Outage won't delay launch

A power outage delayed charging the Hubble space telescope's batteries Monday, but NASA officials say the problem was a minor one and won't delay next week's scheduled shuttle launch.

The outage was caused by a broken water line but no equipment was damaged.

The shuttle Discovery is scheduled to carry the telescope into space a week from today. The ultra-sensitive, high-power telescope is expected to give scientists the best view ever of the distant corners of the galaxy.

Pilots may take wage cuts

MIAMI — Eastern Airlines' union pilots have apparently approved an agreement calling for 25 percent wage cuts and a reduction in benefits, early returns from union voting indicated.

Pilots spokesman E.J. Breen said that while final results were not in, it was clear from the early returns that the pilots would approve the temporary agreement.

Voting took place during the past week and Breen said final totals would be announced soon.

The temporary agreement, drafted last month by negotiators for the Air Line Pilots Association, calls for a 25 percent pay cut, reductions in the company's payments to the pilots' pension plan and medical benefits, and an increase in the pilots' monthly flying time. The agreement expires July 1.

Negotiation between Eastern and its pilots are being overseen by the National Mediation Board. The pilots' negotiators believe the temporary agreement will prevent the board from declaring an impasse in the contract talks because it gives Eastern major concessions.

Boys Town opens here

SANFORD — In 1938 Spencer Tracey and Mickey Rooney starred in an oscar-winning drama about a man who really did become a legend in his own time. Father Edward Flannigan started a home for the abused, the hateful and the unloved.

Flannigan has long since died, but Boys Town lives. And it has come to Sanford.

An opening ceremony was held this morning at the renovated apartment building at 3500 Sanford Avenue. It will accommodate 16 physically or emotionally battered youths from anywhere in central Florida. A fulltime staff of 18 will be able to refer other youths to other services of Boys Town.

Father Val Peter, the new head of the nationwide child care system, attended the opening ceremony. He is as much a believer as the founding Father.

"I know that sounds almost impossible," said Cathy Grimm, coordinator for the newest Boys Town. See Page 5A

Polk issues new order for dispatchers

Action comes during probe of 911 homicide-suicide call

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Sheriff John Polk on Monday directed his 911 emergency dispatchers, on receiving calls reporting a shooting or stabbing, to immediately dispatch a patrol deputy to the scene.

This comes during Polk's investigation of a 911 homicide-suicide call from a Longwood residence on March 3. It took 82 seconds for help to be dispatched through his department.

Polk said his dispatcher should have dispatched deputies to the scene as soon as the woman said she was shot. That was within seconds of the sheriff's dispatcher answering the phone at 12:29:30 a.m. What she said, according to records, was: "Help me. I'm bleeding all over. My husband shot me."

But the sheriff's dispatcher transferred the call, as a medical problem, to the fire department, without dispatching deputies to the scene. The victim's first words to the fire department dispatcher, records show, were, "I'm shot."

Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser said his fire dispatchers dispatched rescue personnel within eight seconds after the call was transferred to them.

Kaiser said the sheriff's dispatcher continued to monitor the call as the fire dispatcher questioned the victim during the 22 seconds the fire department was on the phone.

The sheriff's dispatcher dispatched deputies only after the phone connection was broken and the fire department transferred the call back to her, sheriff's records show.

Kaiser said his rescue personnel believed they were dealing strictly with the medical problem and that deputies already were enroute when the call was first transferred.

He added that fire-rescue workers, because of the unknown and violent nature of the incident, stood by near the scene for several minutes waiting for deputies to arrive. Kaiser's staff said they arrived in the area at 12:33:35 a.m.

It took deputies about 10 minutes to find the house; firefighters were there in about 3 1/2 minutes, records show.

That was after the woman's husband broke into her bedroom, while she was making the 911 call, to attack See 911, Page 5A

Commissioner partly paralyzed following stroke

SANFORD — City Commissioner Herbert "Whitey" Eckstein was hospitalized on Sunday morning after suffering what he said today was a mild stroke.

In a telephone interview, he said the right side of his face and his right arm are paralyzed. "I hope that Eckstein is only temporary," he said from his hospital room at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

"I hope to get the use of my arm and face back through physical therapy," he said.

SANFORD — A bank robbery suspect shot in a shootout with Seminole County sheriff's deputies Friday in Longwood, apparently fired a fatal shot to his own head.

Capt. Roy Hughey said that conclusion was reported yesterday afternoon, after the slug that passed through the head of suspect Robin Cary, 27, of Colorado, was recovered from a door panel of the suspected robbery getaway car. Study says road woes could cause the loss of jobs

By MICHAEL MOLINE
United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida could lose 172,000 jobs and $60 billion in personal income by 1998 unless state leaders provide the roads and highways to support population growth, according to a study released Monday by a citizens' watchdog group.

The gloomy forecast by Florida TaxWatch arises from the 1985 Growth Management Act, which forbids local governments from approving new construction unless they can guarantee there will be enough roads and other facilities to handle the new residents.

With the state facing an $850 million backlog in unfunded transportation projects, the state might face a major recession during the 1990s if lawmakers do not come up with more money for transportation, said economists with TaxWatch and the Wharton School of Economics.

Handicap access to homes required

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — If you buy a new home designed and built after Jan. 1, it must be designed to allow for easier access by handicapped visitors.

A new state law went into effect this year that requires all single-family homes to meet wheelchair accessibility requirements. The law does not affect existing homes or unbuild homes that were under a construction contract before the law went into effect.

"This will have some bearing and possibly some cost from time to time on owners of all new homes," said Bill Culbertson, deputy Seminole County building official.

The county building department will conduct a three-hour free seminar on the changes April 16 at the county commission chambers on First Street. The public, builders, architects, city building inspectors are invited.

Culbertson said the most noticeable effect to new homes is at least one bathroom must have minimum access requirements. Culbertson said most current bathroom entrances are designed so there is about two feet of clearance between the opened door and the door frame.

The new law requires at least one bathroom in the home must have no less than 29 inches of clearance. The wheelchair-accessible bathroom must be located on the first floor of multi-story homes. The law also requires that hallways be at least 36 inches in width, but Culbertson said that is a standard width and would require changes in the design of few new homes.

The new regulations will also require redesign of electrical wiring so light switches are convenient to someone entering the bathroom, but also allowing adequate entrance clearance. Culbertson said. Many small bathrooms that have small doorways have light switches in a small space between the door frame and the side wall, he said.

The new law also changes requirements for apartments and other multiple dwelling buildings. The previous law required that at least 20 percent of all the dwelling units be accessible to wheelchair-bound people. All of the accessible units could be on the first floor, Culbertson said.

The new law lowers the number of accessible units to five percent of the total and requires that the accessible units be distributed throughout the building. If a multi-story building has an elevator, if there is no elevator, then the law requires the accessible units to be on the first floor.

Although the law requires ramps to make apartments and office buildings accessible, ramps are not required for single-family homes.

Board considers conduct code

By VIGOR DEBORNER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board will meet tonight at 7 p.m. in the district board room, 1211 Mellonville Ave., to discuss any changes to be made to the district code of student conduct.

Each year the district reviews the handbook which contains the "do's and don'ts" of student behavior as well as the disciplinary procedures for each offense.

The board welcomes public input into the proceedings.

In the past, there have been few changes made in the code, though some discussions have been lively. Last year's addition of a rule banning the use of beepers by students on school property paled in comparison to the 1988 debate over the acceptable length of students' shorts and skirts.

According to Dick Hofmann, director of community relations for the district said that only one change is being proposed this year.

"They are proposing a line to be added to the code that says 'principals are being encouraged to develop and to implement positive alternative disciplinary measures in lieu of corporal punishment,'" he said.

Many of the schools already have programs such as in-school suspension which are used as an alternative, but such programs have never been an official part of the student disciplinary code.

Though the use of corporal punishment has been dropped considerably during the last five years, from more than 1,300 incidents in 1985 to 577 in 1989, the district will propose the practice be phased out.

Hofmann said the district is hoping to use more alternatives which encourage increased self worth and self-discipline.

This evening's work session will be merely a discussion of the rules that must be changed or updated. The proposed rules will then be advertised so that the public will have an opportunity to respond before the board makes a final decision at the next board meeting on April 10.

Gardner: Little hope for session

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

TALLAHASSEE — Sen. W.W. "Bud" Gardner holds little hope for substantial legislation emerging from the two month session of the Florida Legislature beginning today.

"I'd just assume we pass the budget this week and go home," Gardner said Monday from his office in the state capitol. "I don't think anything will be accomplished."

The veteran Democrat lawmaker from Titusville began his 12th year in the Legislature this year, the second as a state senator representing the district that includes the eastern two-thirds of Seminole County. He previously served 10 years as a state representative.

Although addressing the state's overburdened transportation system has been touted as the lawmakers' main task of the session, Gardner said there are few chances any real improvements will be accomplished.

"There is a chance the old MTA (metropolitan transportation authority) tax will be passed in some form," Gardner said. "I was on the joint committee that passed it out and there was substantial Republican representation on that committee. But the governor has said he wouldn't look favorably on it until 1991 — after the election."

Volusia murder suspect pleads guilty in scheme to counterfeit $100 bills

United Press International

ORLANDO — A man charged with two Volusia County murders pleaded guilty in federal court Monday to counterfeiting charges. Konstantinos Fotopoulos, 30, Daytona Beach, pleaded guilty to six of 11 counts, including distributing and conspiring to distribute fake $100 bills.

Almost $17,000 in bogus bills were found buried in a military ammunition can in north Daytona Beach.

The indictment also charged Fotopoulos with witness tampering and conspiring to obstruct justice for allegedly threatening a couple and helping them hide from federal authorities, but he did not plead guilty to those counts.

He did, however, plead guilty to harboring those fugitives.

U.S. Attorney Robert Genzman said Fotopoulos threatened Vasilios and Barbara Markantonakis and their relatives and ordered them to flee to Crete, then sent them money and fake documents.

The Markantonakis have pleaded guilty to federal charges in Macon, Ga.

Fotopoulos' federal trial began Monday morning but was halted by the guilty plea.

Florida plane still missing in Indiana

United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS — Two southern Indiana residents remained missing Tuesday and Indiana Civil Air Patrol officials were checking information that might explain what happened to them and their aircraft.

Indiana State Police identified the pilot as Durrel Rosely, 29, of Henryville, and the passenger as Jesse Street, 30. Street's hometown was unknown to authorities, but Civil Air Patrol officials confirmed that he lived in the southern part of the state.

The private, four-seat aircraft left a city in Florida Thursday bound for Sellersburg, which is just north of the Indiana-Kentucky state line. However, the plane disappeared after a refueling stop in Macon, Ga.

Douglas Super 80, Stewart said.

Five passengers were treated and released at Sand Lake Hospital; two were treated and released at Orlando General Hospital, and at least nine others were treated at the scene, Stewart said.

American Flight 487, from Orlando to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, took off about 8:30 a.m. Sunday but returned about 20 minutes later because of the fumes, Stewart said.

"That leak apparently was getting into the air conditioning system, which was apparently creating the fume problem," he said.

"That particular plane has several hydraulic systems, so there was never any real danger of the aircraft being in serious trouble, but the fumes were, indeed, a problem," Stewart said.

Mechanics tried to repair the problem, but the fumes returned about 5 p.m. as the same plane began taxiing to the runway as Flight 1341, bound, also, for Dallas-Fort Worth, he said.

There were 142 passengers and a crew of six were aboard Flight 1341. None of those injured was a crew member, Stewart said.

About 40 passengers from Flight 1341 were placed on other flights Sunday evening, but the remainder were put up in hotels overnight and flew out Monday morning, Stewart said.

ORLANDO — An American Airlines jet leaking hydraulic fumes that sent seven passengers to the hospital was forced to return twice to Orlando International Airport, the company said Monday.

Mandate for unity

The big winners in East Germany's elections are the people themselves who participated in the nation's first democratic contest in nearly 60 years and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl who is pushing for prompt national reunification and the dismantling of communism in the East.

By handing Kohl's fellow conservatives a resounding victory, East German voters showed both their eagerness to end four decades of ruinous communist rule and their faith in a free-market future. The conservative political alliance, led by the Christian Democratic Union, is currently in the process of forging a parliamentary majority that will hasten the economic and political union of the two states.

Once the coalition gains a simple majority in East Germany's 400-seat parliament, progress can be made toward building a market economy in the East and making the powerful West German mark the country's common currency. The two goals are intertwined because currency reform cannot proceed without the production of goods in the East to buy with the money. Thus East Germany will be required to place its economic destiny in the hands of West German financial planners and industrialists.

After the fall of the corrupt regime of Erich Honecker last November and the resignation of Egon Krenz, his hapless successor, East Germany has been looking westward. Nearly 350,000 Easterners defected to West Germany in 1989, and the exodus is averaging 2,000 per day this year.

Economic contacts are increasing steadily between the two countries as well. Lufthansa and its East German counterpart, Interflug, are currently operating inter-German flights at cut-rate fares. The carriers have requested the western allies to loosen airspace restrictions over the two states so they might compete in lucrative flights to and from Berlin.

Industrial giants such as Thyssen, Siemens and Volkswagen are gearing up for reunification. In fact, Volkswagen has already begun a production line of engines under a licensing agreement in Karl-Marx Stadt, which is about to revert to its old name of Chemnitz. Meanwhile many medium-to-small firms on both sides of the border are negotiating with each other.

The geopolitical parleys will proceed more gingerly. It is crucial that a united Germany stay in NATO, yet remain on good terms with the Soviet Union. Although Moscow is grumbling about the balance of power being tipped in central Europe, the Russians have more to fear from a neutral Germany that could be compelled to rearm and protect itself.

As Kohl correctly said: "The history of this century shows nothing is more detrimental to German security than a Germany that swings between the two worlds, between East and West." Maintaining a smaller NATO force in Western Germany would also provide Poland with a comfort zone just as allowing Warsaw a say in reunification talks would help allay Polish fears of a resurgent fatherland.

Granted, there will be pitfalls on the path to Germany's becoming whole again. But the vote is an unmistakable mandate for German unity, the realization of which almost certainly will have a profound effect on the European Community and elsewhere.

Uncle Sam not liable for his errors

WASHINGTON — If you receive incorrect information from a federal employee, violate U.S. regulations because of the error and then suffer a financial penalty, the government can't be held accountable. Hard as it is to believe, that is exactly the position the U.S. government has taken in a case now before the Supreme Court.

The court, which recently heard arguments on the matter, will rule in the next several months. Its decision on this case will have a wide-ranging effect.

Charles Richmond, a Navy veteran receiving disability benefits, was working part-time in 1986 as a school-bus driver in San Diego. He made about $12,000 annually as a driver, while receiving $8,000 a year in disability payments from the Navy. His civilian boss asked him to work longer hours for a few months.

Richmond knew that he could lose his federal disability pay for the year if his outside income exceeded a certain level. So, he went to a Navy employment relations specialist at the Navy Public Works Center in San Diego to find out if the potential extra income would be enough to affect his disability pay.

He was told that, under Navy regulations, he would continue to receive disability benefits as long as the total of his civilian income in either of two consecutive years did not exceed 80 percent of his last annual Naval salary. The Naval employee relations specialist even gave Richmond a copy of the regulation from the government's Office of Personnel Management.

With this advice in hand, Richmond worked the extra hours.

It turned out the Navy employment specialist was wrong. Three years earlier the regulation had been changed; Richmond had been given an outdated copy. Now you could not earn in any year more than 80 percent of your last rank's pay. Richmond had earned $919.28 too much. Thus, he forfeited his U.S. benefits for that year. He is still trying to collect the $8,000 in back pay.

Richmond had sought the best advice he could have, in advance, from the single government employee in his area who should have known. Thus, he assumed at first that the Navy would restore his forfeited pay as soon as they heard his story. They refused. He appealed his case to the government's Merit Systems Protection Board. He was turned down.

The government has contended that it is not responsible for incorrect information...

So, representing himself, with his wife typing the documents, he appealed to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. This time he won.

But his victory was short-lived. The federal government immediately appealed to the Supreme Court, which agreed to hear the case.

Obviously, there is more at stake here than the $8,000 in lost money that Richmond is claiming. It isn't just coincidence that the government's case was argued before the court personally by Solicitor General Kenneth Starr.

The government has long contended that it is not responsible for incorrect information disseminated by its employees. But in recent years, some lower courts have ruled against the government on the basis that the misconduct by a given employee was so egregious as to warrant holding the government responsible.

The Supreme Court has never ruled on the subject, and the government wants to use the Richmond case to stop future adverse rulings.

Watkins overthrows 'fiefdom'

WASHINGTON — Something unexpected and important is happening inside the Bush administration. Some people are giving serious thought to a few of the long-range challenges facing this country.

It's not happening much at the National Security Council or the State Department, where foreign policy is viewed largely as managing affairs day by day. Crucially, it is not happening at the Office of Management and Budget, where director Richard Darman appears to have given up serious efforts to deal with the structural deficit. He is letting his exceptional capacity for strategic thinking be squandered in the game of second-guessing domestic policy decisions others in the Cabinet should make.

But in realms of government where one rarely discovers leadership that looks beyond the next budget or election cycle, President Bush has appointed some people of genuine vision. I wrote recently about the work of Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner. And last week, I came across an even more striking example in Energy Secretary James D. Watkins.

Because I rarely get into military or medical stories, I had not met Admiral Watkins when he was chief of naval operations or the head of President Reagan's commission on AIDS. But he drew high marks in those assignments and when I kept hearing both Republicans and Democrats on Capitol Hill praise his candor and capability in the Cabinet post he's held for the past 15 months, I decided it was time to seek an interview.

When I saw him, Watkins was putting the final touches on a report to be released Monday (April 2) summarizing the views some 375 witnesses offered at 15 regional hearings he and his deputy, Henson Moore, conducted this past year, as the first step toward a national-energy strategy. The final report is due on the President's desk in December.

Our dependence on imported oil is greater now than at the time of the OPEC embargo. The debates continue on nuclear power, coal, gas and renewable energy sources and the environmental and economic problems each entails. So nothing could be of greater consequence to the nation than developing an energy strategy.

Oddly, however, that is not what Watkins spoke of first. He launched on the topic of education. He spoke passionately of his push to use the 23,000 professionals in DOE labs as a catalyst for improving the credentials and effectiveness of the science and math teachers in the nation's elementary and secondary schools.

He had just returned from Chicago, where he met with the governor and the deputy mayor for education. He was bubbling with enthusiasm and full of detailed information about the programs already under way at the Argonne and Fermilab and the plans for a science academy in the Chicago area.

"With a minimum of money and a lot of volunteer effort," he said, "I believe we can reach 10 percent of the teachers in the areas where we have labs each year, and help them gain a new level of competence and credibility, so they can motivate the kids... There will be a lot of focus on minorities and young women who have been rejected from this field and told basically this isn't your bag... an absolutely preposterous notion."

Before the interview, I had read profiles delving into the forces that produced Watkins' personality. Important among them are a deeply felt Roman Catholic religious faith and the strong influence of a feminist Republican mother who ran for senator from California in 1938. But I was not prepared for the sheer mental energy and force of character communicated by the 62-year-old veteran of the nuclear Navy.

In a laid-back administration and a city which often seems to be going in circles, this is a man with many missions who clearly intends to push ahead until ordered to stop.

Nor had anything I read quite prepared me for his non-bureaucratic candor, his most unimpressive belief that press and public scrutiny is healthy medicine. Like Jack Kemp at Housing and Urban development, who shares his energy level if not his mental discipline, Watkins inherited a huge cleanup job in a largely discredited agency. The managerial and environmental mess left by those who had run the DOE's nuclear-weapon manufacturing and storage facilities has consumed huge amounts of his time.

"This department has had no credibility," he said. "There has been an arrogance here, a fiefdom mentality, a complete separation of headquarters and field operations... hence, a totally diffused sense of accountability. Leadership had been sapped by the threat of declassification, stemming, though Watkins didn't say it, from President Reagan's ill-considered campaign promise to abolish DOE."

"But we'll solve most of the waste cleanup mess this year. We'll get Rocky Flats off the front-page."

...this is a man with many missions who clearly intends to push ahead until ordered to stop.

Front companies mocked embargo

WASHINGTON — The outgoing Sandinista government in Nicaragua has blamed a U.S. trade embargo, in part, for Nicaragua's poverty. But the Sandinistas flaunted that trade embargo for five years by using front companies in Panama and witting or unwitting trading partners in the United States. The result was that American goods were always available in Nicaragua, despite the embargo.

In a document classified higher than "Top Secret," the Central Intelligence Agency has compiled a list of more than a dozen Sandinista front companies operating in Panama. U.S. goods were sold to those companies and then shipped to Panama. The CIA report does not make clear whether the American companies knew they were dealing with the Sandinistas.

The Reagan administration imposed the trade embargo in 1985 in an attempt to bring the Sandinista government to its knees. President Bush lifted the embargo on March 13 after Nicaraguans voted the Sandinistas out of power.

The embargo did damage the Nicaraguan economy, but the Sandinistas did more damage by their own bungling. In 1984, the year before the embargo, only 17 percent of Nicaragua's foreign commerce was with the United States. The Sandinistas achieved quintuple-digit inflation — 36,000 percent in 1988 — primarily through their own mismanagement.

The embargo added to that hyper-inflation, but was never successful in keeping all U.S. goods off the shelves in Nicaragua or keeping Nicaraguan goods off the shelves in America.

Here's a typical loophole: The United States is the largest market in the Western Hemisphere for shrimp and lobster, one of Nicaragua's primary exports. When the Sandinistas could no longer sell directly to the United States, they sold monthly lobster licenses for $15,000 and shrimp licenses for $4,000 to let Honduran fish in Nicaraguan waters. One Honduran lawyer representing boat owners paid $7 million in 1987 for licenses. Honduran shellfish exports to the United States more than tripled during the embargo.

The front companies in Panama were another way around the embargo. The CIA list of 19 includes some rather common company names, and there may be more than one company doing business under that name in Panama. The report does not include corporate officers or other identifying information to distinguish the companies from others of the same name. According to the CIA, two Panamanian companies — Blue Marlin Shipping and Pesca del Pacifico — were involved in selling Nicaraguan seafood to the United States. Five Panamanian companies did both import and export business with the United States — J&M Trading Corp., Lempa, IMEPSA, Moderna Internacional and Midland Corp. Three of the front companies concentrated on imports — Empresas, Consorcio Mercantile and Suplehora de Negocios. Several Sandinista front companies in Panama specialized in the Sandinistas particular shopping needs.

One of the most interesting names on the list was Alfa Comercial, specializing in building supplies. In 1985 we reported that this company was the Sandinista government's purchasing agent and that President Daniel Ortega was personally enriched by the business it did.

Killer cheats gas chamber - for now

SAN FRANCISCO — Robert Alton Harris cheated the executioner a fourth time in his long battle to avoid the gas chamber when the Supreme Court ruled 12 hours before he was scheduled to die that his case deserves another review.

The 6-3 ruling Monday infuriated the governor and the families of the two teenage boys Harris killed 12 years ago, but overjoyed anti-death penalty demonstrators outside the walls of San Quentin, where Harris was to have become the first inmate executed in California in 23 years at 3 a.m. today.

Instead of being strapped into one of the long-idle gas chamber's twin chairs, Harris, 37, was ordered returned to a regular Death Row cell — his ultimate fate to be resolved by a legal process that could take several months.

Kaiser hospitals strike idles 11,000

LOS ANGELES — With nearly 11,000 employees on strike, the nation's oldest and largest health maintenance organization delayed elective surgery and other non-critical care but said the walkout had not created a medical crisis.

The strike affected seven Kaiser Permanente hospitals and 45 clinics in Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties. Employees at Kaiser facilities in San Diego, San Bernardino and Riverside counties and in northern California were not involved in the walkout.

"There's no large crisis," said Jack Davis, director of Kaiser's Southern California regional hospital services. "Things have gone pretty much as planned."

Kaiser Permanente serves 2.2 million members in Southern California and 6.2 million nationwide. About 90 percent of the members joined through group plans or employee benefits packages.

Commuters handle transit shutdown

BUFFALO — Thousands of commuters and school children scrambled to find a way to work and school Monday as a cash crisis shut down the bankrupt public transit system in New York's second-largest city for the first working day.

Mayor James Griffin offered the transit system a "no strings attached" $1 million, but Gov. Mario Cuomo said the state had no money to help restore bus and train service.

A tentative agreement reached after an all-night meeting detailed Monday when a source of sufficient money could not be found.

Niagara Frontier Transportation Authority buses and light-rail cars remained parked, but 135,000 commuters used bicycles, car pools and their feet as the transit shutdown moved into its second day.

The biggest problems were reported in city high schools, where absentee rates soared to near 80 percent.

Oil spill affects water supply

PITTSBURGH — Allegheny River towns affected by a 200,000-gallon fuel spill opened water intake valves and began replenishing their supplies, preparing to restore service to several thousand people, officials said today.

The county's eight pumping stations opened their valves late Monday and early Tuesday after tests showed the water was clear enough to begin resupply, said John Kaus, Allegheny county's deputy director for emergency management.

Heart group kills seal-of-approval

By JEANNE STOKES
United Press International

DALLAS — The American Heart Association said it was dropping its controversial HeartGuide endorsement of foods low in cholesterol, fat and sodium only because of the federal government's move to improve food labeling.

The AHA was criticized by federal regulatory agencies as well as food manufacturers from the time it came up with the idea of lending its logo to foods deemed healthy for the heart.

Opposition intensified in recent months, when both the Food and Drug Administration and Agriculture Department announced their disapproval of the plan. Some food manufacturers, including the beef industry, also waged a strong fight against the labeling effort.

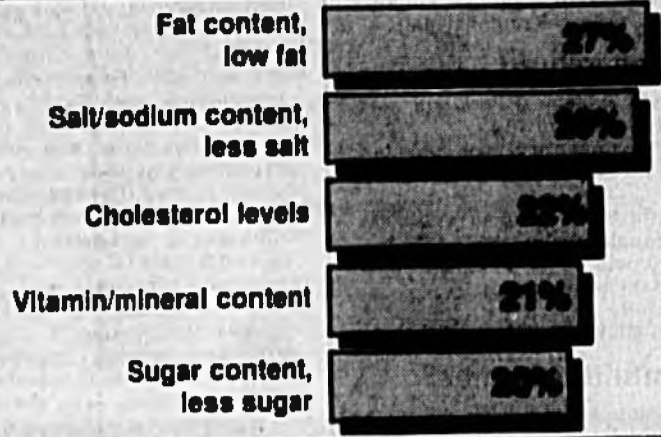

On Monday, Dr. Myron Weisfeldt, president of the Heart Association, announced the HeartGuide program was being halted and "re-designed to respond to the changing environment in Washington to work with federal agencies and the food industry." In particular he cited stricter FDA rules on food labeling.

The AHA's revised program will not involve placing the heart

Church-state problems with childcare regretted by national church council

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

WASHINGTON — The National Council of Churches warned Monday the failure of Congress to place strict church-state separation guarantees in child-care legislation could imperil the program.

While welcoming passage of legislation last week that could provide as much as $27 billion to aid parents — especially the poor — in getting child-care for their children, the 32-member Protestant and Orthodox body said it was concerned "the legislation faces difficulties down the road because it has failed to deal adequately with the necessary separation of church and state."

"Thousands of churches in the NCC's member communions run child-care programs that do not include worship or instruction but which are created as a service to the communities in which they are located," Mary Cooper, acting director of the council's Washington office, said in a statement.

"The NCC encourages and supports them in that effort and feels it is both appropriate for the churches and essential for the families they serve."

But Cooper said that the council fears "at some point in the future a church receiving federal funds for child-care services under this bill will be charged with violating the separation of church and state and will be severed from the program by a court decision."

On Friday, just a day after the House passed its version of the long-stalled child-care bill, Americans United for Separation of Church and State pledged that if strict separation safeguards are not written into the bill before President Bush signs it, they will file suit against the program.

The American Civil Liberties Union said it is also contemplating a suit against the bill.

In passing the legislation, the House rejected an amendment by Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., that would have barred the use of federal funds for day-care programs that provide religious worship or education.

The council supported Edwards' amendment. While regretting the lack of church-state separation safeguards, the council voiced overall approval of the bill.

Women focus of news study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pictures of women appeared on front pages of U.S. newspapers more frequently this year than last, a study Tuesday said. It also reported that Page 1 stories included more women sources and female bylines.

The study was commissioned by the American Society of Newspaper Editors' Human Resources Committee and the University of California's Media Watch: Women and Men.

It examined the front pages of 20 newspapers in the United States during February 1990. Last year's study was of 10 papers.

The 1990 study used the same 10 general-interest papers included in last year's report.

SCC diamond teams at home

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College softball team will play its last home games of the season today when it hosts Central Florida Community College in a Mid-Florida Conference doubleheader starting at 3 p.m.

The Raiders have an overall record of 19-25 and 8-14 in the conference but because of the balance of the conference, SCC still has a chance to go to the state tournament in Palm Beach later this month.

Leading the Raiders have been All-American third baseman Kim King and Lake Howell graduate Julie Barton.

Also at SCC on Tuesday will be a M-FC baseball game between the Raiders and Central Florida Community College, which is also scheduled to start at 3 p.m.

SCC, 8-23 on the season, has been playing much better lately, winning seven of its last 11 starts. Leading the surge has been right-hander Mike Fuller, designated hitter Daks Rodriguez and pitcher Joe Samayo.

Cookout to benefit SCC cagers

The Seminole Community College men's basketball team will hold a hamburger cookout at the Student Center Patio starting at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

For $2.00 a person will be able to pick up a quarter-pound hamburger, a bag of chips and a soft drink. The cookout is scheduled to run until 1 p.m. or until the hamburgers run out, whichever comes first.

All proceeds from the cookout will go to benefit the basketball team.

Miami hires OSU's Hamilton

MIAMI — Hoping to revive a basketball program still struggling five years after it was brought back to life, the University of Miami Monday hired Oklahoma State Coach Leonard Hamilton.

Miami Athletic Director Sam Jankovich said Hamilton was the first prospect to be offered the job, although he had talked to a number of other candidates.

"He is one of the first persons I wanted to visit with," Jankovich said. "If I were to describe Leonard Hamilton, I would describe him as a person who excels in all areas — recruiting, leadership and style."

Hamilton, 41, had a 56-63 record during his four years at Oklahoma State, but in each of the last two years the Cowboys won 17 games and advanced to the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

"I like the University of Miami," Hamilton said. "It has a tremendous combination of academics and athletics that gives you the opportunity to go into a lot of recruits' homes and sell something positive."

Jankovich said the first time the two could get together was at the Final Four this weekend in Denver.

Hamilton was the second Big Eight Conference basketball coach hired by a Florida university in two days. The Florida Gators hired Lon Kruger of Kansas State Sunday.

Jankovich received permission several weeks ago from Oklahoma State Athletic Director Myron Roderick to talk to Hamilton.

Miami revived its basketball program in 1985 after dropping the sport in 1971 because of a lack of interest. Bill Foster headed the program for the last five years but announced early last fall that he was resigning effective at the end of the season. One of his complaints was a remaining lack of interest.

Part of the Hurricanes' attendance problem was believed to be the lack of a campus arena. They play their games in the Miami Arena, which is located in the downtown area.

Rain doesn't dampen Classic

Seeds advance; play resumed at 10 a.m. today

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — Organizers of the Prudential-Bache Tennis Classic being played this week at the Racquet Club of Heathrow got everything they needed Monday for a perfect opening day . . . almost.

After a flawless afternoon round, the evening match between No. 3-seed Christo Van Rensburg and Slobodan Zivonjovic was interrupted by a 1:40 rain delay with Van Rensburg leading 4-1 in the third and deciding set.

Finally, about 11:15 p.m., the match resumed and Van Rensburg completed his 7-6 (7-2), 3-6, 6-3 win to advance to Thursday's quarterfinal round.

"It was a very good first day except for the rain," said Kevin O'Keefe, director of communications for Pro Serv, the management company for the Classic. "You can't predict the rain, even with weather forecasters."

"We'll make up the time and everybody will be happy — the players, the fans and the sponsors. Those are the people we're concerned with."

Actually, they got off lucky. The only match postponed Monday was a doubles contest between the duo of Alexis Hombrecher and MalaVal Washington and the team of Richard Schmidt and Gregg Van Emburgh. It will be made up today at a time to be decided.

Other seeded players that advanced Monday were No. 5 Glen Layendecker and No. 8 Ramesh Krishnan. Layendecker moved on with a 6-3, 6-1 win over Jared Palmer while Krishnan defeated Derrick Rostagno 6-7 (7-2), 6-2, 7-5.

In other first-round afternoon matches, Dan Goldie eliminated Leif Shiras 6-3, 6-1 in Monday's first match and David Pate knocked off Alex Mronz 6-4, 6-4.

Monday's play determined both positions in one of Thursday's quarterfinal pairings, Krishnan advancing to take on Pate.

There were also three doubles matches played Monday afternoon. Miguel Nido and Joey Rive teamed up to defeat Rostagno and Christian Saccanu 3-6, 6-3, 6-4; Royce Deppe and Byron Talbot bested James Schor and Blaine Willenborg 6-4, 6-1; and Broderick Dyke and Charles Beckman toppled Richard Matuszewski and Rikard Bergh 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

In all, an estimated 3,200 fans attended Monday's opening round. A crowd of approximately 700 attended the afternoon session while nearly 2,500 braved the weather to watch the evening match.

Some 12 matches are scheduled to be played today, including Monday night's postponed doubles match.

On the stadium court, Nicolas Pereira will play Robbie Weiss at 10 a.m. The next match, which will not start before noon, pits No. 4-seed Scott Davis against Thomas Hogstedt. In the third match, No. 7 Veli Palohelmo meets Miguel Nido followed by the match between Washington and Kelly Jones.

Competition on the grandstand court will also start at 10 a.m. with the match between Deppe and Jason Stoltenberg. That match will be followed by Lars Wahlgren playing Jimmy Brown, Joey Rive taking on Jeff Tarango and Alex Hombrecher meeting David Engel.

Play on the grandstand court will be capped off today by a doubles match, Heinz Gunthardt and Markus Zoecke squaring off against Layendecker and Shiras.

In Tuesday night's evening session, No. 6-seed Jimmy Arias will play John Ross. This evening's doubles match sends Davis and Pate up against Mronz and Wahlgren.

The Classic's top two seeds, Brad Gilbert (No. 1) and Aaron Krickstein (No. 2), will play their first-round matches on Wednesday. Gilbert is scheduled to take on Saccanu while Krickstein is paired with Zoecke.

A's survive comeback by Orioles

SANFORD — The First Union A's withstood a late comeback attempt by the SunBank Orioles to pick up its first win of the season, 15-12, in Sanford Little Major League American Division baseball action at Roy Holler Field Monday.

In an exhibition game played prior to the A's/Orioles game, the Disabled American Veteran Royals defeated Marshall USA 8-6.

The National Division will take the field today with the Railroaders Cubs taking on the Rinker Dodgers at 6 p.m. and the First Federal of Seminole Cardinals facing the SunBank Pirates at 8 p.m.

SunBank, now 0-2 on the season, scored the first two runs of the game only to have First Union score the next five and take a 5-2 lead. SunBank then scored three runs in the fourth to tie the game 5-5. The big hit in the inning was a two-run single by Cedric Church.

First Union, 1-1 on the season, came to the plate in the bottom of the fourth and appeared to put the game out of reach when it scored nine runs. The big blows in the inning were singles by Eric Smith and Richard Badger and a double by Gerard Williams.

But Sun Bank came back with six runs in the fifth to cut the lead to 14-11 but it was close as it would get.

First Union was able to take home the victory despite being outlit 11-7. Doing the damage for the A's were Badger (two triples, single, three runs scored), Greg Stafford (triple, single, three runs scored), G.

Patriots explode on Hawks

By TONY DeBORMIER
 Herald Sports Editor

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Like a bomb with a fuse of undeterminable length, it's not a question of if the Lake Brantley High School baseball team will explode, but when.

On Monday night, that fuse was about four innings long as the Patriots jumped on the Lake Howell Silver Hawks for two runs in the bottom of the fourth and went on to a 5-0 victory.

"This is a senior club," said Lake Brantley coach Mike Smith. "They've played together for four years. We've all been together for four years. That's been the difference."

"We've won a lot of one-run games but we've also scored a lot of runs. When you have that patience, it makes things happen."

For the first three innings Monday night, Lake Howell starter Dwayne Clark kept the Patriots at bay with sharp fastball and a nasty slider. But he got his first pitch of the fourth inning up and Jerry Thurston ripped it into left field for a double. The next pitch was about in the same spot and Jason Vartek one-hopped the center field wall with a line drive that scored Thurston.

Vartek later scored on an error following Sean Burke's single.

UNLV gives a clinic on way to NCAA championship

United Press International

DENVER — Turn on the neon. Splash their name across marquee along the strip. Hold the action in the casinos.

Nevada-Las Vegas is college basketball's NCAA champion.

And no one — not UCLA, not Kentucky, not Indiana — ever gave such a blinding performance as these Rebels did Monday night in belting Duke 103-73 in the most lopsided championship final since the tournament began in 1939.

"It's one of those games you dream about," UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkenton said. "I'm as proud as I can be."

With Anderson Hunt, named the Final Four's outstanding player, scoring 29 points and UNLV applying a crackling defense, the Rebels hit college basketball's jackpot in their first appearance in a championship game.

In a commanding show of strength, discipline and sparkle, the Rebels set a record for most points scored in the championship final and left no doubt as to the premier team in college basketball.

"They would have killed anybody tonight," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said.

The Rebels shredded Duke during an 18-0 run in the second half, silencing any prospects Duke had for at last winning an NCAA title.

Such was the one-sidedness of the contest that by the last few minutes, the players on the UNLV bench donned T-shirts in tribute to their coach.

"Shark Takes a Bite," the shirt read on the front. "They Just Couldn't Run with the Rebels," read the back of the shirt.

All too true.

"We think we are a great team," UNLV guard Greg Anthony said. "But to say that we are the best we just can't say. Take into consideration that they weren't on the top of their game. We are the best team because we are the national champs."

Before this bombardment, the biggest margin of victory in a championship game came in 1968 when UCLA beat North Carolina 78-55.

Clean air bill, fund-raiser top Bush agenda

By THOMAS FERRARO
United Press International

CINCINNATI — Winding up a two-day, four-state trip, President Bush focused on clean air legislation and fund-raising efforts to bolster the Republican Party now preparing for national and local elections.

With the Senate scheduled to vote on the massive clean air bill this evening, the self-proclaimed "environmental president" planned to plug the legislation his administration helped to shape by planting a tree at a ceremony in Indianapolis.

Also on the president's agenda was an Indianapolis fund-raiser for Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., where party officials hoped to raise $400,000, and a fund-raiser in Detroit for the Michigan GOP, an event officials said was expected to raise $1 million.

Bush is often accompanied on such political events by Republican National Committee Chairman Lee Atwater, who masterminded the 1988 presidential campaign victory.

But Atwater entered a New York hospital Monday to receive radiation for a non-malignant brain tumor and Bush sent a get-well message to his "close friend."

"During this difficult time ... our hearts go out to him and that wonderful family of his. I know I speak for all when I just say we wish him our very, very best," Bush told a Cincinnati fund-raiser for Ohio Republican gubernatorial nominee George Voinovich.

Bush began his whirlwind trip on Monday in Atlanta, where he addressed the National Association of Broadcasters.

U.S. won't rescue ailing Japan market

By DAVID BUTTS
United Press International

TOKYO — Japan helped put the brakes on the New York stock market crash in October 1987 and now wants the United States to return the favor, but Washington shows few signs of coming to the aid of its chief economic competitor.

The apparent lack of support in Washington for Tokyo's collapsing stock market could be a harbinger of more difficult times ahead as Japan and the United States reassess their relationship in the post Cold War era.

Analysis

The Tokyo stock market, which has been on a skid since the first of the year, suffered its second-worst day Monday, losing nearly 7 percent of its value, while the Japanese yen fell to a 38-month low against the U.S. dollar.

The Japanese want Washington to support the yen and ease off trade pressure for the time being to stop the market hemorrhaging, but U.S. policy makers appear content to watch quietly as Japan's economy bleeds.

Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto met with Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady last month in Los Angeles to ask for U.S. support of the sinking Japanese yen. But Brady ended the meeting without giving any indication that he would help.

"Some people may be happy to see the Japanese market do so poorly," said Richard Koo, a senior economist with Nomura Research Institute. "It will remove some of the competitive edge Japan had."

This glee over Japan's economic troubles is a symbol of the change in U.S. attitudes toward Japan.

Americans once viewed Japan as a friendly Asian nation helping in the fight against world communism and were eager to give it a hand economically.

But now Japan is seen as an economic Godzilla bent on buying America piece by piece.

"Japan's strategic significance for the United States has been diminishing over time and ... there is no widespread international constituency interested in Japan's continuing economic welfare," said Chalmers Johnson, a University of California professor and one of the United States' leading Asia experts.

President Bush has put Japan at the top of a list of unfair trading partners while he talks of granting the Soviet Union most favored nation trade status.

Bush's goal is to reduce the nearly $50 billion annual trade deficit with Japan. Some analysts think Washington is withholding help in the financial markets to pressure Tokyo to cut the deficit.

This attitude has mystified many Japanese, who feel they have gone the extra mile to help the United States and have gotten nothing but grief in return.

Israel hits Iraqi

United Press International

JERUSALEM — Israel, threatened with destruction by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, warned Baghdad that Israeli forces could deliver a crushing blow against the Arab country if it attacked.

"Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's declaration reveals, once again, the basic truth at the root of the situation in the Middle East, which is extreme enmity toward Israel and the continued aspiration to destroy Israel," Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Monday.

Israeli analysts believe Saddam threatened to use chemical weapons and "let our fire eat half of Israel" in an effort to halt any pre-emptive strikes against Baghdad's nuclear program.

Israel destroyed Iraq's Osirak nuclear reactor in 1981 and last week's discovery in London of 40 Iraq-bound components for triggering nuclear weapons might provide the reason for a similar response, the analysts said.

Saddam's speech highlighting Iraq's chemical weapon capability was characterized by Israeli officials as boastful and a reminder to the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union and especially Israel that 1981 was not 1990.

"Israel should not discard such threats," said Yitzhak Rabin, defense minister until his resignation last month when Israel's coalition government collapsed.

Hendrix Antiques has a wide selection of quality antiques

He Makes Old Look New

Located 2 and a half miles west of Oviedo on State Road 419/434, is Hendrix Antiques. Hendrix Antiques is owned and operated by Walter Hendrix and his son Manwell. Mr. Hendrix has thirty years of experience. He learned the art of refinishing antiques from "one of the area's best refinishers," D.L. Montgomery. Mr. Hendrix has been refinishing antiques since he was 18. He will be 50 this year.

When asked what made him different than the other refinishers in the area, he replied, "nothing. I just feel that the customer should be satisfied to the best of my ability." He takes a lot of pride in his work and it is guaranteed. Some of his customers have had their furniture shipped in from miles away to have it redone. People are pleased enough with his work to ship their furniture from Miami to have it refinished. He has had repeat customers for 21 years.

Besides refinishing, Mr. Hendrix also pastors Friendship Missionary Baptist Church in DeLand, so you can be assured that Hendrix Antiques is a Christian business.

The refinishing shop is 2500 square feet and the furniture covers it from one end to the other. Some of it is for sale and some of it is to be refinished. The furniture consist of chairs, tables, stands, mirrors, chest of drawers, and much more.

Mr. Hendrix buys, sells, and trades. He is always happy to give a free estimate, and does pick up and delivery. No item is too small.

Mr. Hendrix can be reached at 365-3740.

Teen AIDS victim Ryan White critical

United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS — Surgery was being considered only as a last resort for hemophiliac Ryan White, the pioneering teenage AIDS victim who was in critical condition with an unspecified respiratory ailment.

White, now 18, who gained national attention during his successful court battle to be admitted to school, was admitted to Riley Hospital for Children on Thursday.

At a news conference Monday, Dr. Martin Kleiman — who has treated White since he contracted AIDS from a blood transfusion for his hemophilia in late 1984 — would neither disclose details of the infection nor speculate on his chance of survival.

White, who was receiving round-the-clock supervision in the intensive care unit, is hooked up to a chemical ventilator to aid his breathing and is heavily sedated, Kleiman said.

HAIR FORMULA I
ECONOMICAL FAMILY HAIR CARE

Above: Owner Rita Sheehan, below: Dorene Ayers, right: Hair Formula I is located at Country Club Square

More Than Just A Beauty Salon

From the moment you walk in the shop, you can tell that Hair Formula I is more than just a salon. Displayed everywhere are fine quality wigs and hair pieces, and other pieces of hair to be woven and worked in existing hair to create a new and different look.

Full-service doesn't really describe the range of beauty services available at Hair Formula I. From hair pieces to hair extensions, non-surgical facelifts, "permanent" make-up, manicures, pedicures, facials to hair replacement and fusions, not to mention the standard fare of hair cuts, perms and colors for men, women and children.

Mother/daughter team of Rita Sheehan and Dorene Ayers, have operated Hair Formula I since September 1986. The experienced staff includes Rick, Steve, Wendy, Margie and the newest member, Lori. The staff invites you to come by, say hello, become acquainted and have a cup of coffee with them at any time. They welcome you.

A "Code of Ethics" established at Hair Formula I reads as follows:

"We at Hair Formula I are grateful for the opportunity to serve you. We will endeavor to set the pace in economical family hair care, always keeping foremost in mind that you, the customer are the foundation of our profession.

"We pledge to devote that time necessary to each and every one of you in fulfilling the service that you, the customer are paying us to do. We further pledge to maintain our professional tradition by keeping rhythm with new styles, techniques, methods and practices that may benefit you, the customer.

"We here at Hair Formula I are gratified that you have chosen us as a family hair care facility and we welcome any changes that will enable us to improve our services to you. We will capitalize in maintaining our reputation beyond reproach. We care and we'll prove it."

Hair Formula I is located in the Country Club Square, at the corner of Country Club Road and Airport Blvd. The address is 2479 Airport Blvd. and the telephone number 321-6114. Hair Formula I issues a challenge through a motto they hold... "Try us... you will like us."

Cytotec developed to prevent gastritis

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been reading about a new prescription drug, Cytotec, that is supposed to help arthritis sufferers' stomach problems. What can you tell me about this medication, its side effects and ability to control arthritis pain?

DEAR READER: Cytotec is not used for arthritis. It was developed to prevent gastritis (stomach irritation) and peptic ulcers, conditions that commonly accompany the use of various medicines to relieve arthritic pain and inflammation. Anti-arthritis drugs — such as Feldene, Motrin, Voltaren, aspirin and others — can reduce the effectiveness of the stomach's natural, protective coating. Long-term use of these drugs often leads to heartburn, indigestion and injury to the gastric lining. When this occurs, patients must discontinue the anti-arthritis medicine.

By helping preserve the stomach's protective coating, Cytotec reduces the incidence and severity of these complications. Therefore, Cytotec is taken in conjunction with anti-arthritis. It is not a substitute for medicine used to treat ulcers, nor is it appropriate treatment for gastric irritation that is caused by factors other than anti-arthritis therapy.

The major side effects of Cytotec are abdominal pain and diarrhea — both of which tend to disappear with continued use of the drug. Also, Cytotec can cause spontaneous miscarriages in pregnant women; hence, it should not be used by women in the childbearing years unless they use effective contraception. To give you additional information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Consumer Tips on Medicine."

DEAR DR. GOTT: Does a vitamin deficiency cause white spots under the fingernails? Are there any other causes for this condition?

DEAR READER: Vitamin de-iciencies are often associated with abnormal nail growth, including splitting, peeling and discoloration. However, the white spots you describe are more commonly due to illness and fever.

No one knows how nail growth is disrupted during sickness, but white streaks and spots often appear, then grow out with the normal nail after a person regains health. This reaction is not harmful, nor does it indicate a serious condition.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Perhaps it seems strange that South would pass originally and then come back in with a jump to three hearts. But Alan Sontag, who is right up there with the most imaginative and talented players in the game, knew that it would take very little in partner's hand to make a game. Sure enough, the K-J of diamonds, the club ace and the heart 10 would normally cover enough losers that 10 tricks might well be made in hearts. But there was a little trouble on the way to the pay window. West led his singleton diamond. East won the ace and returned the six, his lowest diamond. West ruffed and played queen of clubs. Declarer won the ace and played the heart 10. West took the ace and played a club to East's king, and one more diamond was ruffed for down one in three hearts. So much for imagination, which has trouble overcoming bad distribution. Lesser players would complain of bad luck here, but Alan Sontag, whose standards of play are the highest, charged himself with incorrect play. After winning the ace of clubs, declarer should play the king of spades from dummy, throwing away his other club. The defenders' communication would then be cut — East could not get the lead one more time to give West a second diamond ruff. Declarer could then proceed to force out the trump ace and make his contract. Down one in three hearts was not such a bad result. East-West can make at least nine tricks playing in spades.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol

YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 4, 1990

In order to fulfill your ambitious objectives in the year ahead you may have to make some changes dictated by the course of events. Flexibility will greatly enhance your chances for success.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you are too assertive you might run into difficulties today when you try to take charge of a development where another strong-willed individual has also filed his/her claim to the territory. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91328, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Although you and your mate may have a common objective today, a crisis could arise over the way each wants to execute his/her ideas. If neither will compromise, trouble could result.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Usually you are a rather easy person with whom to get along, but today you might have a chip on your shoulder and read more into what people say than they intend and come out swinging.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not expect others to protect your interests today in your financial or business dealings. You must look out for yourself or else you may end up with less than what you had when you started.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) As long as you stick to the blueprint you originally envision, things should go rather smoothly today. If you let others cut into on your act, you may have to kiss your chances good-bye.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In order to be productive today you will have to be well organized and methodical, because if you get off on a wrong tangent, you might not be able to get back on course.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to be selective regarding your social activities today. Don't let friends get you involved in something you not only don't enjoy doing, but you feel is too expensive as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) No one questions your ability as an achiever, but today you might set goals and objectives for yourself that are actually unattainable. Be practical and realistic regarding your targets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Strive to be philosophical regarding today's events instead of making mountains out of molehills. A poor attitude will make life much tougher than it is.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be both courageous and firm in your business negotiations today, especially if you have to deal with a tough "cookie" who has something you want.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are not likely to make good decisions when you are pressured today, so don't let anyone put you in a position where you feel you must come up with an immediate answer.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something you previously failed to attend to properly may vie for attention again today. If you don't take care of it now, it will remain a burr under your saddle.
