. "Test scores cannot replace judgment and observation," he said.

Hughes said he is interested in requiring additional academic requirements and a higher grade point average for high school graduates. Currently a high school student can graduate if he has a 1.5 grade point average, roughly equivalent to a D + or a C.

13 Remain At Large In Pot Smuggling Case

EVERGLADES CITY (UPI) - Federal agents are still searching this bucolic fishing village today for 13 people - including a former Florida Supreme Court Justice - believed to be part of an international marijuana smuggling ring.

More than 200 federal agents staged a pre-dawn raid on the village Thursday, arresting 23 people believed to be part of the ring. Federal agents early today were still scarching for 13 others, among them former Florida Supreme Court Justice David McCain, who is already a federal fugitive on drug charges. McCain was charged along with seven other people wih conspiring to import a load of marijuana into the Everglades City area Feb. 25.

The 23 arrested in Collier County were among 41 people charged with conspiracy and marijuana smuggling in 10 federal indictments made public Thursday by U.S. Attorney Stanley Marcus.

The arrests were part of a two-year undercover sting dubbed "Operation Everglades" that has already resulted in 149 arrests and the seizure of $179 million worth of marijuana, federal drug

Spurned Drug Sellers Attack Car; Passenger Hurt

An Altamonte Springs man suffered a cut arm when a group of youths threw rocks and bottles at a car in which he was riding after he and the driver had reportedly refused an offer to buy drugs.

The incident began at 4:42 p.m. Friday when the youths asked two men who were driving in a car on North Street near Marker Street if they wanted to buy some marijuana. Altamonte Springs police said.

When the men said "no", the youths began pelting the car, damaging the windshield and a door and injuring the arm of Brad P. Wilke, 20, of 126 Hamlin Lane, police said.

Wilke was treated at Florida North Hospital in Altamonte Springs and released. The driver of the car, Kevin A. Mann, 17, of 100 Orange Blossom Circle, Altamonte Springs, was not injured, according to a police report. No arrests were made.

Nuclear-Free Zone Okay, But...

Island paradises in the Pacific have suffered more nuclear devastation than any other area on earth, except Japan.

U.S. atmospheric and underwater atomic bomb tests in the Pacific have made some islands uninhabitable. Under the terms of the Limited Test Ban Treaty of 1963, America and Britain stopped open-air and underwater tests and halted their nuclear test programs in the South Pacific. Underground tests for both nations are now conducted in Nevada.

France refused to sign the treaty and continues to explode nuclear devices in the South Pacific. France stopped atmospheric nuclear testing after losing a case brought by Australia before the international court at The Hague. But instead of halting all nuclear testing in the Pacific, as Alistralia hoped, France only took its nuclear testing program underground.

On May 26, a 70-kiloton explosion - 31/2 the kilotons of the Hiroshima bomb — was set off in Mururoa, an atoll southeast of Tahiti.

The blast triggered an angry response from the South Pacific nations. Australian Prime Minister Robert J. Hawke conveyed his "total opposition" to French testing in June meetings with French President Francois Mitterrand.

Australian Foreign Minister Bill Hayden was less diplomatic: "If they're determined to test these things, then let them test the damned things in the Atlantic, Mediterranean or mainland France. Let them keep out of our back yard."

Back yard is an exaggeration: Mururoa is about 5.000 miles east of the Pacific coast of Australia. But Australia is speaking up for the South Pacific Forum, a group of 12 small South Pacific island nations that includes New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, West Samoa, and Fifi.

These nations feel threatened by the effects of nuclear testing and by the dangers of nuclear waste dumping. They want both halted. They want a nuclear-free zone to be created in the South Pacific region.

France resents the interference in its nuclear testing program. France maintains a nuclear strike force, the force de frappe, that is a separate but vital part of the delense of Western Europe. It must not be compromised.

Britain tests its nuclear weapons in Nevada. Since 1962, it has detonated 15 nuclear devices at the underground test site in Nevada.

France no longer has a major role in the defense of the South Pacific. It must accept the responsibility for its testing elsewhere. A new site outside the South Pacific can and must be found. The United States should offer the Nevada test site, if France can find no other. And France should stop being a nuclear renegade and join the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain in signing the limited Test Ban Treaty and the Nuclear Non-proliferation

The pacific Forum is convening in August to determine the geographic scope and political dontent of the nuclear-free zone proposal. It is not known yet whether it will include islands where the U.S. Navy stockpiles nuclear weapons.

The concern here is whether a nuclear-free zone could be compatible with U.S. nuclear defense of Hawke thinks it can be. In the Australian House f Representatives, Hawke said: "I raised with ecretary (of Defense) Weinberger, very pedifically, the commitment of my government to ry to sponsor moves toward the establishment of nuclear-free zone in the South Pacific. I pointed ut that we ... were concerned both with nuclear esting in the area and also ... possible dumping of uclear waste in that area. I pointed out that our oncern and a regard to these matters did not involve any inhibitions on the movement in such a one of U.S. nuclear-powered vessels or their ights of international air transit."

There must be a further stipulation. That a nuclear-free zone not inhibit the U.S. military from tockpiling of weapons in forward Pacific bases.

With that proviso, we support the right of the South Pacific nations to create a nuclear-free zone. Nuclear testing in Mururoa must halt. Nuclear damping should never be allowed in the South Pacific.

We look forward to the day when the Pacific allies work together to maintain their defense and protect paradise from nuclear devastation.

Whether you are under six and are looking for a way to burn up that excess energy or over 55 and want to get in practice for Sanford's annual Golden Age Games, you will find an event to enter at the third annual Lake Mary Summer Age Group Track Meet. It is also an excellent place for would-be school athletes to test their prowess and keep in shape.

The event will be held on five consecutive Mondays beginning July 11 and continuing through August 8 at the Lake Mary High School track complex on Longwood-Lake Mary Road.

Age groups are 6 and under; 7.8; 9-10; 11-12; 13-14; 5-16; 17-18; 19-19; 30-39; 40-49; and 50 and over. Ribbons are given to the first, second and third place winners in each age group.

Field events at 5 p.m. include shot put, discus throw, high jump, and long jump. Running events at 6:30 p.m. will be the 40-yard dash, 60-yard hurdles, 100-yard dash, the mile, 440-yard dash; 880-yard run, 220-yard dash, and the two-mile run.

The entry fee for one to two events will be 50 cents, and for three to five events,

A Subordinate Shrine of the Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem will be organized at 2 p.m. on July 17 at the South Seminole Masonic Temple across from the Casselberry City Hall on Lake Triplet Drive. If at least 50 applicants are present, an election of officers will be held and a name will be selected fo the new

For petitions or additional information on becoming a member of the new Subordinate Shrine, call 831-6513.

Free blood pressure checks are available to the public from the Longwood firemen at the fire station located on West Warren Avenue west of City Hall.

The 42nd Infantry (Rainbow) Division Veterans Association composed of vetarans who served in the division during World Wars I or II, will hold its 65th Annual Reunion July 11-14 at the North Park Inn, 9300 N. Central Expressway at Park Lane, Dallas, Texas.

Members of the Baha'i Faith in Seminole County will hold a memorial service for the 16 latest victims of religious persecution in Iran this Saturday at 206 Lake Gene Drive in Longwood. The 16 men and women, including three teenage girls, were executed last week by hanging in spite of an appeal for clemency by President Reagan one month ago, local Baha'i spokeswoman Sherry Czerniejewski said. Their crime was teaching children of the Baha'l faith who are not allowed to attend school in Iran. The day is also the commemoration of the martyrdom of the Bab, one of the founders of the faith, who was killed by a firing squad on that date in 1850 in Tabriz, Iran.

JEFFREY HART Reagan, South

Speaking for the Reagan administration. Lawrence Eagleburger has made a strong speech condemning South Africa's racial policies as "immoral." He indicated that the administration would like to see the current system dis-

Fair enough. But after that has been sald, just what do you say next?

Surely the case of Zimbabwe (Rhodesia), directly to South Africa's north, does not provide an encouraging

There, after years of guerrilla warfare, the ruling whites gave in under international pressure, most importantly from London. Today the country is a oneparty dictatorship under Prime Minister Robert Mugabe, a Marxist. Mugabe, a member of the majority Mashona tribe, is kicking the tar out of the minority Zulus, who backed Joshua Nkomo. I suppose that is one definition of majori-

It is clear that violence is escalating in South Africa, and perhaps bombings by black nationalist groups will spread. The Reagan administration may possess information that this is very much in the offing.

But, of course, the whites are not the only minority in that tormented country. There is a large minority consisting of people of Indian and mixed blood, another "tribe" as it were, in African terms. Pure majority rule would certainly result in a black dictatorship, with the key posts given to black tribal majorities, at the expense of minority 'tribes," Indian, mixed and white.

If Mr. Eagleburger and the administration consider the present situation immoral, it is difficult to see that the alternative outlined above is much more moral.

No doubt any American administration would like to see some sort of peaceful evolution within South Africa which would give the black African majority enough power and wealth to preclude violent upheaval.

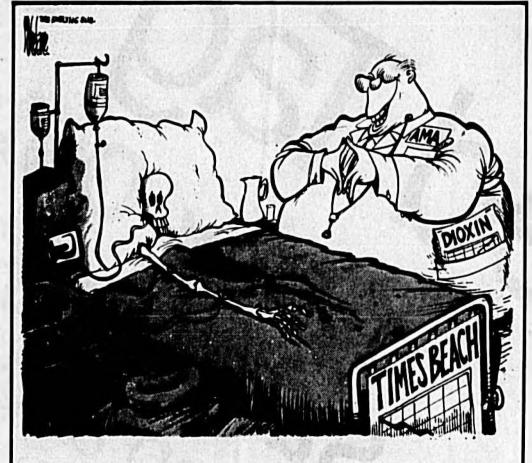

Just possibly, some sort of multichambered legislature could be devised. with adequate representation of the various racial and tribal groups. To achieve any such arrangement, the ruling whites would have to give up a great deal of what they now possess, including, very likely, a deep-water port under the management of the black majority.

I know of no one, knowledgeable about South Asica, who believes this to be likely. The wise Malcolm Muggeridge, who has spent a great deal of time in South Africa, believes that carnage is inevitable — a great collision between the black majority and the heavily armed, determined, and technologically advanced whites.

South African whites, many of whose families have been there for generations, do not view themselve as "settlers." They consider themselves "Africans." They cannot go back to Holland or England. Unlike the Rhodesian whites, most of whom arrived after World War II, they will stand and fight.

Most of the current discussion of South Africa is carried on in frivolous terms. Of course, much of apartheid is foolish and repellent, from separate drinking fountains to laws against inter-marriage.

But the real question is what large arrangements can accommodate the historical realities of that country.

'Great news! Your tests are back and it's all in your head!'

listening to the breast-beating of former opponents who have at last seen the error of their ways. I know that there is more joy in heaven over one sinner saved than over 99 whose souls were never in doubt: I can even understand why. But I do admit to wishing, every now and then, that these regenerate spirits had come to their senses while there was still constructive work for them to do. All too often, it is just too

Hardly a year goes by, for example, without some prominent former adversary of Diem or Thieu in South Victnam hitting the sawdust trail and confessing that his mulish resistance to these alleged villains merely contributed to the ultimate triumph of a far more despotle regime: the communists. And now dawn is beginning to break over some of the more persistently benighted apologists for Red China.

Take Ross Terrill, an Australian-born Harvard Ph.D. who has long been one of the chief U.S.-based propagandists for the People's Republic of China. As a member of the Harvard faculty and a contributing editor of The Atlantic, he has beaten the drum for Communist China with both brilliance and industry. Year after year, books in praise of the Peking regime have flowed from his busy and seemingly authoritative pen. Insofar as any individual can claim to have played a major role in shaping the largely favorable picture of Communist China that American liberals cherish, Terrill can legitimately make that boast.

The good news is that, after a decade and a half of forthright advocacy, Terrill is beginning to be afflicted by doubts. Describing his most recent visit to Peking in the July issue of The Atlantic, he confesses that "my own optimism about the Middle Kingdom had waned. I was already bracing myself for official lies, depressing signs that China's goals may elude it, pleas by bright but downcast young people to help them come to the West - 'for study."

NEW YORK (NEA) - Sometimes it - The wretches who have made careers seems as if I've spent most of my life out of seeking excuses for the Soviet Union have by and large followed Khrushchev's lead in blaming its numerous ills and evils on the safely dead Josef Stalin. The current state of the equivalent art. In respect of Red China, correspondingly stresses the numerous misdeeds of Chairman Mao.

> To his credit, Terrill doesn't take that casy way out: "In 1983, one sees on all sides boredom, cynicism and escapism.... Corruption spreads as relatives and friends help each other avoid playing by the rules, laughing at their success against a system that has made many people bitter and depressed."

> Terrill even tells us where he went wrong: "In 1971, we knew much less about conditions in China than we do today.... I had many interesting and even candid talks with officials, but I had very few substantial talks with people who were not dealing with me as officials. By contrast, much of my time in China in recent years has been spent listening to unofficial voices - speaking at length, in Chinese, on repeated occasions, and without being monitored by the authorities. The result is a picture of conditions that makes even the frank words of official China - and they are franker than they used to be seem only a small part of the truth."

> Terrill appears to have learned his lesson well: "The unchanging key to all Peking's policies is that the nation is ruled by a Leninist dictatorship that intends to remain such." What's more, "there is a difference between an authoritarianism in which those many things that are not forbidden are permitted (Talwan) and a totalitarianism where those few things that are not forbidden are compulsory (China)."

> Well put - and all the more honorable because it must have been painful to write. Let us hope that the Lord vouchsafes Professor Terrill enough years to undo, as far as possible, the damage he has misspent so much of his career in doing.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (NEA) -Headquartered in a compound on a military base here is a federal agency virtually unknown to the public but whose annual budget is larger than the departments of State, Justice, Commerce or Interior.

That anonymity is hardly accidental. "I wouldn't say we've had an overly aggressive public affairs program," acknowledges David G. Jackson, a spokesman for the Department of Energy's Albuquerque Operations Of-

That field office, known as ALO, is charged with managing and coordinating the research, development, testing, engineering, fabrication, assembly, transportation, protection and storage of every nuclear weapon in this country's arsenal.

Its current product line includes items such as the Mark 21 warhead for the MX missile, the W-80 and W-84 warheads for the Cruise missile, the W-76 for the Trident missile, the W-85 for the Pershing missile and the B-83 "modern strategic bomb" — a nine megaton weapon believed to be the most powerful explosive ever developed in the history of mankind.

None of the actual work on those warheads is performed here, but the federal officials in charge of directing; and overseeing the entire nuclear weapons program work in five identical. nondescript buildings at Kirtland Alr; Force Base.

DOE's annual budget for "atomic; energy defense activities" exceeds $6.7; billion. With the exception of money spent on underground weapons tests at the Nevada Test Site, all of those funds are controlled by ALO.

ALO presides over a nationwide network of three weapons design. laboratories and seven production plants, all government-owned, contractor-operated facilities.

ALO's far-flung production facilities Include:

The Savannah River weapons facility, operated by DuPont near Aiken. S.C., which provided weapons-grade plutonium and tritium for nuclear warheads.

JACK ANDERSON British Firm Produces AIDS Drug

A U.S. generic drug company undertook a successful behind-the-scenes effort to ensure an adequate supply of a vital drug used to treat most victims of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS).

The little-known drug is pentamidine. used mainly to treat African sleeping sickness caused by the tactse fly. But it also helps fight a rare pneumonia, pneumocystis carinii, which strikes seven out of 10 AIDS victims.

Pentamidine is distributed free by the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, but with the recent AIDS epidemic, the CDC was down to a three-week supply. Learning of this, Ken Larsen, president of Zenith Labs Inc. of Northvale, N.J., flew to England and persuaded pentamidine's manufacturer, May and Baker Ltd., to increase its output.

The British firm stepped up production and soon the Centers for Disease Control had a 10-month supply of the drug on hand. May and Baker has discussed with Food and Drug Administration officials the possibility of getting approval to market pentamidine

Crape Myrtle A Greatly Admired Tree

Since the crape myrtle seems to have the major support in becoming Lake Mary's official tree, I am taking this opportunity to provide some additional information on this versatile landscape

The crape myrtle is one of the most rewarding small trees or large shrubs for the landscape. Its ease of propagation, long blooming period and ability to grow under nearly every soil condition make the crape myrtle a widely used and greatly admired ornamental.

The flowering season for crape myrtle begins in June or July, and continues until fall. Each long cluster of flowers (panicles) is composed of hundreds of one to two-inch, red, pink, white, lavender or purple flowers. Leaves are often garnet tinged in the spring, glossy dark green in the summer, and dull to intense yellow, orange or red in the autumn. When the leaves fall in the winter, the crape myrtle becomes a living sculpture. The trunk and branches have an attractively gnarled, twisted character with smooth bark varying in color from light straw to rich deep brown. Patches of bark flake off (exfoliate) in early summer to reveal new bark ranging in color from light pink to pale green.

Crape myrtle is very versatile in the residential landscape. Single-trunked or multi-trunked specimens make ideal small shade trees for a sunny deck, terrace, or entrance walkway. Multitrunked plants can be used as a visual barrier, a specimen plant in the garden, or a dominant landscape feature when planted singly or in groups. Semi-dwarf and dwarf types are suitable for foundation plantings, use in containers, or even as larger groundcovers.

Occasional pruning may be required to maintain desired size and form. Background plantings of evergreen shrubs or trees may be employed to further emphasize the floral spectacle of crape myrtle. Crape myrtle can be used to create an "allee" in a large garden area. Allees are usually long walkways where the plants are spaced so their canoples touch and enclose the pathways. There is even a patented, miniature weeping form good for use as a bonsai plant or in hanging baskets.

Crape myrtles are available in many flower colors and plant heights. Plant height is categorized as dwarf (less than 3 fect), semi-dwarf (3 to 8 feet), medium, (6 to 12 feet) and tall (greater than 12

Crape myrtle should be located in an area that receives full sunlight for most of the day. Otherwise, a weak spindly plant with a few flowers can be expected. Plants growing in shaded areas will also be plagued by plant diseases such as powdery mildew.

Crape myrtle tolerates a wide range of soil conditions, but grows best in a heavy loam that is slightly acidic (pH 5.0 to 6.5). Nutrient requirements are minimal; high fertility levels produce excessive vegetative growth and fewer flower panicles. Applications of 6-6-6 or 8-8-8 fertilizer in early spring at the rate of 1 to 2 pounds per 100 square feet of planting bed may be beneficial to established plants, especially those growing on poor soils. Mulches of pine bark or hardwood chips are beneficial in retaining soil moisture and minimizing soil temperature fluctuations during the summer.

Heavy pruning must be done each year, if large specimen type blooms are desired. However, one of the most, fascinating aspects of the crape myrtic is its unusual plant form. When the form is destroyed by severe pruning, then the blooms will be all that remains for one to enjoy. By a selective method of pruning. the unusual sculptured form, flowers and colorful foliage make it a plant with year-round charm.

Frequently crape myrtle is attacked by aphids and white fly. Aphids are small green colored lice-like insects that suck the sap and cause small malformed leaves. The whitefly and aphids excrete a honeydew material on which a black fungus (sooty mold) lives. Both aphids and white fly can be controlled by spraying with an appropriate insecticide.

Powdery mildew is a common disease of crape myrtle, especially when it is grown in damp shaded areas. This fungus disease causes the plants to be unsightly, but also can cause some defoliation and actual death of severely infested atems. Control can be achieved by spraying with an appropriate fungicide or planting resistant cultivars.

All Seminole County Agricultural Extension Services programs are open to all regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

DEAR ABBY: So Dear Abby is recommending that 40-year-old widows indulge in torrid love affairs with inexperienced boys of 18, and vice versa, is she? Shame on her! Left Is All Right For Altamonte Juniors

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

Four left-handed pitchers make up the nucleus of the Altamonte Junior League All-Star team which begins play in the Division Il All-Star Tournament this Saturday night at 7:30 in Eustis against Mount Dora.

Altamonte was originally scheduled to open tonight at 7:30 in South West Volusia, but the team it was supposed to play. St. John's, withdrew from the tourney.

Altamonte coach, Terry Hagen, whose Astros bowed out with two straight losses in the Top Team Tournament, believes the group of southpaws will take the Junior All-Stars far in the upcoming tournament.

The four southpaws include 12-0 Greg Ebbert, a lean lefty from the Orioles who has a command of numerous pitches and also has a very good pickoff move; Jeff Hagen, off the Astros, Hagen will also play some first base and is one of the league's top hitters. Hagen is also one of the few switchitters in youth baseball. Off of the Angels comes versatile lefty Cory Prom who should also play an important role in Altamonte's pitching staff. Promm can also play first base and in the outfield. Another lefty, Zack Maddox of the Yankees, may be the best pitcher on the staff according to Hagen.

"Maddox could be the star of the pitching staff." Hagen said. "He has a lot of potential."

All-Stars

Joining Ebbert, Hagen, Prom and Maddox on the pitching staff are Anthony Laszaic the top second basemen. Laszaic will do (Braves), Matt Messina (Orioles) and Jimmy Waring (Yankees). Laszaic, a powerful righthander, has been known to be at his best during tournament time. Laszaic is also a top-notch hitter and will play shortstop for Atlamente when he isn't on the mound. Messina probably won't see as much action as the rest of the pitchers on the staff, but he the leader in center field. in the infield, Hagen, Prom and Eric Martinez (Astros) will trade off at first base while Messina and Scott Stiles (Braves) are most of the work at shortstop with depth coming from Messina and Waring. Third base will be handled by Ernest Martinez (Astros). The catching duties will be handled by Randy Green (Astros) with depth coming from Matt Lange (Orioles) and Stiles.

In the outfield, Chris Brock (Astros) will be outfield. Waring will be in the same position see action in the outfield are Eric Birle

Prom, Messina, Stiles and Waring. With the talented pitching staff and versatility of the players, the Altamonte Junior League All-Stars have the potential to be a very good team. The Division II tournament is a double-elimination tourney with losses from Division play carrying over into district play. A victory for Altamonte over Mount Dora would advance the Junior All-Stars into the semi-finals and a 3 p.m. game on Sunday in Eustis. A loss would send Altamonte into the lose's bracket and a 3 p.m. game Sunday in St. Johns.

In the opening round game of the tournament tonight. Oviedo takes on Maitland at Eustis at 7:30.

He has no difficulty at all doing it on double plays, during infield practice or when he and the third baseman and shortstop toss the ball to first before every inning, but when a routine grounder is hit to him during a game and he has to make the throw to first, forget it. The simpler the play, it seems, the more trouble it poses for Sax, who has already committed 25 errors so far this season, 23 of them on thrown balls.

Sax's throws to first base generally wind up far off line and sometimes in the dirt. His throws usually veer off to the inside portion of the diamond, and you caught an excellent example of that during the second inning of Wednesday night's 13-3 blowout by the American

Cook's Corner, which had already beaten Lake Howell and a tough

Kissimmee Osceola squad this week, bolted to a 37-21 haltime lead over the Patriots. The second half was academic as Cook's blew its lead up to 30 points.

In JV play, coach John McNamara's Cook's Corner squad kept pace by running off its sixth victory without a defeat. Point guard Daryl Williams led the 65-36 rout with 18 points while forwards Alvin Jones (16) and Robert Hill (14) were also in double figures.

Perry Takes KC Stopover On Way To Fame; Cubs, White Sox Dream Of Chicago Series

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) - Kansas City appears to be just another stopover for Gaylord Perry on his way to the Hall of Fame.

The Royals this week became Perry's eighth major league employer when he was awarded to Kansas City on a waiver claim following a 3-10 start in the 1983 season with the Scattle Mariners.

The 44-year-old Perry, a 310-game winner and the only pitcher ever to claim a Cy Young Award in both leagues, worked out for the first time with his new team Thursday and will make his debut for the Royals Monday night with a starting assignment against the Toronto Blue Jays.

'(George) Brett, (Hal) McRae, (Frank) White..." Perry said, "I know what these guys can do. I've seen them play long enough. It'll be good to have them hitting and fielding on my side for a change. I'm really looking forward to It."

Perry is reunited in Kansas City with Manager Dick Howser, whose New York Yankees picked up the veteran right-hander as pennant insurance late in the 1980 season. Perry won four games for Howser to help the Yankees win the AL East that season.

When Perry's name appeared on the waiver wire last week, Howser urged Kansas City general manager John Schuerhols to put a claim on the veteran pitcher's services.

"We were in a similar situation back in 1980," Howser said. "Gaylord became available and even though we had Tommy John and Ron Guidry and that bunch, we felt he could complement our staff. He did. On a scale of 1-to-10. Fd have rated Gaylord's performance for us a 7. He showed me he could win big games against good clubs. "The two times he's faced us this season

(4-1 and 3-1 Kansas City victories), he kept his team in the game. I saw no difference in his stuff now than in 1980. I like him on a ball club. He knows how to get the job done." Perry went 8-9 for the Atlanta Braves in

Baseball

1981 and 10-12 for Seattle in 1982 when he won his 300th career game. But his 3-10 record and 4.94 carned run average in 1983 earned him on spot on the waiver wire last

"This is his first opportunity to pitch for a legitimate contender since that 1980 season. Schuerholz said. "Even in the face of his age (44) and in the face of his record (3-10), our scouts felt that with a contending club and with his competitive nature, there was a chance he could help us.

"It wasn't a gamble — we didn't lose anything nor did we give up anybody. We felt this was a worthwhile attempt to improve our pitching staff. We think he's got enough ability to help us win this year. I wouldn't have claimed him if I didn't think so."

The pitching-strapped Royals stood in fourth place in the AL West 4 1/2 games back of the front-running Texas Rangers at the All-Star break. Staff ace Dennis Leonard was lost for the season with a knee injury in May, leaving and one-half games out of the lead. The Cubs begin a 10-game West Coast road swing Friday against San Francisco. The Sox have 40 consecutive games against Eastern Division opponents, starting Friday against Milwaukee, a team that has given the Sox headaches in the past year.

Kansas City with four left-handers in the rotation: Larry Gura, Paul Splittorff, Bud Black and Vida Blue. CHICAGO (UPI) - After the first week of the 1383 baseball season, the idea of a cross-town Chicago World Series would have

Ironically, both clubs are faring well under skippers whose jobs were reportedly in jeopardy earlier in the season.

Cubs manager Lee Elia was on thin ice following a tirade against fans in late April. Sox manager Tony LaRussa was also the subject of speculation as recently as early June for the team's slow start.

The Cubs are truly the surprise entry. Mired below .500 for most of the first part of the season, Chicago caught fire in a early June homestand and put together two long winning streaks to move up in the race.

"I'm proud of this club. We came up after a 5-14 start and after Lee popped off and I popped off," said general manager Dallas

"I've said all along if you can stay close until around August, you've got a chance to win it all," said veteran shortstop Larry Bowa. "After that, you start playing teams in your own division and anything can

The White Sox' pitching was supposed to have been its strong point, but the starting staff stumbled early. The hitting, also off to a alow start, was finally rescued by two rookies. Ron Kittle and Greg Walker.

'I'm glad they stayed with me. I just hope we can stay in and contend with what we've got going now," said Walker.

AL Savors Win; Races Continue

With just one day to savor its lopsided All-Star triumph, the American League returns to the more Important business of deciding pennant races.

The AL's two surprising division leaders meet in Toronto tonight as the Blue Jays face the Texas Rangers. Toronto, 43-33, leads Baltimore by one game in the tightly bunched Eastern Division while the Rangers, 44-34, hold a 2-game edge over California in Danny Darwin, 7-6, is scheduled to start for Texas against Toronto's Luis Leal, 8-6.

Two predictable division leaders also clash Friday when the National League resumes play after the 13-3 drubbing administered by the AL in Wednesday night's All-Star Game. Montreal, 41-36, which holds a 1 1/2 game advantage over Philadelphia in the NL East, entertains Atlanta, 49-31. The Braves, shooting for a second straight title in the West, hold a 1-game lead over Los

Pete Falcone, 6-1, a revelation for the Braves since being signed as a free agent, is expected to start opposite Montreal's Charlie Lea, 6-4,

Elsewhere in the AL tonight, it's California at Boston, Scattle at Baltimore, Oakland at Detroit, Milwaukee at Chicago, New York at Kansas City and Cleveland at Minnesota.

In other NL games, Philadelphia is at Cincinnati, Houston at New York, St. Louis at San Diego, Pittsburgh at Los Angeles and Chicago at San Francisco.

The player engendering the most interest following the All-Star break is California first baseman Rod Carew. who is chasing the hallowed .400 mark at age 37. Carew, trying to post the first .400 batting average in the major leagues since Ted Williams' .406 mark in 1941. enters the "second season" sporting a .402 batting Carew leads his closest competitor, the Royals' George Brett, by 38 points and went 2-for-3 in the All-Star Game. California players had a key role in halting the AL's 11-game losing streak; besides Carew's two hits and two runs scored. Angel teammate Fred Lynn highlighted a seven-run third inning by hitting the first grand slam in the 50-year history of the classic.

"This has to be one of the greatest moments in my career," said Lynn, who raised his hand in a power salute as he rounded first base.

Dave Righetti of the Yankees closed out the season's first half on a sparkling note by no-hitting Boston and is halfway to a 20-win season. Other AL pitchers in double figures are Rick Honeycutt of Texas (11). Rick Sutcliffe of Cleveland (10). Ron Guidry of New York (10) and Dave Stieb of Toronto (10).

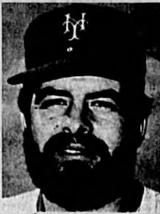

In the National League, Dave Dravecky of San Diego and Steve Rogers of Montreal lead the majors with 12 wins apiece and Pascual Perez of Atlanta has 10.

Savages Place 3rd At Plantation; SCORECARD Stand 20-6 After 4 Tournaments

The Seminole Savages finished third in the Plantation Round Robin with a six-team single elimination championship playoff. The six teams in the playoff and their records going in were: 1. Seminole, 7-1; 2. Sunrise, 7-1: 3. Fort Lauderdale, 6-2: 4. Penbroke Pines, 6-2; 5.

playoff because the teams the Savages played had a higher win record than the teams Sunrise played. Through four tournaments, the Savages have a record of 20 wins and 6 losses.

Here is a look at how the Savages fared in Plantation: Game 1 - Seminole 3, Boca Raton 1 allowed Boca Raton just four hits. Kelly Neary and Kimand Riane Richardson each went 1 for 2.

Chris Tibbitts hurled a four-hitter for the Savages and was backed by a 14-hit offensive attack. Gardner led the way as she went 2 for 3 with a home run while Waln and Richardson added two hits each. Seminole again took an early lead, this time scoring five times in the first inning.

The Savages managed only two hits in its first loss of the tournament. Palm Beach Gardens scored twice in the second inning and its defense shut the Savages down. Watkins pitched well in taking the loss but the Savages bats were silent. Watkins was 1 for 2 with a double and the only other hits was Karen DeShetler's

Game 4 — Seminole 9, Davies 1

Once again, the Savages got an early jump on its opponent as it exploded for seven runs in the first inning. DeShetler was 2 for 3 with a home run while Neary and Kristle Kaiser added a pair of hits. Neary and Mikki Eby also added doubles to the 13-hit Seminole attack. Tibbitts picked up her second win as she allowed Watkins pitched another masterpiece for the Savages as she allowed Palm Bay only one hit while Gardner and Kaiser picked up two hits each to lead the offense. Palm Bay stayed withing striking distance thanks to a defense that committed no errors.

Game 6 - Seminole 7, Lake Worth 2

Seminole waited until late in the game to get its bats going while the defense and Watkins' pitching kept the Savages in the game. Clinging to a slim 2-1 lead, the Savages tallied twice in the fifth inning and tacked on and it was all they needed as pitcher Beth Watkins three runs in the sixth to put the game on ice. The Savages played home run derby against Lake Worth as Waln each had a double for Seminole while Ava Gardner Kaiser hit a pair of round trippers while Neary. DeShetler and Laura Davis each clubbed a homer. Game 7 — Seminole 6, Miami Waves 0

Game 7 was an odd one for the Savages. In five of its first six games, Seminole pitching had allowed four or less hits in four of them, but had not come up with a shutout. In this game, Seminole pitching allowed 11 hits, but the Savages came up with its first shutout of the tourney. Tibbitts picked up the victory while Waln was the hitting star as she was 3 for 3 with a homer. Gardner was 2 for 3 with a homer while Neary also added a pair of hits. Angle May and Nicky Jarrett each went 1 for 1. Game 8 - Seminole 12, Naples 4

Davis led a rout of Naples with a 3 for 4 performance for the Savages. Richardson had two hits including a double and triple while Garnder and Kaiser each had a double. Watkins picked up her fourth victroy while Neary had a fine defensive game.

Game 9 (Playoff) - Plantation 9, Seminole 0

Seminole fell in its final game to a tough Plantation team. Plantation broke open a 1-0 game with five runs in the third and cruised to victory. Waln, Eby and Watkins had two hits each for the Savages.

'All-American Guy' Hijacks Jet To Cuba

MIAMI (UPI) — Less than 24 hours—said Richter is a drifter and a political after the U.S. and Cuban governments geared up to discourage "homesick Cubans" from hijacking airliners, a clean-cut "All-American guy" from Illinois commandeered a flight to Havana.

The "preppy-looking" air pirate, iden-tifled as Robert Patrick Richter, 26, of Northfield, Ill., dropped to the ground and kissed the Cuban soil Thursday before being led away by machinegunbearing Cuban police.

The hijacking of Air Florida Flight 8. with 42 passengers and five crew members, began shortly after the Tampa-bound 737 Jet took off from Fort Lauderdale. The plane returned safely to Miami before noon Thursday.

The hijacking occurred just after the U.S. government said it received word from Havana officials that Cuba was cracking down on hijackers and that any sky pirates landing on the communist island could expect prison terms of up to

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker said the FAA would print pamphlets warning "homesick Cubans if they hijack a plane to get back to Cuba to visit their families, the only day they'll see them is on visiting day at the prison."

But Thursday's hijacker didn't fit the profile. Todd Lasater, Richter's stephrother, jackings.

It was the second hijacking to Cuba in five days, and the sixth time an American jetliner has been ordered to fly to Havana since May 1.

Barker said there was no sky marshal on the Air Florida flight or on any of the jets previously hijacked to Cuba.

FBI agent Bill Nettles said the hijacker managed to get past security checkpoints at Fort Lauderdale airport with a gym bag containing a tan cylinder with wires attached to a pack with on-off

Nettles said the calm, well-dressed air pirate handed a flight attendant a note which said: "This is a hijack. Take the plane to Havana. Liberty or death, power to the liberation." He said the contraption in his bag was a bomb.

Nettles said officials are trying to determine how Richter made it past the well-publicized security designed to discourage a burgeoning wave of hi-

County Giving More Services To Seminole's Seven Cities

By Donna Estes Herald Staff Writer

Calling it the "most important thing that has happened for city-county relations in many, many years," Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles lauded the Seminole County Commission's move to take a step toward providing additional services to the county's seven cities.

In a report to the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County this week. Knowles, as chairman of the council's double taxation committee. said the Board of County Commissioners is "ready, willing and acting to solve the differences between cities and the county.

He noted that the commissioners during budget workshops approved the addition of four new sheriff road patrol deputies and one new investigative officer to be funded from noncountywide sales taxes.

"This relieves the ... (property taxes) of this new cost." Knowles said.

He reported to the organization composed of delegates from each of the county's seven cities and the county commission that the county governing body approved Sheriff John Polk's base budget that allows Polk to offer the following central service to all municipalities: central special weapons and tactics (SWAT) team, central depository for specialized equipment, bugging. surveillance: central technician services for all major crime scene investigations, and central communications and dispatch services for law enforcement.

effect open and cooperative efforts to resolve differences,"Knowles said, adding it is not mandatory that cities in the county.

accept the services offered.

Any municipality wishing to continue its own service, rather than taking advantage of the four central services offered by the county can continue to do so at municipal expense. Knowles said.

He said that the services with the exception of central communications dispatch are to be available with the beginning of the 1983-84 fiscal year,

Knowles said the sheriff's communications system currently does not have the capacity to dispatch for all seven municipal police departments in the county, but it is now serving the city of Longwood and could add Oviedo, Winter Springs and Lake Mary. Knowles said as plans for expanding the sheriff's dispatch system are implemented, there will be capacity available for the cities of Sanford, Altamonte Springs and Casselberry.

He said this could bring great savings to the cities which are now budgeting municipal funds for their own individual police dispatching systems.

Of the SWAT team, central technician services for all major crime scene investigations and central depository for specialized equipment. Knowles said these type of services are not needed by cities on a daily basis. For the individual elties to have highly technical investigators on staff and sophisticated equipment available is more expensive than any of the cities can afford, he said.

New Homes Get A Transfusion Of The Old

By Micheal Beha Herald Staff Writer

Don't come looking for cigar store Indians, old jars or the usual bric-a-brac found in most antique shops at Mark Shuttleworth's antique shop on First Street in Sanford.

Shuttleworth has a few old pictures and some carved ducks sitting around, but he generally disdains collectables in favor of architectural

Even the building which bouses Shuttleworth's Florida Victoriani shop is unique. It's a big. rambling, old shell crammed full of clawfoot bathtubs, stained glass windows, back bars and counters in various states of repair and re-finishing.

Shuttleworth's business opened in May, 1981. Since then he's been able to make a living by purchasing old architectural pieces and recycling them for use in new houses or restoration of old

The idea for the business was born when Shuttleworth went out looking for a pedestal sink for a Victorian house he and his wife own in Lake Helen. That search was like a treasure hunt and proved to be addictive for Shuttleworth, who was a social worker and professor of social science at Daytona Beach Community College.

First. Shuttleworth became a collector and when his collection outgrew his available storage space two years later, he became a dealer.

The business has been something of a surprise.

"I thought when I opened up I would sell about half and half between new houses and restorations. As it's turned out I sell about 90 percent of my stuff for use in new houses," Shuttleworth says.

Many people, he says, want to use architectural antiques to add to the value of their new home. Old staircase railings, mantels or beveled glass windows and doors are usually cheaper than new ones and are usually of a better quality, he says.

"You can't buy hard pine, cypress and some oak grains anymore.

His most popular items are beveled glass windows, French windows and mantels. Staircase railings and balustrades are also popular.

Shuttleworth still regards his work as a treasure hunt. As the owner of the only shop of its kind in the state, Shuttleworth is often asked to find unusual items for people. Sometimes he is approached by people who have something to sell but usually he is called by a demolition company to come look at an old house before it is razed. If he finds interesting antiques. Shuttleworth will "buy" a few days of work time in the structure to remove what he wants.

"it's really neat going into places that may have been boarded up, being the first one to walk through the place in 10 or 20 years," he says.

But getting items for his shop is also hard work. he says.

"It's not really romantic. It's basically grunt work. plain old dirty manual labor."

Shuttleworth spends three days a week gathering his antiques and restoring them for sale. The store is open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Occasionally he leaves the area to purchase more antiques but most of the hundreds of doors, stained glass windows and other items piled around his store come from Central Florida, Shuttleworth says.

There are many interesting old houses throughout the area that are veritable treasure houses of antique architectural goodles. Winter Park and Orlando are dotted with old houses but each town has its own old sections with several Victorian homes located there.

In Sanford, he says, most of the older houses are found in the vicinity of Park Avenue. "But there are lots of them along State Route 46 that you don't see because they're hidden from the road."

Shuttleworth says a trend toward refurbishing old houses in Sanford is likely to develop within the next few years as the population here increases. He predicted that some houses which have been converted into apartments will be restored to their original single-family use.

The Victorian style in Florida isn't as grandiose as many of the manaions found in the Northeast and other parts of the South. They have a simpler design, he says, with simpler glass work and fewer. rooms than their northern counterparts.

"A lot of them have a simple Victorian style," he says. "They were winter houses where the rich people from Chicago or St. Louis or wherever came for the winter months or to supervise their cattle ranches for a part of the year."

Not A 'Big Name'

Who's The Premiere Movie Mom?

By Vernon Scott UPI Hollywood Reporter HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Quiz: Who was the leading lady in the biggest movie box-office hit of all time?

(a) Vivien Leigh (b) Carrie Flaher (c) Dee Wallace

(d) None of the above

Despite an Oscar for Miss Leigh in "Gone With the Wind" and Miss Fisher's triumph in three "S:ar Wars" pictures, the correct answer is Dee Wallace who played mother to the three scamps in "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial."

"E.T.," which has collected some $350 million in film receipts also has indelibly marked Dee as the creature's mother rather than the parent of the three kids, Elliot, Gertie and Michael.

Dee, naturally, is pleased with the association but not particularly flattered that somehow people think she could have given birth to the long-necked. mallet-headed, splay-footed space traveler.

By contrast, the actress is a fetching blonde with dancing blue eyes and a provocative and nexy air about her.

She hears over and over again what a wonderful mother she was in "E.T." by people who assume she is the same sort of parent off-screen. Dee, however, is childless and tells admirers, "I have a great mother of my own."

A polished actress before "E.T.," Dec was virtually unknown to moviegoers. In addition to gaining welcome recognition with the public she has earned an unwelcome mother image with producers.

She does, in fact, play a strong maternal role in her new picture, "Cujo," the screen version of novelist Stephen King's thriller about a maddened St. Bernard dog who terrifles a mother and her son trapped in an automobile for days.

"E.T.' changed my personal life as well as my career." Dec said the other day before embarking on a three-week European tour to promote "Cujo."

"Thanks to exposure as E.T.'s mother, I am being considered for many more roles than ever came my way before. Casting directors and producers simply didn't think of me. I wasn't a familiar

"Like most actors, I wasn't considered for parts because I wasn't a 'big enough name.' Now that's changed.

"The industry knows who I am 'Happy,' a two-hour CBS-TV movie with Dom DeLuise that I wouldn't have been offered were It not for 'E.T.'

"I have to carry the whole picture in 'Cujo.' And I'm very aware that nobody would have given me a thought for the part before 'E.T.'"

But along with the blessings, Dee is experiencing some negative backlash from "E.T." The public as well as Hollywood imagine her as a happy housewife and the mother of three kids.

She refuses to settle comfortably into the niche of typecasting, despite her maternal role in "Cujo." She plays an altogether different kind of mother in the new picture, sexy, spunky and courageous.

"I lost a good part in a new miniscries the other day because the producer associated me so closely with motherhood," Dee said. "He wouldn't even see or talk to me. His mind was made

"They forget I played hookers and call girls in a lot of TV movies. I played, a television reporter in 'The Howling' and the girl who gets picked up in the bar

"I played a very contemporary. hip actress in a guest shot in 'Taxi,' but the impact of 'E.T.' is so tremendous it has wiped out the rest of my career in some people's memories."

Dec hopes no one will mistake her frustrations for ingratitude. The advantages of co-starring in history's biggest box-office hit far outweigh the disadvantages.

ine picture s moreover, came as a total surprise to the actress.

"None of us expected 'E.T.' to become a superhit," she said, smiling. "Even Steven (director Steven Spielberg) thought he was making a nice little entertainment film before starting on the sequel to 'Raiders of the Lost Ark.

"I loved being part of a blockbusters at this point in my career. A movie like this happens once in a career. Maybe the nicest thing is coming away from the film with a feeling that E.T. was a real being. That's how we all felt about him on the set." LESTER DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROP

'LateNight' Host Paid His Dues

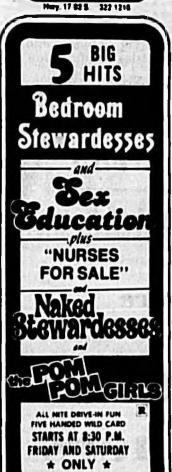

By Nancy Parent

Dennis Wholey is the host of "PBS LateNight," the live, nightly television/telephone talk show produced by Detroit's WTVS-TV. The program, which began on Jan. 4, 1982, is now seen in more than 100 cities throughout the country with a weekly viewing audience of more than I million people.

" 'PBS LateNight' is informational entertainment," says Wholey. "It's for the lateshift worker, retired people, students and professionals. We are a TV/telephone talk show without flash and

Phone calls are an integral part of the show because people listen much more actively if there's an opportunity to call in," says the easy-streak. Salt-and-peppered and going host. Another interesting format frequently used is a debate between two guests with opposing points of view.

twinkling, he not only physically resembles a young Jimmy Stewart, but he has the casual presence and understated vitality of the 'Americana' actor.

The "LateNight" host has a talent for making people comfortable and getting them talking and he respects practically everyone who has been in the interviewing business. "Paar is an absolute master, a brilliant conversationalist," says Wholey. "Dave Garroway - superb. He would dogear and flag the pages of a book and ask insightful questions having never read it. And no one can work an audience like Donahue."

Wholey has worked his magic on the likes of Carol Channing, Leo Buscaglia, Jesse Jackson, Sid Caesar, Bianca Jagger and Stokely Carmichael. "You can't impress people with how bright you are," says Wholey, whose questions are basic and to the point. "Putting on a talk show is like studying for two final exams every day."

He has done a lot of lecturing and working with students in the past. Way back when, he even taught high school. "The thing that amazes me today," says Wholey, "is that the students who are graduating from college with degrees in communications expect to walk into jobs as disc jockeys. TV producers and talk-show hosts. My entire career has been a series of small moves and lots of effort.

The efforts have paid off. After a long stretch of local TV, radio and game shows, his dream of having his own talk show has come true. What's in the future? Writing, producing and packaging shows, and lecturing - not bad when you've already succeeded at getting exactly what you've always wanted.

in And Joe Just Don't Go

By David Handler

NBC has broken up its long-running Joe and Tony Show this baseball season. Garagiola and Kubek no longer share the booth Saturday afternoons.

The network hired Vin Scully away from CBS, teamed him with Joe on the lead game and banished an angry Tony to the rain game. Kubek now spends a lot of Saturdays stranded in the Houston Astrodome with Bob Costas and maybe sev-

I thought this was going to be a great move by NBC for three reasons. One, Scully, the voice of the L.A. Dodgers, is far and away the best baseball play-by-play man in the business.

Two, Kubek is not. Tony's competent. Period.

Three, Joe has long needed something or someone to light a fire under him. He's been using the same material since 1957. It were thin during the Johnson administration.

I was wrong. The Vinnie and Joe Show is not a success. We're approaching the middle of the season and working well together. There's a lack of natural give and take. There's tension. There's a real problem here. You can't help but notice what it is.

It's Joe. He's pulled the plug. His genial grin and warmth are gone. His deliv-ery is half-hearted. He is unsure of his role now and he seems to be pouting. Often there is nothing but silence from him. Vin has to ask him questions to get him to talk.

You can't blame Joe. He used to be the star of the show. Now Vin is. Moreover, Scully happens to be the one play-by-play man left in America who has no use for a color man. He's his own color man. Not only has Joe been demoted, he doesn't even need to be there.

You'd be pouting, too. But you'd learn to adjust. Just as Joe must.

A little background on Vinnie. He is a radio man. He broke in with the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1950s as a protege of the great Red Barber, and moved west with them as their ace.

Vinnie doesn't call a game - he paints a word portrait. And he's a master. When Scully's at the mike you You hit it with a magazine. You don't get caught looking at a third strike. You get frozen like a rabbit staring into headlights. You don't get caught stealing. You're hung out to dry.

And Vinnie is used to working alone. He's a chatterbox, a fountain of state. trivia, humorous anecdotes, nicknames. He practically blows Joe out of the booth.

To his credit, Vin's making the effort to be more conversational with Joe. He asks him such questions as "Would you call a pitch out now?" or "What are they talking about out on the

Now it's up to Joe to meet him halfway. He has to carve out a new piece of turf for himself. He has to change from someone who is primarily a baseball wit to someone who is primarily a baseball expert. That doesn't mean he can't be his old jovial self anymore. It means he has to work harder in an area in which he has already shown positive development during the past couple of seasons - replay analysis.

Joe has to forget the banquet circuit material and hit the books. He has to give us more insight into strategy, more on what's going on between pitches, more criticism of plays and players, more why and how. He doesn't have to turn into Howard Cosell or John Madden. He just has to dig deeper. There's so much going on that the fans don't understand. Joe can clue us in. His way.

Technically, NBC has long been the best at baseball. This season, the network has taken a stab at upgrading its booth profile by bringing in the top man there is.

Now it's up to Joe to show he's a real pro.

Rainbow:' TV To Get Kids To Read Reading

By Julianne Hastings UPITV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) - PBS beginning next week will attempt to do something almost unthinkable for its commercial counterparts - drive away young potential viewers by showing them that reading is better than TV.

"Reading Rainbow" is aimed at capturing the attention of kids with good books and then letting them know, "Hey this is TV, we can tell only so much. Now you get the book and use your imagination," said the show's host, actor LeVar Burton.

The first of 15, half-hour programs will be aired next week on PBS stations across the country.

The show, targeted for children ages 6-10, tries to offset the "summer loss phenomenon," when youngsters away from school lose some of their newly acquired reading skills.

Besides featuring such renowned guest voices as James Earl Jones, Lily Tomlin, Madeline Kahn and Ruth Buzzi, Burton travels to a pet store, a national park, an Indian reservation and, of course, a library or two to Illustrate some of the books.

Each show features a different book selected for the series in consultation with the National Education Association, the American Federation of Teachers, the International Reading Association and the American Library Association, spokeswoman Judy Katz

Burton, whose career got off to a running start when as a second-year drama student at the University of California he was chosen for the role of Kunta Kinte in "Roots," wants to see "Rainbow" go on.

The first 15 shows — one year in the making at a cost of $1.6 million provided by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and Kellogg Company were completed in April.

"We're budgeted for 10 more," Burton said. "I hope it goes on. This is television at its best - not only entertaining, but educational.

"Kids don't read in the summer because they associate it with school - boring." Burton said. "Or they don't like to read because they're always told to read - they have to read.

"But we're saying. 'It's fun to read, that's why you do it."

The first program features the book "Tight Times" by Barbara Shook Hazen, the story of a little boy who wants a pet when his family is going through a financial crisis.

Burton expands on the theme by demonstrating what youngsters can do without spending much money a yogurt lid toss - and the show's highlight is a trip to the public library featuring a flashy song and dance number, "Check It Out."

The shows are shot in a variety of cities and feature local youngsters who give reviews of three books during each program.

Burton, who had once thought of becoming a Roman Catholic priest. said his work with children on television — he previously hosted the 26-part PBS "REBOP" program on growing up in contemporary America - fulfills his longtime "need to provide something vital.

"This is just a different pulpit," he

"I think this is something that can add to the quality of life of those kids who watch it."

Burton also stars in the syndicated, two-hour made-for-television movie. "Emergency Room," produced by Comworld Productions in association with Procter and Gamble Productions, Inc., which will be airing this month. and in November he will begin work in Africa on his first feature film, "The Man on the Boat," a "kind of socio-political thriller" that takes place at the beginning the century. He also is producing a play in Los Angeles and has formed his own production company, which is working now on a six-part mini-series based on the life of Hannibal.

...host of new PBS series designed to get kids to read
