Charges mount

SANFORD - Richard Eric Huguley, 33, 2718 Grove Drive, Sanford, and Jason Hendricks, 21. of 218 Palmway Drive, Sanford, have been to custody at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility since Oct. 26.

When originally taken to jail, Huguley was accused of having traded an electronic keyboard, which was stolen on Oct. 19 from a church on E. 16th Street in Sanford. At the time, he was charged with burglary, grand theft, and dealing in stolen property. Police said Hendricks was suspected of being an accomplice to the case.

At that time, police indicated the two may have been involved in as many as six other church burglaries since mid October.

Since that time, both Huguley and Hendricks were charged with burglary, grand theft and dealing in stolen property, for another church burglary. The latest charges, filed on October 31, were in connection with a burglary on Oct. 24 at a church on E. 16th Street in Sanford.

Police believe additional charges may be made in the near future.

Wake restrictions lifted

LAKE MARY — The voluntary no-wake restrictions on Little Lake Mary have been lifted. City Manager John Litton said that the water levels have dropped sufficiently to allow the restrictions to be lifted. Letters had been sent out to lakefront residents calling for a voluntary ban on motorcraft wakes. The ban lasted approximately 30 days.

Litton suggested however, that for those docks still under water in both Little and Big Lake Mary, owners place markers on them to avoid any hazardous situations.

Schools cope with parents who drop kids off early

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Parents, most with heetic work schedules, and many with limited resources are dropping their children off at school before sunrise and picking them up long after dark.

Frustrated administrators and teachers are often finding themselves babysitting at times when they should be planning for classes and preparing for their other students

We try to cut down on it as much as possible. but there is only so much we can do," Mande Bingham, principal at Hamilton Elementary School, said. "We have a great Y program, but some parents don't choose to put their kids in it."

The before and after school program, sponsored by the Central Florida YMCA, is available for students from 6 a.m. until the school officially opens at 8:15 a.m.; and from the time classes let out at 3 p.m. until 6 p.m.

Because of liability involved, the Y will only accept those students who are officially enrolled in the program. They offer scholarships for those See Programs, Page 7A

Historic board focus: All mail review

From staff reports

SANFORD - The Historic Preservation Board has a lengthy agenda for this Wednesday afternoon's meeting. At least five com-mercial and eight residential applications for certificates of appropriateness are listed. Four items are also scheduled for acknowledgement of the Minor Review Committee.

One item scheduled for discussion involves the amendments which the city has created to its city codes regarding mailboxes and newspaper receptacles in the historic district of Sanford.

Tom Pierce, Santord's postmaster, has been invited to attend the Bistorie Preservation Board meeting. According to the invitation sent to Pierce by Historic Preservation Board City Liaison Andrew Van Gaale, "The board wishes to discuss the issue of postal delivery in the old Sanford residential historic district, particulary the desire to keep the historical integrity of the district intact by retaining porch delivery, and climinating rural-type mailboxes and clustertype mailboxes within the historic district. The changes which the city has been examining for its building

SANFORD - They're not quite ready for business, but the new Seminole County school board will host their first event in the new district

The board will meet for the first time in the E Lake Mary Bonlevard facility tonight for their regularly scheduled meeting.

Among the items on the agenda is the recognition of a group of National Merit Scholars from schools across the county. "They just thought it would be more festive to have something like that in the new building," Joan Walker, clerk to the board, said. For the time being all the day-to-day operations and even board work sessions will continue to take place at the current facility, 1211 S. Mellonville Ave., Sanford. 'The building is not ready for us to move in vet." Walker said. According to Supt. Paul Hagerty, there will be no grand opening ceremonies when the move is made to the new building. "That's just not necessary," he said.

The new four-story facility is expected to be ready for full occupancy by the middle of December.

The main district school board offices and various ancillary facilities will be consolidated into the new building. The outlying offices will be See School, Page 8A

More expansion: believe it or not

ORLANDO - Believe it: Ripley's is expanding its segment of the gee-whiz attractions field into high-tech simulators, a giant, walk-through aquarium and interactive museums.

The Orlando-based company will go far beyond its two-headed calves and fur-covered trout, says its president, Bob Masterson.

'We're trying to diversify," Masterson said. "We've been in the Ripley's Believe It or Not! business for a long time, and we've been picking off opportunities.

Since 1985, Ripley's franchisees have opened 18 Believe It or Not! museums, many of them overseas, for a total of 24 worldwide. Ripley's moved its headquarters from Toronto to Orlando two years ago, putting its operations closer to the industry's leaders.

Early this year, the company purchased the rights to the Guinness World Records concept. It acquired five Guinness museums, which use graphic illustrations, videos and objects to depict records in a wide variety of categories.

Plans for reinvigorating the attractions include the building of a new, high-tech prototype in Orlando that will be used as a testing facility and showpiece for franchisees.

Masterson would not discuss specifics of Ripley's financial performance. But he said revenue has doubled in the past seven years and all of the attractions are profitable. Attendance is now at 10 million a year.

"Although Ripley's Believe It or Not! has really been the cornerstone of the company," Masterson said, "we realize that to grow we have to attach the Ripley's name to other things."

Most Florida immigrants from inside US

GAINESVILLE — The latest wave of foreign-born immigrants to Florida are coming from inside the United States, especially Cubans moving out of New York, a university study shows.

Between 1985 and 1990, Florida received 200,380 foreignborn immigrants from other states and 258,291 from other countries. California, the only state with more resettling immigrants, drew 233,952 foreign-born immigrants from other states, said June Marie Nogle, a research demographer at the University of Florida's Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

The impacts will be much more dramatic in Florida because it receives nearly as many foreign-born immigrants from other states as California does even though its population is much smaller," Ms. Nogle said Monday in a release.

Florida captured more foreign-born immigrants from New York between 1985 and 1990 than any other state, in fact, the 63.849 immigrants from New York who resettled in Florida represented the largest single movement of immigrants between any of the states, Nogle said.

New Jersey ranked second, giving Florida 26,738 resettling

The study's findings are from data collected as part of the 1990 census and released for the first time this fall.

When Cuban refugees came to the United States in the 1980s and 1970s, many refugee assistance programs tried to place them in various parts of the country. But as immigrants get older, they are moving to Florida to be near family members or because they want to live in a place with a stronger Cuban ethnic community, she said.

Kirk sues sugar Industry

TALLAHASSEE - South Florida augar growing should be halted because it causes health problems in residents of Belle Glade and other cane growing areas, a former governor says.

Monday to try to use Florida's nulsance laws to stop the industry's use of chemicals and burning of fields. Kirk told a news conference the plaintiffs include Albert.

Peterson and other Belle Glade residents who say they have respiratory and other problems due to chemicals and smoke from the sugar cane fields. The suit could ultimately "force the industry to pay ... 100 percent of the cleanup costs associated with the willful destruction of areas in and around Everglades National Park." Attorney Jack Scarola of West Palm Beach said the suit filed in Palm Beach County Circuit Court did not actually ask the industry to pay Everglades cleanup costs. "That is a potential area for expansion" of the suit, Scarola said.

No hearing dates had been set. The suit did not name a damage amount but said it seeks in excess of $10,000 for plaintiffs who suffered skin lesions, respiratory atlments and other health problems.

The suit also seeks a temporary injunction to bar growers U.S. Sugar Corp., Flo-Sun Inc., Okeelanta Corp. and A. Duda & Sons from continuing to operate.

'The way the courts are moving it will probably take two years to do it, but I am sure we will get it dismissed," said Bob Buker, a U.S. Sugar vice president.

Florida scientists want to try for climate prediction center

The Associated Press

Scientists at some of the state's universities want to build a climate prediction center that would let them better understand mysterious warming and cooling of the Pacific that has been blamed for drought in Africa, storms in California and hurricanes in the Atlantic.

The center, which would be in Tallahasace, would study global weather patterns, including El Nino (pronounced NEEN-yo), a phenomenon in which a warm-water current in the Pacifie changes its pattern. The temperature change in turn affects wind currents far above the

Scientists from Florida State University, the University of Florida, the University of South Florida and the University of iversities elsewhere in the United States to get federal funding for such a center.

The Florida scientists say that by understanding El Nino they can make two-year forecasts on some weather trends.

James O'Brien, a professor of meteorology and oceanography at Florida State University, says a climate center would help forecast whether a winter would be warm or cold and whether a summer would be wet or dry.

That would help farmers choose which crops, and how much, to plant, he said. Other uses of the center could include managing water resources, by helping regions know whether or not to expect a drought.

"If we know it's going to be a dry year in Argentina, a Midwestern farmer might plant said Jim Jones, a professor of agricultural and biological engineering at the University of

"In this country, it can make a three years. financial difference." said Christine Harwell, a marine policy specialist at the University of Miami. "For other countries, it's sustenance; it's living from day to day."

El Nino is caused by a change in ocean currents, allowing warm water to pool in the Pacific Ocean, near Peru and Ecuador.

As the warm water takes the place of colder water, the warm ocean surface water heats the humid air in places where it is usually chilled. The warm air rises and forms clouds that produce heavy rains in areas where they are not usually

The Florida scientists are competing against two other groups for federal funding. One group includes the Columbia University. The other includes the University of California at Los Angeles and the University of Hawaii.

Federal money in the center's first year would be $4 million to $5 million. The Florida scientists have requested $2.5 million in matching money from the state

Longwood teen's case against Love dropped

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO - Before the defense even put on any evidence, a judge threw out criminal charges against Courtney Love by two teen-agers who claimed the rock star had slugged them at a concert.

Orange County judge Janis Halker said the teen-agers were not exposed to any greater amount of violence than could be reasonably expected at an alternative rock concert.

After the verdict, Love said she thought Florida was a violent state where rock 'n' roll stars constantly get in trouble.

"Even the state of Florida is shaped like a gun," she said. pausing to sign autographs and kiss a couple of fans. Love, the widow of Nirvana band leader Kurt Cobain, said because of the charges against her she may have to rethink whether she will continue to dive into crowds at concerts.

Robert Lukas, 19, and Ryan O'Donell, 18, had claimed Love punched them during a concert in March at a club in Orlando.

"I felt it was proved beyond a doubt," said Lukas, a Florida Southern College student in Lakeland who claimed he was punched three times in the chest. "I'm upset she got off because of a technicality."

O'Donell, who spent about five hours on the witness stand Monday, said he thought it was wrong that a newspaper photo of Love with her flat cocked in front of him was not considered strong enough evidence.

Acquitted of manslaughter, he now faces murder charges

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEST PALM BEACH -Fourteen-year-old Anthony Reed gasped when a jury acquitted him of manulaughter in the shooting death of his friend Chris Carignan, 13.

But prosecutors say that shouldn't have been an expression of relief. They intend to try him for third-degree murder in the same case. But it wouldn't be double jeopardy, they said, because murder and manslaughter are separate crimes.

Reed's attorney, Patrick Curry, said, however, "It will be difficult for them to do some of the things that they're alleging that they're going to do."
That's because the third-degree murder charge hinges on Reed's guilty plea in a criminal mischief case, which his lawyers have challenged. They say Reed was rushed into the plea bargain after the Feb. 10 shooting and did not understand the deal.

That plea allowed the state to charge him with possession of a firm with possession of a firearm by a juvenile delin-quent, which then permitted the state to charge him with third-degree murder, in addition to manalaughter.

If a judge throws out the piece deal, the state could not pursue the third-degree murder count.

Prosecutors will ask a judge Thursday to hold Reed without bail. He was freed after his acquittal.

Check cashing

Sanford police arrested Ceell Lorenzo Dantels, 33, of 1206 W. 15th Street Saturday. Officers said they were called to a store in the 1100 block of W. 13th Street, regarding a man attempting to cash a check for $390, which the clerk reportedly knew had insufficient funds. Police said Daniels told them he was offered $100 by another man if he could cash the check. The other man was not immediately located. Daniels was charged with uttering a forged instrument. Officers found he was also wanted on an active warrant for violation of probation on a conviction of sexual battery.

Shots fired

Sanford police are investigating two shooting incidents Sunday. One of them occurred at the West Sanford Boys & Girls Club building at 919 S. Persimmon Avenue. Only one shot was said to have been fired, but it reportedly caused an estimated $300 damage to a window.

The second incident Sunday was at a residence in the 1300 block of S. Summerlin Avenue. Police said a total of 10 rounds of ammunition were fired into the front of the building. They said the bullets completely penetrated the building, exiting through the rear.

No one was reportedly struck by any of the bullets at either of the two locations.

Codes and comics

What has this world come to? These Sanford Herald editorial comments are in favor of a comic strip. A comic strip? Yes. The one appearing daily in this newspaper, written by Chic Young. It's Blondle.

For comic fans who do more than look for humor, it is apparent that for the past few months. Blondie has, in itself, been an editorial, a writing intended to bring something to light and get people to give it consideration.

To bring you up to date. During September, Young wrote about how Blondie, who has owned and operated a catering service from the kitchen of her home, has decided to obtain her own shop.

During most of the month of October, Chic Young dived headlong into the real estate industry, showing the complexity of finding a location for a small "mom-and-pop" type business.

Now, Mrs. Burnstead is faced with having to obtain the needed permits in order to set up her business. It's worth scanning on a daily

On November 1, after locating an alreadyexisting building. Blondie went to city hall. In order to set up her business, she was told she would have to get permits from the County Health Department, City Health Department, Consumer Affairs, Planning and Zoning, Licensing Board, Architectural Review Committee, and Environmental Impact

We can only imagine the additional number of permits she would have been required to obtain if she planned to build a new structure.

To put humor into the comic strip, Blondie asked the clerk where she would have to go next, if she obtained all the requested permits. The response was that the clerk didn't know, no one had ever gone that far before.

Chic Young is writing about real situations. He is a resident of W. Central Florida, and is probably well-versed on what our citizens have to go through in order to establish a

How did all of this get started? Back when the magnificent houses were built right here in what is now called the Sanford Historic District, a person simply bought a lot, built a house, and if a swimming pool or garage was needed, he built it. Then after obtaining utilities, he moved in with his family, and (hopefully) lived haptly ever after.

Depending on how long ago a house was built, there may have been no needed permits, or just a few. The number needed would grow as years passed.

Now, what Blondie Bumstead is finding. ian't far from wrong. It would take possibly that many permits to do the same right here in Sanford.

Why have we reached this point? No. This is one situation we can't blame entirely on a city or any government. The reason all of this has come about is from people abusing the rules and not caring about their neighbors.

For example, Let's assume that everyone in a certain city block has a beautiful brick home. Someone comes along and says, "Heck with them. I want an orange-colored metalsiding home with a purple roof. The neighbors, of course, object, (who could blame them?)

Then, the city is faced with coming up with restrictions to avoid this from happening again and to protect the rights of others. Ordinances and codes are put into place. Then more codes and more codes, until practically everything a person wants to do requires a permit from someone. Naturally, most of the permits cost money.

We don't know where Chic Young is going with this Biondie comic strip. Only time will tell, and regular Blondie comic strip readers will eventually find out who wins. Will it be Blondie or the city? Not only does the public have a right to know, but they must realise what is going on, and perhaps why we have fewer mom-and-pop type businesses than we

None of this would surprise my mother make them deplorable to the German people as a

When my mother was a girl in Russia, she suddenly found herself popped into an oven. A cold oven. Her mother, hearing that their town might soon be visited by a band of Jew-haters, wanted to protect her child by any means necessary.

My mother, in this country, thought she saw anti-Semitism almost everywhere. When I was growing up in Boston, I thought she was right. Hooligans came into our neighborhood beating up old men and boys, me among them. They said we were Christ-killers. In the movies, we saw newsreels of hooligans beating up old Jewish men and boys in Germany.

But there were no concentration camps here, and in time, I relaxed, although my mother

Still, although I have not directly experienced any anti-Semitism for many years, I am never surprised to see it emerge in the most unexpected places.

Consider the glossy, glittering first edition of George, a magazine edited by John F. Kennedy in a long article on the opposition to gangata rap and its demeaning of women, among others. Paul Alexander profiled a number of the combatants on both sides. The leading critic of gangeta rap is Delores Tucker, a liberal Democrat who marched with Martin Luther King and later founded the National Political Congress of Black Women. She has been a ceaseless battler for civil rights. One of Delores Tucker's friends, Dr. Frances Cress Welsing, who practices general and child psychiatry in Washington, D.C., has helped shape Dolores Tucker's thoughts about the causes of Welsing told the writer of the article that gangata rap is part of a conspiracy to set up black peo-ple "as the trash that should be extermi nated." So, too, she added, "prior to killing six million people, the Nazis waged a systematic campaign in the media to make the Semites of the Jewish religion look less than human, to be as specific as Welsing.

I am never surprised to see anti-Semitism emerge in the unexpected places.

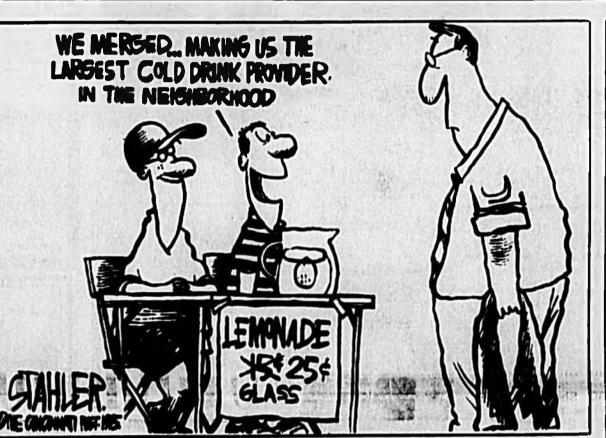

"The same dynamic," said Dr. Welsing, "is happening now. The issue is setting up black people as the trash that should be extermi-Delores Tucker agrees. As Paul Alexander wrote in the article, "she sees an ominous force in the culture, put there by nonblacks, that has as its ultimate goal the destruction of the black race in America.

Paul Alexander asked, "Who are they?" Tucker evaded the question, directing Alexander to her friend and adviser, Dr. Welsing. He reported Weising's grand conspiracy theory that with whites in this country increasingly angry -and decreasing in numbers - there are minority groups (such as Jews) who -- to keep the frustration and rage of whites away from them -focus hatred on other minorities. Particularly "To the extent," said Dr. Welsing, "that they are involved in the production of these gangsta rap records, the Jews are consciously or subconsciously acting out what happened to them (in Germany) and building up protection for themselves."

Delores Tucker did not disagree, but would not

It's The Economy, Stupid

BOSTON—So, anyway, I have this hot idea for a new daytime TV talk show. Sally, Jenny, Ricki, Montell Let's take a meeting! It's yours for the asking, kide!

for the asking, kide!

Here's the deal. Instead of another dreary program about another husband who cheats on his wife by having an affair with her transvestite teen-age brother—ho hum—how about one that chronicles the truly creative ways that people are getting ser-cope—bleeped by the economy. All you need to do is book the CEO of a corporation that's posting megaprofits while replacing-permanent workers with temps and trading perks for pink slips. There he is in the guest chair, when out from the green room—TA DA—pops a Sovear former employroom—TA DA+—pops a 30year former employ-ee who was outplaced into a creative new lifestyle as a cabdriver. You want conflict? Babe, you got it.

How about humor? OK, get the 25 top paid executives whose 1994 wages added up to $1.5 billion. Ask one to explain exactly why he's worth 510^000 day or $400 an hour. Let another justify earning two hundred times what his lowest-paid workers are getting. Get ready for the hoots and howls.

Want to get down and dirty) Line up a couple of honchos who premised jobs in return for state tax breaks and then took off with a new gal ... uh, state. Now that's the kind of infidelity that can get the blood boiling again. The beauty of my idea ien't just its obvious

The beauty of my idea ien't just its obvious entertainment value. It's that it might actually enlarge the vision of the moral monitors. Think about it. Virtue marketeer Bill Bennett has just turned his attention from the sordid sounds of rap music to the sleazy sights of daytime talk shows. He and Sen. Joseph Lieberman of Connecticut are going after the talk shows and the companies that produce what they generously call "rot." Their weapon

Now all I can say is: Go get 'em tiger. But after surfing through Benneti's " ocuvre, " his collected books of virtue. It seems to me that something is missing in the morality business. It's a take on the ethical relationships between employer and employee, between the economy and the society. What's missing in the morality business is business.

Bennett's books run through the virtues of selfdiscipline, compassion, responsibility, friendship, work, courage perseverance, honesty, loyalty and faith. But I could hardly find a tale of right, wrong and workplace in the whole lot.

All the virtue lessons these days seem to be about individual behavior. The only time we put a moral grid over corporate behavior is when some company TV network, or media mogul is mucking about in popular culture. Remember what Bob Dole saked the folks at

Time Warner last August? "Must you debase our nation and threaten our children for the sake of corporate profits? "Now there's a ques-tion worthy of my talk show host. Maybe if Dole's president thing doesn't work out, we'll audition him for the job.

But why limit the question to Time Warner? Why limit the talk about values to sex, violence, rap 'n' roll? in a conversation last week, Labor Secretary Robert Reich-the only man in the administration who still talks this way—said that. 'If companies have a moral responsibility not to fill the movie theater and airwaves with violence and moral degradation, do they not also have a responsibili-ty to keep workers employed when profits are rising? A moral responsibility to upgrade worker skills, an obligation to fully fund pension plans, to pro-vide health care? *

Book the CEO who's posting megaprofits while replacing permanent workers with temps and trading perks for pink slips.

Applying his own economic book of virtues. he's been trying to raise the minimum wage, get rid of sweatshops, and save the Earned Income Tax Credit. He's convinced that there's a "great pool of untapped indignation " about companies that are reaping and not sharing the benefits of an improved economy.

Executives in the 1950s talked almost routinely about their responsibilities to coners, workers and communities But today, Reich says, "The CEOs are remarkably quiet. We are acting as if the economy had nothing to do with values. We need a serious national discussion about corporate responsibility.

What we have instead is a rich, argumenta-tive vecabulary of right and wrong to use when we talk about our personal behavior and culture. When we get to the question of how we relate to each other in our economic life, we are reduced to the flat, parsimonious language of numbers and money.

Sally Jesse Raphael defends talk TV against Bennett & Company's charges of trash TV, by swearing that 'The purpose of the show is very much a morality play.

Well, that's a bit hard to swallow. But hon, if you want a morality play, have I got a new gig for you. The name of my ethics hour? You remember: "It's The Economy, Stupid."

Clinton, Cabinet are on different pages

WASHINGTON - If there was ever an example of how far adrift Bill Clinton has become from his own administration, consider a recent Cabinet meeting at which the president was a no-show.

Just days before Clinton joited Democrats by denouncing his record on taxes, White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta was warning Cabinet secretaries not to say anything inflammatory about the budget bettle that might "wind up hanging him (Clinton) out to dry," according to a source present.

But that's pretty much what Clinton did to fellow Democrats when he dropped a bombshell about his 1993 bud-get. Clinton con-Houston fund-raiser: "It might surprise raised them (taxes) too much too."

Had Clinton attended this particular Cabinet meeting last month. perhaps he would have heeded Panetta's plea to "keep the message clear." Although Panetta asked all BConsider a recent Cabinet meeting at which the president was a no-show.

Cabinet officials to submit patentially controversial statements about the budget to the White House for review, the president is the one who is not on the same page. Clinton blamed fatigue for his Houston faux pas, but many Democrats are beginning to believe public mishaps and mea culpse are congenital in the commander in chief, in the last few weeks, Clinton has made a habit of embarrassing self-flagellation in the presence of journalists.

"It's been difficult on both sides to figure out where we're going," one senior House Democratic strategist told us. "There's mutual suspicion. ... What constantly gets said is they (White House) are going to run against us in 1996, and everybody goes their OWN WAYS."

Democrats who harbor suspicions about Clinton's resolve recall the administration's remarkable evolution since last May, when House Democrats held a weekend retreat to discuss ways to combat the Republican budget. They broke into 15 groups of 10 members each, whose composition was designed to ensure a diversity of region, race, ideology and even age.

During the first exercise, information was elicited about constituents and their views. In the second exercise, members were asked to identify the three causes House Democrats must stand firm on. Finally, each group was asked to define what the Democratic Party in general should stand for.

Although sharp differences of opinion emerged from the third exercise, there was near-unanimity on the first two: Medicare was the issue on which Democrats had to lay down a marker.

Panetta gave a pep talk that afternoon, and Panetta gave a pep talk that afternoon, and-was extremely encouraged by the response, according to sources. But shortly thereafter, Clinton dismayed many of the attendees by backpedaling on the timetable for a balanced budget and by endorsing Medicare cuts. More recently, Clinton supported a Republican welfare reform bill that his own administra-tion concluded would push 1.1 million more children into powerty. children into poverty.

Clinton's credibility gap has undercut his administration's ability to sound the alarm and be taken seriously. When Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole said Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin had become too "political" in his discussions about the debt limit, he spoke for some Democrats too.

"But we have parents dropping their kids off on campus before 7 s.m. with no place to go," Bingham said.

YMCA programs are available for less than $20 per week at many schools.

The school tried to position a staff person at the front of the school to turn parents away who tried to drop the youngsters off early, but the drop offs switched to other spots on campus

Dave Scott, principal at Idyliwiide Elementary School said the problem is not so pronounced at his school where a dozen students are enrolled in the YMCA program and there have been only two instances this year where other students have been dropped off too early.

"They both had a problem with getting to work on time and finding something to do with their children," Scott said.

He said the school is always willing to help parents find some alternative care for the children before and after school. Parents are encouraged to drop the children off with neighbors who arrive at school at the appropriate time or to arrange for a carpool.

'What it comes down to," Scott said, "is making a choice between getting to work on time and the safety of their child."

Bingham added that the schools can not be responsible for children who are dropped off randomly around campus.

Right now, the school does not have a program of before or after school care so students are brought to "holding areas" in the media center and in the cafeteria to wait for classes to begin. Arrangements are being discussed to have the Boys and Girls Club provide a program for the students at a cost of $1 per year, which is the normal dues for joining the club.

The problem of students being dropped off early and left late is not limited to Seminole County, however.

At Deer Park Elementary in New Port Ritchey. just north of Tampa, most of the kids who arrive early get there on foot or riding bikes, receptionist Linda Petrynice said Monday. School doesn't start until 9:15 a.m.

Welfare cuts

WASHINGTON - Just as Congress prepares to push tens of thousands of people out of the largest federal cash welfare program, the government is spending millions trying to persuade poor people to apply for the very same benefits.

Supplemental Security Income is one of the government's fastest-growing entitlement programs. It has also run into flerce criticism in recent years because its monthly benefits. targeted chiefly for the elderly, blind and disabled, also go to drug addicts, alcoholics, immigrants and jail inmates.

Since 1990, the Social Security Administration has provided $33 million for promotion of SSI, with advocacy groups using government grants to go from door to door and buy ads on television, bus benches and grocery sacks.

Now, amid Republican promises to rein in SSI as part of a larger welfare overhaul, one Senate subcommittee wants to spend an additional $6 million to bring more elderly people into the program.

Nursing

November 29, with applications to be made to the Florida Agency for Health Care Administration.

According to Susan Shewmake, director of planning for the Local Health Council of East Central Florida, in Winter Park, once the state determines that additional health care/nursing home facilities are needed, (which they have), it becomes the responsibility of various companies to file for a Certificate of Need (CON). "After the deadline for filing for CON's," she explained. "the state will look over all of the applications and make a determination regarding who will have the authority to build and operate the facility.

'At this time," she continued, "no one needs to specify exactly where they might build one, but they are required to give the number of rooms and approximate cost they expect the development would cost."

She explained that while the state specified the need for as many as 117 beds in the facilities, some applications may be less than that number, hoping that the state will select several of them, to bring the total up to the number recommended.

The HRS District 7 encompases Orange, Seminole, Brevard in that, the Subdistrict 4 is used to identify Seminole County.

As of the listing compiled on October 30, the following applications have been submitted for the new facility to be located within Seminole County:

Health Care Retirement Corporation of America, for a 117 bed nursing home, costing $10 million.

•Genesis Health Ventures, to build up to 117 bed nursing home. Cost. $9,945.000.

•SHCC Services, Inc., add up to 40 nursing home beds to Florida Living Nursing Center. Cost, $2 million.

· Life Care Centers of America, to build a 117 bed nursing home at $10 million.

• Regency Health Care Centers, Inc., for a 117 bed nursing home, at a cost of $8 million.

• Beverly Savana Cay Manor. Inc., to build up to 117 bed nursing home. Cost, $9 million. Arbor Health Care Company, build a 117 bed nursing home at $10 million cost. • Arbor Health Care Company, add 67 nursing home beds to Arbors at Orlando, for $10 million. ● Renaissance Retirement Ltd. II, to build up to a 117 bed nursing home. Cost, $8,500,000. Nariner Health Care, of Pinellas Point, Inc., build 117 bed nursing home at $8 million.

American Medical Associand Osceola counties. Included ates, Inc., build 117 bed nursing home for $8 million.

Central Florida Regional Hospital, to establish a 27 bed hospital-based SNU (nursing unit), by conversion of 27 neute beds at a cost of $1 million.

The deadline still has not been reached, and there is a 16 day grace period allowed by HRS. Shewmake said she fully expects additional CON requests to be submitted to her office. There was no immediate in-

Now, in addition to the walls and fences which cannot be altered, the city is trying to add 'rural-type mailboxes, clustertype mailboxes, newspaper receptacles, and miscellaneous printed material distribution facilities" to the items.

Discussions on this point have been both pro and con. While there are persons who believe there must be control over such things as mailboxes in the historic area to insure a continuation of the historic appearance, others disagree. They say that to force additional paperwork and appeals to boards and/or committees every time a mail box is damaged by a vandal, or other problems occur, is more than the average citizen should be reguired to follow.

The draft of amendments will be reviewed during tomorrow's meeting.

The meeting is scheduled to begin this Wednesday, at 4:30 p.m., in the city commission conference room of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Lake Mary students have formula for Chemistry Week

By VICKI Dosommer Herald Senior Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - So you think Chemistry is a dry, boring sub-

Think again.

The science students at Lake Mary High School are feteing their favorite subject matter this week as they celebrate National Chemistry Week.

The week, sponsored by the American Chemical Society, is designed to enhance the public's awareness of the contributions that chemistry makes to society and our every day lives.

'We sometimes don't think about all of the ways chemistry affects our lives," chemistry teacher Debbie Torres said.

Torres is the faculty sponsor who, with a committee of students, has planned the school's chemistry week celebration.

The committee decided to show the community the ways in which chemistry makes a difference in the lives of everyone.

"Our food, clothing, houses, cars, medicines - all the things we can see, taste, touch or smell depend on modern chemistry," Torres explained.

One of the highlights of the week, she said, is when the classes get together to assemble a human periodic table in the Don T. Reynolds football

School officials are checking to see if that display is the biggest human periodic table on record.

Frank Schwartz, a spokesman for the school, said the Guinness Book of World Records is being consulted and the Guinness officials have been contacted in case a record is broken.

Throughout this week, the students are dressing up as their favorite scientists and helping to educate the others in the school community about the contributions that person made to science and how those contributions affect us today.

Also, the chemistry students will seek their fame and fortune by participating in the Chemical Trivia Game Show where they will compete against one another for the title of top chemistry student.

The students at Lake Mary High School are planning for a fun and enlightening week learning about chemistry.

The Baltimore Browns?

BALTIMORE — In a stunning deal involving two of the most storied cities in NFL history, the Browns said Menday they would abandon Cleveland and move to Baltimore next season. It marked the third time in a year that an NFL franchise moved to a city where pro football had failed once before.

failed once before.

Owner Art Modell ended 45 years of MPL tradition in Cleveland by signing a 30-year lease to play in Baltimore. The financial plan being offered by Maryland Stadium Authority chief John Mong was too good: a $300 million stadium to be built by the state, up to $75 million in manual for marine arrange, and million in money for moving expenses and state-paid improvements to Baltimere's Memorial Stadium, where the Browns will play their first two seasons.

Oviedo, Lake Mary girls knocked out of playoffs

By GARY COATOAM Herald Staff Writer

MIDDLEBURG - Oviedo was limited to a mere eight kills Monday in a 15-3, 15-6 loss to Middleburg in Class 6A regional semifinal volleyball action. The Broncos beat the Lions and avenged a loss in the 6A sectional finals last season.

"When I told our kids we had a choice of playing DeLand or Oviedo, they said 'We want Oviedo'," said Middleburg coach Carrie Prewett. "We have had Oviedo on our minds since we beat Niceville last week."

Oviedo squandered five side-out opportunities and had only one kill while Middleburg jumped out to an 11-0 advantage in game one. Cindy Liljenquist finally got the Lions on the scoreboard with three straight service points to trim the margin to 11-3. Unfortunately for the Lions, the Broncos closed out the game with four straight service points after the two teams traded side-outs.

"We were a little nervous, and we didn't play as well as we could have," said Oviedo coach Anita Carlson. "Middleburg is a very good team, and I don't want to take anything away from them. Last year we played them in our gym, and this year we played in their gym. That made a difference. We missed a lot of serves, which we don't normally do. We also got a little intimidated."

Two service points by Michelle Cutter gave Oviedo a short-lived 2-1 lead to start game two. Middleburg then took a 6-2 lead before Shannon Munns trimmed the deficit to 6-3. Five straight service points by the Broncos made the score 11-3, but Cutter pulled Oviedo to within 11-4 with a service point. Middleburg extended the lead to 14-4, but Oviedo fought back one last time when Munns posted two service points to make the score 14-6. The Broncos then closed out the match after the teams exchanged side-

Munns and Bonnie Dedelow each had two kills to lead the Lions' attack, while Liljenquist, Michele Lowe, Leah Harkiewicz and Laurene Booth each added one. Oviedo defeated Lake Mary in the 6A. District 4 championship to reach the state playoffs, and later defeated 6A, District 3 runner-up DeLand to reach the regional semi-finals. The Lions finished the season with an overall record of 21-6.

"We had a really good season," Carsion said. "We did much better than anyone expected. I'm very happy with the way the team came through in the regular season and district tournament."

In other 6A regional semifinal action Monday, Lake Mary lost at Pensacola Escambia 15-3, 15-10. The Rams, who were runner-up in 6A, District 4, finished with an overall record of 15-13. Lake Mary defeated 6A, District 3 champion Deltona to reach the regional semi-

Leah Harklewicz (No. 10) and Michelle Lowe (right) had one kill each, but the Oviedo Lions were knocked out of the state volleyball playoffs by the Middleburg Broncos in the Regional Semifinals Monday night.

Cowboys, 49ers to meet for Majors Flag title

SANFORD — Just like in the National Football League, it will be the 49ers and Cowboys fighting for the Major Division championship of the Sanford Recreation Department Youth Flag Football League.

The 49ers won a doubleheader and the Cowboys won their game Batteriay at Sanford Middle School to set a meeting for the championship next week. The Cowboys used an excellent defensive effort to edge the Raiders 14-7, but the 49ers maintained their one game lead by blanking the Jaguars 19-0 and nipping the Raiders 12-6.

In the other game, the Steelers scored with

From Staff Reports

PANAMA CITY - Despite 32 points from freshman guard John Mobley, the Seminole Community College men's basketball team dropped its season opener Friday, losing 99-89 to the Gulf Coast Community College Commodores in the Applebee's Classic.

Earlier Friday, Okaloosa-Walton CC thrashed Alabama's Bishop State CC, 79-42.

The Raiders return to action tonight, Tuesday, Nov. 7, at Indian River Community ColRaiders will host Polk Community College. On Friday night, Mobley (from Rochester, N.Y.) tossed in a game-high six three-point field goals to highlight his 32-point performance. Sophomore power forward Arnett Young (Washington D.C.) added 18 points and 12 rebounds while small forward Toree Thompson (Greenville, S.C.) contributed 11 points.

Freshman point guard Bennie Taylor (Savannah, Ga.) collected 11 assists, eight rebounds, and five points.

The Commodores, which had six players score in double figures, broke away from a 46-46

Raiders 53-43 in the second half.

Volunteer of the Week

She extends loving care to others

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Vivian Farmer has been a resident of Sanford for 12 years. Although now a widow, she has found that by surrounding herself with people through her volunteering she has been able to keep the loneliness at bay.

For over 11 years Farmer has labored as an auxiliary volunteer at Central Florida Regional Hos-pital, now owned by Colombia / HCA. Working from three to five days a week and from four to six hours a day, Farmer keeps her schedule filled with her loving care extended to others. She recently received her pin for 8,000 hours of volunteer time donated to the organization.

Many co-workers agree that Farmer is "one of the most real and genuine people" they know. One co-worker commented," She's such a happy and generous person."

Farmer admitted that after her husband passed away she tried to stay home. "I took up crocheting," she said. "I just got bored at home. When you lose your husband you need something to do to take your mind off of things."

Her talent of crocheting has also been used to help at the hospital. Most newborns wear items. "Last year I made Thanksgiving dolls for the raffle," she said. "I will make Santa dolls this year."

Not only does Farmer create little treasures for parents with new babies but she makes special Christmas hats for those born near the holiday season.

Many doctors, nurses and other employees have reaped the benefits of cozy afgans, pillows and booties to sport their tiny bundles about town.

Farmer commented," I love people. I've met so many lonely people. It's nice to be able to help them. The other auxiliary workers have become like family

Duties from working at the information deak, surgical waiting room, short stay surgical deak to cholesterol screening all prove Farmer's flexibility and willingness to assist. As membership chairman of the auxiliary. Farmer reviews applicailiary. Farmer reviews applications of interested parties for volunteer activities at the hospi-

Some days I interview four to five people," she said. "After I interview the people I give them a tour of the hospital."

From running errands, answering the phone, delivering patients to various floors, col-lecting money for cholesterol screening and general inquiries, Farmer keeps on her toes volun-teering her time and sharing her

Teach children kindness

DEAR READERS: I printed a DEAR READERS: I printed a letter from a woman signed "Worried Mom in Virginia." Her son, a sixth-grader, was estracised and teased by his classmates. I asked readers to share their solutions to this painful problem. Yesterday, I ran responses from adults who shared their mercennal experishared their personal experi-ences as children. Today we hear from parents. Head on:

DEAR ABBY: We, too, have a son who was teased and mocked and made fun of. Our son is fun, nice, bright and polite. In other words, he doesn't quite fit the "macho" mold.

"macho" mold.

I would like to bring up some points for "Worried Mom in Virginia" that are quite important:

1. Don't allow the school system to tell you that your child needs to see a psychologist. There is nothing wrong with him. If the psychologists want to help someone, tell gists want to help someone, tell them to start working on all the bullies in the schools. They are the ones who need help.

2. You pay taxes. Your child has a right to an education in a non-violent environment. Keep hammering away at the administration.

3. Talk to other parents. You'd be surprised at how many have horror stories to tell.

4. Assure your child that he's OK. Point out that his termenters must feel so bad about themselves, they have to pick on someone else in order to feel better.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

This happened in a small town in Minnesota: After months of com-plaining to the administration, the parents finally "wired" their son, and with that concrete evidence, they sued the school board and won! That woke up a lot of school districts around here.

My son is now in ninth grade and things will get better!

MINNESOTA MOM

DEAR MOM: Many parents will appreciate your height let-ter. Read on for a different solu-tion to the problem:

DEAR ABBY: It is unbelievable that a child being teased for four years is tolerated in our "enlightened" society. I am 67 years old and remember very well the taunts from both teachers and children because I was thin sickly and frequently. I was thin, sickly and frequently

My own four children fared quite well. However, one of my 12 grand-children has had a particularly bad time. "Craig" suffers from asthma and Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD). His teachers had no patience or understanding and sin-gled him out for "discipline."

gled him out for "discipline."

My daughters volunteer their time on the playground, as well as in the classroom.

When did society decide to put children in institutions to relieve parents of their responsibility to raise their offspring in person? The schools should be filled with adults to help in every area. Children of all ages need constant loving supervision. Abandoning them to raise each other has led to most of society's problems.

The world won't improve until children are taught kindness along with the 3 R's.

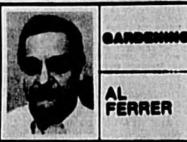

Shorter days cause plant color change

With the shortening of the daylight hours, the leaves on many trees and shrubs are starting to change colors. A few temperate climate plants found around the area will remind us around the area will remind us of the color changes that occur in the fall. As we are all aware, in the fall, chlorophyll production alows as the trees prepare for winter and finally it is depleted white other pigments become more visible. Other pigments in the legyes contribute to the colors we see in the fall. One of the major components of the the major components of the colors in the leaves is a yellow pigment called Xanthophyll, Other pigments present are called anthocyanins and are responsible for the met colors of responsible for the red color of responsible for the red color of some leaves. Carotene, the pigment found in carrots, produce the orange colors.

As the days grow shorter and the nights longer, an internal clock inside the plants, triggers a chain reaction that is responsible for these changes. The amount of hours of light or relationaried and not the temper. photoperiod and not the temperature is what causes the plants to change from their normal green color to their autumn

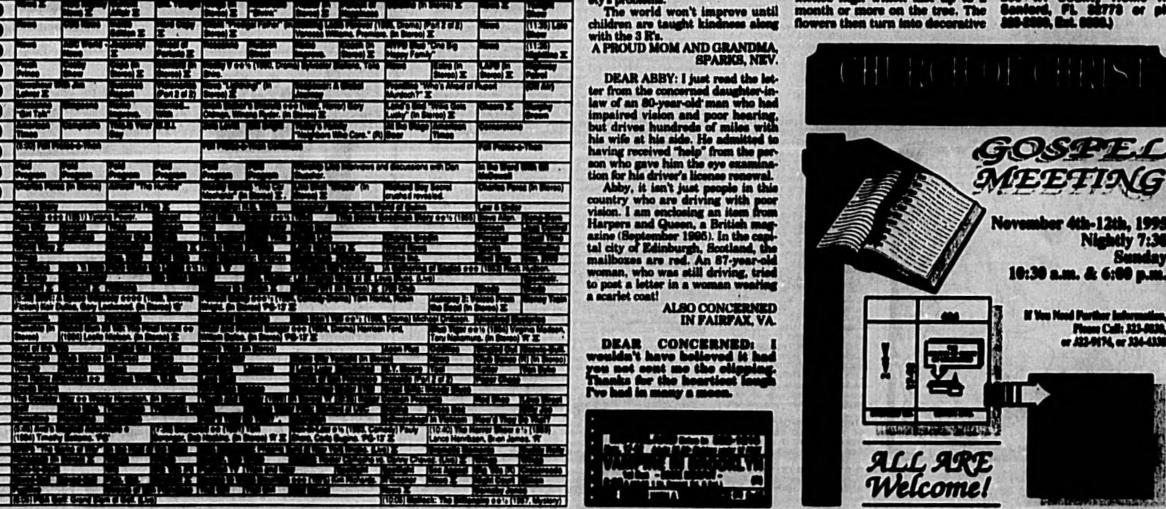

Here in Central Plorida, we do not have the wonderful display of red, yellow and oranges that some of our northern neighbors will enjoy. But, we do have some trees that just as beautiful to see in the fall. There is one tree in nexticular that will tall you that in the fall. There is one tree in particular that will tell you that the fall season is here. The guiden rain-tree can now be seen all over Seminole County producing bright yellow frangrant flowers in panicles up to 18 inches high which last up to a month or more on the tree. The flowers then turn into decorative page y, which make the trees even more beautiful. The fruits matue about one month after the yellow blossoms fade and persist for a month or more on the tree. The tree is native to China and Korea and it is related. botanically, to the lychee and scapberry. The golden rain-tree is well adapted to Central Florida and can be found in most nurseries and garden centers or you can find seedlings under your neighbors fruiting tree.

The sweet gum tree is another good-looking tree. This tree produces greenish flowers that appear in small clusters at the appear in small clusters at the end of twigs, the flowers develope into globular burr-like fruits on long stome. In the fall, the leaves turn into striking red. purple and golden yellow colors. Volunteers can also be found under old trees. The sweet gum tree is neither to Florida and can tree is native to Florida and can be grown with relatively little
