England's New Cabinet

When a ministry resigns in England it is evidence that an impasse has been reached in governmental affairs. When a coalition cabinet, composed of Labor, Liberal, and Conservative party leaders, is formed, it is a potent indication that a crisis of international consequence exists. A revolution in Cuba, or Peru, the abdication of the king of Spain, or a near-triumph for Hitlerites in Germany, affords no better proof of the unsettled conditions of world affairs and the economic desperation facing most nations than the events which have transpired in London during the past few days.

Labor Party Unites Closely To Oppose Ramsay MacDonald

The national government is expected to contain about 12 ministers, as compared to the 20 in an ordinary British administration. Among those who, it was believed, would fill posts in the new government besides MacDonald are Stanley Baldwin, former prime minister and leader of the Conservative party, Lord Reading, former secretary of the House of Commons, and Lord Reading, former Premier Lloyd George, Sir Herbert Samuel, Sir Donald Maclean, Philip Snowden and J. H. Thomas.

Fifty Chinese and foreigners have formed a commission headed by Bishop Logan H. Root, of the Episcopal mission. will be called in for consultation from time to time; the second will keep in touch with local needs and co-operate with local authorities in raising funds; and the third will be formed into sub-committees to examine programs and plans for employment and relief. Gifford, in his first conference with the press, explained that so far there were no plans for a national fund, but that "anything may happen" in time.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY
WHERE IS YOUR TREASURE?
Matthew 6:21

PRAYER—Help me to love only for good and peace—honest and just.

Whenever a man is defeated for public office, he swears to achieve nothing forever, and usually deplores the rest of his life to chewing the rag instead.

These are times when Republican candidates hardly know whether to run for office because they have given up a speech, or prohibition enforcement.

Revolution is hanging in the balance—headline! And President Harding wisely remarks that that'll be about all the hanging there'll be in the resolution.

A friend in need is a person you always stumble over every time you start to go somewhere, but whom you never can find when ever you need someone to bring you home.

Ralph De Palma, famous racing driver, has gone into bankruptcy, listing his debts at $31,000.00 and cash resources at $1,000.00. Well, he should have enough to pay that if it and still have enough left for a cup of coffee.

Ocala has a good stream of handling its unemployment problems. It maintains a municipal woodpile where a good axe and something to eat can be found by anyone applying to the Salvation Army.

And one of our local citizens, who followed with interest the doings of the recent Legislative session, is of the opinion that the New York girl who shot a New Jersey senator, should be given a medal of honor.

A rich Japanese importer goes on a pleasure cruise taking a beautiful Broadway chorus girl with him as a "governess" for his child. He mysteriously disappears, tall overboard, or something, and now they are looking for the "governess". When you hire out for a job of that kind, you want to be sure that your employer doesn't walk in his sleep.

What it means to have good credit may be learned from the fact that our federal government, recently needing sixty million dollars, was offered $22,197,000, and had to pay but one-half of one percent. When Sanford needs in its establishing its credit, it will be easy to see how enough money to retire its bond obligations, advantageously. Without credit, it can do nothing.

James Couzens, Michigan senator, who made millions out of Ford Motor Co. profits, has offered one million dollars for unemployment relief this winter. Senator Couzens has set a good example not only in charity but also in gratitude. For many of the unemployed whom he is now helping made his million possible through the purchase of Fords in more prosperous years gone by.

The city manager of Miami received a shock the other day which was expressed upon him the vital need for bigger and better advertising appropriations. In his morning mail he found a letter from a Chicago publishing concern asking for a two page article on Miami's method of removing snow from city streets. The Magic City's city manager is probably better equipped to write upon Miami's method of removing snow from City Hall.

Results for racing (subject to approval of voters) have been announced for horse tracks in Dade, Duval, Hillsborough, Palm Beach, St. Johns, Santa Rosa, and Seminole counties; and for dog tracks in Dade, Duval, Hillsborough, Palm Beach, Santa Rosa, Pinellas, Santa Rosa, St. Johns, Volusia, and Seminole counties. It is probably more horse and dog racing than in all the rest of the country put together.

For Governor

Whether the unemployment situation or the crying need for political leadership is the motivating power back of the innumerable candidacies already making their appearance for next year's elections we do not know, but it certainly looks as if the people will have a wide variety of faces from which to make their choice. Among the dozen or more who have the gubernatorial bee in their bonnet is David Sholtz, citizen of our neighboring resort, Daytona Beach, about whom the News-Journal of that city, has this to say:

"Virtual announcement in Miami of the candidacy of David Sholtz for governor will be welcomed in Volusia county as good news, and the support of the voters of the county undoubtedly will go to him. "It would be a splendid thing for Volusia if a man could be elected to the office of governor who understands the problems of this county. David Sholtz, of course, knows the situation in his home county intimately. "Sholtz has shown vigor and imagination in his work with the state chamber of commerce. His is a splendid vision of Florida's future. His platform, as indicated at Miami, would admirably combine his desire to see Florida progress and a commitment radically to cut state expenses and to reform the tax situation. "There is promise that the primary into which Sholtz is casting his ample bonnet will be unique. At the rate candidates are announcing there may be two dozen or more before the lists finally close. "It may be anybody's race; Volusia's candidate as well as any of the others. His many friends at home and over the state wish 'Dave' godspeed."

It is seldom that King George takes any active role in governmental affairs. Ordinarily he is the glad hand man of the Empire, who contents himself with issuing goodwill proclamations and opening country fairs; it is only in such a crisis as England now faces that his power as king is really felt. With the fall of the MacDonald cabinet, it became the king's duty to select someone to form another government. Perhaps with the idea of allaying further unrest among the laboring classes, he promptly re-appointed MacDonald, with the subtle hint that the new cabinet include such notable names Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, who has the support of the banking group; Lloyd George, Liberal leader; and such other Liberals and Conservatives as Austin Chamberlain, Lord Reading, and Philip Snowden.

REPUTATION

Frequently, during the past months, there have been intimations that this or that municipality, or this or that country or strange district in Florida was thinking of or preparing to repudiate, in whole or in part, its bonded indebtedness. Since the financial debacle of 1929, there has come a feeling in many sections of the country that as the people have lost money and property, that because the world-wide depression has caused a deflation in values, the public is not required to make good its promises to pay.

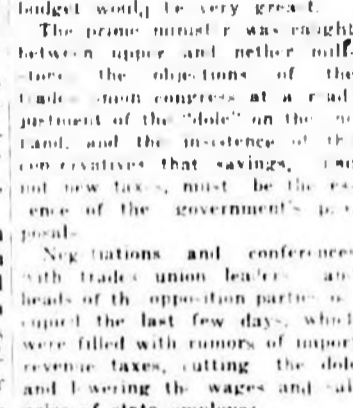

Owen D. Young, well known financial expert, expressed the moral side of the question of debt, both private and public, when he said in an address before the graduating class of St. Lawrence University that: "Any obligation which you make—perform it. If it be for money—pay it. If you cannot pay it—renew it, but never neglect it and never default on it. Your credit, not for money alone, but for good faith, depends upon it. The credit of the nation, the value of our currency, the conduct of business, our—very living, depend upon the sanctity of public and private obligations. Let us speak of public obligations for a moment. Political parties throughout the world have a more or less prevalent habit of treating lightly the obligations which may have been entered into by their government. That exists to some degree in all countries. It ranges all the way from polite questioning to threats of repudiation. Whether a person or a country should undertake obligations is debatable. Whether they should perform them, once undertaken, is not. If they are impossible of performance, they should be revised, but they should never be defaulted. Words having all the moral weight of the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal."

partnership she and her husband had entered, saying that sleeping on the plane on the choppy waters of the Kuroki group was "like sleeping in a hammock".

No new developments were learned concerning contents of some Japanese authorities that Col. Lindbergh and his wife had brought their plane down several times in prohibited waters, when they were forced to seek the surface of lakes due to engine trouble.

The Rengo News Agency said Japanese authorities claimed that the famous flier and his wife had wheeled their plane over prohibited territory and descended twice in lakes where landings were not allowed.

Rengo said it understood that authorities who had been watching Lindbergh's progress down the Kuroki Islands contained the fliers had landed not only on prohibited lakes, but also on other waters not specified by the aviation bureau in the emergency descent permit which it issued at the request of the American embassy prior to Lindbergh's departure from Petropavlovsk.

Prior to leaving Petropavlovsk last Wednesday the Lindberghs, from available weather reports, concluded likely fog might overtake them and on that account applied to the American embassy for an emergency landing permit which was granted by the aviation bureau without hesitation.

REGULAR MEET OF CITY HEADS HELD MONDAY

(Continued from Page One) by. He declared that the use of the City's greenhouse will further the work the government has undertaken on celery "insects" and other disease problems in this region.

The Commissioners sat in final session as an equipping board in hearing complaints of taxpayers regarding assessments. They heard complaints made by Miss Aranka Takach, Severin Rapp, and a representative of the Florida Power and Light Co., who was seeking a reduction in the valuation of his firm's property at Hands Siding. All requests were taken under advisement, although the Commissioners asserted that there was little indication that any changes may be made.

With many matters of detail before them, the Commissioners were unable to conclude more than half their work, several matters of importance of which was the golf course, occupying most of the afternoon.

The golf course subject consumed nearly 45 minutes before the Commission decided to study the situation, further and to make a report at a meeting to be held tomorrow. A. T. White, of the City's golf committee, read a report prepared at the request of the Commission, and covering the period from Mar. 20 to Aug. 22, inclusive.

The report's major point was that greens and fairways at the club are badly in need of weeding, disking, top-dressing, and fertilizing, and that with only $1944 in the treasury it is necessary to have an appropriation in order that the club may continue to operate. Mr. White, as well as Leon L. R. V. president of the club, urged that prompt action be taken at once, both declaring that the improvements are needed as the present course is in a state of disrepair and that the club may be in a playable condition in the winter season.

The Commissioners were of the opinion that the club should be taken over by the city, and that the city should acquire a portion of the club in order that the city should be able to make any further improvements in the club. He expressed a doubt as to whether the City should acquire the club as much as $2500 which has been set aside for golf course maintenance, stating that he felt some effort should be made by the committee to secure more members.
