Not A Bad Idea

That is the headline French newspapers carried yesterday as President Léonard's decree dissolving the Communist party was published in every newspaper whatever its political color.

No more can secret agents of the Moscow government acting under the guise of a legitimate political party seek the overthrow of the government and the confiscation of all private property. Anyone who preaches such doctrine deserves to be condemned.

This is the natural consequence of the Russian invasion of France's little ally, Poland, and of the still mysterious deal which has been cooked up between Hitler and Stalinism. If Russia is going to fight France, she will have to do it in the name of her own people.

As the Communists constitute the second largest political party in France, the importance of this move can be gauged only by comparing it with the outlawing of the Right-wing party in this country by President Roosevelt.

A move like this is in line with the Republicans' recognition of alienage in this country.

It seems to us that the French have set a good precedent. Why should we allow agents of Moscow and Berlin to plot openly against our government? It strikes us that all Nazi or Communist aliens, at least, should be rounded up and placed in a concentration camp.

Pepper On Hitler

Speaking the other night at a mass meeting supporting the proposed changes in the Neutrality Act, Senator Clark Pepper called Hitler "a great international scoundrel."

Hitler, he said, was a master of manipulation. Very probably if the Senator expressed his real views on the Nazi dictator, they could not be repeated in the presence of little children.

British propaganda convinced the American people during the War that Hitler was a scoundrel. We see now that he was not. But compared with Hitler he was a gentleman. It requires no British propaganda to let the American people know what Hitler is.

If the American people can bring Hitler to the bar of justice, it would be a good idea to clean up this summer's old score.

Everyone is preparing for any eventuality. It has been up to 25 reserves.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to clean up this summer's old score? Over thought, I should say.

Paderewski was deeply interested. "Do you mean to tell me you are happier now than you ever expected to be when you were 18?"

Warsaw is reported as having been with all his heart. He said he had fallen in love with a girl he met in Paris. And when he met her again, she replied:

"M. Morrow," he exclaimed with a low bow, "please permit me the honor of meeting your husband!"—Christian Science Monitor.

Andrew Jackson, seventh President of the United States, had been living with his wife Rachel for two years when they learned that her divorce from her first husband was not valid. A proper decree was obtained, and they married at once. Then he got out a pair of pistols, cleaned and oiled them, and put them in condition to shoot the first man who made a slight remark about his wife.

Three pistols were kept ready for instant use for 37 years. At least twice were they used. The first time no one was hurt except a bystander, presumably innocent, and he badly. But the second offendee died. Thereafter, people eschewed reference to adultery when Andrew Jackson was within earshot.—Gerald W. Johnson, Andrew Jackson, An Epic in Homespun (Minton, Balch)

Until McKinley came to the White House, it was the custom for the Secretary of State to take dinner to the wife of the Lady of the White House. But guests assembled for McKinley's first diplomatic dinner noticed that the President gave his arm to his frail, sweet-faced little wife and escorted her to the dining room. Seating himself at the head of the table, he turned to his wife and said: "I would like to have you sit next to me." From that hour, Mrs. McKinley was always at her husband's side at any public affair, regardless of custom or precedent. And that awful day in Buffalo, holding his hands to the gaping wound in his side, he found strength to murmur: "She's sleeping." That news brought gentle consolation to the nation. And if he had given her the chance, she would have slept beside him.

Concluding a lengthy editorial concerning what the United States can and will stay out of the European War, the New York Tribune has been most judicious in its attitude. It says: "We shall do our best to stop bombing Germany with pamphlets and start bombing Hitler with pamphlets. And if Hitler does not conform to our wishes, we shall do our best to stop bombing him with pamphlets and start bombing him with bombs."

It would appear that the time for bombing Hitler has passed. But the pamphlets have more effectiveness than bullets. Let us hope that the world may soon get some of the pamphlets she has been giving the

Control Of Citrus Marketing In State To Start Sunday

MELKLAND, Sept. 28.—(UPI)—1939-40 federal marketing for Florida citrus goes into effect Sunday at one minute past midnight and grade and restrictions on Florida grapefruit and orange shipments begin.

The growers' administrative committee operating under the marketing agreement accepted a recommendation yesterday from the shippers' advisory committee that shipments for a two-week period starting Monday be restricted as follows:

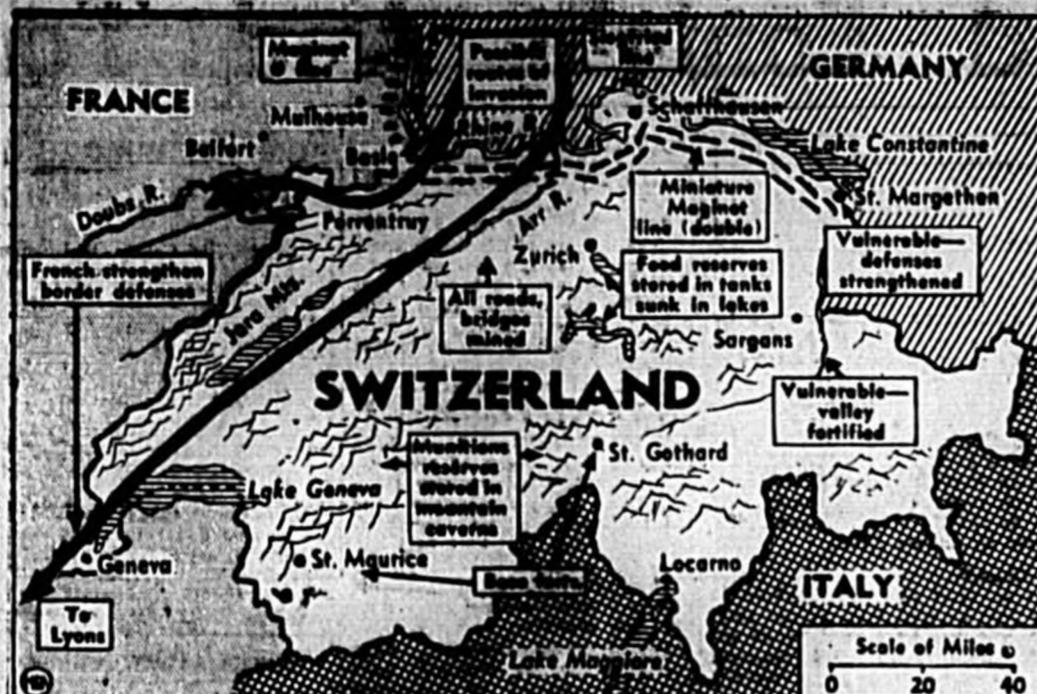

Banded and seedless grapefruit to grades higher than U. S. No. 3 and seeded grapefruit to sizes 80 and larger. No size restriction on seedless grapefruit.

Oranges to U. S. Grade No. 8 and higher, with no restriction on them.

The shippers' committee made the recommendation at a meeting prior to that of the growers' committee. The growers' administrative group, in turn, will recommend its restrictions to Secretary Wallace, who formally puts them into effect.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the state citrus commission would have a display at the national restaurant association's annual convention and exposition Oct. 2-6 at Chicago.

"The restaurants have been very important outlets for substantial quantities of Florida citrus," said L. W. Marvin, ad-

Russians, Germans Plan Cooperation To End Hostilities

Agreement Calls For Discussion On Necessary Measures In Event War Continues

Poland Is Divided Into Two Portions

Economic Program Is Designed To Give Reich Materials

A German-Russian pledge to drive together to end the European war over-shadowed today hostilities on the Western Front.

Nazi Germany and Communist Soviet Russia in a series of agreements reached in Moscow:

First, committed themselves to consult each other "to necessary measures" unless Great Britain and France agreed to peace in their war against Germany.

Second, partitioned fallen Poland, each taking about one-half of the nation's territory.

Third, planned to draw up an economic program by which Soviet raw materials will be delivered to Germany.

At the same time Soviet Russia and Estonia, reached sweeping mutual assistance and trade agreements with Russia and the right to fortify two strategic Estonian Islands and bases as naval and air bases.

And land and air forces are allowed in certain areas.

It was heard that provisions would be made for garrisoning 28,000 Soviet troops in Estonia.

With the Nazi-Soviet pact signed, Germany turned its attention to attack.

While units of Heinkel had been shot down by German patrols.

German aggression on the western front relatively minor.

On the Eastern Front, German High Command announced, Poland will begin marching out of Warsaw tonight, but it probably will not be until Oct. 2nd. Instead of not being until Oct. 2nd, instead of today, that German troops take possession of the Western Front.

The French War Minister said there was a calm night along the entire front.

On the war, three Norwegian freighters were sunk today and yesterday in their North Sea. All crews were saved.

The German-German agreement to concentrate their efforts to conquer in co-operation with other friendly powers toward ending the war between Germany and the allied British.

French promised the widest and most immediate reduction internationally.

From pledges by the two nations, it was thought "it is necessary to make a formal statement" if that effort were unsuccessful. It was interpreted in Moscow as an implied threat of possible military action by them against Germany's enemies. informed sources in London said Britain's determination to continue the war against Germany was changed no way by the Russian-German actions.

Prime Minister Chamberlain will make an official statement on the subject next Monday.

In Paris, the decision was referred to Britain and France for their security and the security of all civilians in German-Bohemian provinces. German-Bosnian provinces to half the war were urged.

Berlin—the Russian-German agreement was interpreted as apparently ending France's role in the war. France, in turn, expressed the hope that the German-Bosnian provinces would receive formal recognition.

British assistance, particularly that the two countries will give each other every assistance, including military.

French plans, like the right to nominate several bases in Germany, were also agreed upon.

New Government Assumes Control Over Rumanians New Premier Formerly Was Minister In Different Positions

BUCHAREST, Sept. 29.—(AP)—A new Rumanian government was sworn in last night in King Carol's castle ending a military rule which followed the Iron Guard's assassination of Premier Calinescu.

Constantine Argetoianu, a rabid veteran, was appointed premier. He succeeded Gen. George Argeanu who took over the reins of government Sept. 21 when Calinescu was slain.

Others given their oath were Nicolae Orescu, minister of interior; Alexander Radan, minister of propaganda and press; and later without portfolio Constantine Glavan. Orescu replaced Gen. Gheorghe Muresanu who was named to the ministry of public safety.

The new premier, a leader of the Agrarian party before it was absorbed by Carol's pro-party ministry, first served as minister of justice in 1918 and held the post of minister of finance, interior and agriculture.

Completion of the "pacification measures" which followed Calinescu's assassination permitted Argeanu to return to his post as commander of the second army corps.

Informed sources said it was probable 2000 Iron Guards and their sympathizers were executed following the assassination.

Mothers Urged To Keep Sons From War

Mothers of America were asked to take a strong stand against sending their sons to fight in Europe, a letter in a letter received by Mrs. E. H. Lander this morning from Mrs. Anna H. Jolly of Atlanta.

The letter reads:

"The mothers of America have the right to act quickly to keep our boys out of the deadly struggle in Europe. Are we going to let the Hitlerites and see our boys drafted into another war more ghastly than the first World War? We have got to work quickly, and believe we can help very much. I demand that all civilian mothers in Germany-Bosnian provinces to half the war were urged.

Berlin—the Russian-German agreement was interpreted as apparently ending France's role in the war. France, in turn, expressed the hope that the German-Bosnian provinces would receive formal recognition.

Proposed Law Would Modify Arms, States Anti-Loan Act Army Officer

Senate Does Not Wish To Discriminate Against Allies, Pittman Declares

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Chairman Pittman, (Dem., Tenn.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said today that the Administration's bill would modify the Johnson Act, forbidding loans to nations in default on World War debts.

Senator Johnson, (Republican, Calif.) promptly announced he would offer an amendment to the bill to prevent it from conflicting with the anti-loan act he sponsored several years ago.

Pittman said he brought the Johnson Act bill to the Senate to permit the provision of the new bill permitting $100 million credits to belligerents. "The Johnson Act was passed in peace time," Pittman said. "We are now facing a new condition in Europe."

He added that because Germany was not classed as a war debt defaulter it could, so far as that act was concerned, borrow all the money. American citizens are willing to lend to the other hand, he said. Great Britain and France could obtain no advances under the Johnson Act was modified.

The committee chairman said he did not believe the Soviets would "wish to discriminate in favor of Germany against France and Great Britain."

A dramatic story of the reconciliation between Franklin Roosevelt and Virginia Senator Harry F. Byrd, the elderly senator made slow progress in his fight against an attack of bronchitis.

Senator Glass, a vigorous critic of the President's spending policies and his unsuccessful effort to reorganize the supreme court, regarded Roosevelt's appeal to Congress last week for renewal of the arms embargo as the best speech he ever made.

When the 81-year-old legislator went to see the President a few hours after that address was delivered, he said reluctantly that Roosevelt slapped him on the back and exclaimed:

"Well, it took a war to get us together again. I hope it will take an earthquake to separate us!"

They talked about revision of the neutrality law, a question on which, generally speaking, they saw eye to eye. And the senator accused the Virginian state government of being responsible for the fact that the Soviets had withdrawn in behalf of the favorite.

Even though a successor to Stephen F. Chadwick, Seattle, had been officially announced, enthusiastic Legionnaires rushed to the stage of launching their State banner which they clustered around the man of their choice.

Address Unknown Will Be Produced Soon By Sam Byrd

With plans well under way for his production of Roark Bradford's and Jacques Wolfe's "John Henry" and with Paul Robeson from Illinois and a sedan from Texas to begin rehearsals in the title role, Byrd indicated today that he has acquired all rights to the dramatic version of one of the famous of all contemporary short stories, Kreisberg Taylor's study of psychological and spiritual disintegration under the Nazi regime, "Address Unknown."

"Address Unknown" has been dramatized by David Seltzer, a well-known international producer, and Elliott Moyers, magazine editor and husband of the author. Seltzer first directed literary attention as a post with his volume, "Cobblerstones," published soon after his return from active service in the World War in the 87th Division. Since then he has served the United Press and the International News Service as a roving reporter in many parts of the world. In addition to buying dramatic rights to "Address Unknown," he will produce it in New York.

Give Allies Would Modify Arms, States Anti-Loan Act Army Officer

Capt. De Wolski Hits At Chamberlain For Lack Of Preparation For War By Poles

Citing the United States' unpreparedness for war as the principal reason the British and French should be given full access to this nation's unlimited resources, Capt. Stanislaw De Wolski, refugee officer in the U. S. Army and former officer in the Polish army, declared last night that it would be much cheaper to "give" the allies needed armaments "now" for the destruction of Nazi Germany than to wait until later when American soldiers would have to be sent to the battlefield to be slain.

Beginning a new series of discussions on international affairs, Capt. de Wolski declared that action on the western front would continue as it has since the beginning of the war so long as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is head of the British government.

He blamed the British Prime Minister for the unpreparedness of the Polish army when Hitler struck and said that there is opposition being voiced against his rule, particularly by the British people. "It's Chamberlain's policy to play a 'waiting game,'" the speaker said. "But how long does he intend to play this game? Until Russia and Germany have divided the remainder of Europe? It will be too late then and in the end the Allies will find themselves on the short end."

The Polish commander-in-chief, the speaker said, desired to mobilize Poland's army as soon as Germany began to concentrate its main strength on its western frontier.

Chamberlain caustic that such a move on Poland's part would be antagonistic to the peace negotiations which were underway with Hitler, and as a result, when Germany struck with full force, the Poles were not ready and there was no chance to organize after the entry of the Germans.

Deplored the lack of defense for the United States. One is now warned that Hitler is now in his path toward world control.

It is even admitted by the Chief of Staff of the United States Army, he said, that this nation does not have more than enough ammunition for six days of fighting and that it would be impossible to immediately place adequately armed and equipped divisions in battle two full divisions of inadequately armed and poorly equipped divisions of soldiers. The leading army of this nation which sideswiped the Polish truck, sustained many cuts and bruises but was released from the hospital about noon today.

The driver of the truck, Robert Murphy, and his assistant, John Gause, emerged with only minor cuts and bruises.

The driver of the truck told investigating officers that they were headed west on the highway and met the Dodge Sedan driven by Curley on a slight curve in the road. The driver of the sedan which sideswiped the truck, had been driving his car into the parking lanes on the highway and struck it in an effort to avoid a collision.

The sedan struck the left front of the truck, knocking off the left front wheel. The semi-trailer loaded with fuel and out of control, careened across the road, plunged down the embankment on the left of the road and mud in the water and mud in the stream washed the truck into the road.

The force of the impact almost buried the whole front end of the truck in the soft mud.

The truck which belonged to the Citizens Oil Company, of Tallahassee and Tarpon Springs, which belonged to Mrs. Porter's son, was practically demolished.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Williams, who investigated the accident for the Sheriff's Office, said that no arrests had been made but added that an investigation was being conducted.

The accident happened within just a few feet of a similar mishap which took the lives of two men little more than a year ago. Sheriff Hand said that it might be possible that the drivers of the auto in both accidents were not able to see the car because of the lights on the approaching vehicles, and drove straight ahead, believing that they were on the right of the highway.

He said there was no fog which could have obscured the vision of the drivers of the sedan, who has not told officers his version of the accident.
