From the Stage Play by Owen Davis, Jr. Produced by Harry Lee

THE STORY THUS FAR: During the Mardi Gras of 1850, New Orleans society is invited to the home of General Bogardus, where his selfish son, Miss Julie Marston, is to announce her engagement to the young banker, Fred Dillard. A former lover of the girl, Buck Cantrell, arranges a duel with De Launay, a Creole, for disparaging remarks about her. Julie is breaking a coil and comes late to her party, appearing to the horror of the guests, in her riding habit. Because her fiancé is kept at a bank directors' meeting and misses the reception, she sends a negro with a message, commanding him to come to her. He refuses and she goes to get him in a rage.

CHAPTER II

"As I said before, gentlemen, the South is doomed to economic extinction, unless it is willing to compete with the enterprises of the Northern States—by building this railroad."

Young Fred Dillard was agreeably conscious that he was winning the conservative bank directors to his way of thinking, and when the bookkeeper tipped up behind him, picked his sleeve whispering that Julie was outside he flung with embarrassment, and covered himself as well as he could.

"Well, Mr. Dillard," Julie said with quiet menace, "Are you coming with me... or am you not?"

"Julie, honey, try to understand! This is so important!"

"I came up here to—to—" He realized that he could not go through with it. "Oh, Julie, honey," he pleaded, "how long must we go on like this... fighting like children?"

"Why do you treat me like a child then?"

"Because you behave like one—a spoiled one!"

"You used to say you liked me like that!" she pouted, retreating ever so slightly. "You never want me to grow up, you said... remember?"

"Julie!" He remembered only too well, and took her in his arms. "Want to see my new dress?" she asked sweetly, "the one I got to wear to the Proteus Ball? You see it is, on the bed! Isn't it lovely?"

"But Julie, honey, do be reasonable..."

"I suppose it isn't important," she retorted, with narrowing eyes, "I'll have my maid bring my ball dress made for tomorrow night—and that you promised to come and see it fitted. In fact, I don't suppose that it's important what I wear to the Proteus Ball. It's only you that's important! I don't suppose Mr. De Cour and the rest of the big business, could possibly get along without you?"

"Julie—right now I'm having the fight of my life in there—a grand fight! I've got to get back here along now, and later tonight I'll come to you and we'll—"

Julie left in fury, drove to her dressing room, ordered a villainously red dress to be delivered that evening—in spite of Aunt Belle's protestations—and ordered the black dithier to take them home.

Fred Dillard was accosted by the Livingston, eldest of the directors, after the meeting ended, he ventured to say that in his day a man who had the sort of trouble he was evidently having with Miss Julie, would not be a nobody, see it in her, grasp the wiles and then say her a diamond speech!

Determined to be free, Fred hastened to Julie's home, where his new attitude was highly approved by Aunt Belle and the General.

The perturbed young man bounded up the stairs, his eyes walking back still in his hand, and knocked on Julie's bedroom door. He called her, called again, but got no answer. Julie, in a tresser of malicious delight, was spreading the red dress on her bed.

As he opened the door the maid came. "Why, Mr. Dillard!" she exclaimed, "Knocking on a lady's door! I'm scandalized!" He was getting his wits about him, he saw white with confusion, and she made the delicate discovery, that if he did not go in now it would be the greatest silliest he had ever seen. "Well," she cried, "I'll go to bed!"

"But, Julie," he gasped, "it's—it's real! You never saw an unmarried girl there in anything but white! You know that! It's only custom, I know—but you're a position to maintain and—"

"Oh!" she was suddenly scornful. "Will you please hold another directors' meeting, so they may decide what I can wear!"

"Julie, for heavens' sake be reasonable!"

"Were you reasonable this afternoon?"

"So that's it, is it? Nursing your spite!" He gripped her arm.

"Well, I'm not going to let you! I am calling for you tomorrow night at ten—and you're going to be properly dressed for the ball—in white!"

"Am I?—Oh, of course, Mr. Dillard, if you say so!"

The moment he was gone she sat down at her desk and began to sew a note to Buck Cantrell. She was sure he would not have left his home yet for the place of the duel, but commanded Sette, the mulatto girl, to deliver it to him with all speed. Some time later Buck might have been seen with the letter in his hand, and Ted, rushing down to the gate to meet him. Then, in a whisper, "Did you—kill him?"

"She? Miss Julie," he answered, "I don't rightly follow you. I never did him that bad! By King—that red dress of yours! It's like a home ache!"

"That he became serious. "Miss Julie—what you want me for, say now!"

"I want you to take me to the Proteus Ball!"

Don't Blame the Car

Less than 10 per cent of the fatal and non-fatal crashes on our highways last year were caused by mechanical failure, according to The Travelers Insurance Company's analysis of the 1937 automobile accident experience.

In more than 90 per cent of the accidents, the vehicle was found to have been in apparently good condition. The trouble lay in human failure.

In the vast majority of cases it is the driver or the passenger and not the car that causes accidents.

Fear Of Reprisal To Be Safeguard During Next War

Retaliation In World War For Atrocities Taught Its Lesson

By DEVON FRANCIS

When bombing planes roar over populous cities in "the next war," they probably will spare the rules of national and even treaties of art.

It will not be a matter of international courtesy. The "niceties" of modern warfare are dictated by fear of reprisal.

A my man acquainted with what are known loosely as the "rules of war" have discounted in advance the need for the elaborate precautions being taken for protection of Europe's royal families and certain of the diehards in the event of bombing raids.

The British mission now in the United States for the ostensible purpose of buying warplanes wants to insure the safety of munitions dumps and wharves, not of Buckingham Palace.

The World War taught its lessons in indiscriminate bombing. Retaliation was swift and world opinion outraged.

Kaiser Wilhelm himself issued strict orders that such places as the residence of King George, Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's cathedral and the residential sections of London should not be bombed by zeppelins, even accidentally.

Allied warplanes had ample opportunity to drop explosives on the field headquarters of the German high command. Sometimes the Kaiser visited Field Marshal von Hindenburg in the latter's quarters. The intelligence services knew when it occurred. So did the Allied high command. But the head of the imperial empire and the man who established the "Hindenburg line" went untouched.

On April 13, 1915, the Zeppelin LZ-55 was ready to set out on a raid over supply centers behind the British lines—Cassel, St. Omer and Hasebroeck.

"Just before departing, the commander, Captain Mealus, was handed a telegram in code," wrote the late Capt. Erns Lehmann, veteran airship commander, in a book published in 1927. "By direct order of the Kaiser the attack on St. Omer was forbidden and Poperinghe substituted. The reason was soon made known."

"Headquarters had received word that the Allied leaders were to hold a secret meeting at St. Omer and the kings of both Belgium and England were to be present."

By tacit understanding, munitions never became the conscious target of airmen.

"World indignation when the Germans rained London and killed civilians with bombs from the air was instantaneous, while British warplanes made immediate reprisals on German cities."

Experts in wartime propaganda were "inclined to discount, also, some of the terrifying prophecies of destruction growing out of practices in the Spanish and Sino-Japanese wars."

"Whether a bombing is an 'atrocious,' they point out, depends largely on the point of view."

During the World War both the Allies and their enemies tried placing hospitals, liberally marked with Red Crosses, next to ammunition dumps—so placed the ammunition. Seldom did either side get away with it. Stray bombs landed for the dumps hit the hospitals, and propaganda "atroc-

J. N. Robson Is Given Prize For Best Letter

J. N. Robson of Perkins Clothing Store received a $5.00 check today for writing one of the winning letters in a recently sponsored "best letter" contest held by "Apparel Arts, Inc.," a Herald reporter learned today.

Mr. Robson's letter that took the prize said in part: "Apparel Arts is our guiding star. We just can't get along without it. We consider each issue an asset to our business in more ways than one. The publication is beautifully gotten up and we expect to be a subscriber as long as it is published."

HOW SANFORD'S BOAT DAY BECAME HISTORY

"She's comin'." That excited cry from children watching for the first sight of smoke heralded the arrival each Monday of the steamer Darlington from Jacksonville during the 70's.

Those who came to watch the boat dock searched faces of new arrivals for those of friends or relatives and pressed anxiously around the postmaster hoping for news-bringing letters. They lingered to watch with more than passing interest the unloading of freight consigned to Doyle and Brantley's General Store, supply headquarters for all of Central Florida.

They were eager for this one link with the outer world. It meant more abundant living. And eager in working for abundance, Sanford people built the world's celery center, a leading citrus district, a number of industries, a vacationland prized by discriminating people. Daily railway, bus and boat schedules were inaugurated. "Boat Day" became history. But the eagerness for more abundant living goes on.

Fascists Fail In Attempt To Seize Brazil

Revolt Aimed At President Vargas Is Put Down After Brief Battle For Capital

In China, Hundreds Die In Bomb Raids

Jap Warships And Airplanes Continue To Attack South Coast

A Fascist revolt against Brazil's totalitarian president was put down after a brief battle in Rio De Janeiro, aggravating the unrest in a world already shaken by wars in China and Spain and still embittered over the Ethiopian conquest.

The rebels, identified with the Fascist intellectual movement, surrendered after failing to enter the palace of President Getulio Vargas and other government buildings.

Reports indicated that the intellectual (Green shirted Fascist) organization, supported by some army men and civilians, had tried to overthrow the authoritarian government.

Meanwhile in Geneva a cold reception awaited Haile Selassie, called King of Ethiopia, who planned personally to carry his conquered nation's fight before the League council.

In China, 6000 houses were rased and 200 civilians killed or wounded when Japanese bombing planes rained bombs, base of the Chinese army, determined the Shanghai press.

Japanese warships and planes continued the bombardment of Amoy on the South China coast.

A return of dry weather in Spain enabled insurgents to resume their offensive against Castellon and Valencia. For more than two weeks they have been making slow progress due to heavy rains.

Worshippers sat on the bare floors of churches until the 15th century when pews first came into use.

THEY DON'T THROW THEIR MONEY AWAY

No better tribute could be paid to the value of advertising in the home town daily than the words of advce given insurance supervisors by the head of a large agency in New York yesterday as carried by the Associated Press.

"Newspaper advertising when done on a national scale enables the life insurance agent to make more money than is possible through magazine advertising.

"By advertising in newspapers, the life insurance companies can fit their copy to the specific locality and to the pocketbooks of those communities.

"We believe that the life insurance companies have already convinced the American people (in magazine advertisements) that life insurance is a good thing to own. They need to be told in their daily newspapers how much life insurance will produce various amounts of income for life. Start doing a selling job now on your direction, they have planned.

Their plans are so thorough that they have planned to sell life insurance to every man, woman and child in the United States.

A proposal for a citrus growers association for Seminole County was made last night at the citrus growers meeting held at the Court House conducted by County Agent C. R. Dawson.

Some of the problems that the association have to cope with are: shipping of green fruit, high transportation costs, marketing of fruit and lower production costs.

Principal speakers were W. T. Notley, D. E. Timmons and E. C. Hines, who discussed different phases of citrus growing and the problems affecting growers.

No definite action was taken by the group on the proposed citrus association but Mr. Dawson said today that he will soon issue a questionnaire which citrus growers will be asked to fill out.

Greater Volume Handled By Farm Mart This Season

J. G. Michael Reveals Various Facts Concerning Operations

A greater volume of produce than ever before was handled at the State Farmers Wholesale Market during the season now coming to a close, Manager J. G. Michael said yesterday.

Since most of the commodities which are sold at the market are changed in North Florida, Georgia, Alabama and other Southern states, only a few out-of-state truckers are now making regular trips this far south, the market manager said.

Mr. Michael also stated he has not compiled his annual reports on the operation of the local concentration market in the state's farm products marketing system.

He said he believed, however, that the volume of business this year was higher than for last year. "Although," he added, "the gross receipts for the current season would be somewhat lower than last year in view of the generally lower prices paid for products during the season."

During the first few months of the season, Mr. Michael recalled, prices for commodities sold through the platform were generally higher than prices paid for the same commodities last year. However, as the season advanced, prices began a downward trend, on many products which lasted during the entire season.

Prices for cabbage generally have been higher than for any other commodities, Mr. Michael said, adding that there had been a good demand for this locally grown product during the entire season.

The citrus packing house which recently completed its first season on the market premises, Mr. Michael said, sold a heavy volume of fruit, but gross receipts here were also low because of the low prices for citrus prevailing throughout the entire season.

Commenting on the low prices paid for farm products this year, Mr. Michael stated that he believes a decision of the Supreme Court on the matter, Mr. Eckerson concluded.

House Committee Endorses Probe Of Un-Americans

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—A proposed congressional inquiry that may focus attention on the Russian American bond and may force Russia or Communist activities in the United States, was the subject of the influential House rules committee yesterday.

The committee endorsed an investigation resolving the issue. Chairman Dickstein, Democrat, New York, of the influential committee, said today.

The measure, by Rep. J. G. Michael, Democrat, Texas, would create a government House committee to determine the extent, character and objectives of the American propaganda activities in the United States, whether of foreign or domestic origin.

It makes no mention of Nazi, Fascist or Communist organizations, but Committee managers plan it was aimed in that direction.

Dickson said money from Germany in American and has paid for 31 Nazi camps. He added that Nazis have sent a million war draft blanks to men of German blood in the United States, and that "20 big industries in this country have contributed money to the Nazi cause because they have interests in Germany."

"There is going to be another riot next week," the New Yorker said. "They are going to have a parade of 100,000 Nazis opening up Camp Starbuck, Long Island."

"A group of Legionnaires came to me yesterday and said they were ready to take the law in their own hands because they say these Nazis can't stop-step and 'Hitl' Hitler,' and carry on with 'Swastikas.'"

Declaring the Communist party has only 22,000 members, and the fund 100,000, Dickstein said Fascism and Nazism are much more dangerous at present.

Redfearn Speaks To Kiwanians On Religious Trends

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—The world is what it is because of the "ruling ideas" of the people hold at any particular time, Rev. Paul Redfearn, president of the Sanford Ministerial Association, today at the regular weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Valdez Hotel.

Mr. Redfearn was introduced by J. D. Jenkins, chairman of the program committee.

Rev. Redfearn told of the history of the Hebrew race, saying that the Hebrews became a great and cultured race because the ruling ideas they held of God and religion made them great.

The trouble with the masses today, he said, is that they have settled down with a very set of ideas. There has been a change in the ruling idea of the masses.

Rev. Redfearn stated that all foundations of social, political and economic life lie in the human spirit, and that it is only when that spirit turns to religion to new "ruling ideas" that a change will be wrought.

Julius Dingleider, a member of the Kiwanis Club, presided.

3 Republicans Attack Administration Proposal As Threat To National Solvency

Minority Proposes 12-Point Program

WPA Investigation Is Among Suggestions Offered By Group

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—The White House said today President Roosevelt was powerless to settle the controversy over the sale of Helms to Germany growing out of a proposal of Secretary Hines to approve the sale contract without guarantee against its use in foreign military operations.

The result of the sale to Germany was pointed out, requires the unanimous consent of its cabinet officers on the National Munitions Control Board, and taken in one of these.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—Three Republican members of the House Appropriations Committee today attacked the Administration's pending spending program as a "threat to national solvency." They also called current business conditions the "Roosevelt depression."

The attack was embodied in a minority report written by Representative T. G. B. Toler and James W. Wadsworth of Massachusetts.

The minority proposed a 12-point program calling, among other things, for a congressional investigation of the Works Progress Administration, local federal in particular administration of relief, and sweeping changes and revisions in much of the Roosevelt Administration's economic program.

The multi-billion dollar recovery program passed through the House yesterday and was praised by Democrats as a means of providing 5,000,000 jobs in the next fiscal year.

Passage in substantially its present form and without delay was urged when the appropriations committee earmarked the gigantic fund to create anti-New Deal Democrats who feared it might be used in reprisal against them at the polls in the November elections. Leaders hope to enact the bill the latter part of the week in the first of next.

Twenty-five new members were added last week by the Sanford Townsend Club Number One. It was announced today in a report to the Herald.

FAREWELL ADDRESS AT SPRINGFIELD

Friends: I am not in my situation... I have lived a quarter of a century...

Trust in Him who can go with you... And be everywhere for good...

These two congressmen never knew a bigger crowd than the one that turned out to hear them in Jersey City...

Referring to the Press' editor... 'Major' Martin Andersen gives a pep talk from sergeant that is just twenty years too late...

Believe me, folks, this recession business' we've been talking about is as terrible as you see...

Sanford friends of Frank D. Eustis will regret the loss of his recent death...

Mrs. John E. Couder left today for Tampa where she will be the guest of friends for several weeks...

Mrs. Gandy left Saturday for St. Cloud where she will be the guest of friends for a week or two...

A Tragic Loss

The death of Attorney General Landis came as a distinct surprise and shock to his many friends in Sanford and Seminole County...

As a member of the firm of Landis, Fish and Hull, now known as Hull, Landis and Whitehair, of our neighboring city of DeLand...

Always interested in politics, he seemed destined for a political career which would round out his life with even greater honors...

A large and vigorous man, he seemed much younger than his actual age. Always apparently in good health, there had never been any suggestion that he might not live for many years...

Life Insurance Volume

As this is National Life Insurance Week when the people of the country are supposed to consider for a moment the important part which the life insurance companies play in the daily lives of everyone of us...

In doing this the following letter from the National Association of Life Underwriters of New York City contains information which is highly revealing:

"American life insurance companies at the close of 1937 had a record number of policyholders, around 64,000,000, who held a record number of policies, approximately 133,000,000...

"The total income in force declined during the depression from around $109,000,000,000 in 1931 to a low of $98,000,000,000 during 1933. Therefore, the insurance in force at the end of last year shows an increase of $12,000,000,000 in four years...

"The excess of income over disbursements, plus the cash income derived from maturing securities and the sale of other assets, made it necessary for American life insurance companies during 1937 to find new investments for more than $4,000,000,000...

Lookouts Down DeLand Nine 11 - 3 For Third Win

Medler Pitches Entire Encounter For Local Nine

Visitors Are Allowed Only Nine Bingles; 5 Reds Strikeout

The Lookouts triumphed for the third straight time last night as DeLand Medler Lookout righthander, hurled his team mates to an 11 to 3 victory over the DeLand Reds to send the Chapman aggregation to the second position and bump the locals into sixth place.

Medler went the scoreless route for the Lookouts and was in excellent form all the way. He got into several tight spots and gave one time pitched out of them beautifully.

Adding Medler to pitching the victory was the big guns of the Lookout offense which scored seven last night for the third straight time. They pounded and blasted a pair of Red hurlers for a total of 10 hits which included a pair of doubles by Les Caplock, new Lookout second baseman, and Win Brown, who tripped to the right field wall.

Medler was very effective on the hill as he was nipped for only nine hits which were well scattered and he sent a total of five men down via the strike-out route.

An oddity happened in the eighth inning when Caplock slammed a line drive toward the Red hurler, Mitchell. The ball hit Mitchell on the racket forehead and rebounded into the Sanford dugout. Caplock scored one run on the play and was credited with a double. Mitchell stunned a little by the hit, continued to hurl the remainder of the inning.

Win Brown, Lookout right fielder, led the hitting department for the Lookouts by hitting safety three times in four official trips. He singled twice and tripped to the right field wall. Caplock was close behind in taking second honors when he doubled twice and singled once in five times to the platter.

Harrold secured a hit, Caplock and Brown and Mitchell singled once to make up the remainder to the Lookout hit. Trye Jackson, the DeLand receiver, led the offensive when he singled four times in four attempts to reach the plate.

The Lookouts jumped into an early lead when in the first inning they bunched the hits with a sacrifice to score two runs. In the third they added a line double. The Reds scored in the fourth inning but the Lookouts put the game away in the fifth when three Lookouts crossed the plate.

The Reds balled one more in the sixth the Lookouts pushed across another pair in the seventh in the eighth they scored to end the activities for the evening and rack up their third straight.

The Senators' victory was a decisive one as they dominated the game from start to finish. The Saints' offense was stifled by the Senators' pitching, and the G-Men's offense was equally effective against the Saints' pitching.

The game was a classic example of the state league's competitive nature, with each team putting up a strong performance. The Senators' win was particularly notable as it marked their third consecutive victory.

Lookouts To Play Orlando Senators In Game Tonight

The "Chief" Cook, local right hander, will see Manager G. Lacy's hurling assignment tonight as the Lookouts go into a rematch with the DeLand Senators at the local park on an attempt for a fourth straight win.

Cook, who hurled a beautiful 7 to 3 victory for the Lookouts on Monday afternoon against the Palmetto Aces, now has his right hand in the eighth frame of that tilt. However, medical treatment has restored the ailing muscle.

The Lookouts will probably go overstreet on the bill for the Senators tonight and the Orlando lineup will include Rabbit Banner on shortstop, Sam Coe on left field, Bucky Buscher in center field, Alabama Smith in right field, Hobby Keller on second base, Sam Poe on third base, Pete

JEZEBEL

A Woman's Name... JEZEBEL... JEZEBEL... JEZEBEL...

THE STORY THUS FAR: During the Mardi Gras of 1850, Miss Julie Hardeen, beautiful and willful ward of General Regard, invites society to a reception at which she means to announce her engagement to Pres Dillard, banker. She comes late to her party, and in a riding habit which shocks the crowd, and later quarrels with Pres because he lets a bank director's meeting delay him. Buck Cantrell, a former soldier, has a duel on account of Miss Julie. To tame her flames, he buys a red dress which is against custom, to wear to the Proteus Ball, which ends the Mardi Gras festivities. Pres commands her to wear the white dress. She writes to Buck Cantrell telling him to come to her at once. After the duel he does so.

CHAPTER III

"Oh, but Miss Julie," protested Buck, "Pres isn't going to like me taking you to the ball! You must have had a get-to with him, or you wouldn't be asking me!"

Freshman had suffered only a leg wound. Suddenly La Cour's face stiffened with amazement. "Why, it's Pres Dillard," he faltered, "Pres Dillard and..."

"Let them! They're just petty narrow-minded!" "No, ma'am, it's just that they've got rules, and they go by 'em — same as you and I."

"You're a coward, Buck! After Pres will call you out! That's why!"

The music was in glamorous away now and Pres and Julie dancing with the crowd. The floor became more and more deserted till the walls were filled with the black of men's suits and the shining white of the crinolines.

"You're a coward, Buck! After Pres will call you out! That's why!"

When they reached the ballroom the foyer was already crowded and Miss Cantrell arriving through the street door. The men were taking the women's wraps and checking them with their hats. The red showed glaringly below Julie's cloak and when Pres asked her for it, she drew it about her more closely, beginning to realize the humiliation she had brought on herself.

"It is that all you've got to say to me!" "There's nothing more to say!" "Even if I were wrong?" "You couldn't be wrong," he said evenly. "You're Julie Hardeen!"

Spending Plan Of New Deal Hit By Solons

Continued From Page One appropriations of $2,519,425,000 and authorizations of $5,35,000,000. Other provisions in the spending-lending program, already approved or pending in Congress, will bring the total of the Administration's latest campaign against the depression to $5,041,425,000 instead of the $1,512,000,000 originally estimated by the president.

In reporting the spending committee gave this break-down on the number of jobs it would create in the next fiscal year: Works Programs Administration, $2,800,000; National Youth Administration, $275,000; Federal buildings, $80,000; Public Works Administration, $1,133,000, to make a total of $4,133,000.

To this total the committee added 300,000 youths in the Civilian Conservation Corps camps and an additional 500,000 jobs which would be created by public roads, parks and flood control work.

The House today approved the Senate-House conference report on the Administration's billion dollar naval expansion program, overriding a brief outbreak of minority opposition.

Before the House approved the conference report, by a standing vote of 87 to 31, Republican Leader Snell of New York criticized the agreement on the grounds that it delegated more power to President Roosevelt than the original measure passed by the House.

Redfean Speaks To Kiwanians On Religious Trends

Continued From Page One the committee on the support of churches, told of the difficulties of the church in the present-day world, pointing out that persecutions of Jews and the church in Fascist countries is but a means of taking peoples' minds off their domestic problems.

There are many gentiles in Fascist countries who are being persecuted today, Mr. Dingfelder said, because of the fact that they had a grandfather who was Jewish.

Mr. Dingfelder charged that there are subversive forces in America today that are trying to undermine the church. The church is the chief support of democracy and when the church is undermined, then democracy will crumble, he added.

Mr. Wilson criticized Cary D. Landis, former attorney-general of the state who died yesterday. Mr. Wilson said he had associated with Mr. Landis for five years and that he had known him for many more. He said Mr. Landis' life was an outstanding example for others and that it must be considered a success from any viewpoint.

Mr. Wilson declared that Mr. Landis had worked himself to death, citing his recent efforts in behalf of the state to secure inheritance taxes from the Green estate in the case in which several states, notably Florida, Texas and New York claimed to have been the legal residence of the millionaire.

Commenting on the outlook for next year, Mr. Michael mentioned an article appearing in a recent issue of "The Agricultural Situation" by William C. The next 10 years may see a great increase in this mode of transportation as the past, but it will undoubtedly continue to grow."

"And they list her: HOUSEWIFE"

On census report, or tax return, she may be listed only "housewife," while her husband bears the more definite title of "lawyer," or "doctor," or "storekeeper." But housewife hardly does this wife and mother justice. She is the modern Jill-of-all-trades. Her job includes being dietician, interior decorator, costume designer, gardener, chauffeur—not to mention educator and health authority.

How does she get away with it? She is informed! Just as her husband depends upon business news in this paper, she finds in the advertisements the latest facts and price quotations on all the materials needed for her various jobs.

Food for the family? Butcher and grocer answer on these pages. . . Curtains, spring dresses for mother and daughter, slip covers? Department store and specialty shop are ready. She has preferences about fuels and milk, dental creams and even motor oil—all determined by her persistent, intelligent reading of advertisements.

That's why, when she is termed officially "housewife," she can run six jobs instead of one, and have time left over for amusement and relaxation. (The advertisement lists her too.)
