B-12 Necessary For Cell Function

DEAR DR. LAMB- What can you tell us about B-12 shots? I am a 54-year-old female and have a relatively low blood count. I go to the doctor fairly regularly. He checks my blood count and sometimes the iron and always gives me a B- 12 shot.

If I go more than six weeks between these shots I start to feel like a windup toy about to run out of power. I seem to cut corners too short, bumping into things, can't seem to coordinate my thoughts and my bad memory gets worse. So does my writing. It takes

END OF THE LINE?

This Auto-Train car may no longer carry passengers and cars from the northeast if company officials get their way. They asked a judge this morning to permit them to terminate service by the end of April.

'Cashless' Auto-Train Asks To End Service

Auto Train Corp. this morning asked a federal bankruptcy court judge to allow the company to suspend its train service as of April 30.

Murray Drabkin, court appointed trustee for the company, which has operated under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act since September, said the company was "cashless." Dow Jones News Service, which issued the report this morning, said that is a legal term meaning the company cannot meet its immediate bills.

Auto Train carries passengers and their cars between Lorton, Va. and

Sanford. While local Auto-Train officials could not be reached for comment today, one employee out sick said he was notified of a meeting to be held at noon when employees were to be told about the request

The employee, who asked not to be identified, said his boss telephoned him to tell him about the meeting and quipped, "If you have anymore sick days or days off for any other reason between now and the end of April, you'll have to go to federal court to get your money."

Drabkin said a previously announced agreement in priniciple, in which a group of investors agreed to buy the assets of Auto Train, has not provided any of the funds needed to operate the line. Closing date for the agreement was set for April Drabkin told the court the investors also have not provided the interim funding that would allow a further deferral of the closing date.

To provide for an orderly shutdown of the company, Auto Train fashioned an agreement in principal with the two railroads that own the track it uses,

Without the agreement, he said, Auto Train would have to stop service today. The two railroads agreeing to the proposed settlement are Seaboard Coastline Railroad Company and the Richmond RFredericksburg and Potomac Railroad Company. The settlement agreement is conditioned on court approval of the service cessation. The hearing was continuing this morning.

The company has been plagued with financial troubles over the past year or

Auto-Train, which has about 220 employees in the Sanford area, filed under federal bankruptcy laws to permit its continued operation while trying to raise enough capital to hold off creditors.

At one point last August, some 96 local employees complained they could not get their payroll checks cashed at local banks because the banks refused to honor

And on at least one other occasion, the sheriffs department had to confiscate furniture and office equipment until court-ordered judgments in varying amounts to different creditors could be satisfied.

Efforts to speak with local Auto-Train management people were unsuccessful today and all inquiries were referred to the Washington, D.C. office. No one at that office, however, was available for comment. In August, the U.S. Justice Department and the Interstate Commerce Commission filed suit in U.S. District Court in Washington to force Auto-Train Corp. to put $500,000 into a special bank account to cover advance bookings should the company go bankrupt. The extent of the firm's advance bookings could not be determined this morning.

Reagan Meets With Cabinet; Soviet Grain Ruling Imminent

By HELEN THOMAS UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan met with his full Cabinet today for the first time since he was shot in the chest, and he was expected to give final approval for easing the embargo on U.S.

grain sales to the Soviet Union. Reagan also met with his three top advisers in the Oval Office this morning - his first appearance in the White House executive wing since he was shot

March 30. The 70-year-old president has been working out of the family quarters while convalescing from his wound, but increased his activities this week and plans to made his first extended public appearance Tuesday - an address to Congress on his economic plan.

All the Cabinet members applauded as he walked into the Cabinet Room for today's meeting.

Acting press secretary Larry Speakes still had no comment today on widespread reports the grain embargo would be lifted after the commodity markets closed. An afternoon announcement was expected.

President Carter ordered the embargo Jan. 4, 1960, after the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan. Reagan opposed it during the campaign, saying it placed an unfair foreign policy burden on farmers. But when he took office, some advisers warned he would be giving the wrong signal to the Soviets if he lifted the em-

Jews Vow Fight

Planes To Saudis?

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Leaders of the American Jewish community believe they have the votes in Congress to kill the sale of AWACS surveillance aircraft to Saudi Arabia, but were told the administration will press ahead with the

Howard Squadron, spokesman for a group of 34 American Jewish organizations, told reporters Thursday, after a two-hour session with Secretary of State Alexander Haig, "We are quite confident that a resolution of disapproval would be adopted if the matter were to come to vote today."

Squadron said he informed Haig the Jewish community is not content to let the matter rest and is mobilizing an intensive mail and telephone campaign to increase-pressure on Congress to disapprove the sale the groups consider to be a threat to Israel and a danger to American foreign policy.

Haig, according to Squadron, said he appreciated the expression of views, but explained the administration considers the sale necessary for U.S. strategic purposes in the Middle East.

A majority of both houses of Congress must vote to disapprove a military sale in order to override the executive branch. That has never occurred.

Squadron said the Jewish community opposes the sale because it violates commitments made to Israel, and because the Saudis support terrorism by financing the Palestine Liberation Organization. The U.S.-made military equipment could fall into hostile hands if the present government of Saudi Arabia fell, Squadron said.

A memo prepared by the group said, "The parallels with Iran - where sophisticated U.S. weapons were compromised after (Ayatollah Ruhollah) Khomeini seized power - are frightening. Saudi Arabia is unstable and unreliable."

At a background briefing for reporters, a White House official disclosed there will be 410 American civilians, mostly from Boeing Corp., initially involved in Saudi Arabia on technical aspects of the AWACS deal.

That number will be gradually reduced, but some Americans will remain in Saudi Arabia for the 25-year life of the equipment. Thirty Air Force servicemen also will be sent to train Saudi pilots, he said.

GOP Pushes Economic Plan In Seminole

By DONNA ESTES

Herald Staff Writer Three Republican national leaders were in Seminole County today, asking voters to put pressure on Democratic members of Congress to support President Reagan's tax and budget

They were introduced at a meeting of the Rotary Club of South Seminole this morning by freshman U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum. R-Altamonte Springs.

"The Senate is agreeable to the President's program, but members in the House don't feel the same way," McCollum said in introducing Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah; Republican National Committee Chairman Dick Richards of Utah; and U.S. Rep. Stan Parris, R-Virginia.

"We hope and pray the public will bring pressure to bear on the key members of the House to pass the Reagan program." McCollum said.

Richards said budget cuts and reduction in taxes are a necessity to stabilize the economy. He pointed out the federal government in 1980 went $60 billion further into debt. Federal spending tripled in the 1970 decade, he said, while taxes in-

"Today every American worker labors five months just to pay his taxes," Richards said. He said the Reagan program calls for cutting taxes, halting inflation, providing better employment and getting government off the backs of

"Reagan wants to correct the problems that have been stagnating the economy," he said.

Parris, illustrating the state of the economy at this point, said one out of three Americans — 75 million — are receiving a check for assistance from the federal government every month. "More people are getting checks than are paying. taxes. This is economic madness," he said.

He insisted that no reductions will be made in basic social security programs or veterans programs. However, some social programs must be cut, he said. The federal government in 1960 was spending $20 billion for such programs, he explained, but today it is being proposed that $300 billion be program and $12 billion was spent in 1980. "One out of six Americans is qualified for the food stamp program. It is running wild. Liberals have used the program to buy votes with tax dollars," he said.

"Get behind the man who won the election," he admonished his audience. "He is only asking for a four point program of spending cuts, reducing taxes to stimulate the economy, cutting the over-regulatory burden and stopping the excessive printing of paper dollars."

"Liberals of both parties in Congress are afraid it will be shown that the private sector can do a better job than the public sector in a lot of ways," Hatch said.

The Utah senator said he and 45 co-sponsors have introduced a constitutional amendment in the Senate requiring a balanced budget. He predicted if the amendment gets through the Senate this year and the House next year, it will pass the required three-fourths of the states in speedy fashion.

Hatch said the spending reductions will not hurt the truly

Britain's 'Great Train Robber' Escapes Extradition

Britain's "Great Train Robber" Ronald Biggs, again evading extradition on a technicality, flew back to his Brazilian home in exile today on a champagne flight saying, "It's a lovely moment, fellows."

Rejected For Job, Man Kills Self. 15 Others With Bomb

PEKING (UPI) - A Shanghai man distraught over his inability to get a job detonated an explosive device, killing himself and as many as 15 other people, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said the man walked into the employment office in Shanghai, where he had been attempting to find a job for several months.

"He more or less demanded a job," one source said. "They said, 'Sorry, there aren't any.' He then exploded either a grenade or some other form of bomb. Between nine and 15 other people were killed."

End Fast, Churches Ask Sands

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) - Protestant paramilitary units went on the alert today in anticipation of growing violence over fasting IRA activist Bobby Sands and his supporters briefly seized the country home of the late Earl Mountbatten.

Sands, in the 55th day of a hunger strike today in the Maze Prison, was reported suffering occasional blackouts and losing his sight and hearing. He has vowed to fast to the death unless Britain grants political status to IRA prisoners. Catholic youths went on another day of rampages Thursday, raining firebombs on security forces and burning hijacked vehicles on the streets of Belfast, Londonderry, Armagh and Newry in support of Sands.

Police reported at least 100 firebombs hurled at security forces in late night disturbances and 40 vehicles set ablaze in the main trouble centers.

Convict Resigned To Hanging

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) - With four days remaining before he is to be hanged, convicted killer Gregory Johnson says he is resigned to his fate.

Johnson, who is scheduled to go to the gallows in Fox Hill Prison Tuesday, celebrated his 24th birthday Thursday by composing a poem called "Why Waste

'MR. PIBB' INVOLVED IN HOLD-UP

Casselberry Police are still looking for two young males who robbed a Majik Market convenience store late Wednesday night of about $250 in cash using a Mr. Pibb soda as a hold-un

Witnesses at the scene say a young white male entered the store at 490 S. Semoran Blvd., while the clerk, 21-year-old Dorothy Sneil, was counting money with the safe open at about

He reportedly went over to the refrigerated beverage section and removed a Mr. Pibb bottle from the cooler. Holding the unbroken bottle to Sneil's neck, the thief threatened to cut her with it unless she gave him the money. In addition to the open safe, the robber also cleaned out the cash register.

Because of the unusual hold-up weapon observers were not aware of what was going on until the man fled the store. According to police the man, after stuffing the money in his pocket, ran out of the store and jumped into what was reportedly a gold 1970, 4-door Chrysler where a driver was waiting.

The vehicle sped off heading west on Highway 436. The robbery suspect was dressed according to Sneil, in 4 yellow T-shirt, with "Chopper" and a design on the front and worn blue jeans. The bearded burglar was about 5'7" with shoulder-length blonde hair.

Being Poor On More:

Source: Department of Labor

The poverty thresholds for American families have taken another upward leap with inflation. Set by the Department of Labor and used by federal agencies to determine eligibility for aid programs, the new levels took effect in March. For an urban family of four persons, the income considered to be at the poverty level is now $8,450, up $1,000 in the past year. For a rural family of the same size, the new figure is $7,190, a one-year increase of $850. Graph shows comparative urban and rural poverty incomes under the new standards for family units up to six persons in size.

Governor Rejects Plea For Police Protection

By United Press International

Kentucky Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has rejected a plea for state police protection by non-union coal producers during the soft coal strike to prevent a repetition of bloody violence that wounded three truckers and a

"We're not going to camp on one side or the other," Brown said Thursday. He added that police, however, "would vigorously enforce the law."

The request for protection came from mine operators including George Farley, general manager of Mary Helen Coal, a processing plant near Belpre, Ky., where the shootings occurred Wednesday; and Mac Preece, owner of the Preece Coal Co. in Sidney, Ky., where the coal the truckers were hauling had been

Exploding Slug Hit Brady

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The complication that forced White House press secretary James Brady to undergo a second major operation may be linked to the fact the bullet that ripped through his skull was an exploding slug, doctors say.

Brady, 40, who underwent five hours of delicate surgery Wednesday to relieve potentially damaging pressure on the brain, was listed in satisfactory condition today at George Washington University Medical Center.

Doctors were watching cautiously for possible infection or further complications with the press secretary, who was gunned down in the March 30 assassination attempt against President Reagan.

Pentagon Cracking Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Pentagon is cracking down hard on leaks of classified data officials say have damaged U.S. relations with other countries, reduced the U.S. lead in the arms race and caused the loss of intelligence sources.

Deputy Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci, in a tough, no-nonsense memorandum to the highest echelons of the Pentagon dated April 15, said those who leak classified information without authorization can be found guilty of violating espionage laws.

"It will be the policy of this department to deal firmly and promptly with all employees who betray this responsibility," the Carlucci memo said.

Women Smoking Less

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - A health insurance official says more than 1.5 million women quit cigarette smoking last year, dropping the percentage of women smokers to its lowest point in 15 years.

"The efforts of the government directed at smoking cessation, combined with similar initiatives in the private sector, undoubtedly are having their effect." said Duane Carlson, an executive with Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Carlson told California business leaders Thursday a coming U.S. Public Health Service study shows 1.5 million women stopped smoking in 1980, noting only 29 percent of U.S. women smoke.

Mayoral Candidate Gunned Down In Miami

MIAMI (UPI)- A 70-year-old Cuban-born candidate for mayor of Miami was gunned down late Thursday as he walked his dogs near his home in what police called "an assassination."

Immediately after the shooting, Mayor Maurice Ferre sent a telegram to Gov. Bob Graham asking for a conference of state and local law enforcement leaders to cope with Miami's growing crime problem. Ferre told the governor:

"This is terrorism. The streets of Miami have become a veritable shooting gallery." The Miami City Commission voted to offer a $50,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the slayer.

Preliminary Budget Plan

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Senate votes out a $9 billion budget today, but the plan is very preliminary more so than in previous years.

"The final decisions won't be made for five or six weeks, and I'm confident the Legislature is going to meet its responsibilities and do what it has to do," says Tom Herndon, Gov. Bob Graham's director of planning and budgeting.

Man Hurt In Explosion

TAMPA (UPI) - A 44-year-old Kathleen man was in critical condition at Tampa General Hospital today with burns suffered when a container of liquid chlorine exploded at a chemical plant in Lakeland Thursday. Robert Burgner suffered burns over 70 percent of his body and was transferred from Lakeland General Hospital to the burn center at the Tampa hospital

The explosion touched off a fire that caused heavy damage to Aqua Chemical Co., producers of water purification supplies, but there were no other injuries..

Did He Or Didn't He? Only Graham Knows For Sure

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Sen. Van Poole says he didn't, Gov. Bob Graham says he did, but the White House agrees with Poole and says he didn't.

Poole charged Thursday that Graham misled Floridians into thinking his meeting last weekend with Vice President George Bush was to discuss refugees, when in reality, the topic was Caribbean business affairs.

Graham is trying to make points with south Floridians who are upset over the influx of Cuban and Haitian refugees by claiming to have done things he didn't do, the Fort Lauderdale Republican contended.

"I'd never call anyone a liar, but in this particular matter, Graham or someone on his staff needs to clear up what happened," Poole said. "Actions like this don't help us in Washington."

Poole, Rep. Curt Kiser, R-Palm Harbor, Rep. Frank Williams, D-Starke, and Rep. Wayne Hollingsworth, D-Lake City, were in Washington earlier this week for a briefing on

President Reagan's economic recovery program. Poole said he learned of the real purpose of the meeting

Graham is chairman of the Caribbean Central American Action Committee, a nongovernmental group which promotes business relations between the United States and Caribbean and Central American countries. When the meeting was originally scheduled, it was Graham's understanding he would have an opportunity to present Bush a letter outlining his concerns on the refugee issue, said Jill Chamberlain, the governor's deputy press secretary. In his letter, Graham appealed to Bush to recognize Florida's refugee problem as a foreign-related crisis and take steps to ease the financial and other burdens on the state. Bush is the Reagan Administrations' crisis coordinator for foreign affairs. "The letter was prepared and shortly before the meeting, the governor was told the vice president's office was not receptive to the letter being presented during the meeting, Ms. Chamberlain said.

"On the basis of that, the governor decided not to deliver the letter. It was delivered the next day to the vice president's office," she said.

Poole said White House officials claim they never received Graham's letter, but Ms. Chamberlain said records show the letter was delivered at 5:20 p.m. Friday. Shirley Greene, Bush's deputy press secretary, confirmed that the vice president's office never received the letter.

"I don't know where they sent it, but we never got it." Besides Bush, Graham met with Thomas Engers, a Latin affairs specialist in the State Department, and Julia Taft, believed to be President Reagan's choice for refugee affairs coordinator.

Joint Congressional hearings on immigration and the refugee problem are scheduled for May 6.

Boy Who Fell 11 Stories Into Garbage: 'They Pushed Me'

BALTIMORE (UPI) - Police are investigating whether a 2-year-old boy who fell 11 stories into a pile of garbage spoke the truth when he told his mother, "They pushed me."

Baltimore police found Terrance White Jr., under piles of garbage in a basement trash receptacle Thursday. Authorities said the boy was too small to get into the 11thfloor trash chute on his own and were investigating whether he was forced into it.

The youth, who was reported missing Wednesday, reportedly told his mother "They pushed me," shortly after he was yet know who "they" were.

Officer William Adamo said police did not

Doctors said the boy's condition was "remarkable" for someone who may have fallen more than 75 feet. He suffered no broken bones and the only injuries he suffered were a swollen eyelid and a cut under his nose, said a hospital spokeswoman.

His mother, Evangeline Kendricks, 18, reported her son missing about 3 p.m. Wednesday, Neighbors, police and Housing Authority personnel searched the building and the neighborhood, but had no luck until 2:30 a.m. Thursday, when a resident heard muffled crying in the basement.

The neighbor and Ms. Kendricks found the wimpering boy buried under mounds of garbage in the large receptacle.

Judge Orders Imprisoned Cuban Refugee Be Released

filed a hurried appeal in an effort to block a federal judge's order to release a jailed Cuban refugee today — a ruling that could affect 1,700 other imprisoned Cuban refugees.

U.S. District Judge Richard Rogers Thursday ordered the release of Pedro Rodriguez Fernandez, 48, on grounds his indefinite imprisonment because of a criminal record in Cuba violated the law.

The judge said Rodriguez, who fled Cuba and arrived in last year's "Freedom Flotilla" after serving 12 years in Cuban prisons for stealing two suitcases full of clothes and jail escape, posed no threat to public safety.

But just hours after receiving Rogers' decision, U.S. Attorney James Buchele filed an appeal with the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver to halt the release order. Buchele said he wanted to give the U.S. government more time than it has had to resolve Rodriguez' situation. The circuit court could act on the appeal as early as today. If the court agrees to halt the order. Rodriguez will remain jailed while the appeals court considers the case. Otherwise, Rodriguez was scheduled to be released from the Shawnee County Jail to a Kansas City resident, Consuelo Rivera, who testified she would sponsor the refugee and had found employment for him.

Rodriguez' attorney, Henri Watson of Kansas City, said he believed the "decision TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) - The government establishes a precedent for other Cuban refugees. Obviously it sets the example whereby other Cubans who are currently held can also apply to the court for relief."

> A class-action suit filed by Watson on behalf of the other 1,700 imprisoned refugees, many of them members of the "Freedom Flotilla," was still pending in the federal court in

But Justice Department spokesman John Russell said from Washington Rodriguez' habeas corpus hearing would not directly affect other Cuban prisoners.

"Although this decision sets a precedent for other suits, it does not affect it immediately," Russell said.

Rogers, in making his court decision, ruled the United States government had failed to meet a 90-day deadline he imposed Dec. 31 for releasing the refugee from "arbitrary detention."

The judge said he had no alternative but to free Rodriguez immediately from the Atlanta penitentiary, a maximum-security prison, because Rodriquez was being held in violation of international law.

"He is capable of being a productive individual in this country rather than a burden upon the government and the taxpayers if he is released and allowed to take available employment," the judge said.

MX Missile Would Make Carcinogens? AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) - Clouds of cancer-causing dust would be produced if the MX missile system is constructed in Nevada, a newspaper reports.

The Austin Citizen said Thursday erionite, a fibrous substance similar to asbestos, has been found in zeolite mineral formations in Nevada's Great Basin.

The newspaper said information on the health dangers was buried in a technical report filed as background to an Air Force draft environmental impact statement on the MX missile.

Although the Environmental Protection Agency was scheduled to finish its review of the draft environmental impact statement shortly, EPA spokesman Roger Meacham in Dallas said neither his office nor the national office in Washington knew anything about the health hazards associated with erionite fibers.

The impact of erionite on health is mentioned in only one paragraph of the nine-volume draft environmental impact statement. Dr. David Vomacka, an environmentalist analyst contracted by the Air Force to work on the proposed MX missile system, said the erionite fibers can be compared to asbestos. Vomacka said dust prevention measures, such as watering the ground before and during digging, could be used to keep dust down during construction, but he said on windy days it would be difficult to keep the fibers out of the air.

FBI Pardons: A Good Ending

President Reagan cannot expect universal approval of his pardon of the two FBI officials r convicted of authorizing illegal break-ins in search of evidence against anti-war radicals a " decade ago.

Ordinarily the issues are more clear when mexecutive pardons correct a miscarriage of justice. In this case the scales were in a most delicate balance.

W. Mark Felt, the former associate director of the FBI, and Edward S. Miller, its retired intelligence chief, now stand excused by the , president for what amounted to official burglary

They had authorized the invasion of homes and relatives of members of the Weather Underground when it was suspected of receiving , foreign support for its bombings and other terrorist activities.

A spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union is complaining that the pardons will send a out a dangerous signal that broad claims of national security can be invoked to justify violations of civil liberties."

We disagree. Claims of national security were indeed used to justify violations of civil liberties in the Weatherman case, but the reason is that the rules governing FBI surveillance tactics were so poorly defined at the time.

Since then, in response to this case and abuses of federal intelligence activities connected with the Watergate case, Congress has clarified how the FBI must proceed in circumstances like those that confronted Felt and Miller.

The agency now must have the express authority of the attorney general's office and a special surveillance court if it wants to engage in surreptitious entry or use of wiretaps in a security investigation.

That should allay the fears of the civil libertarians that the pardons are establishing a dangerous precedent. The pardons look to the past, and are hardly relevant to the future.

Mr. Reagan has concluded that the two FBI officials were not acting with "criminal intent" when they ordered agents to conduct activities outside the law, but were doing what they deemed essential" in the face of a threat to security and civil order. They did so, the president says, "in the belief that they had grants of authority reaching to the highest levels of government."

Trial testimony failed to convince the jury that Felt and Miller had adequate reason to assume they were acting with a grant of authority from on high. The president seems to be saying that their error in judgment should not leave them accountable for a crime. The two men were fined a total of $8,500 by a federal judge, who may have been agreeing with the president when he spared them the jail time that could have been added under the law.

The best verdict on this entire affair - including Mr. Reagan's pardons — may be that offered by former Attorney General Griffin Bell, who made the decision to prosecute the two men during the Carter administration.

'I agonized a good deal over the case," says Bell. The rule of law had to be upheld. The convictions made the point."

But Bell is also satisfied to see the two men pardoned. President Reagan, he said, has provided "a good ending to a bad chapter."

We think most fair-minded Americans would agree with that.

BERRY'S WORLD

"How about letting the Pentagon take over AMTRAK for its MX system?"

It's about time.

A group of women in Chicago have filed suitagainst Marshall Field & Co. and another major department store claiming the companies practice sex discrimination by charging women - but not men - for clothing alterations. One of the women who filed the complaint said the stores' practice stems from the "underlying assumption that women have the time and skill to alter clothing. It is time to end this outdated

I agree, although one of my colleagues had a point when she said "most men need all the altering they can get."

Providing equal opportunity in alterations, however, is only the beginning of a long road.

After more than 10 years of contemporary Women's Liberation, why has it escaped almost everyone that women get a raw deal in the department store?

I remember how astounded a male friend of mine was, at age 29, to discover that women cannot buy trousers in various lengths. He said he wouldn't buy a pair of pants that had to be shortened! Except for a very few manufacturers who provide tall, medium and petite sizes for women, there is no trouser length choice for females. Anyone under five-feet, four inches tall cuts and shortens and hems over and over again.

Then there are sleeve lengths. Do clothing manufacturers think all women have arms of the same length when men's vary? Of course not. They simply take advantage of women. All of us who have never been able to purchase a long sleeve blouse without having to shorten, or worse, lengthen, the sleeves, must think of a revenge.

To add financial insult to the whole matter, a man can buy a decently tailored shirt from $10 to $15. To get the same quality workmanship women must pay between $20 and $30. Which has more fabric?

Despite the inequities, I can remain calm over it all - except in the shoe department.

"Narrow or medium?" the shoe sales person

"Wide," I reply.

"Oh, we don't carry wide," comes the reply, as if they've never heard of such a thing, when in the men's department shoes are carried up to EEE as a matter of course. If, on occasion, wide women's shoes are offered, they look like clodhoppers.

Although a nuisance, clothes can be altered. But what does one do about shoes? It stands to reason if some women's feet are narrow and some medium some are also wide. And that doesn't go to say the wide foot is an orthopedic

According to a recent letter from 70 podiatrists in the Consumer Product Safety Commission "Women's shoes must have been designed by

"Women's shoes generally are not shaped anything like a normal woman's foot."

As the old saying goes, "if the shoe fits, wear it." Well, the shoe doesn't fit. But it would be appropriate applied firmly on the backside of designers in the pants they buy in lengths that are altered free.

Was Hero Cop At Fault?

WASHINGTON (NEA)— The Secret Service has been studying the Reagan assassination attempt in minute detail to determine whether the shooting was due in any part to the performance of its agents or to its system of protecting the president.

Those close to the investigation say that no fault has been found with Secret Service methods or personnel. However, the investigators have concluded that the attempt might have been prevented had the Washington Metropolitan Police - and especially wounded Officer Thomas Delahanty — performed better on the scene. Seven police officers were assigned to control crowds at the Washington Hilton on the day of the president's speech. Six of the seven had worked at other presidential appearances. The novice was Delahanty, a canine-patrol officer who was drafted for the duty because his dog was ill.

Delahanty was assigned to a spot immediately in front of the area that had been roped off for the press - and from which John Hinckley fired his gun. In fact, Delahanty was standing almost directly in front of Hinckley at the time of the shooting. Another police officer, Herbert Granger, was to the immediate right of and alightly behind

Secret Service agents are trained never to turn their backs on a crowd or to let their concentration wander from those around the person they are guarding. But police officers are not so trained, and it is only natural to turn to gawk at a president, especially if you have never seen him in person.

. This seems to have been what happened outside the Hilton. Pictures of the scene clearly show that Delahanty turned his back on the crowd - and on Hinckley - to stare at the president. That is why the officer never saw the would-be assassin raise his gun and why he was hit in the back of the neck in the first spray of bullets.

As a Secret Service official close to the internal investigation put it: "Had the officer (Delahanty) been facing the crowd head-on, Hinckley would have had to pull his gun almost in the officer's face. Maybe the officer could have reacted in time to have prevented the attempt or maybe just the fact that a police officer was looking almost directly at him might have dissuaded Hinckley and made him wait for a better day. It is something that we'll never know.

"Maybe the only difference that it would have made is that the officer would have taken the round in the throat instead of the back of the neck. But had an agent been standing there instead of a Metropolitan Police officer, he would have been screening the crowd, not looking back at the president."

The Secret Service official stressed that the Metropolitan police acquitted itself well once the shooting began: "Our films show that at the instant of the shooting two officers, Granger and Leon Swain, moved toward Hinckley and were the first to reach him. In fact, Jim Brady unwittingly stepped in front of Swain as he was going for Hinckley or else Swain would likely have taken the round that struck Brady. These two officers acted with bravery in the face of the attacker and must

Economic Program Push

By HELEN THOMAS

UPI White House Reporter WASHINGTON (UPI) - White House officials are concerned that President Reagan may have lost the momentum for his economic package as he recuperates from a bullet wound.

The slowdown dates from March 30 when he was shot in the lung by a would-be assassin. The return of Congress from an Easter recess Monday will start up the machinery again but to what extent Reagan will be able to exert a strong guiding hand is not certain.

In the last few days of his convalescence he has taken the time to make several telephone calls - two dozen, aides expect by the end of the week — to line up the votes for his budgetcut proposals in the House.

But telephone calls and conversation can be fatiguing, too, and Reagan's lobbying effort must be confined to his stamina level. His aides say he tires quickly and they are setting no firm timetable on when he will be back in the Oval Office.

There is at least a tacit decision not to rush him back in the saddle until he is ready, "He's his own best judge" of what he can do, said one aide.

Nancy Reagan took to heart the words of civil rights leader Vernon Jordan, who was shot by an assailant last spring in Fort Wagne, Ind. Jordan told her that he did not show up at his office for four months after the shooting and he hurt a lot.

Former Texas Gov. John Connally also has told the first lady that the president will feel the effects of the wound for months. Mrs. Reagan believes her first job is "to get my husband well," said Sheila Patton, her press secretary.

There are also indications that Mrs. Reagan has become much more aware of the security problems surrounding White House occupants, although she is full of praise for the Secret Service.

Because he was in such good physical shape. Reagan is bouncing back in a satisfactory manner. His personal physician, Dr. Daniel Ruge, takes a low key approach, and if the president seems to be getting along well, he does not disturb him with regular temperature takings and X-rays.

Reagan is seeing some outside visitors and his "big three" advisers, counselor Edwin Meese, chief of staff James Baker, and his close confidant, Michael Deaver, twice a day. They pile on the paperwork, depending on how he feels.

But they also try to keep the decisionmaking load light, and bring to him the option memos when its necessary. Except for the pace and amount of activity, there is little change in presidential mode of operation. Reagan is a notable delegator and looks at the big picture. He does not want to be bothered with the small details. Unless a problem develops, he lets his team handle it.

The difference is that Reagan is working out of the White House family quarters and he is not accessible to his many other advisers except on call.

There are also new security problems to be faced. He did not wave from the balcony during the Easter Monday egg roll when thousands of children and their parents descended on the White House lawn, much as he would have enjoyed it, because of the safety factor.

There are no changes in plans to receive to state visitors - Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt - in May. But there are indications that some of the ceremonials may be abbreviated.

His first outside-of-town travel date is a commencement address at Notre Dame on May 17. He is expected to be able to keep that appearance, but again the accompanying activities planned for him at South Bend will be minimized.

Is Service Stretched Too Thin?

WASHINGTON (NEA) - With one notable exception, the group of several hundred people that gathered at a chruch here recently to mark the 30th anniversary of Camp Rim Rock was composed of school-age children and their parents.

About half of those present were girls between the ages of 7 and 17, most of them former or future summer-camp attendees. Because the "birthday party" was held on a warm Saturday afternoon, their mothers and fathers were dressed in casual clothes.

But conspicious at the edge of the group was one stern-visaged young man who appeared to be in his early 30s and was dressed in a business suit and necktie. When others laughed, he remained somber as he constantly surveyed the crowd.

He was a special agent of the United States Secret Service and his mission on that spring day was to protect from harm Joan Mondale. the wife of former Vice President Walter F. Mrs. Mondale, invited as a special guest because her daughter is an alumna of Camp Rim Rock, made a brief speech about the virtues of summer camp, then joined other parents for a chat over fruit punch and cookies.

Did any of the girls of their parents pose a threat to Mrs. Mondale? Did she require protection from an armed, highly trained agent of the federal government?

Only three days earlier, those questions were indirectly answered by a man who ought to know, Secret Service Director H. Stuart Knight, during his appearance as a witness before a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee.

The subcommittee chairman, exploring possibilities for enhancing the Secret Service's capability in the wake of the attempted assassination of President Reagan, suggested that the agency may have been stretched too thin because it was "protecting too many people at one time."

Responded Knight, "There are some people we're required by law to protect who, in my opinion, do not need Secret Service protec-

Knight did not single out Mrs. Mondale or any other individual, but it's obvious that providing around-the-clock protection to the wife of a former vice president is an exercise of dubious value if the president is in danger.

There currently are no fewer than 20 men and women, ranging from 13-year-old Amy Carter to 96-year-old Bess Truman, whom the Secret Service is required by law or executive order to protect 24 hours a day, 365 days a

That list includes the president, his wife and children; Vice President George Bush and his wife; former president, their wives and children under 16; and the widows of deceased presidents, unless they remarry.

Those quirky rules mean, for example, that Jacqueline Kennedy lost her Secret Service detail forever when she married Aristotle

Onassis in 1968, even though he died in 1975. Mrs. Truman, on the other hand, did not remarry, so she has been under the constant surveillance of the Secret Service ever since her husband died more than eight years ago.

Oil: Aid To Guatemala Incentive through Cuba and Nicaragua before being

WASHINGTON - The conflagration in El Salvador is spreading across the border into Guatemala, and the Reagan administration is already drafting plans to provide the Guatemalan generals with military equip-

The administration is expected to justify this increased involvement in the turmoil in Central America on grounds that the Guatemalan guerrillas are getting support from Cuba by way of Nicaragua. But there is another, more compelling reason that will not be mentioned; Guatemala has oil. Though still barely tapped, its oil deposits could make Guatemala a rich country in a few years.

Former President Jimmy Carter cut off military aid to both Guatemala and El Salvador to show U.S. disapproval of their military dictatorships. But last January, he resumed military assistance to the embattled Salvadoran junta, which had replaced the old dictatorship 18 months earlier.

President Reagan increased the arms shipments and dispatched military advisers to El Salvador in the belief that the Soylets are fanning the flames of rebellion there. Secret intelligence reports, including intercepted messages, link the Kremlin to the Cuban-Nicaraguan activity.

Now I have learned that Reagan will soon resume military aid to Guatemala which, unlike El Salvador, is still ruled by the same repressive military regime.

Intelligence reports exist which will buttress Reagan's decision to make Guatemala yel another arena of East-West confrontation. My associate Bob Sherman has seen a confidential Defense Intelligence Agency analysis, which reports:

"A tape recording recently captured in a skirmish with Guatemalan guerrillas has provided convincing evidence of Cuben and Nicaraguan complicity in organizing, directing and supporting the Guatemalan Revolutionary Movement. 'Socialist' countries may have already been contacted to supply arms and supplies, which are to pass forwarded to Guatemala." If this has a familiar ring, it should. Captured documents established the link between Salvadoran guerrillas and Soviet-bloc nations, which justified the Reagan administration's anti-communist alarms and excursions in El Salvador.

The DIA appraisal claims that guerrilla strength in Guatemala is minimal, and "only small-scale insurgent activity is anticipated in the near term." My sources say the administration hopes that renewed U.S. military aid will help the Guatemalan generals eradicate the leftist rebels before they have a chance to grow into a real threat.

The stakes in Guatemala are high. A confidential State Department cable last month spelled out the oil prospects this way: "The optimistic view long held by most oilmen (is) that Guatemala does in fact possess significant reserves on the order of the Alaskan north slope."

Although Guatemala expects to produce only about 15,000 barrels of oil a day this year, the cable notes that a petroleum consultant has advised the government it could be producing a million barrels a day within seven or eight years "if appropriate drilling incentives are adopted."

What worries the administration is that the United States may be losing out in the international competition to develop Guatemala's huge petroleum resources. Several years ago, Guatemala asked for U.S. help in exploiting its all reserves, but got nowhere. The Guatemalans turned elsewhere. The State Department cable notes that "U.S. companies have been edged out by (the) French in promising exploration areas.

But the Guatemalans have once again asked for U.S. help, and our embessy in Guatemala City has urged a favorable response, noting that experts believe Guatemala "could supply 10 percent of U.S. import needs within six to eight years."

Root-Bound Azaleas Can Be Revived

The difference between the green thumbs and the brown thumbs isn't usually a matter of heredity or even early childhood training. Good plantsmanship does come from an inquisitive mind and an eagerness to apply what is learned. Here are some questions from people who are well on their way toward changing their thumb colors:

Q. I planted some azaleas a few months ago but now a number of them are dying back. Several look completely dead with no signs of regrowth. I pulled up one plant and found that the roots have not spread out at all. What can be done to save these plants?

A. Your azaleas most likely were root-bound in the container they were originally grown in. Azaleas and other woody ornamental plants grown in containers for long periods of time before transplanting are likely to fill up most of the available space in their containers with roots.

The potting mixture they are planted in is generally a better mixture for growth than the native soil so the roots tend to stay in this mixture rather than spreading out into the soil. Eventually the roots may become so bound up that they actually strangle each other and cause the plant to die.

Also, with the difference between the native soil and the potting mixture, it is very possible that the plants are suffering from a lack of water even though the planting beds may have been watered quite a bit.

The water would tend to spread through the native sand but not enter the potting mixture around the roots. Thus the plants would not get enough water to survive. With the long dry spell we have just gone through many newly planted azaleas may have suffered this way.

To keep from experiencing this plaque of the potbound plants, you will need to change your thinking on how to plant container grown shrubs. A shrub that has grown too long in a container needs to have its roots disturbed before it is set in the

By carefully breaking apart the root ball or cutting it with a knife, you will be able to spread the roots out so they will become established in the native soil. This may set the plants back for a while, but it will be better for them in the long run. If you have plants that have been set out improperly it would be a good idea to dig them up and spread their roots. Be sure to keep the plants well watered after transplanting. Hold off fertilizing for a month or so to avoid burning the roots, and then give only a light application using a complete fertilizer such as 6-6-6. Q. My husband and I are planning on building a home on a wooded lot. We would like to keep a number of trees as part of the landscape but have heard that trees around new homes may die after a couple of years or so due to construction injury. Is it possible to avoid this and save the trees? A. A building site may decline greatly in value if its trees are seriously injured or killed during the construction work. Trees should be safeguarded against unnecessary and avoidable injury both during and after the construction work. Most mechanical injuries to trees during construction work are preventable if suitable precautions are taken in time. Simple fences and barriers erected to prevent damage to the trunk and part of the roots system are often all that is necessary. All supervisors, foreman and workmen concerned should be informed of the serious tree damage that results from collision by trucks, bulldozers and other equipment with trees and compaction of the root system by heavy equipment. Frequently they must be educated to a true appreciation of tree values. Many times external symptoms of root injury only show up when it is too late to save the tree. Wilted or faded foliage. premature dropping of the leaves, undersized leaves, excessive sprouting along the main stem, and dying of twigs and branches may all be external symptoms of root injury. Numerous fungi and insects often attack weakened trees and may actually be the cause of death. The presence of these organisms should not mislead anyone as to the basic cause of the trouble. Insects and diseases, however, often require separate treatment.

It is difficult to estimate the extent of construction damage to trees. One tree may appear doomed by drastic construction changes and continue to live, whereas another unexpectedly dies after only a slight change in the environment. Trees such as oaks, maple, hickory and most pines are considered susceptible to such environmental injury.

When making grading cuts or digging trenches near trees, replace the topsoil as soon as possible. If the surface soil does not contain abundant humus, well-rotted manure or peat moss should be mixed into it. Prune any protruding or badly injured roots to healthy tissue. An application of fertilizer and mulching will also be helpful. Also prune back the top of the tree to balance the remaining roots.

Q. I have noticed some yellow spots developing on the leaves of my grapefruit tree. It appears to start at the leaf veins and then move out. Is this due to some kind of deficiency or lack of water?

A. This condition is probably not caused by a deficiency but is most likely due to attack by mites. These insect-like creatures are found in colonies located only on the underside of the leaf and often vovered with a webbing. Feeding causes yellow or chlorotic areas, usually along the veins which often results in leaf drop. The six-spotted mite is one of the most common mites mites causing this problem. Adult mites are about 1-50-inch long and pale grayish-yellow in color.

They usually have four to six dark spots arranged in two rows on their bodies which are barely visible with a 10-power magnifying glass. The round, yellowish-shite eggs of the mites may also be visible under magnification. Although grapefruit varieties are preferred, they can be found on other types of citrus. Mite infestation is often associated with drought conditions since the mites are physically knocked off the leaves during the rainy season. If the problem is severe, chemical control may be necessary. The miticide kelthane may be used to control these pests.

This was an unexpected appearance, and the children took pictures as the Reagans waved to the crowds." Mrs. Ferrito added.

"The personal visit with Congressman Bill McCollum who arranged for photographs to be made with the students; a subway ride, a new experience for most of them; then watching the space shuttle, "Columbia" land while visiting the Smithsonian Aero-Space Museum. There was a television crew at the museum taking pictures of the spectators. and one of the Milwee chaperones, Joe McNamara was photographed and appeared on National television," Mrs. Ferrito said.

She and Williams agreed that attending the Dinner-Theater to see "Oklahoma" was a true highlight for the students. "Everyone dressed up that night, the girls in dresses, and the boys wore coats and ties," she said.

The days were filled with tours and lectures. After dinner every night, they returned to the hotel around 9 p.m. and the Tuskawilla group held a seminar, reviewing the day's activities.

When Williams was a senior in high school, he went on a tour of Washington that impressed him very such. When he started teaching, he decided the younger students would benefit just as greatly from such a tour. He started these trips seven years ago at Milwee. He promoted five trips while there, then last year, as a teacher at Rock Lake Middle School, he took a group from there to Washington, then this year, his Tuskawilla group was his seventh year of guiding students through a learning trip.

Mrs. Ferritto went with Williams as a coteacher guide from Milwee two years ago, then when Williams left Milwee, she continued the tours.

Both Ferritto and Williams praised the travel agent from Florida who has worked with them to set up these tours each year, and who personally sponsors one student for the trip. The after-glow of the trip continues. The students are now willingly writing essays about the trip, and they all feel this was one of the greatest experiences they have ever had. Perhaps the spark has been kindled in at least 103 more hearts.

"Quality at a K mart price. Nice."

What happens when a reformed alcoholic joins a team which is owned by a man who made millions of dollars selling beer?

That is the plight of St. Louis Cardinal Catcher Darrell Porter as he dons the gear for 'Augie' Busch, owner of the fine liquid products labeled Budweiser, Michelob, Busch and their various Lights.

At one time the Cardinals of Whitey Herzog had Porter, Ted Simmons and promising Terry Kennedy in their catching stable.

Unfortunately, the Redbirds kept the worst of the three -Porter. Although, at his worst he's still better than half of the catchers in the National League.

But Simmons was a superstar and the leader of the Cards. Kennedy, an All-American at Florida State where he led the nation in home runs, is a star of the future.

So, why did they keep the reformed drunk? Because Herzog managed Porter to his greatest success at Kansas City in 1979 (.291, 20 homers, 112 RBI).

Herzog apparently feels Porter is capable of those stats again. I don't and that one move too many the Cardinals made will cost them the National League Eastern Division. 1. Montreal 2. St. Louis 3. Philadelphia 4. Pittsburgh 5. New York 6. Miami Hurricanes 7. Lake Howell 8. Chicago.

The Cardinals bullpen was a disaster last year. They went out and traded for Bruce Sutter, the best in the business. But why Simmons and Kennedy both had to go is beyond me, Simmons should have been moved to the outfield. He's a consistent .300 hitter with decent power.

Kennedy too, was used in the outfield last year. He went to San Diego for principably Gene Tenace, a right-handed complement to lefty Porter. Tenace also plays first base. The Cardinals still have great hitters with Keith Hernandez, Garry Templeton and George Hendrick. The difference will be starting pitching and speed which is where Montreal will overtake St. Louis.

Especially speed. The Expos have some guy from Sanford, Fla. (wherever that is?) named Tim Raines.

He's supposed to be real fast, make people forget about Ron Le Flore and help Montreal close the gap finally which has crept from two games in 1979 to one game last year. Raines has already begun his "Forget LeFlore Campaign" with a league-leading 11 stolen bases and a .425 average at the plate.

Raines has beaucoup help in leading Montreal to its first division title.

Andre Dawson in center field and Ellis Valentine in right field are excellent players. Rowland Office is a very solid Warren Cromartia first base is solid. Tony Scott is very fast at second and eis Speier, although aging, is a very steady shortstop.

"The last month the season Speier was our best player," said Raine bout the veteran.

Steve Rogers, Bill utickson, Scott Sanderson anchor a strong staff. Woody ryman takes care of the bullpen.

Larry Parrish, we was an All-American at Seminole Community College ods down third.

. Parrish, who washohered by a bad wrist and subsequently the curve al last year, feels the Phillies may have played over the least part of the season.

"(Tug) McGraw wil Growing the ball harder than he has in five years," remujers an amazed Parrish. "I don't think he can do that ain."

McGraw won't and Phillies will finish third, since McGraw carried the sithing staff the last month of the Mike Schmidt and the Carlton have no peers when it comes to hitting and picking, but you can't say that for the rest of the club.

Gary Mathews is a in addition. But last year was this growing older ball cler last hurrah. Another ball club griving old, though not so gracefully is Pittsburgh.

Leader Willie Starge ison his last legs. Dave Parker has yet to attain the supersist (40 homers, 130 RBI) status he's Phil Garner is injured, so is Bill Madlock. The Pirates, notoriously slow starters anyway, will never get out of the hole. Outside of the bullpenners Kent Tekulve and Grant Jackson, pitching is very inconsistent.

The New York Mets will be fifth, just ahead of the Miami

Hurricanes and the Lake Howell Silver Hawks. The Mets are starting over with Dave Kingman. You remember him, he's the guy that specialized in solo home runs, this no great output of runs batted in. The Mets have some fine young players in Lee Mazzilli, John Stearns and rookie Mookie Wilson.

At least they're trying, which is more than can be said about Chicago's Cubs. • The Cubs will finish behind Miami and the Hawks in eighth.

Last year, Chicago had five quality players. Three of those - Kingman, Sutter and Jerry Martin - are gone via trades. All three commanded big salaries.

Get the idea. "I don't think the Cubs want to win." theorized Sutter while packing his bags for St. Louis.

The league's leading hitter, Bill Buckner, returns and trade acquisions Leon "Bull" Durham and Ken Reitz will help, a little.

Cheer up Cubbles, there may be an opening in the Five Star next year.

Lake Howell ended its regular season Thursday afternoon by escaping with a 1-0 victory at Oviedo on the strength of right-handed Roy Boatwright's second mound win of the year.

The Silver Hawks notched the game's only run in the top of the third. Shortstop, Charlie Miller, led off with a double which landed on the chalk down the right field line. Lion second baseman Rich Kopperud couldn't handle a line drive off the bat of Hawk center fielder Doug Chiodini putting runners at first and third.

Right fielder Carl Carlson followed with a shot to first which the Uviedo first baseman booted scoring Miller, before Lion hurler Eddie Turner worked out of the jam.

Both Boatwright and Turner had seven strike outs apiece in the pitching duel.

"He kept the ball down pretty good," Lion coach Howard Mabie said of Boatwright. "We hit the ball hard a couple of times, but their left fielder, David Martinez, would make a great play and kill us.

"I was happy, though, that we play so well against a big school. I hope we play that well in the district tournament."

Oviedo finishes its regular season against Sanford Saturday before the District opener at Leesburg Tuesday.—BENTON WOOD Elsewhere, Lake Brantley thundered past Bishop Moore 11-3.

Kirk Mendenez, Brian Wright, Dave Jeffries and Joe Mincey each chased home two runs as the Patriots improved to 14-11.

A big six-run fourth inning built an 11-1 advantage and sent the Hormets back to their nest. Cory Carter and John Simas also had two hits apiece for Lake Brantley. Lake Brantley Bishop Moore

Sox Numbers (18-5) Speak

By United Press International

"I think the numbers kind of spoke for themselves," Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa said Thursday. The White Sox had just swept a double-header from the

Baltimore Orioles, 18-5 and 5-3. "...It's typical of the way we've been playing," LaRussa

continued "The load isn't on one or two guys anymore," Actually, the load was on Baltimore's pitching. The White Sox nailed five pitchers, including 20-game winner Scott McGregor, for 26 hits in the opener. It was the most hits ever made against the Orioles. In the nightcap, the White Sox tagged Cv Young Award-winner Steve Stone with the loss. The 26 hits were the second most by the White Sox, who had 29 hits against the Kansas City Athletics on April 23, 1955.

Chet Lemon had four hits and his first four RBI of the year. Greg Pryor added three hits and three RBI, Bill Almon, who had four hits and three RBI, ignited a seven-run sixth with a lead-off triple.

"I've been on the other end so many times that I don't believe it," Almon said.

Richard Dotson, 1-1, shook off a shaky start to pitch the complete game.

In the nightcap, Harold Baines stroked a two-run single to give Chicago the lead for good. Baltimore's Ken Singleton, who hit two homers in the opener, added his third of the day.

Francisco Barrios, attempting a comeback after rotator cuff surgery, pitched the first 6 1-3 innings to earn his first victory

In the only other scheduled AL game, Toronto at New York was postponed because of rain.

Rick Sutcliffe, continuing his recovery from the sophomore jinx, hurled a five-hitter over eight innings and singled in a run. Sutcliffe, the Rookie of the Year in 1979, raised his record to 2-0. Steve Howe relieved him in the ninth and earned his second save. Rick Wise fell to 0-3.

Brush Off Cy Young...Valenzuela Ready By Break

NEW YORK (UPI) - Brush off that Cy Young award. The way he's going, Fernando Valenzuela could lock it up by the All-Star break.

The Los Angeles Dodgers' 20-year-old Mexican phenom is generating the greatest excitement in baseball circles since Mark "The Bird" Fydrich, He popped some more eyes Wednesday night by blanking the Houston Astros, 1-0, and striking out 11 of them for his third shutout and fourth straight victory of the season.

Valenzuela barely speaks any English. He doesn't know anything about Cy Young and there is some question whether he's even aware the outstanding pitcher in each league is voted an award bearing Young's name at the end of every year.

But you ask him about another pitcher, Bobby Castillo, and he knows him well. Valenzula can tell you all about his Dodger teammate who helped him become the pitcher he is today.

Castillo, a key man in the Dodgers' bullpen now, is a story in himself. He was released six years ago by Sarasota in the Gulf Coast League, which then was and still is one the Kansas City Royals' all-rookie affiliates.

Castillo got the message. But he still felt he could hook on with some club in organized ball. Ultimately he found one

- Reynosa in the Mexican League. With Reynosa, Castillo decided to concentrate on his pitching.

The Dodgers purchased Castillo's contract from Monterrey in July of 1977, a year in which he won 19 games in Mexico and turned in a 2.22 ERA. They brought him up at the end of the year, used him in a half dozen games and sent him to Albuquerque in 1978. He split that season between the Pacific Coast League where he had a 5-3 record and the Dodgers, with whom he was 0-4, and went back to Albuquerque in 1979.

Called up again by the Dodgers that

August, Castillo blossomed into their most dependable reliever with seven saves, a 2-0 record and 1.13 ERA in 19 appearances and 25 strikeouts in 24 innings. Last year was his first full one with the Dodgers and the 98.1 innings he worked were more than any other relief pitcher on the club.

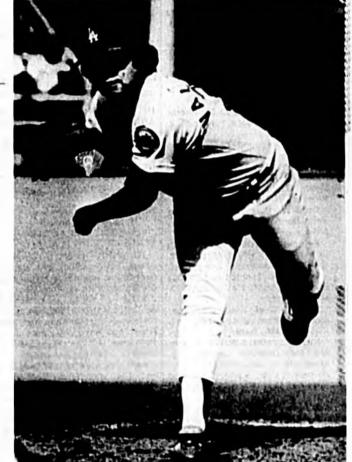

He already has three saves this season.

"But that's only part of it," says Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda. "Bobby is the one who taught Valenzuela how to throw the screwball. He worked on it with him in the Arizona Instructional League and Valenzuela now has a better one than Bobby."

Valenzuela and Castillo get along wonderfully together. He sat in the bullpen Wednesday night in Houston and enjoyed watching his buddy complete his fourth consecutive game. Valenzuela has given up only one run.

Castillo is happy to have helped Valenzuela in any way he was able.

"A lot of people with the Dodgers have helped me," he said. "Sandy Koufax, Ron Perranoski, Red Adams. I needed plenty of help, especially when I first came up, and every one was ready to give it to me. So if I was able to help Valenzuela, it makes me feel good. We're both on the same team."

Staying In Bed Can Make You Sick

cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O.Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now, people vary in their recovery time and it may be too soon for your mother to have regained all her previous energy, but she will certainly recover faster if she stays out of bed and moves around

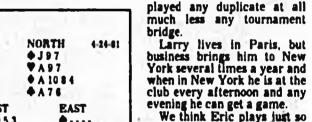

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband had a vasectomy eight years ago. He is now 26. My doctor recently made a passing comment that it was not 100 percent effective as a birth control method. This worries us. We have sex on a daily basis so what are the facts?

DEAR READER - You'll find there is almost nothing, except death, that is 100 percent certain in life. There are rare cases in which the vas tube creates a new channel and the male can again add sperm cells to his semen. That is quite rare. It is nature's old story of healing or correcting an injury, even if the injury is intentional, as in a vasectomy.

Sperm cells stored in the prostate may still be there after a vasectomy has been performed. These are usually gone in a short time after the surgery, particuarly if sex is a frequent event. That is why many doctors request samples after the surgery to see if there are still any live sperm cells present.

Still, a vasectomy is one of the most effective of all forms of birth control and it is quite rare for it not be effective. It offers you as much protection as you could expect from any other form of birth control.

WIN AT BRIDGE

evening he can get a game.
We think Eric plays just so as to bid slams. He doesn't seem to care whether or not they make — he just bids them and hopes for the best.

Larry's preempt is typical of the game. Everyone preempts with any excuse and Eric looked at his three aces and bid the slam.

Larry ducked the first diamond and won the continuation. Then he cashed dummy's ace of hearts and ran off trumps.

The three-card ending found Larry with K 10 of hearts and deuce of clubs while dummy held the 10 of diamonds and A 7 of clubs. West held two clubs and the high diamond while East held QJ of hearts and a club. Now Larry cashed his king of hearts to squeeze West out of one of his clubs. East had already been forced to come down to one club so Larry discarded dummy's 10 of diamonds and made his slam with dummy's ace and seven of clubs.

It's late April. Spring has arrived. And you want to start the season off right.

So, plan a perfect picnic.

"Perfect," of course, depends on your creativity as well as your budget. And even if you're short on cash, you can always dream

The chauffeur, dressed in a smart black uniform, taps at your door. A long white limousine ($75 for the first two hours, $20 for each hour thereafter) waits in your driveway. It rides even smoother than the cloud it resembles. En route, you pop open a chilled bottle of Dom Perignon champagne vintage 1971 ($95, but then, '71 was perhaps the best year since 1919) and take a delightfully

But back to reality. You quickly check the brakes on your bicycle which spent the winter gathering dust in the garage. Everything's O.K. so off you go. A mld-morning thirst is quenched by a swig of Gatorade (66 cents a jar) from a roadside store-ahh!

...You arrive at your perfect picnic spot; a grassy meadow, with a pond nearby. Not another picnicker for miles; the only sounds are birdsongs and wind rustling through the trees. A butterfly floats by. Nice, but you've brought your own diversions Finally, Wekiwa Springs State Park off State Road 434 in southwest Seminole County. You hike through the shade trees and choose a picnic table at the water's edge. You negotiate with a neighboring colony of ants which turn out to be non-agressive even though they've staked a territorial claim on your table. . . . Your reflection in the pond catches your eye. There you are, dressed (if you're female) in a cool white sundress trimmed with lace and ruffles. You pull off your broad-brimmed straw hat, its yellow ribbons trailing down your back, and your softly styled hair tumbles down in silky disarray. Your white satin shirt (if you're male) is tucked into a pair of impeccably-cut white linen trousers. Your yacht captain's hat is smartly perched atop your blow-dried hair. You've spent well over $100 for this outfit. But then, money is no object. This is, after all, a dream . . .

Your well-worn blue jeans are freshly laundered and fit great. That favorite T-shirt, bought at the beach many summers ago, is insurance against tell-tale ketchup stains they'll never show against that crazy print. You have a Budweiser visor to protect against the sun. Your sneakers lie under a bush, discarded at the first touch of soft earth and green grass.

... You spread a rare Moroccan quilt over the ground. It's time to reward your palate for the wait. The first delight to emerge from your wicker basket is a wedge of St. Andre cheese ($8.99 a pound) - a rich French triple-... creme cheese. Its buttery taste is complemented by a

Angie Dickinson Gets Her Own Sitcom

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Angie Dickinson watched the retreating form of her daughter and sighed a little.

"Ah, that 14-year-old period," she says. "I remember, I went through it myself. I was such undesirable company. How my mother didn't slap me across the face! I was unpleasant — I wasn't unhappy, but I made other people unhappy.

"About the only decent thing I ever said was, 'Hello,' and I didn't say that very pleasantly. I was always crabby."

When Nikki was out of earshot, Angle shook her head a little. Nikki had been wearing a white outfit — headdress, leggings, gown. It was part of her uniform as a member of a spiritual East Indian religion. Nikki had written down her name for me — "I'm Sat Kar Tar Kaur," she had said, enunciating each syllable carefully.

"That's her spiritual name," Angle had said. But when Nikki had gone, Angle said: "She's very tense about it. She's not supposed to put on her regalia. Burt (Burt Bacharach, Nikki's father and Angle's soon-to-be-exhusband) won't let her wear it in his presence at all.

"But I feel the more you protest, the more they do it. So Nikki was a little uptight just now about whether or not I'd say something. It's typical of that age. But she's so loving, so funny, so marvelous — but social graces are just wanting."

Aside from that very normal problem — normal of any parent — life is good for Angle Dickinson these days. Professionally, she is soaring. Maybe that's because she has never looked more beautiful and the camera loves her.

Her "Dial M for Murder" was just on NBC, and coming soon is a special, "Sixty Years of Seduction," for ABC. Plus there is her new series, "The Angie Dickinson Show," which she is currently filming for NBC and Johnny Carson's new production company. It is a half-

O SECON, SECON, ADDITION OF PRANTICUM STREET, ANG.

Snoopy, the canine cutup, really puts on the dog when he finds a book about magic and starts putting his dangerously little knowledge about the subject to work on the other Peanuts, including Woodstock, in the new animated Peanuts special "It's Magic, Charlie Brown," Tuesday on CBS.

Angie Dickinson is soaring professionally. "Some people are big stars on TV but can't make the jump to features. I was happy when I was accepted in that medium as well," she says.

hour sitcom, something new for Angie.

"I play me," she says. "I'm working in a department store office, and I eventually get the job of assistant to the manager. It's about our little working group and about my home life, too. It's Mary Tyler Moore, but in a department store instead of a television station."

Things have been marvelous for her since "Police Woman" established her with America's viewing public. After that came her smash movie "Dressed to Kill," which she did for a purpose.

"I had to go to New York for that picture, which I didn't want to do," she says. "It had nude scenes, which I don't love to do. It had a totally different image of me — the scene in the taxi cab. 'Police Woman' didn't do those things.

"I had to consider my public, whether or not they would absolutely reject me and I'd lose many fans. They might turn against me and, out of rage, not accept me again in anything. I had to take the chance. I felt I had to do a film that would be a big hit, and I knew that 'Dressed to Kill' would be a big hit."

Did it cost her any fans?

"I got two hate letters," Angie says, "and they looked like they came from a kid. I had a box ready, labeled 'Hate Mail,' but I only got those two letters.

"It accomplished what I wanted. It gave me strength in both feature films and TV. It was wonderful — you know, some people are big stars on TV but can't make the jump to features. I was happy when I was accepted in that medium as well."

As for the new series, Angie says she has long wanted to do comedy. She tried, not always successfully, to inject some comedy into "Police Woman"

"We didn't want it to become a "Charlie's Angels," she says. "We wanted our show to be basically realistic but with comedy, too — I believe the more comedy you can have in drama, the more dramatic the drama is. So we tried to give our show a light side."

Now she's going to try a comedy that is all comedy, and she hopes to add enough drama to it to make it real, too.

hearty Bordeaux, a 1975 Cheateau Bouseaut, served, by the chauffer, of course, in crystal wine goblets. . .

What a load off your back — to pull that six-pack of beer ($2.09) out of your backpack. Drop it in a nearby stream; soon, it's cold. Pop a top, pull out a box of Triscuits (99 cents), and lay back on your red-and-white-checked tablecloth.

... As you sip wine, you pass the time playing backgammon. The sun glints off ivory markers as you toss the doubling cube across the Corinthian leather backgammon set ($75)...

Rats, you forgot the kite! But you did bring a Frisbee. You even splurged and bought a World Class 175-gram model ($4.95), especially good for Frisbee golf. You plan out a course, you "tee off" at the picnic table by tossing the disc as far as you can (the equivalent of a golf drive), hook it around a tree (chip shot), and land it smack on top of a tree stump (sinking a putt). Par 3. Good show!

. . . Time to dine. Catered, of course, for about $80 a person. Start off with an appetizer of marinated hummingbird tongue served with sliced celery. Its rich hamlike texture makes it an Arabian delicacy. Sample the main course: cold lamb fillets with mint sauce, and smoked sturgeon. Nibble the watercress salad, then indulge in fresh fruits - papya, mango, pomegranete, raspberries with fresh cream - for dessert. . . .

Better throw the burgers on the fire before those ants get to them. Good thing there's a grill here. And bless those little packets of salt, pepper, ketchup and mustard. The smell of those sizzling burgers makes your mouth water. The potato salad is fresh. The baked beans are making your paper plate soggy, but who cares?

... You're pleasantly full — not stuffed, of course. So relax and listen to the Orlando Symphony Orchestra string quartet (who have assembled nearby for about $50 per player) serenade you with Beethoven's Quartet Opus 18, No. 1. The sound of the two violins, cello and viola filters through the trees. You've spent over $600 for your picnic, but it's only money. . . .

You're so full you can hardly move, much less ride your bike home, so you stretch out on the tablecloth and turn on the radio. The chatter of the disc jocky and rockin' AM tunes lull you to sleep, and you dream of your perfect picnic

Pick Your Picnic Spot

Following is a list of Seminole County parks ideal for picnicking:

'Festival Of Hands' Enacts Frost Poem

"A poem," Robert Frost wrote in a letter to his friend Louis Untermeyer, "begins as a lump in the throat, a sense of wrong, a homesickness, a lovesickness... It finds the thought and the thought finds the word-

Those words, shaped into Frost's evocative poem "The Silken Tent," find new resonance in a collaborative performance by Jason Robards Jr., and members of the National Theater of the Deaf, Wednesday on

"The Silken Tent" is the first in the "Festival of Hands" series, a project that will explore the theater's ability to reach across the silence barrier with the richly expressive owner of sign language. The 30minute program is presented by WGBH Boston in observance of the International Year of Disabled Persons (1981).

"She is as in a field a silken tent," wrote Frost, celebrating the grace and poise of a woman he met who pulled him out of his melancholy following the death of his wife. But what are the qualities of a tent? Of the woman Frost admired for her "sureness of soul"? And how might these qualities be described to amplify the power of the poet's words in the silent world of sign language and mime?

It is these delicate points that Jason Robards, National Theater of the Deaf director Ed Waterstreet, actor Tim Scanlon, and other members of the company discuss in words and in signs, with the participation of on-camera interpreter Ben Strout.

Company members perform in the August tranquility of a sunken garden by the sea at the Eugene O'Neill Theater Center in

And in a final, moving interpretation, Robards reads and signs a portion of Frost's work. The result is a poem made even more beautiful by the combined talents of sensitive actors working together in the summer sunshine.

The program will be broadcast with closed captions (visible to those who have special decoders attached to their TV sets) for hearing-imparied viewers.

Future programs in the "Festival of Hands' series will feature other distinguished actors and directors.

Miss Pearl is a special guest star on Johnny Cash's tribute to the women in country music, "Johnny Cash and the Country Girls," airing Wednesday, April 29

"When I first came on the air, there were not any women acts. The boys had girl singers, but the women didn't operate independently of the act. I was a single. I wasn't connected with any particular act."

Not only is Miss Pearl glad to see that women are getting the recognition they deserve today, but she is particularly glad to see them earning the same salaries as their male counterparts.

Tony Randall Returns To Prime Time

By KENNETH R. CLARK UPITV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) Earlier this year, with the movie "Sidney Shorr" in the can for NBC's fall season, Tony Randall spoke ill of Nielsen tyranny and vowed never again to subject himself to the fecklessness of a television series.

Monday, NBC and Warner Brothers Television jubilantly announced Tony Randall's return to prime time in a new series to be titled "Sidney Shorr."

"They made me an offer I can't refuse," said the gentler half of "Odd Couple" in explanation of his swiftly broken vow. "They appealed, not to my greed, but to my idealism . . . This movie is the best thing I've ever done."

It also will be the only series he ever made in New York, and to the quintessentially urbanized Randall, that's an important part of the unrefusable offer.

"I never thought it would be possible," he said. "For five years I tried to get them

"Sidney Shorr," with Randall in the title role, is the story of an aging homosexual who becomes involved with a rootless young girl and sets out to raise her unwanted out-ofwedlock baby - only to lose the child when, years later, she changes her mind and takes the child away.

It is a theme of comedy and tragedy in a classic mix - the vehicle Randall loves best. But a Manhattan location was not the only sweetener in the NBC-Warner Brothers campaign to lure Randall - still smarting at the mayhem done by the Nielsen ratings to his old "Tony Randall Show" - back to series television.

"I have complete artistic control," he said. "It won't be just a sitcom. It will be what I want it to be - good, bad or indifferent. We've got 22 plots to work Sidney through now. Twenty-two is what they've guaranteed me."

That and the arts.

Randall is more than a patron of the classics. He is a patriot - a fanatic guerrilla fighter of single-minded devotion who just returned to New York from a series of classical production in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

"It galls me that I have to Company in this country -

Unhappily, so might the go to Halifax to do the current strike by television classics," he said. "We have script-writers. The movie no royal Shakespeare initially slated to be just that no equivalent of it. But - now is positioned as the Warner Brothers gave me fall season opener for the $100,000 for that. It's a new series, but until writers beginning. They've got my get off the picket line, there can be no series.

The New Baby Boom: Parents Older, Wiser, But With New Set Of Problems

By JULIA EHRESMANN American Library Assn.

Ten years ago, an over-30 pregnant woman felt like a curiosity. Certainly the commercial world seemed to be mocking her, with all its soft-focused images pitched to the "young mother" — as if there weren't any other for people who are conkind.

Not so now. Young adults of the baby boom generation who seemed as if they were going to reject parenthood en masse, were simply deferring the project, en masse. In the last two years, there has been a sharp rise in the national birthrate, and many of the babies are being born to older parents.

templating or already experiencing parenthood in their fourth and fifth decades.

"Parents After Thirty" does well what a number of other recently published books have done only superficially. It discuses comprehensively what it is like to be a non-young parent

Kappelman and Ackerman Kappelman and psychologist proceed on the premise that Paul Ackerman have people who have put off collaborated in writing having children until after 30 "Parents After Thirty" will approach parenthood (Rawson Wade, 339 pages, with their heads as much as $14.95), an outstanding book (or more than) their emotions. And so they treat the subject realistically. Matters such as genetic counseling and the incidence of birth defects receive, as one would expect, full consideration.

second The "Changing Lifestyles," does more than expected, confronting the almost unfathomable changes having a baby imposes. Typically, a baby comes into a twopaycheck marriage of two rapidly advancing careers. One of the parents and some of the income get compromised, at least for a while. The authors set forth some of the conflicts and destructive attitudes that must be dealt with when adults feel they've been ambushed at the peak of promise.

Older parents have older parents, too. No longer agile, Grandma and Grandpa often aren't up to child care and, in fact, may be nearing the stage when they'll need intensive care from their now-burdened children.

the distinctive economic aspects of having children after 30 (consider, for example, that a child may be entering graduate school or even college just as the parents are about to enter retirement), the authors suggest that 25 percent of one's income be budgeted to cover the cost of raising a child through college. Wills and estate planning become urgent matters for older parents.

Part three, "Parenting from Birth through Adolescence," has practical advice - some of it ordinary in the sense that it applies to all parents, and some of it tailored to over-30 parents. Having less energy, less patience and (yes) a lessretentive memory affects how a grownup copes with an infant, a toddler, a preschooler, a young child and a rebellious adolescent.

The final section considers, in rather telescopic fashion, the special situations raising a child alone, of taking on stepchildren, and of separation and divorce.

It is a sobering book, but also a reassuring one. While middle-age parenthood is no longer curiosity, it is still a source of casual myths, mostly negative. Kappelman and Ackerman expose those myths for what they are — a combination of ignorance and stale stereotypes.

Ex-Mrs. Reagan Had 4 Weddings; Is OF BAN FRANLE BORN: MX IN Spact of man's largproject -- the giant Cyd Charisse Is Still Dancing

DEAR DICK: Could you please settle something between me and my brother. I know Jane Wyman was married to Ronald Reagan some time ago. Was she ever married to John Wayne or Ernest Borgnine? I say she wasn't. My brother says she was. Who else beside Ronald Reagan was she married to? MRS. L.A.G., Saginaw, Mich.

Miss Wyman has had four weddings, but only three husbands. Her first was to a businessman (Myron Futterman) and then, for eight years (1940-48) she was Mrs. R.R. Since then, she had had two marriages to composer Fred Karger. But no Wayne or Borgnine in her life.

DEAR DICK: What was the movie in which Cyd Charisse danced to the music of "Frankie and Johnnie"? Is there any chance of it being on TV? What is Cyd doing now? N.C., Amarillo, Texas.

You're talking about one of the great musical numbers on film, a number Cyd danced in an otherwise dreary movie, "Meet Me in Las Vegas." It still might turn up on TV. Cyd is doing a lot of stage lately, and just did a play in Florida.

DEAR DICK: I sure hope you can help me. When I build my house, I'm planning on a country kitchen. I have been looking for a certain type of stove for two years. I finally saw what I want on the soap opera, "Texas," in the Marshall ranch kitchen. The name on the stove is Glenwood. Is this a brand name or not? Can you find anything out about that stove for me? MARY R. SNYDER, Rock Hill, S.C.

The folks on the show tell me they picked up that stove from a N.Y. housewrecking firm that, well, wrecks houses and, apparently, sells some of the things they salvage. So the assumption is that Glenwood is a genuine brand name of stoves, and they suggest you go to your neighborhood stove folks and see if they can track it down for you.

DEAR DICK: On "Barbara Mandrell and the Mandrell Sisters," I was wondering why Irlene doesn't sing any solos. How come? M.M.H., Lethbridge, Alta., Can.

Very simple — she's not much of a singer.

DEAR DICK: Please settle this: Does Flo, for the "Flo" show, say "Kiss my grits" or "Kiss my grass"? D.S.,

Evergreen Park, Ill.

Grits. And you can remember that in the future by associating grits with gritting teeth — which is near the lips and you kiss with the lips.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell us if "When the Whistle

Blows" will be back on TV? P.G., Bloomington, Ind.

Not unless everybody goes mad. It was a disaster. TV may continue to bring us new disasters but, so far they've never revived any old ones.

DEAR DICK: In 1955, Dennis James hosted a program on TV sponsored by Old Gold cigarets. Do you know the name of this program? MRS. GLADYS MOSS, Wichita

Ask Dick Kleiner

By DICK KLEINER

Falls, Texas.

None of the reference books lists sponsors, but Dennis did a show called "Chance of a Lifetime" from '52 to '56, so chances are that's the show. For part of '55, he hosted "The Name's the Same," so if it's not the former, it's the latter. Or vice versa.

DEAR DICK: In the early episodes of "Gunsmoke," I am sure the blacksmith was Burt Reynolds. Am I right? Lillian Cook, Circleville, Ohio.

The show first run in 1955 and Reynolds joined the cast as Quint Asper, the rugged blacksmith, in 1962. Reynolds stayed three seasons.

DEAR DICK: Are James Garner of "The Rockford Files" and Noah Beery Jr. (the son of Noah Beery and nephew of Wallace Beery) related? MRS. B.F.H., Lineboro, Md.

DEAR DICK: Is Tom Wopat — Luke Duke on "The Dukes Of Hazzard" — leaving? In my Dynamite, it said they were trying to find another guy that looks like him. Is this true? MISSY MYCOCK, Yardley, Pa.

Whatever your Dynamite is, explode it. The folks at "Dukes" fell down laughing when I asked them if your story was true. Their response: "You gotta be kidding! Wopat never had it so good and he's happy right where he is."

DEAR DICK: Please answer a question for me. Is Linda Evans of "Dynasty" the same women who played on "The Big Valley?" MRS. RONALD REAM, Peru, Ind.

Yes.

Bill To Save St. Johns Passes The First Hurdle

provide help for the state's threatened rivers and valuable wetlands including the St. Johns River, has passed the Natural Resources Committee in the State Senate.

Senator John Vogt (D-17th District) of Cocoa Beach, prime sponsor of the bill, said the bill would next move to the Finance and Taxation Committee and probably will not reach the floor of the Senate for another three weeks. The bill provides for at least 25 percent of the matching funds, or a minimum of $80 million, to be allotted to acquisition of lands for the St. Johns River Water Management District. For every $4 the water management district would be expected to come up with $1 from property tax Vogt said.

"This is a golden opportunity for us to try to manage and acquire this critical area to keep the St. Johns a viable river over the years," said Vogt. "I feel it has a pretty good chance

The proposed project would be funded by increasing the cost of documentary stamps from 40 cents per $100 to 45 cents. "For instance," said Vogt, "stamps on a $50,000 house now A bill that would provide a $320 million, 10-year program to cost $200. Under the proposed plan they would cost an additional $25."

A companion bill was submitted in the State House of Representatives, but there is some effort being made to amend it by raising the documentary stamp tax to as much as $1 per $100, according to State Rep. Bobby Brantley (R-34th District) of Longwood.

"I have heard no arguments for or against the bill as yet. I see it as being something that could possibly help our area, but before giving my support I want to listen to the entire bill when it comes to the floor.

Brantley said he definitely could not support the $1 documentary stamp amendment.

Rep. Bob Hattaway (D-33rd District) of Altamonte Springs said he knows of no organized opposition to the bill. "The Realtors were in Tallahassee on Tuesday and they never even mentioned it," he added.

"I think the documentary stamp funding has a fairly good chance," he added, "It has a lot of merit as a feasible way to raise the funds to save the rivers. I'm not making a commitment until I see the entire program," he added.

$9 Billion Budget OK'd By Senate

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) - The may have locked itself into hiking taxes nature.' later in the session.

The spending plan was approved 34-5. A coalition of Republicans and conservatives lost a move which leaders of the group claimed was a last-ditch effort to block the sales tax boost being sought by Senate President W. D. Childers.

The approved plan was described as a "continuation" budget in which current spending levels are maintained after adjustment for inflation and the state's growth. The House will vote out its budget during the first week of May. In a rare, bitter exchange during debate on the budget, Rules Chairman Dempsey Barron demanded to know if Childers had been quoted correctly in saying he expected the Senate to raise the sales tax a penny. Childers responded, his voice cracking, that he had been quoted correctly.

> Barron, D-Panama City, accused Childers, D-Pensacola Appropriations Chairman Jack Gordon of Miami Beach earlier Friday of "tricking" the Senate into passing a sales tax by loading up the $9 billion budget with "turkeys."

"I think it's a trick. You and I both know it," Barron told Gordon, "You're going to come along with a sales tax." Gordon said the state can't properly fund education, transportation, law this year.

"I would have been disappointed if Sen. enforcement and social services without

"There is no way of getting enough money for the transportation system unless you reduce the level of the public schools below where it is today, not to mention not giving the schools even minimum increases," said Gordon.

Barron, several other conservative Democrats and most of the Republicans moved to cut 3 percent across-the-board from the spending plan and earmark the $141 million that would be freed for road work. The shift in funds would enable the state to get by on existing tax revenues, Childers says he and Dempsey Barron aren't going to "get mad and fight and pout" despite their strongest public clash in 10 years.

At a news conference, Childers said he and Barron are still close friends and political allies even though they have fought bitterly on two big issues already

If Orange County's An Example

Prisoner Work Program Should Succeed In Seminole

If the 212-year-record of the weekend job release program for inmates at the Orange County Correctional Institution is any indication, Seminole County can expect success from a nearly identical program approved by the county commission here earlier this week.

Steve Allen, manager of the Orange County Corrections Department, suid Seminole's approval of the public service work program for weekend prisoners and long-term trusties is a "step in the right

Allen said he cannot recall receiving any complaints from the public since the program has been in effect in his county. The value of services received by

Orange County from the work done by the prisoners is more than $120,000 annually, he asserted. "In addition, there is a savings of the cost of keeping weekend prisoners in jail. It costs the Orange County about $20 to $22 daily to keep them there," Allen noted.

"There is also the benefit to the inmate and to society as a whole," he said. "The prisoner is being punished for something he did, and society benefits by the inmate working to pay his keep, so to speak. "There have been a few minor conflicts selected from the volunteers.

between supervisors and workers," Allen said, but they were simple to correct. None of the weekenders ever tried to

The public service jobs have included picking up papers in parks to washing out vehicles, cleaning out cages at the Humane Society and everything in between, he said. "We started out slow and carefully, just as planned in Seminole County. There are now as many as 85 weekenders working in any given week," Allen said. Weekenders are those persons sentenced by judges to one or more weekends in jail for their offenses in an effort to maintain family stability.

The program approved for Seminole County is more ambitious than the one in Orange County.

Not only will persons sentenced to weekends in jail be permitted to participate, but longer-term, carefully screened prisoners will be given the opportunity as well.

Steve Saunders, Seminole correction administrator, said inmates must volunteer for the program and those actually permitted to participate will be

Those selected will be weekend prisoners and those long-term inmates who have been found guilty of misdemeanors, driving under the influence, possibly those found guilty of attempted burglary or possession of small amounts of controlled substances, simple battery, worthless check charges and white collar crimes. Saunders said the program should be in effect next weekend. Saunders expects to have 50 inmates ready for work then possibly 25-30 weekenders and the balance serving full-time sentences.

Discussions among County Commissioner Sandra Glenn, Sheriff John Polk and Chief Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler on the program to specifically use weekend prisoners began when 30-50 inmates started showing up on Friday nights to serve their time behind bars.

This type of sentencing has become increasingly popular with judges who see weekend sentences as providing punishment while allowing family men to work, supporting their families during the week.

Saunders said the weekenders will require no special supervision. "There will be no guards," he said. "They will work under regular county department supervisors. Reports will be kept on them to make sure they're showing up and doing the work. If they don't, they go back to jail," Saunders said.

The other phase of the program will be geared toward trusties (minimum security inmates serving straight time) who could perform various tasks during the normal Monday through Friday work

The incentive for weekenders will be to avoid being locked up. Trusties, however, could qualify for "good time" off their sentences — up to 11 days per month -, according to Saunders.

Robert L. Sickler, program coordinator at the Seminole County jail, said some details remain to be worked out during next week.

The specific sentencing judges or Chief Judge Leffler will have to amend the sentences of weekenders so their reporting times will be the same. The current plan is to require the weekenders to spend the first weekends of their sentences in the jail.

SEEDCO: Alive And Doing Well In Seminole County

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

There are two new faces on the scene at the Seminole Employment Economic Development Corp. (SEEDCO). They are Julian Suso, director of physical development, and Mulugette Biru, senior business analyst. Suso was formerly in charge of economic development for Genessee County, Mich. Hiru is a native of Ethiopia.

For years, Horace Orr, SEEDCO president said, the 11year-old organization was limited to paying low salaries and thus had difficulty attracting qualified and superior employees. Although the majority of SEEDCO's 22 employees are residents of Seminole County, Suso and Biru were attracted from outside the area.

While Orr would not reveal their salaries, he did say their wages are competitive with county government and private industry salaries locally. Suso, who holds a master's degree in economics, was an instructor at Cleveland State University for many years. As SEEDCO's director of physical development, he is in charge of managing physical properties and coming up with development proposals.

Biru received his MBA in finance and a master's in economics from Syracuse University. After he received his education he returned to his native Ethiopia, then returned permanently to the United States in 1980. As senior business analyst at SEEDCO, he is in charge of preparation of business proposals and monitoring SEEDCO's business ventures. Orr said SEEDCO's other 22 employees work in jobs ranging from clerk-typists to community development specialists, bookkeepers, program developers and secretaries.

"SEEDCO is a non-profit corporation incorporated under the laws of Florida," Orr said. He pointed out the agency is not federal. He said while it receives federal operating funds of about $500,000 annually, SEEDCO receives about $1.50 in funds from private sources for each $1 of federal money it receives

Although SEEDCO has been involved in a number of projects in management capacities and administrative capacities since it was founded, its most promising endeavor locally is its aircraft manufacturing plant on Silver Lake Drive in Sanford, Orr said. "Within three years the plant should be employing 90-100 persons," he said. Two airplanes are under construction currently.

Ultimately, 87 percent of the aircraft company stock will be owned by the employees.

"The employees will be investing in stock under an option plan. The approach then will be that they are working for See SEEDCO, Page 8A
