

High Gridders Will Initiate Season In Game With Rollins

Monster Parade To Be Held By Students To Arouse Enthusiasm

Play To Start At 4 Large Attendance Expected At 1st Game

By Fred Schmitt
With monster parade as a starter and a football game which promises to be a real struggle, the season will open in all its glory tomorrow at Municipal Field when the strong Rollins-Rats meet Coach High Gridders. Seminole High Gridders to take in a series of games which will last the football season throughout the season, but first which is expected to be returned the victor in each contest.

Football spirit has never reached the height it has now attained over Seminole High and a capacity attendance is predicted, the student body planning to appear in a body. And since the daily sessions have been witnessed by large numbers of fans, to forest all the boys begin to attend outside the school and an enormous crowd is expected to be on hand when the ball is kicked off. The contest will begin at four o'clock promptly.

Yesterday's session consisted of signal drills and a short session of spinning and was well attended with the boys showing an unusual amount of interest in the practice of each play. The coach is well satisfied with his squad and feels that this has been his most successful pre-season practice, his men rounding into shape in just the right time for the first game, and being in almost perfect shape physically. Some valuable pointers have been discovered and the talent of a number of the boys have been developed during the past few weeks until they should now be ready to tackle any high school team and come off victorious. It has been a pleasure to watch the boys in their daily workouts and there is promise of all-star material in this fine looking squad.

and stamina, played by two teams of eleven men each. The playing field is 360 feet long and is raised off into spaces ten yards long. At each end of the field directly in the center of the end line are goal posts.

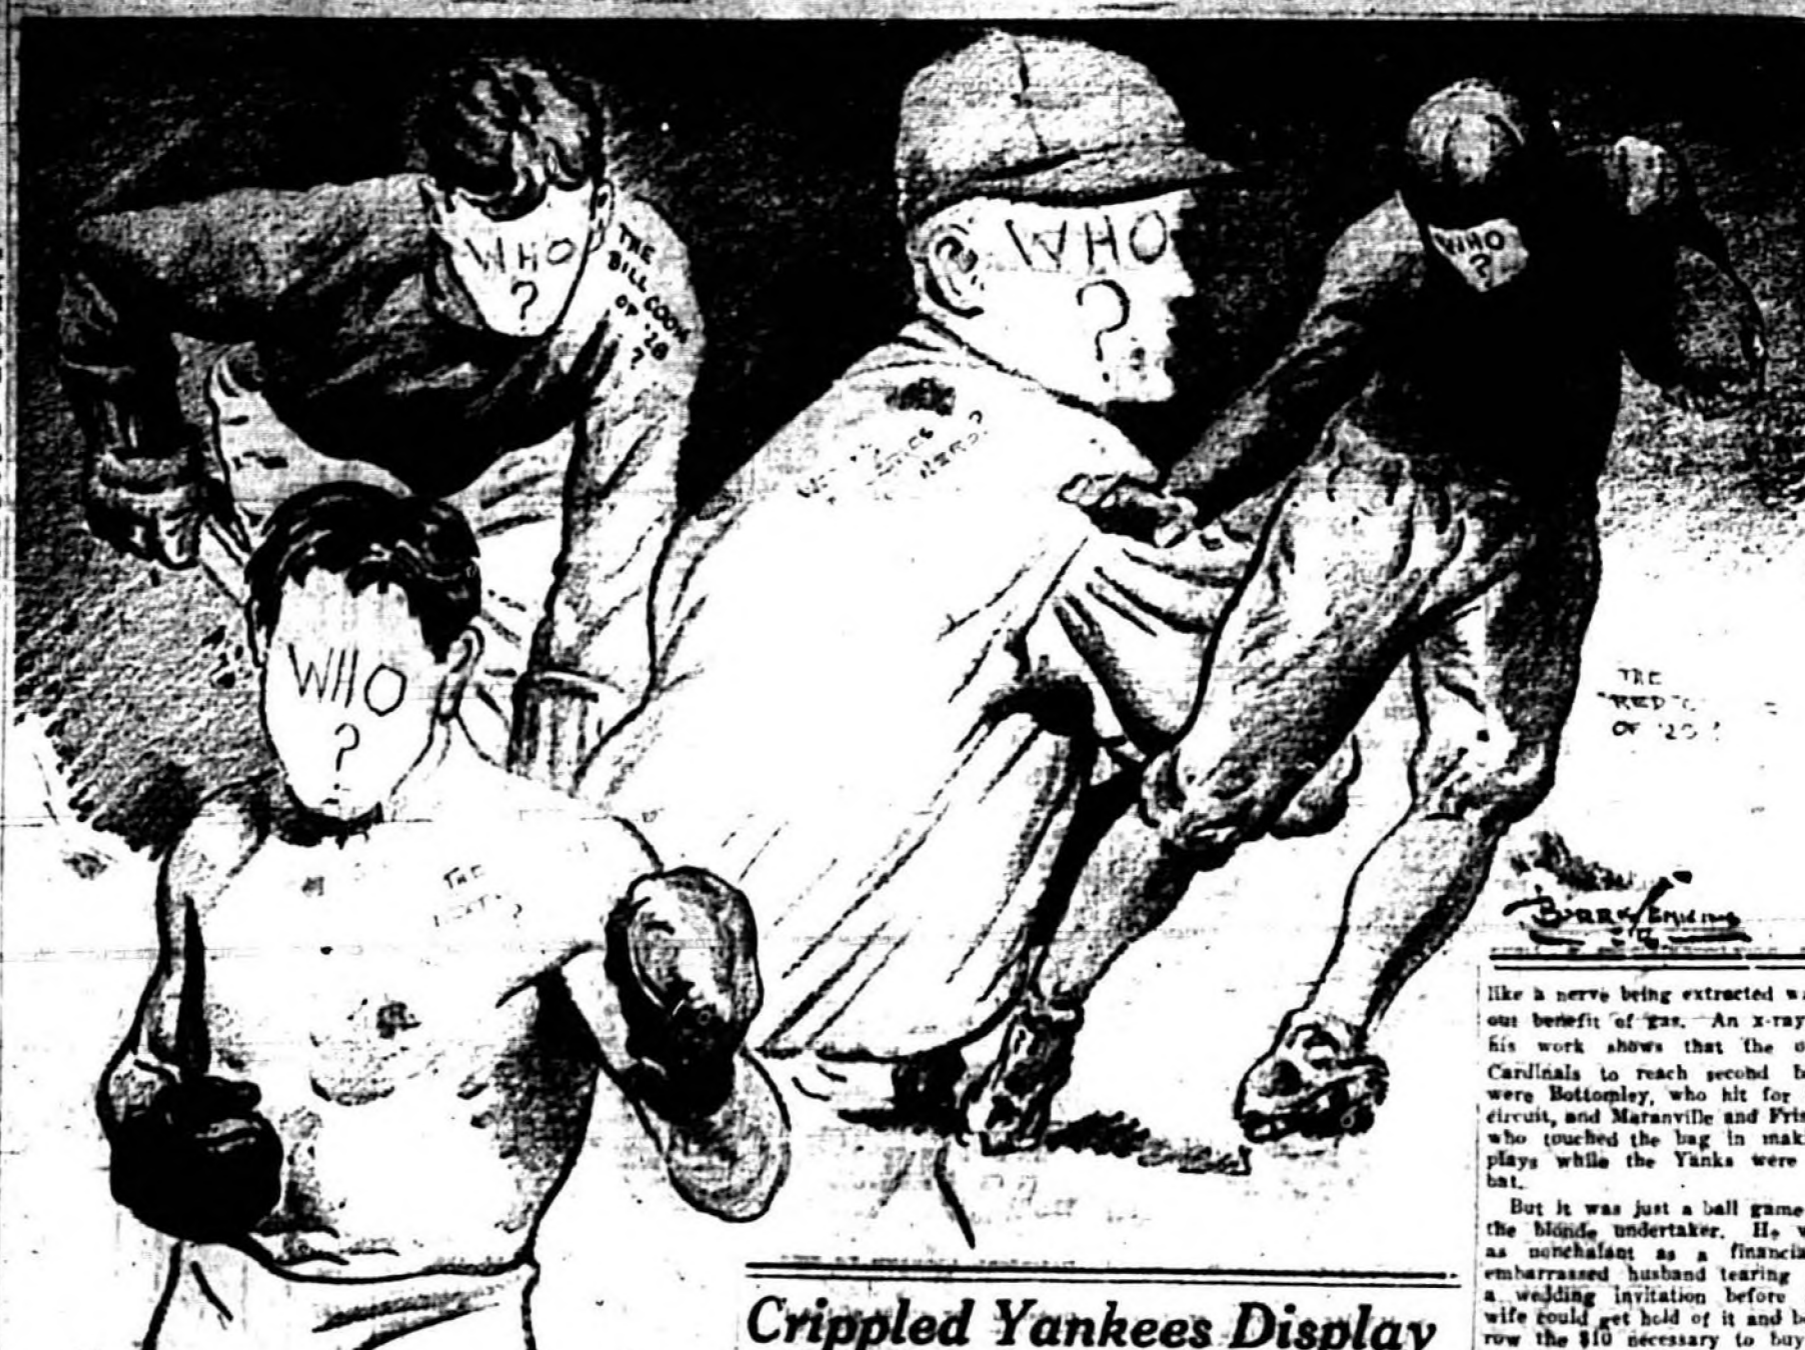

Each team is composed of eleven men, seven of whom are linemen, the remaining four comprise the backfield. The keynote of the team is the center. Next to him are the light and left guards, then right and left tackles and right and left ends. Each man has his own job to do with the duty of the line being to open a hole for the backs to go through when playing on the offensive which means they are in possession of the ball, and to keep the opposition from breaking through when they are on the defense, when the other side has the ball. Watch the work of the ends closely for upon them depends the success of many plays.

The backfield positions are fullback, right and left halfbacks and quarter back. Ordinarily the quarterback is the man calling signals and it is his duty to see every move of every enemy player, and to direct his team against the weak spots accordingly. He is the most important position of the team and he must be a man of keen mind, great courage and coolness. The halfbacks are used almost entirely carrying the ball although they are often used as halfbacks or fullbacks. Their duties as halfbacks require that they get their man every time in order to make a clear path for the man carrying the ball to advance. If they fail, the play is a total loss in most cases. The fullback is supposed to be a power on defense as well as a power on offense. In many cases, to the fullback goes the brunt of the battle, he is the one who is called upon to gain an extra yard or two in order to complete the necessary gain. He must be a man of powerful build, great stamina and steady nerve.

A test of a team's decision which team shall kick to the other to open the game and the captain of the team chooses the goal which his team will defend depending upon the conditions of the field as to whether the run will be a disadvantage or whether the wind is in favor of the kick. The teams spread out on the field at the start and the ball is kicked from the forty yard line. The enemy team is to advance the ball as far as possible without being downed by the kicking team and after the man is downed, the team kicked to is in possession of the ball and takes the offensive.

The object then is, to advance the ball by a series of plays across the field to the goal line. To do this the team in possession of the ball has two tries or downs to advance the ball ten yards. If it is successful in the attempt it has four downs to make the next ten yards and so on until the goal is crossed or the ball is lost to the other side through fumbles, punts, or the failure to make the ten yards. In the event a team is unable to make the ten yards, the ball "goes over" to the defensive team which takes is to keep the enemy from advancing the ball and a good defensive player must be able to sense plays as well as tackle hard and low and be fearless in clipping the opposition.

To advance the ball, each team has a series of plays which are made known to the team by the use of signals. The signals are generally a group of numbers called in rapid order by the quarterback to an ordinary end run or tackle play, and then there is the use of the hand and the ball is to be snapped. Plays are made either directly over the center of the line or over off the tackle position, or around the end. There are tricks which develop out of what seems to be an ordinary end run or tackle play, and then there is the use of the hand and the ball is to be snapped. In the event that the team on offense has carried the ball close to the enemy goal line and several attempts have been made to advance only to be stopped, an attempt is made to advance the ball by kicking the ball over and beyond the goal posts. It is a beautiful play in most cases and is filled with suspense as often it is known that the team is to try to kick. This counts 3 points in scoring. After a team has carried the ball across the goal line it has received a touchdown, 6 points, and the ball is brought into play on the 3 yard line for an additional try for point. This additional point is necessary in that it often eliminates the game. After the try for point the ball is again kicked off as at first. Needless to say the duty of the team on defense

Opinion Is Suggested That New York Team Will Have Excellent Chance To Win Series If Men Don't Recover

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—If Hazy breaks a leg, if Alexander fractures his right wrist, if Fritch falls under a subway train and if Haines' automobile stalls in front of an express, as a trade reporter, then the Cardinals will have an excellent chance of winning the series. Provided, of course, that Ruth and Lester do not suffer a relapse.

Don't forget The Herald's matinee Sunday. We'll put on as good a show as they play.

For leather-lunged voices we repeatedly call attention to Roy Childers. They say he can be heard two blocks away now, and goodness knows how far it will be if the Cardinals ever get the edge to win a game.

The leads are traveling today.

Tomorrow old man Tom Zachary will probably oppose young Jesse Blaine. Somehow, we still have a little hope left that Jess' knuckle ball may be the thing that the Yankees don't like.

A young stripling by the name of Babe Bath continues to hit 'em but not for homers. The Bambino has obtained five hits in seven trips to the plate where he has been hitting two-baggers. At that, the Sultan of Swat has shown that he is still worth his $70,000 a year.

Old Joe Alexander's performance

last Friday was disappointing to fans who remember the remarkable pitching he turned in two years ago to give the Cardinals a world's championship over those same Yankees. But then, the best can always remain great.

Hoover And Smith

Among the wealth of propaganda pouring into this office from the campaign headquarters of both major parties, is a little pamphlet purporting to give unbiased facts regarding Smith and Hoover as well as former president. It was prepared by Lynn E. Stiles and has been distributed by the Washington Times-Dispatch, a leading newspaper in the capital district.

Herbert Hoover, it says, in effect, was born in West Branch, Iowa on August 10, 1874, and now has his official residence in California. His father, a blacksmith and dealer in agricultural implements, was of Dutch extraction and was named Jesse. Hoover's mother, Hulda Minthorn, descended from the English. Hoover married Lou Henry in Monterey, California, in 1899. They have two children, Allen and Herbert Jr.

Smith's full name is Alfred Emanuel Smith. He was born in New York City on December 30, 1873. His father had the same name and made his living driving a taxicab. The Governor's mother was Catherine Mulvihill, an Irish woman. Smith married Catherine A. Dunn in New York in 1900. They have five children, Emily (Mrs. John A. Warner), Catherine (Mrs. Francis J. Quillinan), Alfred E. Jr., Arthur, and Walter.

Hoover graduated from the Engineering School of Leland Stanford, specializing in mining. The first professional work of his life carried him to China, thence to Adairville, Mexico, Africa and finally England in all of which countries he was widely consulted on problems pertaining to mines. The year before the war Hoover represented the Panama-Pacific Exposition in Europe. After 1914 he was successively Chairman of the American Relief Commission, Chairman of the Commission for the Relief of Belgium, U. S. Food Administrator, and Chairman of the European Relief Commission. From 1921 until very recently he has served as secretary of Commerce in the Harding cabinet and then in the Coolidge cabinet.

Smith went to work early in life as a newsboy on the streets of New York. Later he became an office boy and then a clerk. His public life began when he was quite young with his becoming Office Commissioner of Jurors. He soon became a member of the lower house of the state legislature, and then its speaker. He was at one time or another New York county president of the board of alderman for New York City, member of the Port of New York Authority, and for four terms governor of the state of New York.

From these facts about their lives, it is hard to choose between the two candidates. They are both men who started at the bottom, and in true American fashion, worked their way steadily to the top of their respective professions. In casting his vote, one will have to make his decision on the principles to which the respective parties adhere and the moral standards of the two men.

Howey's Attack

The life of a nominee is hard. His every move is watched with suspicion, his every act is subject for criticism. Doyle Carlton, Democratic nominee for governor, a position which in this state carries with it the certainty of election, was quick to go to the devastated area following the storm. He couldn't have been wanting votes. There are not enough in that section to make any difference one way or the other. He undoubtedly went with a sincere desire to lend some aid to sufferers whom he rightly believed he could help, on account of his position, better than anyone else. Now he is condemned by some for capitalizing politically on an unfortunate situation.

"William J. Howey," says the Ocala Star, "has criticized Doyle Carlton for his humanitarian work in the storm-swept section around Lake Okechobee and infers, according to a statement, purported to have been made by him, that Carlton went into the storm area, distributing the funds raised by Tampa, for political purposes. Mr. Howey has made several unwise statements during his campaign for governor, but this is a colossal blunder that will cost him the respect of many well wishers who took kindly to his candidity."

Carlton did not have to go into the storm area to secure votes. His election in November is the least of his worries. Out of the compassion in his heart he went to give sympathy and succor to an afflicted people in their time of need, the first opportunity he has had to show his appreciation of their confidence in him and his actions after finding out their pitiable circumstances show the manner of man he is. Doyle Carlton measured up to the needs of the hour and the implicit confidence placed in him by the people of his home town, who gave him $75,000 to disburse on his own judgment, is ample evidence that Mr. Howey's blast will fall on deaf ears. The republican party had better stick to Al Smith as a butting block. They can't make a dent in Carlton.

SPEECHES OF ACCEPTANCE

PALM BEACH INDEPENDENT

Speeches of acceptance by candidates for the presidential office have become a political rite in America, and like most other rites have also become a circus. Last night we looked over an American school history of considerable reputation and in it did not find mention of the speech of acceptance of any presidential candidate. In this campaign, more attention has been paid to the speeches of the candidates than in any other. This was owing to the fact that it was a novelty to hear a man speak to you before the people could find the speaker of a candidate printed in the newspapers a few hours after they were spoken. Very few people read them all the way thru. Probably a majority did not read them at all. This was positively proved by the remarks made about them during the ensuing campaign.

The speeches of Smith and Hoover were heard over the radio by millions of people. Probably the speeches of the 1924 candidates will be heard the same way. After that, the novelty will have worn off and the acceptance speeches will receive their regular amount of attention.

The reason for this is obvious. The candidate and a bunch of his friends generally put in a dozen days or two weeks traveling the circuit and giving speeches. It is difficult to read what shall be said, for in his assumption that few will read the few lines of the speech, the candidate often reads it in a way that will be heard by the radio.

Mr. Smith's speech was more interesting than Mr. Hoover's. That was also on account of prohibition. Mr. Smith is standing firm on prohibition. He is standing on it with both feet. The impression prevails with a large majority of the American people that he is not only standing on prohibition, but, if needed, will stand on it. That will be the reason why he will be elected.

STORM SENSE

JACKSONVILLE JOURNAL

As the Palm Beaches and the Okechobee areas bury their dead, clear their debris and begin in pained courage and unshaken faith, the task of rebuilding what the storm destroyed is a wisdom that should accompany courage and the work that should go hand in hand with it. It is not the reconstruction of the old, but the reconstruction of a new Florida that should be the aim of all who are engaged in the task. It is not the reconstruction of the old, but the reconstruction of a new Florida that should be the aim of all who are engaged in the task.

Long before Florida came to a standstill as a result of the hurricane, the people of the state were engaged in the task of rebuilding what the storm destroyed. It is not the reconstruction of the old, but the reconstruction of a new Florida that should be the aim of all who are engaged in the task.

Over every phase of the reconstruction work that should be done, there should be a united opinion that will give the people a better understanding of the situation and a more effective plan of action.

With a physical reconstruction of the state and an increasing intelligence service to its people, the people of Florida will be able to meet the very real future that is before them. It is not the reconstruction of the old, but the reconstruction of a new Florida that should be the aim of all who are engaged in the task.

Mr. Smith advocates a liberalizing of Congress of the Volstead law so people can obtain beer with more kick in it. We are of the opinion that such an action by Congress might be wise. We have never considered beer as an intoxicating fluid. We have never been able to hold enough of it to make us drunk. Besides, it would rob the wretches of their most persistent argument: "If they would only let us have light, wine and beer," they wail. By selling beer over the bar and selling bootleg in the back room would be a humane dispenser of light drinks could make a living and then some.

Mr. Smith says that if he is elected he will enforce prohibition as long as it is the law, and anybody who wants to is welcome to believe him. We do not. Mr. Smith wants the immigration laws made less strict, and is particularly against their being so severe against the people of Southern Europe.

We confess we cannot see how any Democratic candidate can take this position. Restriction immigration has been Democratic policy for decades. The civilization of North America has been built by people from Northern Europe. Mr. Smith probably doesn't know it, but the entire population of Southern Europe is tainted with negro or Mongolian blood. The rash of lower class Europeans to America was the direct result of the greed of Republican capitalists, who brought in slaves and groggers and hangers on to work in competition with Americans and force down the standard of living.

The Democratic National Convention at Houston said the South is a gold mine and the South should be developed. The South should be developed. The South should be developed.

MABEL'S VICTORY

THE WOMAN VOTE

Five million women in the United States are now eligible to vote. This is a great step forward for the women of this country. It is a step that will give them a voice in the government and a share in the responsibility of the nation.

These women who have been so long denied the right to vote, are now stepping forward to take their place with the men in the government. They are stepping forward to take their place with the men in the government. They are stepping forward to take their place with the men in the government.

ZEP AHOY!

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

Since the war, for one reason or another, the dirigible has suffered something of an eclipse. The great expense involved in the construction of these giant airships and the appalling loss of both life and property that occurs when one is wrecked have given pause to their construction and use. In the meantime, the triumph of the airplane has plastered public attention to the exclusion of its lighter-than-air sister.

But this neglect, barring accident, is shortly to be remedied in the performances of the Count Zeppelin, the new German monster now in training for a flight to this country and return. The cables have been singing of her last flights over the Reich and surrounding territory, and more recently still of her swing-over the North Sea and London, and should such be heralding the start of her over ambitious voyage. No doubt, when she has spanned the Atlantic and possibly, this continent, and shown herself to the curious thousands who will turn out to gaze at her slipping through the sky like a silver eagle or floating in her impetuosity to the end of a mooring mast, there will come a marked renewal of public interest in the type of vehicle she represents.

For it is obvious that the dirigible fills a gap in the development of aeronautics that the heavier-than-air machine has failed to bridge. Unless one excepts the Clerve autogyro, still in its early experimental stage, there is as yet no other species of aircraft that is not fatally dependent on its momentum to keep it aloft, none other that can be expanded indefinitely in lifting power and radius of flight. In the transportation of goods in quantity or of passengers over vast expanses of ocean or desert, the dirigible is still without an air rival, and promises to continue to be.

If trans-Atlantic commerce by air is to be established in the near future, it seems much more likely to use the dirigible than the airplane.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express appreciation for the many acts of kindness shown by our friends upon the death of our beloved mother, Mrs. Anna Ohland, and for the numerous floral offerings. We also wish to extend our thanks to Rev. J. Bernard Root for the comfort he offered and for the tribute paid in the final rites for our mother. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Thurston and family.

WHEN YOU ENTERTAIN

For the butterfly party an attractive decoration for the inverted electric light shade would be to make the wire hoop to fit just above the top of the shade.

Attach narrow streamers at half-inch spaces around the hoop and over this paste a narrow shiff paper trim to the hoop. There is an in a small butterfly design with scalloped edge that would be appropriate.

From decorative crepe paper cut the small butterflies and attach them at intervals, in flying position, along the pendant streamers. Fine, white wire around the hoop will make it possible to place the butterfly in any desired position.

Zasu Pitts Stars In "Buck Privates" To Be At Milane Today

Zasu Pitts is featured as the most wistful of all screen players to play the role of a wistful little German girl in Universal's comedy of the American Army of Occupation, "Buck Privates," which will come to the Milane Theater today.

Lya In Barri and Maxine M. Gregg play the leading roles, while Eddie Gribbon as the hard-boiled top sergeant is also opposite Miss Pitts.

Miss Pitts is a Kansas native who has been in pictures since 1924 and during that time has played many other roles in the feature film than any other actress in the business. She is always the picture for the picture.

But in "Buck Privates" her role is a leading departure and she gets her make.

Miss Pitts has three children, she being the youngest, and is married to the late date and is expecting which is not so much of a surprise in California, as it might seem, for Los Angeles is the home of three girls which are in the year round.

SANFORD GARDEN CLUB MEETS ON FRIDAY AT YACHT CLUB

The Sanford Garden Club held a very enthusiastic meeting yesterday at the Yacht Club, ushering in the autumn planting season for the season. In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. M. Scott presided.

It was decided during the meeting that the 11 and 12 should be set aside for a special flower sale to be held by the Stokes Seed Company with the cooperation of the Garden Club members. On these days there will be offered not only the Harpur flower seeds, handled by the Stokes Company, but also Easter lily bulbs and other bulbs raised by the club members. Representatives of the Garden Club will be at the Stokes company office on these days to explain correct methods for the various seeds and bulbs.

Due to the fact that members of the constitution may be invited to the meeting, the club will have a special committee to handle the matter. Mrs. J. I. Markham was appointed chairman of a committee representing the club to arrange for the annual January luncheon meeting.

The nature of the meeting was an instructive talk by Mr. M.

BEWARE!

Don't Trade with the Door-to-Door Peddler

I'N LEGAL PARLANCE THERE IS A TERM "CAVEAT EMPTOR" WHICH MEANS "LET THE BUYER BEWARE." IN OTHER WORDS YOU BUY AT YOUR OWN RISK—NO COMEBACKS, NO REDRESS.

But community business isn't done that way nowadays. Your local merchant in the "store just around the corner" guards his reputation and the future of his business too well to subscribe to any such policy. He gives you service and satisfaction after, as well as before, the sale is made.

The door to door peddler and the transient trader, they are the "caveat emptor kind. They sell you and as many of your neighbors as they can cover in a day—then back to the hotel, the trunk is packed, checked into the "buggy car ahead" and gone forever—"let the buyer beware."

Do you want to deal with a sort of a "fly-by-night" trader? Or do you want to deal with your steadfast, reliable, home-town merchants—the men who make up the list of your best citizens, largest tax payers, public benefactors and community builders?

Why should you have to beware when you buy? Buy from your home-town merchant and be sure of good reliable goods, of guaranteed quality and satisfaction at any and all times that you drop into "the store just around the corner."
